SMALLPOX IN SAN FRANCISCO.

It is very evident that the smallpox epidemic in San Francisco is at an end. The "Daily Alta California" of March 11th, in its editorial column, says: We congratulate San Francisco upon the total disappearance of the smallpox epidemic. The Board of Health, which had to work under many serious difficulties, is deserving of the thanks of our people for its fidelity. With incomplete and imperfect hospital equipment, and short-ened in facilities on all sides, it stood manfully to its duty. The pest was introduced through no fault of our local sanitary authorities. The lack of a quarantine station in the harbor is responsible for the trouble, and for much delay and annoyance to commerce. It made heavier the labors of the Mayor and Board of Health, for as fast as they suppressed one outbreak another would be caused by the arrival of a pest-laden steamer from Asia. It was a series of invasions, and each one was met until finally the besieging disease retires from the contest beaten, and the city is free.

REDUCING THE TIME.

Arrangements have been completed between the Oceanic Steamship Company and the New Zealand Government by which the time of carrying the mail from England to Australia will be shortened by three days. During the last eighteen months the mail has been carried across the Atlantic by the White Star steamers, which take nine or ten days in making the passage. By the new arrangement the mails will be carried by the Cunard liners, which cross the Atlantic in seven days. The mail for the Mariposa was to leave Liverpool by the Aurania, three days later than if the White Star line had had the business. The Mariposa, it is expected, would leave San Francisco for Honolulu and the Colonies promptly on time April 5th at 2 p. m.

A DRAW.

The Result of the Sullivan-Mitchell Fight.

Thirty-nine Rounds Fought in the Rain on French Soil—Mitchell Took Lots of Punishment—Sullivan Gained First Knock-down.

By the barkentine S. N. Castle, which arrived yesterday morning, we have particulars of the prize fight between John L. Sullivan and Charles Mitchell. A dispatch from London, March 10th, gives the following account of the contest: The great fight ended as not one in fifty expected it would. After 39 rounds, in which the lighter man fully used his advantage under the London prize ring rules, Referee Angle declared the fight a draw. The arrangements made last night for the fight were chaotic. Mitchell's agent, who was sent over ten days before to secure the ground, was obliged to confess he had failed to procure a suitable spot, whereupon a wrangle ensued and the Sullivan party, rightly or wrongly, charged Mitchell with trying to wriggle out of the fight. Finally the Mitchell party left the choice of ground to Sullivan's backers, who appointed Johnny Gideon of the "Sportsman" (who had filled similar offices for Sayers), Dunning, also of the "Sportsman," and Ory, the "Sportsman's" Paris reporter, to select a battle-field. The trio left Amiens last evening for Creil, and the pugilists arranged to follow to-day.

The impromptu arrangements made for the fight by the committee of three appointed by the Sullivan party really left nothing to be desired. The precise locality was kept secret as long as possible. Eight vehicles of various styles of architecture were engaged to convey the principals, their seconds and the spectators to the scene of action. On their arrival at the spot selected they found that the ring had been pitched on the grounds of Baron Rothschild at Apremont, behind the stables which face the model private race-course of the Baron. From the other side they were excluded from view by bushes and trees. Thanks to the shelter thus afforded, operations were pursued without interference, the only strangers who turned up being a few huntsmen, who presented themselves towards the finish and looked on with curiosity. A capital ring was pitched on the well-rolled clay.

Mitchell talked as much as usual, and, though pale, declared himself confident. Sullivan looked determined, but was somewhat thin in the face. When the combatants reached the ring about forty spectators were present. MacDonald and Jack Ashton seconded Sullivan, and Baldoi and Kilrain seconded Mitchell. Mr. Angle of the London Stock Exchange was chosen referee. Jack Bennett umpired for Sullivan, and Charley Rowell acted in like capacity for Mitchell. Sullivan entered the ring at 12:25 o'clock, and Mitchell followed five minutes later. Both men wore warm woolen drawers. Mitchell also wore a large fighting plaster of the old style, but Sullivan declined to put one on. Sullivan sported ornamented green socks.

At 12:55 precisely the principals shook hands in the orthodox old-time fashion and the fight began. Sullivan looked as though he would have been better for a stone off in weight, and Mitchell was not drawn down any too fine.

