HOSMER AT STRATFORD

Sees Shrine of the Immortal
Bard.

It was a beautiful midsummer day when we arrived at the shrine of the immortal bard of Avon. "The name of Shakespeare is the greatest in our literature—it is the greatest in all literature," Henry Hallam tells us, and yet we know less of the life of this king of poets than of any other great character in history. Stratford shows us only his birthplace and his tomb—it is but a step from the cradle to the grave—and still, somehow we feel more impressed with his personality when we walk the streets once frequented by the boy Shakespeare.

"With his satchel
And shining morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly (?) to school."

Warwickshire has been called the garden of all England, and it certainly shows to advantage in August. The rich valleys of the Avon and the Severn with the low hills and wide meadows present an ever changing scene. Here the varying landscape is best described by the word "mellow," for it seems as if time had softened every line in the panorama about us. After securing rooms at the old "Red Horse Hotel," made famous by Washington Irving in his "Sketchbook," we set out for the parish church by the river side. The immediate approach is through a long and handsome avenue of lime trees. The churchyard, long since closed for burials, contains many fine old elms beautifully developed, and there are occasional oaks and yews. Holy Trinity is much like other old parish churches, a mixture of Norman and Gothic architecture and, also like others, it has suffered from the hand of time. Immediately on entering the nave one sees under glass the ancient parish register, opened to the following baptismal entry in 1564:

"April 26th, Gulielmus, filius Johanne Shakespeare," and also of the burial in 1616.

"April 25th, Will Shakespeare, Gent."

But we hastened on to the chancel where north of the altar is the celebrated mural tablet made familiar to all by photographs. The bust of the poet is life-size and the original coloring has been restored. The eyes are brown and the hair auburn. He wears a loose black gown over a scarlet doublet. It is the work of Gerard Jansen, or Johnson, a Dutch sculptor, and is known to have been in position as early as 1823. Hence the inference that, as it was satisfactory to friends and relatives, it must have been a good likeness. The inscriptions are so well known that I refrain from quoting them. Immediately below the tablet is a slab marking the resting place of the poet's wife, Anne Hathaway Shakespeare, who died in 1623, and adjoining is another slab with no inscription, but the crudely carved lines:

"Good friend, for Jesus sake forbear,
To dig the dust enclosed here; Blest be ye man yt spares these stones,
And curst be he yt moves my bones."

Tradition assigns this grave to Shakespeare. Next are stones in memory of Thomas Nash, who married the poet's granddaughter, of Dr. John Hall, a son-in-law of the poet, and of Susannah Shakespeare Hall, the poet's oldest daughter. East of the Shakespeare tomb and close to the altar is the carved effigy of John a Combe, the money-lender, a friend and neighbor of Shakespeare. The story is told that once at a merry gathering Combe asked Shakespeare to compose his epitaph. The poet after a moment's rumination, gave the following:

"Ten in a hundred lies in this grave;
'Tis a hundred to ten his soul is not saved."

If any one asks who lies in this tomb, "O ho," quoth the devil, "'tis my John a Combe."

The statement often made that this caused a rupture of their friendship is absurd. Combe died two years before his friend and left him a sum of money by will.

Returning to the "Red Horse," which we ought to say is one of the finest old hostleries in England, we had an excellently prepared dinner, a matter worthy of record in this island, where good cooking is rare and variety of menu almost unknown. Our landlady asked us if we were to attend the illumination on the Avon that evening, given by Marie Corelli, the novelist, and explained that the public had been invited. Upon Dame Quicky's suggestion we went down to the river near the old Clopton bridge, of honored memory, and there found both banks of the stream brilliant with torches, electric light, and Japanese lanterns. The water was alive with boats and one, the George Washington, was at the landing. This was the boat for us, and for a shilling apiece we obtained excellent seats in the bow, finding ourselves in the midst of a party of English ladies who were kind enough to consider us one of their number, and throughout the evening pointed out to us the different participants in the festivities. It seems that Marie Corelli, who resides in Stratford, often gives public entertainments on the river or adjacent lawns, and we were fortunate enough to happen upon one. Prizes had been offered for illuminated barges representing scenes from Shakespeare's plays. Many entries had been made, and I think there were about twenty floats in the procession. An orchestra located near the old church furnished music at intervals, and Miss Corelli's barge was attended by another containing a professional quintet, which sang selections from "Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Tempest," and other plays. The first prize was awarded to the rising young Shakespearean actress Lily Brayton, who appeared as "Cleopatra sailing down the Nile," her husband, Mr. Oscar Ashe, attended as a Nubian slave, and a number of Oxford students were at the oars. The second prize came to a boat with an artistic transparency representing Oberon and Titania. The entertainment closed with a dance upon the lawn.

The next morning we visited the poet's birthplace in Henley street. If the parish church is the shrine, this old house is the Mecca, and thousands of pilgrims, most of them Americans, visit it each year. While it is now national property and assumes the quiet dignity of a museum, it has passed through many vicissitudes in its day, and it is amusing to recall that P. T. Barnum's attempt in 1847 to purchase the edifice and transport it to America, aroused the British public to come to the rescue with a subscription. Mr. Barnum had intended to put the house on wheels and exhibit it in connection with his circus.

Tradition consecrates a small front chamber on the second floor as the room in which Shakespeare was born. In a chamber immediately adjoining we were shown the Stratford portrait which is kept in a fire-proof safe fastened against the wall. As it bears a strong resemblance to the bust in the church, it may possibly be the best of the few representations of the great dramatist. Several rooms on the first and second floors contain a valuable collection of his portraits, early editions of his plays, and other Shakespearean records and relics. Curiously enough the custodian, a well informed man, bore a striking resemblance to the Stratford portrait. This was heightened by the cut of his hair and beard. From Henley street we went to what remains of New Place, Shakespeare's residence after his retirement from active business life. The old edifice was long since taken down, but the foundations are carefully preserved, and show it to have been a large, if not pretentious mansion. In the garden was once the famous mulberry tree said to have been planted by Shakespeare's hands. It was cut down in 1756, but from its roots another has grown to considerable size. Near by is the site of the old house of the greatest charm for me because in it almost no changes have been made. Aside from the blackening of the oak panelling by time, it is doubtless just as it appeared when John Shakespeare was high bailiff of Stratford, when he used to take his good wife and children to witness plays by the strolling companies who occasionally visited the town. Perhaps here was first stimulated the dramatic genius in his eldest son. By an old staircase we ascended to the second story, still occupied by the grammar school where Shakespeare was once a pupil. The huge rough-hewn timbers of the roof testify to its antiquity. There are at present about 120 pupils. With what zest the plays must be read in that school!

The memorial building and theater, located on the river bank just above the parish church, is a handsome brick edifice built in 1879. It contains a Shakespearean library and also a gallery of Shakespearean paintings and prints. In the theater some of the great plays are given by the best professional talent each year within the week beginning on the anniversary of his birth and death, April 23.

During the time spent in this delightful section we drove out to Anne Hathaway's cottage at Shottery, and also to Charlecot Hall, where Shakespeare is said to have been brought before Sir Thomas Lucy for killing deer in the latter's park. To pay that gentleman for the severe lecture given him, he tacked upon the park gate—so tradition says—some doggerel lines, a portion of one stanza, alluding to the pronunciation of Lucy in the Warwickshire dialect, is herewith:

"If Lucy be Lowsie, as some volke miscall it,
Then Lowsie is Lucy, whatever befall it."

Fortunately, most of the squib is lost.

Americans have done much for the town of Stratford. Besides many subscriptions and lesser gifts, two large memorial windows have been placed by our countrymen in the parish church, and Mr. George Childs of Philadelphia has presented a large and handsome clock tower and fountain, which stands in a square near the center of the town.

Modern Stratford has yielded a little too much to the Philistinism of the age. Casts of the Stratford bust are quite too common, and Shakespeare's face or name is attached to almost every form of business in the place, as is attested by the "Shakespeare Hotel," "Shakespeare Stables," "Shakespeare Restaurant," "Shakespeare Bakery," etc., ad lib.

The old "Red Horse Hotel" deserves a word more, as it was the home of Washington Irving during his somewhat protracted stay in Stratford. In his little sitting-room are still preserved "Goethe's Crayon's Throne and Scepter." See the chapter entitled, "Stratford-on-Avon," in the "Sketchbook." For three hundred years this old building has furnished entertainment for man and beast, and it seems likely to last for many years. The house is a picture gallery, and has a number of rare old prints. A large garden back of the hotel contains many of the plants mentioned in the plays—fennel, rue, lavender, and rosemary, which Ophelia mentions in Hamlet.

