

REPUBLICANS REVISE THEIR PLATFORM

Changes Reported to Advertiser by Wireless.

(By Wireless Telegraph.)

WAILUKU, 4:47 p. m.—The Territorial convention was called to order at 10:10 this morning by A. G. M. Robertson. Rollcall showed 138 delegates present.

Hon. S. B. Dole was elected temporary chairman, Ed. Hart, temporary secretary, and W. J. Coelho, temporary interpreter.

The chair appointed the following committee on credentials: First district, E. P. McCann; Second, J. W. Kawai; Third, James Scott; Fourth, G. W. B. King; Fifth, L. M. Keawaki; Sixth, J. Opfergelt. The report from this committee was satisfactory, showing proper credentials from each delegate. The chair appointed as committee on permanent organization: First district, S. L. Desha; Second, James Akoi; Third, George Dunn; Fourth, James L. Holt; Fifth, W. H. Crawford; Sixth, George Anderson. The committee reported as follows:

D. H. Case, chairman; E. H. Hart, secretary; W. J. Coelho, interpreter; E. P. Reuter, sergeant-at-arms.

The report was unanimously adopted and Chairman Case was escorted to the platform by a committee appointed by the temporary chairman. The new chairman bowed his thanks to the delegates and extended a warm aloha to all.

He appointed as the committee on platform: First district, J. T. Moir, and J. W. Manauli; Second, F. W. Greenwell and H. L. Holstein; Third, W. T. Robinson and W. O. Aiken; Fourth, W. B. Farrington, and A. G. M. Robertson; Fifth, John C. Lane and A. S. Mahaulu; Sixth, Arthur Rice and Enoka Lovell.

The chair at 11:45 declared a recess until 1 p. m. in order to allow the committee time to prepare. A delay in the return of the gentlemen suggests a difference of opinion relative to several of the planks and a rumor is current that the objections will result in radical changes in the original document.

SAVIDGE.

Wailuku, 9:20 p. m.

Advertiser, Honolulu: The delegates reconvened at 4:15 p. m. when the Committee on Platform presented the following:

The Republican party of the Territory of Hawaii, in convention assembled, hereby reaffirms its allegiance to the principles and traditions of the Republican party of the Nation and to its policies as outlined in the national platform.

We heartily indorse the honest and vigorous administration of the office of chief executive by President Roosevelt.

We heartily indorse the successful administration of the public affairs of this Territory by Governor Carter, commending particularly his honest, able and business-like management of the finances of the Territory, which has brought our expenditures within our income, and been the means of extending and improving needed public works, and we commend also the administration's policy of encouraging immigration.

We again pledge our support to Delegate Kalaniana'ole in his endeavors to secure Federal aid for this Territory, and we congratulate him on the success he has already achieved in this respect.

The Republican party claims credit for having given to the people of this Territory, through the enactment of the County Act, a larger share of popular self-government than they have ever heretofore enjoyed, and we ask the support and assistance of the people in extending, improving and perfecting such government upon lines which may have been suggested by experience in the practical working of the law. We congratulate the several counties on the successful administration of their local affairs under said act.

We stand for the equality of labor and capital, and we uphold the Territorial executive in the strict enforcement of the statute requiring that all labor on public works shall be performed by citizens of the United States, or those eligible to become such.

We favor the rapid opening of public lands, and believe in the disposal thereof to bona fide settlers on the most favorable terms. We advocate that adequate appropriations be made for the prompt surveying and plotting of all lands available for settlement.

We will urge through our delegate the amendment by Congress of Section 73 of the Organic Act so as to give to HONOLULU'S WELCOME.

SUPERVISORS EXONERATE LOW'S RIVAL

Archer Gets the Best of the Controversy—Delay in the New Police Investigation—Other Matters of Interest.

The report of the special committee to inquire into the charges against Supervisor Archer was presented at a special meeting of the Supervisors last night, a report which exonerates Archer and lays the blame upon James Low for holding up the road work in the Ewa district and trying to so run things that the Honolulu plantation will get all the benefit of whatever work is going on. The presentation of the report brought on an altercation between Senator L. L. McCandless, who represented the Low faction, and Supervisor Moore, during the course of which each took the opportunity of telling the other that he did not know what he was talking about.

The special committee looking into the question of surplus employees around the police station asked for further time. This was granted, after which the clerk read the Low-Archer report, as follows:

ARCHER EXONERATED.

Honolulu, T. H., September 7, 1906. Geo. W. Smith, Esq., Chairman, Board of Supervisors, Honolulu.

Dear Sir: Your special committee, to whom was referred a communication from Mr. James A. Low, relative to road work done in Ewa district, report as follows:

In answering the first statement made by Mr. Low, namely, that of furnishing gratis all the rock used by the Board of Supervisors for macadam on the roads in Ewa district, we find that a large proportion of the rock was gathered from the new field on the Ewa side of Lehua avenue by the carts and teams of the county government at considerable expense, and since that field was cleared the crusher was put on a lot Honolulu side of the court-house, and all the rock used from that location was blasted and broken by the road men and not taken from rock fences, as set forth by Mr. Low. The rock from said rock fence was used under Mr. Low's direction on the contract road built from Aliea to Lehua avenue under Mr. Low's management, said contract being first held by a Mr. Springston and afterwards by Mr. John De Fries. Every yard of rock the County Supervisors have used in Ewa district has cost us money.

Furthermore, the county is at a loss of several hundred dollars on account of having to leave rock blasted and broken ready for the crusher. This loss was caused by Mr. Low forcing us to move our crusher and bunkers.

With reference to straightening the bend in the Kalanua Valley, your committee wish to say this matter has been before the entire Board of Supervisors several times, and in June of this year the County Engineer was directed to see Mr. Low and agree upon a right of way. After several interviews the line was agreed upon, and on July 16, 1906, the papers were all completed and forwarded to Mr. Low, together with Mr. Holloway's signature to an agreement for an exchange deed. The Engineer informed Mr. Low that as soon as he made the necessary arrangements for the transfer of right of way, the work on said road would be taken up and finished. After holding the papers for a month without doing anything with them, Mr. Low did, on August 10, return said papers to the County Engineer, and made the remark that he, Mr. Low, would not attend to Mr. Archer's business. The Board of Supervisors have therefore been unable to do this work, not because of any neglect on the part of the Supervisor from Ewa district, but because we have not the right to proceed until the necessary arrangements are made for a right of way.

Your committee do not feel that they are called upon to answer certain sections of Mr. Low's letter, as it is clearly a personal attack on Mr. Archer, when, in fact, the work done in Ewa district has been done after the same was ordered by the entire Board of Supervisors. Had the necessary arrangements been made for the transfer of the right of way, this board would, long ago, have completed both sections of road work that Mr. Low seems to make a basis of his complaint, and he was so informed by the County Engineer. We wish to say in passing, that when the county received the equipment from the Ewa and Waiānana Road Board, it was necessary for us to expend about $500 in repairs before we could use the crusher. We, therefore, claim that the equipment was not returned in good order by the last contractor who made use of it.

With reference to the up-keep of road ways in the district of Ewa, we find that Mr. Low has paid some six or eight cantoniers for this purpose from the $7000 which was left over from the Special Road Tax Fund of Ewa district, and which can only be spent in said district, and which same was withheld from the Board of Supervisors for some reason, Mr. Low even objecting to allowing the Superintendent of Public Works to pay for six mules from said fund, for the use of road work in Ewa district.

With reference to the work done in Ewa district since October 1st, when the equipment was turned over to the County Supervisors, we will repeat that the work has been done by the orders of the whole Board of Supervisors and under the direction of the County Engineer since his appointment, and that the work has been done on public roads and not private roads; that the Board of Supervisors had to build a stable for the protection of the stock, there being no place for keeping the stock when the equipment was turned over to us; that the Board have purchased and paid for six mules; that the Board had to put up over 8 miles of fencing to complete a contract left unfinished by the Territory; and that we had to construct a bridge over the Waikakalaua stream, also a left-over job; and have had to do other things which will be shown in our appended statement of all expenditures that the Board of Supervisors have made in Ewa district, and which we hope is full enough to answer all charges made against said Board.

Mr. Low says he feels justified in withholding further material until some action is taken on the road work to be performed in the vicinity of Aliea station. We think this shows that Mr. Low has only the interest of his own plantation at heart, and he seems to forget that there are other sections of Ewa district that require attention from the Board of Supervisors, which are as justly entitled to have good roads as the district around Aliea.

Your committee will say that they feel that some of the work done in Ewa district shows extravagance. We refer particularly to the abutments and work done on the bridge at Waikakalaua stream, but we cannot see that this can be charged to neglect of any individual, the work done showing that too much labor was put in on the preparation of materials used.

The communication from the O. R. & L. Co., dated May 19th, to Mr. Archer, as a member of the Board of Supervisors, should have been presented by Mr. Archer to this Board on May 28; but this was overlooked by Mr. Archer, he understanding that the communication simply called his attention to the fact that it would be necessary for the "work" done on the Peninsula road, to be kept within the right-of-way granted by the Railroad Co. This board has now in its possession, a copy of said letter, endorsed by a majority of the directors of the O. R. & L. Co., and a letter setting forth the fact that the O. R. & L. Co. will execute an agreement with the government for the right-of-way used for the road on the Peninsula as soon as said work is completed. This, we think, will answer the charge that work has been done on private roads.

In conclusion this committee fails to see any misappropriation of funds in the district of Ewa.

Respectfully submitted, (Sgd.) H. T. MOORE, (Sgd.) S. C. DWIGHT, Committee.

THE DISCUSSION.

The acceptance of the report was moved by Supervisor Lucas, seconded by Supervisor Paale, upon which the chair called upon those present for remarks, bidding them speak now or forever hold their peace.

McCandless asked that the letter from the Oahu Railroad & Land Co., referred to in the report, be read.

The three letters were read, the substance of each being that the company was ready to deed the right of way of the Peninsula road on Lihue street as soon as the road was built according to agreement. Archer explained why he had not turned in the first letter to the board, handing it to the road foreman for his instruction instead.

McCandless thought that the letters showed that Moore had said the thing that was not, an imputation warmly denied by Moore.

"My statements are as near true as I know how to make them. I do not think they should be questioned by someone who does not know anything about the facts of the case."

Then the chair put a number of questions as to the scope of the work done, Moore producing photographic proof that the committee had gone over the roads and knew what they were talking about. The chair promptly confiscated the photos and added them to the report as exhibits.

When the vote was called for the report was accepted with no votes.

MISS OMEROD.

Examiner: A cablegram has been received from Miss May Ormerod of Sacramento, a well-known young California singer who sailed on the steamship Manchuria to take a position as instructor of music in the Mauna Loa Seminary at Honolulu, saying that she arrived safely. Miss Ormerod is well known throughout California. She has a powerful and sweet soprano voice, and has been heard in concert in many of the western cities. Formerly she sang in one of the largest churches in Denver. During several years past she resided in Sacramento, but when the Manchuria sailed she started for Honolulu to begin her engagement as teacher there.

BROWN MUST DECIDE NOW

Support Too Generous
--Opposing Crabbe
--Hustace Safe.

There will be a general caucus on Monday and the result will determine where Brown "is at." His promises to all of the Supervisor candidates are creating much dissatisfaction among the rank and file and it looks at this time as though there will be something doing after Monday. Gear says he has promised him his support. Hustace holds to the same and it is known that he will help Dillingham and Crabbe, and on those two there is the biggest kind of a hitch. The friends of Walter Dillingham do not take kindly to the suggestion that he be shunted over to the Legislature from the Board of Supervisors in the interest of Crabbe.

DILLINGHAM IS THE MAN.

"Dillingham is willing to run for Supervisor, but he is not available as a member of the Legislature," said one of Dillingham's backers yesterday. "The talk of the party owing Crabbe something," he continued, "is all poppycock. The party honored him by making him a Senator and giving him a job on the Board of Immigration and he seems to think that by reason thereof he has a mortgage on the Government and must be provided with a living at public expense for the rest of his natural life. Crabbe does not seem to recognize that he is a load on the party's shoulders. We can not afford to take any chances at the coming election. We want men with good records, who can stand having their past investigated. That's what Dillingham can do and just what Crabbe can not do. So far as nominating Crabbe for Supervisor as against Dillingham, the Crabbe backers might as well make up their minds that we won't stand for it."

BROWN, LOW AND LINK.

It seems that Senator McCandless and Jim Low have combined with Sheriff Brown to do things in the Fifth. So far no one has been mentioned for the Senate from that district but McCandless, and as it is an unwritten law that the number of Senators be alternated between the two districts it would seem that McCandless and W. O. Smith are to be the men, unless there should be someone else come to the front. And it is said there will be some fine work to be done in the Senate during the session, something with oil in it. The combination of the Sheriff with the two from the outside district may be suggestive of more promises of support from the Sheriff. Mayhap he will be made to realize that political promises are expected, sometimes, to be kept.

HUSTACE SEEMS SAFE.

The question of support of candidates for Supervisor had the attention of the different precinct clubs at a meeting the other night. In the Eighth of the Fourth Hustace had prompt and unanimous support and the club was asked to give its endorsement to Crabbe and would have done so but for the fact that the one in the Fourth Precinct took a similar action by endorsing Crabbe and dumping Hustace. Gear did not get much more than a cold hand in the meeting in the Fourth, but Crabbe did, and Hustace got nothing. This made the Eighth boys sore, so they decided to give fullest support to Hustace "and any other good man that the club would select." This action was precipitated by the action of the Eighth. In both of these precincts the police machine may be eliminated. And the same may be said of the Second of the Fourth. Who is to be supported will be settled in the caucus that will be held on Monday.

THE SUPERINTENDENT.

It seems that Naganan Fernandez is the real superintendent of the Sunday school class which Lane has the credit of conducting. It is said that the acceptance of his opinion and his advice is of frequent occurrence in the Fifth of late. Indeed, his word is law in some of the precincts and his requests are often commands, and they are obeyed with alacrity. It is even said that some of the workers go over the head of the reputed leader and consult Fernandez on subjects in which the votes of the crowd are necessary. This would indicate that he has great control over there and is the one to be consulted by persons looking for votes. It is in his office where the class meets and the meetings are not always held on Sunday. It has been stated in this column in the past that Fernandez is the brains of the Lane faction. There is no reason why the statement made six months ago is not as true today and if the straws indicate the direction of the wind, Lane's supremacy may be delegated to Fernandez.

John Cathcart denies that he is in a deal with Brown or that he knows anything of a proposed partnership between Gear and Douthitt to gather in all of the criminal work.

PORTLAND'S TRADE ENVOY.

