Kumalae and Johnson Must Pay Prison Penalty

SUPREME COURT OVERRULES EXCEPTIONS

Exceptions of Enoch Johnson and Jonah Kumalae, indicted for conspiracy, to the verdict of guilty in the first degree, were today overruled by the Territorial Supreme Court and the men named must pay the penalty in prison.

Chief Justice Frear writes the decision and the opinion of the court is unanimous.

The defendants were jointly indicted for conspiracy in substance as follows: That Kumalae, a member of the house of representatives and chairman of a special committee on the "Chinese Fund," and Johnson, an attorney, conspired to defraud the Territory by falsely representing to the standing committee on accounts that Johnson had been engaged as clerk of said special committee and had performed certain services for it and rendered a legal opinion to it and that by reason thereof there was due him from the Territory $312.50, and that through false representations so made they procured an approval of the bill and a warrant for the payment thereof and afterwards obtained payment thereof from the Territory.

The first point presented by counsel, which is presented at considerable length, is that the trial court was irregularly constituted in that it was presided over by only one of the three judges of the circuit court of the first circuit instead of by all three judges sitting together as required, according to the defendants' contention, by sections 81 and 83 of the Organic Act of the Territory, which may be considered as in the nature of constitutional provisions. This point does not seem to have been raised in the trial court or made the ground of exception. Even if it had been raised and properly brought here it could not be sustained, for it is expressly provided by Act 32, section 7, Laws of 1903, that there may be one or more sessions of the court at the same time, and that each session may be held by one of the judges. This provision is not in conflict with the Organic Act as we understand it.

The decision says that a speedy trial was not denied by continuance from the last week of the term to the next term.

A juror is not necessarily disqualified because he has an opinion which it would require evidence to remove.

L. A. Andrews, Attorney General, and W. S. Fleming, Assistant Attorney General, for the prosecution; C. W. Ashford and A. S. Humphreys for defendants.

Senator McCandless for the Public Lands Committee this morning reported on H. The report of the committee was laid on the table to be considered with the bill.

Senator Lane turned in a minority report on the Governor's message relative to election inspectors, recommending that the appointments of the Governor be approved by the Senate. His report will be considered with the majority report.

Highton Begins Assault

In Test Case Before High Court

On County Government

GEAR AND ROBERTSON JOIN DEFENDING FORCES

The County Act test case was begun this morning before the Supreme Court. Henry E. Highton appeared for the plaintiff, W. R. Castle, taxpayer and bondholder, while the defense was conducted by Henry E. Cooper and Deputy Attorney General Prosser. Attorney General Andrews was present, but only for a few minutes. It was apparent from the outset that the Court is disposed to rush the matter, allowing no continuance.

A. G. M. Robertson stated he represented J. C. Quinn, a candidate for Supervisor, and would like to take part in the argument, if he could get time to prepare the case. He asked that the case stand over until Monday. The case was an important one and he did not see that there was such a great hurry.

Judge Gear said he would like to be entered as amicus curiae, representing certain parties. He would also like to have a continuance. Counsel, representing other interests, should be allowed to, as the matter was a very important one. Then other parties had a right to be heard. The question of jurisdiction was a grave one. Gear did not think that the Court had jurisdiction.

The Court asked Judge Gear if he wished to argue.

He answered that the case might be argued so fully that he need not do so. He had, however, his own views on the matter and if these were not presented he should wish to do so himself.

The Court stated that it would want to go ahead with the argument today, but would be glad to hear argument by Gear and Robertson.

Gear said that before the Court proceeded with the case he would file an objection on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction.

Cooper said the respondent would file a motion to strike, as certain sections were irrelevant and immaterial.

Highton said he would like to specify that the Act was unconstitutional and void and would amend the complaint to that effect.

Cooper objected to this amendment, as he had prepared his case hastily. He was not prepared to meet the additional points.

The Court stated it would not allow the amendments except by consent.

Highton said he did not expect to do other in the opening argument than to present the points on which objection was made. The particular matter to be discussed was the County Act, and it would in considering it be necessary to bring in Act 93. It appeared that the Act stretched deeply into the American Constitution. All Americans believed in self-government, said Highton, and he dwelt on this point at some length. The main question here was what self-government was. The idea of taxation and representation was the foundation of the United States. In this proceeding the taxpayer, the complainant, W. R. Castle, represented the legal principle of self-government which was in harmony with the Constitution. The existence of a county was the result of the action of the two Houses, and usually with the signature of the Governor. When he failed to sign it something was wrong.

The County Act itself as amended contained no provision for the support of County government. There was no clause in it dealing with revenue. Money was the blood without which the counties would die. Whose blood was it? Either its own or another's. County government was a system of government meeting the special needs of a locality outside of the general laws. The same rate of taxation would not apply to all counties without reference to their individuality. The Counties of Oahu and Kauai had different needs. These should be met by self-imposed local taxation. Without this there could be no such thing as County government. The County Act was silent on the question of revenue. If it stood alone it would be incapable of enforcement. Without Act 93 it would have perished. With this Act what semblance of County government did the County Act bear? These two Acts were necessary to each other. County government could not exist unless the counties themselves paid for it. The revenue Act rested on a proposition of the Territory getting half and the counties half of the taxes. This one fact divested the County Act of any resemblance to County government, as the counties' money was diverted from the Territory. The County of Oahu was compelled to contribute to the support of the County of Kauai and so forth. The taxpayers were made to support all the Counties. This was contradictory to the American system. This alone divested the County Act of the most necessary feature.

With regard to the objection to the Court's jurisdiction, there was only one proposition to be considered. Could Carter have filed a bill for injunction in the Circuit Court preventing the special election? The jurisdiction of Circuit Judges was perhaps larger than anywhere else. The capacity to frame a remedy corresponding to the necessity of the particular case was greater than anywhere else. If Castle could have obtained his injunction there could be no question of the Supreme Court's jurisdiction. The right and the remedy here turned on the same pivot, jurisdiction could not be argued except on the basis of the rule of construction applicable to legislative construction of the Territory. There were many cases in the States that held that in matters of election there was a political question involved. State courts had held that taxpayers could not enjoin a general election. When the true rule of construction was applied here it would be seen that these authorities were not applicable. There was a great difference

Militia and Police

Having Quelled Strikers

Back From Lahaina

After a strenuous week in camps at Lahaina, quelling the striking Japanese laborers, Company F, N. G. H., commanded by Capt. Sam Johnson, the detachment of Signal Corps men under Lieut. Dougherty, and sixteen foot and mounted police under High Sheriff Henry, arrived at 10:45 this morning on the island steamer Kinau, dispersing soon afterward.

The steamer's arrival with the "troops" brought a large crowd of curious ones down the wharf. Among these were a great number of Japanese anxious to learn news of the strike of their countrymen. Many feminine hero-worshippers were also in evidence, attracted by the chance to see some particular friend in uniform.

The Kinau drew up to the wharf with every warrior on board apparently glad to get back, for campaign hats were waving and greetings flew back and forth. Capt. Sam Johnson ordered his men ashore as soon as the passengers had landed. The men fell into company formation on the wharf and marched to the armory, where they dispersed. Lieut. Dougherty's signal corps detachment followed. The sixteen policemen marched to the police station and were relieved.

