HIS SHORTAGE NOT OVER $2600.

Bondsmen Willing to Pay and Relieved that Amount is Small—Lambert Will be Arrested and Sent Back to California—Miss Mahaney Returns Today.

Mention was made in these columns yesterday of the presence in Honolulu of Walter R. Lambert, fugitive police clerk of Oakland, Cal., and Miss Gertrude Mahaney.

WALTER R. LAMBERT.

(Reproduced from the S. F. Examiner.)

ney, a young lady of the same city. The couple arrived here by the Mariposa under the name of "F. N. Thomas and wife."

The San Francisco Examiner of March 16th prints the following touching the disappearance of Lambert:

OAKLAND, March 16.—The experts today succeeded in opening the safe which the fugitive police clerk, Walter R. Lambert, left behind.

Thirteen bail bonds for Chinese lottery dealers, a stack of unpaid bills, a slip of paper with "$10" and "R. B. S. York" written upon it, a California bank book, which showed a balance of $26 due the department—more than offset by outstanding checks—and a lot of torn bits of paper comprised the contents of the safe.

While the meager contents of the clerk's safe were being discussed, Henry Evers and O. C. Kirk, Lambert's bondsmen, looked on. As every one, excepting Lambert's friends, believed, there was not a thing resembling money—not even a cent—in the affair.

Expert York and Auditor Snow completed the work of inspecting Lambert's books today, and to the great relief of the bondsmen found the total defalcation to be small.

"We thought yesterday that Lambert was over $16,000 short," said Auditor Snow today, "but we are glad now that our apprehensions have not been verified. The total shortage will not be over $2600."

BONDS MAY BE BOGUS.

Expert York says that some of the bonds on file may be bogus, and if this be so the shortage will be greater.

MISS GERTRUDE MAHANEY.

(Reproduced from the S. F. Examiner.)

The custom of Chinese lottery dealers is to put up cash bail first and then, after the case has been set, to substitute a bond for the cash. Now, if many of the bonds found in the safe are forged, Lambert took more money than he is supposed now to have absconded with.

The bondsmen will indemnify the State for Lambert's defalcation without making any contest.

In addition to his shortage as clerk, Lambert owes nearly every merchant, saloon man and restaurateur in Oakland who would trust him. The funeral of his wife is still unpaid for.

Attorney Thomas Bradley is out

$100 because of his faith in Lambert. As counsel for a Chinese lottery dealer Bradley wished to draw down $100 cash bail, having put up the necessary bonds. He wrote a receipt for the money. Lambert took the receipt, saying he was busy and would give Bradley a check. That was last Thursday and the lawyer has not since seen the clerk.

Gertrude Mahaney, the young woman who is supposed to have eloped with Lambert to Honolulu, was well known in Oakland. She formerly lived at Fourteenth and Washington streets, just opposite the City Hall.

MARRIED THE PARTNER OF HIS FLIGHT

John Mahaney, her father, said last night that he was greatly surprised to learn of Lambert's defalcation.

"My daughter and Lambert were properly married," he said, "and they sent me a letter telling me so. I know my girl would not say so if it were not true. I knew she was acquainted with Lambert, and he was a widower, and when I received word a few days ago that they were married I was not altogether surprised. I was totally unprepared for the news that they had gone to Honolulu."

Walter Lambert's career in Oakland has been a varied one. Six months ago he created a scene in the police court by making some irrelevant remarks to Judge Allen. He also stared at a witness for several minutes instead of swearing him and convinced the court that he was out of his mind. He was taken away by his friends but renewed his crazy behavior in a saloon and was arrested as insane. He was taken to the county jail and confined for a few days. No judicial examination was held, but Dr. Stratton pronounced him sane again and he was liberated. On several other occasions Lambert was kept under restraint by his friends and was looked upon as a dangerous man when he had taken a few drinks.

HONOLULU IS NOT SAFE.

Lambert's bondsmen, O. C. Kirk and Henry Evers, were interested observers when Lambert's safe was opened, although they said that they did not expect to find anything in it. If Lambert has gone to Honolulu he may run into Lou Evers, who holds a position in the Hawaiian army. Lou is a son of Henry Evers, one of Lambert's bondsmen.

Lambert's offense is an extraditable one, and word will be sent by the next steamer to Honolulu to the Hawaiian authorities to arrest Lambert and ship him back to California.

An afternoon paper printed an interview yesterday with Lambert, in which he admitted being the party mentioned above, but denying he was short in his accounts or that he fled from Oakland on account of any irregularity.

Lambert and Miss Mahaney—or "F. N. Thomas and wife" as registered, are still in the city.

Rumor has it that some disagreement has arisen between the couple, and that the lady will return to Oakland by the Alameda today.

REPAIRS AT THE REEF.

Political Prisoners Fare Well—New Dark Cells being Made.

Jailor Low is having considerable improvements made at the reef. The old and partially dark cells in the basement have been torn out and four new ones are being constructed on the Ewa side of the building. These will be arranged similar to those dark cells in use in penitentiaries of the United States. Air-pipes will be put in allowing perfect ventilation, forcing foul odors upwards by pipes, together with improved sanitary appliances.

The capacity of the buildings were taxed to their utmost during the time so many of the political prisoners were to be cared for. The makai wing of the main building gave away on account of the heavy weight of the prisoners kept in the upper story. A number of the cells below were cracked from the same cause. Bowler and Walker were put to work repairing the building, and, through their experienced efforts, the walls and cells have been put in first-class condition.

Rickard, Seward, Ashford and Marshal are looking quite well, considering their recent illness. They are not required to perform any labor, spending most of the time in the hospital department. The men have no complaint to make and are submitting to the inevitable with the best grace possible.

"Sequah," the great medicine man, will speak in Union Square this evening at 7:30. The doctor is making arrangements to occupy the old Armory on Beretania street. An outfit of chariots and other advertising material will arrive on the next steamer from the Colonies.

Word has been received from J. Emmeluth that he expects to return to Honolulu by the Australia. He has purchased a pineapple canning plant of the latest improved pattern. It is expected the machinery will arrive here about the first of May.

Mr. Emmeluth found it necessary to journey to New York and Baltimore in order to have manufactured certain portions of the machinery which could not be procured on the Coast. People in the East to whom Mr. Emmeluth explained the size of pineapples grown in the Islands inclined to the belief that he was an apt disciple of Baron Munchausen.