Portland's trade ambassador to Honolulu has been well received, and the utmost cordiality and good feeling are noticeable in the newspaper comment on the re-establishment of trade relations between Portland and our island neighbors, with whom we were formerly on such good terms, commercially and otherwise. The Honolulu got away yesterday on her second trip with a cargo enough larger than the first one to prove exceedingly gratifying to those who are interesting themselves in the new line. Editorial comment from the Honolulu Commercial Advertiser, printed elsewhere in this paper, reflects a great desire on the part of the Hawaiian people to do business with Portland, and as our merchants are more than anxious to increase their business in the rediscovered field, it now seems a certainty that the line will be placed on a permanent basis, and in due season it will be necessary to add another steamer.—Oregonian.

OUR BAND MAKES BIT AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., is a musical center. It is the home of one of the best bands in the United States. That St. Louis, then, should have been favorably impressed with the Hawaiian band is pleasant to hear.

Registrar C. H. Merriam has received a letter addressed to the Recorder of Deeds, Honolulu, from John O. Marshall, St. Louis, inquiring about a piece of land at Waikiki in which his wife seems to have an interest. It is all business excepting the following:

"P. S. We attended the concert of the Royal Hawaiian Band here last evening. They are drawing immense crowds and their music is appreciated very much."

This news of the band is just a fortnight old, the letter being dated August 25.

FROM SATURDAY'S COURT RECORDS

Argument was heard by Judge De Bolt in the mandamus suit of Albert Trask vs. Registrar Merriam.

Judge Robinson gave default judgment for plaintiff for $366.05 in the case of Allen & Robinson vs. John Mansfield.

M. F. Prosser, Deputy Attorney General, has filed briefs in the Supreme Court on Tax Assessor Holt's appeals from the Tax Appeal Court in the case of Laupahoehoe Sugar Co. and three other cases. Castle & Withington have filed a brief on the tax appeal of O. R. & L. Co.

Ballou & Marx have filed voluminous briefs for defendants in the ejectment suit of Charles A. Brown vs. John D. Spreckels and others, on their appeal to the Supreme Court from verdict for plaintiff.

Felipe Rodriguez by his attorney, Geo. A. Davis, files a release of his claim against Honolulu Plantation Co. on receipt of $50 in full satisfaction.

Byron O. Clark, whose attorneys are Kingsbury & Kellogg, answers the complaint of F. R. Harris, denying that he is indebted to him in the sum of $574.75 with interest, or any sum, and pleads the statute of limitations relative to a certain promissory note.

John F. Colburn, executor of the estate of Antone Rosa, deceased, is given 14 days from September 14 to file his necessary papers on his appeal in the matter of the estate of Antone Rodriguez, deceased.

On Wednesday, Sept. 5, the sad death of little Beatrice Ellen Christley took place at the Queen's Hospital, after an operation for appendicitis. She was the only daughter of Mrs. Lizzie Christley, whose husband died some months ago, and she was a most winning, bright little soul of nine and a half years. The funeral took place at 3 o'clock on Thursday, the 6th, at St. Andrew's Cathedral, and was largely attended by the many friends of the mother and by the fellow-scholars of the little girl at St. Andrew's Cathedral Sunday school. The Rev. Mr. E. T. Simpson conducted the services, and the choir of St. Andrew's Priory sang the two hymns, and made the responses. The heartiest sympathy goes out to the bereaved mother and little brother Llewellyn.

Men, Here's An Offer

I want to help men who are weak in vitality, who are nervous, despondent and lacking in self-confidence; who feel as if old age was coming on too soon because of the dulling of their youthful fire and ambition. I want to help men who have pains in the back, rheumatism, weak stomach and general indications of breaking down.

I can help you if you are such a man, and I want you to feel such of it. I will not take any man's money if his case is incurable by my Electric Belt. I want you to be sure of that, and I so make the following offer:

I WILL PAY $1000 IN GOLD
To any weak man who uses my newly improved Electric Belt (as I direct and takes proper care of himself) if I cannot make him sound and strong.

No man who needs my treatment will doubt my ability to cure him in the face of this offer, and if you, reader, belong in the class of half-men, I want you to come to me at once and let me show you that I can do for you what I have done for thousands of other men as bad or worse off.

I bank on Electricity. It is a power that will put more life into anything living. It will restore paralyzed limbs; it is life to weakened organs; it drives away pain. It is doing these things every day, and why not for you? Are you incurable? Are you so far gone that there is no hope for you? Are you a physical wreck? If you are, then come to me. I can cure you, and I will. What is the use dragging yourself around among men feeling that you are not like them, that you are not the man you ought to be, when you might as well hold up your head and feel like a two-year-old?

Don't you want to feel the vim and life in your nerves as you used to; to see the sparkle in the eyes; to have the spring in your step and the lightness in your heart that go with vigorous manhood? Life is too short to miss any of the pleasures that belong to it; so why don't you enjoy them as long as Nature intended?

Dr. McLaughlin—Dear Sir: In response to your request for a report of the work of your Belt in my case, will say that I have laid it aside some time since, for it has cured me completely. Instead of weighing only 139 pounds, I have gained 31 pounds, and 169 pounds is my regular weight now. I will not try to thank you in this letter, but I will be in San Francisco shortly, when I will call upon you and tell you personally how grateful I am for what you have done for me, and for the interest you showed in me while I was under your care.

Yours very truly,
K. ROBB.

I can take any man who has a spark of vitality left in his veins and fan it into a flame and make him feel like a Hercules! I can help a rheumatic to drop his cane and crutch and hop around like a boy. I had a patient come into my office recently and jump over a chair to show me that he was young again.

How do I do it? By filling the blood, the nerves, the organs and muscles with electric energy—that is what Nature gave them at first; that is what they have lost when you break down.

That is how I cure, and that is why I am so sure that I can cure. You have the body that needs the power, and I have the power and know how to use it.

Dr. M. A. McLaughlin—Dear Sir: Your letter of the 24th inst. came to hand in due time, and I will admit my negligence in not informing you of what your Belt had done for me, but I must say that I am perfectly satisfied with it in every respect. Your treatment has done more for me than all the medicine I took during my six or seven years' search for a cure. Even the first few weeks' use had a remarkable effect. I felt like a new man and things that were almost too heavy for me to lift previously, had no weight at all. I slept well and ate heartily. My improvement was gradual and unmistakable until I was completely cured. Then a relative of mine complained of ill-health, and I loaned the Belt to him, with a gratifying result as it had brought about in my own case. I have recommended the superiority of the treatment to many of my friends, and certainly cannot thank you enough for your valuable services.

Yours very truly,
J. C. CROWDER.
Do you notice how enthusiastic my patients seem to be? See the praise they give me! They are all men full of an idea, overflowing with expression, just as any one who is immensely pleased. If you have been paying money to doctors and taking nasty drugs for years, and after getting no benefit from it all you find a new lease on life after using my Belt for a month, you will be enthusiastic, too. You will want to go out on the highways and shout, and you won't care who knows that you were once a weakling, because now you are cured and a man again.

Why say more? Isn't this enough? Aren't you convinced that I can cure you? If you want more proof, tell me where you are and I can give you names of people near you. You can see them and ask them what I have done for them. The word of an honest man cured is worth more than all argument, and I have thousands of them. Now don't delay. Enjoy all the happiness you may in this world. You can have none without health and strength.

Good Weather Gave Them a Chance to See the View at Its Best--Program for Today.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 9.

Forenoon—Churches.

2:30 p. m.—Reception and entertainment at Honolulu Seaside Hotel, Waikiki, afternoon and evening. Music by Kawaihau Club. Canoeing, boat riding, bathing and fishing. Five o'clock tea.

With the prospect of staying here four or five days longer than they anticipated, owing to the delay of the Sonoma from the Colonies, the Southern California Editorial Association program will be somewhat altered so that there will not be too many events crowded into each day. The program will be lengthened gradually and this will make it more pleasant to everybody, a sort of sweetness long drawn out.

The forenoon of today will be for church going. This afternoon the Seaside Hotel at Waikiki Beach will be given over to the entertainment of the visitors by Manager Fred Church. A big crowd is looked for and men and boys with surf boats are expected to do stunts that will make the visitors wonder at their aquatic accomplishments. Several canoes will also be out for surf-tobogganing. The whole afternoon will be given to the beach.

Tomorrow morning at 8:45 the special train of the Oahu Railway Company will leave the depot for Haleiwa Hotel. General Passenger Agent Fred C. Smith has placed a special train, with observation cars, at the disposal of the party. This trip will be a very pleasant one throughout, as the train passes through the entire sugar plantation belt and comes to a stop at one of the prettiest hotels in the islands. Lunch will be served at the Haleiwa. Mr. Smith requests that every one intending to make this trip be promptly on hand at 8:45 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The "Seeing Honolulu" trip by electric car, to have taken place yesterday afternoon, was postponed, owing to some misunderstanding as to when and where the car was to start, and for the reason that many of the guests were tired and wished to rest during the afternoon. Their first day's entertainment was strenuous, almost too strenuous for some.

AT THE PALI.

The ride to the Nuuanu Pali yesterday morning was accomplished in trolley and wagonettes. Never was a day more beautiful. All along the route the visitors found scenery that was delightful to them. The intense shades of green were particularly striking. The homes, arrangements of lawns, the shrubbery and the grand view of the lower valley as the vehicles ranged upward along the highway all came in for good words.

As the wagonettes swung into the wind-swept gap and the wonderful view of windward Oahu met the eye

The Coral Worker

The tiny roller in Pacific deeps
What knows he of the pact with God he keeps?
Yet, from abyssal glooms his labors rise:
Till white-ringed attols smile at purple skies.
And palms, and ferns and flowers and bread tree trees
Are mirrored in the prisoned turquoise seas:
Above, through cloudy rifts, fall broken lights
Around us swirl the mists in blinding flight
Still let our Pinnacles of Effort grow
To broadening day from out the night below:
But not as coral workers do we build.
Whose labor is by instinct blind fulfilled
We, wiser know each buttress, pier or span
The which we shape is part of God's own plan.

The wedding tour of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, which began four months ago and had included several of the European capitals, was completed the second week of the present month.

When the steamship St. Paul of the American line arrived at New York, she was met by the dispatch boat Sylph, which had been sent here from Oyster Bay by President Roosevelt, to meet his son-in-law and daughter, who were passengers aboard returning from a most triumphant visit abroad.

The Longworths, on the return trip, were fully as much a feature as they were on the outward voyage, and were the center of many merry parties, participating, as they did, in all the festivities on board, and it was with genuine regret that their fellow voyagers saw them go down the gang plank to the launch of the yacht that was to transfer them to Oyster Bay.

"Hey!" yelled the stevedore, "handle that gun-powder careful."
"Wats wrong wid it?" demanded Finnegan and Flanagan, who had held of it.

"Don't you know," replied the stevedore, "that some of that same powder exploded last year an' blowed up ten men?"

"Shure, that couldn't happen now," replied Finnegan, "fur there's only two of us here."—Philadelphia Press.

LIQUOR LICENSE

REFUSAL REVERSED

Treasurer Campbell has been overruled in his refusal of a fifth-class liquor license to Botelho at Kukui, Hawaii, by a majority vote of the board of arbitration. The Treasurer's arbitrator was C. H. Dickey, the applicant's Frank Thompson, and these two named R. W. Breckons as third man. All are lawyers.

Yesterday Thompson and Breckons returned a majority report in favor of granting the license, and Dickey a minority report against doing so.

RARE NOONDAY SIGHT YESTERDAY

Crowds gathered in the streets yesterday at noon to gaze at Venus, which was clearly discernible in the southeastern sky. It recalled a day about fifteen years ago when at midday the sun, moon and a star were visible at once. People in California and in Japan enjoyed the same rare sight.

In its question page the Ladies' Home Journal for September answers a correspondent who asks if stars are ever visible in daytime. The oracle gives no further satisfaction than the familiar information that stars may be seen by day from the bottom of a well or shaft. He or she needs a trip to Hawaii.

CRAB SANDWICHES.

Chop the crab meat very fine, season with pepper and salt, then stir in just enough mayonnaise dressing to hold the meat together; to the mayonnaise may be added chopped olives, pimientos, capers and parsley, all chopped very fine and stirred in before the dressing is added to the crab meat; a few drops of lemon juice sprinkled over the crab meat with the salt and pepper improves the flavor. Spread slices of white and brown bread with the crab filling, and press the brown bread on top; trim the edges, remove crusts, and cut into dainty triangles.—New York Globe.

HAWAII'S SMILING VACANCIES.

What will most surprise the visiting California scribes is the fact that, of all the vast, vacant, yet fertile tracts of land they have seen on this island, belonging to private estates, hardly an acre is advertised for sale.

As they looked down from the brink of the Pali yesterday, their eyes rested upon a wide and lovely domain with few houses and few signs of cultivation. Not a white stake was in sight—not one. They saw a land where the guava bushes grow ten feet high, where lantana abounds and where occasional trees throw a grateful shade; but they did not see a single sign of acre property for sale, nor any reason in crops, flocks or large herds why the land should not be on the market.

As they travel through the islands they will tread on principalities of rich, idle, weed-grown land which might easily support a thrifty population. They will note the absence of interior villages; they will look almost in vain for the signs of outside real estate activity; with their ears to the ground they will detect no sound of a boom. The man they will never see is the big ranch-owner on the watch, lasso in hand, for a tenderfoot. He is more likely to be out with a shot-gun to warn him off. Hospitality to the land-hunter here is best expressed in the sign: "Keep Off the Grass."

The stranger from California will look at these things in bewilderment and with interrogation points in his eyes. A shock to his life-long experiences will tremble in the question Why?

Well, the reasons for such an unnatural status are varied, but the principal one is that big Hawaii landowners have held the soil so long that they can't make themselves let go. With land they don't need and can't efficiently utilize they are besieging the government to let them have the public domain also. Holders of principalities of public land not in fee, have got leases at a nominal price and, not being taxed on anything but their visible improvements, they have no incentive to divide up. With it all is the pride of insularity, suspicion of the stranger and abhorrence of the thing that is new. Hence these vacant acres and the absence from the advertising columns of the press of notices of farms for sale.

Some day things will be different but so, geologists say, they also may be different at the North Pole. A time may come when the icebergs will melt away and the long-buried flowers bloom again; but whether Hawaii will see the land divided up in a way to support a large population before that time, is quite an open question.

The Wisconsin will probably happen in, on hospitable thoughts intent, just when our Japanese naval visitors will need entertainment most. It's a happy coincidence.