The situation in Lahaina is quiet, the strikers back at work to a man, and apparently the trouble is entirely over. There is one more chance of an outbreak, though a slight one. Tomorrow the Japanese will gather to hold their customary funeral services over the body of the man who was killed. The psychology of a Japanese mob is no different from that of any other mob, and when these Japanese get together by the hundred tomorrow there is just the possibility of an arousal of the bitter feeling again. It was for such a contingency that High Sheriff Henry has left twenty-one of the local police force, under command of Capt. Kanae. It is not believed these will be needed, but it is High Sheriff Henry's idea to guard against any small incidents that may lead to larger trouble. He said this morning, shortly after his return:

"I left a force of twenty-one men, stationed at the court house at Lahaina as a reserve force if such becomes necessary. However, I anticipate absolutely no trouble whatever. Everything looks quiet and peaceful. There were about 1700 Japs out on strike, and all have returned to work and seem apparently perfectly contented. It is still a question who fired the shot that killed the laborer and thus precipitated trouble. There seems to be no doubt that shots were fired on both sides, who did the killing may never be found out.

"It was this that made the Japanese hard to pacify.

"We had a pretty rough time of it and all came home feeling rocky. The men behaved very well. The Japanese asked me to let them hold their usual services over the body of the dead Japanese and this was granted. However, to guard against any violent demonstration, as might happen if they become inflamed with sake, I detailed the twenty-one men under Captain Kanae to remain over tomorrow and keep a look out for trouble. If nothing further occurs, they will return Monday evening on the Likelike.

"The luna to whom the Japanese objected so vigorously, is one of the most quiet, inoffensive men I ever saw, apparently harmless, but the Russian blood in him stirred the Japanese up. They are perfectly contented with their wages and the whole trouble seemed to be over the luna."

Captain Sam Johnson, like Sheriff Henry, was tired out after his trip and

TWENTY-FOURTH DAY.

House Bill No. 8, seeking to appropriate $2,000 for the police expenses of suppressing the Lahaina riot, was this morning indefinitely postponed in the House of Representatives.

Rep. Harris proposed an amendment which was not considered. He wanted to change the figures to read $500 instead of $2,000 and wanted the money expended for packing and shipping back to Honolulu the accoutrements of the militia. He was asked what was to be done in regard to the expenses incurred by the police and replied that he believed that these would be looked after by proper subscription. Rep. Cosalho suggested that the simplest way to handle accoutrements at Lahaina was to turn them over to the Federal quartermaster's department.

A message was received from the Governor vetoing certain items of the unpaid bills measure (S. B. 6). The message was read and action thereon deferred until it was learned what disposition the Senate might make of it. A little later it was learned that the

TO HONOR FLAG

Superintendent of Public Instruction Davis has sent the following circular letter to all the school principals in the Islands:

"Dear Sir:—June 14th being the 128th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the flag of the United States, the Department of Public Instruction of this Territory respectfully requests that the day be observed with appropriate exercises. The Department suggests the following programme:

Salutation of the flag.
Song: "America".....By the School
Address: "History of the flag".....
.....By the Principal
Song: "Star Spangled Banner".....
.....By the School
Recitation: "The American Flag"..
..... By Pupils
Song: "Battle Hymn of the Republic" .....By the School

"This is simply suggestive; each principal is at liberty to make his own program. This program will form a part of the regular school work of the day.

"(Signed) JAMES C. DAVIS,

COLLECTION FOR OSTROM.

The Bible conference held under the direction of Revivalist Ostrom came to an end with last night's mass meeting at Central Union church. Dr. Ostrom spoke last night on the crucifixion of Christ. It was announced that owing to the illness of Mrs. Roth the proposed drill of children at Palama Mission had been indefinitely postponed by Mr. Roth. Dr. Kincaid called the ushers to distribute money pledge cards. P. C. Jones had said he would pay the face value of all pledge cards for the compensation of the revivalist, those who thus gave their promises to pay, to reimburse Mr. Jones.

New Zealand's scenery is so beautiful and so varied that it has been termed a combination of Switzerland, Southern France, Norway, the Tyrol, and North Italy.

MANY SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN ANNUAL SESSION

Many hundred pupils and teachers from the various Hawaiian Sunday schools of the island gathered in Kawaiahao church this morning for the annual school meeting. The program consisted of singing, reports from the various schools, recitations and short speeches. Nebogatoff's Ships In Good Condition

Saigon, Cochin China, May 10.—The Russian cruiser Jemtchug and the Russian auxiliary cruiser Rion, belonging to Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron, arrived off Cape St. James, near here, during the night of May 8th and left yesterday morning at the request of the Governor of French Indo-China.

These cruisers brought instructions to Rear Admiral Nebogatoff, anchored three or four miles off shore. A heavy sea was running, exposing a good deal of the warships' hulls, which were quite free from barnacles or sea weed. The ships appeared to have unusually large crews, and the men all seemed in good health.

It is considered likely here that Nebogatoff's division has already passed the cape.

St. Petersburg, May 10. — Much satisfaction was expressed at the Admiralty at the uniting of the divisions of Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron, experts calculating that the Russian Admiral now enjoys a superiority over his adversary of 25 per cent. of the ships of the line. The impression here is that it will require a week for Nebogatoff to come and get everything shipshape for the final stage of the journey to Vladivostok. Admiral Togo is expected to decline an open battle.

ELLEFORDS STILL DRAW THE CROWDS

Honolulu certainly has the "Elleford habit." Crowded houses at the Orpheum are now the accepted thing. Last night a big audience saw the opening night of "New York Day by Day." Tonight the company presents the same, and another large audience ought to be on hand, for "New York Day By Day" is exactly the kind of play that appeals to the typical theater-goer. It has life and action and swing to it from start to finish. There is something doing all the time. Melodrama skilfully presented, comedy and pathos, intermingled, and one or two especially strong scenes go to make this play well worth seeing.

Myrtle Selwyn as "Rags," a street gamin, made the hit of the piece last night. She has the street Arab's characteristic recklessness, and shows touches of real feeling. Joe Harris, the English footpad, as presented by Frank Howe, was an excellent piece of work. The supporting members of the company were all up to standard.

The play has plenty of excitement for the most avid lover of melodrama. Of course everything ends happily, with the hero and heroine well provided for, and everybody goes home satisfied.

NEXT WEEK AT ORPHEUM

Commencing next Monday the Ellefords will present a line of high class plays.

"Trilby," which is beyond doubt one of the highest royalty plays now before the American public and as entailed no end of expense on the management for the reason that the owners of the play would not let the manuscript leave the main line without extra royalty, will be presented on Monday evening. The play has been carefully casted to the best advantage and a most interesting performance is assured. The story of "Trilby" is a truly wonderful one. There are so many beauties, so many singularities, so much that is fresh and original.

"Ben Bolt" will be sung by Mrs. J. C. Cohen incidentally to the play.

Sosso will take the role of Svengali, Miss Due will be the Trilby, Hernandez will be seen in his original part of Zo Zo which he played in New York with the William A. Brady Co. Elder appears as Taffy and Frank Wyman, the manager of the company, will be seen as Sandy. Marion, who has been doing most of the heaviest, will have a chance in Gecko.

SOCIAL NOTES

Very few visitors have ever received so royal a welcome socially as Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton. And I am quite sure that he has nowhere found more appreciative audiences at his lectures.

One hears often in this springtime, of his beautiful poem, "God of the Open Air." Of the poem, here are the lines I like best to quote:

These are the things I prize
And hold of the dearest worth;
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass,
Music of birds, murmur of little rills,
Shadows of clouds that swiftly pass,
And, after showers,
The smell of flowers,
And of the good brown earth—
And best of all, along the way, friendship and mirth.