It was Mr. Emmeluth's intention to visit Washington and confer with Minister Thurston regarding certain matters affecting the production and sale of pineapples, but he has likely deferred his journey on account of that gentleman having left for Honolulu.

WHY THURSTON WAS RECALLED.

Told How Cleveland Tried to Deceive Congress About Cable.

NO SUCCESSOR MAY BE NAMED.

If the Hawaiian Government Fails to Accredit Another Person Minister Willis Will Be Obligated to Take a Leave of Absence—More Precedents.

CHICAGO, March 20.—The Tribune's special from Washington says: "Minister Thurston was given the credit by the Administration of supplying the information which put the President in the position of having attempted to deceive Congress as to the cable situation. The result was natural, but was galling to the President, particularly as the Senate absolutely ignored his recommendation so far as action is concerned. Instead a rider was tacked on to the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill providing for a cable to Hawaii, to be built and owned by the United States, and appropriating $500,000 to begin the work. The amendment passed the Senate triumphantly, but it failed in the House.

Both the President and Secretary Gresham were exceedingly angry over the cable incident. On February 13th, the date of publication of the interview with Thurston to which exception has been taken, the Diplomatic and Consular bill was still in conference and the Senate seemed determined to snub the President. Then it was that the interview between Secretary Gresham and Minister Thurston took place. The publication of the diplomatic correspondence was a convenient pretext, but the cable amendment was voted into the appropriation bill and the consequent direct interference with Gresham's department was the real cause belli and both parties to the stormy interview so understood it.

Mr. Thurston, it is said, does not know who will be his successor, but it is intimated that Frank Hatch may be selected, and he will represent the ideas and views that have been prominent during the mission of Mr. Thurston.

Mr. Hatch is said to be unusually well qualified for the position.

As to the outcome regarding Thurston there is much doubt, for it all rests with the Hawaiian Government and depends upon whether that Government takes the ground that its Minister has been attacked because of personal reasons, or whether it may regard the demand for his recall as the result of the faithful execution of official charges confided to his care.

Of course, the Minister will go in either case, but if the Hawaiian Government takes the latter view it will simply omit to credit another person to succeed him, and in this case Mr. Willis, our Minister to Hawaii, will be obliged to take a leave of absence, just as Mr. Porter, Minister to Italy, did, when Baron Fava was recalled as the result of the killing of his fellow-countrymen in New Orleans four years ago.

PINEAPPLE CANNING FACTORY.

Mr. Emmeluth Has Purchased a Plant of the Latest Pattern.

Word has been received from J. Emmeluth that he expects to return to Honolulu by the Australia.

He has purchased a pineapple canning plant of the latest improved pattern. It is expected the machinery will arrive here about the first of May.

Mr. Emmeluth found it necessary to journey to New York and Baltimore in order to have manufactured certain portions of the

THE EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION.

Opening of Semi-Annual Meeting at Kaunakapili Church.

REV. E. S. TIMOTEO, MODERATOR.

Special Committees Appointed to Adjust Existing Difficulties—Association Adjourned Until Thursday Morning—Sunday School Association.

The semi-annual meeting of the Oahu Association of Hawaiian Evangelical Churches began at Kaunakapili Church yesterday morning. Some forty pastors and delegates were in attendance. Rev. J. Kekahuna, the moderator at the last meeting, conducted the opening devotional services. Rev. E. S. Timoteo was chosen moderator, and Rev. Kimo Kavika, scribe. The usual committee appointed by each church, through its delegate, reported its condition and progress for the past year. The church at Kalihi, still without a pastor, had raised $500 for repairing their church, largely through the efforts of Mr. W. H. Cummings. The church at Waianae had settled their difficulties with their late pastor, but had not seen their way clear to call another pastor. The church at Waiolua reported the continued success of their monthly musical entertainment to bring the people to the house of worship, interest them in the work of the church, and set in motion
various enterprises for the promotion of the welfare of the community.
The church at Kaneohe reported some trouble between the pastor and some of the deacons, arising out of scandals circulated in connection with the employment of a singing-master to improve the musical abilities of the young people.

In the afternoon, when the proposition was made to hold three day's meeting next week for the special object of uplifting the religious life of the Hawaiian Evangelical Churches,
some objection was made to the selection of Passion Week for such meetings as though they indicated approval of observances of the Roman Catholic Church. But further discussion brought out the general unanimi-ty of sentiment in favor of such meetings at this time. Such fear was said to be as foolish as people's bowing their heads when driving through a covered bridge. All good ideas are to be welcomed, and all helpers in good works. The Catholic priest at the Leper Settlement is not untrue to his duty when he gives away bibles, that these Scriptures which no Catholic Society has printed may be the means of enlightening and purifying the lives of the residents of Kalaupapa. Preachers of different doctrines are coming to the islands. Instead of claiming a monopoly of religious truth, every truly pious heart will rejoice in bidding God-speed to every earnest purpose and sincere desire for the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom of truth and righteousness and love.

The new difficulties and obstacles
in the way of the gospel was the next subject of discussion. It was resolved to lay the matter before the Hawaiian Board with the request that a committee on Home Evangelization be appointed to visit the churches in which there are special difficulties, and assist in straightening out the various entanglements. It was reported that the Hawaiian Board had already voted to hold a special session to consider the situation of the Hawaiian churches, and come to some determination as to what had best be done. Rev. E. S. Timoteo was recommended as a desirable member of such committee.

The four parishes of Waianae, Hanuli, Waimanalo and Kalihi, now without pastors, were placed under the charge of special committees to visit and advise and assist in selection of pastors.

The Association adjourned at 5 p.m.
to meet again on Thursday at 9 a.m.
The Sunday School Association will meet at 2 p.m.

Ed Dekum's Lecture.

The Oregon Camera Club held
an enjoyable meeting in its rooms in the First National Bank building last evening, and entertained a large number of friends and invited guests, says the Portland Oregonian of February 25th. The special feature of the evening was the display of Hawaiian photographs, made by Mr. H. Goldsmith, an enthusiastic amateur. The lecturer for the evening was Edward Dekum,
who has made several trips to the Hawaiian Islands and is thoroughly posted as to the scenery and affairs there. The rooms were crowded; so much so that many were unable to obtain admittance. Mr. Dekum has been asked by many to repeat his lecture,
which date will be announced later.

Cleveland and Gresham Disagree.