At the outset Sullivan offered to back himself for $2,500, but the offer was declined. His backers then offered 3 to 1 on Sullivan, but found no takers.

In round one Mitchell indulged in a laugh over the fact that he had won the toss for corners, and put Sullivan with his face to the wind and sun, and later on to the rain. Finally Sullivan cornered Mitchell, who dropped to avoid punishment. In round two Sullivan hit Mitchell on the head with his right and gained first knockdown. In round eight first blood was allowed Mitchell. In nearly every round up to the thirty-eighth Mitchell went down to avoid Sullivan's blows. The thirty-ninth round was exceptionally tedious.

Sullivan's right eye was getting in mourning and his lips swelling, while the lump on Mitchell's forehead had become redder and bigger. No blood came from the latter, but Sullivan's nose and lips trickled carmine. He would not have his mustache removed.

The ground was now in a terrible state. Mitchell was frequently down on his hands, but got up quickly and now seemed fresher and more confident than ever. There was, however, always a dangerous blow in John, but he did not push the fight, Charley being more inclined to plant one until Sullivan hit viciously and went for him. Charley was always on the alert and managed to get away. There was no use in John's racing after him; he was too agile. Frequently Mitchell, for a change, would take a walk around the ring. Sullivan standing still. Some four times they mutually retired to their corners to get the clay off their shoes and refresh themselves; then one would challenge the other.

Mitchell seemed little hurt in the first half, and in the latter showed great generalship and scored best, but he appeared to be afraid of Sullivan's right. A draw was suggested, but was declined, and between 4 and 5 o'clock all got impatient, as the finish seemed at least two hours off.

Mitchell at last said: "Well, let us shake hands or fight on, just as John likes." Hereupon Baldoi, who had been very troublesome, rushed in and joined their hands. Sullivan was nothing loth, and both were tired greatly. The parties then left for Paris.

GERMAN AFFAIRS.

Preparations for the Funeral of the Late Emperor—The New Emperor Leaves San Remo for Berlin.

A dispatch from Berlin, April 10th says: The body of Emperor William had been embalmed and was laid in the State Hall of the Palace. His features were placid, showing no signs of the pain he suffered.

Funeral services were held over the remains of Emperor William in the Mortuary Chamber in the Palace on the evening of the 9th. The chamber was profusely decorated with flowers. Dowager Empress Augusta, the Grand Duke and the Grand Duchess of Baden, the Crown Prince and the Crown Princess of Sweden and other royal personages attended the services. The body of the Emperor lay in the same position in which the monarch occupied when he expired. A crucifix lay upon his breast and an ivory cross was in his right hand. Chaplain Egl, in his sermon, alluded to the moment when Empress Augusta held the hand of her dying consort. After service the late Emperor's Aid-de-camp, Lieutenant General Von Lehnoff, acted as guard of honor at the dead monarch's couch.

The body of the Emperor was to remain in the Mortuary Chamber until the requiem service in the flag room on the 10th, which was to be attended by members of the royal family and their suites, Prince Bismarck, Count von Moltke and the chief Court officials. Later the body was to be taken to the Cathedral, where it would lie in state by Emperor Frederick's order. In accordance with the desire of the deceased ruler, the body was clad in the uniform of the First Regiment Guards and enveloped in a military cloak.

Before the Reichstag opened on the 10th the Bundesrath met. Prince Bismarck with great emotion alluded to the death of the Emperor in terms similar to those which he used in the Reichstag the previous day. He specially confirmed statements in regard to the Emperor's dying allusions to Austria and Russia. Referring to Emperor Frederick's accession to the throne and the transfer of the Imperial dignity connected therewith, Prince Bismarck said the new Emperor, like his late father, would take as his guiding principle the maintenance of the Constitution of the Empire and the treaties on which it is based, and in which Emperor Frederick will count upon the co-operation of his allies. Count von Lichenfeld expressed to Prince Bismarck the condolence of the Bundesrath, and asked him to communicate them to Emperor Frederick.

THE NEW EMPEROR LEAVES SAN REMO.

A dispatch from San Remo, March 10th, says: Emperor Frederick III passed a good night last night. He feels extremely well. He drove to the station at 9 o'clock this morning, accompanied by Empress Victoria, to take the special train in waiting to convey him to Berlin. The largest crowd ever seen in San Remo gathered to witness his departure. The new Emperor was enthusiastically cheered by the crowd, and he repeatedly bowed his acknowledgements to their greetings.