Leaving Stratford we went by rail to Warwick town and castle. Legend assigns the foundation of the former to King Cymbeline, and the latter has been made famous as the home of the "kingmaker" of the days of Henry VI and Edward IV. Bulwer's "Last of the Barons," and Shakespeare's "King Henry VI," portray the exciting scenes of that era known as the Wars of the Roses. After a delightful stay we perhaps appreciated what Sir Walter Scott felt when he wrote that this castle is "the finest monument of ancient and chivalrous splendor which remains uninjured by time."

Entering the valley of the Thames, we visited the university town of Oxford and its many colleges. The summer school was in session and, as most of the students were women, the old halls seemed "To change their sex, and flaunt With prudes for proctors, dowagers for deans,

And sweet girl graduates in their golden hair."

The venerable hall of Balliol College was of especial interest, and also the Bodleian Library and the Sheldonian Theater. This is historic ground, for not far from the Sheldonian is the spot where Ridley and Latimer were burned at the stake. Here in Oxford Charles I raised his standard in the civil war and the colleges with a misplaced loyalty devoted their plate to the royal service.

One day we spent at Stoke Pogis, where Thomas Gray wrote the "Elegy in a Country Churchyard"—the poem above all others which expresses "thoughts that are universal." We entered the old church from whose ivy-mantled tower still "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day."

We saw the rugged elms and the memorable yew tree, some twigs of which the sexton's wife cut and gave to us. Though the solemn words of the elegy recurred and seemed to have a meaning even more profound, yet I could not prevent a smile when an old gardener, descending on the poverty of the "Rude forefathers of the hamlet," called attention to the "wooden grave-stones." It recalled the remark of the Chinese cook in Honolulu that "there was nothing in the kitchen but 'some cold hotcakes.'" P. A. HOSMER.

THE PHILOSOPHERS OF HILO TALK OF CURRENT AFFAIRS

"I would like to know where this squabble in Honolulu is going to end," remarked the Cheerful Liar. "There's Judge Humphreys in Washington charging the Dole Government with corruption; that is, if the blackboard message is correct. Just what he means by corruption is more than I can find out. If he means that the officials have been crooked with finances, or that they have accepted bribes for favors done or to be done, I think he is in error. The Dole Government from its inception may have been weak in some respects, but I do not see how it can be charged with crookedness and the charges stand. I have never been a strong supporter of the Government for the reason that it is the child of the overthrow of the monarchy, and my opposition to it is mainly on account of the methods adopted to accomplish the end. But you may go back to the very beginning and I will ask any of you where men of such integrity as constituted the Provisional Government and the Republic could be found to give up their business for State matters? They have not been boodlers in any sense, nor have they been generally extravagant in the administration of the affairs. There may be instances, of course, where economy could have been practiced, but this is only in isolated cases. A charge of corruption is serious enough to demand a close investigation, and if it is made I am sure the Government will be vindicated. Possibly Judge Humphreys refers to favoritism in some cases. If that is what he means it is probable the skirts of the officials may be soiled a trifle."

"And he may not have said anything resembling corruption," said the Early Riser. "I cannot believe, everything that goes into the newspapers. For instance: A month or two ago he was quoted as damning the sugar planters and attempting to injure the sugar industry. One interview of his implied that the Porto Rican in Hawaii was in a condition similar to that of the reconcentrado of Cuba during the Weyler regime. I cannot believe that Judge Humphreys was correctly quoted in that statement, and if he was, he was mistaken. In my opinion the Porto Ricans who have come here and worked on the plantations for a month or two, until they have fed up a bit, are as healthy looking as the average resident. I'm not saying anything about them as laborers; I am merely speaking of their appearance physically."

"This is a new move of Judge Humphreys in charging corruption and one that was not expected, consequently the defense must be given time to answer. Attorney General Knox, in my opinion, has been so flooded with correspondence from men dissatisfied with President McKinley's appointments that he is about sick of the whole business. Some of those appointees feel that they are about the only ones worth anything and they keep writing Knox about it. I do not believe the officials of the Government will be disturbed on a mere ex parte statement."

"I think charges of extravagance in improvements in Honolulu may be supported by facts," remarked the Kicker, "but such rigid economy has been practiced in the districts away from Honolulu that the extravagant expenditures in Honolulu are quite offset. Compare this condition of roads and bridges in Honolulu with ours on this island and note the difference. Here our Road Board is not allowed sufficient money to keep the bridges in repair, while in Honolulu everything is kept in prime condition. You may take even the Volcano road. Why, there are places there that are not fit to be in any roads, and the only comfortable part of it is about a half mile above the Keaau store. A ride in the stage coach from the terminus of the railroad to Mountain View on Thursdays and Saturdays is about as severe a punishment as one can have—first, because the road is bad, and again because on those days the stage is overcrowded with passengers and freight. I would like to see the directors of the Volcano Stables Company condemned to take that ride on those days for a month. In my opinion there would be an auxiliary stage or freight wagon after the first trip."

"People who know the officials of the Government will laugh at the idea of their being considered extravagant," said the Sage of Kaunama. "Men who are not extravagant in their personal matters will not be so in official matters. Extravagance is something that is born in a man and it will stick to him until he dies, whether he has money or not. A man who will not save on ten dollars a month will find it impossible to do so on two hundred. He gets accustomed to spending more than he earns and the habit stays with him through life; he couldn't be happy unless he is worrying over his debts. I have known Mr. Dole longer than any of you, perhaps, and I have never heard of his having a single extravagant idea in his personal affairs, and I do not believe he would surround himself with men having that fault. If he is a poor man today it is not through extravagance so much as through unwise investments during California boom times, and his desire to make other people happy by contributing to their pleasures. Dole does a lot of good that does not get into the newspapers and grateful people remember him as he remembers them."

"There is one thing certain," remarked the Cheerful Liar. "President McKinley succeeded, unconsciously I hope, in selecting men for the judiciary who have been antagonistic to the Territorial officials of his own selection. Judge Edgings if this island is a rare exception, and in spite of the opposition to his appointment he has turned out to be one of the best in the bunch. He has no time for politics and no time to lay wires for the annoyance of the Government or for his personal aggrandizement. Edgings is a quiet man and a mighty good judge if the limited number of his decisions reversed by the supreme court is a criterion."—Hilo Herald.

TO PUT OUT FOREST FIRES

along a very rugged mountain trail, crooked and gorges by steep, narrow and dangerous paths (during which journey several minor accidents happened to horses and riders), arrival was made at a point in the mountain forest about 4,500 feet (as stated in the barometrical reading of Assistant Superintendent Campbell) above sea level, and where was plainly presented the destruction wrought by the fire in a thickly wooded forest and the almost superhuman work which accomplished the retarding and suppression of the conflagration. The smoking trees and ground showed that the fire was not entirely extinguished, and the action of the fire, aside from the havoc made in the forests, is regarded by planters as most destructive to the productive qualities of the soil. Here was noticed the tact, judgment and good work accomplished by Messrs. Walker, Horner and Carter, tact in the joining of their forces together, the laborers from both plantations being worked together against the common enemy; judgment in the digging of many miles of trenches to prevent the leaping across the roadways by the fire, and good work in the successful suppression after many hours of hard battling with the flames. At and during the fire a very high wind prevailed, which caused sparks to be distributed long distances from the original point of commencement, and it was stated that several times the woods, some hundred yards in the rear, were on fire, while attention was being concentrated against the progress of the conflagration in front. (Mr. Carter and a band of his laborers came very near being enclosed in a fire belt from this distribution of sparks from lofty burning trees at the time of the Horner fire.) When it is remembered that there was not a drop of water available for quenching the fires, and that the long-continued drought had caused all the undergrowth to be of a tinder-like nature, it can be readily believed that the work even of suppression was remarkable, and well worthy of favorable comment and recognition. Both Mr. Horner and Mr. Walker have established laborers' camps in the upper forest areas to prevent further spread, and to suppress any dangerous outbreaks of fire within their properties.

Shortly before sundown on the 19th instant departure was made from the forest lands, and journey was continued through the destroyed and injured coffee plantations of Messrs. Osborne, and Mr. Horner and others. Investigation showed that the coffee plantation of Mr. Osborne was entirely destroyed, while Mr. Horner suffered but slightly, in comparison.

After the completion of further investigation during the making of which much valuable information and assistance was given by Mr. Albert Horner, at whose hands, as well as by Mr. J. M. Horner, the party was the recipient of kind and even generous hospitality, return was made from the scene of the Hamakua forest fires, and to the established headquarters at Waimea. The result of the investigation made resulted, as you have been informed by wireless message, of the fire being under control, although still burning, and that no assistance was required from the government.

