OUR VIEW OF THE VETO.

The King's veto continues to be an absorbing topic of conversation and controversy. The division of opinion is as to whether the Constitution confers the right to veto without the advice and concurrence of the Cabinet. Some say aye; some say no. We venture to say that if the Constitution is construed by the ordinary rules of grammar and composition, and by the light of Constitutional Government elsewhere, of which ours is intended to be some kind of an imitation, the ayes have it.

Article 48, which confers the power of veto, is very explicit. It says, "Every bill which shall have passed the Legislature, shall, before it becomes law, be presented to the King. If he approve he shall sign it and it shall thereby become a law, but, if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the Legislature," etc. This is so very plain that no scholar nor lawyer can make it plainer. The matter of "signing" or "returning" is made to depend entirely upon the King's own approval or disapproval, and has nothing whatever to do with Ministerial advice or sanction. The concluding part of Article 41, which says that "No act of the King shall have any effect unless it be countersigned by a member of the Cabinet, who by that signature makes himself responsible," can have no reference to the document which is required to accompany a returned bill, otherwise the Constitution contradicts itself. Besides, the former part of the article last quoted from, distinctly indicates the class of "acts" intended to be made of no effect without a Minister's counter signature. After specifying the number and portfolios of Ministers, it says, "They shall be His Majesty's special advisers in the executive affairs of the Kingdom." Then it is the "executive" acts of the King which must be "countersigned by a member of the Cabinet."

But here comes in Article 78, which says that "Whenever by this Constitution any Act is to be done or performed by the King or the Sovereign, it shall, unless otherwise expressed, mean that such Act shall be done and performed by the Sovereign by and with the advice and consent of the Cabinet." This, we think, does not take away the independence of veto, because Article 48, conferring the right, does "otherwise express" in plain terms. If the foregoing reading of the Constitution, which is simply that of a layman, be correct, then that document no more requires the signature of a Minister to the King's veto, to give it effect, than to an Act of the Legislature, to make it law. The way to settle the question, however, is that suggested by a correspondent—refer it to the Supreme Court.

Now, what can we learn from other Constitutional Monarchies, with Responsible Ministers? That every one, without exception, has the right of veto, without reference to the advice or endorsement of Ministers. The Queen of England has wisely abstained from the exercise of the veto power, never in any instance that we remember having put it into force on her own responsibility. Nevertheless, it is her prerogative all the same. Moreover, some of her representatives, Governors of constitutional colonies, have frequently exercised the veto in the Queen's name. We call to mind instances in which it has been used by Sir Dominick Daly, Lord Manners-Sutton, and Sir Charles Darling, refusing to sign Government bills which had passed both houses of parliament.

The talk that the King's independent veto is an infringement of Responsible Ministerial Government, is absurd. The Ministers are not held responsible for the legislative part of Government. This is the work of the Legislature, and with the Legislature rests the responsibility. The Ministers are entrusted with the work of administration, and they are responsible for the executive part of Government. Responsible Government nowhere and never means responsibility for the laws of the land, but everywhere and always means responsibility for the execution of those laws. Therefore it is nonsense to say that because the King may veto a Government measure, we have not Responsible Government.

Let it not be supposed because we hold that the Constitution gives the King the right of independent veto, that herein the Hawaiian Monarch is on the same footing as all other Constitutional Monarchs, and that the independent exercise of the veto does not infringe upon or detract from the responsibility of Ministerial Government, that therefore the King is wise in vetoing any bill of which he may not approve. On the contrary, we hold that it is a power which, if called into operation at all without Ministerial concurrence, should be exercised with great caution and only in extreme cases, such as intimated in Mr. Marques' communication.

CROWN PROSECUTIONS.

Elsewhere we publish a report of the proceedings at the Third Judicial Circuit Court held at Waiman, Hawaii, before Chief Justice Judd. It will be seen that Hon. D. H. Hitchcock, who was employed by the Attorney-General to prosecute for the Crown during the terms was attorney for the defence in several important cases. Whether justice miscarried in consequence it is impossible to say, but certainly the attorney for the defence, having knowledge of the evidence relied upon by the Crown for conviction, was in a very much stronger position than he would otherwise have been. This is an important matter, as it concerns the administration of justice as well as the purity of the Legislature. His Honor the Chief Justice being now in this city might throw some light upon the statement of the Attorney-General, to the effect that His Honor had advised him to make the unlawful arrangement perfected by him for conducting the Crown business of the Third Judicial Circuit.