The Emperor entered the railway carriage without assistance, and then turned and assisted the Empress to enter. The municipal authorities and a number of civilians were on the platform. Large crowds surrounded the station, and the Emperor raised his hat in response to their salutations when he reached the platform. He looks well, with the exception of his complexion, which is somewhat yellow. He shook hands with the German Consul, the Syndic of San Remo and others. As the train left the station the Emperor was heartily cheered.

A Coming Boat Race.

On Saturday, April 7th, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, a six-oared boat race will take place in the harbor between members of the Myrtle Boat Club. The two crews are in active training, and a good and close race is looked for. Following are the crews:

Alice M.—Alex. Robertson, stroke; W. C. Wilder, Jr., Sam Monsarrat, L. Torbert, H. Gunn, J. L. Torbert; C. Herriek, coxswain.

Stranger.—A. W. Carter, stroke; E. H. Wodehouse, C. Spinney, A. M. Brown, A. Lyle, J. Spencer; W. Bruns, coxswain.

At the annual meeting of the Woodlawn Dairy and Stock Company held yesterday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, B. F. Dillingham; Vice President, T. W. Hobron; Secretary, W. O. Smith; Treasurer, A. L. Smith; Auditor, W. F. Allen.

WEDDING CAKE.

Ladies or gentlemen who contemplate giving orders for the above articles respectfully requested to call at the Honolulu Pioneer Steam Candy Factory, Bakery, established 1863, before going to any other house, as my establishment POSITIVELY the only establishment in Honolulu, notwithstanding all the ulous, empty, and pompous newspaper blowing and puffing, where a cake is procured to give the greatest satisfaction to the most refined tastes, and to ornament of exquisite workmanship on your table which will not crumble pieces when cut, but be a credit to the fine art of the Confectionery, which has only for twenty-five years, but still bids competition defiance to this day. Attempts in any other establishment are inferior to mine, and not worth the you pay. It is an indisputable fact that all over the world a good workman's productions are always cheaper than half-made ones are. Having had over half a century's practical experience, the undersigned is enabled to ornament Cakes and the highest styles of the art.

Arrival of the Ship Mystic Belle.

The American ship Mystic Belle, Captain Charles H. Freeman, arrived yesterday, after a passage of 166 days from New York, with a cargo of general merchandise for this port. The Mystic Belle sailed from New York October 15, 1887, and crossed the Equator in the Atlantic forty days out. On December 12th, in lat. 33 deg. 54 min. S. and long. 47 deg. 36 min. W., spoke the British iron bark Thomas Bell, fifty-four days out from Cardiff, via Madeira, for this port with 450 Portuguese immigrants on board. The Captain reported all well on board. Three deaths and one birth occurred during the voyage. The Thomas Bell was sighted again January 3d off Cape Horn apparently in good condition. The Mystic Belle arrived off Cape Horn January 1st, 87 days out. She was 23 days rounding the Horn from 50 deg. S. to 50 deg. S., during which time very rough weather was experienced. On January 12th, while the seas were rising tempest high and the wind was blowing fiercely, three men who were on the jib-boom furling the sails, were washed overboard. No attempt was made to lower a boat as it was impossible for a boat to live in such a heavy sea. Ropes were lowered and two of the men managed to reach them and were hauled on board, but the other, a young Englishman named William Jacobs, was never seen again. Crossed the Equator in the Pacific March 11th in long. 127 deg. 34 min. W. Fine weather was experienced to these Islands. On March 6th, in lat. 4 deg. S. and long. 121 deg. W., passed the German bark Deutchland from Bremen for this port. Sighted Hawaii March 27th and made Molokai the evening of the following day. The Mystic Belle brings 1,300 tons assorted cargo of merchandise, including 12,000 cases kerosene oil, consigned to Messrs. Castle & Cooke. She was built at Medford, Mass., twenty-one years ago, and is of 717 tons register. She will commence unloading cargo this morning at Brewer's wharf.

The Deutchland.

The German bark Deutchland, now about 154 days out from Bremen for this port, was passed by the Mystic Belle which arrived yesterday from New York, on March 6th, in lat. 4 deg. S., long. 121 deg. W. The Deutchland had her main and mizzen-topmasts gone and had rigged a temporary mizzen-topmast. She may be looked for in a few days.