Arrival back at Waimea was made on Saturday, the 21st instant, and a needed rest was taken on that day and on the next, Sunday. During the three days used in the investigation, over 120 miles of territory was traversed, and although several narrow escapes occurred, no accident of moment happened to any of the party. Every endeavor was made to obtain full and decisive information relative to the fires, and the results arrived at, as before stated, were from a full and very complete inquiry, and nothing has since occurred to cause a change in the statement forwarded to you of the non-necessity of aid from the government.

Before closing I desire to present for your information a few brief facts relative to the fires investigated, viz:

Oakala—Started on July 3d, on land of Henry Haa, a homesteader at Niihau (may 12). This fire traveled through the Osborne coffee lots, other homestead lots and lands belonging to the government. The fire branched and spread to the Oakala cane fields, and the Kaala land under lease to the Oakala plantation, and also to the lands of Kukui and Kahelalele. The forests in the mauka portion of the Oakala lands are still smoldering, but hope is entertained of the ground and forest fires soon being extinguished completely by reason of the now prevailing light, but frequent, night showers.

Pohokea—This was the second fire, and started on the homestead of "Tim" Madden (lot 17, map 11). This fire burned over several homestead lots in the vicinity, and also spread to lots in Kaapana (Dove homestead map).

Kaohoe—This was the third fire in number, but the largest in area, and the most destructive. The fire is stated to have been started by some bee hunters, searching for honey, and who, by presumed carelessness, lost control of their fire, and in fright delayed and finally avoided calling for help or giving information of its existence. This fire started in lot No. 46, a small homestead, and spread both rapidly and widely. This fire destroyed coffee and cane of the Horner's, and ran on to Kalopa Gulch and Kalopa proper. These lands are government, but under lease to Messrs. S. Parker and E. J. M. Horner. The Kaapana homesteads have nearly all been reached by the fire. It is now, however, under full control and, although no rain of much volume has fallen, strong hopes are entertained of complete suppression. The fires above mentioned have covered an area between thirty and forty square miles, and much injury has been caused to soil and forest. The prevailing drought has been the main cause of the extensive spread.

On the evening of the 21st (9 p. m.), information was received by the of a conflagration existing at one of the Paialo homesteads, but definite information relative thereto was not obtained until the next day. Information was obtained that a fire inquest would be held, and I sent Mr. Haughts, the government forester, who was here, to go forward on Monday and attend, or be present, at the inquest. He was present and has reported that the inquest revealed nothing further than that the fire was in a homesteader's cane, and burned only a small portion.

There have been several other small fires reported, but with but little damage attached. The drought continues, and in the Waimea district, the paucity of water flow causes semi-stagnation in the source from which the people of the district obtain their supply, and the impure water has developed (or is so reported) many cases of typhoid fever, which disease is now prevalent, one death occurring therefrom on Thursday last. Other people are reported suffering. Very respectfully,
J. H. BOYD.

Land Commissioner E. S. Boyd went to Hawaii yesterday for a visit to Waianae valley, where he will make an investigation of the Waianae fire of July. Complaints have been made also, about the lessee of lands there, and Commissioner Boyd will investigate that matter also.

The Hawaiian Electric Company was running during the early part of the evening in an effort to supply current. Two circuits were finally cut off. The electric company says that under the present circumstances with the wires running along the sides of streets, they have to be strung through tops of trees. Everywhere the people object to the cutting of limbs. Space is generally made when wires are strung, but owing to the prolific foliage, which grows so quickly the wires are often surrounded by masses of leaves and rest on branches. When a heavy rain-fall occurs, such as that of last night, the trouble commences. The conditions are such now that the rainy season has set in, that in order to protect the lives of the people many trees may have to be trimmed.

"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

Lilliputians Display Great Cleverness
In the Bill.

The second performance of the "Belle of New York" last night was fully as meritorious as the first production on Saturday, which was saying a great deal in its favor.

The youngsters compare favorably, most favorably, with their elders in the profession in the production. Alice Bennett, with a sympathetic and well trained voice, girlishly fresh but powerful, is excellent in the title role, and would appear to advantage in any company of her seniors.

There is a whole lot of talent among the Lilliputians. Madge Williams, as Phil, is artlessly charming, and has none of the too often palpable trickiness cleverness of the child artist. Little Daphne Trotter, as the Comic Opera Queen, is as chic as she can be, and Willie Pollard displayed no little humor as Ichabod Brown.

All through the cast originality and cleverness is displayed, indeed had an adult company as much individual talent for their years, they might rightly be termed an all-star cast.

The dances, individual and and collective, are cleverly planned and gracefully carried out, while the costumes especially deserve more than a passing word of praise.

The inopportune time, and last night the weather, have combined to bring but poor houses to the Lilliputians, when, with ordinary luck, it is safe to say that they would have created a furore in the town. They are well worth crowded houses, and those who have not seen the "Belle of New York" would do well to order seats for Thursday. They will not be disappointed.

Corporal Pierson's Case.

Following is the official army order in the case of Corporal Pierson, Artillery Corps, and his appointment as a letter carrier in the Honolulu postoffice:

Circular 12, Sept. 5, Dept. California. Publishes a communication from the H. Q. A., dated August 31, 1901, to the commanding general, Department of California, which says:

"Sir: Referring to your telegram of the 23d instant, in the case of Corporal Robert S. Pierson, 56th Company of Coast Artillery, who requests discharge in order to accept an appointment as letter-carrier in the postoffice at Honolulu, H. T., the Lieutenant General Commanding the Army instructs me to inform you that the discharge of this soldier, by way of favor, has been disapproved by the Acting Secretary of War, who has decided that discharge, by purchase only, upon the completion of one year's service, will be granted to soldiers who are permitted by the Secretary of War to take the civil service examination, and subsequently receive an appointment.

"This soldier will be eligible to discharge, under the provisions of A. R. 156, 1901, on November 24th next, and if he desires to avail himself of the opportunity thus afforded, an application to that effect, made on or after the above-mentioned date, will be duly considered."

Thefts on the Coptic.

Today, before Mr. Hazeland, Chan Fo Sing, cabinboy on the steamship Coptic, was smartly dealt with for stealing. He was first charged, on the complaint of Capt. J. H. Rinder, with having, on the high seas, on or about April 23d last, stolen a gold watch, chain and locket of the value of $400 gold. The property belonged to Mr. Arthur Tirrell Hellyer. The defendant was one of the saloon waiters. Mr. Hellyer reported his loss on the morning of the 23d instant, in Yokohama harbor. The gold watch was found in defendant's trunk, and it and the chain and locket produced. Captain Rinder identified positively as the missing articles. Sergeant O'Sullivan said that on the 20th instant, at 4 p. m., the defendant took him to 29 Queen's Road East. Defendant said his brother lived there. He and his brother then went into a cubicle in the front part of the house. The brother handed a box to defendant, and in it was found the chain. The defendant then handed the locket to witness. Defendant's story was that he picked the articles up, and intended handing them to the chief engineer. His workship passed sentence of four months' imprisonment. Defendant was then, on the complaint of H. Speier, chief steward of the Coptic, charged with the theft of two bottles of olive oil, two boxes of soap and a quantity of raisins. He said he bought the oil in Japan; the soap he picked up, and the raisins he took to eat. The evidence showed that he was guilty, and a further term of one month's hard labor was inflicted.—China Mail, August 31.

German Lloyd May Come.

It is rumored in shipping circles in the Orient that within thirty days the North German Lloyd Steamship Company will have their vessels touching this port. It is said that the company is already advertising in Chinese papers announcing its intention of running a regular line from Chinese ports via Japan and Honolulu to San Francisco. This will give this company what probably will be the longest line in the world, as they already have steamers running from Bremen to the Orient. The report has been current for a year, but at that time nothing came of it, as the company had no railroad connections in the States. Since then, however, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road has secured a terminus in San Francisco, and it is reported that this line will connect with the steamship company.

DOINGS AROUND POLICE COURT

Motorman Wright Goes Free.
Wilcox Not Yet Well Enough to Work.

Judge Wilcox was again absent from the District Court yesterday on account of illness and Judge Dickey officiated in his stead.

In the forenoon he tried the case of Wright, the motorman of the Rapid Transit Company, charged with heedless driving. The case grew out of the recent collision on Hotel street between a trolley car and one of Pain's mule cars. Attorney W. A. Kinney appeared for the defense, and Attorney De Bolt for the prosecution.