New York, March 25—The World's special from Washington
says: The Cabinet meeting today is understood to have developed some friction regarding the policy to be pursued in dealing with the controversy between Great Britain and Venezuela. The President and Secretary Gresham are said to have expressed conflicting opinions
as to whether the Monroe doctrine
would be threatened by arbitration proceedings.

Report of the Examining Committee.

OFFICE OF THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Feb. 7, 1895.
At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of this Company, held on the 26th day of December last, the undersigned were appointed a Committee to examine the annual statement for the year ending December 31, 1894, and to verify the same by comparison with the assets of the Company.
The Committee have carefully performed the duty assigned to them, and hereby certify that the statement is in all particulars correct, and that the assets specified therein are in possession of the Company.
In making this certificate the Committee bear testimony to the high character of the investments of the Company and express their approval of the system, order, and accuracy with which the accounts and vouchers have been kept, and the business in general transacted.

WARREN TALKS OF HIS TRIP.

Found the Weather Cold and Was Glad to Get Back.

Tired of the Style of the Occidental Hotel and Took Private Lodging. Judge Kinney Fooled Them.

The recent trip of George Townsend and Charles Warren to San Francisco was, according to the stories of the two men, uneventful and unsatisfactory. In an interview last night Warren said:

"We arrived in San Francisco on the 16th of last month and were told by W. A. Kinney, who took us as witnesses in the schooner Wahlberg case, that we would probably have to leave for San Diego on the same day. In the evening we were told to wait until the next day. When this time arrived, Kinney told us that nothing could be done in the Wahlberg affair and that we would return home on the 26th, by the China. This was most welcome news to both Townsend and myself, for the weather was very cold and we had begun to feel the pangs of homesickness.

"We put up at the Occidental hotel for three days after our arrival in San Francisco. Becoming rather tired of the 'style' of the place, Townsend and myself talked the matter over and concluded to take private lodgings during the remainder of our stay in the city.

"When Kinney left us, which was on March 19th, he spoke of going to Salt Lake City, where he has some interests. We saw nothing of him after that. Two days later the papers stated that he was in Vancouver attending to the cases of the three exiles who brought suit for heavy damages against the C. A. S. S. Company.

"Townsend and myself felt the cold keenly as we had no overcoats and only light suits of clothes. During our ten days' stay in San Francisco we were continually thinking of home, and longing for the warm climate of the islands."

The story of Townsend is substantially the same as that of Warren. The two men were together continually during their sojourn at the Coast. They returned by the China last Tuesday.

THE CHARLESTON'S PERIL.

A Torpedo Came Near Being Launched at the Cruiser.

Among the passengers by the steamer Belgic which arrived from the Orient yesterday were Captain Carrier, Lieutenant Vargas and Lieutenant Valdama, the three chief officers of the Chilean cruiser Esmeralda, that was delivered to the Japanese navy a few weeks ago, says the San Francisco Examiner of March 24th.

Lieutenant Vargas was the object of more than ordinary interest to the Americans who were his fellow passengers.

On the Belgic he was talking of the Chilean revolution and he remarked that the crew of the United States cruiser Charleston do not know how close they were to death one dark night when he was in command of the rebel torpedo boat. It was in the harbor of Valparaiso. The Charleston had just entered and near her were lying one or two vessels of the Chilean navy.

The torpedo boat steamed in from the sea under cover of the darkness, and crept up close to the sleeping fleet. A torpedo was fixed ready for launching, and the crew were at their posts ready to fire at the command. Slowly the rebel craft crept in, and almost dead ahead her men made out the dull lines of a warship. It was picked out for the target for the torpedo. A few moments more and the iron sides of the ship were only a few yards away from the little boat, with the death-dealing missile hanging with only a thread to hold it. Now the ship presented a mark that was impossible to miss, and the word was passed along from the lookout to the man at the tube to fire. By some means the command was misunderstood and the man hesitated. That man's hesitation saved the ship, for the next instant the man at the lookout sung out:

"Don't fire! My God, it's the Charleston!"

The torpedo never left the tube, and the little craft sped out to sea again, but not before she had been noticed and a shot sent after her from one of the Chilean ships.

Rosebery's Sad Case.

NEW YORK, March 23.—The Sun's London correspondent cables the following: When matters reach such a pass that the possibility of the suicide of the Prime Minister is seriously discussed by members of Parliament in the lobbies of the House of Commons, it may fairly be said that the English political situation has assumed a decidedly Frenchy and critical aspect.

W. C. T. U.

The young Christian should say with John G. Woolley: I will be a man; an active, definite, persistent, self-respecting and respecting compelling man; no flunky to a party or a sect; no toady to a majority; no trimmer to the popular breeze; no lisping baby-talker to committees; no whimpering petitioner of my own servants; no whispering apologetic preacher with a gag; no wire puller's Punch and Judy, penny puppet annex to a party show; no driving camp-follower of the world's forward march; no Christian whose convictions require editing; no sniveling, moral coward trembling at a politician's sneer; no poster whose politics are queer; no pietist backing under a creed at the approach of a new thought. I will not despise myself; if I keep political company where saloon keepers feel at home, I will not pray, "Thy kingdom come," when a citizens' meeting conflicts with a prayer meeting. I will miss the prayer meeting. I will be too much of a man to talk of taking the world for Christ, while I am consenting to farm out the highways of my own country to saloons and live on the rentals. By the grace of God I will be a Christian Christian and a manly man.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Pure Blood, Cures Scrofula, Etc.

"My experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla has been very effective. My little girl, five years old, had for four years a bad skin disease. Her arms and limbs would break out in a mass of sores, discharging yellow matter. She would scratch the eruptions as though it gave relief, and tear open the sores.

Two Bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla caused the eruptions to heal and the sores healed off, after which the skin became soft and smooth. As a family medicine I recommend it." W. L. KING, Bluff Dale, Tex.

WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, EDITOR.

THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1895.

The slight bullet wound in Li Hung Chang's cheek stands a good chance of becoming a more or less prominent figure in future peace negotiations. As China's claims are given increased weight the wound will heal, and when Japan bears down heavily this emporium will open a multitude of rights asserted by China.

Three days after the news of the appointment of "Matt" Ransom as Minister to Mexico reached that country, the Mexican volcano of Orizaba broke into a violent state of eruption. Mr. Ransom is the only diplomat who has been greeted with a display of fireworks in the land to which he was accredited. Since Mexico has set the example the question as to what Madame Pele is waiting for arises.