One of the least apropos of the comments made about Gilbert J. Waller as a possible Democratic nominee for Sheriff is, that he is "too mild a gentleman" to perform the more summary duties of the post. Mildness, is, indeed, the exterior finish of my friend Waller, but underneath it is something very different. How many people know that he is one of the best boxers this town ever produced and that his lightning upper-cuts and jabs and his aggressiveness in a fight would do credit to the squared circle? In the sphere of the manly art, Waller's trainer for the last five years, the veteran pugilist, Billy Woods, says he would match him against any man on the police force, Brown included. Out in a mob, Waller would make as many arrests as the next officer and he would be as mild and quiet about it as a cooing dove. But beware of that kind of mildness. It is the sort a great Southern Editor told about once when he said: "Don't get scared of the man who comes tumbling up to the sanctum yelling 'Where is that editor? I'll break every bone in his carcass.' Go on with your writing and when you come to a period, get up, take him by the collar and the slack of the pants and throw him anywhere—out of the window, if you like. But when you see a mild, quiet fellow tiptoeing up-stairs, his face white and his under-lip trembling, and when he comes in and asks for the editor in a low voice, just you explain that the editor is ill at home with some contagious disease and that you are just there temporarily, taking his place. If that yarn doesn't go take a running jump down the airshaft."

"Promise everything and leave the rest to God," seems to be the motto of Brown in this campaign. Wherever three or four candidates for the same office meet, you see the proud, confident smile on the face of each, which comes of a Brown pledge in the vest-pocket. I presume that Brown, in the recesses of his heart, or liver, or whatever may be his organ of fulfillment, has secreted a plan to soothe the disappointed ones and put them in line. Perhaps he means to gather in the outs and place them on the incidental fund, payroll. Queer thing, that payroll. I heard the other day of a young and most respectable business man, who is canvassing for Brown, whose name is said to be down for "detective" work at $75 per month. A discharged policeman told me. Such of the paid detectives as are known, A. St. Clair Pinaia and Jimmy Boyd among the rest, are of a sort to dismay the Pinkertons. But they are good politicians and I hope the taxpayers, who do not belong to the police machine, enjoy paying the bills.

I wonder whether the Navy Department can be got to revive the program, which the Russo-Jap war and the Panama affair interrupted, of holding combined maneuvers of the Asiatic and North Pacific fleets here next winter? My readers will recall that the Asiatic fleet came here a few seasons ago to join the vessels from the Coast, but that the latter were shunted southward and reported here after the Asiatic ships had hurried back, owing to Oriental war talk. Things are peaceable now on both sides of the Pacific and it seems as if the fleets might be gathered again. Maneuvers are as much needed here as they are on the Atlantic side, where they frequently take place; and Hawaii, as a midway point, is just the place where all our Pacific ships can meet to best advantage and have their sham battle out.

They tell me that some of our professional knockers are trying to keep the editors from making the volcano trip. These gentry belong to the class which, when a stranger puts up at a Cairo hotel, tells him not to see the pyramids or a visitor to Buffalo not to go near Niagara. Sleeping or waking, Kilauea is one of the nine great fixed spectacles of the world. The others are eruption, Zambesi falls, the Himalayas as seen from Darjeeling, Vesuvius in eruption, Gibraltar, the Arctic night, the pyramids of Egypt and the view from Mount Blanc. If the Southern California editors permit themselves to be kept away from the volcano by Honolulu hotel runners, curio sellers or boarding house-keepers, they should never venture away from home again. They will miss the one really great thing Hawaii has to show.

Venus made her semi-occasional visit to the afternoon sky yesterday and as soon as the street crowds heard the name they turned out and rubbered.

BRYAN REDIVIVUS.

Harper's Weekly.

There are many persons who do not yet understand what they would call the recent violent disinterment of Mr. Bryan. Let us see! First, he never was interred. He took a nap in the graveyard, but was never dug under. The reasons why hearts that have been cold to him since 1896 have suddenly developed warmth are worth studying. The silver issue is dead, and need no longer scare away from Bryan any one who likes his leadership in other particulars. The sentiment that a man who went wrong on silver has not sound enough judgment to be fit to be President is much modified by the thought that Bryan is ten years older than he was in 1896, and has spent that interval in labors and experiences that could hardly fail to broaden and improve his understanding. There is a sound basis for the belief that Bryan is a wiser man than he was ten years ago. Next, President Roosevelt has demonstrated that, Bryan or no Bryan, what is due is bound to come, and the fear of Bryan as a radical has been obliterated by the spectacle of a Republican administration compelling a Republican Congress to undertake and accomplish measures of regulation and discipline such as in a general way Bryan has been understood to stand for. Much that used to be Bryanism has become Rooseveltism, and prospered under the new name. "In a supreme sense," says the Springfield Republican, "Bryanism stood for the shackling of predatory wealth—the man before the dollar—and it is that principle which the American people seem now to have accepted." There is much in that. The lightning that would not run down Bryan's rod has run down Roosevelt's, and people feel that it was bound to come, and give Bryan some credit for discerning it. Finally, for

GENERAL REVIEW.

The Territorial Auditor's report on the state of the treasury for August shows total current receipts of $67,045.42 and expenditures of $153,987.11. Receipts were $1,660.04 in excess of those for August last year, and expenditures $20,981.41 less than those of the corresponding month of 1905. Payments under the Loan Act for August last amounted to $87,424.99, being $32,424.20 more than those for August 1905. The current cash balance on the 31st was $281,865.15, against $38,330.95 a year previous, an excess of $243,534.20. The loan fund cash balance was $661,671.93, being $97,440 more than a year before. Outstanding bonds amounted to $3,820,000, the increase in the Territory's bonded debt being $683,000.

W. A. Mears, representative of the Portland, Ore., Chamber of Commerce, on departing in the steamer Siberia for home expressed gratification at his reception by the business men of Honolulu and Hilo, adding, "I believe that Oregon is to get a share of the island trade and I know that we will ship our products to you direct from Portland." Thos. J. King of the California Feed Co., on returning from a visit to Portland, Tacoma and Seattle, reported success in establishing new business connections in Portland and eagerness among merchants there to promote trade relations with these islands.

Cargo has been removed from the stranded steamship Manchuria and lightered to Honolulu.

L. M. Whitehouse has been awarded the contract for $88,888 to construct Government wharf No. 2, between the Alakea and Kilaua street slips. It will be 610 feet long and 120 feet wide, and work must be completed on or before June 15 next.

Ocean steam arrivals for the week have been the Siberia from the Orient and the Alameda from San Francisco. Departures have been the Siberia for San Francisco, the Hilonian for San Francisco via Hilo and the Nebraskan for San Francisco via island ports.

LITTLE TALKS

SECRETARY ATKINSON—Rowing is the very best sport we have.

W. W. HARRIS—That noonday star heralds the advent of a candidate for sheriff to beat Brown.

J. F. SPRINGER—Yes, I've got something in this package to eat—I think they call it a calabash.

JOHN BRADSHAW—Hawaiian dog fanciers ought to learn how to get their dogs in condition for the bench.

DR. A. R. ROWAT—Yes, my little boy won a prize with his dog, Jack. It was an order for a week's shaving.

LINK McCANDLESS—What does a man really get out of politics to offset abuse and misrepresentation? Anything?

DR. RODGERS—It looks funny to see people straining their necks to get a glimpse of a star at noon, when they can see millions by just waiting until the sun goes down.

J. COLEMAN—That star was sure moving some. At noon it was over the corner of King and Fort streets and at 6 p. m., down by the waterfront. I guess it was a comet.

A. V. GEAR—I don't much care whether I get into the Board of Supervisors or not. If the people want me, all right; if they don't I can console myself with the Zoo.

BILLY WOODS—Waller's all right at 138 pounds. I got a clip from him the other day that sent three teeth down my throat and I have suffered from gnawing pains ever since.

JAMES F. MORGAN—After we see what planks have been put in the Republican platform, a meeting of the business men will likely be called for Monday to go over the names of candidates.

J. F. MORGAN—If there are no pineapples left at Wahiawa to put through the canneries while the Southern California editors are there they might hang cans on the plants and say that the pines can themselves.

GEORGE MARTIN—Talk about hard luck. I gave an order for a pair of trousers to the dog show people and Mrs. Juanita Cunha won it and is going to give it to Sonny. I didn't agree to make a circus tent.

REV. DR. STONE—I have heard for years that the missionaries down here enriched themselves at the expense of the natives and I am glad to learn differently. It is one of the many compensations for being wrecked on these shores.

HENRY MACFARLANE—A prominent man said to me that he and his wife liked cold milk but that it made them bilious. I told him to try two-thirds milk and one-third White Rock or siphon water. He did so and is now a confirmed milk-bibber. Milk and fizzy water in the proportions named make a mighty palatable drink.

W. H. BABBITT—I have the toughest job going. Teachers do not regard their relations with us as a business one. Why I got two resignations from one of the other islands yesterday, with the schools just about to open. Many teachers are due to return here the very day they should be at their desks organizing their classes.

FRANK THOMPSON—While on a train between Tokio and Yokohama the other day, reading a bundle of Advertisers, I was slapped on the back by a man named Almy—a plantation man from here. 'By Jove, those papers look good to me,' he said, as he reached for one. And by the way: J. A. M. Johnson is doing things over there. You can't buy a nickel's worth at a Japanese fruit stand now without having the money rung up on an American cash register.

IMPROVED METHODS.

It used to be when I was bad my mother'd surely spank me, She'd say, "This hurts me worse than you, but some day you will thank me." But now she's joined a mothers' club, and goes 'most every day, To find out how to train me in just the proper way.

It used to be when I would get real impudent or pert, I'd have to go upstairs to bed, or do without dessert; But now she lets me go ahead, and says that it will teach Not only independent thought, but fluency of speech.

It used to be when I would yell she'd take me well in hand, But now she lets me go ahead to make my lungs expand. Just once when I got mad and kicked, she showed some slight surprise, But finally said that kicking was a healthful exercise.

To train me mother used to strive with all her might and power; But now she lets my soul unfold just like a spring-time flower; She says the club's a splendid thing; I'm sure that's very true, But, oh! I wish my father soon would join that same club, too.

HASKIN SAYS THAT THE ENGLISH ARE SLOW

Conservative About All Time-Saving Devices.

LONDON—One dismal evening as I sat in the smoking room at the Hotel Cecil I overheard a couple of bedraggled Americans talking about the English being slow. The Yankee drummers were tired out from tramping through the damp streets and were thoroughly discouraged by the many rebuffs they had suffered at the hands of our unprogressive cousins on this side of the water. One of them said to the other: "By God, Bill, talk about these people being slow; do you know that London has only 105 miles of street car track, and that there is not a typewriter nor a telephone in the Bank of England!"

Think of that, Mr. Reader, the first financial institution in the world, located in the heart of the largest city in the world, without a telephone or a typewriter. It seemed incredible. To make sure I went to the telephone book and examined the directory. Sure enough, the name was not in the book. The next morning I called at the bank and asked the doctory attendant who came forward: "Please tell me what make of typewriter you use here." He looked me over as suspiciously as if he thought I might contemplate robbing the vault, and shut the door in my face without deigning to reply at all.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST TIME-SAVERS.

I called at the agency of a well-known American firm that manufactures typewriters, and in response to my inquiry about what headway they were making in the English market, the manager said: "Slow enough. We have sold more machines in Asia than we have in England. The first argument for a typewriter is that it is a time-saver; that by its use one employee can turn out more work than several can by hand. When our agents make this statement to an English business man they never get any farculars or postals than a number of clerks can address by hand. It is particularly valuable for the use of wholesale houses that send out weekly quotations to large lists of customers. Its merits are so palpable that it has enjoyed a big sale everywhere among business men who are alive to the advantage of its money-saving qualities. The young man who went to London to introduce it is a well-mannered, easy-going chap, of the sort not likely to offend anyone, yet after a few days he wrote home that there must be something wrong with his credentials or his appearance, because he could not even get access to the heads of English firms, let alone talk business to them.

that he was the fourth man of his family to be at the head of his firm, and that he wanted nothing to do with Americans in one way or another.

By this time the youth's ire was pretty thoroughly aroused and he replied: "All right sir. I have come across the Atlantic to see you and I have been properly introduced. According to business courtesy as it is understood in America you might at least be civil to me, whether you want to buy or not. Inasmuch as you choose to be so surly, and have taken so much pains to state how independent you are of Americans and their ideas, I will say this, that if two or three more men of your family continue to blindly ignore new ideas and improve-of any sort. He wants to run things exactly as his grandfather did, and hangs to precedent with a stubbornness that is as remarkable as it is unreasonable. He seems to argue that anything that is not English is not worth while. The reason he refuses to buy a typewriter is not altogether because he wants to do the right thing by the employees who have been long in his service. If this were the case he would not keep them working all their lives on boy's wages, or keep them at their tasks after they have become disabled. There are many firms in London that could well afford to pension all their old employees and replace them with a new staff operating under modern methods, in fact they could save money by retiring their whole force on full pay.

I have worked in all parts of the world and believe I thoroughly understand the disadvantages of trying to accomplish something among strangers whose language I can not speak and whose ways are unfamiliar. While in Asia and Europe I kept looking forward to the time when I would be in England, because I could then talk to people myself and not have to depend upon interpreters. But I give you my word of honor I have never been in any city where one can accomplish as little in a day as in London. In the first place the distances are great and the transportation facilities are extremely poor.

One needs no further proof of London's slowness than the fact that its great population is content to ride on the ancient omnibuses. Few of the buildings are equipped with elevators, and much time and muscle must be spent in climbing long flights of stairs. The delays that are encountered in reaching your man after you have arrived at your destination are most trying. Several times I have had occasion to interview President Roosevelt, and in each instance I got to him with less trouble than it took to see a number of London business men who were characters of only ordinary importance.

A CORRESPONDENT'S "KICK." Whenever English newspaper men come to the United States things are made easy for them, but the American correspondent in London usually has a sorry time of it. The press gallery in parliament is an antiquated little stall only a few feet square. There is not enough room in it for representatives of the English press, much less foreigners, and at last accounts no alien, not even the representative of our Associated Press, was given admittance to it. When parliament is in session the best that an American correspondent can do in the attempt to reach a member, is to send in his card from the cloak room, or wait in the lobby until the session is dismissed. Considering the importance of British and American newspaper interests, it would seem that the English authorities would see the necessity for an exchange of reciprocal courtesies. That they fail

"FOURTH MAN OF HIS FAMILY."

Finally he selected one large concern and managed after repeated rebuffs to get a personal letter of introduction to the head of the firm. After he had cooled his heels in an outside ante-room for an hour or so, the boss came out, red with anger at the boy's persistence in trying to reach him, and said: "Now what do you want, young man, and be quick about it." When the salesman quietly and politely stated that he wished to call his attention to a remarkable labor-saving device made in America, the Englishman blurted out that the upstart Yankee could not tell him anything about how to run his business;

ments in business, your competitors will eventually make it so hot for you that some future head of your house will have no business at all, but will be driving a hack. Good morning." This young man may have made a mistake by losing his temper and replying to uncivility in kind, but it is certain that if the Englishman persists in clinging to his old ways, and spurning new ideas, the young drummer from America will prove a good prophet.