Horse and Buggy Or "Gael" Automobile!

That's been a vital question in the community for quite a time. As a rule the horse and buggy got the final vote.

Not because the buyer would rather have them than an automobile.

But for the simple reason that he couldn't afford the latter luxury.

Now comes the GALE Automobile at $650, or just about what a good horse and buggy would cost.

Of course the final vote goes to the motor-car now, for, price being equal, who would not rather own a vehicle that will travel a hundred miles a day every day than one whose limit is about fifteen?

The Gael Costs $650.

in the eight-horse Runabout style. It is the pioneer of low-priced machines in Honolulu and fills a long-felt want.

It is in every way a first-class car and is the result of an exhaustive series of experiments covering a period of over two years. In this car many of the complicated parts which are objectionable features of other cars have been simplified and the veriest novice can operate a GALE successfully after a single lesson.

The Gale is not a monobile but is designed to comfortably seat three persons. We guarantee this car for a year and will make good any defects of workmanship or material brought to our notice during that period, free of charge.

SATURDAY.....MAY 27, 1905.

Isn't it lovely to see the boys coming home after having been to war and shot all to pieces.

J. W. D. has written a poem that may be published when the author makes himself known.

The question of whether it is a gold brick or not is now secondary to whether those dealing with it are flim-flam artists.

What a jolly crew Hawaii has aboard when it pays as much or more to the head of the water works than to the head of the educational department.

It may be the bird of peace furnished the leading topic of discussion at Mr. Choate's dinner with Ambassador Cambon. Hay's advance on Paris may also be with the purpose of snaring the bird if possible.

A special flag day is a very important item on the program of the public schools and it is to be hoped that the lessons of patriotism will be so faithfully taught that the day is not far distant when every day shall be a flag day in the schools of Hawaii

Poultney Bigelow says the Government of the United States is constantly preparing for war with a nation which he does not name and the people are kept in ignorance of what is going on. As Uncle Joe Cannon is the heavy end of the Government he ought to be able to tell us what's doing when he passes through.

Those figuring that the Russian fleet could never pass Formosa without a fight to the death appear to be in the same class with the gentlemen predicting that the fleet would be destroyed by Togo in the Straits of Malacca. If Togo is biding his time, it is evidently the time when Rojestvensky is able to find him.

The Governor's message on election inspector appointments, tabled on purely political conclusions, is about the rawest piece of public business conducted for political reasons that could be imagined. The report of the majority committee on this question ought to be framed in political brass and sent to Missouri.

If any present or prospective legislator thinks that the people will remain quiet under a policy that slights the public schools, that legislator has much to learn. The crop of resolutions that came from the precincts recently is one of the first evidences that the people are aroused to the public school situation and intend to get results. Their votes will be governed accordingly.

Some men may not want to "educate Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese and Kanakas." These men will soon learn that the people of this Territory do not intend that the public schools shall be hampered in carrying out their peculiarly American mission by such narrow views of such narrow men. The man who strikes an open or covert blow at the efficiency of the public schools in this Territory is an enemy of the nation.

Query—Is the Legislature being held in session in order to assist in slaughtering the County law? The organ of the declared and vicious enemies of local self-government is the only thing anxious for the Legislature to remain in session. This is the same organ that criticises the Legislature for spending a thousand dollars a day doing nothing. Is the Legislature a tool in the hands of a master, or an independent body with a mind of its own?

HIGHTON BEGINS ASSAULT IN TEST CASE BEFORE HIGH COURT ON COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

between State and Territorial legislators. A Territorial Legislature exercised no sovereign qualities; it could go only as far as Congress permitted. It must show its authority for its actions in the Organic Act.

Highton went on to say that it might very well be that the Legislature in passing the Act thought it was invested with the sovereign powers of State Legislatures and that that was why it conflicted in so many places with the Organic Act.

Highton went on to quote authorities on the matter, in one of which a Territorial Legislature was alluded to as a creature of Congress, etc.

The Legislation of the Territory and Acts of the Territory in the line of public loans had been very distinct.

The Legislature might deal in an ordinary way with the revenues of the Territory, but it had no right to divide the consolidated revenues in two parts and give half to the Counties. When it did that it imperiled the bondholders of the Territory, to whom it was virtually bound under contract. Authorities to support this point were quoted.

The plaintiff would further show that Castle had a specific interest in the revenues as a bondholder. The sale of bonds had been advertised with the provision that the consolidated revenues of the Territory were held charged for the bond. This was part of the contract between the Territory and the bondholders. Now Act 93 divided the Territorial consolidated revenues in two and deprived the bondholders of the benefit of one-half of the revenues. Without Act 93 the County Act would be inert. It vitalized the County Act, which had failed to make the taxpayers pay for the County government. The Legislature had no power to violate the obligations of the contract.

Judge Hartwell said that it did not appear in the argument that the 50 per cent. given to the Counties was less accessible for the bondholders.

Highton said that County government was not in existence when the contract was made. Act 93 provided that the moneys given the Counties should be paid for County expenses. The fifty per cent. given the counties was not pledged to be a benefit of the bondholders. The Territory was held within the letter of its contract. When the bonds were issued the bondholders knew that there might be changes in the taxation but they were not aware that 50 per cent of the revenue might be diverted to a use not then in existence. The question was not if the bondholder was not protected by the remaining fifty per cent. The point was that he had lost fifty per cent of his protection.

Hartwell's Query.

Hartwell said he did not see how the security of the bondholder was lessened by the manner of expenditure of the revenue.

Highton said that when Territorial revenues were diverted for a purpose not Territorial there was a withdrawal of security.

Hartwell said that the revenue never stayed in the Treasury very long anyhow.

Highton went on to show authorities on the subject of the power of taxpayers to enjoin.

He further stated that the protest was not a mute protest where over three million dollars were held by people all over the world. It was no small case. In which it was to be seen if the Territory would run on American principles, or be run by a set of politicians. The Territory in its legislation on this subject had been in advance of other communities. If an act was passed and it was assailed on the ground of unconstitutionality it was best for all to have it determined as soon as possible. The case affected 6,500 taxpayers and the bondholders, for whom a speedy decision was important, in order that they might be relieved from the uncertainty.

The County Act had deprived the High Sheriff of all his duties still another section stated that the word sheriff should mean high sheriff. On page 635 of the Revised Laws it was shown the courts of record could decide the constitutionality and binding effect of laws and regulations. This showed the jurisdiction of the court in the case submitted. The Revised Laws also in other places indicated the jurisdiction of the court in the case as it had been presented. Further authorities on this subject were quoted.

In this connection Highton said that he saw nothing which prevented the Attorney-General to appear against a law. There was nothing obliging the Attorney General to support an unconstitutional act. He could proceed to have the constitutionality of an act tested.

Deputy Attorney General Prosser stated that this argument seemed to rest on the assumption that the Attorney General thought the act unconstitutional, which was probably not correct.

Highton went on to speak of the title of the act. He said if the organization created by the act were not counties, as named in the title, the act itself was unauthorized, as the title of an act must express its subject. On this point Highton quoted opinions. If it was found that the title did not point to the contents of the act it was void. The County Act uncreated a number of things. It changed masses of the functions of Territorial officers it wiped out many sections on the subject of the Public Works Department, the street system, etc., etc. The Attorney General was also deprived of functions which were vital to the execution of his office.

At this point the noon hour was arrived. Highton asked that further argument be continued until Monday morning as he was much in need of a rest. The matter was accordingly continued until Monday at 10 a. m.