Inquest.

Yesterday an inquest was commenced on the death of Kok Yuk, the murdered Chinaman, before Deputy Marshal Hopkins, Coroner, and the following jury: C. Monting, C. T. Akana, Y. Anin, E. H. F. O THE PUBLIC.

I, THE UNDERSIGNED, AM YOUNG, HAVE lived in Honolulu for ten years, working for foreigners, and have committed no offense in this country. I know of a gambling house, which is constantly filled with Chinese gamblers, some of whom have lived there for three years, who no other work than gambling at all times. I know this gambling house, into which they are constantly going, and I have lost much money in myself. This is why I wish the gambling house stopped. I was summoned to appear before the Court, and these gamblers were arrested for the offense of gambling. I was the witness before the Court. Therefore they are angry with me for my testimony in the trial, and wish to kill me. For this reason I publish these facts before the people.

OLD FOLKS' HABITS.

STEADY WORK, AN EVEN PULSE AND REGULAR LIVES

Are the Potent Factors That Make Old Age Possible in New England—People Who Have Survived in Spite of Doctors' Rules.

Poor Richard's "Early to bed and early to rise," etc., never had a better illustration than The Globe's old people have given it. Not only have the farmers and their wives been early risers, but nearly all who have followed other occupations have been also. If observation of Franklin's maxim has had any predominant effect conducive to longevity, the fact we have just stated strikes a hard blow at the theory of some physicians, who claim that man should not go abroad in the morning until the sun has been up long enough to dissipate the noxious vapors which have risen from and overhang the earth's surface during the night.

So marked were the instances of early rising and retiring that The Globe made a list of persons who may be said to represent the extremists of at least the first lines of the maxim, and found that out of about 2,000 persons whose habits of life were intelligently set forth in the blanks 330 men have been through life in the habit of lying abed not later than 5:30 o'clock in the morning, while 328 women always have risen before 6 a. m., most of whom still continue to do so. These are the people who were trained from youth to get a grip on the day's work that did not loosen until it was done; who cleared our forests, built our roads, founded our towns, established our school system, and from the native richness of their country homes sent into the world the sturdy young men, the rosy cheeked young women, with whose influx the town became the city, the city a metropolis, and a profitable market was created for the products of the farms they had left, and the money made in mercantile life went back to the tillers of the soil and our inland commerce came into being.

One correspondent, writing from Newmarket, N. H., gives a good idea of the circumstances of some of the old people he has seen, and advances one or two ideas not unsupported by medical opinion. He says: "I could extend names almost indefinitely of men all around here living on an abundance of plain food, hard workers, no liquors, regular in their habits, who never die from disease, but only as old age takes them off. I include regular church attendance, because I believe that to be an important matter as giving peace of mind, contentment and hope—all favorable to longevity. On the other hand, I could furnish a large list of persons who, other things being favorable, have killed themselves with liquor, cider, irregularity in eating, working and sleeping; some living to good age but always sickly. Men and women living in the neighborhood, who have been temperate in all things, never die, if they escape consumption, except from pneumonia or other acute disease. Almost every farmhouse that has remained in the same family for a century will be a home for three or four generations, all living together, extremes meeting—excellent company for each other and the happiest families that can be found. No danger of filial love and reverence dying out in such families as these."

"There is one point which I have tried to bring out in this canvass among the old people," writes another correspondent, "and that is the effect of tobacco on the health. If this point has been as carefully considered by their correspondents and with the same results, it alleviates the fears which many may entertain about nicotine and the curtailment of life by the use of tobacco. Among the very oldest of the people interviewed, between 90 and 100, the men have been addicted to the use of tobacco, in the majority of cases, since an early age."

But our returns fail to show that any considerable number of the old people ever made habitual use of liquor through life; and it must be borne in mind that the Medford road of our grandfathers and other liquors in use half a century ago were without doubt purer and better than nineteen-twentieths of the liquor sold today. One hundred and fifty of the old gentlemen say positively that they never used liquor or tobacco in any form, 95 confess to the use of liquor only, 11 to the use of tobacco only, while 54 admit having made habitual use of both liquor and tobacco, though instances of immoderate use of liquor are very rare. We cannot think these figures accurate, as it is doubtful if this subject was thoroughly canvassed, but it is safe to say that a very small proportion of the men and but a trivial number of the women made habitual use of liquor and tobacco.

