USED HIS TEETH.

An Unusual Brawl Ending Without Any Arrests Made.

There was war in a native house near No. 3 engine house about 8 o'clock Thursday evening. John Eli, an old man, appeared at the place, but it seems was an undesirable visitor. There was some liquor in the house and he demanded it. He was answered by a firm hand on the shoulder and took a "waltz" toward the door. The fight started. A hapa-haole named Cook and Eli were the principals. It lasted several minutes until both men tired themselves out and quit. Eli was found to have a long gash across the temple from which blood flowed. His face was otherwise beaten up and he showed several other severe bruises. He got in his work on Cook with his teeth. On one of the latter's legs a piece as large as a dollar was taken out clear. He was also bitten on the arms and face.

Both men went to the station house and filed complaints. But as neither seemed disposed to swear out warrants no arrests were made.

This paragraph has appeared in at least 1,000 newspapers in the United States:

Professor Wm. F. Brigham, who is director of the Bernice Pauahi Bishop museum of Polynesian ethnology and natural history at Honolulu, left the latter place last January, and has been making a tour around the world for the purpose of studying the chief ethnological exhibits in various countries. He is now in New York.

IN TEN HOURS

The Manoa Wheelman's Good Run Around the Island.

J. F. Silva, the Manoa cyclist who has recently come into prominence as a long distance rider, returned Thursday afternoon from his trip around Oahu, having made the entire distance of 85 miles over hills and rough roads in ten hours of running time. He left the city in the morning and went by way of the Pali, Heaia, Kahuku and Waiialua. A few short stops were made to take breath. He arrived back in good trim. The worst part of the trip was in pulling up the Pali and in crossing the several hills on the road from Waiialua.

Silva's run has excited the interest of wheelmen and others will undertake it. An effort will be made to lower the record established by the Manoa wheelman. The first to try the trip will be Sylvester and Sam Johnson. They will make it next Monday, leaving town early in the morning. Johnson says he will be back at noon, but admits that he does not know the route. It will be a run for a new record.

STARBUCK READY.

The ship 'Thillie E. Starbuck' was, with the assistance of Captain Hilbus and tug, moved out and anchored in the stream. The vessel topped off her cargo yesterday, but will not sail until Tuesday next. Captain Curtis is awaiting the arrival of friends by the steamer W. G. Hall. Four new men have been shipped to fill the vacancies made by the deserters. The new men are deserters from other vessels which touched here formerly.

Facts Are Stubborn Things

And it is an absolute fact that purchasers at Kerr's get more for their money, both in quantity and quality, than at any other store. Anybody can satisfy themselves on this point by comparing prices.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

JUDGE PERRY'S ACCOUNT OF THE HILL RIOT.

Police Criticised Sharply—Scenes at the Time of Arrival of Officers—Civil Matters in the Court.

S. K. Hui has petitioned to be appointed guardian of the property of Kuhia Hui, a son of 12 years, who owns a parcel of land situated in the district of Waianae.

J. O. Carter, receiver of the Sumner estate, has filed his bonds in the sum of $10,000. James A. King is surety. Luiza Fernandez has petitioned the court for letters of administration to issue to J. M. Camara, Jr., of the estate of her late husband.

In the same case the same petitioner prays for the appointment of J. M. Camara, Jr., as the legal guardian of her minor children.

The Kohala Sugar Co. is suing Julia Kaulukoa for a bill of foreclosure of mortgage. The lands effected are in Kohala district, Hawaii, and at Kaneohe, Oahu. Since 1889 the property has been several times transferred, and the case is replete with puzzling ramifications.

It is more than likely that President Dole will be asked to give evidence in this case as he was mortgagee at the time the original transfer was made.

George Rodeik has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late Achew of Wailuku, Maui, upon his filing bonds in the sum of $1,800.

In the matter of the Republic of Hawaii vs. Manuel Carvalho, et al., the Portuguese riot case, Judge Carter today overruled defendant's motion for a new trial and exceptions were in turn noted. A feature of this turn in the case was an affidavit filed by Circuit Judge Perry, who was a witness of the affair at the head of Emma street. Among the sensational statements in Judge Perry's affidavit is one that "such pickets were dropped to the ground before the arrival on the scene of any other police officers."

This was before any arrests had been made. Farther along he says, referring to the police "began indiscriminately to seize and arrest Portuguese who were standing there." And "Mr. Howland was released by said officer only after said officer had seen that said Mr. Howland was not a Portuguese." Also, "as an instance of the careless and indiscriminate manner in which the seizing of persons was accomplished, etc."

SMALLPOX SITUATION.

All lovely in quarantine today. Dr. Day spent three hours at the island this morning and made a careful examination of each person. No further signs of smallpox were discovered. The four cases previously noted are doing well. Dr. Day feels now that all danger has passed.

FOUL TRANSACTION

A Wholesale Raid Made on the Henery of Dr. McGrew.

A thief entered Dr. McGrew's foul yard at Pearl City Thursday night and got away with nineteen fine Plymouth Rock and Brahma hens. The fowls were imported stock and cost a good deal of money.

The circumstances of the raid are peculiar. A new Chinese servant, whose duty it was to look after the fowls, was installed about a month ago. On the evening of the robbery the door to the yard and the one to the interior coop were left unlocked. The Chinaman protested that he had forgotten to lock the doors and knew nothing about the stealing. He was given two kicks, which landed him to the railroad, and was told to "walk," which he did.

Thirty of Dr. McGrew's fine fowls were left. The "stable" was then "locked."

20,000 CASES.

The bark Iolani, of the Boston packets, brought twenty thousand cases of kerosene oil for the Honolulu market. After discharging, the vessel will load sugar for New York for W. G. Irwin & Co. She will carry about two thousand tons of sugar.

Not to be Quarantined

HE SOUNDS AN ALARM

VISITOR SPEAKS OF HONOLULU'S ONE GREAT FAULT.

Imperative Need for a Sewerage System—Constant Danger—An Inviting Field for Disease.

Col. McDonald, N. G. C., who will leave by the Australia after a visit of several weeks in the Islands, regrets that he just missed seeing Kilauea in activity by an accident. He heard of the outbreak upon returning to Hilo from the Volcano house. Business prevented his going back up to see the display.

The colonel says he is delighted with the climate of the big island, and when he visits the country again he will spend more time around Hilo. He describes the air around there as equable, pure and healthy. "Rainy, yes," says he, "but all a man needs is an umbrella. The showers are light and not necessarily uncomfortable."

For Honolulu the colonel does not speak so favorably. He thinks the capital is herself sleeping on a volcano in the lack of a sewerage system. "The soil beneath the whole city is impregnated with disease germs," said he. "Sooner or later, perhaps soon, typhoid fever will become prevalent. The city is now a hotbed for contagious diseases in case such should gain a foothold here."

"The hotels, business center and residence localities are alike in an unhealthy condition. Were some of the residence lots here, in their present condition, in San Francisco, I would not dare stop upon them over night. The natural condition of things is all that could be desired. But the town has grown up and all the filth belonging to a city of the years past has gone into the ground, until it is saturated with it."

"What's to be done? A sewerage system must be supplied. There must be perfect drainage and it must come at once, or the cost will be more than for a dozen sewerage systems. Let the Government issue bonds for city drainage. But if this has to wait until the next Legislature in 1898, let the merchants and business men take hold of the matter. It will pay them to do it. For I tell you if something is not done and done quickly the results will be most serious."