YACHTS TO KAUAI

The yachts La Paloma and Hawaii start out this afternoon for a three days' ocean run to Hanalei, Kauai, and return. The La Paloma will have Captain Macfarlane, Mr. Hobron and Secretary Petrie of the Yacht Club on board with native sailors. The Hawaii will be in charge of Sorenson and Crozier. It is expected that they will return not later than Tuesday night.

PUNA SALE POSTPONED

The sale of the Puna Plantation Co., which was continued from last week until today, was again continued this morning for two weeks, until June 10, Judge De Bolt granting the motion for continuance, to which all parties interested in the matter consented. During the presentation of the motion Attorney Lewis stated that there was a possibility of having the matter settled without an auction.

THE HOUSE.

Senate had sustained the veto and the House did likewise.

The Governor's message, in brief, was as follows:

Herewith, I return Senate Bill No. 6, entitled "An Act Making Special Appropriations for the Use of the Government of the Territory to Pay the Unpaid Bills up to the First Day of July, A. D. 1904."

Items amounting to $10,667.43 came from the various departments and were presented to you. The Bill as passed carries items amounting to $18,364.19.

There has been considerable difficulty in getting information, and in a number of instances what information has been presented was exceedingly meager.

I am unable to approve of the following items:

Mrs. Kamakaheikuli, claim for 19,652 square feet of land used for road, Honokaa, Hamakua, $50. This claim has never been presented to the Public Works Department, in which there is an appropriation for road damages. Any small claim like this, if on investigation it is found that the claimant's title is good, can easily be settled and paid for, as soon as a proper deed has been executed and delivered.

John Lycurgus, claim 1903, $550.

House Resolution No. 221, and report on the same of April 26th, shows that Mr. Lycurgus built a road 2200 feet long and ten feet wide into his homestead lot, Kaumana, and it is claimed this was done under promise of payment by the Public Works (Jas. H. Boyd). The report intimates that during my visit to Hawaii I approved the claim, when as a matter of fact I saw the road and met the claimant and expressed my surprise that he should have been willing to advance any money on the simple word of a Government official, when it ought to be evident to every citizen that the legislative functions of the Government are separate and distinct from the Executive functions, and that no one connected with the latter can bind the former.

If claims like this are paid, it sets an unfortunate precedent.

To pay the American-Hawaiian Engineering and Construction Company, $2,500.

In this case, a rival contractor attacked the validity of this contract. The Superintendent of Public Works defended it and carried the case to the Supreme Court, where it was lost. It is impossible to state how far the rival contractor was prompted to bring this suit by the fact that he himself had just lost a contract owing to a suit by a stockholder in the American-Hawaiian Engineering and Construction Company.

If the Territorial Government is responsible for loss in this case, the question immediately arises as to claims in other similar cases, and I believe that the responsibility of the Territory in such matters should be determined in the courts before the precedent of such appropriations is made.

Road Damages, Kona, Hawaii: Claim Kaopumomona, $100; Claim Kamahalo, $75.

Both of these cases should be presented to the Superintendent of Public Works, and on the showing that the title is good and the amount a fair compensation, on delivery of the deeds, the items could be paid from the road damages fund.

Hilo Fire Department: To Hilo Electric Light Co., $101.50; to Hilo Telephone Co., $36; to Richard & Schoen, $32.50; to E. Fuhr, $18.

An examination of the details of these items shows that they were almost wholly incurred during the period when no appropriation existed, and were thus without legislative authority.

Board of Health: Claim, C. Tollefsen, for yacht "Volante," $250.

I am informed that this boat was lost while in charge of her owner, at a time when Superintendent McVeigh was a passenger in the same, the owner having refused to accept any pay for carrying him, and because of this it is claimed that the taxpayers of the Territory should reimburse him for the loss of his boat. To this I cannot agree.

Bill, Wilder's Steamship Co., $334.23. The Legislature of 1903 passed an appropriation in the 18 months bill, beginning with January 1, 1904, of $1,500.00, for a derrick and landing at Pelekunu. At the same session an appropriation of $5,000 for the construction of a telephone system on Molokai was passed in the 6 months bill, which was to lapse on the 1st of January, 1904. The latter item was thought to be insufficient, and as it would be of some assistance to the steamship companies, the contractor appealed to them for help, with probably some kind of an understanding that the matter would be presented to the Legislature. During September, 1903, the then Superintendent of Public Works, being of the opinion that the Legislature was limited in its power to the passage of biennial appropriations, authorized the steamship company to undertake the erection of the derrick landing at Pelekunu. However, the Supreme Court decided the Legislature had acted within its powers, and that the two appropriation bills could only be expended as had been provided. Thus the Auditor refused those items in connection with the derrick landing that had been incurred prior to January 1, 1904. Owing to this misunderstanding, it might be proper for this Legislature to make provision for the payment of these items. But it is impossible to segregate them in the account presented, and I cannot approve the claim as it stands.

A. Lindsay, Treasurer Hilo Shippers' Wharf Committee, for sanitary protection of the port of Hilo, $1,047.70.

The item does not properly belong in this bill, which carries only items of previous fiscal periods.

Department of Justice: To reimburse Ridgway & Ridgway for services rendered Fourth Circuit, $50.

Ridgway & Ridgway were offered $50 as a compromise, but absolutely refused it. The fiscal period ended, and there is no evidence to show that they have changed their opinion and are willing to accept the same.

To reimburse Ah Nam, $25. This is a claim for the refunding of bail money deposited by Ah Nam for one Ah Tai on March 19th, and forfeited on March 20th, 1905.

It appears that the accused was at that time satisfied to forfeit his bail.

W. J. Yates, D. K. Kealohapauole and Solomon Nahupu, expenses as witnesses, Territory vs. E. M. Jones, $10 each.

The Attorney General's Department can give no information as to why these items were not presented during the period, when there was money available. There is no requirement in the law that witnesses should be paid $1.00 a day. The plan originated in certain cases where witnesses could ill afford loss of time, and has now become almost general, and is one of the many ways by which the appropriations for the various circuits are so often exceeded.

P. L. Weaver, Traveling Expenses, $327.

Judge Weaver, of the Court of Land Registration, was appointed and salary provided during the period covered by the six months' bill of the Session of 1903. No appropriations, however, were made in that bill for the incidentals necessary to inaugurate his court. Under the circumstances, with nothing to do, it would have been improper for the salary to be paid. Judge Weaver, however, undertook to put in the time by a trip to Massachusetts to study the system, and thus better prepare himself for the services he was eventually to render the Territory, and, therefore, his salary continued. He returned in December and purchased a number of supplies, in order to be in readiness to start the court in the following month. These items the Auditor very properly refused to pay, as they were incurred in a previous fiscal period. In the latter case, however, the Territory received the material and has since used it; but it would appear that as the salary was drawn for the entire six months, no allowance should be made for travelling expenses.

At 10:45 a. m., there being no further business before the House, adjournment was taken until 2 p. m., Monday next.

Successful Home Treatment.

Dr. Hartman's Cure for Female Diseases---A Generous Offer to Women.

Invalid Women are Applying by Thousands for Dr. Hartman's Free Home Treatment by Letter.

MRS. J. P. COADY, Treasurer of the Ivy Leaf Club, 1,702 6th Avenue, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes:

"Peruna is no experimental medicine. I have used it off and on now for three years. At that time I was cured of irregular and painful menstruation. Since that time I have taken it for indigestion or whenever I felt overworked and in need of a tonic, and I have always found that it was of great benefit to me. I am therefore pleased and happy to say a word in its praise and shall gladly indorse it to my friends."---Mrs. J. P. Coady.

