DUBLIN CHEERS ROYAL PARTY

[Associated Press Special Cable.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 21.—The entrance of King Edward and Queen Alexandra was marked by a most enthusiastic reception at Dublin today. If there was any lurking ill will, as evidenced by the refusal of the Municipal Corporation a few days ago to present an address of welcome, it did not show itself among crowds that gathered along the streets traversed by the Royal party.

Irish Land Bill Passed

[Associated Press Special Cable.]

LONDON, England, July 21.—The Irish Land Bill passed the third reading in Parliament today. The House was the scene of jubilant enthusiasm as the vote neared the end, assuring the passage of an Act which, it is firmly believed, will settle the Irish land question and restore peace among the Irish subjects of the King.

MACONACHIE IS STRONG

Those who have had occasion to pass the Young building previous to 7 o'clock in the morning and during the noon hour, have undoubtedly noticed a tall, heavy set, unassuming man standing near the entrance awaiting the sounding of the whistles as the signal to get to work. There is nothing particularly interesting about this but inquiries of people of the hotel go to show that this same man is an interesting character. He is none other than Robert Maconachie, who has charge of the marble work in the hotel. He is over sixty years of age. He attends to his business at all times and never finds occasion to bother anyone. However, from what has been learned, it would not do for anyone to bother him.

One day not long ago, the elevator in the Young building was out of order and it was very necessary that a number of slabs of marble should be carried to the third floor. Maconachie mentioned the fact to some of the men working under him but they all showed a hesitancy about carrying even one slab apiece to the floor indicated.
It was at this point that Maconachie lost his patience and passing a remark on the laziness of the men, he quietly picked up three slabs and walked up the steps to the third floor. The men under him then took one slab apiece and laboriously mounted to the third floor.

TROUNGED HIM

Assistant United States District Attorney Dunne completed the examination of Second Mate Neilson of the ship Hawaiian Isles yesterday afternoon. Neilson wanted the first officer of the vessel arrested for assault and bleeding countenance to tell his troubles. Mr. Dunne, investigating the facts of the case, arrived at the conclusion that the preponderance of evidence was against the injured mariner and that the matter did not warrant the detention of witnesses and the great expense that would have to be borne by the Government.
The first officer practically admits giving Neilson a "trouncing," but under circumstances in which complainant appears as anything but an innocent party.

Y. M. I. INSTALLATION.

There will be open installation of officers of Damien Council No. 563, Y. M. I., at San Antonio hall, tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. The officers will be installed by F. J. Kierce, Supreme President of the Young Men's Institute, who is due to arrive by the Sonoma tomorrow. The celebration is to be dispensed with owing to the death of His Holiness, the Pope. Admission will be by card.

STEAMER VENTURA RECORD BREAKER

Run From San Francisco To Auckland Never Equalled.

BEATS SIERRA'S TIME ABOUT ELEVEN HOURS

PLEASANT WEATHER ON RETURN VOYAGE—STEAMER BRINGS GREIGS FROM FANNING ISLAND.

The steamship Ventura arrived from the Colonies via Auckland, Pago Pago and Fanning Island at 8:20 o'clock this morning. She was docked at the Hackfeld wharf. The Ventura left Sydney July 6 at 2:13 p. m.; Auckland, July 10 at 6:24 p. m.; Pago Pago, July 14, at 1:58 p. m., and Fanning Island at 12:40. She made the following corrected time:
From Sydney.....15days 13hrs 47m
From Auckland.....11days 13hrs 6m
From Fanning.....2days 18hrs 42m
Steaming Time:
From Sydney.....14days 15hrs 19m
From Auckland.....11days 4hrs 35m
Fine weather was experienced throughout the voyage.
Among the passengers for this port are Geo. B. Greig and Jas. Greig, who boarded the steamer at Fanning Island. They are sons of "King Greig," who is well known here.
Among the through passengers is Lieutenant Commander Henry Minnett, of the gunboat Wheeling, which vessel is at present stationed at Pago Pago.
Miss C. E. Rawson is a sister of Sir Harry Rawson, the Premier of Australia.
Baron von Ritter and T. Wandress are German Government officials.
Dr. Wholey is the principal medical officer of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Co., Ltd., of London.
The Ventura has two cabins, one second cabin and no steerage passengers for Honolulu. She has 39 cabin, 64 second cabin, and 27 steerage passengers in transit. She has three tons of freight for this port and 32 tons for San Francisco.
The Ventura on her last trip to the Colonies distinguished herself by breaking all previous records for the run from San Francisco to Auckland. She left San Francisco June 4, at 11:05 p. m., being 11 hours late. She arrived at Auckland June 21 at 11:32 p. m. The mails which left London May 22 were delivered in Auckland, first delivery, on the morning of June 22. The actual steaming time from San Francisco to Auckland was 13 days, 4 hours and 39 minutes. The Ventura arrived at Sydney June 26 at 3:35 a. m. The actual steaming time from San Francisco to Sydney was 18 days, 13 hours and 10 minutes.
The Ventura on her run from San Francisco to Auckland beat all previous records by a large margin. The best time for this trip was heretofore held by the S. S. Sierra. The Ventura beat the Sierra's record by 11 hours. As the Sierra is generally supposed to be a much faster boat than the Ventura, the officers of the latter vessel are naturally much elated over their successful performance.

LANDO PASSES EXAMS

Delegate Jonah Kalaniana'ole received a cablegram from the Navy Department at Washington this afternoon, announcing the fact that Ellis Lando, the young man who has been working to get into Annapolis, had passed his examinations.
It was some weeks ago that these examinations were taken by young Lando in the High School building. Three days were consumed in the work on the different branches and then the young man took his physical examination which proved satisfactory in every respect.
Nothing now remains to be done. Lando is as good as a student in the Naval Academy, and he will leave for Annapolis by the next steamer to the Coast.

TEST TAX APPEAL

CASE BY THE

PACIFIC HARDWARE

For the purpose of finally determining the meaning of the term "full cash value" as being the taxable value of merchandise, the Pacific Hardware Company, Ltd., backed by the Merchants' Association, this morning filed its appeal with Tax Assessor Pratt from his assessment on the item of merchandise. The merchandise item is the only point appealed on. The matter will go to the Supreme Court for determination.
The question involved is whether merchandise should be taxed according to inventory values or whether an arbitrary percentage should be deducted. The tax department assesses according to inventory.
Mr. Pratt said this morning that a decision in one case could not regulate the definition of full cash value in other cases where the merchandise was of a different nature. This was only a test case but in his opinion its determination could apply to no other. He said that it should be understood that the invoice value of merchandise was not considered for the purpose of taxation; only the inventory value was used. The merchant in making his inventory would perhaps allow for depreciation from invoice or cost prices; but he wanted to still reduce the figures for purposes of taxation.
In the case of the Pacific Hardware Company the difference in the inventory of merchandise and the firm's tax returns was about fifteen percent.
The matter of the appeals of Catton, Neill & Co. and Wilder's Steamship Co., considered as test cases by the Merchants' Association, was dropped to give place to the appeal of the Pacific Hardware Co., the latter being considered a more convenient case for purposes of a test of the understanding of taxable values.