It is curious to note, by the way, that many of the men who used liquor only in early life ceased using it entirely, while of the men who used liquor and tobacco nearly all who discarded liquor clung to the tobacco habit. Cider, forty-four men say, they have drunk for years, but the effect of hard cider upon the constitution cannot be learned from The Globe's figures until some of the farmers that had nothing to say on the subject are heard from.

The statistics of women who made habitual use of liquor or tobacco are more incomplete than of the men. Of these three we will say that they had used snuff—which must be a very small proportion of the correct number—and eleven admit having smoked, which proportion, too, must be small.

With exceptions so few as to be not worth recording numerically, the old people upon the list have had three meals a day, at regular hours, of substantial food through their lives; and, what is more interesting, nine-tenths of them still continue to eat heartily, and of whatever they like. It is a hygienic law that three light meals a day are better for elderly people in health than one heavy one, and our old people, of course, are simply following the dictates of nature, while at the same time they prove the truth of her teachings. Tea and coffee, too, they use, one or the other, but most of them both, with only about a dozen exceptions. Some have taken to drinking these beverages late in life, but not enough, we may infer, to affect the accuracy of the statement that nearly all of them have been tea and coffee drinkers.

Of vegetarians but nine are mentioned, five men and four women. Two women eat no vegetables, and eat none that grow above ground. One eats no fish and one eats no meat. To sum up their table habits, our octogenarians as a whole have eaten and drunk just what the rest of the family have, in youth and in old age.

Several instances of the "milk cure" are recorded. Human milk contains very little fatty matter, and skimmed milk closely resembles it; and the remedy consists in living for a time exclusively on skimmed milk; no strength is lost by the natural process of digestion, and the surplus nutriment gained by thus furnishing the stomach with what it can digest with little effort goes into the blood and builds up the system; and, as one writer says, "the effect of thus returning to the simple nourishment of childhood strikingly and beautifully illustrates the chemistry of the living body."—Boston Globe.

There are sixty-eight tribes of Indians in our country without Christian missionaries.

A MODOC WARRIOR TALKS.

Interesting Interview With a Member of the Once Famous Tribe of Indians.

The Modocs on their native heath were as determined a tribe of Indians as ever attempted to remove the dandruff from the heads of their white brothers. It cost millions of money and dozens of valuable lives to subdue them when they put on their war paint a few years ago and commenced to raise Cain and the hair of the settlers. No tribe of equal number ever cost the government half as much trouble as the Modocs. The remnants of this once powerful tribe are being slowly extinguished by intermarriage and consumption on their reservation in Indian territory. Two of their number, William Clinton and the historic William Feithfull, called at our office the other day. The former is a bright young man, who was but a child when his people were wrestling for supremacy with the United States government. He is well educated, speaking and writing the English language faultlessly.

In speaking of his people he said: "There are not many of us now, death having reduced our number to less than ninety, and in a few years we will not have a living representative. The climate does not agree with us at the reservation and many are slowly dying from consumption. I believe if they were brought back to California they would recover. I came out here fourteen months ago with five of my people whom it was thought would die before they reached their old home. Only one died and the other four have entirely recovered. I am going back to-morrow to sell off my possessions and will return with as many of my people who are sick as my money will bring."

Clinton spoke with feeling, and seemed to be anxious that his tribe should not become extinct.

Accompanying Clinton was William Feithfull, who said that he also was on his way to the Indian territory. Feithfull is well advanced in years, and his stiff, wiry hair will soon be gray. During the Modoc outbreak he fought from the opening to the close with Capt. Jack, but seems to have had more honor and principle than that noted leader.

Through Clinton as interpreter he spoke freely of his part in the war. He can speak very good English, but says he hates to use the language of a race that has done him so much wrong.