Cuban annexation is given considerable prominence in the United States following upon the present political troubles in that country. Senator Morgan says, "I have always been a Cuban annexationist, for the island is an important one to the United States." The same might well be said of all the larger islands of the West Indies. The failure of the United States to assume control of her natural military outposts, aside from the commercial reward which might be gained by both the interested parties, is not the result of a broad, far-seeing policy.

A REPUBLIC, NOTWITHSTANDING.

Talkative members of the voluntary deported who recently left the islands, failing to make any headway or gain popular favor by means of the torture stories, have turned their guns of vituperation upon the Republic, its formation, and methods of maintaining itself. C. W. Ashford, as might be expected, lashes himself into a fury with the greatest freedom. He makes sweeping statements and uses stock phrases characteristic of his class both here and in the United States. The San Francisco Chronicle, in commenting upon his statements, gives a dissertation on republics which men of the Ashford type will do well to paste in their hats. It calls attention to the fact that the cardinal mistake of these men is in assuming that Americanism and republicanism are synonymous terms. "He seems to entertain the notion that because Hawaii has not assimilated itself in every way to the United States of America it cannot be a republic. Surely he has spoken without due reflection. He must know, at least in a general way, the history of the Republics of Rome, Venice, France, Mexico and the various States of Central and South America, no one of which was like the American Republic except in name. Rome, as a republic, was controlled by the patricians and Venice by the nobles. Mexico today is practically an oligarchy, and South America is ruled and dominated by the few rather than the many, as, indeed France is under its parliamentary system of government and yet they are all confessedly republics. When a nation emerges from a successful revolution it must adapt itself to circumstances. It must find its bearings before it can carry a press of sail. Hawaii, threatened by Royalist plots and schemes, standing on the verge of revolution, would have been unwise in the extreme to throw open the doors and give everybody the liberty which has been not only secured but regulated by a century of law and order in the United States, and yet the country is no less a republic. Mr. Ashford and his colleagues would do well to make their peace with the Hawaiian Republic and go home and prove their love for their country by accepting the republic as a fixed fact and doing their duty as good citizens." These malcontents are in a most unsavory position, since it is by their constant enmity to all that points toward good government, that necessitates the Republic throwing oligarchical forms about it. If the disturbing elements will not submit to ordinary forms for keeping law and order, the Government must do the next best thing—establish an armed force. Should the Republic of Hawaii be reduced to the level of South American republics, which, though possible, is far from probable, it will be on account of the debasing influence of just such men as are now confined in Oahu prison and their sympathizers across the water, not to mention those few still in the city who have managed to escape the clutches of the law.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

Poor Liliuokalani says that she wants no more efforts made in her behalf in this country; that everything possible has already been done. We hope the irony of the remark was unintentional.—New York Tribune.

Minister Thurston of the Hawaiian Islands seems to have been unable to withhold a "good thing" from the newspapers, and his obliging disposition has cost him his position. Secretary Gresham is much incensed at the publicity given Hawaiian affairs by the Government's representative there.—S. F. Bulletin.

The late rising in Honolulu by the adherents of Queen Lil against the republican Government was as great a fiasco as Cleveland's attempt to seat the dusky Kanaka. The difference in the situation is that Lil has been arrested for complicity in the outbreak, and will probably be banished, if found guilty, while Cleveland still reigns. There is no difference in the criminal intent.—Tacoma Sun.

The agitators who have been deported from Hawaii are naturally bitter against the Dole Government, but men like Ashford appear to have made a great mistake in assuming that Great Britain and the United States are greatly concerned over the fate of those who were tried and condemned by the court-martial, now that the death sentences of the five leading conspirators have been commuted to long terms of imprisonment. It is doubtful whether the British Government will interfere in this Hawaiian business. The Foreign Secretary probably reasons that the Englishmen in Hawaii who engaged in the recent revolution went into it with their eyes wide open. Hence, they have no good reason to use their British citizenship as a means of escaping the punishment that they deserve.—S. F. Chronicle.

What about the cable? What about the canal? Does the United States Senate believe that other governments will be willing to accept a "dog in the manger" policy and allow the Pacific to be without a cable? Do the Senators for one moment imagine that the Nicaragua Canal will continue to exist merely in the imagination of the world and as a channel only for paper ships? We know not. Hawaii is interested in both schemes to a very great extent because there is no doubt that her commerce will be increased by the completion of one or both of the measures. Nor is Hawaii the only locality to be benefited. The United States, particularly the States along the eastern and western seaboard will profit by the completion of the canal to a wonderful extent; the merchant marine that has been lying idle will receive an impetus the like of which has not been felt in years. Freight could be so much reduced that thousands of tons would be shipped from New York that would not otherwise leave the warehouses.

We have just received another invoice of the celebrated Dietz Oil Stoves, the same now extensively used in Honolulu and which give universal satisfaction. As a fuel, coal oil is extensively used in the United States and here on account of its cheapness and because of the quickness with which a meal may be cooked. With the Dietz Oil Stove there is absolutely no odor from the burning oil and no danger of explosion. The cost of oil for a meal averages about three cents and when you are through heat and expense ceases. We have never had a word of dissatisfaction from parties using these stoves; on the contrary we are told that they will broil, fry, bake, and roast equally as good as a wood or coal stove and at less expense.

If you contemplate renewing the youth of your dwelling by the use of a little paint, bear this fact in mind: Hendry's Ready Mixed Paint will go further and retain the gloss and color longer than any other ready mixed paint on the market. We have it for inside or outside work in quart, half gallon, and gallon tins. If you want to do a little odd job and do not require the services of a painter get a tin of our paint—always ready for use. If you are, for any reason, opposed to the ready mixed article we can supply you with either English or American lead and raw or boiled oil at the lowest possible price.

The Avery sugar land implements have proven a wonderful saving to the planters here and our sales are constantly increasing. Planters are realizing that economy must be practiced in every department of their plantations and labor saving implements are on the road to success in this respect. We will gladly furnish information and supply photographs to parties interested.

to use a "Caligraph" typewriter.

Who will think you are wide awake and progressive if you stick to the way your grandfather wrote? Steel pens instead of quill pens; you're ahead there. Take another step. Use a Caligraph.