WOULD FORECLOSE.

Bishop & Co. file petition for foreclosure of mortgage against Marian R. Austin, praying that Marian R. Austin and Charles R. Hemenway, trustee of the estate of Herbert C. Austin, a bankrupt, be cited to appear and answer. Eleven thousand dollars are alleged to be owing and due, with interest and costs of sale and foreclosure, together with counsel's fee.
The land mortgaged is situated in Pohnahawai, Hilo, Hawaii, and consists of one and two-tenths acres.

Judge De Bolt this morning granted the motion of defendant to dismiss in the case of A. A. de Mattos against Jose G. Serrao. The matter is dismissed "without prejudice" for want of jurisdiction.

Judge De Bolt orders letters of administration in the estate of Edward H. Newman to issue to W. W. Hall under bond of $3,000.

MUST BE AN END TO LITIGATION

Decision On Plea In Bar Dismissing Bill.

MARY J. MONTANO AGAINST W. R. CASTLE

COMPLICATED EQUITY MATTER BROUGHT BY LAURENCE H. DEE—NOTES AND SECURITIES.

Judge De Bolt this morning filed a decision on plea in bar in the bill for an accounting matter of Mary J. Montano against W. R. Castle, dismissing the bill. J. A. Magoon for plaintiff, W. R. Castle and W. L. Whitney for defendants.

"This is a bill in equity for an accounting and, as appears from the record herein this is the second time these parties have been before the courts upon the same subject and for the same purpose."

"Counsel for plaintiff contends that the sufficiency of the chattel mortgage, accepted by plaintiff as security for the $6000, was not decided in the former adjudication."

"Defendant contends otherwise. Hence the plea in bar."

"Plaintiff in her first bill alleges that the $6000 was 'invested in a chattel mortgage on certain live stock, the number of said live stock unnamed,' and 'that the said investment is unsafe and unwise and she totally repudiates the same.' In the bill under consideration she alleges that the mortgage is not a good and sufficient evidence of the property sought to be conveyed by way of security and does not properly describe said property."

"Upon an examination of the entire record I do not see how it is possible to avoid the conclusion that this point, as to the sufficiency of the mortgage, was considered and actually disposed of in the former adjudication. However, it is immaterial whether it was actually determined or not, because to say the least, it certainly was incident to and essentially connected with the subject matter of the suit and could have been litigated."

"It is the policy of the law that there shall be an end to litigation and that when a fully and fairly heard and judicially determined upon its merits it should not be reopened or subsequently considered as between the same parties."

"The maxim that there must be an end to litigation was dictated by wisdom and is sanctified by age."

"The doctrine of estoppel by a former judgment between the same parties is one of the most beneficial principles of our jurisprudence and has been less affected by legislation than almost any other."

"The plaintiff having had her day in court and the cause having been fully and fairly presented, considered and determined upon its merits, and the question as to the sufficiency of the chattel mortgage, if not expressly and actually determined in the former adjudication."

POPE RESTS IN ROBES OF STATE

[Associated Press Special Cable.]

ROME, Italy, July 21.—The official announcement of the death of Pope Leo XIII was made today and preparations made for the funeral. The body was embalmed and clothed in the Pontifical robes in the death chamber. This ceremony being complete the body was borne to the chapel of the Holy Sacrament, where it will lie in state for a period of three days. Preparations are going forward for the conclave of Cardinals, which will probably begin its sessions August 1st.

Dead and Dying Cover The Field of Battle

[Associated Press Special Cable.]

SOLEDAD, Venezuela, July 21.—Fierce fighting is reported from Culad Bolivar with the Government forces making heavy inroads on the entrenchments of the rebels. The conflict has been carried on incessantly for the past twenty-four hours, making it impossible to estimate the losses of either side. The scene of the battle is strewn with uncare-for dead and dying. Many buildings in the city have been wrecked by the bombardment. Soledad was shelled today and heavy losses are reported.

Our Duchess' Husband

[Associated Press Special Cable.]

LONDON, England, July 21.—The Duke of Marlborough was today appointed to the position of Under Secretary of State for the Colonies in place of the Earl of Onslow. The elevation of the Duke of Marlborough has especial interest to Americans in consequence of the Duchess of Marlborough being an American. She was formerly Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York.

Battle With Turks

[Associated Press Special Cable.]

SALONICA, July 21.—Severe fighting between the Turks and the revolutionists is reported from Darian.

YACHT CLUB BUOYS

The Yacht Club people are up in arms against the Japanese fishermen who are in the habit of dropping their lines at various points in the entrance to Pearl Harbor and in the harbor itself. Not long ago, the yachtsmen placed buoys at various dangerous points near the entrance to the harbor as a protection to the members of the club. When a search was made for these buoys yesterday afternoon, they could not be found and it was learned that Japanese fishermen had been in the habit of tying their sampans to these buoys at night time. As they were not placed at the various points as mooring posts, they were pulled out of position, and have evidently floated away. The Yacht Club may put out new buoys, but if they do, someone will keep a watch for a while and woe betide the Japanese fisherman who attempts to tie up to any of them.

FEARLESS NEW PROPELLER.

The tug Fearless, which did such good work getting the Clavering off the reef yesterday, is back at her naval dock again having her general overhauling completed. She has had new tubes put in her boilers and condensers and many other alterations. The principal feature is a new propeller which is expected to be a good deal more powerful than the old one.

BEANS AND EXTRACT

Allan Herbert is most enthusiastic over the sending to the St. Louis Exposition of a fine agricultural exhibit. He realizes the fact that a good showing will mean incalculable good to the Territory. Mr. Herbert has secured the use of one of the largest rooms on and yet is a perfect giant in strength, the ground floor of the Stangen-wald building and is assembling various preserved island grown fruits which he is perfectly willing shall be sent to the exposition. Among other things are large glass jars of the mangosteen mango, the Batavia mango and Hawaiian coffee. An interesting exhibit is that which is made up of a pot of the growing vanilla plant, a jar containing the flowers, still another containing the beans and lastly a large jar of vanilla extract prepared by Hollister & Co. from beans grown at the Kailhi home of Mr. Herbert. Those interested in the vanilla plant as a future industry of the country, are cordially invited to call in and take a look at the exhibit.

Judge Gear issued an order today in Caroline Haughton against Percy K. Mossman et al., to the effect that Christopher J. Willis be appointed commissioner to partition premises described in plaintiff's bill and to set apart in severalty one-half thereof to plaintiff.

WHIPPING POST JUSTICE

The Middletown (Md.) Transcript gives the following account of the use of the whipping post to satisfy justice in Maryland:

At the New Castle County Workhouse Saturday Chief Warden Meserve dealt out Delaware justice to a number of criminals with a heavy hand. The sentences were heavy, as 20, 30 and 40 lashes were laid on the bare backs of three men. Elmer Fisher, colored, stole $200 some time ago and he danced with pain while 120 lashes fell on his back.

