FROM HONOLULU TO MONTEREY

There is a Natural Lane Three Hundred Miles Wide.

AT THE BOTTOM OF THE DEEP SEA.

Of the various Surveys Made for a Cable Route That of Lieutenant Clover Seems to be the Most Available and Likely to be Adopted.

While public interest in the proposed cable to connect Honolulu with San Francisco is more than revived in the light of recent events, everything connected with its possible institution will be of interest, and more especially since the upper house of the American Congress has passed an appropriation of half a million dollars toward laying the first installment of it. The next steamer from the Coast will doubtless bring the joyful intelligence that the lower house has also passed the bill.

Should this be so, the work by the very terms of the act must be commenced immediately. Happily there will be no delay caused in making surveys, as that has already been done, and so well that any more work in that direction would simply be wasting time and money. The bed of the Pacific ocean has been surveyed so often that its surface characteristics and general formation are pretty well known. A late San Francisco paper contains the following:

The first survey was made by Lieutenant Brooks in the schooner Fenimore Cooper in 1800. He surveyed from San Francisco to Honolulu, and found no obstacles to prevent the success of the undertaking of a cable.
The second survey was made by Captain (now Admiral) George E.
Belknap in the United States ship Tuscarora in 1874. He first surveyed along the great northern circle route across the Pacific to Japan. On his return he surveyed to San Francisco via the Bonin Islands and Honolulu.
He also found no obstacles to a cable
via the Bonin Islands and Honolulu.
Afterward careful surveys were made between Hawaii and points on the California coast by the United States steamers Ranger, Thetis and Albatross.

According to all accounts the route surveyed by the Albatross under the direction of Lieutenant-Commander Richardson Clover, which terminates at Salinas Landing, in Monterey Bay, is the most available. It is the one which will undoubtedly be selected for the cable which is to come, with perhaps a slight change at this end.

At that point a submarine valley has been discovered, commencing at the mouth of what was formerly the Salinas River, and running westerly at the bottom of the sea for a few miles, furnishing a most remarkable artificial bed for laying a cable. The entire absence of rocks and the presence of deep soft mud, and, throughout this valley seems to have prepared it for this special service of a telegraph cable.

It is shown by the report of Lieutenant Clover that for the entire distance from the California shore to the terminus near Diamond Head the ocean's bed on this route is destitute of rocks of any kind, while the bed of the most part consists of soft ooze and mud, into which a cable will sink several feet and be entirely submerged and protected.

"Our survey," reports Lieutenant Clover, "was prosecuted with all the care and accuracy that the means for modern deep sea research afford, and it is believed that the maps and observations present a good knowledge of the route and establish the fact that the laying of a cable on almost any line between California and the Hawaiian Islands is practicable."

"A lane about 300 miles wide was developed between California and Hawaii, and the results seem to indicate the most favorable route to be a rhumb line between Monterey Bay and Honolulu. This route has been determined upon as the most practicable, since it is the one that will require a minimum length of cable in passing over an even bottom, consisting of soil which is favorable for its protection and preservation, avoiding submarine mountains and volcanic regions where sub-turbulent action on the covering of the cable are likely to exist, and where future convulsions may cause its destruction."

Under this report everything is favorable to the laying of a cable in a direct line from Oahu to this coast, a distance of 2068 miles on an ocean bed specially prepared by nature for the purpose. Its cost, too, would be at least $500,000 less than by constructing a cable by way of Vancouver.

The plan of the survey made by Lieutenant Clover is detailed at length in his report and it is interesting.

"Soundings were taken in general at alternate intervals of ten and two miles, along great circles of the earth between Salinas Landing and Honolulu and between Point Conception and Hilo Bay, and along a rhumb line between Salinas Landing and Honolulu. At the geographic position of each sounding specimens of the bottom soil were obtained and the temperatures of the air and of the surface and the bottom of the ocean were observed. The density of the sea water at numerous stations was also noted."

Regarding the ocean-bed the lieutenant says: "Of all bottoms, those consisting of the various oozes are the best adapted for prolonging the existence of the cable in an unimpaired state, because they appear to be mostly free from the substances that have a devastating influence on the sheathing of the cable, which quickly becomes embedded in them."

Should the route recommended by Lieutenant Clover be adopted, in order to lay the end of the cable in this city it would have to be extended from Salinas Landing northward to the Farallone Islands, and from there to the mainland. It was this matter which was touched upon by Congressman Maguire in the House of Repre-

THE GULF LEADING FROM THE DEEP SEA TO SALINAS.

sentatives in stating that he would like to see the cable laid direct from San Francisco via the Farallones. He spoke of the benefits which would ac-cure to this city by adopting such a plan.

Considering the extent of the submarine valley which Lieutenant Clover refers to, there should certainly be no objection to diverting this end of the cable so that it could come direct to this city.

MR. CLEVELAND'S HOOKUP.

Chicago Board of Public Works' Report for 1893.

Probable Work of Practical Joker—Had Cleveland and Gresham's Cards Enclosed.

The valuable book purporting to be a present from President Cleveland to Liliuokalani might well be taken and put in some museum as one of the curiosities of the country.
The book exists, and the ex-queen is honest in her supposition that the President of the United States remembered her, but the character of the volume gives evidence that Mr. Cleveland is equally honest in denying his connection with this hookup.

Last year a cloth bound report of the Board of Public Works of Chicago for 1893 was sent to the ex-queen, and within the covers she found the cards of President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham, who were supposed to be the donors. The report undoubtedly contained much valuable information on the construction of sewers, laying of water pipe and plenty of useful instruction that could be used to advantage in a progressive monarchy. Of course, none but the recipient can tell of the hopes and aspirations which gathered in her mind as a result of this touching and thoughtful reminder that there were those still loyal to her cause. History fails to relate whether or no Mr. Nowlein used the Chicago sewer plans in laying out his scheme of attack upon the city, yet the supposition is not entirely without foundation. The politicians say its "a good joke on Grover," and the rebels that Chicago sewers are not mapped after rebellious ideas.

KOA ON TRIAL FOR TREASON.

Plea of Not Guilty Ordered Entered For Him.

FOURTEEN OTHERS PLEAD GUILTY.

Peter Hookano and Kanekoa Tried For Treason at the Afternoon Session
But Refuse to Make Any Statement
In Their Own Behalf—Court Today.

It looked like a morning of rapid work for the Military Commission yesterday when seven of the first lot of natives put on trial promptly pleaded guilty to the charge of treason. An unexpected snag was struck, however, when David Koa decided that he ought not to plead guilty.

The men brought before the Court were: John Aea, Henry Rogers, Pahukoa, Kupuna, William Oili, J.
Kama, J. Kukulahiwa, and David Koa.