In summing up the case Judge Dickey said:

"There is considerable divergence in important particulars here, between witnesses for the prosecution as against each other and the witnesses for the defense, witnesses who to the court seem entirely unprejudiced and unimpeached, but I believe from the evidence that the electric car was going at a rate of about four miles an hour, or less, as it approached the crossing; that the driver was ringing his bell to give warning to any passing vehicles on Nuuanu street, and that he saw the car practically as soon as it came in sight and did his best to stop before the collision, and the fact that there was a collision was caused, not by his carelessness, but by the carelessness of the driver of the other car. I find the defendant not guilty, and discharge him."

At 1:30 p. m. Judge Dickey commenced the regular business of the day in the police court. The calendar contained thirty cases.

The following cases were disposed of:
Sing Chong, assault and battery on Nakamoto, $10 and costs; Mee Nam, assault and battery, $25 and costs; Elm da Souza, assault and battery on Mrs. R. Farrab, $5 and costs; Chapman, assault and battery on H.
Downing, nolle prossed; Sau Tin, violating carriage regulations, $5 and costs; Alani Keahou, profanity, $3 and costs; W. Nakaa alias Tin Soon, receiving stolen goods, committed Circuit Court; Ben Dier, alias Frank, Tanaka, Frank Ormond, Henry Klemme, drunkenness, $2 and costs; Pipilani E. E. Miller, drunkenness, bail forfeited; Sunawara, common nuisance, $2 and costs; Jacient Lewis, common nuisance, $5 and costs; John Koenen, vagrancy, nolle prossed; Ah Chai, heedless driving, nolle prossed.

Frank Ormond, fined for drunkenness, was arrested on Monday night by Special Officer Duncan, outside the Gambrian saloon. He and another man gave the officer a lot of trouble, and in the melee Duncan's club was taken away from him and used on himself. The other man, who is an ex-soldier, escaped.

Ah Chai was arrested on Bethel street about 11 a. m., on a charge of heedless driving. He ran into another rig. Captain Parker ran the man in.
The Chinaman explained to Judge Dickey that somehow he got the reins mixed, and consequently went the opposite way to which he had intended.
The case was nolle prossed.

Charles E. Donnell, the hackman, is in trouble for blocking the Rapid Transit track on Hotel street. The motorman and conductor of the car say that Donnell refused to move when asked. There has been considerable friction of late between the Hotel street hackmen and the electric car motormen. The former say that the trolley car people proceed at such a rate as not to allow them to get their rigs out of the way. The motormen on the other hand allege that the hack-men get in the way purposely. The case has been set for tomorrow.

Yesterday's arrests included:
Fred Walker, common nuisance; Ah Hoy, surrendered bail; F. Ormond, drunkenness; Mrs. C. Ah Sing, desertion; Lawrence, drunkenness; A. F.
Canteiro, rape.

Four prisoners were sent to Kohala, on the Kinau, yesterday. They have been kept in Oahu jail for some time awaiting trial. One of the men was Kamal, who is charged with having committed murder at Pahala, Kau, Hawaii.

MANY ENTER FOR BERETANIA SINGLES

Tournament—Other Items of Sport.

The entries for the invitation singles tournament of the Beretania Tennis Club close at 5 p. m. today at the store of The Pearson & Potter Co. The tournament was to have started today but it was postponed until tomorrow in order to allow the Pacific Tennis Club to complete their doubles tournament. It is probable that there will be a further postponement on account of the wet weather.

The entries so far received for the Beretania's tournament are:
J. Waterhouse, E. R. Adams, P. M.
Lansdale, C. S. Holloway, W. H. Babbitt, W. M. Alexander, D. Howard Hitchcock, Donald M. Ross, Chas. A.
Elston, W. F. Dillingham, A. M. Nowell, W. P. Roth, A. R. Cunha, M. A. Cheek, Geo. Fuller, Albert Waterhouse.

The game to be played in the Pacific's tournament is the unfinished one between W. F. Dillingham and W. Roth and E. R. Adams and A. T. Brock.
Each side had a set to their credit when the match was postponed on account of darkness. When this game has been played last year's winners, Elston and Ross, will defend their title to the trophy.

The practice game of football between the Malle-Ilima and Hackfeld & Company has been indefinitely postponed, neither team being as yet in shape for a contest.

There will be another race next Sunday between the third class yachts over the Waikiki course.

David Koki, well known in local athletic circles, died last week of pneumonia in Waimanalo, Hawaii. He was thirty-four years of age.

MAN FROM WAIPIO TELLS A TALL STORY

Relates of Shark Chased Porpoises Which Whistled in Abject Terror.

The natives along the Hamakua coast have, if report saith truly, no cause to look on account of scarcity of fish. In some particularly favored localities the water is said to fairly teem with fish. The cause of this unusual abundance of the finny tribe is unknown but is attributed by kamaainas to submarine disturbances.

A native who arrived from Hawaii in the Kinai told an extraordinary story of the inhabitants of the vasty deep. He said that last week at a spot near Waipio, great schools of flying fish were driven shoreward by a company of porpoises. So many of them were there that the waters fairly boiled. They were so frightened that many of them jumped out of the water and were stranded high and dry on the shore. The teller of the story goes so far as to say that some of the fish jumped from the water clean over a shed and were found in the morning in a taro patch behind the structure.

While the porpoises were sporting themselves with the flying fish, the tide receded and the porpoises were left in shallow basin out of which they could not escape until the tide returned to flood. The natives noticed this and decided to let them remain in their prison overnight and proceed to their slaughter in the morning.

Darkness fell and the natives retired to rest. Suddenly the silence of the night was broken by piteous squealing such as proceeds from young pigs in anguish. It was the porpoises whistling in abject terror.

The man from Waipio asserts that he and a friend procured lanterns and went down to the sea to find out what was the cause of the disturbance. They did not investigate long before the facts of the case stood revealed.

Into the pen where the porpoises were cowering on the flying fish several large sharks had intruded. The sharks were keeping the porpoises busy. Only a few able-bodied porpoises were left. The remainder floated on the surface in shredded form. The whole porpoises were whistling for dear life.

Asked as to what became of the pair of porpoises the native explained that he and his friend killed the porpoises and sharks with blasts of giant powder.

The retribution which came to the man of Waipio has yet to be ascertained.

ARMSTRONG'S BUSY LIFE

Work of One of the Earliest of the Missionaries.

WOMAN'S BOARD IS DOING GOOD WORK

Reports of Accomplishments During Past Year Are Ready.

THE Woman's Board of Missions held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon at 2:30 in the parlors of Central Union Church, the reports of the secretary, treasurer and other officers and an interesting biographical and historical paper on Richard Armstrong being read. The regular meeting was preceded by an executive session of the directors at which the advisability of voting a donation of $100 for the Salvation Army Rescue Home was discussed. A letter from Major Wood of the Salvation Army was read in which assistance was asked to carry on the work. The matter was referred to the regular meeting by Miss Chamberlain, the president of the Board, at which she explained that the Rescue work while not being actually conducted or backed by the Woman's Board, was approved of most heartily at its inception and after being turned over to Major Wood the Board assisted in the work by appropriations of money. Major Wood seemed to be under the impression that the Board had offered to pay a regular monthly salary for one of the assistants at the Home, but there was no record of the Board having made such offer. The Board and the members however, heartily voted the $100.

The Board of Directors' meeting was attended by Miss Chamberlain, president; Mrs. Bishop, vice-president; Miss Coan, treasurer; Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Dickey. Following this meeting the regular meeting was called and Miss Chamberlain read a portion of the Scriptures, appropriate to the death of President McKinley which was followed by prayer by Miss Talcott. A letter from Mrs. Hyde, one of the prominent members of the Board, was read, in which she announced that she and her daughter had started for Europe suddenly and they would not return to Honolulu for sometime. Miss Laura Greene reported on her work of visiting poor people, and suggested that young people be enlisted for this work as well. It was reported that Mrs. Wilcox's sewing class had a membership of nineteen girls. Through the kindness of Mrs. Henry Waterhouse a sewing class at Maemae will be started soon. The King's Daughters were suggested as a body to take up the work of evening classes for young girls.

A collection for the Board and one for the Armenian fund was made as follows: regular collection, $22.25; Armenian, $53.90. The treasurer's report rendered by Miss Coan was as follows: Balance on hand, September 1, $589.35; collections, $38; received, September, $50; expenses, $116; balance October 1, $523.35.