John Withcol took $1.50 which belonged to a fellow lodger and his back showed that the blows were heavy for the time the tenth lash fell great welts stood out on his back.

William Burnell, colored, robbed a residence at Granogue and as a consequence will have two years in which to nurse his sore back after receiving 20 lashes.

Charles Dolly, colored, received 40 lashes well laid on for robbing Mrs. Rebecca Ford of her pocketbook. He squirmed beneath the lash and cried for mercy as Warden Meserve plied the lash.

"Have mercy, have mercy on an innocent man," cried Thomas Perry, colored, as the lash fell heavily on his bare back. Thirty lashes constituted his share, with an hour in the pillory and six years behind the bars. Perry was convicted of assaulting with intent to commit a felonious assault on a white woman at Stanton on Sunday night, March 10th. Perry denied the accusation and although the woman said the day following the attack that she could not say whether it was a white man or a colored man who had assaulted her, she positively identified Perry in the dock as the man who dealt so brutally with her.

ENGLISH WOMEN WHO SMOKE.

English society women and those of the working classes approaching the centenary age are well known for their indulgence in the tobacco habit, the one in the form of cigarettes, and the other through the old-fashioned clay pipe. From statements made to the Glasgow Town Council, it seems that the cigarette habit has also broken out among girls in the higher schools, while in the lower grades of society the weed is becoming more popular every day among girls. Silver snuff boxes are not so numerous either in Courts of law or elsewhere as they were some years ago, nor are they so ostentatiously displayed, with their proud inscriptions, yet the snuff trade goes on. A considerable number of cigars are "chipped" in the counter-cutters in the course of a week. These chippings are sold to snuff manufacturers at 2s 6d per pound, whereas if the manufacturers had to import tobacco for the purpose they would have to pay 3s duty per pound, in addition to the full value of the tobacco.

ADMIRAL BECKLEY SICK.

Admiral Beckley of the Kinau is at present on the sick list with the dengue. He will remain ashore this trip. Freight Clerk Tom Burningham will take the Kinau out as purser. Harry Knell, formerly purser of the Lehua, will act as freight clerk.

Though Emperor William is but 44 years old, he is beginning to show quite a bit of age. His hair is fairly well sprinkled with gray and lines on his face tell of strain and worry.

Great pains are taken to keep up hospital property.

HILO ELKS PROFIT

Hilo, July 17.—The third appearance of the Elks minstrel at the Opera House last Saturday night filled the house again to its limit. The work of the company was appreciated by the audience and a better compliment could not be paid to amateurs than that of three successful nights in a town the size of Hilo.

Saturday night there were several changes made in the cast and in the program. H. T. Lake took Howland's place at the end of the circle and proved himself as food in minstrelsy as he is in comedy. Mr. and Mrs. Madala were out of the play Saturday night owing to illness. J. C. Johnson had recovered from the fever and was able to take his place at the tambora. His presence added much to the enjoyment of the spectators.

GUN CLUB MEETING.

There was a meeting of the Honolulu Gun Club in the basement of the Hawaiian hotel last evening. Senator C. L. Craobie presided and J. E. Fullerton acted as secretary. The constitution and by-laws were read section by section and adopted with a few amendments. It is provided that fifteen members are to constitute a quorum and each member may take but one visitor a month to the club grounds. Officers were to have been elected but out of consideration for the members, it was postponed until next Monday. H. W. Willis was nominated for president but adjournment prevented a vote.

A.B.C. BEERS

COST NOTHING IF IT FAILS.

Any honest person who suffers from Rheumatism is welcome to this offer. I am a specialist in Rheumatism, and have treated more cases than any other physician, I think. For 16 years I made 2,000 experiments with different drugs, testing all known remedies while searching the world for something better. Nine years ago I found a costly chemical in Germany which with my previous discoveries, gives me a certain cure.

I don't mean that it can turn bony joints into flesh again; but it can cure the disease at any stage, completely and forever. I have done it fully 100,000 times.

I know this so well that I will furnish my remedy on trial. Simply write me a postal for my book on Rheumatism, and I will mail you an order on your druggist for six bottles Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure. Take it for a month at my risk. If it succeeds, the cost is only $5.50. If it fails, I will pay the druggist myself—and your word shall decide it.

I mean that exactly. If you say the results are not what I claim, I don't expect a penny from you.

I have no samples. Any mere sample that can affect chronic Rheumatism must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs, and it is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

My remedy does that, even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. It has cured the oldest cases that I ever met. And in all my experience—in all my 5,000 tests—I never found another remedy that would cure one chronic case in ten.

Write me and I will send you the order. Try my remedy for a month, as it can't harm you, anyway. If it fails it is free.

Address Dr. Shoop, Box 331, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases, not chronic, are often cured by one or two bottles. At all druggists.

A LIVELY TIME

Merriment continuous and exuberant spread in waves of irrepressible laughter over the audience that witnessed Stine and Evans' comedy of complicated cognomens. "Where is Cobb?" at the opera house last evening.

The play is bright and clever, teeming with surprises and funny situations and the accomplished players deliver furious fun hot from the furnace of original humor in a manner that provokes the mirth of the most confirmed cynic.

With their smart and catchy specialties, clever songs and vigorous presentation of the best points of a performance full of good points, the company commands the complete attention and liveliest interest of all fortunate enough to partake of the feast of sparkling wit and rippling jollity served by each performer.

A BEAN FROM BOSTON.

Whenever one hears the good old name, Boston, his mind does not go back to the days of the public tea-party; he is not reminded of the lighted lanterns signalled in the old church tower; he does not think of the gloriously patriotic speeches that made the walls of Faneuil Hall ring with the words of loyalty; he forgets the Warrens, the Quincys, the Adamsons, the Putnams; and comes down to the representative Bostonian of today—The Bean.

It is very seldom that a chance is offered the public of seeing a genuine Bean from Boston, in this day—there are so many counterfeits—but an opportunity is offered this week. The Bean in question is fully guaranteed to be genuine, kind, sound and safe.

It may be seen at the Orpheum Theatre Thursday and Saturday of this week, in the great war drama, "Held by the Enemy." George Kunkel, as Bean, the war correspondent, gives many a humorous touch to, what otherwise is, a strong drama dealing with the troublous days of war.

The Lyceum Stock Company has put forth every effort to make "Held by the Enemy" not only a scenic, but dramatic success, and its past performances form a good criterion of what it can do. Every play given thus far has met with the approval of large audiences and the company now at the Orpheum deserves continued support.

The box office is open daily from 9 to 1 and 2 to 6.

TUESDAY, JULY 21, 1903.

The difference of opinion between Count Cassini and Secretary Hay gives another opportunity for a lively discussion of Russian diplomacy.

When the Australian Federation selected Tumut for the new capital, it demonstrated that location had more to do with the case than the beauty of a name.

The latest Mr. Cleveland will come in for a good share of comment and will undoubtedly be credited with better chances of being President than the father has for a third term.