Koa wanted to make a statement before pleading, which was allowed by the Court. He said he had been at Washington Place as a guard at times; he was not there Thursday night and knew nothing of what he was to do; was there Sunday night and had a revolver handed him which he kept and gave to the man who relieved him. "I knew nothing of an attempt to overthrow the Government." A plea of not guilty was finally entered.

Charles Clark was called as a witness:—Was arrested for complicity in rebellion; Know David Koa, the accused; he had been a guard since the middle of 1894; arms were buried, but I don't think he knew of the guns being there; Koa was on the first watch; the guns were taken up the night of the arrest of Bush, Crick and Nawahi. After the arrest we buried them; Koa could not see the place where the arms were buried from where he stood. Guns were taken up again Thursday night of the Kakaako affair; David Koa was there; I told the men the time has come and I expected every man to do his duty.
If the Government forces came we were to resist. I don't remember talking with Koa; remember Koa made complaint that he was not given a rifle instead of a revolver; I told him I had something else for him to do; I think it was understood by the men what was meant by "the time has come."

Cross examined by Koa:—You were on general duty at Washington Place; previous to Sunday there was no time when Nowlein or I had a talk with you; I don't remember saying when I handed you the arms, "Now is the time to overthrow the Republic."

William Kaee—Acted as secretary of the ex-queen at Washington Place since the overthrow; I know David Koa, he was at Washington Place as a guard on the Thursday of the Kakaako affair; I distributed the arms from the back room where they had been brought, no instructions were given by me; I talked with David Koa on both Thursday and Sunday evenings; Thursday he complained because I gave him a revolver instead of a rifle; I had no direct conversation with him about the overthrow, but it was understood among the men what they were there for; Koa had a rifle and ammunition Sunday night; David and I were talking about the ammunition; he wanted more; we understood there was to be a fight with the Government forces.

Cross-examined by Koa:—I know you talked with Charles Clark and Nowlein, but don't know that you talked of the overthrow; you were in the house talking with them frequently.

William Bill, one of the guards at Washington Place, was called as a witness:—Know David Koa; he was a guard; I

Charlie Clark gave the same orders that night; the intention was to light with the Government; was relieved at midnight and went off to bed; do not know anything about Koa from that time on; do not know anything about any one else.

To David Koa:—You are David Koa; do not know why they didn't give you a gun Thursday night; Charlie Clark has not been prompting me to testify against you.

William Hakalaui:—Have been living at Pauli; was a luna of the first watch at Washington Place; the time of the watch was from six to twelve; was at Washington Place on Thursday night; after the watch each man took his gun to the house; know David Koa; saw him that night; he was in my watch on the Ewa side; there were two at that place; Koa had no rifle that night; do not know if he had any firearm; was at Koa's post that night but did not say much to him; talked about what was likely to happen; knew what the object of the guns was; we expected fighting; Charlie Clark said we were to work when he gave the order; understood the queen was to be restored.

To David Koa:—Did not give you a gun; perhaps Charlie Clark gave you one; Clark has not been talking to me about you; he has said nothing about testifying against you.

Oponui:—Was a day guard at Washington Place; have been there about two years; know Koa; he was on the night watch; was at Washington Place on Thursday; went to bed at 9 o'clock; the guns were unearthened before I retired; saw Koa on guard; saw nothing more after that; saw him again Sunday night; was there when the guns were distributed; it was a new thing to have guns; the order came from Charlie Clark; he gave me a revolver and told me that when he gave the word the work was to be done; suppose Charlie Clark went around and told the other men.

To Kekoa:—You were dressed in dark clothes; am telling what I know; Charlie Clark has been to see us; Clark said he was guilty and advised us to plead guilty; you were dressed the same on Sunday night; have not heard of you and Nowien speaking about overturning the Government.

David Koa attempted to defend himself. Most of his witnesses were asleep at the time he was on guard. Most of the remainder did not remember seeing him.

William Oili:—Did not see you at Washington Place on Thursday night; went to sleep in the evening; do not see Sunday; have seen you there at other times; have never seen you talking with Nowien about overturning the Government.

Pahuka:—You were a guard at Washington Place; did not see you on Thursday night; did not see you Sunday either; did not hear of your being in any conspiracy; was on the second watch.

Kawa:—Was in the first watch; did not see you there; you were a member of the first watch; saw you Sunday night.

The witness was cross-examined, but he knew positively nothing of what took place in regard to the arms.

Pukalehua:—May have seen you at Washington Place on Thursday, but I do not remember seeing you; can say the same of Sunday night.

John Ala:—Do not remember seeing you.

Koa left his case in the hands of the Court.

The remainder of the natives did not wish to say anything. They admitted that they were guilty, and left their cases in the hands of the Court.

A recess was taken, after which nine natives, charged with treason, were brought before the Military Commission. The charges and specifications were read, and all but two pleaded guilty; these were Kanekoa and Peter Hookano.

The first witness for the prosecution was Sam Kanahele.

Sam Kanahele:—Was at Kaalawai on the 6th of January; was cleaning guns and cartridges to fight with the Government for the purpose of restoring the queen; am acquainted with Kanekoa; saw him there just at dusk, just outside Antone Rosa's house; had gun and cartridge; did not see him after that. Know Peter Hookano; saw him there with a gun and cartridge; belt on Sunday afternoon; did not see him after that; he was at Kaalawai when I left.

To Kanekoa: Saw you at Kaalawai; you were walking about outside Antone Rosa's house with gun and cartridges.

To Peter Hookano:—Saw you there; have not been telling the court any lies; saw you late Sunday afternoon; do not know who gave you the gun; do not remember seeing him with a gun; am sure you had a gun.

Bill Ihu:—Was at Kaalawai on Sunday, 6th January, under command of Wilcox; saw Peter Hookano there with Palau and others; they told us that Robert Parker was in the vicinity; do not remember seeing him with a gun; did not see him after that.

To Peter Hookano:—Did not see you with a gun Sunday night; you had just arrived when we started away.

Solomon Kupihua:—Saw Peter Hookano at Kaalawai on Sunday afternoon; did not see him with a gun; do not know Kanekoa.

To Peter Hookano:—Did not see you with a gun.

Kahimani:—Live at Maunahihia and at times at Kaalawai; carried a gun in Wilcox's command; saw Peter Hookano at Kaalawai; saw him first before noon with Palau; late in the afternoon he came again with Palau; did not see him with gun; did not see him after that, do not know Kanekoa.

George Townsend:—Know Peter Hookano by sight; did not see him or Kanekoa at Kaalawai.

Naleono:—Was at Kaalawai Sunday; Peter Hookano and Palau went with me to a place mauka of Telegraph Hill; we were all three given guns; were stopped by Parker near Bertelemann's; Hookano was there during the fight; we used our guns from Monday morning until afternoon.

To Peter Hookano:—When Captain Parker stopped us I did not hear you say anything to Parker; reached Kaalawai sometime between 6 and 7; Palau gave me my gun, but I do not know who gave you yours.