The report on the Japanese mission work showed a need of more workers. A young Japanese graduate from the Hilo Boarding School was announced to have just entered the theological school. It was stated that a movement was on foot to establish a home for respectable Japanese women whose husbands were often away from them, as well as for young girls here. This would be presided over by a Japanese matron. A committee of Japanese ladies was already soliciting funds for its establishment and help might be asked of the white people as well as from their own race.

Mrs. Williams reported on the work of the Missionary Gleaners. The organization was begun for young girls but was now conducted mostly by older persons. It was hoped at the next meeting to be held at the residence of Mrs. W. R. Castle, two weeks hence, to again turn the society over to the young people. The Gleaners now gather at various residences for their meetings instead of in the church parlors. The financial report was as follows: Receipts lawn party, $634.44; expenditures, $151.40; net, $483.04. Three girls are being maintained by the Gleaners.

REPORT OF WORK DONE BY YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

A HOME LIKE CORNER IN THE ASSOCIATION ROOMS.

THE annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association was held on Monday evening in the Y. M. C. A. hall, and a generally prosperous condition of the association's affairs was apparent from the reports of the secretary, Mrs. H. C. Brown. It was shown that the membership was 314; members who have left the city permanently, 25; lunches to the number of 1,837 served and 1,317 visitors entertained; boarding places were found for seven young ladies; situations for four; thirty new members were entered upon the register previous to the annual meeting.

A financial statement was presented by Mrs. Belle Jones, treasurer, showing a total expenditure of $3,251, and receipts, $3,777.62, leaving a cash balance on hand of $526.62. Mrs. F. J. Lowrey reported that $11,000 had been pledged to the erection of the Y. W. C. A. Boarding House. Reports in their various departments were made by Mrs. Ralph Gear of the work of the social committee; Mrs. Q. H. Berrey, of the stranger's committee; Mrs. Arthur B. Wood, of the physical committee. The election of officers and the appointment of standing committees for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. E. W. Jordan.
 Vice-president, Mrs. A. B. Wood.
 Recording secretary, Mrs. B. L. Marx.

His service is the most profitable of all services, for what earthly comfort can be compared to the rich reward of doing good for Christ's sake?

They were graciously received by Kaukaouli and Queen Kaahumanu, and immediately began their work, mingling with the people, visiting the sick, learning the language, and suffering privations in an out station, later on.

A year passed and they were again under marching orders to establish a mission on the Island of Niihiva, in the Marquesas Group, where the Parkers, Alexanders and Armstrongs and their little ones, suffered many things among the most degraded cannibal savages for nine months, and narrowly escaped being held captive by the face of the earth by an Australian convict, who had escaped from a passing ship. With his keener faculties, he outdid the savages in his depravity. The coming of the missionaries was an offence to him, and he hated their pure teachings and plotted to murder the entire band and divide their goods. A school of porpoises came into the bay, many were caught and a great feast followed. The convict, Marshall, gorged himself on porpoise meat. Mr. Armstrong gave him medical attendance and nursing, but his miserable life was spent. His was the first Christian burial in those parts. The savages would throw chicken and breadfruit into his grave, lest the hungry soul return to torment them. When the grave was well covered, a chief stepped up and said: "Why were you so kind to this man, who would have killed you if he had not died?" The reply, "Our God tells us to be good to our enemies and love them," astonished the cannibals, who were in the habit of roasting their enemies. This practical sermon was telling in its effect and not another human being was served up on that island. I have often heard my mother liken this experience to Daniel in the lion's den. Only power divine could close those cruel mouths. This distant mission station was abandoned as a sort of forlorn hope, and the three families returned to Hawaii. Caroline Armstrong Beckwith was claimed by the Marquesans, and it was necessary to leave under cover of night, lest the little one be spirited away to become the queen of the Cannibal Islands, possibly.

The next pages in Mr. Armstrong's journal bring us to Haiku, Maui, where he built a church, preached to a thousand people every Sunday, and ministered to a scattered parish of twenty-five thousand souls, superintended schools, gathered teachers into a normal class, which was the first fruit of his direct efforts for the cause of education in Hawaii. At this time he writes: "I am try-

NEWS OF THE WATERFRONT

American Rail- roads Win a Mail Award.

Sydney Mails Rushed Through to England on Time.

Through their unapproachable speed American railroads have won a contract from the British government to carry the colonial mail across the continent as a part of a new mail route decided on between Australia and London.

The recent record-breaking dash of the Union Pacific, Burlington and Lake Shore trains made it possible to reduce the mail-carrying time between Sydney, N. S. W., and the metropolis of the world by seven days. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, was so pleased over the change in the schedule which gave him an opportunity to read about the latest hop at Melbourne that he gave the order which shifted the itinerary from the Suez canal route to the United States.

The announcement, made simultaneously yesterday in the offices of the three railroads, explains the concern of the different managements over the problem of overtaking the regular Lake Shore mail train Sept. 7 before it reached Cleveland. The British government had made it plain that should the three lines make it possible to shorten the period by seven days the change would be made. All three declared that the task would not be difficult, but an unexpected accident on the Union Pacific almost lost the American railroads this valuable concession.

The contract seemed about to slip from the hold of the three roads, when, by an extraordinary effort, the Burlington made up between Omaha and Chicago all but thirty-eight minutes of a three hours' loss. A special train, consisting of an engine and a mail car, was in waiting to overtake the regular train before it reached Cleveland. It was admitted that unless the pursuit terminated between Chicago and the Ohio city a further chase would be fruitless.

What feats of travel it was necessary for the special train to perform can best be appreciated when it is known that the regular train was speeding across Indiana at an average speed of fifty-one miles an hour. The pursuing special maintained an average rate of fifty-nine and one-half miles an hour, overtaking the regular at Toledo. In this way the ingenious American railway men won for themselves the valuable award that means thousands of dollars annually to their earnings.

The mail from the British colonies in the far-away Pacific and Indian oceans is transmitted every two months. The traffic managers of the three systems do not believe that it will be necessary again to appeal to the extraordinary methods made necessary on the probationary trip to deliver the letters and packages at the New York docks on time. The mail last time consisted of 17 sacks, completely filling a railway mail coach of the latest pattern. Great importance attaches to the new departure in handling the British mail, because it consists largely of documents intended for the British parliament and the colonial secretary.

"We have simply shown that we can yet teach our English friends a few things about railroad speed and inventiveness," said a railroad man last night.
"A difference of seven days is a great deal, and Mr. Chamberlain is not the sort of man to overlook the advantage in transporting the mail across the American continent."—Chicago Chronicle.

Kilikit: Here.

The barkentine Kilikit which arrived on Saturday afternoon is still lying in the stream waiting for a chance to discharge her cargo of lumber. She had an uneventful trip and quiet weather with the exception of frequent rains.
Captain L. W. Rose is in command of her this trip in the place of her regular captain, Mr. Cutler. Captain Rose is a kamaaina, having been here many years ago in a boat of the Spreckels' line, and also in the Palmyra as mate, when she was in Honolulu a few years ago.

Naval Reservation Improvements

The naval station of this port will soon be a beautiful spot. The water connections have already been finished furnishing a number of new hydrants which will greatly facilitate the keeping of the lawns, which now decorate the grounds of the naval reservation.
Fences will be erected along the wharves, and the streets will all be graded and curbed. Outside of the government coal sheds lawns will also be made. Finally an extension of the building is to be made which will provide eight new officers for the officials of the station.

Kinau Takes Prisoners.

When the Kinau left this port yesterday noon she had on board four prisoners bound to the Kohala district, Hawaii. The four men, each one being of a separate nationality, a Chinaman, a Japanese, a native and a negro, have been in Oahu prison for some time awaiting their trials for various offences. One of them, Kamal, the native, who comes from Pahala in Kauai, is charged with murder, while the other three are charged with minor offences.

News of the Kilpatrick.

All anxiety caused by the rumors that the transport Kilpatrick was overdue owing to having met with some damage in the typhoon that has been raging, has been set aside. It is now known that the ship did not sail from San Francisco on the 1st August but was delayed until the 5th or 7th. She was next heard of near Honolulu, where she found it necessary to have some minor repairs made to her machinery, and was to have sailed from that port for Guam.

THE MINORS GET MORE

Part of Principal
In King Estate
Used.

STEWART WAS NOT PUNISHED

Harrison Magoon and Rowland Cases Drag Wearily Along in Two Circuit Courts.

Judge Gear yesterday made an order increasing the allowance to the five minor children in the estate of the late Minister James A. King to $75 a month.
The order was made upon the application of Mrs. Charlotte D. King, the widow, to increase the allowance to the children from $6 each to $30 each for month; as the former allowance was wholly inadequate.