"We were being wronged," said Feithfull, "and had to fight. Afterward we were sorry we had started on the warpath, but were afraid to stop, for Capt. Jack said we would be killed anyway, and might as well die fighting. Lots of times some of us would go to Jack and say that we would fight no more, but he would make a long speech, and we would agree to fight on. When Capt. Jack planned to deceive the peace commissioners and murder them, I made up my mind to go and warn them, but I was watched so closely that I could not get away. I then sent a squaw named Toby Riddle, and she warned Col. Meacham, but they believed in Jack, and not in me. Dr. Thomas was killed. Col. Meacham was in Indian territory afterward, and gave me $10 for saving his life. Lots of times I could have killed white men, but never did. I have onesquaw, and am going home to get her out here where she will be happy. I have no children."—Yreka Union.

How Governor "Bob" Stewart Got Even.

An old citizen, a gentleman of high social and official standing in St. Joseph, tells a story of the famous Missouri governor, Bob Stewart, which, true to the letter, proves that fact is stranger than fiction:

"I was coming up the Missouri river when I was a boy," said the ex-governor, "and I was working my way on a steamboat. At a point where we had to land I didn't carry as big a load as some of the roughest, nor move with that agility that the others did, for I was not strong, and had been tenderly raised. The mate became enraged at my slow movements on the gang plank, and he gave me a kick and sent me ashore and confiscated my buffalo robe as payment for my passage to that point. I never saw that mate again until I had been inaugurated as governor of this great commonwealth of Missouri."

"One day, wandering through the wards and districts of the penitentiary, I saw that mate working at a forge. He had been sent there for killing, in a passion, a man under his command. I knew him instantly, and I directed the warden to send the man to the gubernatorial mansion in the garb of a gentleman. When the man arrived I took him into my private office and asked him if he recognized me. He replied that he did not. Said I: 'Do you remember one time, and at such and such a place, of kicking a boy and sending him ashore who had been working in your gang?'"

"The man said: 'No, I don't remember it, but it is very likely that I did it.'"

"Well," says I, "I am that boy and here is your pardon. I always thought I would get even with you."

"The tears came to the old man's eyes, and he said: 'Well, governor, to be a mate in those days a man had to be a dog.'"

"You played well your part," I said. "Now, leave here, and don't let me see you again."

"As he made his exit I gave him an able bodied kick, and little Bob Stewart had got even with that big steamboat mate."

"Sounds like romance. Don't it? Yes, but every word is true, I need barely say, sir."—St. Joseph Gazette.

A Folk Lore Story.

Signor De Nino has made another collection of the folk lore stories current in the province of Abruzzi. Among the fables are quaint versions of some of the legends that are the common property of the whole world. The one about the creation of animals in the Garden of Eden and the age of man bears repeating. After the animals were created, so the story runs, they thanked God, and asked him what their fate was to be. When they learned that they were to labor and suffer for twenty years they each prayed to live a shorter time, and ten years were deducted in the case of the ass, the dog and the ape. When man was created and learned that he was to live but twenty years, he begged hard for a hundred years, and finally the Creator gave him the thirty years that the animals just named had refused. So it comes about that man's first twenty years are his happy ones; then comes the ass' ten years of labor; domestic cares and children fill the next period, the dog's ten years; during the division that follows the children marry and abandon their father, and in this way the ape's ten years elapse. "After fifty," soliloquizes the story teller, "what more is life to thee? He who has had, has had."—Home Journal.

The Buzzard and the Fox.

A Fox who was Crossing the Fields one day Encountered a Buzzard, who not only Jeered and Insulted him, but actually Dared him to Combat. A Peasant who came upon the scene Expressed his Surprise that the Fox should Submit to such Conduct, but the latter replied:

"An Enemy not worth Burying is not worth Killing."

Moral.—That's why so many Loafers remain Unthumped.—Detroit Free Press.

A Remarkable Case.

Under the above heading the "Doncaster Reporter" of July 6, 1887, publishes the following in its editorial columns:

Our readers may recall the circumstance of a young clerk, named Arthur Richold, falling insensible on the Wheatley Lane in this town some time ago, and being picked up, as he continued perfectly helpless, and taken in a cab by two gentlemen to the office of F. W. Fisher, Esq., the solicitor who employed him. On restoring him to consciousness it was ascertained that he was afflicted with what seemed to be an incurable disease. When he was able to speak he said he had been to his dinner and was on his way back to his work, when suddenly his head was in a whirl and he fell in the street like a man who is knocked down. On coming to his senses in the solicitor's office he thought what this might mean, and feared he was going to have a fit of illness, which we all know is a very dreadful thing for a poor man with a family to care for.