IT IS NOT SO.

This morning's "Gazette" misrepresents the truth by stating that the BULLETIN has hastened to identify itself with the "Pigtail Party." The BULLETIN has done nothing of the kind. This paper has always been an advocate of Chinese restriction, and stands to-day in the same place. Because the BULLETIN cautions against measures which may tend to cripple the planting interest—the one interest on which the country almost solely depends—it is disingenuous to say that we have hastened to identify ourselves with the "Pigtail Party." Chinamen are needed on the plantations, as field laborers, where they do not come into competition with the man of Western civilization, we see no reason why the planters should be restricted from employing them. But keep them there. If after the expiration of their contract time they decline to reship, compel them to leave the country. Restrict, absolutely, any additional settlement of them in Honolulu or anywhere else on the Islands, in business or any handicraft, where they will come into competition with natives or other foreigners. This is our policy. It may be considered hard, but it cannot be truthfully said to be an identification with the "Pigtail Party."

THE VETO A SAFEGUARD FOR THE PEOPLE.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—The Royal veto seems to have been a surprise to many and to have aroused quite a storm in certain quarters. This is not surprising, for those who have framed the new Constitution do not seem to be perfectly acquainted with all the workings of their own child, much less with the intricacies of constitutional Government generally. It is not astonishing either that some of our political men, who are nearly all new in the field, and some rather young, should lack the experience and calm judgment necessary in politics. Furthermore, it is next to impossible that American men, brought up under and accustomed only to the republican regime, and to the ways of public life in the States, should, even with the sharpest intellect, be able to get at once at home with the workings of a constitutional monarchy; and yet such is the mistake of many a good man here, to expect everything in this or any other monarchy to be conducted on the exact copy of their own republican institutions.

It was therefore timely and good to recall to our legislators that the King, even under the new Constitution, is not a mere automaton, nor expected to be a simple figurehead; and I read with pleasure the sensible article written on this veto question by "Constitution" in last issue of the BULLETIN.

But there is one thing I wish to add to "Constitution's" remarks, and this is, that the right of veto is not only an inherent and unrestricted right, a legislative power belonging to all the monarchs of the world—and more especially respected in the truest constitutional rulers,—but that it constitutes moreover a real and true safeguard for the people against abuses in the legislative body.

To bring the argument home more forcibly and apply it to our own status, when we see the Chamber of Commerce, an irresponsible body (however respectable its members may be privately), taking the liberty of dictating laws to the Legislature; and when we have the surprise of seeing the parliament of the people humbly obeying the orders, how shall we say that the country is really ruled? Why! merely by the Chamber of Commerce, who may gradually assume to dictate all the laws which compose it! And what redress are the people, the masses, to have against such a state of things, if it is not to be found in the King's veto?

With the King having the liberty and power of using freely and judiciously his veto prerogative, if, at any time, and either freely or under outside pressure, any law is passed by the Legislature, wounding the public interest, the people can form into a meeting to ask His Majesty to exercise his veto in their interest; and never in history did a king refuse to accede to a similar demand from his loyal subjects.

But if the King is deprived of the right of veto, or cannot exercise it freely, then both King and people are entirely at the mercy of the Legislature, which might here simply mean at the mercy of the Chamber of Commerce.

Consequently it must be expected that, after mature reflection, our legislators, and more especially those members who are always ready to boast that they belong to the people, that they were sent by and represent the people, and that they want the people to enjoy all their rights—it must be expected, I say, that they will respect and maintain the security given to the people through the veto power in the monarch.

Therefore they will treat the present royal veto—and others which may yet come—with all due consideration, and not as I have heard it expressed, put their foot on it. This stamping process would only mean putting their foot on one of the safeguards of that same public to which they belong; a safeguard which they themselves may, some day when they no longer belong to the Legislature, only be too glad to avail themselves of.