Judge Advocate Robertson asked the natives who pleaded guilty if they had anything to say. All threw themselves upon the mercy of the Court. The two who pleaded guilty preferred to remain quiet.

This closed the work of the day and Court adjourned until 9:30 a. m. today.

THE SIX PRESIDENTS.

RESIGNATION SEEMS A SPECIALTY WITH FRENCH EXECUTIVES.

All Have Been Compelled to Resign Except Sadi-Carnot, Who Was Assassinated. The President's Powerless Position When Assailed—Career of President Faure.

The United States has had 24 presidents, none of whom resigned. France has had six, all of whom resigned except one, who was assassinated. There are several reasons for this difference of procedure. One is that the seven years' term of the French president gives him more time to become unpopular than the four years' term of the president of the United States. The main reason, however, is to be found in the constitution of each country. In France the president is the creature of the legislative branch of the government. He is elected by the senate and chamber, the life of his cabinet depends upon the favor of these bodies, and if he incurs their ill will and desires to appeal to the country for vindication he can only do so with the consent of the senate. If the senate is against him, he must resign. In the United States the president is elected by the people, instead of the legislative body, congress has little control over him, his veto practically allows him to dictate what congress shall do in the way of legislation, and resigning is about the last act he ever contemplates.

The third republic of France dates from Sept. 4, 1870, immediately after the downfall of Napoleon III, at the close of his disastrous war with Germany. Louis Adolphe Thiers was elected president Aug. 31, 1871, served as chief executive but two years, three months and seven days and resigned May 24, 1873. Previous to his election he had been known as a constitutional monarchist and an advocate of the pretensions of the house of Orleans, and when in 1873 he declared himself in favor of the republic as the form of government acceptable to the majority of the people the monarchial parties combined against him, and under pressure of an adverse vote of the assembly he resigned.

On May 24, 1873, Marie Edme Patrice Maurice MacMahon, marshal of France under Napoleon III, was chosen president through the influence of the monarchists and held his post five years, eight months and six days. MacMahon was inclined to Bonapartism and hated radicalism. It was not long before his only supporters were the monarchists and clericals, and his dismissal of Premier Jules Simon and the emnity of the mighty Gambetta hastened his downfall. Gambetta declared in a speech that MacMahon must "quit or submit," and on Jan. 30, 1879, rather than sign a bill forcing into retirement some of his old comrades, the president stepped down.

Francois P. Jules Grevy was elected president Jan. 30, 1879, and was re-elected in 1885 and remained in power seven years, ten months and three days. The discovery that his son-in-law, M. Wilson, and the police had suppressed and falsified judicial evidence, and Grevy's support of this corruption, led to an overwhelming popular demand for his resignation. Grevy, however, clung to the presidency like a leech. Several times he announced his resignation, but the document invariably had a metaphorical string tied to it and was pulled back. Finally the chamber and senate by joint resolution practically summoned Grevy to resign, and he did so Dec. 2, 1887, with great reluctance.

The following day Marie Francois Sadi Carnot was chosen to succeed him. He held the office 6 years, 6 months and 21 days, and until the assassin's hand ended his life June 24, 1894. Three days later Casimir-Perier became president, but a "six months' campaign of defamation and insults against the army, the magistrature and an irresponsible chief of state" compelled him to resign. How long his successor, Francois Felix Faure, will last remains to be seen. Between the monarchists, who desire a monarchy, the socialists, who are against any presidency, and other disaf-ected opponents of the government who hardly know what they do want his path will not be strewn with roses. M. Faure is about 54 years old and a successful business man. He was born in Paris, but has long been a ship owner and merchant in Havre. He distinguished himself by assisting in quelling the commune, and during his 14 years of political life has become a high authority on economic, marine and railway matters. He is of the same political sentiment as Casimir-Perier and will be compelled to battle with the same enemies.

MAJOR BELLE REYNOLDS.

She Cared For the Wounded, and Governor Yates Gave Her a Commission.

"Major Belle Reynolds" has an odd sound, but the title is borne by Dr. Arabella Reynolds of Santa Barbara, Cal., the only woman, it is said, who ever received a commission in the army. Her story is a very interesting one. She was born in Shelburne Falls, Mass., but became a resident of Iowa at the age of 14. Her father was Dr. Macomber, seven members of whose family had been physicians. Miss Macomber taught school in Iowa for a time, and in 1860 married Mr. Reynolds and removed to Peoria, Ill. When the war began, her husband enlisted in the Seventeenth Illinois volunteers, and Mrs. Reynolds accompanied him to the front. She witnessed the battle of Fredericktown, and when the struggle was over ministered to the dead and dying.

This was her first sight of the horrors of war, but it did not daunt her, and she followed the army, witnessing numerous battles and caring for the wounded without discrimination between the blue and the gray. She had an excellent view of the battle of Pittsburg Landing, and her description of the event so impressed Richard Yates, the war governor of Illinois and the first man who recognized the merits of Ulysses S. Grant, that he exclaimed, "This woman is more deserving of a commission than half the men who are thus honored." Some one suggested that it would not be a bad idea to give her one, and in a few moments Mrs. Belle Reynolds was a major. Her commission was bestowed for "meritorious conduct in camp and on the bloody field of Pittsburg Landing."

Exposure and privation for seven days at Shiloh made her an invalid for years, but did not deter her from studying medicine and becoming resident physician at the Home of the Friendless in Chicago. Of late her health has compelled her to live in California.

WRITING DETECTIVE STORIES.

Methods of Rodrigues Ottolengui, Author of "An Artist in Crime."

Rodrigues Ottolengui of New York city is a young American novelist who is achieving wide popularity. His first book, "An Artist in Crime," is a detective story of the higher class. It received the most complimentary reviews from the critics and rapidly ran through several editions. It was well received in RODRIGUES OTTOLENGUI.

England and has been printed in Germany in both German and English. Two other novels, "A Conflict of Evidence" and "The Modern Wizard," followed quickly and have rivaled the success of the first story.

Mr. Robert Barr, the editor of the London Idler, was so pleased with "An Artist in Crime" that he wrote to the author offering flattering terms for a series of short stories to run in his magazine a year or longer. The offer was accepted, and the series will be published simultaneously in this country, so that it is fair to assume that this new name to American fiction will soon be well known on both sides of the Atlantic.

Mr. Ottolengui was born in Charleston, S. C., and is 33 years of age. By occupation he is a dentist. He began early to contribute short stories to the local papers. Going to New York to study his profession, his literary aspirations were laid aside for several years, and indeed before attempting romance again he wrote many essays in connection with his profession.