Miss Hattie Grace, 254 West 46th St., New York, writes:

"Peruna has changed me from a fretful, irritable, nervous woman into a healthy and a happy one. Nothing seems to worry and to fret me any more. Since early womanhood I suffered with bearing down pains and nervousness. I was thin and worried, but Peruna restored me. Those who knew me before cannot understand the change, but I can sum it all up in the blessed word, Peruna."--Hattie Grace.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ferguson, No. 181 51st St., Brooklyn, N. Y., President West Brooklyn Audubon Society, writes:

"I am pleased to tell what a blessing Peruna has been to me. Several years ago my constitution seemed broken down and I cared little whether I lived or died. I had taken so much medicine that the sight of a bottle made me sick. I had read about Peruna curing women, and I thought perhaps it would help me. I bought a bottle and before it was finished I felt better. I kept on taking it, and after three months' faithful use I was a well woman and able to do the work and undergo the strain of younger days."---Elizabeth Ferguson.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned gynecologist, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months without charge.

The treatment will be conducted by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygienic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicines prescribed can be obtained at all drug stores. This offer will hold good only during the summer months. Any woman can become a regular patient by sending a written statement of her age, condition of life, history and symptoms of her derangements.

All cases of female diseases, including menstrual irregularities, displacements, ulcerations, inflammations, discharges, irritation of the ovaries, tumors and dropsy of the abdomen, should apply at once and become registered as regular patients. All correspondence will be held strictly confidential.

As is well known, Dr. Hartman is the president of The Hartman Sanitarium, an institution which has a department devoted exclusively to the treatment of female diseases. He is thus brought to see thousands of such cases every year, the most of whom return to their homes to be treated by correspondence. The principal remedy he relies upon in such cases is Peruna, which every woman should have who has any affection of this kind. Those wishing to become patients should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

No one knows better than Dr. Hartman how much the women suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex. No one knows better than he does how many of them suffer with such diseases. Patiently, hopefully, wearily, and often silently, they eke out a miserable existence, year after year.

No martyr in poetry or heroine in romance makes a more touching appeal to human sympathy than the woman burdened with the cares of a family trying to carry the extra load of some tormenting and ever present female disease.

Dr. Hartman's sympathy for such is unbounded, and his willingness to help them limited only to his power.

For special directions everyone should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Peruna is for sale by all chemists and druggists at one dollar per bottle or six bottles for five dollars.

Those wishing direct correspondence with Dr. Hartman and can wait the necessary delay in receiving a reply should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A.

THE SENATE.

ferred the matter of confirmation of the Governor's nominations, respectfully reports to this Honorable body his views on the matter of appointments of the class under consideration:

The majority of the Judiciary Committee recommends that the Governor's message be tabled on the grounds that the Home Rulers and Democrats are combining, etc., and further claims as an injustice to the Republican party, the recommendations contained in the message, that an inspector representing each of the political parties be appointed on the Board of Inspectors. Such reason is entirely unsound and unfair in view of the importance of the appointments to be made and service to be rendered; on the contrary, it is highly desirable to advance this matter as promptly as possible in order to settle the preliminaries for the coming county election.

The dual responsibility for such appointments so provided for in Section 80 is further emphasized by the removal clause above quoted. The Governor can only remove from office any of such officers by and with the consent of the Senate. Under this provision the Governor is further bound to consult the Senate, and this body is bound by our oath of office to give reasonable and prompt consideration to the proposals of the Executive.

The Senate, an elective body representing the people, should by precept stand for prompt conduct of the affairs of government, and it is hereby recommended that the Senate immediately confirm the Governor's nominations for inspectors of elections.

A message was received from the Governor vetoing certain items in the unpaid bills Act. The veto was sustained. This message appears elsewhere.

The following appointive message was received from the Governor, action thereon being deferred until Monday:

I hereby nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, desire to appoint R. B. Reedy, Samuel S. Peck and Wm. L. Moore to be members of the Board of Pharmacy for the Territory of Hawaii, according to law, for the term of two years.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS IN SUCCESSFUL PLAY

The play, "Down in Maine," given under the auspices of the Senior Class of the High School at Progress Hall last evening was a great success from every standpoint. It was a somewhat difficult play in the hands of amateurs and should not be closely criticised as a Punahou contingent present seemed disposed to do.

The leading part, Zeph Cummings, taken by B. Lightfoot was exceptionally good. His make-up was to the part and his conception of the character quite true to life. E. Wilder as the stuttering lover and F. Davis as the fresh air kid carried the comedy end faithfully. They were well seconded by Miss S. Halsey and Miss Maud Paty. Sam King made a first class youthful lover. P. Schmidt had a very difficut part for a youth to carry, the dignified pompous man of wealth. He did it well however and K. Tucker and H. White were successful in their portrayal of the hired man and town fisherman. Robert Clarke as the lawyer was equal to the occasion. Among the young ladies Miss E. Peterson as Zeph's wife and Miss Halsey as Betsy Tomps easily carried off the honors.

It was a piece full of rollicking fun with just enough pathos thrown in to let you know that it is there. A piece with strong pathetic features does not fit a caste of young people and Mrs. Anderson, who had charge of the work, was wise in selecting a piece that so far as possible gave scope to the enthusiasm of youth.

The hall was filled with parents and friends who thoroughly enjoyed the evening, judged by laughter and applause. The music was furnished by Kaai's orchestra.

A remarkable new flower, which has the scent of the old-fashioned clove pink, foliage like that of a wallflower, and the bloom of a massive stock, was shown at the Royal Botanic Society's first spring show, which opened in London on the 22d of March.

CANAL IN FOUR YEARS.

Paris, May 8.—The Academy of Sciences to-day heard a communication from M. Bunau-Varilla, former Panamaian Minister to the United States, upon the solution of the Panama canal problem by the new method of combining a lock canal for the immediate demands of commerce and a sea level waterway for the ultimate requirements. The communication says a lock canal will be sufficient to meet present requirements, whereas a sea level waterway will be necessary only when the traffic is three times that of Suez, thirty years hence. A lock canal ample to meet all present requirements can be built in four years.

M. Bunau-Varilla added that the transit of the canal and the work of transportation would proceed as independently as if in different hemispheres. Transportation would not be obstructed one minute for the dispatch of the dredging material.

M. Bunau-Varilla explained to the academy that this double end would be secured by a special arrangement of locks and by employing Gamboa lake for the deposit of material dredged from the summit level canal. The plan had been submitted to President Roosevelt and the author of it believed it would be the one adopted, as he said he had solved the problem in a new, simple and eminently practical manner.

It's a hundred to one.
That's what the odds are at the CRITERION.
The thirsty public is at the long end of the proposition and the patient mixologist at t'other.
The reason for these extraordinary odds is the prime quality of the beer kept at the CRITERION and the quantity and surpassing excellence of the lunch after the day's work.

THE MILITIA AND POLICE HAVING QUELLED STRIKERS BACK FROM LAHAINA.

after reporting to Governor Carter hurried away to get some of the Lahaina dust removed. Speaking of Company F's part in the "campaign," Capt. Johnson said:

"It was pretty hard on the men, unaccustomed to the work, but they acquitted themselves very well. The first night in camp at the court house I do not believe there was a man lying down. On the second night they got only four hours' sleep, being on guard duty the rest of the night. The third night again they had no sleep, due to rumors of more trouble by the strikers, so they drank coffee to keep awake. Thursday and Friday nights they got some sleep. In spite of this, not a complaint was heard."