A. MARQUES.

CONSTITUTIONAL VETO.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Perhaps it is well that public attention to the importance of a constitutional veto is aroused in this early stage of the development of our constitutional law. It is not strange that at first impression some persons supposed that the intent of Article 48 of the Constitution is that the King has a personal and arbitrary power or prerogative to decline to approve legislative bills, and to return them to the House with his personal objections for their consideration. This mistake, (as I think it is), may the more readily be made by comparison with the veto power which the United States Constitution gives to the President. But Article 78 of the Constitution effectually disposes of the question by declaring that "Wherever by this Constitution any act is to be done or performed by the King or the Sovereign, it shall unless otherwise expressed, mean that such act shall be done and performed by the Sovereign by and with the advice and consent of the Cabinet." That article contains and condenses within its compact lines the grand results of centuries of struggles for constitutional Government in what I like to term the British Republic, for civil liberty although under monarchical forms, is established on too costly and sure a basis in England, to be endangered. American civil liberty was the natural and healthy outgrowth of English liberty, dear to all English speaking people. The long contests between the Commons and Crown of England resulted in the present parliamentary form of Government, although the old phraseology referring in courteous ways to the Crown is still retained, but with a meaning which no sane person ventures to doubt. Thus, the "King" coins money and regulates currency by law." Article 16 Hawaiian Const.

"The King in case of invasion or rebellion may place the whole Kingdom or any part of it under martial law." Art 37, H. C. "The King has the power to make treaties." And so the stamp Act of 1876 provides that the stamp duties "shall be due and payable to His Majesty." All this language refers not to the King's personal prerogatives, (which under the Constitution are restricted, by Article 30, to receiving and acknowledging public Ministers, etc.) but to his official acts, as advised by his Cabinet Ministers. It is not the King's wishes, reasons or objections which are to be laid before the Legislature. It is an abuse of parliamentary law in England (and I think it is here) to mention the wishes of the Sovereign in debate. Even the presence of the illustrious Prince Consort in Parliament, early in Victoria's Reign, was considered so objectionable that an apology was practically made by him. The constitutional veto and objections to a bill are as I think a Ministerial veto and Ministerial objections. "No Minister," says Hallam in his Constitutional History of England, "can shelter himself behind the throne by pleading obedience to the orders of his Sovereign. He is answerable for the justice, the honesty, the ability of all measures emanating from the Crown, as well as for their legality, and thus the executive administration is or ought to be subordinate in all great matters of policy to the superintendence and virtual control of the two houses of parliament." 3 Hallam: 146.

The President of the United States has no Ministers to represent him in congress, and moreover he is personally liable to suits and impeachment; he is in every way responsible. And yet we can readily recall the derision with which Andrew Johnson's expression of "my policy" was received. The Government of the United States is not monarchical nor has it responsible Ministers, and no comparison is correct between a presidential and a monarchical veto.

We are now passing peacefully and happily, through a grand experiment of constitutional reform. The policy or impolicy of such bills as the abolishing of the office of Governor (and for one I earnestly dislike to see that office abolished) is literally nothing when compared with this vital question of a constitutional veto. That the Crown of Hawaii will be well advised in this matter, and that, on due reflection, there will be a perfect and correct understanding upon it, I do not for one moment doubt.

ALFRED S. HARTWELL.

THE MINISTRY VS. CONSTITUTION.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—When the present Ministry made a Constitution of their own, and imposed it upon a too confiding public, we took it for granted that they would unite— "sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish"—act in accordance with the spirit of that "child of their wisdom." But they have not.

Directly after having a Constitution framed to suit their own peculiar wants, beliefs and prejudices, they deliberately turned to and violated Article 15, and in less than six months from the promulgation thereof, one of the Ministers again deliberately goes and violates both letter and spirit of that instrument. What does all this inconsistency mean? Does it mean anything or nothing? Or would you, Mr. Editor, allow this little falling for human weakness? I would not. The members of the present Cabinet are not weak men. If they were, they would never have been where they are now.

Then how account for their conduct? Your writer, by constant observation, sees it resolve itself into something like this:

The Ministry violated the Constitution they made and swore to uphold, because they knew the majority of members in the Legislature are composed of their supporters. It means that the present Cabinet will "run" the Government to suit themselves, not the too exact and always grumbling public.

A WOMAN dressed as a man was seen parading Nuanu street Saturday evening.

ONE of the Lelewa sailors of steamer Surprise was drowned at Honolulu Gulch last Tuesday, by the boat capsizing and holding him under water. The body was recovered and buried.

THE Hawaiian Lodge No. 21 F. & A. M. will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Work in the First Degree. Members of Lodge Le Progres and sojourning brethren are invited.

ARRIVAL OF JAPANESE STEAMER.