You can do more work on a Caligraph than with a pen. It's more comfortable to use a Caligraph than a pen.

Iron as a medicine

for men, women and children is indisputably the best tonic. But it has its disadvantages—its unpleasant effects. That is, in the forms in which it is usually prepared. It causes constipation, discolors the teeth (a great objection). Consequently it makes enemies out of its friends. There is, in fact, but one preparation of iron which is free from any objectionable results. This valuable remedy is

Brown's

which can be taken by the youngest child with impunity. It is the best strengthening medicine for all ages. In cases of malaria, weakness, low fever, spring fever, overwork, its effects are wonderful. It rebuilds the system and enriches the blood.

A FEW BOTTLES OF THIS REMEDY RESTORE HEALTH, BRING COLOR TO THE CHEEKS AND STRENGTH TO THE MUSCLES. IT IS UNEQUALLED AS AN APPETIZER. WON'T STAIN THE TEETH.

But get the genuine. Reliable druggists will not substitute, but it pays to use caution. Two crossed red lines on wrapper mean genuine.

ADELBERT'S DILEMMA.
and
THE NEW WOMAN.

"Adelbert Seattle, you cannot be my husband!" These words rang through the balmy evening air of Nuuanu Avenue with that independent tone characteristic of The New Woman. With eyes aflame she continued: "You applauded that wretch at the mass meeting who said any woman's vote could be bought with a compliment." It was true, and he paled before the awful charge. Yet, poor, weak, "fin de siècle" man though he was, he gathered up strength to redeem himself. "For once, darling," he faltered, "you were out of my mind. I was thinking of the thousands of your inferiors with whom compliments are so rare that they are almost priceless." "O, Adelbert, I forgive you!" she cried, and she threw herself into his arms and wept there. He was moved, too. "Don't cry now," implored the girl, "your tears will wet my frizzes."

THE MADDING CROWD

RIDGWAY LIBRARY IS FAR FROM IT AND LITTLE VISITED.

Literary Treasures That Few Philadelphia People Ever See Because the Great Library Is Unfortunately Located—There Are Days When the Institution Has No Visitors

Great libraries and museums dedicated to the public use are too frequently so unfortunately located or so hedged in by rules and regulations that the public is robbed of the benefits the founders intended to bestow. The Ridgway Library, with its 100,000 rare books, is so far out of the Philadelphia public's way that it has very few visitors. The Field Columbian museum in Chicago is handicapped in its usefulness, owing to the same unfortunate matter of location, and the great Astor and Lenox libraries in New York, owing to the fact that they are only open between 9 or 10 a. m. and 4 or 5 p. m., are inaccessible to the great mass of people compelled to work during the day.

The Ridgway Library was the creation of Dr. James Rush, one of Philadelphia's eminent citizens. He died in 1869 and bequeathed to the Philadelphia Library association the sum of $1,000,000 for the erection of the great library that was to be a monument to his memory and the memory of his wife, whose maiden name was Ridgway. At the time of his death Dr. Rush owned a tract of land bounded by Broad, Carpenter, Thirteenth and Christian streets. It is said that Dr. Rush never intended that this land should be the site of the library, but his executor decided in its favor. The Philadelphia Library association did not consider the locality a suitable one and instituted legal proceedings to determine whether or not it should abide by the executor's decision. The court ruled in favor of the executor, and the present stately library building was erected "far from the madding crowd." It was accepted by the Philadelphia Library association. In 1878 the Lagonian Library and the books of the Philadelphia Library were removed to it, and it has since been about as frequently visited as it would have been had the executor located it in West Fairmount park.

The building is an imposing copy in granite of the Parthenon, 220 feet long by 105 feet wide, and is surrounded by acres of lawn and a high wall. It is not at all unusual for but two or three people to visit the library in a day, and there have been many days when the only people who entered the building were the librarian and his assistants. When the executor stood firm in his determination to give the library its present site on South Broad street, he felt sure that it would soon be in the most fashionable part of the city, but the march of progress was toward the north instead.

The great building, with its massive columns, broad steps and grand hall, is not only a monument to Dr. Rush and his wife, but it is also their tomb, and to the fanciful mind it seems quite appropriate that a silence like that of death itself should so often fold the little visited structure in its embrace. Dr. Rush loved his rare old books and manuscripts, and they are still around him. He intended them to be inspected by thousands weekly, but the unfortunate location of the library building has defeated his philanthropic intent.

Among the treasures of the library are numerous books that were printed in the earliest days of the "art preservative of arts." There is an "Augustinus de Vita Christiana" printed in 1459 by Faust & Schayffer; several works from the press of Janson, the French engraver, printer and type founder who settled in Venice about 1470, produced there a number of celebrated editions between 1470 and 1480 and was the inventor of the Roman type now used. There is a copy of Caxton's "Golden Legend" and three books from the press of his famous assistant, Wynkin de Worde; a "Vulgate Bible," one of the 200 printed in Rome in 1471; a Nuremberg Bible printed by Koberger in 1475; a copy on vellum of Pliny's "Natural History," the only one of the kind that came from Janson's press, and every Spanish book of note from 1500 to 1700 is to be found in the collection. Among these is "El Conde Lucanor," one of the rarest books in the world.

The American department of the library is rich in old time publications. There are copies of the first newspaper published in Philadelphia, files of Bradford's American Mercury from 1719 to 1745, the Pennsylvania Gazette from 1728 to 1804, and the library owns the magnificent collection of early American magazines, books, pamphlets, broadsides and manuscripts made by Pierre du Suthiere before, during and after the Revolution. One of the rarest volumes is "Publications of the Enemy in Philadelphia in 1777 and 1778," and there are two copies of the Aitken Bible published in 1782 under the patronage of congress. Another very old book is "The Beschreibung von Pennsylvania," published in 1704 by Pastorius, the founder of Germantown and the friend of William Penn.

HOME, HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

The Principal Planks in Mrs. Quay's Platform.

Mrs. Matthew Stanley Quay, wife of the Pennsylvania senator, is now mistress of one of the handsomest residences in Washington. It has been finished exteriorly at an expenditure of about $35,000, and the interior is now receiving its finishing touches at the hands of the decorators. Home, husband and children are the three prominent planks in Mrs. Quay's platform. The last plank has five sections, for there are five children in the family. There were five more, but they did not live. Mrs. Quay was born in Beaver, Pa., was educated there and has spent her life in Beaver, in Philadelphia and in Washington. She lived in the Quaker City seven years and went to Washington with Mr. Quay eight years ago, when he first donned the senatorial toga.