A FINE PRESENT.

A Citizen Makes an Addition to the Punahou Art Gallery.

James L. McCandless has presented to Oahu College the beautiful oil painting of Hugo Fisher of a scene on the Merced river, Yosemite. The painting is the largest and handsomest of the entire collection. Its price was $375, and was considered cheap at that. Mr. Fisher will superintend the placing of the painting in Paupali hall at Punahou, he being considered best able to adapt it to the light effects.

All who have examined the painting have pronounced it a gem of artistic beauty. Mr. Fisher devoted a great deal of time to developing its delicate shades. Professor Hosmer is delighted with it. The painting will be sent to the college during the afternoon and will be placed in the assembly hall tomorrow.

ACTIVE COMPANY 3.

Company 3, Citizen's Guard, held a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. hall at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. It was called for the purpose of electing new members and lasted only a few minutes. Four names were balloted upon, and five more were referred to the investigating committee. Another meeting on membership and transfers will be held next week.

HEALANI CLUB.

F. W. McChesney and Walter A. Wall were elected directors at last evening's special meeting of the Healani Boat Club. There was informal discussion of that talk of the Leilani Club coming in and of the September regatta.

YAMATOYA SHIRTS.

IS AFTER THE HOODLUMS

DETECTIVE KAAPA IS ROUNDING UP SOME BAD BOYS.

Curfew Law Fails to Restrain These Lads—Making Life Miserable for Chinese—Are Several Gangs.

David Kaapa made another round-up of Liliha street hoodlums Thursday night. The boys now in custody are Hale, Keoli, Tommy, Antone Nelson, Walter Woods and two others who refuse to give their names. They all live in the neighborhood of the troubles.

The direct charge against the boys is assault and battery on a Chinaman. This is by no means the first offense. Every night for more than a month these little hoodlums have congregated on the streets and attacked every pale that happened by. They would start in by pulling the coat of the inoffensive yellow man. This would start a fight in which all the boys would jump the Chinaman and give him a thrashing. Stones were frequently used.

Wednesday night specials were sent out to watch the hoodlums and get the names of four of them. They were arrested later. The watch was again set Thursday night, and the others named above were dragged in. Kaapa says several are out yet and will be likewise punished. An eye is also being kept on a Beretania street gang which engages in the same mischief.

COURT MARTIAL.

The trial of Capt. Good by the military court will be started again at 7:30 this evening. The session will be held in the old house hall at the Executive Building. Lieut. Col. Fisher will preside and W. A. Kinney will officiate as Judge Advocate. A. G. M. Robertson is the defendant's attorney. The entire proceedings will be open to the public.

RATHER RADICAL.

Communication that Argues for Expediency Instead of Ethics.

Star Newspaper:—If the line officers of the National Guard of Hawaii have made a move on behalf of their men in uniform in need of employment it is certainly a step in the right direction. Great abuses have been perpetrated and are of monthly occurrence by heads of bureaus, where by strangers and others have been given preference over those of the N. G. H. entitled to first consideration when vacancies in Government departments occur. Enough of those abuses have already taken place to drive the parties affected to desperation. They remain quiet, however, thinking possibly that a day of change may come. Then amongst the dealers. If Quartermaster Ashley will examine his bills he will find that a greatly lauded enterer buys from out and out "rebels," while the same class of goods and prices are obtainable from members of the N. G. H., who also deal in supplies.

VOLUNTEER.

P. S.—The "rebel" dealers referred to have heavy claims against the Government for alleged false imprisonment.

WHEELMEN LUAW.

Riders and Trainers at the Residence of E. R. Hendry.

Mr. Tom V. King gave an elaborate luau at the residence of E. R. Hendry last evening in honor of D. Crozier, vice-president of the H. A. A. C. and trainer of the Tribune riders.

The table was placed in the yard and protected from the elements by a lanai, very tastefully decorated with flags, bunting, etc.

Those present were: E. R. Hendry, Hay Wodehouse, D. Crozier, Tom King, Chas. Crane, W. W. Harris, D. H. Hitchcock, H. Wilder, Emil Berger, G. Martin, F. B. Damon, F. Janke, W. Lyle, Geo. Angus, Ruby Dexter, P. Lishman, J. F. Silva and others. The feast lasted some two hours and all pronounced themselves highly entertained.

Numerous toasts were introduced, one to "Our Trainer," another "The Tribune." "To the Boys and H. A. A. C." The replies were as rich as the originals. The boys adopted a new yell, "Whe-u." This is supposed to be long drawn out in order to make it sound correct. Numerous photos were taken and had a flash light been at hand more would have been obtained.

WINNING A NEAT BEAUTY

HOW PAT CURTIS CAME TO OWN THE YACHT SPRAY.

She Was to Be a Reward—Failed to Earn the Prize—Possession and a Secret Served as the Price Money.

As a matter of fact Capt. Pat Curtis never paid a cent for the yacht Spray. She simply fell into his hands in the mysterious maneuverings of luck, as it were. Pat owns her all right and has the papers to show for it; but farther than that—well, it doesn't matter now.

When the Norma was due with the British Columbia cargo of dope aboard Curtis was "engaged" by a Honolulu hui to pick it up off Lanai and land it at Pearl Harbor. Of course he was to meet the Norma and effect a transfer in the regular way. But he failed in this and the opium afterward went into the sea. A part of it was gotten up and delivered and collected on.

At the time Curtis was engaged he was sent by town men, the same with whom all the contracts were made, to strike a trade for the Spray. At that time Jack Calway owned the trim little craft and offered to part with her for $500. The "other gentlemen" put up the money and the yacht was signed over to Curtis. The understanding between the pirate and his employers was that if he succeeded in landing the Norma's cargo he was to keep the Spray as his reward.

As is well known only a part of the cargo has ever been landed. So, after the failure to connect, the employers spoke to Curtis and demanded the yacht on the grounds that the conditions had not been fulfilled. "No, no," said the old pirate with a wink of the other eye, "the Spray belongs to me. I've got the best of this game. You dare not say a word."

And that was an appalling fact. There has never been a suit on the part of the real owners of the Spray for her recovery and never will be. Pat Curtis took her as his part of the profits on the Norma's cargo.

LAND CASE

Suit Involving Sale of a Large Tract on This Island

Bruce Waring & Co. have begun suit against John C. Lane, administrator of the estate of W. C. Lane, to recover the sum of $500 claimed as commissions on the sale of the landed estate at Makao to A. Hocking of Maui.

Plaintiffs claim that the sale was bona fide, that Hocking was and is ready to pay the purchase price of $10,000 and that only by a process issued on petition of the defendant has the transfer not been made before. The case will come up at the August term.

Y. H. I.

The Y. H. I. will elect new officers in September. Nominations will be made at the meeting to be held two weeks hence. Annual reports are now in course of preparation. The organization is in a flourishing condition. Fifty-one good-standing members are enrolled.

Made Her Feel Well

The physician was surprised to find the head of the household at the door with a shotgun.

"Why, what's the matter?" stammered the doctor.

"That there Seattle beer you give my wife, she says is makin' her feel like a new woman, and I want you to understand that no new woman business goes in this house. Fust thing I know she'll be out makin' speeches."

THE COMPANY known throughout the world as the ## CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

Having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of the excellent liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, it has become important to all to have knowledge of the Company and its products. The great value of the remedy as a medicinal agent, and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually and by the high approval of most eminent physicians.