"LIKE GRANDFATHER USED TO DO."

ther. The invariable reply is: "I could not think of cutting down my force. Now there is John, who has been with our firm twenty-nine years, and Henry thirty-one years, and Uncle Joe forty-two years. None of them are very fast, but they manage to do our work, and we could not think of making any change in our way of doing business."

In going about London one finds innumerable instances where men have served firms in one capacity from their early youth to extreme old age. With no difficulty at all I secured a photo of a group of six employees working in one corner of a room, the first of whom had been there over fifty years, three had served over forty years, and two over thirty years. These men began as bookkeepers and had never been advanced beyond that capacity. The average American would not be satisfied to work thirty or forty years in one place on the same salary, but the Englishman invariably takes great pride in the length of time he has served in one position.

CLERK HAD STIFF FINGERS.

One day I happened to be in a photographer's shop on the Strand, and the attendant who waited on me was so decrepit that he could not tie up the package I had purchased on account of his fingers being stiff. He made the usual boast, saying that as boy and man he has been clerking in that one place for forty years. I asked him what salary he was getting, and he told me that the highest wages he had ever received during his long term of faithful service were ten dollars a week. According to the English way of reckoning it seems to be perfectly natural for a man to work all his life at beginner's wages, but in the United States a man who can't make himself useful enough to force a promotion has little chance of holding down his job for half a century.

I was very much amused at the account given me by an American business man who sent his son to London to introduce a labor-saving device, and who met with almost total failure. The manufacturer was not so much put out at the boy's failure to place orders, as he was at the ill-treatment accorded him. His patent is an addressing machine, by the use of which a sixteen-year-old boy or girl can mail more cir-

REFORM IN MEN'S ATTIRE

What the World May Come to Very Soon.

N. Y. Tribune—"James, I think I will wear my magenta trousers this evening."

"Yes, sir. With the lace border?"

"No. The plain style, with two red stripes. It's going to be a very quiet affair, and I don't want to look too conspicuous. Give me that flaring tailed coat in sulphur and cream."

"Ow about the waistcoat, sir?"

"Let me have something modest in violet and with vermilion dots. The four inch pearl buttons with rhinestones are tasteful, don't you think?"

"Hall the rage, sir. They suits your complexion, sir."

"So I think, James. Ah, it is rather difficult to navigate with these high heels, curled tip shoes, especially when a man is wearing corsets. We New Yorkers will soon be like the Chinese women, unable to walk without assistance."

"I hope not, sir. A business gentleman 'as to'."

"Ha, ha, ha! I saw such a ridiculous sight on Broadway this morning, James. An innocent old auntie from the backwoods, dressed in a blue skirt and a gay feather hat, such a costume as women used to wear. When she saw her gaudy appearance in a shop window in contrast with the sober browns and blacks of up-to-date women, she almost had a fit. The recollection makes me hysterical. Pass over the smelling salts, my boy."

"Will you carry a chatelaine tonight, sir?"

"Yes, I need it for cigars, since these clothes have no pockets. James, James, we have made a terrible mistake, and I fear it's too late to do anything!"

"You make my heart stop, sir. What is it?"

"These magenta trousers look green under the electric light! It's an impossible shade. Oh, why didn't we think of it before! I haven't time to unlace and put on another pair. Cut the strings, James. Give me the smelling salts. I'm almost crazy!"

This dialogue floating through the window of a Fifth Avenue bachelor establishment was heard the other day by an imaginative person who had been reading of the change in men's evening attire decreed by London tailors.

The high class breeches artists of the West End, it was cabled, had sent out samples of flamboyant creations rivaling the dreams of Parisian men milliners.

A revolutionary blue coat, a poem and a melodrama in cloth, with velvet collar and silk facings, will be worn the coming season by all perfect gentlemen, so it is said. "Trousers or knee breeches will be optional." A hasty cable requesting more light on this dubious statement brought the reply that the English language was to blame; optional refers to either rather than none. Taking it in this sense, the trousers or knee breeches will be for the present of black cloth, the longer garments having two rows of braid on the side seam. Gilt buttons will be attached wherever they will be most ornamental and useless. There is an alleged similarity to the costume of footmen and that recently prescribed for gentlemen of the King's household.

THE TAILOR'S DREAM.

"The hour has struck," said a New York tailor exultantly, scanning the dispatch. "Tis the knell of commercialism and ugliness in male attire. At last we artists of the cloth have begun an international movement that gives scope to our aspirations and will not stop until man is arrayed like the peacock. Ah, the wasted years of black clothes built on the model of a coffin. Alas, for the epoch of readymades and hand-me-downs! It is a glorious renaissance that dawns for the profession and its victims—I mean, its patrons. What was the pre-Raphaelite movement in art? Nothing compared with our heroic attempt to get away from the funeral, sordid monotony of the age and hark back to the period of slashed galleons, red cloaks, curled shoes and feather hats. I see in the near future a Broadway crowd looking like the chorus of a comic opera, the downtown business quarter resembling a masquerade party, old gentlemen with white whiskers trip-

HASKIN SAYS THAT ENGLISH ARE SLOW

to do so is merely another instance of English narrow-mindedness and lack of enterprise. As matters now stand the Sultan of Sulu is more considerate of the gentlemen of the press than the British government.

The American woman who goes shopping in London is generally as mad as a wet hen before she gets three squares from her hotel. It is not customary to try on gloves, and this of course starts an argument. Again, it is the rule that if a clerk is waiting on a customer who is not a titled person, and some one of rank should enter, the first-come is unceremoniously dropped. One day I was buying some stuff in a furnishing store, when a fussy, old red-nosed lord came puffing into the place, pounded his cane on the floor impatiently, and demanded instant attention from the clerk who was serving me. I was dropped like a hot cake, and I promptly went out to look for another shop where I might accidentally get taken care of on the principle of first come first served. I had completed my purchase in the first store with the exception of paying for it, and that afternoon the package was sent to my hotel c. o. d. I had my revenge by promptly returning the same, with a note to the effect that I hoped his lordship had sent enough with them so they could get along without my small patronage.

THE PURLEY COW CASE.

Red tape is the bane of English life, and London is like a fettered giant on account of it. You can hardly draw your breath without having the privilege authorized by an act of Parliament. When the London County Council started its great task of improving the city, its work was so hampered that one indignant member declared they could not buy a paper of tacks without legislation. And law-making in England is a most painful and expensive procedure, each act of Parliament costing something like $5000.

While I was in London an extraordinary case of official red tape was engaging the attention of the public. The House of Commons was deliberating on the affair known as the Purley cow case. It seems that some 225 years ago a well-meaning person died and left a cow to the poor people of a certain parish. Being wholly unprepared for the great responsibility of belonging to an entire community, the cow in question turned up her heels and followed her charitably-inclined owner into the great beyond.

Inasmuch as the milk the good bossy had given during the short interim between her master's death and her own belated to the poor of the community, it constituted a public trust, wherefore the deliberations of Parliament. Somebody got away with a dollar-and-a-half's worth of milk belonging to the parish of Purley, and although the wise legislators have never been able to identify the offender, they have been solemnly trying for 225 years. Each new batch of statesmen tries to win fame by finding out who milked the Purley cow. Now the reader is not to take this as a joke. This silly cow case has actually been dragging along in the British Parliament for more than two centuries. This spring it was up for consideration again, and being made the subject of another parliamentary paper was, according to the records, "ordered by the House of Commons to be printed for His Majesty's stationery office, by Eyre and Spottiswoode, printer to His Most Excellent Majesty, the King."

"I presume, sir," began the young man timidly, "that you will consider it very presumptuous for a fifty-dollar railroad clerk to apply for your daughter's hand in marriage."

Under the English law of the eighteenth century women were absolved from all debts on marriage. Fashionable women who had lost heavily at cards sometimes wedded a criminal on his way to the gallows to escape their creditors.

A NIGHT ATTACK FRUSTRATED BY THE SEARCHLIGHT—A STRIKING INCIDENT OF THE NATAL RE VOLT.

DOC MONSARRAT TELLS THE KENTUCKIANS ALL ABOUT US

The Kentucky State Journal says: Sweltering in the heat, yet pleased with the surroundings here, W. T. Monsarrat, member of the government quartermaster's department at Honolulu, arrived in Columbus with Mrs. Monsarrat for a day's visit with relatives living near Worthington yesterday.

"Never have such weather in Honolulu," said Mr. Monsarrat, seeking the electric fans in the lobby of the Chittenden last night. "Yet I like your people," he added. "Like your city, too; fine streets, clean and pretty and nice driveways."

And Mr. Monsarrat is one of the few native born Americans of Honolulu. He was educated in the public schools there. At 20 he came to the states and went into Canada where he took a college course. Afterward he went to Kentucky and was married to Miss Elizabeth Jones, member of one of the old families of Clark county. Then he went back to live in Honolulu.

GREAT IS THE CITY.

"We have a great city in our town of Honolulu," he said last night. "Although we are about 2100 miles from nowhere we have electric street railways and natural gas and electricity for lighting our streets and homes. We have oil for fuel instead of coal and our locomotives burn nothing else. That's something you don't have here. You never see the belching forth of smoke and cinders such as you see from the engines out here and you never find the cinders and soot on the seats of our railway coaches. I wonder that you don't burn oil, but I have heard, too, that your railways own your coal fields."

LIVE EASIER.

"Still we live easier out there," he added. "We live most of the time out of doors. I don't mean that literally, but we do spend a lot of time out on the grass and on the verandas. We in the government service. In fact we are getting more strenuous all the time. "We have a million and a half dollar hotel that is a beauty. You know these are a few things that we like to boast of."

SHORTAGE OF LABOR.

But we suffer from a shortage of labor. There is a constant cry for more men to work in the sugar cane fields. We used to have the Chinese and they were successful. But the American laws cut them off when we were annexed. The Japanese would do if we had enough. But the Americans can't stand the work in the fields, so there we are.

"We have our social times over there, we Americans. We catch on to the American ideas by the time they get west, and if you were to go to Honolulu tomorrow you would find people dressed about as they are in New York. He is appointing young men. Our women especially like to dress. I believe they might set a pace for some of the women here."

Mr. Monsarrat is a type in himself. Tall, probably six feet two, and well built, he gives the first impression as a man of powerful athletic propensities. He wears a broad-brimmed straw hat that gives him the air of the Kentuckian.

He has the cordial courteous manner of the Westerner and a sort of indescribable genial attitude that probably belongs to the man who has spent his life in the Hawaiian Islands.

IN LINE.

Secretary Shaw, searching for the hidden things in the lives of his hundreds of clerks, had blanks sent around the Treasury asking each clerk to give his vital statistics. One line requested an answer to the question: "Are you suffering from any disease?"

When the blanks came in it was found that one man said he had tuberculosis. Secretary Shaw sent for him. He came in, a big, broad-shouldered negro messenger, who looked healthy enough to live for fifty years.

"Why," said the Secretary, "you haven't got tuberculosis!"

"Ain't I?" asked the negro. "No, you haven't. You are perfectly healthy. Why did you write on this blank that you have tuberculosis?"

"Well," said the messenger, "I dunno; 'cep'in' if there's anythin' fashionable goin' 'round I want it."

MODERN MARTYRS.

An Episcopal minister was going through the mountain district of North Carolina. He stopped at the door of a humble dwelling and knocked. The door was opened by a yellow-faced woman. She nodded. (It is a peculiarity of these mountain people not to speak unless spoken to.)

"My good woman," said the clergyman, "can you tell me if there are any Episcopalians around here?"

"My son kills all them kind o' varmint," she said, "and their skins is all hangin' up on the back porch. You kin go out there and see if you kin find one er them."

The two young men reached the door at the same time. "Is Miss Swellington in?" they asked. The maid, Norah, looked at them and shook her head disconsolately. "She's in to wan av ye an' out to th' other," she said at last; "but th' two av ye coming together has got me so tangled Ol'm blest if Ol know which is which. But come roight in both av ye, an' Ol'll ax her to come down an' pick ye out."—Judge.

BUDDHIST TEMPLE IN AN AMERICAN PARK.

The Buddhist temple shown in the picture has recently been transported from Japan and set up in a corner of Fairmount park, Philadelphia, as an object of interest to visitors. It is said to be the only specimen of the kind outside of Japan. It was not intended to make it a place of worship in its new setting, but it has become such for many Japanese in the Quaker City, including some students at the University of Pennsylvania, who resort there daily to offer incense.

Caught in a Cuban Revolution

By A. P. Taylor.

THE CABANAS FORTRESS, HAVANA.

Another revolution in Cuba! Not at all strange, for revolutions habitually vexed that beautiful tropical island until the American flag supplanted that of Spain over Havana's Morro Castle. In the old days the revolt was directed against Spanish authority and the rule of the mailed hand. The present revolution is the more surprising as it is now a civil war with brother against brother, and father against son, maybe, and there is once more the possibility that Cuba's soil will be redened by the unnecessary shedding of blood to satisfy the ambition of hot-headed but misguided "patriots."

Every ten years or so a revolution awakes Cuba from its climatic lethargy, and it was the last one of these just ten years ago in which the writer had the opportunity to gain experience.

In the month of November, 1896, I departed from New York for Havana on the Ward liner Vigilance. A passport issued by Secretary of State Olney was my guarantee of safety should plans go wrong while in the Spanish-Cuban capital. I left New York with the intention of passing through the Spanish lines, if possible, and across the country to General Maceo's headquarters, at that time somewhat indefinite as to location. Maceo headed the insurgent army then operating in Pinordel Rio province in the vicinity of Havana. Captain-General Weyler, "The Butcher," was in supreme command in Havana and in Cuba of all Spanish troops. There was practically no other way to get to Cuba from New York as filibustering expeditions were few and far between and so mysteriously organized that one was seldom able to get in touch with them.

At that time Senor Palma, now president of the Republic of Cuba, was in charge of the Cuban junta at 56 New Street, New York city. In that office, although the intention of the writer was made clear, yet so closely was news of filibustering expeditions guarded, no direct information concerning their movements could be gained. Therefore, the determination to join Maceo by the Spanish capital route.

NEWSPAPER UPSET PLANS.

While at sea the writer was in ignorance of the foreordained failure of all his plans to reach the Cuban army, a failure which resulted in his being "bottled up" in Havana. A newspaper upset things by publishing a statement of my intended movements. The Spanish Minister at Washington cabled to General Weyler the gist of the newspaper article and on landing a strict police surveillance was placed over my every movement ashore. The Washington Post of November 10 published the story under these headlines: "Quit Silver for Cuba: A. P. Taylor of National Committee off to Join Maceo; Will Act as Second Lieutenant, which Position is Promised Him Through the Influence of His Uncle." Then followed the opening paragraph:

"Mr. A. P. Taylor, one of the secretaries of the National Silver Committee during the recent campaign, has gone to Cuba to enlist in the Cuban Army and fight for the liberty of the Island. Mr. Taylor sailed Saturday from New York on the steamer Vigilance for Havana. After reaching Havana he will make his way through the lines of the enemy to the Cuban army, and take a position as second lieutenant under the Cuban forces."