The Japanese S. S. Wakanoura arrived yesterday 12½ days from Yokohama, with 1,453 Japanese, 1,157 men, 290 women, and 6 children. She also brought two Hawaiian youths, James and Isaac Hakuole, who were taken to Japan several years ago by the late John M. Kapena, to be educated. They speak the Japanese language very well. Mr. R. W. Irwin, Hawaiian Consul-General at Tokyo with seven servants also came by the steamer. The Wakanoura entered with quarantine flag flying, though there was no sickness on board, nor deaths during the passage, and anchored in the stream. The Japanese were landed to-day and will shortly be distributed among the islands, the majority leaving by the steamers to-morrow.

TODAY'S LEGISLATURE.

Mr. Castle offered a resolution to the effect that it is the sense of the Legislature that the act of the King in vetoing the two bills, relating to the abolition of Governors and the duties heretofore performed by them, was unconstitutional, and that a Committee of Thirteen, from the Assembly, be appointed to act in conjunction with the Cabinet and inform the King of the action of the House. A motion to adopt this resolution led to a lengthy and hot debate, in which several members have taken part. The discussion is continuing as we go to press.

ADDRESS BY REV. K. MIYAMA.

A large audience assembled at Kawaiahao Church last evening to hear Rev. K. Miyama. Rev. H. H. Parker interpreted. Mr. Miyama speaks good English, and occasionally as he warms up in his delivery, talks with the fiery earnestness of the warm-hearted Methodist preacher. Born in Japan, he has been a resident of California. There he was converted, and devoted himself to Christian labors for the benefit of his countrymen, of whom there are 2,000 now in San Francisco. But most of these are not permanently settled. With the new arrival of Japanese immigrants to these islands, the larger proportion of the Japanese out of Japan will be resident here. Will they prove a benefit or an injury to the Hawaiian? That depends on the influences exerted upon them here. They come here worshippers of many gods, of the earth, sky, fire, parlor, kitchen, etc. The god of wealth is their favorite deity; though no one is free, they think, from the malevolent attacks of the god of misfortune. The priests attached to the temples in Japan are the teachers of the people. One day when the boys and girls were being taught in the usual fashion, a bright boy asked, "How many gods are there?" "Eighty millions," was the reply, and the boy was amazed at the infinitude of these deities. "Where do they live?" was his next question. "In the hearts of men that live correct lives." The boy pondered over the reply for a moment, and then said, "Pity, pity, these poor gods: there must be very few that have any place to live."

While engaged in Christian work in San Francisco, stories came to the Japanese there of the disappointments and sufferings of their countrymen on the Hawaiian sugar plantations. They talked over the matter, and prayed over it, and finally contributed money enough to send Mr. Miyama here to look after the Japanese laborers, and help them in whatever way he could. He came and was surprised to see how pleasantly and comfortably situated the Japanese in Honolulu are. He went to Hilo, Kohala, Wailuku, Lahaina, Koloa, Hanalei, and finds the laborers contented and pleased, seven-tenths of them so well satisfied with their treatment, that they purpose to remain here permanently. But what they need most of all to make them happy and useful and worthy residents, is a knowledge of the Gospel and faith in Jesus. God has brought them here to be influenced favorably towards the religion of Christ. This is the grand opportunity now providentially presented to the Churches of Christ in these islands. Does not every believer in the Lord Jesus feel called upon to do all he can for the salvation of this people, so ready now to look to Christ as their Saviour?

Mr. Miyama expects to return to San Francisco by the Australian steamer due this week. His influence among his countrymen has been very salutary in many ways. The account he has to give of the Japanese in these islands is very gratifying. It is hoped that some one may be found to take up this work, and go from plantation to plantation to talk to the Japanese laborers of Christ the Saviour, and lead many to know, trust, and love Him.

THE RIGHT OF VETO CONSIDERED.
EDITOR BULLETIN:—Mr. S. B. Dole, in a letter to the "Gazette," says that the legal exercise of the veto is a question of strict law and not of policy. This is correct. And it is for the Supreme Court to interpret the Constitution, not for the Legislature. Let Ministers therefore submit the question to the Supreme Court, and present its ruling to the Legislature on Monday next for the information and guidance of that body.

This would settle once and for all the point at issue, whether the Constitution vests in the King a personal right of veto subject to reversal by the Legislature. The Constitution keeps the Executive and Legislative functions of the Sovereign distinct and separate. He cannot perform any executive act without the advice and consent of his responsible advisers. The signature of a Minister is necessary to give validity to any Executive act of the King. Not so with his Legislative functions, which are clearly defined by Article 48 of the Constitution.