The California Fig Syrup Co. was organized more than twelve years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy, which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in its effects than any other known. In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, and healthful in their tendencies, but the medicinal properties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative, and to act most beneficially.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxative or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

All the Inter Island Co's. boats are out today.

The steamer W. G. Hall will return from windward Hawaii on Tuesday next.

The schooners Luka and Kaulila sailed yesterday afternoon; the former for Kohala and the latter for leeward Oahu.

The barkentine Amelia, Capt. Ward, will leave for Port Townsend tomorrow. She finished discharging her lumber today.

The steamer Waimaleale will likely come down from the Hawaii coast tomorrow. She will bring the next news from the big island.

It is reported along the water front that the Wilder's Steamship Co. intend securing another steamer capable of carrying 10,000 bags of sugar.

The bark Highland Light is alongside the derelict Sumatra in the stream having her damaged mainmast substituted. The vessel will leave for Port Angeles as soon as repairs are effected.

The steamer Kaena came up from Punaluu yesterday afternoon with a cargo of rice for the S. S. Australia. She left again at 8 o'clock this morning for Puukii. The little steamer made a splendid showing as she went out the harbor.

Things along the waterfront are dull at present, although the arrival of the S. S. Australia and S. S. Miovera will liven matters up. The merchantmen Iolani and Belmont and the S. S. Asloun were the only vessels discharging today. The ship Starbuck is getting ready for sea and the bark Kosciusko will likely berth during the day. During this lull in shipping matters dock laborers are not lost in finding something for idle hands to do, and visitors to the water front will notice groups of men under the wharf sheds indulging in card games and other pastimes.

How a Boston Man Saw a Sun Spot.

A Boston man living out in the suburbs has discovered a fact that may interest a good many persons. What he found was that it is quite possible to see the larger spots that appear on the sun's surface with out glass or lens of any kind.

The shutters of the observer's house happened to be closed, and through a tiny hole near the top of them a beam of sunlight found its way to the floor. There is left an image, clear and round, tinged at the circumference with a fringe of blue and orange. The whole appearance of the beam as projected reminded the spectator of the image of the sun taken on paper through a telescope, and he got a sheet of white note paper in order to test his surmise. The result confirmed it. A beautiful round image of the sun fell on the paper, and near the center thereof could be seen a bluish spot, which moved about with the image whenever the paper was shifted. The bluish colored object was a veritable sun spot, and the observer watched it by the simple means described for several days until the revolution of the sun had carried it out of sight.—Boston Herald

TELEPATHY TALES.

DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY ON MIND ACTING UPON MIND.

The Novelist Believes That the Existence of Telepathy Has Been Scientifically Established—His Curious Personal Experiences.

A writer like David Christie Murray, who has taken all life for the field of his art as a novelist and draws upon the whole planet for his illustrations, must have had rich experiences in the domain which the Psychical Investigation society has chosen for its own. But he does not overload his books with material of this kind, nor is his conversation much weighted with the burden of things between heaven and earth that we do not usually dream of. And yet when prompted to do so he can speak on these subjects not only with knowledge, but also with eloquence. He is fitted to do this, first, by his fine mental organization, for he has been psychically sensitive since boyhood, and next by the many psychical experiences which have fallen to his lot during a long, active and adventurous life, lived among many people and many parts of the world. He does not, of course, believe in the aberrations of "occultism," but he is convinced that beneath the ordinary experiences of life, perceptible to the senses, there exist spiritual phenomena which will repay investigation and which science is only now beginning to learn.

One day recently Mr. Murray talked to a Boston Herald man on the special subject of telepathy, and after showing from his own personal experiences how mind may act upon mind at a distance, independently of the ordinary means of intercommunication, he went on to say: "Here is a case in point. My eldest brother, who died in 1865, was at sea as midshipman on board a merchant vessel. He sailed under a drunken captain, who behaved to him with horrible cruelty. He got the seeds of consumption on that voyage. While he was at sea my mother was nursing her uncle, James Withers Marsh, and in the very hour of his death the old man, who had been tenderly attached to my brother, sat up and said aloud: 'Let the lad alone. Have you no bowels?' My mother asked him what he was thinking of, and he cried, 'That captain is ill treating poor Jack horribly.'"

"The first officer, a Mr. Mundy, took command of the ship when Captain Gregory died in delirium tremens and was buried at the Azores. Mundy brought my brother home, and he was told the story of the old man's dying words. He produced his own notebook and showed that on the day of the old man's death he had made an entry, because he intended to indict the captain for his cruelty on their return to a British port. What is most singular is that when he came to work out the difference of latitude he found the entry in his private log and the time of the old man's words coincided to a moment. There are thousands of such instances reported, and it seems to me quite idle to dismiss them as mere coincidences. Coincidence has a very long arm indeed, especially in drama and fiction. But I think it hardly reaches so far as that."

"Not very long ago," Mr. Murray resumed, "I had a very curious personal experience. Two people had been dining with me—one a very dear and intimate personal friend, the other a comparative stranger. When they had left me, I distinctly heard a personal conversation within my own mind. I do not pretend that the words would have been audible to anybody else. That would be nonsense. But I heard it within my mind and recognized the voices of the two men. They discussed my own character and the action I had taken about a certain matter at that time. The comparative stranger was critical and unfriendly, and my old friend fought my cause with great warmth. I questioned him afterward, and he assured me that such a conversation had taken place as he and his comrade had driven in the carriage to the club from my house."

VIEWS OF SIR CHARLES

EXPRESSES APPREHENSION CON-CERNING LI HUNG CHANG.

Prospects of a Franco-Russian Alliance—Germany Also—English Interests—Woman Suffrage.

LONDON.—England is worried over the fact that Li Hung Chang has been so enthusiastically received by Russia and Germany, and her pride is not soothed by Marshal Yamagata's neglect of her. Sir Charles Dilke seems deeply impressed with the ominous tendency of Li's negotiations. He said yesterday: "The events of Li Hung Chang's journey undoubtedly have a very disagreeable appearance for this country. Russia, France and Germany have lately been acting together in the Far East, and it now looks as if they will continue to do so, although it is to Germany's interest as much as it is to ours that Russia should be prevented from absorbing the north of China and France the south. But Germany, for some reason which has not yet been revealed and which, conjecturally, is fraught in some way with disadvantage to us, has joined this combination, and it evidently has been renewed now for some further period. Our interest is to keep the trade of China open. The interest of the United States is the same, and so is Germany's, but in furthering the objects of Russia and France she must have a prospect of some compensatory advantage."

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The woman's suffrage appeal that was laid on the table recently in Westminster Hall bears the signature of 257,000 women—namely, 57,800 from the metropolitan constituencies, 140,700 from the counties of England and Wales, 151,270 from Scotland, 7320 from Ireland. Among such numbers it is difficult to trace all the special names of note, but the signatures include the heads of nearly all the colleges for women and of a large proportion of the head mistresses of high and other public schools for girls, and of women serving on boards of guardians and school boards. The leading women in the medical profession have signed, and a number of the most eminent in literature and art, besides many of wide social influence and leading workers in the many movements for general well-being.

THOUSANDS DIE

Important Points About "Purifine," the Great Disinfectant.

(S. F. Post.)