The estate of the minors consists of real property valued at $7675 and personal property to the amount of $6,780, the interest therefrom being but $69 per month. As this is grossly inadequate the Court orders that a portion of the principal be appropriated to make up the deficiency.

In regard to the share of James King, one of the sons now thought to be in South Africa, the guardian Joseph Lightfoot has been ordered to pay such monies belonging to James King to Mrs. Charlotte D. King as administrator. It is further ordered that Joseph Lightfoot execute a lease to Charlotte D. King on behalf of the minors for the land on Vineyard street, known as the King homestead, at a monthly rental of two dollars for each of the said minors; also the leasehold of land fronting thirteen feet on Emma street, at an annual rental of two dollars for each of said minors, and for the Mollie land at monthly rental of one dollar for each of said heirs.

HARRISON-MAGOON CASE.

The Harrison-Magoon case was on trial all day yesterday before Judge Gear. The plaintiff in the case was on the stand during the greater portion of that time, and retold his transactions with the Hagey people. The contracts were read to the jury during the day. Harrison was still under cross-examination upon the adjournment of court, at 4 o'clock.

MOTION FOR NON-SUIT IN LAND CASE.

In the case of the Honolulu Investment Company vs. Helen K. Rowland et al., the plaintiff concluded the introduction of evidence yesterday afternoon, whereupon the several defendants filed a motion for non-suit on the ground that title had not been proven. The arguments were concluded before court adjourned, and Judge Little will pass upon the matter this afternoon.

McCANTS STEWART EXPLAINS.

T. McCants Stewart, who was cited to appear for contempt for interference with the grand jury, made sufficient explanation to Judge Gear yesterday morning, and the citation was dismissed.

Mr. Stewart asked to be sworn, and then made his explanation from the witness stand. He stated that he had been consulted by Davis and his son, in regard to the charge against the latter, and that Davis had attended court daily in anticipation of the matter being presented. Monday morning he passed father and son in the court corridor, and he was asked by the former whether his attendance in court was necessary. Young Robinson was with them at that time. Mr. Stewart then asked Deputy Attorney General Cathcart when the case would be taken up in court, and was told that it would not be considered that day. He so informed Mr. Davis and his son, and that Robinson, who was with them, thought he was being addressed.
Stewart further stated that he did not know that Robinson had been subpoenaed, and that he had no intention of interfering with the process of the court or grand jury. The statements made by Mr. Stewart were corroborated by Robinson, who was also placed on the stand. The court then dismissed the citation, holding that the explanation was sufficient.

COURT NOTES.

The grand jury is still grinding away, though it is probable that a report will be made this week.

The calendar of civil causes will be called in Circuit Court this morning, and all cases not answered today will be dismissed, unless good ground for continuance is shown.

Miss Mary Carbone, a sister, was yesterday appointed temporary administrator of the estate of Joseph Carbone. The value of the estate is said to be about $10, consisting of wearing apparel, watch, $1.50 in cash, and papers of uncertain value. Carbone died September 27th, sixty miles at sea.

The motion for default in the case of H. Hackfeld & Co. vs. K. Ito, was denied. No answer or plea had been made by defendant, though he had accepted service.

Lewers & Cooke, creditors, have consented to the appointment of C. H. W.
Ahi, a son, as administrator of the estate of Ching Ahi. Iwai Paa, who claims to be the widow of deceased, and Hong Cheong, an adopted son, have also consented. The alleged widow alleges that Hannah Ii, who has made application to be appointed administrator, is not a legitimate child, and also denies that Hannah's mother was ever the wife of the said Ahi.

A default has been granted in the case of Kahimou vs. A. J. Lopez.
Judge Gear granted the motion of plaintiff to dismiss defendant's motion for a new trial in the case of E. S.
Cunha vs. Hawaii Land Co., Ltd.

An order has been made permitting

James E. Fullerton, guardian of the Kaawa minors, to invest the funds of the estate, he to pay interest thereon at the rate of 1 per cent a month.

The motion for a new trial in the estate of Annie Holokahiki was refused by Judge Gear yesterday.

In the divorce libel of Ana K. Vida vs. William C. Vida, defendant filed an answer yesterday, making denial of material allegations and saying "That he has at all times been ready and willing to support and maintain the said libellant since the day of their said marriage, on the 21st day of November, 1899, and has provided her with the necessities of life as far as he was able."

Confession of demurrer has been filed in the case of Enoka Poahu, minor, vs.
E. Lilliehua.

In the matter of Schief vs. Joseph Clarke, Mrs. Mary Lee objected to the confirmation of the sale of real estate to her on the ground of a deficiency of $400 more feet in the land bid in by her. The court ordered the sale of the disputed Beretania street property at private sale, at the same price for which it was sold at public auction.

"The Belle of New York."

Positively the last performance of the Belle of New York will be given by the Lilliputian Opera Company tomorrow night (Thursday). Saturday afternoon and evening the Gaiety Girl will be staged. The management beg to announce for the following farewell performances popular prices will be charged as follows: Orchestra and dress circle, $1.00; family circle, seventy-five cents; gallery, fifty cents. Matinee to start at 2 sharp; doors open at 1:30.
Children half price to all parts of the theater. There will be no performance tonight (Wednesday).

STUDNICZKA GOES BACK TO ST. LOUIS

Believes Hawaiian Islands Have Bright Commercial Future.

Henry Studniczka, the St. Louis sugar expert, returns home tomorrow in the Mariposa after spending three weeks in the Islands. During this time he has inspected the sugar properties of the Waiakula, Oahu, Honolulu and Ewa plantations, and carries away with him much valuable information regarding the future prospect of the staple industry here. Mr. Studniczka is in a position to disseminate the knowledge he has acquired of the islands, and he returns to the States fully appreciative of the commercial future of the group.
He is enthusiastic over everything he has seen and claims for the islands a bright future for its main industry.
Even though labor is scarce and, uncertain he firmly believes that the profits from the sugar production will be ample. Mr. Studniczka was given every courtesy and opportunity by the agents and managers of the various plantations on this island and can see no reason, after careful investigation, why the output of sugar in the entire group should not greatly enlarged.

TRAINING AT KAMEHAMEHA

Some Changes in the Methods of Teaching.

AN INCREASE IN NORMAL WORK

Students Now Work With Their Hands in Morning and Progress Rapidly.

Important changes in the methods of instruction have been made at the Kamehameha Boys' School this term in that the instruction in the trades takes place in the morning and the mental work is now set over until afternoon. The change was made by Principal Charles Bartlett Dyke in order that more time could be given over to the trades' instruction. The change, however, has not necessitated any shortening of the hours for mental development and nothing has been lost by the rearrangement.

Principal Dyke has come to realize that the work in the shops connected with the school has an important bearing upon the future prospects of the scholars and that every effort should be made to equip each scholar with a trade to his liking, which coupled with the mental training of the institution, will make of him a useful citizen and one who can earn good wages by an intelligent use of his hands and brain.

"During the summer many of the boys went to work in various places in the city, more especially in the Iron Works and in planing mills, putting to excellent use the training they had received during the previous years of their attendance at the school," said Mr. Dyke to an Advertiser reporter. "They were qualified to earn $2 and $2.50 per day, and returned to the fall term of school with anywhere from $50 to $100 in their pockets, representing their savings. This speaks well for the manner in which the students have applied themselves to the learning of a trade, and is the incentive by which we hope to materially increase instruction in the various trades taught by us.

"The course of study has not been materially changed except in trying to get in more trade work. For the older boys in the mornings they work in the shops. This is simply to develop trade work. The boys of the three upper grades spend three hours of the forenoon in the shops. We give them instruction in the machine shop, forge shop and carpenter shop in the forenoon. They take to the machine shop and are most anxious to work where everything seems on the move. We have done little construction work about the premises, but this will be a feature which will be largely developed. The shops are practically running all day, so from this it can be understood that the boys are kept pretty busy either with their hands or with their books.

"We are pushing the agriculture work as much as possible and I am gratified at the energy displayed by the students in this department. This work is carried on under Mr. Krouse, who comes from the University of California. He has charge of the greenhouses. He is a very intelligent and efficient instructor and the boys make wonderful progress under him. It is surprising how much interest is taken in field work. Instruction in this department is for the two upper grades. This is all practical work, there being no class room instruction in connection with it. This department includes work in the garden, with the dairy, pigery and looking after the work horses and mules, all under Mr. Krouse's direction. We have thirty pigs and hogs, fifteen head of cattle and several horses and mules. We raise a great deal of garden truck for the boys' dining hall and they take a great deal of interest in what they are producing for their own consumption. It is to the credit of the boys to say that they have cleared the land in many places of the great masses of rock which encumber the premises.