Thus when Mr. Ottolengui took up fiction he had the advantage of a well trained pen, for writers of science must use very exact terms in expressing their views. On this point he is most particular. He argues that a writer should thoroughly understand the fundamental rudiments of his calling, and he bewails the fact that many writers of the day constantly fall into grievous errors of English. He is therefore excessively particular with his manuscript. His method is to write out his story or novel, using a typewriter, and to complete it without reading it over. Then the whole is entirely rewritten, errors of style, composition and grammar being corrected as far as possible. This second copy is then revised, corrected and properly punctuated, when his secretary makes a clean typewritten copy. Finally Mr. Ottolengui reads proof in "galley" and "plate," and having thus been over his work five times he argues that no one should expect him to read it again after publication.

"I enjoy reading detective stories," says Mr. Ottolengui, "because it sharpens my wits. It is like solving chess problems. The analytical powers of the brain are developed. Therefore a properly constructed detective story, free from prurency, is wholesome reading."

Good health you cannot have without pure blood. If you feel tired, weak, worn-out or run down from hard work, brought on by an impoverished condition of the blood or low state of the system, you should take Hood's Sarsaparilla. The peculiar purifying and vitalizing qualities of this medicine are sent throughout the entire system, expelling disease and giving a quick and healthy action to every organ. It tones the stomach, creates an appetite and purges the liver and kidneys. In fact, it invigorates the nervous system, tones the digestion and imparts new life and energy.

Mrs. E. B. Crouch of Lebanon, Oregon, has been a sufferer from indigestion and other ailments above mentioned. Her interesting letter regarding her success with Hood's Sarsaparilla and also that of others in her neighborhood, as previously I was very nervous and had frequent dizzy spells and headaches. I cannot praise Hood's Sarsaparilla too much for the benefit it has been to me." Mrs. E. B. CROUCH.

HAWAIIAN REPUBLICAN CLUB.

White Men in Good Standing May Become Members.

BRANCH LEAGUES TO BE FORMED.

Report of the Executive Committee—Resolutions Concerning the Action of the Committee Now Investigating the Loyalty of Government Employees.

The Hawaiian Republican Club met last night in the headquarters of the American League. Although quite a good deal of business was attended to, an enormous amount of unnecessary talk was indulged in.

Three amendments to the constitution were made. The first was that the initiation fee be dispensed with; the second, that white men in good standing be allowed to join the league; the third, that those who have omitted to pay the monthly dues of fifty cents, be asked to pay half that amount.

Jim Boyd read the report of the executive committee, the main part of which advocated the sending of letters to different islands, relating to the formation of branch leagues. The report was adopted and the committee continued.

Letters were received from Waimanalo, Wailuku, Kula and other places, in answer to the letters sent out by the committee. Most of the writers wanted more information. One writer reported the formation of a branch league with a membership of eleven as a starter.

J. N. K. Keola, J. N. Kawanui, A. S. Mahaulu, F. K. Archer and James Levi were appointed a committee to consider the resolution handed in by Archer regarding the dismissal of Government employees who had failed to carry a gun in the recent uprising. The committee retired and returned with the following resolution slightly revised from its original form:

Whereas, All the members of the Hawaiian Republican Club have sworn to support the Republic of Hawaii, established on July 4, 1894; and

Whereas, The chief object of this club is to support the Republic of Hawaii, and to resist all attempts to restore the monarchy in accordance with a resolution passed by the club on October 23, 1894, as follows:

"Resolved, That the members of the Hawaiian Republican Club hereby bind themselves to carry out the oath they have taken to support the Government, and to do all in their power to prevent the return of Mrs. Dominis to the throne, or her niece Kalulani from becoming queen, or the restoration of the monarchical form of government in any way, shape or form."

"Resolved, further, That in case of war, the President of the organization shall meet President Dole and render such assistance as may be required by the said commander in chief; and

Whereas, On the 7th of January, 1895, the First Vice President of this club (acting in behalf of the President, who was on the field of action as a member of Company A, N. G. H.) issued a proclamation ordering all members of this club to report immediately to the Government, and the members of this club have responded to the call by presenting themselves before the Attorney-General and Marshal during those stormy days; and

Whereas, The National Guard of Hawaii, in meeting assembled, have passed resolutions to dismiss all Government officials who were not members of any of the military organizations of the Government or Citizens' Guard, or members of the police force, prior to January 6, 1895; and

Whereas, The said resolution is unfair to those Government officials who supported the Government by shouldering guns, and to those who personally reported themselves to the Cabinet, heads of bureaus, and Marshal of the Republic, giving their personal support, and who stood by the Government until ordered to return to their homes by the Marshal; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the unanimous wish of the Hawaiian Republican Club, which has a membership of 112, that they repose the greatest confidence in the ability of the Executive and Advisory Councils to investigate the matter of the said Government officials carefully and impartially, and decide as they deem wise.

POLYGONUM SACHALINENSE.

New Forage Plant to be Introduced by Mr. Marsden.

Valuable Acquisition to Drouth Districts—Quantity of Seed to be Distributed.

Polygonum Sachalinense is the latest addition to Commissioner Marsden's list of valuable forage plants to be introduced in the country. Sacaline is the common, every-day name of this drouth resisting plant. It grows to the height of eight to twelve feet with an abundance of large leaves eight to ten inches in length and half as broad, which are devoured with avidity by stock. Though it has the appearance of a shrub, its stem is herbaceous and its perennial root withstands the greatest drouth. The young shoots are sometimes eaten like asparagus and the young leaves are boiled like spinach. As a forage plant it has been proved that during the summer it will yield four cuttings each three feet high or at the rate of twenty-five tons per acre of green fodder at each cutting.

If seeds are used in planting they should be started in as usual with tomato or cabbage seed, and the plants set out three feet apart each way. Thus planted the foliage should completely cover the ground when the plants are well established. The roots branch on all sides, and pass horizontally from the rhizomes, penetrating the hardest soils and giving origin to new shoots which further increase the size of the clump. The first cutting should be made when the stems are three to four and a half feet in height and should be cut even with the ground. If the second growth is strong enough a second cutting may be had, but when well established three or four annual cuttings can be safely made.

Mr. Marsden has obtained a small quantity of seed which he will distribute among those who desire to assist in the propagation of this plant in the island.

MEETING OF COMPANY B.

Resolutions on the Death of Chas.

L. Carter Passed Unanimously.

The members of Company B held a special meeting last evening and unanimously passed the following resolutions on the death of Charles L. Carter:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty to call upon Charles Lunt Carter to give up his life in discharge of his duty as a member of the Citizens' Guard of the Republic of Hawaii; and

Whereas, By the death of Mr. Carter this country has lost a patriotic and noble citizen, and Company B a former member whom we all admired and respected; and furthermore, one in whom were embodied the characteristics of a modern Christian soldier. Now therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow with submission to the divine will, we cannot but mourn the loss of our late comrade, Mr. Carter, and we, the members of Company B, extend to his widow and orphan children as well as to his sorrowing mother and relations our heartfelt sympathy in their great affliction; and

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the company, and an engrossed copy of same presented to the family of our late comrade.