Rowell will take up the duties in the Public Works office with fond memories of the comments of McCandless Republicans during the days of the future. But it is the future rather than the past the people are looking to.

When Maui hears that a change of race program is necessary to secure a larger delegation of Honolulu horsemen it is safe to forecast that President-editor-judge Robertson will immediately bestir himself to see that the goods are delivered.

If the Korean detective described in the Hilo Tribune was all that he was represented to be, his experience tends to confirm the impression that the general run of Koreans are satisfied to mind the business in hand and not led away by get-rich-quick propositions.

It doesn't make so very much difference who does it, so the public works are not delayed, the work done honestly, and the laboring people find a demand for their services at fair figures. Work and good return for it is the best panacea for discontent that is known.

Newspaper expressions from the outside districts indicate that the whole-sale condemnation of the Legislature is confined solely to a section of the Honolulu press. The country press is able to view the results free from prejudices of the local forces with special axes to grind.

The shot-gun method of paying political grudges is gaining a popularity in the South that may well be regarded as alarming. It is becoming a question whether the cranks that threaten officials are not conducting a more influential educational campaign than the citizen of pacific tendencies.

If the cable dispatches stated where the Columbia lands in these trial races, a proper basis could be reached for comparing the Reliance with the Shamrock III. The Constitution this year seems to be quite another boat, having shown such a marked improvement over last year's performances that the test races in which she has taken part cannot be taken as foreshadowing what the Reliance can do with Lipton's yacht.

Attorney General Andrews' opinion on the appointing power for new offices as defined by the Organic Act will be awaited with considerable interest. It stands to reason that department heads should consult the Governor in making appointments in various bureaus, new or old, but it is difficult to understand how an exclusive Governor's prerogative can be read into the appointments to office that are placed under department heads by the Legislature.

The true success of any young and growing town depends largely on harmonious and united action on the part of its citizens.—Maui News.

Make it "all cities and towns" and the whole truth is told. The town or the city that can't get its people together in a common cause for general progress always hangs along with the tail end of the procession. Walluku is no more in need of united action along the lines suggested by the News than is Honolulu.

It may be something of a joke to talk about capitalists trying to come into Honolulu harbor overland, but it is no laughing matter to find this harbor lacking in the most perfect safeguards to protect the wealth of shipping that comes to the port. The steamer Claverling's experience is such as to remind Federal and Territorial officials that active steps should be taken at once to prevent the repetition of an accident purely the result of failure of a warning signal to warn.

Pope Leo's successor has before him one of the most important and difficult tasks in Christendom. It is within the ability of few men if any to supply the combination of scholarly attainments and statesmanship possessed by the dead Pontiff. A new policy at the Vatican or an endeavor to carry out the work of Leo will be fraught with far reaching results in the history of the world for peace or disaster according to adherence to the example furnished by the late church ruler.

What the mosquito campaign promoters now require to enlist general cooperation is a definitely outlined plan of action to present to business men and householders. The people by general consent admit that the mosquito should go and can be exterminated if attacked by organized methods. They depend on the experts for framing the methods and estimating the means required. In other words the people must have a prospectus of how it is to be done before the united action so necessary to success can be secured. Between Board of Health members, Federal quarantine officials, the Agricultural Experiment Station and other scientific public spirited men of the city, it ought to be possible to gather the information and assemble the energy required for proper promotion.

FEDERAL LAND LAWS AND LOCAL APPLICATION

Editor Evening Bulletin:—A Honolulu paper sets forth the following as an argument against Federal control of public land in Hawaii:

"Those who are urging Federal control of Hawaiian public lands as a means of bringing American settlers here do not include the Commission which framed the Organic Act, the Commissioner of the General Land Office or many of the Senators and Representatives who have given the subject thought.

"Under the Federal law the available land would be thrown wide open to everybody, and people already here, whether farmers or not, could obtain large tracts subject to mild conditions. It would be possible for big land-owners to stake out dummies and get the best of the public domain for grazing or speculative purposes. Even the Chinese here who have qualified as American citizens could help themselves; and under such circumstances the bulk of the vacant land would pass into hands which are neither agricultural nor American in the sense proposed by the advocates of Federal control.

"The Hawaiian law under which the Waihala colony was organized can be used to establish typical American colonies here. It is the only law extant that will answer that purpose. The trouble with it lies in the administration of the local land office, not in the law itself. Instead of setting aside arable tracts so that men could go from here and organize mainland colonies to occupy them, the Land Commissioner has usually peopled the public domain with associations of speculators who make no effort to do farming. That is why only about three per cent of the Settlement Associations now holding down land about Oahu are genuine. Given a Commissioner who really wants to bring in white settlers and who does not regard Americans as foreigners, and white settlers will be plenty enough here. They want to come now but all the encouragement they get is a circular saying that coffee is the only crop for the small farmer and that at present it does not pay."

To any person informed as to the Federal land laws and administration thereof it would seem that the writer of the above had "snakes in his boots" for nothing else would cause him to have such horrible visions of land plunder and speculation under Federal control.

Just the contrary would be the result. The available lands would not be thrown wide open to everybody—but the land would all be surveyed and persons who wanted land would not be compelled by circumstances and present official manipulation to take land in localities ill-suited to their purposes just because there it no more land surveyed and open to settlement as it now is in Hawaii.

Most surely it would not be possible for big land owners to stake out dummies and get the best of the public domain for grazing and speculative purposes as is now being done for years has been done in Hawaii under the present laws and under both the present and past administration.

That part of the Hawaiian land act authorizing settlement associations is a dummy promoter and any one who knows anything at all knows it.

All the talk about colonizing American settlers here under the settlement association law is "hog wash." Americans do not want to be colonized. They can't be colonized.

As to the Chinese who are made citizens by the Organic Act, they should have all the rights of any other citizen. If they were good enough to be made citizens they should be treated likewise—although I doubt the propriety of increasing Asiatic influence or population in Hawaii.

It is the Hawaiian land law as well as the local officers that should bear the blame of the present condition of affairs, concerning public lands and the impossibility of inducing Americans to settle here. At most a person could only enter 160 acres and he would be forever barred from entering land again under Federal laws. Not so under Hawaiian laws. You are allowed to enter land again and again, prove up on one lot, sell it and enter again as has been done right here in Oahu and elsewhere in the Territory. If you are ready to pay the price you can enter land a dozen times. What better snip does a speculator want? He does not even need dummies. He does the dummy act himself.

Hundreds have done service in the penitentiaries of the mainland for land frauds and perjury which is no offense against the Hawaiian land law at all.

In reply to a request for information from the U. S. Senate as to Hawaiian public lands, land laws and administration, the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington, on February 13th, 1901, said in conclusion: "It is my opinion, however, that when such information is obtained it will be found wise and expedient to subject all lands in Hawaii to entry under the public land laws now in force in the United States with such restrictions and modifications thereof as local exigencies may demand, and it is further believed that these laws should be administered and enforced as to the Hawaiian lands through a register and receiver, and that office under the immediate supervision of your Department, and not through Territorial officers, who are not in touch with and from lack of information on the subject are likely to be out of harmony with the general spirit which controls the Government in the distribution of its public domain among its citizens."