In these enlightened days of the nineteenth century it is an acknowledged fact that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and that ounce of prevention was never better exemplified than in the use of the great disinfectant known as "Purifine." The public has had many disinfectants brought to their attention. Some were good, some were bad, and some were simply indifferent, but none ever yet placed on the market combined all the many good qualities of "Purifine." In the first place it was left to the manufacturers of "Purifine" to compound a disinfectant and antiseptic that would be odorless, a most important matter as users of disinfectants well know that the odor of the disinfectant, especially when in constant use, becomes sickening and disagreeable, oftentimes as much so as the odor or miasma to be killed.

In a word, "Purifine" is odorless, and its work, removal, not creating one odor to cover another. It comes in a highly concentrated form, and when diluted with two parts water there is not the slightest odor, rendering it suitable for places where food is kept. In the bathroom, sleeping room or about the house generally it is indispensable.

Then again it is non-poisonous, an all important feature, for if used carelessly by children or servants there are no harmful results, and it is also utterly safe to have around the house.

As a sample of its harmlessness it can even be used in refrigerators, and, if accidentally spilled no harm is done, and it is particularly adapted for this use. The uses for which "Purifine" is used are almost limitless, and to enumerate them would fill pages of The Post. For flushing sewers, and for cleansing sinks, drains, horns, urinals, water closets, floor cloths and the bed clothes from sickness or infection it is invaluable.

Then again the price is so low that it can be used lavishly, and for hospitals, asylums, public buildings, hotels, restaurants, school rooms, laundries, dairies, markets, stables, packing houses and canneries where a disinfectant is used in large quantities, this is a point to be considered. One gallon is used to a barrel of water, and for general use one tablespoonful to a pint of water.

"Purifine" is a sure preventive against cholera, la grippe, small pox, diphtheria, all fevers and contagious diseases. As an antiseptic and healer "Purifine" is invaluable, for it relieves and cures sore throat, catarrh, stings and bites of insects, burns and scalds, chilblains, sore eyes, pimples, and for the bath it is a delightful adjunct. It will instantly stop any flow of blood, and physicians will understand its full value from its principal constituents, bromine and chlorine. It is prepared by the Fitch Chemical Company of Fay City, Mich. The Hollister Drug Company has been appointed sole agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

Paine's Celery Compound Gave Health and Strength to a Man of Ninety.

No other medicine is so popular with the old folks as Paine's Celery Compound. It cures their infirmities, and gives them new life and vigor. What it did for Moses Perin, it will do for all who use it faithfully.

CORONADO BEACH, CAL., Oct. 2, 1894.

Dear Sirs:—I took Paine's Celery Compound for the grip and it did its work well. I used no medicine except this, and found it so good that I did not want any other. My general health has been good ever since I used Paine's Celery Compound which did me more good than any medicine that I have taken for a long time. I worked every day last week although I shall be ninety years old the 4th of next March, and today am feeling splendid and am speaking a good word for your medicine.

Use for a Cane.

Even though you have suffered for years, be not discouraged. A medicine that cured so severe a case as that of George W. Freeburger of Shelton, must possess wonderful powers of healing. Use Paine's Celery Compound and be made well.

SHELTON, WASH., Nov. 12, 1894.

Gentlemen:—Three years ago last Christmas I was completely prostrated,—nerves all gone. I took everything that I could hear of, but got little relief. I could not walk even so slowly even with the aid of a cane, for fifty yards without stopping to rest. About two months ago I commenced taking Paine's Celery Compound, and although I have taken not quite two bottles, I now have no use for a cane and can get around in very good shape for a man over sixty, who has been an invalid ever since the spring of 1892.

FRIDAY, JULY 17, 1896.

There have been no obsequies for the naturalization idea yet and it will survive as long as the spirit of fairness lives. In this connection The Star wishes to say that so far as it knows in these premises, there is absolutely no partnership, agreement or understanding or union of purpose or policy between the American League or any of its managers and the advocates of the naturalization idea. Those who conjure up this view must be plotters. They are too suspicious and underhanded to be anything else.

Mr. J. L. McCandless is doing a graceful act in presenting Hugo Fisher's best painting seen here to Oahu college art gallery. It is worthy a place there, and as Professor Hosmer says, the generosity and taste of Mr. McCandless will not be forgotten. That the scene portrayed is American is pleasing. Now what next is wanted for that gallery, or really what should have been given preference, is a typical Hawaiian scene, say a volcano picture, from the brush of the Hawaiian artist, D. Howard Hitchcock, whose work will compare favorably with any that may be in the collection.

The Star's explanation of the operation of the new Tax Act had a bombshell effect on the community. It was to a great many the very first hint of the multiplication by ten and the remainder of the method of calculation. There is condemnation both of the plan and the almost secret and surely arbitrary manner of its adoption. This rule of the assessors in chief has the full force of a statute. It develops that in making it they consulted very few, if any, of the citizens most interested. By the latter the judgment of the assessors is challenged. As stated, it will be questioned in the courts. All men in business who had not taken up their tax schedule are astonished. The most thoughtful men, those least selfish, point with amazement at the tremendous sudden increase of the toll upon enterprise. Others are looking for flaws in the new act. It is now recalled, as The Star stated at the time, that the rush shipments of sugar before July 1 were quite unnecessary.

OFFICERS AND MEN.

The Advertiser, which has never shown more than a purely business interest in the uniformed volunteer force of the Republic, is out with a rebuke to the officers for looking after their men and with a chunk or two of advice that is entirely gratuitous. Most of the officers of the N. G. H. have been in the service a long time. The men now wearing the straps are the men who have built up the Regiment. That they have been successful in organizing, maintaining and drilling them are told by all capable of judging an efficient and creditable force. Both officers and men serve without pay. There is not a man in the staff, field, line or the ranks who does not willingly give much time and frequently cash from his pocket for the benefit of the service. The portion of the Regiment comprised in the Six Companies of Volunteers stands a handsome and valuable actuality in the nature of a free offering to the Republic. At all times those high in authority have spoken words of encouragement and praise to the officers and men, giving the assurance that their work was appreciated. From a newspaper source there comes the suggestion that the citizen soldier attend strictly to military business. Why, even the paid men are not required to surrender identity and individuality. For more than three years some of the best men in the land have worn the uniform of the N. G. H., have drilled once or twice or more a week, have paraded, have practiced shooting, have responded to calls for defense of the Republic. They have attended pretty faithfully to military business. There is no sign that they will become lax in duty or less devoted and faithful. On the subject of ethics when the welfare of the men or the good of the service is in consideration, there has been no advertisement for counsel. It is safe to say that those acting in this direction know what they are doing and will render all due respect to both discipline and the ordinary proprieties.

The earnest men in the six companies of volunteers are from all the walks of Honolulu life. It may be unfortunate or the result of poor management that most of these men are required to work for a living. That lowers them in the estimation of some people, but makes no difference with others. In the Six Companies the officers are chosen by popular vote. Thus they are given confidence and designated as leaders. When one of the men finds himself out of employment he tells his trouble to his company commanders. The latter are in duty bound, according to their ideas, to put the men in the way of getting a place if possible. Instead of working to this end separately, the officers have lately been endeavoring to make their efforts for the men more fruitful by a co-operative movement. There is no politics in it at all. Men must have work to remain in the country and in the service. The membership of the companies is none too large. Patriotism, sociability, friendship for leaders, will not dull the appetite of a man or support his family if he has one. Neither will a dollar a day in the mud and furnish his own shovel do very much better for him. Both paid and volunteer soldiering are considered honorable callings in most lands. There can be no steadiness or harmony of organization unless officers and men are in touch. Those wearing the straps would be recreant indeed if they failed to use every possible effort within bounds to favor and advance the men under them. This they are doing and will continue to do so long as necessity arises and there are no orders from headquarters to the contrary. No such orders are expected. On the contrary the volunteer force certainly enjoys the fullest confidence and friendship of the several headquarters. But it must be remarked that subordinates, in charge of details, frequently give "the cold shoulder" to wearers of uniforms.