EGAN & CO.
Gents' Furnishing Goods
Finest Custom Made Clothing.
Ladies' & Gents' Fine Shoes.

If the Supreme Court rules that the exercise of the veto is an Executive function, then the King was acting outside the Constitution; if it rules that it is a Legislative function, to be exercised by King at his discretion, as a component part of the Legislature, then the King was acting within the Constitution, and the issue is a simple one of policy between the Sovereign and the Legislature to be decided by a two-thirds vote. If a two-thirds majority of all elective members votes to pass the Bill over the veto it becomes a law without Royal assent, and there is an end of the matter; but if the recorded opponents of the veto are less in number than thirty-two, the action of the King is sustained and the Bill cannot be revised this session.

It will be seen therefore that this is not a party or partisan question at all, and cannot affect the stability of the Ministry, because by Article 48 the Cabinet is relieved of all responsibility of the veto, and the question is entirely narrowed to one of policy between the King and the Legislature. It is unwise, the effort, to make a Ministerial issue out of this proceeding. The point was certain to come up sooner or later, and judging from the majorities on the vetoed Bills no more favorable opportunity could well have arisen for a nullification of the veto. But the side issue as to whether the King can veto a Bill except by Ministerial advice is a different matter. It involves a question of strict law, as Mr. Dole remarks, and should be submitted to the Supreme Court as speedily as possible to avoid heated discussion and possible mistakes. If the decision sustains the contention of the Cabinet, then every Bill becomes a Ministerial measure.

NOTICE.

ALL persons are forbidden to trespass on my land or to remove anything therefrom. The land is situated in Halawa, North Kohala, and was purchased by me from Kamahehewa, and no one has any authority to sell said land without my consent. Any one found trespassing on said land will be prosecuted according to law.
01 1m MRS ANE JOAQUIN ZABELIN.

NOTICE.

I HEREBY forbid all persons from entering my premises at Kalihiwai, except on business, after 8 o'clock in the evening. Any one having business with me after that hour, must first call me by name before entering the premises. Any one found trespassing on my premises or about them after that hour, who have no business there, will be dealt with according to law.
A. AKANA, Kalihiwai, Kauai.

NOTICE.

I HAVE been in business at Kalihiwai for many years, and I have had no trouble until now. Too many persons come to my place, and I do not know which of them are bad and which are good. Some come to my house to sleep and steal. Now after 8 o'clock at night I will let no person come in my yard. If some one wants business with me, let him call from without my premises. If he is all right I will let him come in, but if I do not know him I will have him arrested.

The THOMPSON-HOUSTON ELECTRIC CO.

[Sole Owners and Manufacturers of the

Only Perfect Automatic System of Electric Lighting

in the World.

We are prepared to supply Local Companies, Mills, Railroads, etc., with dynamo running from one to sixty lights each, and the largest machine is so perfectly controlled by its Automatic Regulator that it runs safely and economically at full speed with any number of lights below its maximum.

In all Desirable Qualities of Electric Arc Lights the Thompson-Houston

System has no Equal.

We furnish Arc Lights of Various Degrees of Illuminating Capacity, from 1,200 to 100,000 candle power; and Incandescent from 10 to 150 C.P.

Are Light Machine, with Thompson's Spherical Armature.

The Thompson-Houston Dynamo has no equal for Simplicity, Compactness and Durability. The same has been said and admitted to be true of the Thompson-Houston Lamps. In the most exhaustive examination and competition with both European and American exhibitors in London, England, 1886, this Company was given the only Gold Medal for Arc Lighting.

At no city in the United States has it ever competed for city business that it has not been awarded the city contract. This cannot be said of any other Company in the world.

We have established upward of ONE HUNDRED LOCAL COMPANIES DURING THE PAST YEAR, and many more are being organized.

We request parties who contemplate putting in an Electric Light Plant to confer with our agent before adopting any other system.

Correspondence with active, energetic men, capable of interesting capital and organizing local companies, is solicited.

Local Lighting Companies Cannot Afford to Operate any other System.

Owing to the Automatic and Self-Regulating features of the DYNAMO MACHINE (broad and valid Patents for which are owned by this Company) sufficient saving is effected in power, attendance and repairs as compared with any other system, to more than pay interest on the entire cost of plant.

Estimates, Price List, etc., will be furnished on application. Address,

D. B. SMITH,