I do not see anything in the above recommendation very flattering to either the Hawaiian land laws or administration.

Very respectfully,
T. J. RYAN,
Mountain View, Hawaii, July 15, '03.

TWO FLAGSHIPS SAIL

UMORS ABOUT SOME LARGE BETTING RIFE

WATERFRONTERS THINK IT WILL BE FINE RACE—S. S. CO. PRESIDENTS DENY UMORS OF RACE.

The departure of the Wilder S. S. Co.'s flagship Kinau and the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Co.'s flagship Mauna Loa at noon was the all-absorbing topic along the waterfront today. This was the first time that the Kinau and the Mauna Loa had departed together since the extensive overhauling of the latter vessel and rumors of bets and even evidence of jingling coin, were frequent.

The Inter-Island people were very confident that the Mauna Loa would win and were willing to back her against odds and handicaps. One well defined rumor had it that $1,800 had been put up on a bet, a well-known broker holding the stakes. The conditions of the bet were said to be that the Mauna Loa was to beat the Kinau half an hour on the run from here to Lahaina, provided that the Kinau was still on this side of Diamond Head when the Mauna Loa started. This condition was fulfilled, so that if the bet is a reality, the bettors will be anxious until news comes from Lahaina concerning the arrivals of the two boats at that port.

In higher quarters, the race proposition was pook-pooked. President Kennedy of the Inter-Island Co., who departed for Hawaii in the Mauna Loa, was seen just before the steamer left. He stated that there was no race between the two boats as far as the Mauna Loa was concerned. She would make the run at her usual speed, about 12 knots an hour. This would bring her to Lahaina in about 6 1/2 hours.

When Mr. Kennedy's attention was called to the fact that the Kinau was fast, as she has been four months in the water, he reminded the reporter of the fact that when the Kinau and the Mauna Loa last raced to Lahaina the latter boat was carrying the accumulated marine growth of ten months on her bottom.

President Wight of the Wilder S. S. Co., when asked if the Kinau was to race, emphatically denied it. He stated that the Kinau was absolutely not in any condition to race on account of her bottom's foulness. Another high official of the Wilder Company bore out Mr. Wight's words, adding that any man who bet on the Kinau would be very foolish, as she was in poor shape for racing purposes. The Kinau, when clean usually makes the run from this port to Lahaina in 6 hours and some minutes. On the last few trips the Kinau took about 7 1/2 hours to make the same run. Furthermore, the Kinau is hampered by the fact that she is using a very poor quality of coal.

The departure scene on both the Wilder and the Inter-Island wharves was an unusually lively one. On the Kinau wharf the Territorial band played the steamer off. On the Inter-Island wharf a great throng of people had collected.

Among the Mauna Loa's passengers was Queen Liliuokalani. When she stepped on board an old native woman sitting on the deck called out one of the Queen's maids. The quaint chant was listened to with much interest by the bystanders.

The Kinau left the wharf first, at about 12:05 p. m. The Mauna Loa started about a quarter of an hour later. As she started out in swift pursuit of her rival, the whistles of the steamers Noeau and Iwaland saluted her. The Wilder and Inter-Island employees as well as other waterfronters, are anxious to hear the news about the arrival of the two flagships at Lahaina.

England has larger investments in tropical America than all other European nations combined.

THE NEWEST THING IN HAWAII

Carrara Mixed Paint

Its superiority over all other PAINTS for this climate has been established.

THE REASON WHY IT IS BETTER.

CARRARA Paint is made from a natural paint pigment, from which all matter having a tendency to oxidize or destroy the oil has been removed by patent process. It is a combination of mineral substances, perfectly free from all gritty matter, and soluble in oil.

CARRARA Paint, when applied, becomes practically a part of the surface, and being non-porous, retains, indefinitely, the oil, which is the life of any paint. It is not in any way affected by alkali, gases, or atmospheric changes, and having a hard, glossy surface, it can be washed like a piece of porcelain—the white always remaining white and the colors permanent. The superiority of CARRARA Paint is due to the combination of our special pigment and pure linseed oil, which, together with improved machinery for thoroughly grinding and mixing, enables us to place on the market at a reasonable price, the most durable paint ever produced.

SAMPLE CARDS OF COLORS ON APPLICATION.

CARRARA is put up in 1-8, 1-4, 1-2, 1 and 5-gallon tins, Mixed Ready for use.

BLAMES BELL BUOY

CAPTAIN BARTON TAKES ON RECENT DISASTER

HAD BELL SOUNDED ACCIDENT WOULD NOT HAVE HAPPENED—DAMAGE IS NOT VERY GREAT.

The steamship Claverling was hauled off the reef yesterday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The tug Fearless and Charles Counsellman had been working on the steamer for some time when the U. S. S. Iroquois arrived and passed a line to the Claverling. After some tugging, the Iroquois' line parted and she went into the harbor to get a new one.

In the meantime, the Fearless kept up her work. Captain Olsen, of the tug, states that the Claverling came off little by little at every tug the Fearless made. Finally at 3:15, the steamer slid off. Captain Barton, of the Claverling, gave the following account of the accident: "We passed Barber's Point at 7:30 p. m. I told the engineer to let his fires burn down. In that way, the vessel's speed got gradually slower. We passed the range lights and went ahead to find an anchorage ground. We listened for the bell buoy but could not hear it. I kept a man sounding with the lead. He did not find bottom at twenty fathoms. I wanted thirteen fathoms to anchor in. We were slowing down and stopping continually. As we could not hear the bell buoy, I thought that we were farther out. We did not get any soundings before we struck. We did not run aground with a shock. The vessel suddenly listed and stopped. I had soundings taken all around the ship. The lowest depth I found was three fathoms. This was forward."

The ship just lay on her port bilge but later on she shifted over to the starboard bilge. She pounded somewhat but I do not think that any damage has been done beyond a possible few dents in the plates. There are no signs of leaking."

Captain Barton and the other officers of the vessel are emphatic in condemning the inefficiency of the bell buoy. They state that if the bell had been in proper shape it would have sounded. If it was in good order, it would ring in even the calmest weather as there is a constant swell caused by the waves rolling against the reef close by. If the bell buoy had acted the accident would never have happened.

MUST END LITIGATION

Judication, was so essentially connected therewith and involved therein, that I am bound to hold, as I do, that such adjudication is now binding and conclusive upon her on the point now raised and is res adjudicata in this suit. That this point may be or now is viewed from a different standpoint, or such sufficiency of this mortgage be questioned for reasons other than those advanced at the first hearing is, in my judgment, wholly immaterial. Litigation should not be piecemeal. Equity and common justice, as well as public policy and regular judicial procedure, forbid constant or repeated litigation of the same subject matter between the same parties."