Landing in Havana I found good quarters at the Hotel La Francia in Calle Teniente Rey, where I shortly met a Greek in the pay of the Cubans, acting as one of their agents in Havana. To him was given a packet of letters for Cubans outside Havana. In the packet, a packet which had escaped the scrutiny and search of the Spanish Customs officers when they went through my luggage. I was unaware at that time and for some time afterward that the Washington Post had detailed my movements and I knew absolutely nothing of police surveillance.

A NIGHT SORTIE.

Two nights later the agent conducted me to the suburb of Jese del Monte and to the house of a Cuban sympathizer where a meeting was being held. It was a meeting to devise ways and means of keeping a line of communication open between the city and General Gomez and Maceo, as well as to plot for the relief of Cuban prisoners held in Havana's city prisons, as well as in Morro Castle and Cabanas fortress across the bay. Understanding but little Spanish the proceedings were a blank to me, but I was informed that a small party intended leaving shortly for the "front" and I was to be included.

Late in the afternoon of the following day a party was organized and set out with riding horses. Beyond the outskirts of the city proper I was informed of a plan to be executed that night. It was the taking of two Spanish officers, one of whom was notoriously cruel in his treatment of Cuban prisoners of both sexes. They were to dine at the villa of a wealthy planter near Havana and the agents proposed to ambuscade and shoot them or capture them. In the evening the party halted at the driveway to the premises. Half way inside another halt was made and two of the agents dismounted and continued up the driveway. Two of us held the horses. In ten or fifteen minutes the stillness was broken by a shot, then another, followed shortly afterward by a fusillade. Then the agents having killed their men came back to the horses on a run and a dash was made from the premises. Shots were fired, evidently in our direction and one of the agents, who failed to reach his saddle quickly, was hit, although it was a slight wound, fortunately for him. Three hours later we were back in Havana again. Havana cafes and clubs were full of the gossip the next day about the death of the two officers, as popular among the Spanish people as they were unpopular among the Cubans.

EXECUTION OF PRISONERS.

A rare opportunity was given me a few days later to see the execution of Cuban prisoners in Cabanas fortress. A permit was procured through one of Consul General Fitzhugh Lee's sons. Accompanied by young Lee and a representative of the New York Herald, we crossed the bay and walked up the steep, stone, moss-grown staircase which clung to the side of the seawall of the famous old fortress, Cabanas adjoins Morro Castle. We passed through a guarded gate, out upon the parade ground and were then directed to another stone stairway which led up to the top of a very broad wall. From this we had a fine view of the entire parade ground. This was enclosed on all sides by high stone walls, pierced here and there for field pieces. The gateways were of the drawbridge, portcullis, moat variety, the fortress having been constructed more than two and a half centuries before.

Suddenly, a band inside an inner fort struck up a beautiful, yet saddening, march, and the entire garrison came forth through a sally-port and massed around the parade ground, forming into a hollow square, a fourth side, however, being unoccupied, for it was there, directly in front of the high wall, that Cuban prisoners were to be executed. This done, the prisoners, four in number, escorted by a company of infantry, several priests and a negro funeral director, were marched into the hollow square, the arms of the prisoners being bound tightly to their sides, and they were otherwise hampered in their movements. I was struck with admiration by their coolness and splendid courage, as it was certainly no light matter to confront the scowling, cruel, pitiless visages of 800 Spanish soldiers. The priest advanced toward the men and offered his hand for them to kiss. The men were brought into line and ordered upon their knees, their faces to the wall, their backs to the firing party, four soldiers for each man. Then a negro held a crucifix to the lips of each man. The officer in command of the firing party arranged his squads about 20 feet distant from the prisoners.

And now everything became as silent as the very graves themselves, not 300 feet away and waiting for the bodies of the patriots. The prisoners maintained their kneeling positions, the executioners, by squads only, raised their rifles. The officer pointed to the man at the end of the line and four rifles were raised to the shoulders of the soldiers, the priest elevated his hands toward heaven, the officer's sword flashed in the sunlight, a scattering volley followed and the prisoner plunged forward upon his face, blood soaking his white shirt to a bright crimson hue. The smoke cleared away and the squad stepped back. The second squad went through the same horrible maneuver and the second prisoner was stretched upon the ground, followed by the third and the fourth. When the butchery was over the descendants of the Cid began their cruel jests and laughed over it all. The bodies were turned over, faces toward the sky, presenting a horrible sight. The troops were reformed, the band struck up a lively air and the soldiers were marched around the field and past the corpses where all could get a good view.

And so the butchery went on day after day, and General Weyler became notorious.

Will the same horrible example be followed in the present revolution? I believe not.

HAVANA ALWAYS EN FETE.

But while Maceo and Gomez were knocking at the very gates of Havana and the Spanish troops were being killed off by Cuban bullets and island diseases, the people of Havana never lagged in their search for pleasure. As the shades of night gathered, the city became brilliantly illuminated. Havana was then thoroughly awake and by 8 o'clock the great public plaza was crowded with promenaders. The cafes surrounding the plaza were well patronized and one of the military bands played. The people promenaded back and forth, the Spanish officers ogling the ladies and the Spanish girls flirting. It was always a gay capital and a little thing like a revolution did not disturb it.

The great church festivals continued, and on the occasion of big functions, the Spanish troops came out on parade in their natty uniforms. And, of course, all religious celebrations centralized before and within the great Havana cathedral, a structure crumbling then and now with age. Within was a niche where the bones of Columbus were said to be buried. Upon the chancel steps were crossed banners and stacks of small arms and three or four small brass cannons. It looked like the Church Militant. The processions with floats were wonderful affairs. Trumpets, blared, cuirasses of the cavalrymen glistened in the sunlight, cannon deafened the ear and the great bells pealed with discordant clangor. Dignitaries, officials representing the Queen, Regent, the Bishop in gorgeous vestments, seminary boys in cassocks carrying candlesticks and censers; the lesser priests and clergy of the church; the sandaled monks, with their cowls thrust back, showing the disfigured tonsure. It was all gorgeous and typical of a city which seemed to thrust war and care behind as trivial.

ARREST AND DEPORTATION.

Then, finally, the Washington Post with the accusing article arrived. I was in a cafe with some newspapermen and some Americans whose business in Havana just then was quite unknown. One of the men read the article in the Post and I was advised to leave the city. Arrangements were made for me to strike through the lines the following morning. At 11 p. m., however, my arrest took place, and I was detained in the guardroom of the Palace for ten days. An order was issued for further detention in Cabanas fortress, when an official of the consulate obtained news of my whereabouts. Intercession of the consulate gave me my freedom on condition that the order for detention be changed to deportation. I boarded the steamship Seneca and arrived in New York, to learn there of General Maceo's death.

STORY OF INHERITED MEMORIES.

A writer in the Nineteenth Century tells a strange story of "inherited memories." The ruins of an ancient Roman fortress rise from the grounds of a Mr. Phillips. A clergyman called upon the owner one day and asked to see the ruins. "He told me he had a distinct recollection of living there and that he held some office of a priestly nature in the days of the Roman occupation," said Mr. Phillips. "One fact struck me as significant. He insisted on examining a ruined tower which had bodily overturned. 'There used to be a socket in the top of it,' he went on, 'in which we used to plant a mast and archers used to be hauled to the top in a basket protected with leather, from which they picked off the leaders among the ancient Gortestonians.' We found the socket he had indicated."

AN EARLY PEDESTRIAN CRAZE.

Middle-aged citizens can easily recall the pedestrian craze that swept the country in the '70s and early '80s of the last century. Even then Edward Payson Weston was regarded as venerable among the "peders"—quite a grandfather to professional walkers, as it were. "Old Sport" Campana, who died the other day, never seemed to carry such a weight of years as Mr. Weston, who now turns up in his 69th year, and astonishes every one by walking from Philadelphia city hall to New York city hall, a distance of 92 miles, in twenty-four hours. In the old days it was always said of Weston that he took the best of care of himself, and now there cannot be the slightest doubt of it.

RED BASS

Something entirely new here. The finest fish found in the Pacific coast waters, similar to the Red Snapper of the Gulf of Mexico but of firmer flesh like the bass family. LING COD, similar to the true cod of the Eastern waters and as fine flavor. ALASKAN BUTTER FISH, the richest and best flavored of the coast waters. Resembles the mackerel but is fatter and the flesh is a finer grain.

We have these fish here, came to us on the Alaskan. They were cured in the Sound country and are exceptionally good.

Free Booklet on Bright's Disease and Diabetes

We desire to place in the hands of those afflicted with Bright's Disease or Diabetes a 36-page pamphlet that is saving human lives. It is not an ordinary pamphlet, but is principally made up of reports of scientifically conducted tests in a large variety of cases, showing 87 per cent. of recoveries in these hitherto incurable diseases. This booklet is for thoughtful people—people who can discriminate between common patent medicine literature and a carefully prepared report of a patient, serious and profoundly important investigation.

The specifics employed in these tests are known as the Fulton Compounds and the results obtained prove conclusively that these dreaded diseases so long fatal have at last yielded to medical science. The pamphlet is free. HONOLULU DRUG CO., Agents.

When to suspect Bright's Disease—weakness or loss of weight; dropsy; puffy ankles, hands or eyelids; kidney trouble after the third month; urine may show sediment; failing vision; drowsiness; one or more of these.

In Diabetes the distinguishing feature is, weakness with great thirst and at times voracious appetite.

THE PRACTICAL HOUSEKEEPER'S OWN PAGE

MADAM! ARE YOU TOO FAT?

If So, Here Is Your Way to Reduce Your Flesh.

N. Y. Sun: "I am only a toilet specialist," said a Fifth Avenue glass front business woman as she was preparing to treat a patient, "but I could give lessons to many a doctor about reducing the weight."

"We beauty women have a great deal to contend with. Women come to us weighing twice as much as they ought to weigh. They ask us to treat their complexions."

"My face is as red as fire," said a corpulent woman, blowing in here one of the days when the thermometer was near the hundred mark. I want you to reduce the color."

"I can't do anything for you, madam," said I, "unless you reduce your weight. Reduce your weight and the color will fade out of your face."

"She happened to be a sensible woman and she took my advice. She got to work at her figure and took off more than 100 pounds. When she had finished she was quite a pretty woman. Her figure was trim and her face was a normal color."

"My first advice to nearly every woman who comes to me is to reduce the weight. Usually they are indignant and the majority tell me that it would be impossible."

"I am naturally fat," they say.

"I insist, and after a little while they give in and bant."

"All you need is a willingness on the part of the patient."

"I usually advise my patients to buy some pretty little white enamel bathroom scales."

"Use your scales nightly," I say to them, "and it will prove a great encouragement to you. You can see the ounces of flesh fall off you."

"The rest is diet. Diet, baths and exercise."

"The bath is always a very important part in weight reducing. You would be surprised to see how much it influences the weight. You can almost take off your flesh by baths alone. The more you take the better, if you take the right kind of baths."

"When my patients bathe in the summer time I am always very particular to see that they get into a vigorous perspiration. All the pores of the skin must be open when one bathes. One must sweat profusely."

"I advise two good baths a day, and both should be of a kind to wake up the skin. The woman who is reducing should buy a pair of Indian clubs. With these she can practice a few minutes after each bath."

"One trouble with the fat woman is that she drinks with her meals. This makes her as fat as butter."

"Everybody knows that water is necessary and good, and the woman who is reducing should almost live upon it. She should drink it by the gallon, but she should make it a practice to take it between her meals."

"She should drink water about two hours after she has eaten."

"Reducing the weight depends very largely upon what you eat. The fat woman grows fat because she takes the things that are fat producing. It is not so much the quantity of food that she eats as the kind."

"The fat woman eats a great deal of ice cream. She loves all kinds of starchy food. She revels in corn and other sugary vegetables, and she likes potatoes and cheese and all the starchy things, such as cereals, cream, milk, hot bread and butter and cake. Her capacity for sweets is marvelous."

"The thin women, on the other hand, eat fish, cold chicken, salads with French dressing, and they drink very sparingly of tea or coffee. They eat spinach, which is not at all fat producing; stewed rhubarb, which is excellent for those who are reducing weight; and green peas, fresh green beans and young onions."

"To make the fat woman happy give her something sweet. She is uneasy until her appetite for preserves, pies, puddings and ice cream has been appeased."

"The thin woman, on the contrary, is content at noon with a little of the white meat of fish and a cracker or two. She may take a tiny cup of tea, perfectly clear, for she seldom puts sugar in her tea or her coffee."

"For breakfast the thin woman relies upon fruit. This she follows up with some poached eggs on toast, and this is all she wants. Often she takes dry toast and coffee and a little fruit. Yet she gets her full nourishment."

"Thin women are often accused of being big eaters, and perhaps they are. Any way, they do not eat harmful things."

"We reduce people by giving them a dietary. We tell them just what to leave out of their bill of fare; and we promise them that if they will obey our directions they will get thin. They invariably do."

"The only trouble is that they are apt to reduce too quickly. Reducing too quickly is bad for one reason. It works havoc with one's wardrobe."

"We had a fat woman weighing more than 200. She came to us to be reduced and we gave her the dietary for the reduction of the flesh. She took it."

"In two weeks she came back with her clothing all too large for her."

"I look like a scarecrow," said she. "I never felt better in my life, but my clothes fit me all wrong. Nothing sets well. I must go to Paris to get a fresh wardrobe."

"When reducing one must also exercise, but exercise will hardly take off the fat."

"It is a very difficult way of reducing. You must work awfully hard for every ounce of flesh you take off your body. You must work as though you were working for a living. Your exercise ceases to become play and is hard work."

"One thing is certain; fat is easily controlled. This makes it pretty sure that there ought to be no fat people in the world."

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When boiling a cracked egg place a teaspoonful of salt in the water. It will cook without any of the white boiling out.

TO RENEW PENS.—When ink has thickened upon a pen to such an extent that it becomes thick and unpleasant to write with, try washing it in strong soda. It will cleanse it perfectly and makes it as good as new.

IVORY BACKED BRUSHES.—The backs of which have become soiled and spotted, can be cleaned easily. Make a paste of sawdust slightly moistened with water and a few drops of lemon juice. Lay the paste over the ivory and allow it to dry thoroughly; after which brush off carefully with a soft brush. Another method is to take a small piece of clean flannel, dampen it slightly, dip into fine table salt, and rub over the ivory. For carved ivory the former is the best method, as the sawdust can be removed easily from the carving.

WHEN PEELING ONIONS.—Place them in a bowl and pour hot water over them. They can be peeled without affecting the eyes.

SOME USES OF TEA.