Capt. Johnson says that he believes the trouble is over, and that everything on the plantation is quiet. The laborers all returned to work Thursday morning. One of the Japanese was threatened for his attitude toward the strikers. He took refuge on the barkentine Amaranth at Kaanapali. He was taken off the vessel yesterday by a squad of the militiamen and with his family was brought to Honolulu on the Kinau this morning.

After the hard work during the early part of the week the men got a chance to enjoy themselves Thursday and Friday. On Thursday the soldier ball-tossers played a game with the Lahaina team. Last night the men attended a military hop at Lahaina, until 1 o'clock, when the Kinau was sighted and the company made ready to return.

In his report to Col. Jones, commanding the First Regiment, N. G. H., Capt. Johnson will take occasion to mention the good work done by the Signal Corps detachment under Lieut. Dougherty. As Capt. Johnson was somewhat short of men, the field-piece was assigned to the Signal Corps. In camp Lieut. Dougherty's men rendered valuable assistance in guard and fatigue duty. Capt. Johnson mentions especially the cordial relations existing between the two commands and also the police force.

During Thursday and Friday in camp the company drilled and held target practice, the targets being barrels moored several hundred yards from the shore. The tedium of camp life was relieved by various amusements.

How true does this philosophy apply to Shoes! There's many a shoe which not only looks well but wears well, for a while; but it is only a short time when weak points develop.

Below a certain price, a shoe must be slighted, must be filled, and the lower the price, the more weak points must appear.

How unlike the "HANAN" SHOE, where every ingenuity known to shoeology, is assembled in concrete.

Shoes are like people: some are pleasant for a short time; others improve upon acquaintance. Hanan shoes have stood the test of years, and we are the sole agents.

The Original Remedy that "kills the Dandruff Germ."

Quite Homely --- Quite Attractive.

The woman with homely features will not lack attractiveness if her head is crowned with an abundance of beautiful hair. But, on the other hand, the finest contour of female face loses much of its attractiveness if the hair is scanty or looks diseased. The dandruff microbe causes dull, brittle or lustreless hair with later dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. Newbro's Herpicide destroys this enemy of beauty and permits the hair to grow as nature intended. A delightful hair dressing. Gives wonderful results. No oil or dye.

Social Side of Life

A wedding of much social interest which will take place on the twenty-first of June is that of Miss Alice Campbell, the second daughter of the late James Campbell, Esquire, and Mrs. Campbell-Parker, to Walter Macfarlane. The bridesmaids have already been chosen, and they are Misses Alice Macfarlane, Irene Dickson, Ada Rhodes and Clara Cummings. Muriel, a younger sister, will be maid-of-honor. A prettier quintette of girls it would be hard to find, and their frocks of white, made Princess fashion, are sure to be becoming. Shower bouquets of Easter lillies will be carried. The little maid-of-honor, Muriel Campbell, is to be dressed in pale blue, and as she is very blonde this color will suit her to perfection. Very lovely is the wedding frock of white velvet chiffon and real lace, copied after a model worn at the recent coronation by a famous Princess, and the even dozen sets of hand-made French lingerie exquisitely embroidered are something for every woman to give little shivers of delight over.

There is to be a church wedding in the Roman Catholic Cathedral and the ceremony will be performed by Father Urlich. A large reception will be held at the Campbell-Parker residence on Emma street afterward. About 1500 invitations will be issued, and those who receive invitations for the wedding are expected to go on to the reception. Cards for the reception will be sent out to the friends of both families—and, as the Campbell-Parker new porlance connection is a large one, this will necessitate more or less of a crush for which the Campbell residence is amply prepared for. Miss Alice Campbell is not only a pretty birl but an accomplished one. Her beautiful voice is well known, for she has most generously given her services for "sweet charities'" sake on many occasions. An expert "whip," a graceful swimmer and diver it would seem enough to create jealously and strife if it were not for charming Alice Campbell's sweet nature which makes her a favorite in all circles. Mr. Walter Macfarlane, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Macfarlane, is devoted to all out-door exercises. He is a handsome young man and much liked. The young people are both Catholics which makes the alliance most satisfactory.

Mr. Claus Spreckels, who sailed for San Francisco on the Sonoma, did not remain in Honolulu as long as he expected, for he received a letter saying that Mrs. Spreckels was too ill to join him, as had been planned. The Spreckels mansion on Punahou street had been put in order for the advent of Mrs. Spreckels and many pleasant things had been arranged in her honor. Mr. Spreckels' health was not as good as when he first arrived so it was deemed advisable to return to San Francisco at once.

An enjoyable dinner was given on Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Swanzy. The table, artistically done in yellow, was most attractive, and Japanese umbrellas and fans were the unique place cards. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas May, of Borne Mouth, England; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Scott, Judge and Mrs. Stanley, Doctor and Mrs. F. H. Humphris, Mr. F. H. Humphris, Sr., and Captain Henderson.

Some one has said that one needs not the gift of second sight to read a person's character at a table of bridge. Show me a woman who can sit calmly by, being dummy, and watch her partner lose the odd aha "no trumper" which she might have gone game on the hand. Show me such a woman who utters no word, who casts no glance, of reproach at the offender, and I'll show you a woman who will be passed un-challenged through the pearly gates, she having undergone her purgatory here on earth. On the other hand, behold the antithasis in a girl whom I watched the other day. Her partner had drawn out trumps, thereby establishing a long suit of clubs. Just as she made her book her wits went off in quest of forbidden pleasures and she switched the lead, leaving the odd and many more in the dummy's hand. The trumps having been exhausted, the opponents went right down a suit of their own which the dealer had so kindly established for them. Up rose the dummy in her wrath. Leaning over the table and shaking her fist at the now thoroughly frightened, she yelled: "Oh, you fool! You—you fool! Why didn't you keep on in your club lead! Every one of them meant a trick!" Oh yes, there's a lot to be taught about a person's character in a little game of bridge.

Mrs. Richard Ivers entertained most charmingly at luncheon on Wednesday for Miss Nellie White, who has just returned from a year's trip abroad. The table was effectively decorated in yellow, and the dainty place cards were also of the same coloring. Among the guests besides the guest of honor were Miss Drusilla Marx, Miss Maud Kinney, Miss Katherine Cartwright, Miss Jessie Kaufman, Miss Helen Kimball, Miss Marion Scott, Miss Cordie Walker, Misses Helen, Lady and Alice Macfarlane. The guests were entertained by bridge after luncheon.

Captain C. P. Perkins and the wardroom officers of the United States steamer Pensacola entertained about 150 guests aboard the historic old war ship on Friday night at the naval training station, Yerba Buena island. The ship was gayly decorated with flags and bunting, and dancing was enjoyed until nearly the hour of midnight. A large representation from the Army and Navy and San Francisco society was present. The guests were received by Mrs. C. P. Perkins, Mrs. F. E. McCullough and Miss Pansy Perkins, daughter of Senator Perkins.

Among those present were Rear-Admiral and Mrs. Whiting, Rear-Aumiral Farenholt, General and Mrs. Funston, Captain Corsi of the Italian cruiser Umbria, Count Raineri, Prince Manzoni, Commander F. H. Among the hostesses who received at Waikiki on Tuesday afternoon was Mrs. James Castle. The tea table which was placed upon the lawn under the trees seemed very popular. Mrs. Castle had least fifty callers, and her sister, Miss Nellie White, and her guest, Miss Anna Paris, helped do the honor. Mrs. Castle is an exceedingly interesting hostess, as she is a bright conversationalist.