IMPROVED "ALPHA" DELAVAL CREAM SEPARATOR.

Dr. Gustav DeLaval, the inventor of the DeLaval Separator, is one of the most practical inventors of this century and has been fitly termed the "Edison of Dairying." Within the last few years the DeLaval Separator has revolutionized the methods of dairying.

It has alone brought about the broad development and universally demonstrated the superiority of the new system over the old methods.

The general elements of consideration in the use of a separator is: First, that the separation should be complete, which is naturally the primary object of a machine, and the second and most important one is that it accomplishes the separation in the most practical and economical manner. This might be done with an ordinary bucket if a speed of 1,550 or 20,000 revolutions per minute could be obtained, with the requisite machinery, which of course is impossible.

It has been solved in the construction of the DeLaval Separator, which are "guaranteed to be as represented and to fill all the claims made for them, and are sold subject to the guarantee of the unqualified superiority in every material respect to all other machines and systems. Comparative tests in demonstration of such fact, with and all other separators and creaming systems, are most earnestly invited and desired at all times.

I then got one of our druggists to order some of them. I received the box of Tabules by mail, which I have taken according to directions from the Spirit Side, and must say that it is one of the most wonderful medicines for liver and stomach that I ever saw. I wish these tabules were in every family."

W.W. DIMOND'S

Put a ring around the word "Opportunity"—the occasion makes it. Never in the history of mercantile transactions in Honolulu have the people had such a golden opportunity to select a lamp as today. A manufacturer who had more than he knew what to do with, more than he had space to put them, wrote us of his troubles. We had none of our own so we listened to him. Our stock of lamps is the result of his tale of woe and you get the benefit.

A black lamp that will give a bright light is not a fad, but a style that will remain until "New Hawaii" shall become old. Being sombre in color they furnish with any decorations you may have in your room and any color shade that suits your fancy will look well on the lamp.

For a dinner table nothing furnishes the table better than black banquet lamps. We have them, not cumbersome, but of a height that will beautify rather than detract from the other features. We have piano lamps, hall lamps, boudoir lamps and every other character of lamp that ever was made. The prices are so low that it would injure our business to put them in this column.

GOING FOR THE "GRAND"

HENLEY REGATTA COURSE AND
CHIEF EVENTS.The Contest in Which Yale Entered—
Former Winners—Bob Cook Stroke
—Strict Rule of Costumes.

The Henley course is situated between two locks, Marsh and Hambleton, about three and a quarter miles apart; the stream, which, especially in summer, is slow, being rendered still slower by prohibiting boats from passing through the locks while the racing is going on. The course is about one mile, five hundred and fifty yards long, and used to begin below Regatta Island and end above Phyllis Court, but nowadays the starting line runs between the Berkshire bank of the river and Regatta Island, and the winning post is nearer Henley bridge.

The principal events at Henley Regatta are the Grand Challenge Cup, the Ladies' Challenge Plate, and the Thames Challenge Cup, all for eight-oars; the Stewards', the Visitors', and the Wyfold Challenge Cups for four-oars; the Silver Goblets for pair-oars, and the Diamond Sculls for single scullers. The most important of these is "The Grand," which may be compared for by any crew of amateurs who are members of any university or public school, or officers of the army or navy, or members of any amateur club established at least one year before the day of entry. An amateur, in the opinion of the Henley authorities, is one who has never taken part in any open competition for a stake, or competed against a professional for a prize, taught any kind of athletic exercise for profit, been employed in or about boats for wages, or who is by trade a mechanic, artisan, or laborer, or who has ever been employed in any menial duty.

Of the fifty-seven races for "The Grand," twenty-seven have been won by crews from colleges of Oxford or Cambridge, and several others by the Leander, the Cambridge Subscription Rooms, or other crews largely composed of "Old Blues." Last year the Cornell eight entered for "The Grand," and won their first heat, the Leander crew, which was drawn against them, not starting; they lost their second heat. This year the Yale eight entered for "The Grand."

Yale has a splendid crew, the average weight of men being 175 pounds, and the average height 5 feet 11 1/2 inches; four of the crew rowed in the 1895 eight. The Yale men row the "Bob Cook" stroke, which Mr. R. J. Cook taught them in 1873, as the result of his observations of the style of rowing adopted by the London Rowing Club and the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. It is very hard to predict the result of a boat race, for time tests (which it is the fashion in England to pay little regard to) are unusually fallacious in contests depending greatly on wind and stream. But it is interesting to note that the fastest time in which "The Grand" has been won is six minutes and fifty-one seconds in 1891; and that the average time since the introduction of sliding seats is about seven and one-half minutes.

In 1878 a Columbia College crew entered for "The Stewards'" cup for four-oars, but failed to win its trial heat; the Shoe-wae-matte crew got into the final heat, but was beaten. The Columbia College Crew, however, won "The Visitors'" for four-oars, a race open only to colleges and public schools. "The Diamonds" were tried for unsuccessfully by American scullers in 1872, 1878, and 1879.

Henley Regatta is controlled by a President and Board of Stewards, almost all of whom are famous oarsmen. It is interesting to observe that a rule requires every competitor to be clothed from shoulder to knee, and to wear a jersey with sleeves. There is in the minds of the English public school and university men (who set the fashion in all such matters) a strong and invincible prejudice against the sleeveless jersey, and the wearing of it is considered conclusive evidence of a man's lack of good breeding and education; in English parlance, it is a badge of the "cad." To guard against professionals from foreign countries entering Henley Regatta, entries by competitors out of the United Kingdom must be sworn to before a Notary Public, and certified by a Mayor or British Consul.

HISTORY UP TO DATE

HENRY VIII GETS TOM MORE'S OPINION OF THE NEW WOMAN.

Octavius and Antony Meet Again, and the Former Gives the Latter Some Good Advice and a Piece of His Mind—Why They Had Their Quarrel.

After the death of Charles I it occurred to Oliver Cromwell that now was the time for him to assert himself. Backed by a few soldiers of what had formerly been the royal guard, he made his way to the house of commons, and in a menacing tone, which admitted of no dispute, he shouted, pointing to the mace on the table, "Take away that beauble!"

The mace, which was nothing but a short stick with a gold knob on the top and which represented the powers and privileges of parliament, was immediately spirited away.

"Now, git!" exclaimed the protector in a harsh voice. The members of the "long parliament" slowly filed out of the house, disconsolately counting the silver in their pockets to see if they had the wherewithal to pay for cab hire, and murmured:

"This is what comes of asking for change for a sovereign!"

It seemed to be pretty poor change, for there wasn't the sign of even half a crown in the lot, and it was not until the accession of Charles II that England was fully decided upon a rigid policy of monometallism.

It was some time after the execution of Jane Seymour, the fifth wife of Henry VIII of England, that that monarch was conversing affably with Sir Thomas More.