Hot tea will often relieve a sick stomach or a headache; is restful and soothing to the nerves.

Cold tea, with ice and lemon, is an almost ideal summer drink.

Cold weak tea cleanses paint admirably, even white paint.

It cleans men's clothes, taking out spots.

To clean black goods with tea, silk, satin or cashmere, sponge thoroughly and press with a hot iron on the wrong side.

Tea colors lace that "old" color which is so much desired.

Green tea will darken red hair.

Tea leaf poultices are good for weak or inflamed eyes.

Tea leaves washed are very good to sprinkle on the carpet to lay the dust before starting in to sweep.

CHOP SUEY.

Cut a half chicken into bits, stripping all the meat from the bones, and fry until brown, but not hard or crisp. Now put into the frying pan with the chicken a large onion, sliced, and cook for three minutes before adding a handful of dried mushrooms which have been soaked in water for ten minutes. Pour in enough Chinese sauce to make the ingredients brown, then add water and stew for fifteen minutes. Stir in a stalk of celery, cut small, and a little rice potatoes. Thicken with a little flour and water and cook until the gravy is thick and smooth. Serve with boiled rice.—Chicago Daily News.

Crown of Fire.—A fruit ice cream is packed in a fancy border mold, a water ice filling up the remainder. When ready to serve unmold and fill center with small fancy cakes; drop brandy on each top and ignite just as it is brought to the table.

SUMMER DRINKS.

Some New Things in Heated Term Beverages.

ORCHATA.—To seven pounds of granulated sugar add one pint of water and boil to a sirup, thick. Blanch one-half pound almonds, pound them to a paste in a mortar, and add a dessert-spoonful of water, a few drops at a time. Mix with one pint of cold water and strain through a fine sieve. Add the sirup of almonds to the sirup and boil half an hour. It then is ready to bottle. To each glassful of cold water add three spoonfuls of this, according to taste.

FROSTY CHOCOLATE.—Make the chocolate as usual for drinking, using at least three heaping spoonfuls of grated chocolate to each pint of boiling water or milk. Cook in a double boiler and set aside to cool. When cold add one cupful of cream. Beat all well together and serve in tall glasses with either cold whipped cream or whites of eggs, beaten stiff and sweetened, on top of the chocolate.

CREAM NECTAR.—One and a half quarts of water, two ounces of tartaric acid, one-fourth tumbler of sifted flour, whites of two eggs, two pounds granulated sugar. Mix whites of eggs with the dry flour without beating. Add to the water and sugar the acid previously dissolved in a little water. Set on stove and let come to a boil. Set off and bottle for use.

For serving take four or five tea-spoonfuls of the preparation for each glass. Flavor to taste with an extract of fruit flavoring. Fill each glass half full with cold milk and add a lump of soda the size of a hazel nut. Stir it and drink while effervescent.

GINGER POP.—Slice three lemons with three ounces of ginger root, add three pints of water, and boil thirty-five minutes. Stir in two pounds of sugar and boil fifteen minutes longer. Add three ounces of cream of tartar before removing from the stove. Set off and pour in it enough heated water to make two and a half gallons of lukewarm mixture. Stir in half a cupful of compressed yeast dissolved in a little water. Set aside in a cool place. Let it stand over night and in the morning, after straining, the pop will be ready to bottle and use.

UNFERMENTED WINE.—After washing the grapes boil them and press them. Fill bottles with the juice. Set them on a wooden base in a boiler and fill the boiler up to the neck of the bottles. Boil them ten minutes. At the end of that time fill from one bottle all the evaporated parts of the rest, corking while hot. To one part of the grape juice take two of water, with sugar and ice.

MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD.

First rub the salad bowl with a split clove of garlic; then pour in four table-spoonfuls of olive oil to one of Tarragon vinegar and stir thoroughly with a silver fork. Next put in any vegetables you have in the house; you cannot have too many, but two will do. Sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, onions, asparagus tips, parsley, peppergrass—all these are good, and will blend harmoniously with the dressing. When you mix the vegetables, sprinkle with pepper and salt and celery salt. Edge the dish with lettuce leaves.

WARM WEATHER FRITTERS.

Inexpensive Dishes That Are Easily Prepared.

CORN FRITTERS.—One quart grated green corn, three eggs, half cup flour, salt and pepper. Add the stiffly beaten whites of eggs the last thing. Drop by small spoonfuls into the fat.

LEMON FRITTERS.—One cup milk, one beaten egg, one and a half cups flour. Add juice and pulp of one lemon, fry in hot lard by spoonfuls, like doughnuts. Serve with silver sauce, to which add the grated peel of half a lemon.

SILVER SAUCE.—Two table-spoonfuls butter and one cup white sugar creamed together. Add the beaten white of one egg and half teaspoon lemon. Just before serving add one cup boiling water.

GRAPE FRITTERS.—One heaping cup of flour, yolks of two eggs, two table-spoonfuls salad oil or melted butter, pinch spice and salt, one cup water. When mixed smoothly add the beaten whites. Dip little clusters of grapes in the batter and fry. Take up and lay on brown paper for a minute to free them from fat. Dust with powdered sugar, and serve either hot or cold, as a dessert.

TOMATO FRITTERS.—One quart stewed tomatoes, one egg, one teaspoonful soda. Flour to thicken, like griddle cakes. Fry in a skillet, in hot lard or butter.

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS.—Either fresh or canned pineapple may be used. Sprinkle the slices, which should be thin, with about two table-spoonfuls sugar and let stand three or four hours. Make a batter as follows: Stir a tea-spoonful melted butter into two table-spoonfuls flour, add pinch salt and warm milk to make a batter that will drop from the spoon. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs. Beat well; add the well-beaten whites. Stir in lightly, and mix the fruit into the batter. Fry the fritters piece by piece in hot butter or lard. They will cook in seven or eight minutes. Lay on blotting paper when done. Sift sugar over and serve hot.

LUNCHEON DISHES.

Little Recipes From Standard Cookery Books.

COMBINATION LUNCHEON DISH.—Boil some well washed rice in plenty of salted water until the grains are tender, but not mushy. Have ready a thick, smooth, well seasoned tomato sauce. Put through the food chopper some cold ham, trimming off gristle and brown edge. Drain the rice, arrange it on a hot platter, baste over it the hot sauce, using sufficient to moisten; sprinkle thickly with the chopped ham and serve at once.

EGGS A LA CREOLE.—Into a saucepan put two table-spoonfuls of chopped bacon, two tomatoes skinned and cut fine, two table-spoonfuls of chopped onion, two table-spoonfuls of chopped peppers, and one cupful of thinly sliced okra. Add one-half cup of strong beef stock and simmer until the okra is tender, adding more seasoning if required. Poach eight eggs in boiling salted water. Pour the sauce on a hot platter, lift the eggs carefully from the water and arrange them on the thick sauce. Garnish with toast points.

SWEET RICE BALLS.—Wash thoroughly one scant cupful of rice in cold water, put in a double boiler with one pint of milk, cover and cook until soft. Add one tea-spoonful of butter, two table-spoonfuls of sugar, salt to taste, and the well-beaten yolk of an egg. When cold mold into small balls, pressing into the center of each a raisin, a candied cherry or a little stiff jelly. Dip in egg, roll in crumbs and fry in smoking-hot fat. Drain and roll in powdered sugar before serving.

JELLIED CHICKEN.—Select for this a fowl rather than a chicken, as the long cooking will make it tender. Singe, clean and cut it up as for a fricassee, put in a kettle with one-half of a small onion, stuck with a clove, and one stalk of celery, cover with boiling water and simmer until the meat falls from the bones, adding one tea-spoonful of salt, when half done. Take out the chicken and cook down the liquor to three-quarters of a cupful, then strain it and skim off the fat. Lightly butter a mold and decorate the bottom and sides with slices of hard-boiled eggs and stoned olives. Free the meat from the skin, bone and fat, and pack it in the mold, sprinkling with salt, add the liquor and set aside to cool.

SWEETBREADS AND ORANGE SAUCE.—The sweetbreads are first washed in cold water, carefully trimmed and cooked in salted water (containing one table-spoonful of vinegar) for twenty minutes. Drain and run cold water over them until chilled and plump. Season with salt and pepper and squeeze orange juice over them. Let them stand ten minutes, spread with butter, sprinkle with flour and bake for half an hour in a buttered pan until a nice brown. Baste while baking with melted butter, serve with orange sauce and garnish with finely chopped parsley.

ORANGE SAUCE.—Cream, one-half cup of butter. Mix one-fourth tea-spoonful of salt, one-eighth tea-spoonful of paprika, four table-spoonfuls of orange juice, one table-spoonful of lemon juice and one-half cup of boiling water; stir into the well-beaten yolks of two eggs and cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Add the creamed butter and serve at once.

APPETIZING SAUCES.

Things to Flavor Soups and Stews for the Home Dinner.

VEGETABLE SAUCES.—Much of the excellence of well-cooked vegetables depends on the proper use of seasonings and sauces. The seasoning selected undoubtedly should be suitable for the dish, but so much depends on custom that only general suggestions can be made. The Italians and some other races are much fonder of garlic than Americans, the Germans of summer savory or böhnenkraut in string beans and the English of mint with peas. Each housewife must select the seasonings which her family prefers and use them in such a way that the special flavors may be most satisfactorily brought out.

Burnet, thyme, summer savory, sage and sweet basil are cooked with the dish a short time, not over twenty minutes, and then are removed. The little bunch of mixed herbs, the bouquet garni often referred to in cookery books, is made with two branches of parsley, a sprig each of thyme and summer savory, a small leaf of sage, and a small bay leaf, all tied together. This is cooked with the dish from ten to twenty minutes, then removed. The bay leaves must be purchased at the grocer's. Turnips, carrots, parsnips, celery, leeks, onion, etc., when used just as flavors, should be tied in a bunch and cooked twenty or thirty minutes in the dish and then be removed.

When shallot and garlic are used they never should be cut, but separated into cloves. One clove will be enough for a small quantity of soup, sauce or ragout. Never fry shallot or garlic. Cook in the dish to be flavored about ten minutes, then remove.

Vegetables when used raw as a seasoning give a strong flavor, and only a little of each should be used. For flavoring soups, sauces, stews, etc., fried vegetables are far superior to the raw. To prepare them for use, clean and peel or scrape the vegetables, then cut them into small pieces, and put in a saucepan with butter or sweet fat, allowing two generous table-spoonfuls of butter to a pint of vegetables. Place on a hot part of the range and stir until the butter and vegetables become hot. Partially cover the saucepan and set back, when the vegetables, which should be stirred often, will cook slowly for half an hour. At the end of this time place the pan on a hot part of the range and stir the contents until the butter begins to sizzle, then remove the pan to a cooler part of the range. Drain the butter, saving it with savory drippings, which every housewife should have on hand.

CRAB SALAD.

The crab, when prepared in a dainty and appetizing manner, easily carries off the palm among shellfish. Crab meat is good either hot or cold, and when served cold perhaps the best medium is a well made salad. To make a crab salad, says Vogue, remove the meat from several boiled crabs, chopping it rather coarsely, and using one large cupful; make a plain dressing of three table-spoonfuls of oil, adding one table-spoonful of vinegar gradually, stirring constantly; add a little salt and paprika, mix the dressing thoroughly, and turn it over the crab meat, tossing so that the salad will be evenly dressed; set aside to become very cold, and at serving time line a salad bowl with crisp lettuce leaves, arrange the crab meat on this, and over the top, sprinkle a few olives chopped very fine. Capers and pimientos may be chopped fine and used instead of olives, or chopped olives and pimientos, as one may desire.—New York Globe.

ICED TEA AND COFFEE.

The tea should be made fresh, but if there is not sufficient time to make coffee anew it can be done early in the day. Pour the hot tea over ice, add lemon juice and rind and Jamaica rum, if wished. Put the coffee, with a generous allowance of cream and pulverized sugar, into a glass jar with shaved ice, cover with a shaker and shake for several minutes. This shaking makes it light, foamy and delicious.

LIFE IN A CUBAN HOTEL

Cool, Clean Bedrooms and Novel Things on the Menu.

In Cuban hotels a cool and clean room with freshly washed stone floors, crisp and dainty net curtains and linen of fine texture, makes up for the hard bed and absence of hot and cold running water.

At the table the lack of good beef-steak is more than supplied by very excellent omelets, a variety of fish, unrivalled cheese, together with fruits and vegetables in infinite variety.

The butter throughout Cuba is undeniably bad; but the bread, according to a correspondent of Leslie's Weekly, is alone worth a trip to Cuba. The first thing a woman tourist sees; after the boy has brought up the luggage, pulled up the curtains, asked in a soft Anglo-Spanish patois if she would like to have a glass of orange juice or a plate of pineapple, and, in the conscious way of heliobys the world over, lingered until the inevitable coin has reached his palm, is a quaint, old fashioned candlestick.

A second glance falls upon a stone bottle which contains the drinking water, and, even on scorching hot days, keeps it moderately cool.

Being a woman; she next examines the bedspread, which is crocheted, and ten to one is of a dainty lavender or old blue color. French windows open wide upon a balcony, and a general impression of the room is pleasing. Rocking chairs are everywhere in Cuba.

In the diningroom walls that fold like screens leave the room like a garden with the exception of the roof. A narrow road separates the diners from the sidewalk. The early morning meal of coffee and rolls, with fruit, is served in the rooms and genuine breakfast is served in the diningroom from 10 until 2.

The table is gay with fruits of various colors, flavors and degrees of palatability. Like the Jamaicans, the Cubans peel their small, deliciously sweet oranges like apples, stick a fork through them, and literally gnaw them off, a process which results in extracting all the juice without eating the pulp.

A plate of sliced pineapple is set on each table. Assorted native fruits, mangoes, sapotas, anons, mangoes, etc., are always served. Shell fish in abundance and fish of every variety are a feature of Cuban meals. Generally three kinds on one plate are served to each guest—soft shell crabs, white bait and sea bass, or some similar salt water fish.

The Cubans have the art of cooking eggs to perfection. The most popular method with Americans is that called "Cuban Eggs." A small earthen dish is filled with a sauce previously prepared and consisting of tomatoes, mushrooms and green peppers, highly seasoned. Two eggs broken on top are sprinkled with a little parsley, salt, pepper and butter, and the whole is set in a very hot oven for a moment.

Aside from the olives, which are different from anything in the same line seen in this country, the next best thing on a Cuban menu is the guava jelly and the cheese, which are served together. The cheese is of two varieties, the Cuban, made from goats' milk, and ordinary cream cheese.

The jelly is thick and is cut in strips. Even in the most primitive hotels in Cuba this dessert is served; and, in fact, the natives seem to consider it as much a part of the every day meal as bread.

Orange juice is a favorite drink at meals. Excellent ice creams are made with the native fruits.