Dr. Wayson was presented with a handsome gold watch, suitably engraved, on behalf of the whole company in recognition of his services in the field.

THE COLD WAVE.

Intense Suffering in London and Other Parts of England.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The coldness of the weather continues to cause widespread suffering and many deaths. The thermometer is four degrees below freezing point today and the air is raw and penetrating. In eighty inquests held in London the verdict has been that death was accelerated by the cold. The immediate causes of death were given as bronchitis, pleurisy, syncope, and other heart and lung ailments incidental to the weather. The death rate has been especially heavy among the aged. The keen winds have increased the distress in the dwellings of the poorest families. It is impossible to keep these dwellings warm, and although no case of death by freezing has been reported, dozens of cases of pneumonia in the under-heated or fireless rooms are brought to notice daily. The ice in the Thames still impedes navigation. Work in the building trade has been suspended and the contractors have dismissed their men for the present. The Trades Unions protest that 30,000 of their numbers in London are unable to get employment and must remain idle until the weather shall moderate. The majority of these men are carpenters, plasterers and stone-masons. In Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham and several other manufacturing and trading centres the unemployed are making street demonstrations. In all these cities the soup kitchens are crowded from morning to night, yet are unable to satisfy the extraordinary demands upon them. Glasgow alone is feeding more than 40,000 persons.

WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, EDITOR.
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1895.

THE STATE OF MISSOURI has passed a law imposing a State license of $1000 annually on dealers in cigarettes, and empowering cities to levy a similar tax. The result will probably be that young men and boys of Missouri will have to pay more for cigarettes. It is highly commendable for a State to legislate against this pernicious gratifier of the tobacco habit; but, as with liquor, while the taste exists and the means to satisfy it are obtainable at any price, there will be a good cigarette trade in Missouri.

CAPTAIN HENRY KING is responsible for the statement that journalists of New York receive the highest salaries of the country, due partly to the superior standard of proficiency and partly because the cost of living is greater. One editor-in-chief has the same salary as the President of the United States, $50,000 per year, and others receive from $10,000 to $12,000, or more than members of the cabinet. Managing editors are paid from $100 to $150 per week, or a better compensation than that of senators and representatives in Congress. The writer might add that in few places in the United States do newspaper men stand in such constant fear of losing their positions by erratic changes of policy among the powers that be as in New York city. American newspaper men are not unlike the President and Representatives in having to open a "glory" account, to which much of their labor is credited.

AMERICA'S FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

Even the foreign policy, Nicaragua and Hawaii, fade into insignificance before the financial problem that confronts the United States today. Unfortunately the serious nature of the present financial condition of that country is not due to inability to alleviate the strain upon the nation's credit but rather to the disposition of politicians to stand around with their hands in their pockets waiting for something to turn up that can be used for political capital; meanwhile the country's credit may go to destruction. The record of inactivity, to which the overturn of 1894 was largely resultant, is being repeated. The President and Secretary of the Treasury while straining every power delegated to them by the laws of the country to keep national finances in proper trim are calling for assistance from Congress and to all intents and purposes their plea is unheeded. The President and his party are at logger heads, Republicans and Populists are not inclined to take the initiative and the silverites and flat money men perceive the opportunity to block legislation and thereby obtain big "concessions." The result is that nothing is being done and the chances are that a Democratic President will have to call the incoming Republican Congress, which is not anxious for the task, to help him from his dilemma. This latter body is an unknown quantity, but as the new members were elected to "do something" they will doubtless pass some laws for better or worse, satisfying the spirit of anything for a change.

Since 1888 the surplus of the United States treasury has been gradually diminishing, gold has been sent abroad and drawn for deposit in private banks until the Secretary finds his surplus a minus quantity, bond issues necessary to meet the national obligations, and, furthermore, the revenue receipts of the Government falling far short of the expenditures. One scheme after another has been proposed to Congress, and each remains in the limbo of the unacted.

The President points to the danger arising from the constant drain on the treasury by the redemption many times over of about $500,000,000 of currency notes of the Government for which gold may be demanded. Either an increase in the revenue of the country by a uniform advance of tariff rates or the passage of the law embodying President Cleveland's idea would be a God-send in the present crisis, but indications point to "practical politics" being given more importance than the nation's credit.

VOICE OF THE PRESS.

If the news from Hawaii makes Grover sick of his policy, he ought to throw it up.—San Jose Mercury.

Dole was wise in going rapidly heretofore, and he will be just as wise if now he goes slowly.—S. F. Call.

The Queen of the Sandwich Islands, in abdicating the throne, affords material for metaphysical research in the problem of whether a person can get out of where he wasn't.—Washington Star.

The Republic of Hawaii seems to be still alive and kicking, in spite of the absence of an American war ship from Honolulu harbor. She may be a baby Republic, but she has proved herself to be an infant Hercules.—Philadelphia Record.

If, in the event of ex-Queen Liliuokalani's deportation, she should conclude to take up her residence in this country, common politeness would not permit her Great and Good Friend at Washington to do less than welcome her with all the pomp and ceremony due to a royal visitor. The coming of the deposed and dusky monarch would give Mr. Cleveland a roomy opportunity to show that his hospitality is all wool and a yard wide.—New York Tribune.

Liliuokalani's formal abdication of the crown of Hawaii is important rather as a ceremonial than a fact. She was abdicated on the morning that the young Republic was born, and she will stay abdicated for all time to come, in spite of the powers of darkness and the United States Minister at Honolulu. It is to be hoped that the proper punishment of the convicted rebels will close the whole Hawaiian incident, for certainly there is little in the story from the day when Commissioner Blount set foot in Honolulu to the day when arms for the revolutionists bought in San Francisco were landed in Oahu that is creditable or satisfactory to this Government.—Chicago Times.

February 26, 1895.

There has been a dread in the minds of some people here during the past two or three years, that the British Lion would put its paw on the Islands, and force people to be Britons when they wanted to be something else, anything else in fact than citizens of an independent government. If we draw the correct inference from the dispatches received by the Warrimoo, England will act in concert with the United States in so far as any Hawaiian policy is concerned. Metaphorically speaking the Lion and the Eagle will roost on the same tree and from an exalted perch will watch their respective subjects on Hawaii with their usual care. The strangest part of it all appears to be in the fact that England will do in the matter of political prisoners just what the United States does; which, on the score of age at least, looks very much like the tail wagging the dog.