"Say, Tommy," he remarked, with a smile, "engaged as you are in writing that book of yours, 'Utopia,' I should think you would have had many deep thoughts about women. Ain't that so?"

"Most indubitably, sire," rejoined the philosopher.

"Well, then," said the king, "what is your opinion about the new woman?"

"I should say, sire," he replied at length, "that she was inclined to lose her head."

With the recollections of the fates of Jane Seymour and Anne Boleyn in his mind, it was not strange that the philosopher answered thus, but he was too local in his ideas, for it so happened that Catherine Parr, with whom Henry was contracting an alliance, was so singularly fortunate as to survive her royal husband or she would infallibly have got it precisely where, to paraphrase an old Anglo-Saxon simile, the bottle got the cork.

The meeting between Octavius and Antony is worthy of comment.

"See here, Tony," remarked the future emperor of Rome, "I can't say I like the way you're carrying on. It's scarcely decent, to say the least. I gave you my sister, Octavia, for a second wife after the death of Fulvia, and you told me you were going to settle down. What do I find?"

"Darned if I know!" ejaculated Antony. "I haven't lost anything."

"Now, see here, Mark," replied Octavius, getting warm, "I don't want any of your lip. I repeat, What do I find? Simply this: Here you go on in the same old way with that baggage of a Cleopatra, making a silly spectacle of yourself when you might be earning the undying honor of posterity by winning all sorts of glory in battle."

"To blazes with posterity!" said Antony excitedly. "I'm looking out for a good time for myself. Glory may be all right for you and the other boys, but I don't want it. Cleopatra is all right. She's a daisy. I'm dead in love with her and so is she with me."

"Do you really think that Cleopatra loves you for yourself alone?" queried his brother-in-law, with a pitying smile.

"Cert!"

"Well, you are a soft Mark," and with a contemptuous sniff Octavius turned on his heel and resolved to do up Antony at the forthcoming battle of Actium or bust.—New York World.

Unjust.

"You supervising principals don't have anything to do. You sit in your cozy office, read the newspapers and stop once in awhile to push an electric call button to call up some boy or teacher," said a councilman to Principal Daniel N. Hutchin of the Northern Liberties school.

"You are mistaken," rejoined Mr. Hutchin severely. "You are very much mistaken. I do not push the electric button. I have a boy there to push it for me."—Philadelphia Call.

Perspective.

Fresco Painter—Why do you say my perspective is faulty?

Owner of Apartment House—Well, my tenants are all kicking because the alcoves you painted upon the walls are not large enough each to hold a bed.—Detroit Tribune.

The Want Filled.

"Wobbles needed exercise so urgently that he bought a bicycle, but he never rides."

"Never rides?"

"No, he never needs any more exercise after he has pumped up his tire."—Truth.

It Depends.

"Do you think that it is ladylike for a woman to ride a bicycle?" she inquired.

"Yes," he replied. "Unless she insists on riding like a gentleman."—Washington Star.

Too Sensitive to Live.

"Diffenderfer, what makes you keep your flannels on so late?"

"Because I own my underwear, and I would have to lay out cash for cod liver oil."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Irritating and Disfiguring ERUPTIONS On the Face, Cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Remarkable Experience of Miss Dorothy Maher, Fitzroy, Victoria, whose portrait we are privileged to give below:

"I take pleasure in testifying to the great benefit I derived from Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I suffered from eruptions on my face of a very irritating and vexatious nature. For a considerable time I experimented with various so-called blood medicines, but without any alleviation of my trouble. At last, your famous Sarsaparilla being strongly recommended to me, I began to use it, and after taking two bottles it was most gratifying to see and feel the effect in allaying the irritation and reducing the eruptions. When I had used three bottles the eruptions disappeared altogether, without leaving a mark on my face, and I have never been troubled with anything of the kind since."

WITH THE FIRST REGIMENT

OLD RELIABLE "A" TURNS OUT
FORTY-SEVEN MEN.

C. G. and H. Tonight—Inspection—
Dress Rehearsal—Court of Inquiry—
New Non-Com. Board—Match.

Company A had the regulation forty-seven men out for drill Thursday evening. Capt. Smith instructed his men in the manual in the armory and then went outside for the marching.

During the inspection Wednesday Minister Cooper took occasion to look through all the company rooms at the armory and was pleased with what he saw.

Companies C, G and H will drill this evening. C will occupy the drill shed and the others will go outside.

The D minstrels will have their final rehearsal this evening. It will be held in the old barracks so as not to interfere with the drill of the companies. The troupe is in fine trim and the best entertainment of all is confidently promised.

Capt. Camara and two of his sergeants were taking a ride yesterday in a decorated hack. They explained that they were spending some of that cash prize.

The report of the Court of Inquiry on the sight episode has been submitted to the Minister of Foreign Affairs. While the findings can not be used directly as evidence in the trial this evening, the investigations pursued by the court have served to locate most of the witnesses on important features of the case. A second meeting of the court was held this afternoon.

The report that the barracks force will be reduced to one company is idle talk. No such movement is contemplated for this year.

Lieut. Morse, Company G, is still away on Maui. He is expected to return next week.

The new non-com. board will have about a dozen subjects before it at its first meeting. The report that the new board will be a lenient one can not be trusted. Tactics is a pretty good thing to study.

James Olds, Jr., is the latest addition to Company H.

The match between the short teams of B and D will begin at 1:30 p. m. at Macdonald's tomorrow afternoon. Company D will not have drill this evening.

"We had an epidemic of dysentery in this vicinity last summer," says Samuel S. Pollock, of Briceland, Cal. "I was taken with it and suffered severely until some one called my attention to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I procured a bottle and felt better after the first dose. Before one-half of the bottle had been used I was well. I recommended it to my friends and their experience was the same. We all unite in saying it is the best." For sale by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for H. I.

A Society Man's Predicament.
A very amusing story has just reached me concerning a prominent young society man who has just returned from Chicago. He was boarding at the home of relative while there, and as large crowds were flocking in during the last week he was accommodating as to give up his room and sleep on a sofa in the parlor. One morning he overslept himself, and as his door was unlocked what was his surprise to find three pretty Louisville young women enter the room. He had presence of mind enough to roll under the sofa and back into a dark corner before they threw open the shutters. But, although he had tucked himself away, he had neglected to hide his clothes, which were thrown across a rocking chair. The girls saw the clothes, but believing they had been left there accidentally by the lady of the house, thought nothing about them and began a lively chat about the matters of the day.

The young man did not mind his imprisonment at first, but grew very nervous as the minutes gradually lengthened into an hour. He stood it for two hours, but at last grew so exasperated that he thumped upon the floor and meekly put his head out from under the sofa and asked the young women to leave him until he put on his clothes. It is needless to say that their embarrassment was great and that none of them mentioned it while in Chicago, but as the young man has since recovered from the shock he has been unable to restrain himself from telling a few friends of his awkward predicament.—Louisville Courier Journal.

The cleanest, brightest light and really, in the long run, the cheapest and best light for use in the family residence, is the incandescent electric light. Safe; nothing could be safer. A few days ago a prominent gentleman of Honolulu came rushing down to the office of the Electric Company and said: "Give me figures for wiring my house, and I want it done at once; no more lamps for me. Last night a lamp tipped over and it came so near setting fire to the house and burning my children and I take no more risks."