With this in his mind he at once sought the best medical advice, telling the doctors how he had been attacked. They questioned him, and found that his present malady was exhaustion of the nervous system, resulting from general debility, indigestion and dyspepsia of a chronic nature. This in turn had been caused by confinement to his desk and grief at the loss of dear friends by death. The coming on of this strange disease, as described by Mr. Richold, must be of interest both to sick and well. He had noticed for several years previously, in fact, that his eyes and face began to have a yellow look; there was a sticky and unpleasant slime on the gums and teeth in the morning; the tongue coated; and the bowels so bound and costive that it induced that most painful and troublesome ailment—the piles. He says there was some pain in the sides and back and a sense of fullness on the right side, as though the liver were enlarging, which proved to be a terrible fact. The secretions from the kidneys would be scanty and high-colored with a kind of gritty or sandy deposit after standing.

These things had troubled Mr. Richold a long time, and after his fall in the street he clearly perceived that his fit of giddiness was nothing more than a sign of the steady and deadly advance of the complaint, which began in indigestion and dyspepsia. His story of how he went from one physician to another in search of a cure that his wife and little ones might not come to want is very pathetic and touching. Finally he became too ill to keep his situation and had to give it up. This was a sad calamity. He was appalled to think of how he should be able to live. But God raised up friends who helped to keep the wolf from the door. He then went to the seaside at Walton-on-the-Naze, but neither the change, nor the physicians who treated him there, did any good. All being without avail he visited London, with a sort of vague hope that some advantage might happen to him in the metropolis. This was in October, 1885.

How wonderful, indeed, are the ways of Providence, which dashes down our highest hopes and then helps us when we least expect it.

While in London he stated his condition to a friend, who strongly advised him to try a medicine which he called Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, saying it was genuine and honest, and often cured when everything else had failed. He bought a bottle of a chemist in Piccadilly, and began using it according to the directions. He did this without any faith or hope, and the public may, therefore, judge of his surprise and pleasure when after taking a few doses he felt great relief. He could eat better, his food distressed him less, the dark spots which had floated before his eyes like smuts of soot gradually disappeared, and his strength increased. Before this time his knees would knock together whenever he tried to walk. So encouraged was he now that he kept on using Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup until it ended in completely curing him.

In speaking of his wonderful recovery Mr. Richold says it made him think of poor Robinson Crusoe, and his deliverance from captivity on his island in the sea; and added, "But for Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup the grass would now be growing over my grave."

Our readers can rest assured of the strict truth of all the statements in this most remarkable case, as Mr. Richold (now residing at Swiss Cottage, Walton-on-the-Naze), belongs to one of the oldest and most respected families in the beautiful village of Long Melford, Suffolk, and his personal character is attested by so high an authority as the Rev. C. J. Martyn. We have deemed the case of such importance to the public as to justify us in giving this short account of it in our columns.

—FOR—

CONSTIPATION

Sluggish Liver,

ETC., ETC., ETC.,

UNLIKE many kinds of cathartic medicines, do not make you feel worse before you feel better. Their operation is gentle, but thorough, and unattended with disagreeable effects, such as nausea, griping pains, etc.

Seigel's Operating Pills are the best family physic that has ever been discovered. They cleanse the bowels from all irritating substances, and leave them in a healthy condition.

The best remedy extant for the bane of our lives—constipation and sluggish liver.

These Pills prevent fevers and all kinds of sickness, by removing all poisonous matter from the bowels. They operate briskly, yet mildly, without any pain.

If you take a severe cold, and are threatened with a fever, with pains in the head, back, and limbs, one or two doses of Seigel's Operating Pills will break up the cold and prevent the fever.

A coated tongue, with a brackish taste, is caused by foul matter in the stomach. A few doses of Seigel's Operating Pills will cleanse the stomach, remove the bad taste, and restore the appetite, and with it bring good health.

Often times disease, or partially decayed food, causes sickness, nausea and diarrhoea. If the bowels are cleansed from this impurity with a dose of Seigel's Operating Pills, these disagreeable effects will vanish, and good health will result.

Seigel's Operating Pills prevent ill-effects from excess in eating or drinking. A good dose at bedtime renders a person fit for business in the morning.

These Pills, being sugar-coated, are pleasant to take. The disagreeable taste common to most pills is obviated.