There are windmills and windmills, some of them revolve in the wind and some require the assistance of a steam engine. You can find both kinds in this country but the Aermotor is the one that goes with the wind. You take the sort that is erected on the Insane Asylum grounds and the wind has very little effect upon it; that's the kind that requires the assistance of a steam engine. Look at the one a little further on at Kamehameha school or yet a little further still at Luther Wilcox's poi plantation and you find Aermotors that run in light winds or heavy, and pay the owners a good return for adopting something modern. We sell Aermotors, lots of them, and the people who use them are satisfied; people who use other makes of windmills are not.

Among the good things for sugar planters nothing is better than the sugar land implements we are selling. Take the cane land Cultivators for instance, we have sold a number of these to Hawaiian planters, and have even shipped them to New Zealand, where they are used with the greatest satisfaction. The Fertilizer Distributor, in this same line of implements, is one of the best things a manager can have on a plantation because it saves both labor and material. One man with one of these distributors can accomplish in one day the work of nine men and save money besides in material.

Another equally good machine is the Stubble Digger, also in use on most of the plantations on Hawaii, where it is giving the planters more joy than they have ever before experienced from the use of an agricultural implement.

We have a large stock of these articles and we expect to sell them. Planters are beginning to realize that they cannot afford to do without them.

HEADLESS HACKMAN.

"I loath this horrid prison house!" exclaimed Vina, as she paced her boudoir. She was the beautiful daughter of a stern, but wealthy parent, who kept her in, like a bird in a patent cage. Still she was beloved by Apollinaria, who promised to come that night at twelve and carry her off in a hack. Towards midnight her father retired. "So you have come with Apollinaria to set me free! But why headless? Ah, I perceive. You can hear nothing—see nothing! O, what a jewel of a hackman you are!" rushed the girl. But her emotion caused her to awake and she saw her cruel parent standing before her. Apollinaria was true to the trust, but because she came not he drove away and threw himself into the sea.

NEW YORK, April 3, 1889.

Mr. A. S. HINDS, Dear Sir:—I have used your Honey and Almond Cream for some time and find it invaluable for a toilet article. Kindly send me by express, C. O. D., another dozen of the large bottles, that I may take some to Europe with me.
Yours truly,
E. FRUSCH MADI.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Dec., 4, 1890.

Mr. A. S. HINDS:—I have discovered a virtue in your "Honey and Almond Cream," not mentioned in the book attached to the case. My four year old boy was stung by a wasp on the top of his finger. While waiting for some one to bring Pond's Extract, I put the finger in the neck of a bottle of "Cream." The pain stopped instantly, and with big tears on his cheeks the little fellow said, "I want to kiss the man who gave me that bottle." I have since used it for bites of mosquitoes and other insects with equal success. I would be glad for others to have the benefits of my experience.
Yours, etc.,

DAINTY MATERIALS FOR SUMMER
WEAR NOW BEING SELECTED.

Natural Colored Pongee Will Again Be Popular—The New Chambrays, Percales, Dimities, Chintzes and Lawns Described, Handsome Evening Gowns.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.]

The day of natural colored pongee has come again, and there is a quantity of it to be seen everywhere. The most of it is plain, and we all know what a useful and durable silk it is and how admirably it takes all kinds of trimming. This season it is shown almost covered with pierced embroidery, the old fashioned patterns done in white floss. The designs are all wrought out by the eyelet holes, and that gives the whole the appearance of lightness which makes this pongee such a keen delight among the possibilities of summer gowns. We all know that pongee is of a soft natural woody drab, or perhaps gray would more accurately define the color, and when it is worked in the pretty pierced patterns and some bright color is shown beneath it well, the effect is too lovely for comparison.

Following in the wake of the embroidered pongees, we find a lot of exquisite chambrays, pink, blue, lilac and maize, and of delicate Scotch ginghams also embroidered in the pierced and openwork patterns. These will be made up with perfectly plain skirts, gathered full at the waist, and they will not be lined. The white of the undergarment will show through, giving a lightness and cool effect that will please the most exacting. There will be yoked and bebe waists and lots of ribbon to match the color. Some of the chambrays have the bottoms of the skirts only embroidered, and this is done in deep vandyke points to simulate lace. This is another style of embroidery and is raised, not cut out. Then there are lovely swisses where there is an all over pattern of intricate wheels with a deep fancy design at the bottom. Swiss muslin is always pretty, and it looks so cool and crisp and clean. I think nothing makes such dainty summer gowns for young girls as swiss.

Among the dainty material for summer wear is a large variety of percales, dimities, both plain and printed; chintzes and simple lawns, linen lawns, fayal lawns and cotton challies. These last are dead fine and soft, not the coarse thread of last season, and the patterns are exquisitely artistic as well as the colorings. The prices for these summer goods, except the embroidered ones, are marvelously low.

Silk muslin and chiffon are now offered in all the new colors, some of them quite dark and even black. Magenta is the groundwork of many of these fragile tissues. Blue of a certain pale shade is often combined with the darkest blue for the ruffles, ties or draperies to the waists, which have apparently doubled their popularity. Some of the waists are of taffeta or other silk, with the inner sleeves of silk and the outer ones of the chiffon and with enormous full ties fastened in front. These ties are generally made of 1 1/2 yards of chiffon or silk muslin, gathered through the middle and drawn up so that the whole falls in one loose but graceful bunch. The silk muslin has a woven border about an inch wide, and this, as the goods fall in natural folds, gives a very rich effect.

The crepe lisse and fine mull ties are made long with narrow hemmed scallops, on the edge of which is overhauled a row of Valenciennes generally about an inch wide. This is but slightly full. The length of these ties is 1 1/2 yards long by one-quarter wide, with a full of mull six inches deep full on the ends. The whole is then tied up into a close double bow. Some have the ends longer. These are very pretty. It is not difficult for a lady to make her own ties, and they cost much less. I have seen a number of them made of dotted and spangled net of different colors, some of them having metallic fringe.

I forgot to mention the pointed jaconets—the first ever made. The colors are fast and the patterns exquisite. The whole appearance is that of soft India silk, and they are better than silk because washable and more durable. The printed lawns and organdies show something new and more beautiful every week. There is also a new satin called satin faconne. It is not as thick as satin, but is quite as rich and more glossy. There is a sort of basket weave in cotton which gives a check just the size of one thread. It is very quiet and elegant, and I believe will be popular for morning wear. The Scotch zephyrs are coming in slowly, but few being shown at once, and these of such different weaves and patterns that it is not possible to say much about them, only that they are quite as delicate and attractive as they were last season.

There is a new feathery looking cotton called plumetis, very pretty, but odd; drap d'Alisee, another curious stuff as near like bolting cloth as one can imagine; a cotton broadie called cotton plisse, and cotton broadie, the figure being outlined or picked out with metal. All of these are wash fabrics and are bought at this season to be made up at home between now and the time for going to the country. The majority of ladies, even in the wealthiest families, do not give out their wash dresses to be made, and with the assistance of their maids or a seamstress employed by the day make them at home. Very few first class modistes will make cotton dresses. There is no chance to make extra money for findings and trimmings. So these gowns occupy the time and attention of the ladies during the spare moments until the time comes to wear them. When each gown is finished, it should be, and generally is, wrapped in soft paper and packed away in large pasteboard boxes until summer. In the meantime the ladies go on buying their spring woolen gowns and their new ball dresses.