This is the sentiment of quite a number in the past few weeks, who have ordered their houses fitted with the perfect light.

Then how about the great Relay Race on the 4th of July.

You read in "The Star" that the 5 miles was made in 13 minutes and 23 seconds by a Tribune, but we are inclined to think this is an error. To be sure this time was made by a Tribune rider, but to do it he had to have a Rambler, and every one knows that Geo. Martin, who holds the record for fastest time in the Relay Race, rode a Rambler Wheel and thus got there. The wheels we handle did not get their reputation in a day, but after a year of hard work on the part of the makers, and now the average racing man knows just about what to get for speed and wear. This is the reason that out of the 15 wheels ridden in the Relay Race 9 came from us.

CHAPTER XL.

The galley bent over to the wind and sped away, and I watched her go with-out regret, not thinking of our own hapless condition, but only of the brutal ferocity of that mad crew aboard her.

Their shouts of joy and diabolical laughter died away, and there was no sound but the lapping of the waves against the felucca's side. They had done their work thoroughly. Not a man arose from the heaps of butchered men, not a limb moved, but all were rigid, some lying in grotesque postures as the death agony had drawn them, and after the tumult that had prevailed this stillness of death was terrible. From looking over this ghastly picture I turned and clutched at Dawson's hand for some comforting sense of life and humanity.

We were startled at this moment by a light laugh from the cabin, whither Mr. Godwin had carried Moll, fainting with the horror of this bloody business, and going in there now we found her now lying in a little crib, light headed, clean out of her wits indeed, for she fancied herself on the dusty road to Valencia, taking her first lesson in the fandango from Don Sanchez. Mr. Godwin knelt by the cot side, with his arm supporting her head and soothing her the best he could. We found a little cask of water and a cup that he might give her drink, and then, seeing we could be of no further service, Dawson and I went from the cabin, our thoughts awaking now to the peril of our position, without sail in midsea.

And first we cast our eyes all round about the sea, but we could descry no sail save the galley—and that at a great distance—nor any sign of land. Next, casting our eyes upon the deck, we perceived that the thick stream of blood that lay along that side bent over by the broken mast was greatly spread and not so black, but redder, which was only to be explained by the mingling of water, and this was our first notice that the felucca was filling and we going down.

Recovering presently from the stupor into which this suspicion threw us, we pulled to a hatch, and looking down into the hold perceived that this was indeed true, a puncheon floating on the water there within arms' reach. Thence, making our way quickly over the dead bodies, which failed now to terrify us, to the fore part of our felucca, we discovered that the shot which had hit us had started a plank, and that the water leaked in with every lap of a wave. So now, our wits quickened by our peril, we took a scimitar and a dirk from a dead janizary to cut away the cordage that lashed us to the fallen mast, to free us of that burden and right the ship if we might. But ere we did this Dawson, spying the great sail lying on the water, betought him to hack out a great sheet as far as we could reach, and this he took to lay over the started plank and staunch the leakage, while I severed the tackle and freed us from the great weight of the hanging mast and long spar. And certainly we thought ourselves safe when this was done, for the hull lifted at once and righted itself upon the water. Nevertheless we were not easy, for we knew not what other planks below the water line were injured, and we knew not how to sink our sheet or wind it over the faulty part. So, still further to lighten us, we mastered our qualms and set to work casting the dead bodies overboard. This horrid business at another time would have made me sick as any dog, but there was no time to yield to mawkish susceptibilities in the presence of such danger as menaced us.

Only when all was done I did feel very weakened and shaky, and my gorge rising at the look of my jerrin, all filthy with clotted blood, I tore it off and cast it in the sea, as also did Dawson, and so, to turn our thoughts, after washing of our hands and cleaning our feet, we looked over the side and agreed that we were no lower than we were, but rather higher for having lightened our burden. But no sail anywhere on the wide sea to add to our comfort.

Going into the cabin, we found that our dear Moll had fallen into a sleep, but was yet very feverish, as we could see by her frequent turning, her sudden starts and the dreamy, vacant look in her eyes when she opened them and begged for water. We would not add to Mr. Godwin's trouble by telling him of ours, our minds being still restless with apprehensions of the leak, but searching about and discovering two small, dry loaves we gave him one and took the other to divide betwixt us, Dawson and I, and truly we needed this refreshment, as our feeble, shaking limbs testified, after all our exertions of the night and day, it being now high noon, having eaten nothing since supper the night before. But, as I wished as we were, we must needs steal to the side and look over to mark where the water rose, and neither of us dared say the hull was no lower, for we perceived full well it had sunk somewhat in the last hour.

Jack took a bite of his loaf and offered me the rest, saying he had no stomach for food, but I could not eat my own, and so we thrust the bread in our breeches pockets and set to work, leaving everything overboard that might lighten us and forever a-straining our eyes to sight a ship. Then we set to devising means to make the sheet cling over the damaged planks, but to little purpose, and so Dawson essayed to get at it from the inside by going below, but the water was risen so high there was no room between it and the deck to breathe, and so again to wedging the canvas in from the outside till the sun sank. And by that time the water was beginning to leap up through the hatch-

way. Then, no longer able to baffle the truth, Jack turns to me and asks:

"How long shall we last?"

"Why," says I, "we have sunk no more than a foot these last six hours, and at this slow pace we may well last out eight or nine more ere the water comes over the bulwarks."

He shook his head ruefully, and pointing to a sluice hole in the side said he judged it must be all over with us when the water entered there.

"Why, in that case," says I, "let us find something to fill the sluice hole."

So, having nothing on deck, we went into the cabin on a pretense of seeing how Moll fared, and Jack sneaked away an old jacket and a stone bottle, and with these we stopped the sluice hole the best we could.

By the time we had made a job of this 'twas quite dark, and having nothing more to do but to await the end we stood side by side, too dejected to speak for some time, thinking of the cruelty of fate which rescued us from one evil only to plunge us in worse. At length Jack fell to talking in a low tone of his past life, showing how things had ever gone ill with him and those he was attached to.

"I think," says he in conclusion, "I am an unlucky man, Kit, one of those who are born to be a curse against their will to others rather than a blessing."

"Nonsense, Jack," says I, "'tis an idle superstition."

"Nay," says he, "I am convinced 'tis the truth. Not one of us here but would have been the happier had I died a dozen years ago. 'Tis all through me that we drown tonight."

"Nay, 'tis a blessing that we die all together, and none left to mourn."

"That may be for you and me, who have lived the best years of our life, but for those in there but just tasting the sweets of life, with years of joy unspent, 'tis another matter."

Then we were silent for awhile, till, feeling the water laving my feet, I asked if we should not now tell Mr. Godwin of our condition.

"'Twas in my mind, Kit," answers he. "I will send him out to you."

He went into the cabin, and Mr. Godwin coming out I showed him our condition. But 'twas no surprise to him. Only it being now about 3 in the morning, and the moon risen fair and full in the heavens, he casts his eyes along the silver path on the water in the hope of rescue, and finding none he grasps my hand and says:

His head laid upon the pillow beside his daughter.

"God's will be done! 'Tis a mercy that my dear love is spared this last terror. Our pain will not be long."

A shaft of moonlight entered the cabin, and there we perceived Dawson kneeling by the crib, with his head laid upon the pillow beside his daughter.

He rose and came out without again turning to look on Moll, and Mr. Godwin took his place.