Dinners on board ship are always popular, and the one given by Lieut.-Commander Knapp of the "Solace" Thursday evening was unusually pleasant. One side of the upper deck was entirely screened by flags and the table was placed in the center. Rows of tiny electric lights softly shaded by different colors hung over the table and entwined amongst the lights were branches of the feathery asparagus fern. Several large baskets filled with American beauties, la France, and double white roses made the table lovely to look upon. At each place were bouquets, and roses were scatterly loosely on the table. The dainty place cards were clever sketches. The ship's orchestra played during dinner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Faxon Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Focke, Mrs. F. M. Hatch, Captain and Mrs. Henry Lyon, Mrs. Makee, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Jr., Miss Irmgard Schaefer, Miss Jessie Kaufman, Mr. John H. Bliss and Captain Bull of the "Solace." The decorations were done by Mrs. Taylor.

There will be an exhibition of electric lights which will be most interesting. Among the patronesses are Mrs. George Carter, Princess Kawanakoa, Mrs. Sanford B. Dole, Mrs. Jas. Castle and Mrs. W .R. The hop at the Alexander Young on Wednesday evening was a huge success. The Army and the Navy turned out in great numbers, and the roof garden was crowded throughout the evening. It was a perfect night and much enjoyed by the visitors. The floor of the ballroom was much appreciated and dancing continued until a late hour. Another successful hop was at the Moana on Friday evening. Many society girls were present and there were many pretty frocks seen.

These hotel dances are a unique feature of Honolulu and make a pleasant diversion.

Warm Debilitating Weather.

Many people, after a long spell of oppressive heat, suffer from lassitude, loss of spirits, and a general "run down" feeling. They need a course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, a medicine which has revived and restored to active life and health thousands of such sufferers. A Strike In Honolulu

On high-priced and poor-quality gents' clothing is now on.

'The Compact of Three'

Will not send this strike to the bone pile of other attempts for the public's rights, but by the buyers' approval, the demands will be declared correct; as they will all agree, after an inspection of our prices on our fine line of nobby Gents' Suits, that there is none better for the price in the city.

TWO DIVORCES GRANTED

The libel for divorce of Maria Naauao vs. A. M. Naauao was heard before Judge Lindsay this morning. The libellant showed that marriage took place at Waialua but that she was deserted by her husband a week after the marriage. The Court granted an absolute decree of divorce and allowed the libellant to resume her maiden name.

Judge Lindsay also heard another divorce case this morning, that of Popi Kalehua (w.) vs. Bill Kalehua. The libellant was represented by Senator Dickey; while the libellee was not present in court and was not represented. The divorce was granted on the grounds of failure to provide.

SAW WATER SPOUT.

San Francisco, May 3.—When the steamer Coptic was fifty miles west of the Farallon Islands Monday, on her way to this city, a huge waterspout was seen about three-fourths of a mile distant. It was plainly visible to everybody on board. A few minutes later another waterspout, smaller than the first one, was seen through the mist directly ahead of the Coptic, and about half a mile away. Either of the spouts would have deluged the liner, had she crossed their path, and might have inflicted serious damage. Both waterspouts extended from clearly defined rain clouds in a spiral form to the surface of the sea, and were objects of rare interest to the passengers. Their dark forms were observed by the Coptic's passengers for nearly half an hour, the lowermost parts of the spouts bending from one side to the other as the watchers looked. The spouts finally disappeared in the distance.

Books, Bookish People and Things

* "The PIT."

Frank Norris' Last Work the Best.

Probably there are a few persons who have not read this book. Not the devourers of current fiction—those femininities (male and female) who go by the popular judgment of what should be read, nor, of course, the poor book reviewers, nor yet the Omniverous Crowd. But for all who have read legitimately, persons who use their own judgment and time; who select, yes, select a book because it will serve a purpose in their method and mood and not because of the talk in the air—for all such the present edition of "The Pit" comes with sufficient literary freshness.

There is some advantage in being this far from the rush of the presses. To have time for choice—to see the insistent array at long range—to have the benefit of perspective. It enables one to get the "verdict of the year" in literature, and to escape the reading of many trivial books. It is a satisfaction to be able to say sometimes to the questioner: "Have you not read The Picayune?" "No, I haven't."

And it is surprising when you find it out, how much 3,000 miles of cooled-off space and a few months' time (when the new editions begin to grow) help one to judge of a book dispassionately.

The author of "The Pit" is dead. The people have ceased talking about the book—the young woman turns up her nose at those who haven't read it—now what is there in it, really?

It is a story reserving much yet of unusual strength, full of interest from the beginning, though unsensational altogether, and portrays with great vividness the doings of reckless as well as "long headed" speculators in the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat is the innocent cereal which becomes so tremendous and fateful in the artful manipulation of it, and the story of how men's fortunes are made and marred is told as it has never been told before.

A love tale runs through it all as a thready stream runs through a dark wood, reflecting comedies and tragedies.

Laura Jadwin nearly goes wrong because of her husband's absorption in his great speculations, and both he and she find real happiness in each other and in the world only when their money is swept from them by a fall in the price of wheat.

The incidents of the story are told graphically, and the real genius of the author is revealed to us in his last and best work.

"A Courier of Empire." By John H. Whitson. Illustrated, cloth, 315 p.p. W. A. Wilde Co., 120 Boylston St., Boston. $1.50 net.

No book bearing the name of the author of "The Rainbow Chasers" can fail to attract the notice of reading persons, and this story for boys will not only attract attention but hold the reader's interest as well.

It tells in Mr. Whitson's inimitable way of Marcus Whitman's famous ride from the Oregon country to Washington, and his success in saving his territory to the Union.

The author's familiarity with the whole Western country, and his evident sympathy with its people, together with his knowledge of the early history of the Northwest territory, fit him in a peculiar way for the unfolding of his tale.

It opens with the appearance of Phil Curtis and his father, trappers, among some friendly Cayuse Indians.

A fascinating Indian summer atmosphere pervades the pages, and while highly sensational or blood-curdling incidents are wisely avoided, we get enough of stirring adventure to satisfy, and one goes back to the real prosaic history with added interest.

Whether Marcus Whitman did or did not really and truly do what the book says he did matters little so far as the art of the story is concerned, yet Mr. Whitson has kept within historical lines fairly well.

Those who remember the dramatic chapter entitled "The 'Phoby Cat Bites" in "The Rainbow Chasers," will discover much of the same power in the account of the various adventures with the Indians through which our hero passes.

"Trapped" is thrilling, and one lays down the book after having read it to one's boy, well satisfied to begin another by the same author, "With Fremont, The Pathfinder."

The Captain Of the Janizaries

By JAMES M. LUDLOW

Copyright, 1886, by Dodd, Mead & Co.
Copyright, 1890, by James M. Ludlow

The explanation was given in a few words—on the one side the story of the slaughter at the village and the adventures of Morsinia and Constantine; on the other of how the news of the Turkish raid reached the camp at Sfetigrade about noon and the rescuing party had started at once under Kabilovitsch's command and ridden at breakneck speed during the entire night in the hope of meeting the Turks before they emerged from the narrow valley.