The two handsomest evening gowns that I have seen within a month, except those intended for young girls, were two that were designed abroad for two young married ladies—sisters. One had a skirt of twilled silk in two tones, one maize and the other russet green. It was very full around the bottom. The waist was of magenta velvet drawn up in front to simulate a draped figure. There was a lace vest with a white velvet girdle, pointed and embroidered with gold. There was a flat gold embroidered white velvet collar, and across the bust a band of gold galloon with gilt beads, ended on each side by a triple bow of magenta velvet. Long loops of the same fell to the very bottom of the skirt in front. The sleeves were left open to show lace under sleeves which ended at the elbow.

The other gown was of apple green velvet with a long full train. The front of the skirt was of platted crepe de chine, embroidered in gold along the bottom. The waist was altogether of puffed china crepe, and so were the sleeves, with an effective arrangement of lace and gilt ornaments in front. On the left shoulder there was a bunch of gorgeous tulips. The back of the waist was pointed and trimmed with the lace, which did not lap down, but was laid up to the top of the shoulder.

The sleeves, I think, as a general thing, are not quite as large as they have been, but still one does find occasionally one larger than before. Yet I think the tendency is rather toward smaller sleeves. I noted one elegant new white suit, and those sleeves were certainly much smaller than usual. The form was a draped gigot with a wrinkled forearm. Another style was a sleeve to a light diagonal chevron. There was a short forearm piece made of brown plush, scarcely more than a cuff. This was bordered with a narrow band of tulle. The upper part of the sleeve was gathered bishop fashion, top and bottom. This was pretty large, but not quite as full as heretofore. A sleeve to a ball gown of white and cherry striped gauze was gathered in one puff to the elbow. The upper part was shirred up slightly, just enough to break the straight lines. This, though still quite large enough to call for masculine condemnation, is much smaller than I have seen. We could not go from these enormities to the sleeve of other days without a certain amount of gradation, but in the language of the poet we will get there just the same—some day.

There was a very handsome imported model gown intended for home wear. It was of a rich, warm, brown cloth and had a not overfull skirt made walking length. There were two bands of black velvet upon the seams at the front of the skirt. There was a basque waist, with a full plaited polka whose two front ends hung in deep points ending in gilt ornaments. At the waist was a girdle of velvet and a pelerine cape over the shoulders, and over this was a folded bretelle of brown surah. This was laid in four flat bias folds. The sleeves were almost scanty in comparison with many others. Side by side with that was a blouse waist made of ruby plush. The sleeves were large and draped up in a manner to get the most material in them possible. On the left breast was a gilt and steel butterfly, quite a remarkable ornament altogether. This blouse was worn over a perforated skirt of pongee, with a ruby silk one beneath through which the rich color showed with pleasing effect.

Among the handsomest new goods offered for spring costumes I find several new varieties of illuminated suitings, nearly all of them in the loveliest colors possible to combine. There is a new serge in black and navy blue with a crape weave. In black there is a black imperial surah serge and several new weaves in bright swivel and granite cloths. The silk warp hennettes are also shown both plain and woven in tiny figures.

The light chevrons make the prettiest and most satisfactory gowns for spring, and they can be worn far into the summer. They are grays, drabs and fawns, with admixtures of garnet, red, blue, green, black and yellow, sometimes only one and sometimes all these other colors, but so cleverly the mingling of threads accomplished that one sees but the surface color. They do not come under the head of heater mixture, which is quite another thing and not less pleasing.

In my visits to the different places during the past week I have noticed that cluny and torcon laces are without doubt the favorites for nearly all kinds of trimming on such garments as are to be washed. There is a new lacelike muslin bordering called Russian lace, which resembles the real honiton point closely. This will be suitable for the muslin dresses. Next to that will be a new imitation of brussels point. I think the lighter laces will be generally preferred this season, though some point de venise in the form of yokes, collars and vandyke points will be seen as trimmings. The imitation brussels point is a very clever imitation, requiring almost an expert to tell the difference. For ordinary dressmaking purposes I do not see why the machine made lace is not as valuable as the handmade. Lace is made for the adornment of a garment and not of the person, like jewels, but real lace is a satisfaction worth having, after all.

TO RECONSTRUCT KAWAIAHAO.

Plans of Architect High Accepted
By the Committee.

A COMPLETE CHANGE TO BE MADE.

The Whole Interior of the Church to Be Modernized—Gallery to be Raised and Columns to be Extended to the Ceiling—General Comfort the Aim.

The committee appointed last year for the consideration of matters relating to the refitting of Kawaiahao church met on Monday morning and made a complete tour of the building, together with Mr.
Peter High of the Enterprise Mill.

Mr. High presented to the committee the plans and specifications which he had carefully prepared.
Point by point his idea of the reconstruction of Kawaiahao church was considered and weighed well.
At the end of the meeting it was found that the committee was satisfied with the whole plan as presented.

The committee hopes to be able to have operations begun during the latter part of next month. The work is to be a complete reconstruction of the woodwork from floor to roof. The old floor of the church is completely worn out and will be replaced by an entirely new one. The new galleries will be a foot higher than the old ones, and the railing design will run around the whole church.

The columns that will be used to support the galleries will, according to the new plan, be extended to the roof, giving this latter part the most substantial kind of support.
The present gallery railing is concave toward the congregation, thus wasting a lot of room that could be made useful by the choir. The new idea is to make the railing convex towards the congregation.

The ceiling of the church at present is perfectly flat. The new plan will allow the ceiling to follow the columns that come from the galleries, thus making a kind of canopy over the center of the church, and at the same time relieving the eye from the monotony of an entirely flat ceiling.

The top of the organ at the present time runs up into the ceiling and disappears, thus giving the whole instrument a rather unfinished appearance. According to the new plan, the canopy spoken of will extend to just where the top of the organ will come, thereby exposing the whole organ to view.

There will be two rooms—one on either side of the organ—where the members of the choir can go upon entrance into the building. According to the old plan, it was necessary for those who wished to enter the choir gallery to ascend a side flight of steps outside, enter the building and then descend about three feet into the choir gallery. According to the new plan, it is proposed to make the entrance to the church straight instead of from the side, as before. There will be an entrance to the choir gallery on either side of the organ, and on the same level with the top of the steps.

The improvements in this old historical church will be made with the special intention of introducing more light, more air, more room and more comfort.

There is not a single person in this city who would not help the old church along should he be called upon to do so. It has stood the test of years, and has been associated with the history of the country from its very start upon the road of civilization.