Cuban coffee is a curiosity to the American. The bean is burned to a cinder, the Cubans claiming that this destroys the toxic qualities. The waiter brings a pot of coffee with one hand and a pot of boiled salted milk with the other.

The diner generally experiments with this combination, first trying half milk and half coffee; then varying the quantities until he has a mixture to suit his taste. A few Americans like salted milk and coffee, but to the majority the Cuban coffee is a joke. Cuban chocolate is unusually good.

During the heat of the day in summer many Cuban families prefer to order their dinners from the hotels to cooking them in their own homes, and a frequent sight in the street of Havana is the dinner carrier. The food is placed in a series of casserole-like dishes, which, being of heavy ware and each fitted closely upon the other, keep the contents hot for a considerable length of time.

The Cuban stoves are all primitive affairs in which charcoal is burned. Few modern stoves have found their way to the little republic, and even the American families who live in Havana seem to prefer the old fashioned method of cooking.

A charming feature of all Cuban homes, and many hotels is the court around which the house is built. The average Cuban house is barnlike and unattractive on the outside, but to the visitor who steps within a transformation like fairyland meets the eye. The majority of the courts are filled with flowers and small shrubbery, and many of them have fountains.

OF THE MULTITUDES

who have used it, or are now using it, we have never heard of any one who has been disappointed in it. No claims are made for it except those which are amply justified by experience. In commending it to the afflicted we simply point to its record. It has done great things, and it is certain to continue the excellent work. There is—we may honestly affirm—no medicine which can be used with greater and more reasonable faith and confidence. It nourishes and keeps up the strength during those periods when the appetite fails and food cannot be digested. To guard against imitations this "trade mark" is put on every bottle of "Wampole's Preparation," and without it none is genuine. It is palatable as honey and contains the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. Taken before meals it creates an appetite, aids digestion, renews vital power, drives out disease germs, makes the blood rich, red and full of constructive elements, and gives back to the pleasures and labors of the world many who had abandoned hope. Doctor S. H. McCoy, of Canada, says: "I testify with pleasure to its unlimited usefulness as a tissue builder." Its curative powers can always be relied upon. It makes a new era in medicine, and is beneficial from the first dose. "You can trust it as the Ivy does the Oak." One bottle convinces. Avoid all unreliable imitations. Sold by chemists throughout the world.

HONOLULU'S ENGINEERS

For the purpose of electing officers to serve one year, the Hawaiian Engineering Association, on next Thursday evening, the 13th inst., will hold its annual meeting, at the association rooms, second floor, Kapiolani building.

The Hawaiian Engineering Association is the result of an organization started by the employees of the Hawaiian Electric Co., in 1902. On February 1 of that year, a few employees of the Electric Company met for the purpose of discussing various electrical subjects. Much interest being taken, a constitution and by-laws were adopted, and final organization was completed
April 5, 1902, the association being given the name of "Honolulu Engineering Association." Headquarters and a library were established in the Elite building. The association has used various places for meeting purposes, namely Castle & Cooke's Hall, Haalelea Lawn and the Kapiolani building, where it now has a nice hall and library of its own. The membership of the association has grown in numbers from a few to about 185. During the last six months many members from the islands of Kauai, Maui and Hawaii have been admitted. A circulating library for the benefit of these members has been inaugurated. The association has also adopted a new constitution and by-laws, changing its name from the Honolulu Engineering Association to the Hawaiian Engineering Association. It is hoped by the adoption of this new constitution and by-laws to broaden the scope of the organization and accomplish more in the future than has been in the past.
For the benefit of its members, every paper read at the meetings is printed in pamphlet form and mailed to them.
The objects of the association are as follows:

First—To promote research of important engineering subjects. Second —To promote discussion of same.
Third—To try by doing so to prove beneficial to the members from an educational standpoint. Fourth—To try to keep in touch and up to date with all inventions and improvements applicable to the engineering departments of local commercial enterprises. Fifth—To maintain a library, whereby the members of the association can enjoy such benefit as there is to be obtained from the principal engineering magazines. Sixth—To maintain a circulating library of the principal engineering magazines for the benefit of members living on the other islands, who have no access to the library rooms in Honolulu. Seventh—To provide means for anyone who has new idea or ideas, for bettering conditions, by which same can be brought to the attention of the largest number, and the subject thoroughly threshed out, the association believing that in doing so discussion hurts no one and greatly assists in keeping the members of the engineering profession up to the point of continually trying to improve and do better.

Later on, the association intends providing means by which apprentices may be allowed to attend the meetings, listen to the papers and discussions, and use the library. Under the new constitution and by-laws the association will, at its meeting next Thursday evening, and each year thereafter, elect officers to serve annually, instead of semi-annually, as has been done in the past. The new constitution and by-laws also provide for three additional directors, one each on Kauai, Maui and Hawaii, and arrange for the work of the association to be distributed among several committees.

On September 22 the association will hold its annual banquet, at the Seaside Hotel. Invitations, in the form of the question "Have you had your annual banquet?" have been sent to all the members, and, judging from the replies which have been received, signifying intentions to attend, the occasion will, no doubt, be a huge success.

The present officers of the association are as follows:

Chairman, Edward C. Brown; vice chairman, Clinton G. Ballentyne; secretary, E. G. Keen; treasurer, Thos. H.
Petrie.

The above-named officers, with those following, constitute the board of directors: Walter E. Wall, Wm. G.
Weinrich, Chas. A. Musgrave.

VITAL STATISTICS MONTH OF AUGUST

There were 72 deaths in Honolulu in August. Ten of them were of infants under one year, and three from one to five. By nationality there were 3
American, 2 British, 10 Chinese, 24 Hawaiian, 16 Japanese, 8 Portuguese, 3 part Hawaiian, 3 Port Rican and 3 other.

On the basis of the 1900 census, giving Honolulu 39,306 population, the annual death rate per thousand was 21.98.
Twelve deaths were of non-residents.
Seven deaths were investigated, 9 post mortem examinations and 6 coroner's inquests held.

Births reported were 38, and marriages, 60. Causes of death are summarized as follows: Febrile 7, diarrheal 3, diphtheria 2, constitutional 12, developmental 4, nervous 8, circulatory 5, respiratory 6, digestive 9, urinary 1, osseous and integumentary 2, accident and violence 6, suicide 2.

THE LEONARD IS BEST

WE CAN PROVE IT.

Leonard Cleanable Refrigerators are built with eight walls, each wall as follows: outside is wood, then dead air space, then a layer of parchment sheathing, then a layer of mineral wool, then a waterproof sheathing and finally the inside zinc wall. Air cannot possibly pass through these barriers and the air within is dry and pure. The doors are airtight.

The ice is protected from outside heat and cannot melt rapidly.
Take a match and leave it in the Leonard all night, then strike it. This is the test for dampness. Very few refrigerators can stand it. The Leonard is dry and keeps food pure and fresh.

The Leonard Cleanable Refrigerator is easiest in the world to clean. The inside parts are made to be removed and you can get into every corner. The circulation of air is founded on the latest scientific principles.

It is economical because it saves ice and is strongly constructed. We guarantee satisfaction in every one we sell.

HARDWARE DEPT.

CHARACTER

By William Shakespeare.

And these few precepts in thy memory
Look thou character. Give thy thoughts no tongue,
Nor any unproportion'd thought his act.
Be thou familiar, but by no means vulgar.
The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel;
But do not dull thy palm with entertainment
Of each new-hatch'd, unfledg'd comrade. Beware
Of entrance to a quarrel; but, being in,
Bear't, that th' opposed may beware of thee.
Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice;
Take each man's censure, but reserve thy judgment.
Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not express'd in fancy; rich, not gaudy;
For the apparel oft proclaims the man;
And they in France, of the best rank and station,
Are most select and generous, chief in that.
Neither a borrower, nor a lender be:
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.
This above all—to thine ownself be true;
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man.

—HAMLET, Act 1, Scene 3.

Why is the printer's errand boy called the "printer's devil"? A writer at the end of the seventeenth century explained it thus: "These boys in a printing house commonly black and dawb themselves, whence the workmen do jocosely call them devils, and sometimes spirits, and sometimes flies." It is related, however, that Aldo Manuzio, the great Venetian printer of the fifteenth century, had a black slave boy, who was popularly supposed to have come from below. Accordingly he published a notice: "I, Aldo Manuzio, printer of the Doge, have this day made public exposure of the printer's devil.
All who think he is not flesh and blood may come and pinch him."

BRYAN REDIVIVUS.

better or worse, Bryan is known, and has far more backers and adherents than any other Democrat. Those who have always supported him support him still; those who have distrusted him distrust him far less than they once did. Events have moved and moved Bryan's way, and it is remarkable how he has been able to keep step with them.

A correspondent of the Indianapolis News tells an interesting story of the sudden awakening of Lincoln, Nebraska, to the new importance of Mr. Bryan. Until very lately, he says, Lincoln has had no opinion of Mr. Bryan. It is a Republican city. In 1896 when Bryan was nominated for President, Lincoln merely grunted and blossomed out with McKinley pictures. In 1900 it was very much the same. Lincoln felt no local pride. When Bryan took the stump for Parker, Lincoln never turned a hair, and when he started for Europe not half a dozen people saw him off. But now, suddenly Lincoln has waked up. Representative citizens of Nebraska who did not know until lately that Mr. Bryan had gone abroad, are coming to New York to welcome him home. Lincoln hotels are planning extensions, Lincoln photographers are stocking up with pictures of Lincoln and of Fairview where Bryan lives. There are Bryan hats in Lincoln streets, Bryan cuffs, collars, neckties, and socks in Lincoln shop windows, and when Bryan gets home he will have the greatest reception ever given to a citizen of Nebraska. Sentiments have changed in Lincoln. It has begun to suspect that it is about to be located at the political center of the United States, and it likes the idea. As to Mr. Bryan's fortune, the News correspondent discloses that the local estimates of it range from $125,000 to $200,000, besides a satisfactory income from the Commoner and from lectures and books.

HOW THE WAVES MAY BE MADE TO RUN A MOTOR.

The cut shows an ingenious contrivance designed by Tad Danforth of San Diego, Cal., by means of which the waves that roll upon a sloping beach may be turned to practical account. The buckets on the lower stretch of belt are open and catch the water of the surf, and the weight drags them down the platform. As the buckets pass upward they are inverted and the water falls out. A cable conveys the motion of the chain to gearing on the shore.

"The Koreans in the Hawaiian Islands are well satisfied with their treatment on the plantations," said Dr. George Heber Jones, the eminent Methodist missionary to Korea, who is now visiting in Honolulu and is in charge of the Korean religious work in the islands.

Dr. Jones returned from a trip to Maui where he met with most of the Koreans. He states that they all had pleasant things to say of the head of most of the plantations there. Hon. H. P. Baldwin, and expressed themselves contented with their lot. Dr. Jones states also that this expression towards managers is not confined to Maui alone, but on Kauai and elsewhere he has found the same spirit prevailing.

"Mr. Baldwin also said that the Koreans took better to the work on a plantation than almost any other types of raw labor," said Dr. Jones.

to the dangerous state of the bridge extension of Queen street, in which a dozen bad holes are now marked by pipes, scantlings and boards stuck upright in them. He favored the replanking of this road at once before a damage suit was brought against them. To plank the center and mark off allowances for pedestrians on each side would cost $1650, and he thought he could stand off the lumber yards for the material until December.

Sydney M. Ballou called attention, in a communication, to the state of the road on Judd street, west of Liliha, which was impassable. A. S. Cleghorn asked that the Smith lane, off Fort street, be made so that people could get over it, and the people of the Fifth District asked that something be done on Liliha above Judd, including the extension of Liliha in the Puunui tract.

All these were cheerfully passed on to the Committee on Roads and Bridges, who said, through Chairman Lucas, that they had only one difficulty in the matter, and that was the lack of funds to do all that was asked.

PETITION FROM PAUOA.

A petition from the Republican Club of the Ninth of the Fourth, backed up by the presence of the president and secretary, C. W. Booth and A. W. Neely, reminded the members of the promises they had made regarding road work in that district and asked that work be commenced at once, otherwise the new school building there would be of no use. Both Mr. Booth and Mr. Neely spoke, the former stating that the school children now had to hop from one taro patch to another to get to school.

A promise was made that work on the road would commence this month. The committee on ways and means being instructed to see what could be done in the way of getting more funds out of the Territorial auditor.

The Country Club asked permission to build a road from Nuuanu into their premises, agreeing to pay all costs. The board granted this request with alacrity, glad to be able to do something which would not have to be financed at their expense and upon which they could keep some of their men at work.

The following appropriations were passed for August:

- County Clerk, $73.40.
- Election expenses, $124.75.
- Koolauloa road district No. 2, $181.70.
- Premium on bonds, $12.50.
- Commission collecting road tax, $2.70.
- Ewa road district, $3.10.
- Koolauloa road district No. 1, special, $170.52.
- County Treasurer, $4.00.
- Fire department, $741.02.
- Kapiolani park, $188.25.
- Electric light department, $646.17.
- Police and fire alarm system, $43.92.
- Police department, $785.82.
- Garbage department, $478.82.
- Road department, special, $1770.62.
- Road department, bridges, $1753.
- Road department, $6312.73.

A bill from the Department of Public Works for the lease of Kapiolani park for $21 was referred to Supervisor Lucas, who said that such bills as those made him sick. He promised to attend to it in a way that would cost the county nothing.

The board then adjourned to Tuesday, the 18th inst.

Gov. A. S. Cleghorn entertained the members of the Southern California Editorial Association at "Alahau" on Friday afternoon. Mr. Cleghorn met the guests on the lawn and conducted them into the old home, famous for its associations with the late monarchy. Mr. Cleghorn took especial interest in showing the pictures and especially the photos and oils of the late Princess Kaiulani. He also conducted the party to Princess Likelike's quaint grass house. The peacocks, the pets of the late Princess, were not to be seen on this occasion, the large number of strangers making them shy.

The sixty-eighth birthday anniversary of Queen Liliuokalani was celebrated at her Waikiki seaside home on Monday evening. Following the presentations of the guests by Mr. E. K. Liliuokalani, the guests were seated at a luau over which the Queen presided. Princess Kawananakoa and Kalaniana'ole sat on either hand. The Queen's health was proposed by Prince Kalaniana'ole. Following the luau, the guests were entertained with an old-time hula.

Col. and Mrs. Samuel Parker will return this week from Tantalus.