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER I.—Grenfell Lorry, a wealthy American globe trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair are left behind when the fire stops for repairs in West Virginia. II.—Lorry wires ahead to hold the train. He and the unknown girl ride four miles at a tearing pace in a mountain coach. There is no love-making, but a near approach to it as the rolling stage tumbles the passengers about. III.—Lorry dines with the foreign party, consisting of Miss Guggensloeker, Uncle Caspar and Aunt Yvonne. They are natives of Graustark, a country Lorry had never heard of before. IV.—Lorry shows the foreigners the sights of Washington. They leave for New York to sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm. Miss Guggensloeker naively calls Lorry her "ideal American" and invites him to come and see her at Edelweiss. V.—Wildly infatuated, Lorry hurries to New York. The name Guggensloeker is not on the steamer list. He sees the steamer off. Miss G. waves him a kiss from the deck. VI.—Lorry joins his old friend, Harry Anguish, an American artist, in Paris. Graustark and its capital, Edelweiss, are located by a guidebook. The Americans get no trace of the Guggensloekers there. VII.—Lorry sees his charmer driving in a carriage with a beautiful companion of her own sex. He gets a glance of recognition, but the carriage rolls on, leaving the mystery unsolved. Later he receives a note at his hotel signed Sophia Guggensloeker, inviting him to visit her next day. VIII.—In the evening Lorry and Anguish ramble about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the Princess of Graustark. They overhear a "not to abduct the princess and resolve to capture the plotters red-handed. IX.—Following the conspirators, Lorry finds himself in a room he heard them designate as that of the princess. X.—Lorry tells the princess of the plot. Mutual recognition; she is Miss Guggensloeker. Dannoos, the guard, is in the abduction plot. He tells Lorry with a terrible blow. Anguish to the rescue. XI.—Lorry quarrels in the castle. The princess visits him, but forbids all talk of love. XII.—Graustark is bankrupt and owes the neighboring principedom of Axphain $30,000,000. The creditor demands cash or the cession of the richest districts of Graustark. XIII.—The Prince of Axphain offers to extend the loan if the princess will marry his son Lorenz. Prince Gabriel of Dawsbergen also bids for the princess' hand with offer of a loan. Yetive tells Lorry that she belongs to her people and will marry Lorenz. XIV.—Lorry discovered kissing the princess while she is seated on the throne. He quits the castle by royal command. XV.—Betrotal of the princess to Lorenz. The Americans recognize Gabriel as chief conspirator in the abduction plot.

Calmly he prepared to write some letters, not to say farewell, but to explain to certain persons the cause of the duel and to say that he gloried in the good fortune which had presented itself. One of these letters was addressed to his mother, another to the father of Prince Lorenz and the last to the Princess of Graustark. To the latter he wrote much that did not appear in the epistles directed to the others. Anguish had been in his room more than an hour and had frequently called to his friend and begged him to secure what rest he could in order that their nerves might be steady in the morning. But it was not until after midnight that the duelist sealed the envelopes, directed them and knocked at his second's door to say: "I shall intrust these letters to you, Harry. You must see that they start on their way tomorrow."

Then he went to bed and to sleep. At 6 o'clock his second, who had slept but little, called him. They dressed hurriedly and prepared for the ride to the valley. Their own new English bulldog revolvers were to serve as weapons in the coming combat, and a carriage was to be in waiting for them in a side street at 7 o'clock.

Before leaving their room they heard evidences of commotion in the hotel and were apprehensive lest the inmates had learned of the duel and were making ready to follow the fighters to the appointed spot. There was a confusion of voices, the sound of rushing feet, the banging of doors, the noise increasing as the two men stepped into the open hall. They were amazed to see half dressed men and women standing or running about the halls, intense excitement in their faces and in their actions. White uniformed policemen were flocking into the corridors. Soldiers, coatless and hatless, fresh from their beds, came dashing upon the scene. There were excited cries, angry shouts and, more mystifying than all, horrified looks and whispers.

"What has happened?" asked Lorry, stopping near the door.

"It can't be a fire. Look! The door to that room down there seems to be the center of attraction. Hold on! Don't go over there, Lorry. There may be something to unnerve you, and that must not happen now. Let us go down this stairway. It leads to a side entrance, I think." They were half way down the stairs when the thunder of rushing feet in the hall above came to their ears, causing them to hesitate between curiosity and good judgment. "They are coming this way."

"Hear them how!" What the devil can be the cause of all this rumpus?" cried the other.

At that instant a half dozen police guards appeared at the head of the stairs. Upon seeing the Americans they stopped and turned as if to oppose a foe approaching from the opposite direction. Baron Dangloss separated himself from the white coats above and called to the men below. In alarm they started for the street door. He was with them in an instant, his usually red face changing from white to purple, his anxious eyes darting first toward the group above and then toward the bewildered Americans.

"What's the matter?" demanded Lorry.

"There! See!" cried Dangloss, and even as he spoke a conflict began at the head of the stairs, the police, augmented by a few soldiers, struggling against a howling, enraged mass of Axphainians. Dangloss dragged his reluctant charges through a small door, and they found themselves in the baggage room of the hotel. Despite their queries he offered no explanation, but rushed them along, passing out of the opposite door, down a short stairway and into a side street. A half dozen police guards were awaiting them, and before they could catch the faintest idea of what it all meant they were running with the officers through an alley as if pursued by demons.

"Now, what in thunder does this mean?" panted Lorry, attempting to slacken the pace. He and Anguish were just beginning to regain their senses.

"Do not stop! Do not stop!" wheezed Dangloss. "You must get to a place of safety. We cannot prevent something dreadful happening if you are caught!"

"If we are caught?" cried Anguish. "Why, what have we done?"

"Unhand me, Baron Dangloss. This is an outrage!" shouted Lorry.

"For heaven's sake, be calm! We are defending you. When we reach the tower, where you will be safe, I shall explain," gasped the panting chief of police. A few moments later they were inside the prison gates, angry, impatient, fatigued.

"Is this a plan to prevent the duel?" demanded Lorry, turning upon the chief, who had dropped limply into a chair and was mopping his brow. When he could find his breath enough to answer, Dangloss did so, and he might as well have thrown a bombshell at their feet.

"There'll be no duel. Prince Lorenz is dead!"

"Dead?" gasped the others.

"Found dead in his bed, stabbed to the heart!" exclaimed the chief. "We have saved you from his friends, gentlemen, but I must say that you are still in a tight place."

He then related to them the whole story. Just before 6 o'clock Mirrox had gone to the princess' room to prepare him for the duel. The door was closed, but unlocked, as he found after repeated knockings. Lorenz was lying on the bed, undressed and covered with blood. The horrified duke made a hasty examination and found that he was dead. A dagger had been driven to his heart as he slept. The hotel was aroused, the police were called, and the excitement was at its highest pitch when the two friends came from their room a few minutes after 6.