"I feel more happy, Kit," says Jack, laying his hand upon my shoulder. "I do think God will be merciful to us."

"Aye, surely," says I, willfully mistaking his meaning. "I think the water hath risen no higher this last hour."

"I'll see how our shot hangs. Do you look if the water comes in yet at the sluice hole."

And so, giving my arm a squeeze as he slips his hand from my shoulder, he went to the fore part of the vessel, while I crossed to the sluice hole, where the water was spurting through a chink.

I rose after the jacket to staunch the leak, and turning toward Jack I perceived him standing by the bulwarks, with the moon beyond. And the next moment he was gone. And so ended the life of this poor, loving, unlucky man.

I know not whether it was this lightening of our burden, or whether at that time some accident of a fold in the sail, sucking into the leaking planks, staid the further ingress of waters, but certain it is that after this we sank no deeper to any perceptible degree, and so it came about that we were sighted by a fishing boat from Cartagena, a little after day-break, and were saved—we three who were left.

I have spent the last week at Hurst Court, where Moll and her husband have lived ever since Lady Godwin's death. They are making of hay in the meadows there, and 'twas sweet to see Moll and her husband, with their two boys, cooking the sweet hay. And all very merry at supper. Only one sad memory came down as I thought of poor Jack, sorrowing to think he could not see the happiness which, as much as our past troubles, was due to him.

THE END.

Among the numerous persons who have been cured of rheumatism by Chamberlain's Pain Balm, mention should be made of Mrs. Emily Thorne, of Toledo, Wash., who says: "I have never been able to procure any medicine that would relieve me of rheumatism like Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I have also used it for lame back with great success. It is the best liniment I have ever used, and I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends." For sale by all druggists and dealers. ## HAZING A DRUMMER.

RATTLING RECEPTION GIVEN A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

He Was the First of His Kind to Visit the Town, and He Took Too Serious a View of Himself—It Was a Put Up Job, "and Well Put Up, Too," Says the Colonel.

"It was while I was stationed at Fort Niobrara," Colonel George Barry began as he lighted a fresh cigar at the Lotus club the other night, "that the first commercial traveler—drummers some people call them—made his appearance in Valentine. He was a slim little fellow, and he seemed to have given a good deal of care to his personal adornment. Where he made his mistake was in taking too serious a view of himself."

"He dropped into Valentine on one of the first trains that got through over the new road. He had a couple of fancy yellow grips that must have looked very pretty to him, for he hugged them with him when he went into Dutch George's saloon to get a drink. His other accouterments were a very light striped suit and a jaunty little straw hat which aroused the mirth of the cowboys."

"It's surprising how little some fellows can pick up in traveling around the earth. Now, that chap didn't know any more than to drop those yellow grips right in front of Dutch George's bar and call for a Manhattan cocktail. Yes, sir, he wanted a Manhattan cocktail, and he wanted it quick too."

"You ought to have seen Dutch George look at him. Then he winked a couple of times at the row of cowboys sitting along the side of the room and turned around and began to mix a lot of things together for dear life. The little drummer leaned one arm on the bar and looked around at the row of cowboys without seeming to see the clump that had edged up behind him. Just as Dutch George had finished mixing whatever it was he had fixed up for the drummer, there was a pistol shot, and one of the boys sitting at the side of the room gave a yell and fell out of the chair in a heap on the floor. A big six shooter fell to the floor beside the little drummer, and a little cloud of smoke rose between the drummer and the bar."

"Well, sir, you can believe it or not, just as you like, but I am telling you that there was a row. Those cowboys yelled like the devil and swore that the drummer had shot the fellow who had fallen out of the chair. Three or four of them pulled their guns and were for shooting the drummer right there, but one fellow proposed to lynch him, and that proposition went through with a whoop. Some of them carried out the cowboy who was supposed to have been shot, and Dutch George began looking for a rope. The drummer just gasped two or three times and wilted down into a chair white as a ghost and scared almost to death. Once or twice he tried to say something, but all he could get out was a whisper, 'Why, gentlemen, I—why—what—I assure you.'"

"So they started to take the little chap out to hang him. There wasn't a tree there would serve in 40 miles, and they were a good deal puzzled as to how to get a satisfactory gallows on such short notice. They kept talking it over before the drummer in the coolest sort of way, and I tell you he was scared. Just as they got to the door of the saloon there was a shout that the sheriff was coming, and before any one could say 'Jack rabbit' the sheriff and another man were there with their six shooters in their hands, demanding the prisoner in the name of the law. The little drummer was so relieved that he could have hugged the sheriff, and he began to try to talk again. The sheriff told him to shut up if he wanted to get out alive and started with him for the door. But just as soon as his back was turned one of the cowboys shouted:

"Shoot him! Shoot him! Don't let him get away like that."

"The sheriff and his man swung round and whipped out their six shooters again. 'Keep back!' he shouted. 'I'll shoot the first galoot that touches this man so full of holes he won't need a grave.'"

"The cowboys took the challenge, and in less than a quarter of a second more than 40 pistol shots were fired. It sounded like an engagement of infantry. The room was full of smoke. Two or three of the cowboys fell to the floor, and the man who was with the sheriff went down with a groan, crying that he was done for. Somehow or other the sheriff got off all right, and while the shooting was liveliest dragged his man out into the street. The little drummer was near having a fit from fright, and the sheriff had lost his hat. It was a particularly fine sombrero, with a band heavily ornamented with silver, and the sheriff wouldn't have lost it to save 14 men from being lynched. So he took the drummer to the corner of the saloon and said:

"Now, I'm going back there for my hat. Don't you wiggle out of this spot till I come back. If you do, you're mighty liable to lose your life mighty sudden and unpleasant."

"With that the sheriff left the drummer standing there at the corner and went back to the saloon. He hadn't any more than opened the door before the shooting began again, and what had been done before wasn't a marker to what it was that time. The little drummer listened to it for a minute and then all of a sudden seemed to realize that he was alone and that the road was before him. The next sixteenth of a second he was off up the road like a quarter horse, with never a thought of his two fancy yellow grips."

"He'd got about 150 yards away when the door of the saloon opened, and Dutch George and the sheriff and half a dozen cowboys jumped out into the street with their guns in action. Well, the way the bullets dropped around that drummer's feet would beat a Kansas hailstorm. And the more they dropped the faster he ran. You can talk about your Salvators and all the rest of them! If I had a horse that could run the way that little drummer footed it out of Valentine, I'd bet there wouldn't be another man get a race. I'd win 'em all; by gad, sir, I would. I'd break up the horse racing business. And when it was all over and the bullets wouldn't carry to the little drummer any longer the sheriff and the cowboys, including all the dead and injured, danced a jig in front of the saloon and then went inside to drink the place dry, and I guess they pretty hard did it. And what d'ye suppose that fool was trying to sell? Ribbons, by gad; yes, sir, ribbons. Trying to sell ribbons in Valentine. Was it a put up job? Yes, sir, it was, and well put up, too, for they haven't seen him since."—New York Sun.

TO BE IN LOVE

Is a pleasant sort of a heart sickness, but it has its responsibilities. The young sufferer must have special regard for personal appearances. His clothing, his linen, his neck wear and his boots must all show the care of the scrupulously neat young man.

Clothing lasts a good deal longer for being well kept, too. It is necessary first only that it be properly made and fitted, for an ill fitting suit, whatever the cost can never add to a man's appearance.