Learning now that they were too late for this, Kabilovitsch halted his command and with Constantine sought the place where Morsinia was in waiting. When the old man heard that the first assailants of the hamlet had been Albanians in disguise his rage was furious, and through his incautious words Morsinia learned more of her relation to the voivode Amesa than her reputed father had ever told her, for the mystery of her family had never been fully explained in her hearing. It had heretofore been deemed best that the girl should not be made the custodian of her own secret, yet she had guessed the greater part of the problem of her identity. But Kabilovitsch was now led by the new curiosity which his inadvertent expressions had awakened in her as well as by the remarkably discreet and cautious judgment she had displayed to tell her the entire story of her own life.

Removed from the hearing of all others, Kabilovitsch rehearsed to Morsinia and Constantine what the reader already knows of her extraction and early residence in Albania. He advised her to extreme caution against the slightest reference to herself as the young Mara de Streeses and that she should insist upon her identity as the daughter of the Servian peasant Milosch and the sister of Constantine.

"My rough arms have often cradled thee," said Kabilovitsch, "but now you have a nobler and stronger protector in our country's father, the great Castriot. To him you must go, for it is no longer safe in these lonely valleys. Under his strong arm and all watchful eye you will be amply protected. There are nameless enemies of the old house of De Streeses whom we must avoid as vigilantly as we avoid the Turks."

It was determined that Constantine should make a detour with her and approach Sfetigrade from the south, giving out that they were fugitives from the lower country, which the enemy had also been raiding.

The colonel stated to his underofficers, in hearing of the men, that the young Turk was really one of Castriot's scouts and that the young woman was an accomplice. Borrowing from one and another sufficient Albanian costumes to substitute for Constantine's disguise, Kabilovitsch dismissed the couple.

Two days later a beautiful girl, accompanied by her brother, who was as unlike her as the thorn bush is unlike the graceful flowering clematis that festoons its limbs, both of them in apparent destitution, refugees from near the Greek border, entered the town of Sfetigrade. By order of the general, to whom their piteous story was told by Kabilovitsch, for he had chanced, so he said, to come upon them as they were inquiring their way to the town, they were quartered with a family whose house was not far from the citadel.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE battlements of Sfetigrade lay, like a ruffled collar, upon enormous shoulders of rock rising high above the surrounding country. Over them rose, like a massive head, the citadel with its bartizans projecting as a crown about the brow.

The assaults which Sultan Amurath launched against the place had been as frequent as the early summer showers, and his armies were beaten to pieces as the rain rebounded in spray and ran in streams from the rocks. The chagrin of the baffled sultan reflected itself in the discouragement of his generals and the demoralization of their men. The envy of the leaders of the other corps and branches of the service was excited against the janizaries, to whose unrivaled training and daring were due whatever minor victories had been won and whatever exploits worthy of mention had been performed.

A lofty tent, whose projecting center pole bore the glittering brass crescent and star and before the entrance to which a single horse tail hung from the long spear, denoted the headquarters of a sanjak bey. In front of the tent walked two men in eager and not amiable conversation. The one was the bey, whose huge turban of white, inwound with green, indicated that his martial zeal was supplemented by equal enthusiasm for his faith and that he had added to the fatigue of many campaigns against the infidels the toil of a more monotonous though more satisfactory pilgrimage to Mecca. His companion was an aga of the janizaries, second only in rank to the chief aga.

The latter was speaking with a wrath which his courteous words but ill concealed:

"I do not impugn your honor or the sincerity of your motives, Caraza Bey, in making your accusation against our Captain Ballaban, but the well known jealousy which is everywhere manifested against our corps compels me to believe not a single word to the discredit of him or any of the Yeni-Tscheri without indubitable proof."

"But your upstart captain's guilt can be proved, if not to your personal satisfaction at least before those who will not care to ask your assent to their judgment," replied the other, not attempting to veil his hatred of the aga any more than his purpose of crushing the one of whom they were speaking.

"What will the lies of a whole sanjak of your hirelings avail against the honor of a janizary?" replied the aga. "The janizaries will take no suggestion from any but the padishah."

"A curse on the brag of the janizaries! The arrogancy of the Christian renegades needs better warrant than Ballaban can give it," sneered the bey. "If you like, let the matter rest as it is. The whole army believes that one of your dervish capped heroes—the best of the brood, I imagine—deserted his comrades in battle, and all for the sake of a captive girl."

"It is a lie!" shouted the aga, drawing his sword upon him.

The attitude of the two officers drew a crowd, who rushed from all sides to witness the duel. Both were masters of sword play, so that neither obtained any sanguinary advantage before they were separated by the arrival of the chief aga, who forbade his subaltern to continue the conflict. Upon hearing the occasion of the affray the chief said:

"The trial of Captain Ballaban shall be had, with the publication of the fact that Caraza Bey has assumed the position of his accuser, and in the event of his charge proving false he shall atone for his malice by submitting to any punishment the captain may indicate, and the force of the janizaries shall execute it, though they cut the throats of his entire command in order to do it. We must first vindicate the honor of the corps and then take vengeance upon its detractors. I demand that Caraza Bey make good his charge tomorrow at the sixth hour or accept the judgment of coward and villifier, which our court shall then proclaim to the army."

At the appointed time on the day following the tent of the chief aga was the gathering place of the notable officers of the corps. The canvas sides of the tent were removed, making it an open pavilion and inviting inspection and audience from any who desired to approach. A divan was at one side and made a semicircle of about half the tent. Upon this sat the chief aga, his cushion slightly raised above those at his side, which were occupied by the agas of lower rank.

The chief aga waved his hand to an attendant, and the military court was formally opened. Several cases were disposed of before that of Captain Ballaban was called.

The expectation not only of common soldiers, but also of officials, led them to crane their necks to look at the next comer. Even the ordinary immobile features of the chief relaxed into an expression of anxiety as a young man walked down the aisle made by the reverent receding of the crowd to either side. He was not graceful in form. His body was beyond the proportions of his legs, though his arms compensated for any lack in the length of his lower limbs. His neck was thick, the head round, with full development of forehead, though that portion of his face was somewhat concealed by the short, bushy masses of red hair which protruded beneath his rimless janizary cap. His face was homely, but strongly marked, evincing force of character as clearly as the convolutions of his muscles evinced animal strength and endurance. The brightness of his eye atoned for any lack of beauty in his features, as did his free and manly bearing make ample amends for deficiency in grace of form. Altogether he was a man to attract one's attention and hold it pleasantly.

The chief aga announced that, although the witnesses in this case were not of the order of the Yeni-Tscheri, and, therefore, had no claim to the consideration of the court, yet it pleased him in this peculiar case to waive the right to try the matter exclusively among themselves, that the good name of the Yeni-Tscheri might suffer no reproach. "Caraza Bey," added the chief, "for some reason best known to himself does not accept the privilege we have extended him to speak in our official presence what he has freely spoken elsewhere. We shall, therefore, hear any witnesses he may have sent."

One Lovitsch, belonging to the irregular auxiliary troops, testified that Captain Ballaban had organized a raid upon an Albanian village and engaged himself and company for the venture, but had left them in the heat of the fight, not rejoining them until the second day. A common soldier deposed that the captain returned to the company early in the second evening and induced him (the witness) and Koremi, to whom the captain had intrusted a beautiful captive, to bring the girl to the rear under plea of getting from her information regarding the enemy and had then mysteriously disappeared with her. Koremi corroborated this testimony.

Captain Ballaban gave a look of puzzled curiosity as he heard this, but otherwise evinced not the slightest emotion.