Mrs. Quay is an ideal mistress in her handsome home and a devoted helpmeet to her husband, whom she has known since he was a mere lad of 10 years. His prominent position as a public man and the fact that the children are old enough to take their place in the world make great demands upon Mrs. Quay's time socially, and she is a very busy woman. As a hostess she possesses rare grace and tact and seems to have a natural talent for thoroughly entertaining her guests and for placing at ease even the most diffident visitor.

In appearance Mrs. Quay is of medium height, with dark hair and eyes, pleasing features and an admirably proportioned figure. Politics in the abstract has little interest for her, but she is thoroughly in sympathy with her husband's ambitions. Of the Quay children, Richard, the eldest, is his father's right hand man. He has already gained a wide knowledge of political affairs and seems ambitious to follow in the footsteps of his well known sire. He will soon be married to a young lady of Sewickley, Pa. Curtin, the second son and the namesake of the late ex-Governor Curtin, the warm personal friend of Senator Quay, is an officer in the United States army. Mary, the eldest daughter, has graced Washington society for three years. Coral, the second daughter, was presented to society two years ago, after she had completed her education in Europe, and Susan, the youngest daughter, is still a schoolgirl.

ANOTHER DARIUS GREEN.

Young Pope Has a Flying Machine Which Has Soared Skyward.

There is a young Darius Green in California who has a flying machine that does not lack in its way. In other words, Saxton Pope, a young inventor who confesses to 19 summers, has built a flying machine that will fly. It has only flown a few feet thus far, but the inventor feels sanguine that when certain easily remedied defects in construction are overcome he will be able to soar aloft like a bird. When he began his experiments, he did not choose Angel Island as the scene of his proposed flights because the name suggested wings and successful soaring, but because his father, Major Pope, is an army surgeon stationed at the military post on the island.

The machine is built on the aeroplane principle and has wings that are shaped very much like the wings of a bat. When it is in operation, it flies in the face of the wind, and at the present stage of the invention the man who flies with it may be said to fly in the face of Providence. The young inventor is not afraid of it, however, and believes that he will yet be able to soar above Angel Island at the rate of 15 or 20 miles an hour. The faster the wind blows the higher and swifter will be the flight of the aeroplane and the man who goes with it. "A mechanical soaring bird" is what the enterprising inventor calls it. There is no complicated machinery attached to it, and it was built in a month or six weeks. This hasty construction resulted in several defects that caused the machine to break down on its trial trip. The inventor has taken the machine to the heights at the south end of Angel Island and was slowly soaring away from terra firma like a sea gull rising from the bosom of the ocean when an important brace in the light frame gave way, and Pope came to earth again. The machine had mounted three feet into the air, however, and had carried him a short distance, facts that greatly encouraged him and his friends.

SAXTON POPE.

The aeroplane is now the favorite airship device with such eminent inventors as Hiram Maxim and Professor Langley, and Pope is certain he is on the eve of making successful flights. His machine is designed for military use, his idea being that winged scouts in time of war could securely make observations of the enemy's operations or drop explosives upon their heads or their fortifications. "I shall make the machine stronger," says the young inventor, "and then I shall fly."

INSPIRATION OF TEACHING.

Dull Child Brightens in Influence of Inspired Teachers.

DISPERSING Hordes OF KNOWLEDGE.

Reverend Kenneth Duncan Upon School Duties—Let Education Profit by the Failures of Evangelization—Expensive Ideals Better than Reformatories

Rev. Kenneth Duncan was one of the principal speakers at the monthly meeting of the Teachers' Association, Tuesday evening. The text of his remarks on the "Inspiration of Teaching," is given below:

The dull child, the crude savage, the mind enslaved by generations of oppression have obeyed the impulses of inspired teachers. The torpid spirit has awakened at the touch of hope and flashed forth intelligence and reason beyond the wildest vision. I have noticed that the materialist does not take kindly to teaching.

Men who deny the spiritual cannot be expected to study so extremely spiritual a thing as a child.

It is easier and much more satisfactory to brood over origin and species, to explore the profound depths of the ocean's bed, the extreme heights of the interplanetary space, to soar on the wings of morning and make their bed in hell—Lo, God is there. So these men give themselves to studies in law and the occult sciences and find inspiration in the hypothesis of a lump of dirt, or a dried, lifeless mummy, that others find in a restless, wayward child, groping after truth with divine persistence and audacity—a contradiction to all law because spiritual, beyond the comprehension of the materialist in this spiritual study—learning the heights, depths, lengths and breadths of abstract sciences, centering our study upon the pugnose and freckled face of a boy, we conclude that God is here in the image, outlines, breathings, impulses of the inner nature. There is inspiration in such a study. The teacher has the advantage over the theorist in that his study is ever before him, a part of present actual life, instead of being a missing link or disconnected law of a dark age. He need not wait either for another generation to carry forward the deductions of this. The inspiration of child life is before him from premise to conclusion. The man who can solve it or any part of it has a higher, nobler task and occupation than the government of a world.

Fix your gaze now upon that study comprehended within the public school, that mass of complex, discordant, disaffected life surging into the large doors of the schools of such cities as San Francisco, Chicago, New York, and in a large measure many smaller cities and towns. I have in mind many school teachers who would listen intensely and full passionately at this part of this study. It will not hurt us to get a larger view of educational work than that which is comprehended in the school system of Honolulu. I have started with the premise that to stand at a desk before a body of spiritual life and mind—hunger uninspired by the study is a crime. But now from the view point of cosmopolitan life—utterly destitute of those influences which make your work a delight from its inception, we ask, "Whose is the crime?" Misery, mischief, ignorance, dirt, vice, inherited and imbued, these have little in them to inspire a teacher, and the problem of mental and moral redemption is at the outset too stupendous to be hopeful. Verify I believe that uninspired school boards, trustees, educational methods, and beyond all and overpowering all, an uninspired government, are as dangerous in their ways as the teachers who face a task unpaid, unassisted; without cheer, appreciation or proper facilities to do the work with.

We are inspired to breathe by the abundance of the breathing commodity. Who shall blame the noble men and women, fitted by education and broad spiritual conceptions to work out the problems of ignorance in the city, if they turn from the task and refuse to face it, leaving it to uninspired men and women not troubled with feelings of sentiment or ideals too lofty to reach.