"At present instruction in the trades department includes also mechanical and architectural drawing. At some future time we will take up painting and electricity and do some construction work. Some of the boys are already excellent carpenters and it is contemplated having the boys get out their own plans and specifications and entirely construct certain buildings on the premises.

"The manual training work is for the lower grades for the little boys from twelve to sixteen years of age. They are given one and a half hours instruction in the afternoon. They work in the tailor shop, do a little carpentering and elementary forge work and wood turning. The tools and general equipment of the trades and manual training departments are excellent, but of course need to be augmented from time to time by new features."

CAUSE OF FALLING HAIR.

Dandruff, Which is a Germ Disease—Kill the Germ.

Falling hair is caused by dandruff, which is a germ disease. The germ, in burrowing in to the root of the hair, where it destroys the vitality of the hair, causing the hair to fall out, digs up the cuticle in little scales called dandruff or scurf. You can't stop the falling hair without curing the dandruff, and you can't cure the dandruff without killing the dandruff germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ. Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing.

LEPER ESCAPED.

A Chinaman Gets Away From Kalihi and is at Large.

When the steamer Lehua left this port Monday afternoon she had only fourteen lepers on board, while she was to have had fifteen. This was due to the fact that the remaining one had escaped while in detention in Kalihi. The superintendent of the leper settlement at Kalaupapa, Mr. Reynolds, stated however that he had no doubt that the man would be captured very soon.

The escaped leper, who was not a very bad case, though he had some rather ugly leprosy sores, was a Chinaman, and as Chinese generally very much object to being held by the authorities in any case, the man was closely watched. The lepers were all congregated in an enclosed yard with a high board fence around it, and as he probably saw the hopelessness of an attempt of escape during the day he waited till the supper call was made. The guard, thinking that all the lepers would go to supper, did not watch the Chinaman, and this individual was not slow to see his chance. He scaled the fence and disappeared before any one noticed it. As attempts of escape are generally made during the night much attention is not paid to the prisoners during the day, and as it was just dusk when the Chinaman made his exit, it was some little while before it was discovered that he had gone. Search was immediately made, but up to the departure of the Lehua he had not yet been found.

Appeal to Court
From Board of Appraisers.

JAPANESE ASKING
FOR A NEW RATING

Collector Stackable Upheld Upon Rating but Action Follows.
Pearl Harbor Case Argued.

The first action of its kind was instituted yesterday in the United States District Court, being an appeal from the decision of the United States general appraisers at New York, made September 3, as to the rate and amount of duties chargeable on certain merchandise imported by H. Hamano to Honolulu on the City of Peking, from Japan, on the 10th day of October, 1900.

The merchandise in question was Japanese slippers, which Collector Stackable classified as dutiable as manufactures of leather at the rate of 35 per cent ad valorem. From this decision the plaintiff in the above case and S. Kojima appealed to the United States Board of Appraisers, which not only sustained Collector Stackable, but held that "as there is no leather in the articles—rawhide not being leather—it seems that neither of said provisions include these slippers," and "the particular articles covered by said protest are properly dutiable under paragraph 193, at the rate of 45 per cent ad valorem, as the articles or wares not specially provided for, comprised wholly or in part of iron."

No analysis has been made of the slippers covered by the other protests, but the same rule would apply unless silk, cotton or straw should be the component of chief value, in which case they would be dutiable as silk wearing apparel, cotton wearing apparel, or manufactures of straw.

The protests are overruled and the decision of the collector stands affirmed, without, however, approving the classification complained of by the defendant.

In reference to the above decision the petition filed yesterday states, "That said Board of United States General Appraisers in said decision erred both in law and in fact, especially, as follows:

"1. That they erred in deciding that there is no leather in the articles;

"2. That they erred in deciding that rawhide, to wit, the hide of a beef animal stripped of its hair and prepared and rendered into use, and not tanned, is not leather.

"3. That said board erred in overlooking or disregarding the provisions of section 7 of the tariff act of 1897, in that the untanned leather or rawhide, which is the component of chief value in said shoes is similar in material, in quality, in texture, and in the use to which it may be and was applied, to leather."

The petitioner asks that the Board of United States General Appraisers at New York be ordered "to return to this court the record of said matter, and the evidence taken by them therein, together with a certified statement of the facts.

"A reversal of the decision is asked, and that it be adjudged that the merchandise in question is only dutiable as leather shoes, under paragraph 433 of the tariff act of 1897, at the rate of 25 per cent ad valorem."

A sample of the Japanese shoes in question are filed as "Exhibit A," with the petition. An interesting feature of the decision of the appraisers is the analysis of the slippers, as follows: Rawhide, 40.32; straw, 25.407; cotton, 16.539; silk, 11.395; iron, 2.122; other materials, 4.157.

The arguments in the Pearl Harbor condemnation suits were concluded in Judge Estee's court yesterday at noon. Mr. Silliman argued for an additional hour yesterday morning, and was followed by Mr. Dunne.

Woodpeckers for Hawaii.

Wray Taylor, Commissioner of Agriculture, is figuring on the introduction of woodpeckers into the Hawaiian Islands. He believes that they would do much to decrease the number of boring insects, which are such a source of damage to the forest trees here.

The species sought to be introduced is the downy woodpecker, which is native to California and which can easily be brought here.

Commissioner Taylor will forward a letter to the agricultural department at Washington on the Mariposa for an opinion, before he takes further action.

ing to get a sawing establishment going, as there is plenty of koa timber close by, and I can get boards from no other quarter for churches and school houses. With the people he would spend days in the mountains, cutting timber, sharpening the axes and directing the pulp gatherers. This pulp he shipped in bags to a friend in San Francisco, who sold it to the miners for pillows, and turned the money into window sashes, locks and furnishings for meeting houses and school houses, of which he built twenty-five in his extended parish. It was a tremendous strain upon his energies to keep things going, as the natives were very destructive of tools, and looked to their "Kumu" for direction in everything. At this time he writes: "My work is pleasant but arduous. I attend a meeting every morning at dawn of day and speak to an audience of about two hundred visiting schools from eight to nine, then attend the sick, bleed, cup, poultice, dress wounds with all the aids of a notorious quack, then go to my study till some one calls for books, advice, etc., which is very often in five minutes, and repeated till ten o'clock at night. I am combed with many cares. In the afternoon I teach singing and lecture again. On the Sabbath I preach at sunrise, speak to the children at ten, a sermon at eleven to the people, Bible class at one, lecture at four and on Mondays I am somewhat blue. I spend every third Sabbath at the out stations, where the labor is greater than at home." The result of building up a Christian civilization out of such childlike people pressed the early missionary fathers and mothers sorely. I have heard father tell of a truly pious deacon in Haiku who awakened him in the middle of the night to ask him if he could take part in the communion service the next day without his trousers, because a rooster's son had stolen the only pair he owned.

After this strenuous life chapter his health gave way, his lungs became involved from exposure and fatigue, and it was thought his work was done, but horseback riding, a free use of cold water and a dauntless spirit pulled him through.

Wailuku was his next field, where he built the first comfortable home, the family ever knew. In this house Samuel C. Armstrong was born. His life was cast in a strong mould. Both parents were laboring mightily to work out the industrial as well as spiritual salvation of the Hawaiian people. In church and school-house, saw mill, sugar field, agriculture and domestic training, the boy absorbed the gospel of work and the value of industrial training, and in the logic of events applied those lessons to the "sanctified common sense" to the ex-slaves and Indians of America. They are still a living force in Hampton Institute, and in the work of Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee. The methods of L. L. L. and the Hilo Boarding School furnished seed thought out of which grew these widespread trees of knowledge.

In 1840 came a call to take charge of Mr. Bingham's church in Honolulu. In the journal he writes: "Several of the people of parting with a people who I had adopted as my fellow travelers to the grave." The stone walls of Kawaiahao Church which was to hold three thousand people, were only partially completed; and there was much plumbing and painting to be done. The building was the gift of the people, who cut them from the reef at low tide and brought them in volunteer companies, which involved delays and inconvenience. In July, 1842, the Stone Church, or King's Chapel, as it was then called, was dedicated. "To the worship of God and the use of generations," and Mr. Armstrong preached to congregations of twenty-five hundred and often three thousand people. The grounds about the church looked like an encampment when the people came from valley and shore on horseback and spent their noon hour in the rush-covered basement, waiting the afternoon session. Before the church was occupied a delicate question arose about seating royalty. The person of the king was held sacred. Any commoner who climbed a tree under which a king or high chief reclined was liable to penalty of death. The king and chiefs did not like the galleries. How could a subject sit above an all without serious risks? Mrs. Judd, in her book Honolulu, tells how Kamehameha III settled the momentous question by saying: "Old things have passed away. I prefer a seat by a window, so I can have fresh air. I do not care who are in the galleries, if they do not break through." This declaration of human rights was a tremendous break in the walls of superstition that enslaved the people and made way for the teachings of brotherly love in that pulpit.