"But what have we to do with this dreadful affair?" Why are we rushed off here like criminals?" asked Lorry, a feeling of cruel gladness growing out of the knowledge that Lorenz was dead and that the princess was freed from her compact.

men. The man who so accuses agrees to forfeit his own life in case the other is proved innocent. If you are to be charged with the murder of the prince, some one must go before the prince and take oath—his life against yours. I am holding you here, sir, because it is the only place in which you are safe. Lorenz's friends would have torn you to pieces had we not found you first. You are not prisoners, and you may depart if you think it wise."

"But how can they accuse me? I knew nothing of the murder until I reached this place," cried Lorry, stopping short in his restless walk before the little baron.

"So you say, but—"

"If you accuse me, I'll kill you!" whispered Lorry, holding himself tense. Anguish caught and held him.

"Be calm, sir," cautioned Dangloss.

"I may have my views, but I am not willing to take oath before her royal highness. Listen: You were heard to say you would kill him. You began the fight. You were the aggressor, and there is no one else on earth, it is said, who could have wished to murder him. The man who did the stabbing entered the room through the hall door and left by the same. There are drops of blood in the carpet, leading direct to your door. On your knob are the prints of bloody fingers where you— or some one else—placed his hand in opening the door. It was this discovery, made by me and my men, that fully convinced the enraged friends of the dead prince that you were guilty. When we opened the door, you were gone. Then came the search, the fight at the head of the stairs and the race to the prison. The reason I saved you from that mob should be plain to you. I love my princess, and I do not forget that you risked your life, each of you, to protect her. I have done all that I can, gentlemen, to protect you in return. It means death to you if you fall into the hands of his followers just now. A few hours will cool them off no doubt, but now—now it would be madness to face them. I know not what they have done to my men at the hotel—perhaps butchered them."

There was anxiety in Dangloss' voice, and there was honesty in his keen old eyes. His charges now saw the situation clearly and apologized warmly for the words they had uttered under the pressure of somewhat extenuating circumstances. They expressed a willingness to remain in the prison until the excitement abated or until some one swore his life against the supposed murderer. They were virtually prisoners and they knew it well. Furthermore, they could see that Baron Dangloss believed Lorry guilty of the murder. Protestations of innocence had been politely received and politely disregarded.

"Do you expect one of his friends to take the oath?" asked Lorry.

"Yes; it is sure to come."

"But you will not do so yourself?"

"No."

"I thank you, captain, for I see that you believe me guilty."

"I do not say you are guilty, remember, but I will say that if you did murder Prince Lorenz you have made the people of Graustark rejoice from the bottoms of their hearts, and you will be eulogized from one end of the land to the other."

"Hanged and eulogized," said Lorry grimly.

events of the morning that they did not realize the vast seriousness of the situation for hours. Then it dawned upon them that appearances were really against them and that they were alone in a land far beyond the reach of help from home. One circumstance puzzled them with its damning mystery: How came the blood stains upon the doorknob? Dangloss courteously discussed this strange and unfortunate feature with them, but with his concealed skepticism. It was evident that his mind was clear in regard to the whole affair.

Anguish was of the opinion that the real murderer had stained the knob intentionally, aiming to cast suspicion on the man who had been challenged. The assassin had an object in leaving these convicting finger marks where they would do the most damage. He either desired the arrest and death of the American or hoped that his own guilt might escape attention through the misleading evidence. Lorry held, from his deductions, that the crime had been committed by a fanatic who loved his sovereign too devotedly to see her wedded to Lorenz. Then why should he wantonly cast guilt upon the man who had been her protector, objected Dangloss.

The police guards came in from the hotel about 10 o'clock, bearing marks of an ugly conflict with the Axphainians. They reported that the avengers had been quelled for the time being, but that a deputation had already started for the castle to lay the matter before the princess. Officers had searched the rooms of the Americans for blood stains, but had found no sign of them.

"Did you find bloody water in which hands had been washed?" asked Anguish.

"No," responded one of the guards. "There was nothing to be found in the bowls and jars except soapy water. There is not a blood stain in the room, captain."

"That shakes your theory a little, eh?" cried Anguish triumphantly. "Examine Mr. Lorry's hands and see if there is blood upon them." Lorry's hands were white and uncontaminated. Dangloss wore a pucker on his brow.

Shortly afterward a crowd of Axphain men came to the prison gates and demanded the person of Grenfell Lorry, departing after an ugly show of rage. Curious Edelweiss citizens stood afar off, watching the walls and windows eagerly.

"This may cost Edelweiss a great deal of trouble, gentlemen, but there is more happiness here this morning than city has known in months. Everybody believes you killed him, Mr. Lorry, but they all love you for the deed," said Dangloss, returning at noon from a visit to the hotel and a ride through the streets. "The prince's friends have been at the castle since 9 o'clock, and I am of the opinion that they are having a hard time with the highest priestess."

"God bless her!" cried Lorry. "The town is crazy with excitement."

HE blood is the oil in the lamp of life. To be healthy you must keep your blood pure and strength giving, for almost every disease gets its start from impure blood. If you are "off the hooks," lack the activity and ambition that you usually have, are irritable and nervous, have a poor appetite, suffer the terrors of sleeplessness, or get up in the morning feeling more tired than when you went to bed, or if your skin is dry and hard, and distressing eruptions break out over your body, your system is run down and your blood needs toning up and purifying, or your liver and kidneys demand attention. Don't delay, delays are dangerous. Stop on the crest of the steep hill of failing health while you can, once on a downward course means suffering, despair—death.

KICKAPOO SAGWA MAKES BAD BLOOD GOOD

"I suffered from a chronic blood affection for 20 years. Had an operation performed on my foot, but the poison still remained and went through my entire system, and placed me in such a condition I could not sleep nights on account of the hot, burning flushes all over me. I lost the use of my limb. My liver and kidneys became badly affected, and my general health so reduced that I gave up trying to live. Took over twenty bottles of Sarsaparilla with no relief. At last I concluded to give Kickapoo Indian Sagwa a trial. After using it I experienced a great improvement. My liver and kidneys became normal, my limbs began to gain strength, so that now I can walk without crutches, and my health is good for a man of my age, being over 70 years old. I cheerfully recommend Sagwa to anyone afflicted with kidney and liver troubles. It is the greatest blood purifier ever discovered."—Amos Lord, Conway, Ia.

THEORY AND PRACTISE IN SISAL

The Experiment Station bulletin on sisal says of the habits of growth: The roots of the sisal plant feed near the surface, and do not descend to any great depth. In hard clay rarely over 12 inches, and in loose, rocky soil seldom over 18 inches. When given sufficient room the roots will generally spread out over an area equal to the area covered by the mature leaves.