This inspiration of teaching here must not come from compulsory laws or sacred privileges, but this—a bountiful provision, costly and refined to meet the utter destitution of the masses.

Let education profit by the failures of evangelization. Has it failed to reach the masses by dingy, bad-smelling mission houses and charity boards? It certainly has pathetically failed, and so will dirty school rooms with plaster maps and overworked school marms.

When the dispensation of knowledge becomes a national beneficence; when this problem of ignorance and vice is provided for by a miracle of government, it will become a joy just to stand by at the distribution of bread as disciples of this universal grace, a joy to see the starving world eat, a joy to gather up the fragments.

When the public school has a bath-room, conservatory, gymnasium, industrial departments, kitchen and lunch-room, and all the splendid paraphernalia of education; every active, forceful agency at work necessary to the development of this holy thing called the mind, then it will be our inspiration to teach. A bare room, filled with diseased breath and stifled yawns and nothing else all the long day, but this and tomorrow the same—is not education. I would sooner trust a child to a life free and unrestrained in the woods, by the river, at the seaside. He has the influences of nature and nature's instructions. It is safer and infinitely more inspiring than an inspired nervous teacher with chalk, blackboard and rod trying vainly to teach an inspired mind how to fly.

You say that is an expensive ideal of yours about public school children sporting in bath tubs, and tumbling in gymnastiums, studying botany amid the perfume of flowers and song birds, learning motion, light, color, taste, smell, force, energy, by the assistance of all these glorious influences of nature and refined life about us. That is true, but not as expensive as reform schools and prisons.

The reality of ignorance is far more costly than the ideal that looks toward its amelioration.

There are immense sums of money invested annually in amassing knowledge. The crime of horded knowledge like the crime of horded wealth leaves the masses starving. Let there be an outlay of truth at the expense of the hordes becoming musty with disuse. That is my ideal. Knowledge beautified; knowledge tempting inquisitive nostrils and curious eyes; knowledge, perfumed, painted, carved, gilded, harmonized, broken into bits and given away. Knowledge made so beautiful that Hires' Root beer, show bills, the circus and ballet dancers will not be the only influences at work to feed the senses. If you and I love the beautiful and have ability to recognize and appreciate it and discriminate between good and evil—it is because inspired minds, purses and time were used to bring our natures in touch with forest, sea, sky—the temples of music, philosophy and every form of truth. What avails it that our world is filled with power, beauty, grandeur of art, science, literature and goodness by divine thought, divine goodness, if the divine ideal cannot be carried out for the transformation of natures that are not able to look so high.

The bread of nature, knowledge and eternal life must be blessed and distributed so that all may be fed. It is no credit to any nation that it has obtained a high degree of intelligence if the masses are in ignorance.

I verily believe, could God have foreseen the desolate existence of a large part of childhood, He would have created a third relationship to supplement unfaithful fatherhood and motherhood, and called that one teacherhood. There is but one holier emotion born to the soul than the sweet, tender promptings of maternity. It is the holy impulse of grace and pity awakened at the sight of children sent to school utterly destitute of the graces, refinements and loves of mothers. Children whose unkempt locks and neglected garments tell of the overworked, motherless condition of the home; children whose shrinking forms at any approach to kindness or caress impress upon you the fact that they never a kiss or caress.

One of the greatest calamities that can befall a child is the calamity that befalls nine-tenths of the public school children—empty-headed and empty-hearted parents.

Someone has said: Read Homer once, and you can read no more, for all books else appear so mean, and poor verse will seem prose; but still persist to read, and Homer will be all the book you need. That is the truth. You teacher, inspired to teach, must be the compendium of all truth—lofty, profound or simple. Scholars will read you; you are the Homer—all the book they need; the life—light, truth, and way to intelligence.

When children were treated more like grain sacks than anything else—stuffed until they could hold no more, and then tied up with a white ribbon and tagged with a diploma. Expressed in doggerel:

Ram it in, cram it in,
Children's heads are hollow;
Slam it in, jam it in,
Still there's more to follow—
Hygiene and history,
Astronomic mystery,
Algebra, histology,
Latin, etymology,
Botany, geometry,
Greek and trigonometry—
Ram it in, cram it in,
Children's heads are hollow.

Rap it in, tap it in,
What are teachers paid for?
Bang it in, slam it in,
What are children made for?
Ancient archæology,
Aryan philology,
Prosody, zoology,
Physic, climatology,
Calculus and mathematics,
Rhetoric and hydrostatics,
Hoax it in, coax it in,
Children's heads are hollow.

Rub it in, club it in,
All there is of learning;
Punch it in, crunch it in,
Quench their childish yearning.
For the field and grassy nook,
Meadows green and rippling brook,
Drive such wicked thoughts afar.
Teach the children that they are
But machines to cram it in,
Bang it in, slam it in,
That their heads are hollow.

Sold it in, mould it in,
All that they can swallow,
Fold it in, soild it in;
Still there's more to follow.
Facies pinched, sad and pale,
Tell the same undying tale.
Tell of moments robbed from sleep,
Meals untasted, studies deep,
Those who've passed the furnace thro'
With aching brow will tell to you how the teacher crammed it in,
rammed it in, jammed, crunched,
punched, rubbed, clubbed, pressed,
caressed, rapped, slapped,
When their heads were hollow.

One word in conclusion, as to the inspiration of methods. It may be a presumption upon my part, not being a regularly ordained teacher, to speak on this point; but, being a regularly ordained preacher instead, I will avail myself of my official privilege, viz: To criticize. I have found out in my office that there is success on the lines of originality and on no other. To attempt to re-create minds by the cut and dried methods of educational systems, is as stupid as it would be and always is to recreate souls according to the dogmas of past ages and dead theologians. It is living truth, fresh, original, the gathered fruits of ever-ripening experience that inspires. Educational methods and laws of teaching are as essential as doctrines and laws and principles of interpretation. They are essential, as text-books, reference books, encyclopedias are. But the inspired teacher has an inspired mind—freshly inspired every day; inspired to teach by personal contact with the pupil, as the preacher gets his inspiration from his people.

STYLES IN DRESS.

Spring Fashions as Indicated in the Recent Importations—Sleeves and Skirts.