Town Talk has the following about Capt. Tutt, who recently visited Honolulu in his yacht Anemone:

I hear from the North that Charles L. Tutt, the millionaire president of the Colorado "mill trust," is cruising leisurely from Seattle to San Diego in his yacht Anemone, and that on his voyage south he intends visiting San Francisco, where he is well known. Of all the Colorado millionaires, Tutt is the most interesting. He springs from distinguished Virginia stock, and his career, although unique, has been more subdued and less spectacular than that of the average man who becomes rich overnight. He is a tall man, considerably over six feet, very thin, with arms reaching almost to his knees, and is exceedingly near-sighted. He stoops in walking, and has been compared to some new sort of bug. But as he possesses for more than the average gray matter, he is popular with both men and women. When Tutt first went West, he got control of a small dairy farm near Colorado Springs. His stock consisted of four cows, and he was his own manager. He milked his four cows and delivered their milk at the doors of his friends. This, of course, was before anyone dreamed of the wealth hidden in the Cripple Creek hills.

medans and the visiting members of the Southern California Editorial Association was a notable social event of the week. During the dinner the visitors were regaled with Hawaiian music rendered by Kaal's quintet. An informal reception for the editorial writers on the Waikiki lanai and then the Ewa lanais were cleared and dancing held away until long after midnight. Seldom has the Hawaiian Hotel experienced such a jolly crowd. The lanais were attractively decorated and bore a truly tropical appearance.

Mrs. Alice Hastings, who recently returned from Kauai, has taken a cottage for the fall at the Freeths'.

On Monday evening a most enjoyable military hop was given at the Seaside Hotel for the officers and ladies of the wrecked transport Sheridan. In addition, numbers of townfolk were also present. The fine lanai dancing floor was crowded at all times. More transport dances are to be expected at the Seaside when the Thomas and Rufford come into port.

The dime social of the Pacific Rebekah Lodge, which was to have been given next Thursday, has been indefinitely postponed.

Queen Liliuokalani was the guest of honor at a luau last week given by Mrs. Ault of Palama. Among other guests were Princess Kalaniana'ole, Mrs. George Smithies, Mrs. Ward, the Misses Ward, Mrs. Hustace.

Messrs. Tilden, Smith, Wilson, Jamie Wilder and Beerman were guests of Mr. Bruce Cartwright, Jr., at a sharking party during the week.

Mrs. William E. Taylor, who has been the guest of Mrs. Alexander Scott since the death of Dr. Taylor, will leave for San Francisco on the transport Buford to join her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Stow.

An Admission Day celebration will be given by the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West at the Alexander Young Hotel on Monday evening, September 10, at 8 p. m. This will take the form of a dance, and a large number of invitations have been issued. The Southern California visitors will also attend to do honor to their state.

Mrs. George Fairchild gave a dinner party at the Seaside Hotel on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Withington entertained at dinner last evening for some of their old friends who came here with the Southern California Editorial Association. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Doolittle, Mr. and Mrs. Horton, Mr. Holland.

OAHU COLLEGE OPENS NEXT WEEK MONDAY

Oahu College will open next week Monday, September 17. Students from the Honolulu High School, California high schools, Kamehameha Schools, and certain other accredited schools are admitted to the college without examination. Those students who come from other schools who have not already arranged for admission should do so this week. President Griffiths will be in his office every morning from 8:30 until noon and will be glad to confer with parents and students. The examinations for admission and for the removal of conditions will be held in the college buildings, Monday, September 17, the day of opening. The large advance registration is an augury of a large attendance.

LOOKOUT TO WATCH FOR VESSEL

It is contemplated stationing a lookout on Koko Head to watch for the schooner on which the Orleole Opera Co. are cruising in the South Seas. This vessel, by name the "Lead Pipe Cinch," is scheduled to go on the rocks on Thursday evening, September 13, and it's real sad to think that the poor boat will have to be subjected to another wrecking on Saturday evening, the 15th.

The lookout will keep his eye peeled for sight of the boat, but he'll miss her, for she'll proceed directly to the Opera House and perform her wreck stunt just before the curtain goes up Thursday evening. But you'll see all the shipwrecked opera company, and can spend the evening with them listening to the whole exciting tale of adventure in "Ship Ahoy."

Mr. R. R. Bode, who is personally directing all the music of the opera, is, indeed, a most welcome acquisition to Honolulu.

SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT IN MISSOURI.

We are getting dead swell in this good town. We eat ice cream with a fork. Some time ago we learned to make salad at the dinner table. Then we served coffee in the library after dinner. We have had finger bowls some dozen years. We are beginning to use them even when there is no company. One family has finger bowls at breakfast after fruit and before bacon, even when there are no guests at the house. That's dead swell. We have drunk soup out of a teacup and put grass on the fried chicken, and now we eat ice cream with a fork. Why not? These little evidences of social progress are commendable.—Columbia Herald.

EDITORS AT SEASIDE

There will be much of interest at the Seaside Hotel this afternoon, when the visiting as well as local editors will be entertained by Manager Church. The famous Kawaihau Quintet Club will play, both afternoon and evening, while canoes and boats will be at the disposal of the city's guests for those who wish to go surfing or try for the wonderful fish that can be caught outside the reef. In honor of the occasion a special dollar dinner will be served on the great lanai during which the Kawaihau Club will play and sing. It is safe to say that all Honolulu will travel to the Seaside today. Hereafter there will be music at the popular Beach resort every Sunday.

SIGNS AND WONDERS.

This evening at 7:30 the pastor of the Adventist church will begin a series of lectures on the signs of the times and the second coming of Christ. Many today are asking, What do these things mean? Wind and tidal waves devastating the islands, the wrecks of vessels and the loss of life on the water, destruction by earthquakes and fire and cyclone on the land; the San Francisco disaster, the Valparaiso horror and the ruined cities and devastated homes in Italy and other countries. Has the Lord spoken of these things? Are they omens of the soon coming of Christ? Come and bring your Bibles and let us study these things together.—C. D. M. Williams.

The Honolulu have gone to the top of the league second series table. They defeated the Kams yesterday by the score of 3 to 2.

Next Saturday the tie game between the Punahou and Kams will be played off. If the Colts get away with the Browns the season will be over, with the Reds winners of both series and the pennant. Should the Kams be victorious, however, they and the Honolulu will be tied for first place in the second series and a deciding game will be necessary.

The second game yesterday, between the Oahu and Punahou was about as bad as it could be, the Oahu taking it by the score of 9 to 1.

Kaano pitched for the Kams in place of Reuter who is on another island. The game was a good one and well played throughout.

Kams drew first blood in the third. Sheldon made a three-bagger to center. Lemon hit to En Sue who errored. Sheldon coming home.

There was no further scoring until the seventh when the Honolulu woke up and netted a couple. Joy walked. A. Williams sacrificed and Joy went to second. Bruns went to first on short's poor throw. Joy going to third. Bruns stole second. Soares hit to short and on his error Joy scored. Bruns came home on En Sue's bunt.

Each side singled in the eighth. Lemon and Louis doing the trick.

 Hit by pitcher—Joy 1.

(9) OAHU VS. PUNAHOU. (1).

The Ringlanders won in a romp by 9 runs to 1. The Punahou were dead. Pitcher Desha went to pieces and catcher McCriston got his fingers so severely banged that he had to surrender his position to George Desha. The team, as a whole, seemed to be demoralized.

"Old Hoss" Van Vliet appeared in an Oahu suit and played up to his best form.

In the Punahou's line-up was Dave Sherwood and George Freeth.

Johnny Williams relieved Eddie Desha with the ball, in the fourth innings.

The Oahu rolled up 3 in the first by hits and errors and 6 in the fourth by errors and hits.

The Oahu all but played an errorless game. Bill Hampton struck out 12 men.

LONDON COMING

Novelist's Small Yacht Will Call at Honolulu.

The following letter has been received by ex-Commodore Hobron from Jack London, the novelist:

Glen Ellen, Sonoma Co., Calif.
August 23, 1906.

Dear Mr. Hobron: Your kind letter of August 11th, received, also the chart of the Islands, and the literature, for which my heartiest thanks.

I am especially grateful for the information you have given me regarding touching at Hilo first, and then coming down through the Islands to Honolulu. I shall certainly follow this course. Yes, if the winds are variable, I can have recourse to power. I am going to carry a 70-horse-power 20th century gasoline engine, and it ought to make the boat walk along some.

By the way, and because of this engine, it is quite clear now that I shall be delayed at least a month in my sailing. The earthquake knocked engines on the Coast and this engine is being shipped to us from New York. And we can't put the deck on until we install it. So, instead of sailing from San Francisco on October 1st, it seems now as if I shall not be able to get away until November 1st, at the earliest, and in the meantime, am rushed to death trying to get away. The lure of the voyage has gripped me, and I cannot get away any too soon. I shall keep you informed of my movements.

Again thanking you for your kindness,

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) JACK LONDON.

Makiki Ball.

A game of baseball will be played at the Makiki grounds at 9 a. m. today between the Likeli nine and the Sand Fleas. The Likeli's line-up is: A. Gomes, c.; Jno. Honan, p.; Joseph Honan, lb.; Peter Ferreira, 2b.; Manuel Correa, 3b.; Joe M., ss.; Willie Nelson, cf.; Jno. Diamond, cf.; Evers Gomes, lf. Substitutes, Eddie Bush, Tohato Bush, August Joseph, Sam Kaano.

The Chauffeur.

The chauffeur is a flying animal new to our fauna. Its original habitat is France, but it is hardy, adapts itself to all climates, and multiplies rapidly, so that it now abounds in most parts of the world.

Its habits are as yet undetermined. It flies by night as well as by day, low toward the ground. It does not hibernate, strictly speaking, although it shows some preference for warm regions.

Its reason for killing prey is still in question. It does not feed upon its prey, but since increase of speed in flight accompanies each death, some have supposed that the chauffeur draws vigor in some way from the victims.

The creature is difficult of capture and languishes in confinement, hence owners of rare specimens pay largely to protect them from the perils of capture.

No nest has yet been found nor any immature specimens. The chauffeur first appears full-grown and may be taken in his haunt, the garage, about which they settle in flocks—Town Topics.

LILLIAN TO HAVE STABLE

NEW YORK, August 31.—Lillian Russell expects to outlive Mrs. Langtry, "The Jersey Lily," with her string of Australian horses. Horse people will await the opening next season of the actress' racing stable. Her "nom de course" will be "Mr. Clinton," that of Mrs. Langtry is "Mr. Jersey." Her colors will be navy blue with a white star. Thus far she has purchased eight horses in Australia all of them by Carbine, the undefeated star of the turf in the Antipodes.

The scions of Carbine are quartered at the famous Flemington course, near Melbourne. Her grooms will start for Melbourne October 1, and the horses will be shipped to San Francisco the following year. After allowing the horses to recover from their sea voyage they will be shipped to Benning.

Jackson Reenters

Nigel Jackson has reconsidered his determination to retire from the ring and has been matched to box six rounds with Ah Sam, the Chinese Wonder, as a preliminary to the Sullivan-McFadden battle at the Zoo next Saturday night.

LIEUT. HANNAH
A CRACK SHOT

Lieutenant Hannah of the Tenth Infantry, who won honors in the competitive revolver contest among the officers of the Pacific division recently in California, thus qualifying for the team to enter the contest at Fort Sheridan, Chicago, has also won out there and secured a place for himself on the Army team, to shoot at Seagirt. He scored at Chicago 278 out of a possible 300, winning third place out of a team of eleven. At the contest this year the record in army pistol shooting was broken, Captain Cole of the Sixth Cavalry making 287 points, one more than has ever before been scored.

Boxing Matinee

Dick Sullivan and Jack McFadden will box three exhibition rounds at the Zoo at 3 p. m. today.

Several parties of ladies are going to Kaimuki this afternoon to take pointers in the noble, domestic and useful art of self-defense.

First Friend (on deck of ocean steamer to seakick companion): "Have you dined, old man?" Second Friend (faintly): "On the contrary!"—Punch.

Native.—But you are not the fellow who usually robs me at this corner.
Highwayman.—No, but it's all right; I've bought his route.

TESS IS THE BEST

Judge Bradshaw Gives Fleming's Dog the Verdict.

J. L. Fleming's pointer bitch Tess, by Jack out of Belle, bred by E. R. Adams and whelped August 11, 1904, is the best dog in Hawaii. So judged John Bradshaw at the kennel club's show last night.

Hundreds of people witnessed the final award made. All the winners were led into the ring and sent back one by one until only half a dozen dogs were left. They were: Julius Bayer's dachshund Hieronymus; Dr. Fitzgerald's Irish setter, Mike Foley; L. C. Ables' collie, Jack; Kalili Kennels' bulldogs, Lord Nestor and Lady Wallace; J. L. Fleming's pointer, Tess.

The judge's choice narrowed down to Tess and Mike Foley and it was a very difficult matter to pick the winner.

At last Bradshaw handed the yellow ribbon to Fleming, his decision being heartily applauded. Tess is a good dog and her owner a good sport.

Either dog, according to Judge Bradshaw, could win in its class in San Francisco. Tess' superior condition helped her to victory. With a trifle more attention to certain points Fitzgerald's dog might have won.

Winners of special prizes offered by friends and supporters of the Hawaiian Kennel Club are:

Nos. 1, 2, 3, 19, 89, 86, 92, 93, 92, 12, 9, 10, 13, 17, 72, 73, 75, 78, 80, 31, 26, 57, 56, 65, 71, 71, 61, 6, 105, 45, 45, 41, 92, 53, 6, 99, 104, 99.

At 10 p. m. the show came to a close, having been a decided success.

CAMBRIDGE
WINS RACE

PUTNEY, England, September 8.—Cambridge defeated the Harvard crew by two lengths. Time, 19:13.

The race was over the regular university course from Putney to Mortlake, four and a quarter miles. All the members of this year's Cambridge crew, with the exception of one trained for the race with Harvard. They started work on the river, August 6, and had a full month's practice.

It is a notable fact that it is just about forty years since Harvard first sent a crew to row an English university. A four was sent over to row Oxford over the Putney-Mortlake course, but owing to various mishaps it was defeated. Cornell, Yale and Pennsylvania have sent crews to England (Cornell twice), but they were sent to row at Henley and not against university crews. There are no university races in the Henley regatta. The events are open to schools, colleges and rowing clubs. The crews of the rowing clubs are generally made up of the pick of the university crews, which disband immediately after the Oxford-Cambridge race, and go out of training. It is considerable of a concession for the Cambridge men to consent to resume training at this time of the year for the purpose of rowing an American crew. The Englishmen have nothing to gain and much to lose.

The race was arranged through Captain Filley, who received his preparatory education in an English school; R. P. Lehman, the former Cambridge oarsman and for a short time coach at Harvard, and ex-Capt. Higginson of Harvard, who is now living in London.

The Harvard eight outweighed the Britons nearly ten pounds to the man, which ought to have been of advantage to them. It will be interesting to know that the English crew trained last spring without the aid of any meats, eggs being used as substitute, the other food being entirely vegetarian. On this diet the Cambridge eight triumphed over Oxford, and with the victory repeated over Harvard the diet will receive a still more emphatic endorsement for college athletes.