When the plants have become firmly established in the field, the main stalk throws out underground runners or rhizomes. The point of such a runner reaches the surface beginning with the second year, and forms a bulb. This bulb, known as the sucker or shoot. This sucker takes root and obtains nourishment through the runner from the old plant, and also through its own roots. New suckers continue to appear during the life of the plant. After the third year the lower leaves, 2 to 2-1/2 feet long, assume a horizontal position and show yellowish spots. These are called "mature" leaves. As the plant grows older more leaves mature, which, however, are longer and wider, attaining at the age of 5 to 7 years a length of from 4 to 6 feet. After a vigorous growth of about 6 years, which may be extended to 7 or even 9 years, after planting, a central stalk or "pole" grows up rapidly. This pole is 4 to 6 inches in diameter at the base, tapers upward, and attains a height of 30 feet. It bears flowers, which fall off and are replaced by 2,000 to 3,000 bulbs. These bulbs grow to be about 6 inches. They finally fall to the ground and thus reproduce the plant. When this has been accomplished the leaves of the plant have become brown and leathery, and the whole mass dies and forms considerable debris. Suckers attached to the plant at this time will throw out a central stalk one inch thick, and from 3 to 6 feet high. Some bear flowers and bulbs; others bear only bulbs, which are usually smaller than those of the mother plant.

The sisal plant will grow in tropical or sub-tropical countries in any well-drained soil anywhere from sea level to frost line. When planted on rich soil and given some care, the plants grow rapidly, attain a large size and throw up poles when 7 or 8 years old.

Soil for Rapid Growth. Plants which grow rapidly—i. e., those planted on rich moist soils, produce larger leaves, containing a larger percentage of water and a smaller percentage of fiber than plants which grow more slowly on comparatively dry and sterile soils. However, even though in such cases the percentage of fiber in the leaf is less, the greater size attained by the leaves enables the planter to secure more fiber per acre on comparatively rich moist soils than on arid ones.

Rotate Crops. Continuous planting of sisal on the same field exhausts the available plant food. On such soil the plant makes slower growth and requires a longer period to reach maturity. It does not pay to plant sisal on the same land for an indefinite period. Neither is it commercially profitable to choose for a plantation land which is too dry or too sterile.

The plant feeds most heavily on lime, magnesia, potash, and phosphoric acid. This will be at once apparent upon an examination of the following table, which gives respectively the composition of the ash of the whole leaf and of the fiber:

The green leaves contain:
Moisture	85.58
Dry matter	10.42
Minerals	1.125
Nitrogen	0.098
Ash of green leaves:
Silica	0.56
Chlorine	.28
Sulphuric acid	.88
Phosphoric acid	3.29
Lime	33.40
Magnesia	15.37
Potash	18.80
Soda	1.42
Iron	.69
Carbonic acid, etc.	25.31
The fiber contains, per cent:
Moisture	11.75
Dry matter	88.25
Minerals	2.24
Nitrogen	0.084
Ash of fiber:
Silica	0.442
Chlorine	.888
Sulphuric acid	.784
Phosphoric acid	2.605
Lime	36.247
Magnesia	1.449
Manganese	.151
Potash	15.776
Soda	1.297
Iron	.37.595
Carbonic acid, etc.

Gather Moisture. The leaves of sisal gather water from the dew or rain. This water flows down the furrow of the leaf toward the stalk, and is taken up by rootlets at the base of and in the axils of the lower leaves, and it also absorbed directly by the growing tissues at the bases of the leaves. The plant, therefore, requires a moist atmosphere, or heavy dews. Light rain is very beneficial. The roots are most sensitive to moisture. A field subject to overflow, or soil liable to remain saturated with water for any considerable length of time, is unfit for a sisal plantation. In such localities the plant makes little growth; the roots die during the period of saturation of the soil, and new ones are thrown out again when the conditions are favorable. Heavy clay soil, in baking and cracking open, breaks and otherwise injures the spreading roots of the plant and greatly checks its growth.

On a broken and porous limestone or coral soil, under the influence of a moist atmosphere and a high temperature, subject only to moderate changes, the sisal plant grows well, produces the largest quantity and a large percentage of high-grade fiber.

Alkaline chlorides, like chloride of sodium (common salt), tend to increase the cellulose in plants at the expense of starch and sugar. Alkaline salts are usually present in a greater proportion in the soils of dry regions than in soils of humid regions. In the latter case the mineral salts are washed out in the drainage waters. Hence, theoretically, a fiber plant such as the sisal should be cultivated in dry rather than in humid regions in order to secure an increase in the amount of fiber.

Yucatan Soil. Perrine states that the soils around Merida, the leading sisal producing district of Yucatan, are composed of arid, cavernous limestone, and that in the whole region there is not a single running stream. Dodge, writing of the same region, describes it as being barren of soil, the sisal plants often being propped in place by small stones, or stuck into crevices in the coral rock. The adaptability of both Yucatan and the Bahamas to the cultivation of sisal is apparently due as much to the climatic conditions as to the soil; in other words, proximity to the sea and high temperatures, with low rainfall, are quite as essential as suitable soils.

New Local Plantation. The lands of the new Hawaiian Sisal Company at Heela and Kaneohe fulfill these conditions absolutely and the adaptability of the lands to the production of the fiber is demonstrated by the fine and vigorous condition of the plants now growing on the land of which there are several thousand some six or seven years old. These are the healthiest plants one could wish to see with leaves six to seven feet long.

The shares are being eagerly subscribed for and large numbers of local residents are investigating the proposition with a view to taking up shares if they find it satisfactory, as no doubt they will.

It is the first time in the history of sisal in these islands that the production of the fiber has been placed on an extensive business footing. Hitherto what has been done was purely experimental, and the parties in charge of the experiments were without previous experience to guide them.

Low Production Cost. Mr. Edwards, the general manager of the new company, as the result of his previous experience in the production of sisal, is able to bring down the cost of production to figures hitherto unheard of in these islands.

After providing most liberally for all possible expenditure, he makes the cost of production for the whole 12,480 acres, which it is proposed to plant, $44.45 per ton of 2,000 pounds. This is very different to the figures which were given by Mr. Dillingham in the estimates published under his name some little time ago as the result of Mr. Turner's experiments at Ewa, although in justice to Mr. Dillingham, it should be here pointed out that while estimating a cost of production of some $70 or so per ton he hinted that with experience this cost might be brought down still lower.

The production of the fiber at less than 2-1/2 cents per pound makes the enterprise an extremely safe one, as there is no likelihood of prices ever falling so low. Present prices in San Francisco are 9 cents a pound. That leaves margin enough surely for the most exacting.

The papers for the formal incorporation of the company are now in course of preparation and will be filed within the next few days. Holmes & Stanley are the company's attorneys.

THE ROSEWATER VOLCANO EXTINGUISHER.

NO OBJECTION TO SAILOR'S WIVES.

In the household of Admiral Dewey recently a laundress was needed, and to the butler, an Englishman, the business of examining the applicants for this position was intrusted. Many applied, but none were chosen. Finally, on the second day, the butler came to
Mrs. Dewey in the library.
"I think, madam," he said, "that we have got the right woman at last. She seems a very capable sort of person.

She is waiting now for my report. And, madam, I would advise you to engage her, but at the same time I must warn you that she is a sailor's wife, and such persons are apt to have loose morals."
"Engage her, nevertheless," said Mrs.
Dewey. "I am a sailor's wife myself."