Recent importations indicate the spring styles. Embroidered batistes in the English eyelet hole style are among the season's novelties in cotton goods. These come by the yard, embroidered all over in wheel or flower designs, with scalloped edges or openwork insertion set above the hem. Still more elegant are robe dresses of various delicate shades, with three plaited ruffles of embroidered ecru batiste set in a little distance apart, with a close insertion which matches the edge. The dominant note of dress trimming has been so long centered in the bodice that those skirts decorated from the hem almost to the waist are indeed an innovation.

Taffeta silks are also to be popular again, and the new ones have more grounds, with larger flower designs than last season, and openwork embroidery is a part of their decoration. These embroidered silks combine nicely with the plain for waists or sleeves, or both. The pierced cloth brought out in the early fall was the forerunner of all this rage for English embroidery, which is to be in evidence in all our summer goods. A pretty gown recently illustrated in the New York Sun is of brown perforated cloth over a light shade of blue satin. Any woman accustomed to dressmaking can make one like it at home. The skirt is cut bell shape to avoid seams and is very full, while the bodice is quite plain, simply fulled into a belt of black satin ribbon, which forms into a bow and ends in the back. The sleeves have full puffs of plain cloth and perforated cuffs, and the collar band is of black satin ribbon to match the belt. Skirts show no signs of decreasing in fullness, and the Parisians have invented so many devices for keeping them well distended that our English sisters are fearful that crinolines is not far distant. A contrasting color or material is displayed in many of the new skirts by opening them half way up the two front seams over the color and trimming the edges of the opening with beaded gimp.

The new woollens make it appear that the crepon craze will in no wise diminish, and that crapy effects are also striven for in silks and poplins. Many new weaves are shown in the spring crepons. A favorite silk material will be the dentelle, an all silk grenadine, in heavy, open pattern. Silks have larger figures, and the surface is more thickly strewn with flowers, vines and leaves. Autumn tints, in subdued tones, prevail on both black and colored grounds. There are irregular checks and covert cloths for those conservative women that cling to these materials for street gowns, and iridescent poplins in prismatic colors will find favor with many matrons for house gowns, making exceedingly handsome costumes trimmed with rich lace and jet.

Concerning sleeves come conflicting reports. One authority assures us that sleeves will be worn larger than ever this spring, but will droop more toward the elbow and be softer in effect. A foreign exchange, on the other hand, tells us that the voluminous sleeve seems about to be cut down in its career of expansion, for the Princess of Wales and the Duchesse of York have declared in favor of one of more modest proportions.

The newest colors are a blue shade of steel called "valleyrie," various shades of red of the American Beauty rose order or color, a pinkish yellow, gismonda purple, the "bluet" shades of blue and shades of emerald green.

Delicious Nut Creams.

Filberts, almonds, hickory nuts, black walnuts, etc., may be used. Having picked out the meats and freed them from skin as far as possible—you should have a pint in all—they must be pounded with a little white of egg to a paste. Make a custard with the yolks of 3 eggs, half an ounce of gelatin and a scant pint of milk. Stir and sweeten and cool as before and add the nut paste, mixing carefully until smooth. Flavor and deepen the tint with caramel. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored slightly with rum or vanilla, and put to chill separately.

Things Women Want to Know. The semiannual season of "great bargains" is here.

Crape effects or cloths with crinkled surfaces are the fashionable fabrics.

Chiffons are used in greater profusion than ever.

Spring importations show striped changeable silks.

The new laces which are being imported for summer use are in every varying shade and tint of cream from white to butter color.

The coming summer bonnet is to be a small, flat affair, worn well back on the head.

Skirts show no signs of decrease in fullness. Flowered taffeta ribbons and artificial flowers are to be features of summer millinery.

Among the novelties in neckgear is a sable collar band, with rosettes and long stole ends of lace on either side of the front.

Tried to Escape.

Ah Quon, a Chinese prisoner sentenced from Kalaupoko to three months' hard labor and $50 fine for having opium in possession, ran away from a prison gang in charge of H. Leonard, while working on Liliha street above and near the corner of Judd, yesterday morning, but was re-captured by the luna some five minutes later. When the luna missed the prisoner he ran to the corner and saw him running along Judd street. In his effort to escape, the Chinaman jumped from the bridge to the bottom of the stream, twenty feet in depth, and filled with boulders. The jump shook the prisoner up considerably and resulted in his capture.

IT WAS A FLOATING REEF.

Strange Story of a Skipper's Experience in South Seas.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., March 14.—Captain Charles A. Peterson of the British bark Darra, which sailed from Puget Sound for Sydney
last August, and is now at Shanghai, has sent the following letter to the Branch Hydrographic Office here:

On the 30th of December last,
while my vessel was in latitude 40 north, longitude 163.50 east, the men working in the rigging reported reefs to the westward. I went up with glasses and found for about eight miles the water was milk-white, with detached patches
at the north end, with a clear blue water between them. The ship was lying in a dead calm, with a glassy sea.

At noon the reef was clearly visible, and at 2 p. m. it passed, traveling at the rate of one and a half to three miles per hour, rushing past the ship as if she was lying moored broadside on in a strong tide.

All kinds of deep water fish, as well as four distinct sorts of fish found in the shallow water or on the reefs, were playing around the ship, while the reef, or whatever it was, passed by us.

At 5 p. m. the foam belt was out of sight to the eastward. I write fully on this, as it proves how easy
a man might report false danger.
Had I had a breeze before noon and sailed away from it, I would certainly have thought a reef existed. As you will see by my meteorological log, I had no current for that twenty-four hours.

Important Archeological Dis-

covery.

Mr. Walter Scott, of Ellerslie Auckland, New Zealand (eldest son of the late Dr. Wm. Scott, Moffat, Dumfriesshire,) writing to a relative,
states that a remarkable discovery
has been made there. The scoriae of the extinct volcanoes in the neighborhood of Auckland is used as material for the roads. While the workmen were recently quarrying for the road metal in a hill forming part of an extinct volcano they found what proved to be a carved stone among the scoriae. The stone is four inches long by two inches broad,
and about one inch thick in the middle. So severely had it been burned that it was not easy to determine what it was composed of.
Round the edges are carvings of human faces, exhibiting six different faces, with apparently the remains of two others. The lips are thick and the foreheads slope back, being similar to the prehistoric carvings found in Mexico. The supposition of those on the spot is that the carved stone was the work of some prehistoric New Zealander.