From this time Mr. Armstrong was more and more identified with public affairs on account of his nearness to the king and chiefs as their pastor and counselor and Bible class teacher. His preaching was direct and practical, more like familiar talks of a father to his children. He had perfect command of the Hawaiian language, and waxed eloquent in his zeal to lead his flock through Christ to better and purer living. There were few sleepers in his congregation. In 1848 he was made Minister of Public Instruction by Kamehameha III, following Mr. William Richards, who died after serving one year in the office. The family moved to "Stone House," now the Preparatory School, where the king and chiefs Pahi, John II and Kekouanoa and others, often in those early days took tea in a friendly way and discussed the affairs of the nation. Here began a career of great activity, planning and organizing out of crude material a public school system, examining and training teachers, writing and translating school-books, organizing agricultural and industrial societies among the natives, and taking an active part in the great "Mahele Act," by which a grand division of the lands of the kingdom was made, in translating the proceedings and surveying lands subject to the new laws, and visiting in person the five hundred schools scattered all over the group, traveling in canoes, miserable little schooners, on horseback and muleback, often weary and worn, but following the star of duty through storm and under the tropical sun.

He was a member of the Privy Council and House of Nobles, preached every Sabbath and acted as King's Chaplain, conducting prayer services in the Palace. I well remember going with my father to these services. Kaukoniu, and Queen Kalama, were central figures; Kanahua, Pahi, father of Bernice Pauahi Bishop, John II and his wife Sari, John Young and Kekouanoa were grouped about many of them taking part in the service. I dropped a courtesy to "His Majesty" with profound respect and admiration. Kamehameha III smiled on little children.

After one of these prayer services in the old Palace, Kamehameha lifted me in his arms and placed me upon the throne—a large morocco arm chair surmounted by a carved and gilded crown—and asked me how I would like to be a queen. Although but a wee lassie, the chiefs were so tormented with fears of losing their flag that annexation to the United States was almost accomplished as a safeguard to their liberties in 1853. The death of King Kamehameha III stayed proceedings.

In those troublous times Mr. Armstrong enlisted the sympathies of Daniel Webster, Secretary of State, through a relative, who was a personal friend to the great statesman, and with more than political interest he espoused the cause of the defenseless little kingdom.

Mr. Armstrong writes with evident satisfaction: "Daniel Webster has written one of his thundering letters to the French government and tells them they must leave the Islands independent." The whole navy was offered for protection, if necessary.

A French frigate came into the port of Honolulu in 1849, making large demands upon the government and spiked the guns on the old fort, stole a feather cloak from the king's yacht, and $20,000 from the treasury, vexed the souls of the king and chiefs by making hideous effigies of them on the walls of the old fort, and threatened to take the government officers, our father among them, on board the frigate as reprisals.

Then it was Captain Long of the American warship Boston, in port, reassured us by declaring: "He would send those Frenchmen to —, a very orthodox hot place with his guns if they vexed an American. A peace-loving missionary did not hesitate to stand in the breach with the troubled king and chiefs, encouraging and counseling them to prudence under the strained conditions.

In 1855 Mr. Armstrong drew up and proposed an act remodeling the Department of Public Instruction, in order that he might give his whole time to promoting education and seeking the good of Hawaiian youth, and was president of this Board thirteen years—till the day of his death. In his journal he writes: "If I know my heart, I wish in this office to honor God in laboring for the good of the rising generations."

On the children he fixed his hopes, and his purpose was to aid in giving to Hawaii the strong foundations of a Christian faith and morality which would make them strong enough to resist the incoming tide of evil influences. How bravely the missionary fathers and mothers struggled against this tide only the recording angel can tell. In 1848, Mr. Armstrong writes: "It would seem the design of God to blot this people from the face of the world." "They are a poor, helpless race, and need aid at every turn and all the time." Drunkenness and disease were making great ravages at this time. Again he writes: "If a stronger race is to supplant the weak, the same Christianity which can master the one is likely to control the other, bearing to the supplanting race new powers for good"—so he fixed his eyes on the star of hope with prophetic vision.

In 1857 Mr. Armstrong undertook, with Rev. Edward G. Beckwith, the mission of gathering funds for Oahu College, of which he was a trustee, in our Eastern States. They returned with $20,000, a goodly sum considering the financial crisis which was distressing the country at the time. While in Boston he visited and took counsel with Horace Mann. It is interesting to realize that the advanced methods of this great educator influenced the schools of Hawaii as far as the limited resources at hand would allow. In the school report of 1851, Mr. Armstrong states that the average salary of a common school teacher was $7.50 per month, and this did not represent cash, as taxes were largely collected in produce. In Kau the teachers were paid in soap, kalo, goats, etc. It is not surprising that several of the teachers protested against the goats, realizing the difficulty of collecting their salary on the hoof. We are assured in the report that "these teachers live better than any other class of the common people."

With all his cares and responsibilities, Mr. Armstrong contributed largely to the literature of Hawaii, as the following list of books written in the Hawaiian language will show:

A work on Surveying.
Manual on Popery.
Work on Moral Philosophy.
A semi-monthly periodical on Schools and Education.
Work on Political Economy and Domestic Economy.
Joined with others in preparing Hymn-book and School Reader.
Translated the Shorter Catechism.
Edited two Hawaiian newspapers, the Nona-Nona, and Hae Hawaii—to the latter Kamehameha IV contributed.
Wrote scholarly articles for the Hawaiian Spectator, a literary magazine in the English language, published here in early days.

There are some here who will perhaps remember the hymn he wrote when the first "Morning Star" sailed for Micronesia, entitled "Ka Hokua." He would write a couple of lines, then say "Come Goodey," and at the Eolian they would fit the words to the music in the old Lyra Hawaii. The refrain comes echoing through the years, associated with the children's missionary schooner, paid for with many, many self-denials and waited out of Honolulu harbor with prayer and song:

"Ka Hokeao
He Kamaheo
He nani maoli no."

The most serious and important work of Mr. Armstrong's pen was the translation of the Civil Code of Hawaii, involving several years of studious effort to effect as far as possible a perfect agreement between the English and Hawaiian texts. The labor was greatly increased by the necessity of coining law terms to meet the understanding of the natives. All changes in the Civil Code were based on this work, after it was accepted by the Legislature in 1859, and the body politic rested upon it until American law came in force with annexation.

On his way to preach in Kaneohe, his horse took fright and threw him, inflicting a fatal injury. Three weeks later, Sept. 23, 1859, this valiant soldier of the cross passed gently into the strange and beautiful shadow of death, and we buried him near the old "Stone Church," where his voice had so long been heard.

A generation has passed, but we still quote his words believing that he is with us in holy influence. Of slight and wiry frame, with shoulders bent, he looked old and furrowed at fifty-five, which was his allotted life span; but his blue eyes never lost their kindly light, and his ever-flowing Scotch humor made his presence a joy in the family circle. When we were pegging away at our books around the old kua table, he would say: "Remember, my child, knowledge is never heavy to carry." His admonitions were firm, but so loving that we dreaded to hurt him by our mischievous pranks.

Gen. S. C. Armstrong, speaking of his father, says: "I see more and more as I grow older, the value of father's example and teachings, and my reverence for his life increases." "Such a death, crowning such lives, are rare, and only given to soldiers of the cross. The world knows nothing of them, they are not found in the books. The perfection of father's life was that he made it mean something to us." "It is pleasant to think of father lying with Baxter by his side under the trees mother planted, in the shadow of the old 'Stone Church'—uncamped forever on the ground where he made his noble fight."

This is only an imperfect record of one life in the vanguard of civilization, which came to establish righteousness in these Islands. Other records may be written of faithful missionaries who wrought themselves into the history of Hawaii. However small the results may seem to our finite vision, we know the world is better for such lives and we do well to reverently cherish our missionary heritages and promote the cause baptized with the tears and prayers of our fathers and mothers. Is it not written, "My word shall not return unto me void?"

Fifty thousand dollars were secured by the train robbers who held up the Cotton Belt passenger train at Elyan, Texas.