Oregon pine and redwood will be used in the interior finish, just as in Central Union Church.

Missionary Gleaners Meet.

The Missionary Gleaners met in the parlors of Central Union church last Monday, and spent a very pleasant afternoon in work and in consideration of subjects of interest to the society.

Mrs. Vieira gave a most interesting talk on the Portuguese mission.
This was followed by a report from Miss Nellie Judd on Portuguese kindergarten work. Mr. Frank Damon brought in with him a Chinese girl who has been kept at Kawaiahao seminary by the Missionary Gleaners. The name Ruth was given to her just after she was taken from the slums of the city.

Most of the afternoon was spent in sewing for the Japanese kindergarten and a Norwegian family of ten members whom the Gleaners have been supporting for some time.

During the afternoon a talk was given by Mrs. Hyde upon the president of the Red Cross society in China.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

This is Ash Wednesday.
H. A. Parmelee has gone to Kauai.

W. F. Reynolds was not released last night.

The baseball season is rapidly approaching.

W. N. Armstrong has gone to Hawaii for a trip.

Hon. W. H. Rice has returned to his home at Lihue.

Thirty-six Chinese gamblers were pulled in last night.

The Circuit Court opens at 10 o'clock this morning.

There was no sign of the Kinau at 1:30 this morning.

George Hons left on the Claudine for his Wailuku home.

Fred Harrison will not get away until the latter part of the week.

Royalist Row presents quite a deserted appearance about this time.

It is not expected the Military Commission will last many days more.

This must be the same cold wave that recently struck the Southern States.

A heavy fireball is being built in the rear of the Castle & Cooke premises.

A short service will be held at 12:05 p. m. today, at St. Andrew's cathedral.

The interior of the Spreckels' bank building is being re-kalomed and decorated.

Henry Waterhouse publishes a notice to creditors of the estate of Henry Dimond, deceased.

The mounted patrol had their pictures taken in squads in front of the barracks yesterday afternoon.

Four passengers left on the Hall for the volcano, viz.: Mrs. Winn and Messrs. Seleno, Freeman and Ross.

Edward Stiles and Henry Smith have been elected churchwardens of St. Andrew's Cathedral congregation.

A lawn party will be given in the near future by the Missionary Gleamers, at the residence of W. R. Castle.

E. R. Hendry of the Hawaiian Hardware Company is off again on another business trip. This time to Maui.

The executors of the estate of John Thomas Waterhouse, deceased, publish the usual notice to creditors in this issue.

The Y. W. C. T. U. will meet tomorrow evening for the purpose of deciding upon the form of an entertainment to be given in the near future.

The German and Danish Consuls paid an official visit to the Philadelphia yesterday morning and were accorded the customary salute of seven guns.

At the regular weekly meeting tonight of members of Central Union Church, prayers will be offered for the success of the new pastor who is soon to be installed.

John Calway, American; Frank de Souza, Portuguese; Peter Mannel, Hawaiian, and Joseph B. Cook, Hawaiian, are among the latest to take the oath to support the constitution.

Henry Waterhouse has gone into the collection, real estate and insurance business. He advertises houses for rent at the seaside, Pearl Harbor and in this city. His office is on Queen street.

James F. Morgan is making extensive repairs to his auction room on Queen street. A new ceiling is being put in, and the whole room is to be refurbished and painted. When the repairs are completed Harry Armitage, Mr. Morgan's popular assistant, will be as happy as a bug in a rug.

The steamer Waimanalo has been purchased by Captain John Calway, who is now her commander. The owner is a well-known, honest and capable seafaring man, and it will be his effort to present to shippers of freight to ports on Oahu all of the best opportunities. After today the steamer will run on schedule time and, barring the elements, freight will be carefully and quickly handled.

Lieutenant C. B. Wood, M.D.

At a meeting of the corporals and sergeants of the Masonic Temple, Telephone Office and Custom House squads of the Citizens' Guard, held last evening, Dr. C. B. Wood was unanimously elected lieutenant of the district embraced in their detail. A resolution was also passed to the effect that it was the sense of the meeting that F. B. McSucker should be elected commander of the organization.

NEARING THE END.

Work of the Military Commission Nearly Completed.

Unless affairs take an unexpected turn the sessions of the Military Commission will close this week. There are comparatively few more cases to be brought, and among the greater part the plea of guilty will probably be made, and the work finished up with little delay. Those who remain in prison will probably go before a jury for trial. A. M. Hewett and James Aylett will be put on trial today for misprision of treason. Hewett is said to have approached the lookout at Diamond Head to prevent the steamer Waimanalo being reported. Following these men those who have been used as witnesses will be put on trial.

SAM NOWLEIN GONE.

He Left for Maui on the Steamer W. G. Hall.

Since his release from jail, Mr. Samuel Nowlein has been particularly conspicuous in a fine suit of clothes, button-hole bouquet, and a markedly jaunty sort of bearing. Although generally avoided by everyone, he seemed not able to realize that people did not view him with the same eyes as before the revolution and the ignominious figure he cut in it since. It is evident, however, that he "took a tumble to himself" on Monday night, for he sought the Marshal and obtained permission to sleep in the Station House that night. Yesterday morning he boarded the W. G. Hall bright and early, bound for Lahaina, Maui, where he has business interests. He also owns a half-interest in the saloon at Hilo. There are those in Honolulu who hope Mr. Nowlein will find it to his interest not to leave Maui.

minutes, 25 seconds W., the derelict was sighted. The Umatilla was slowed up and a boat lowered. A party of sailors and officers were sent off to the wreck, but they failed to make her name out. All they could distinguish on the stern boards was the port of register "San Francisco." The derelict was that of a topmast schooner. She was lying on her port side, the hull was painted green. Under the water could be seen the set of the foresail, and the head gear was intact. The mainsail was gone. All the North bound schooners from this port have arrived safely, so the vessel must have been North bound from some port South of here. A great deal of interest is taken in shipping circles in the derelict, as probably her crew perished.

Naval Station at Key West.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Ben Mc-

London, one of the editors of the Key West Daily Herald, is now in this city to secure the co-operation of influential persons in the scheme of building a dry dock and establishing a naval station at Key West. Admiral Porter said shortly before his death: "The United States has done very little toward making this place the great naval depot it ought to be. Right at the turn of the gulf, where an enemy could scarcely pass without being sighted, and where his presence would certainly be known by means of signal stations, Key West enjoys a superiority over every harbor on the coast of Florida, or within the gulf, and also over all the harbors between Cape Florida and Cape Hatteras. Even Port Royal has not the strategic qualities of Key West, and would not give us the advantage over foreign squadrons such as would be given us by the possession of an armed position like Key West?" Editor

McLendon indorses this belief and is trying to get the matter before Congress.
