STATESMEN OFF FOR MAUI

Will Spend a Night on the Verge of the Great Crater.

A minute or so after 8 p. m. yesterday, the steamer Claudine, lit up like a liner, departed for Kahului with such portion of the Congressional party aboard, as did not embark on the S. S. Mexican, which sailed for Kahului at 5 p. m. The party will "do" Maui until Saturday, when they will journey over to Hawaii.

Among those who accompanied the party on the Claudine were Delegate Kalaniana'ole, F. M. Hatch and Lorrin A. Thurston.

The wharf was well-filled with sight-seers when the steamer sailed and the band blew its best. "Dixie" was received by the visitors with much handclapping.

Several guitars and ukuleles went with the party and music should make things merry until Maui is reached.

Six of the men of the N. G. H. signal corps boarded the Claudine with the party. They are taking their tools with them and it is expected that their services will be of value in helping the different sections of the tourists to keep track of each other.

The complete passenger list follows:
L. V. Graff, Mrs. Graff, Hope Graff, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brick, Miss Brick, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Capron, D. S. Alexander, R. D. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jones, Delegate Kuhio, F. M. Hatch, H. P. O'Sullivan, G. B. McClellan, "Dooney" Hartman, Senator Piles, E. Y. Webb, J. H. Davidson, W. W. Wilson, E. G. Lowrey, J. S. Needham, C. F. Chillingworth, P. The Congressmen who left for Maui last evening will spend a night on Haeakala. The National Guard will supply tents, cooking ovens, blankets, provisions, etc., and a detail of men to accompany the Territory's guests.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE SCHOOL TEACHERS

Superintendent Babbitt states the published list of schoolteachers whose pay had been raised was incorrect in 40 per cent of the items. The list was one which the Legislature had before it early in the session and it had been greatly altered, though this was not known to the press when a legislative committee handed it out. "I want to say," said Superintendent Babbitt, yesterday, "that every school teacher whose salary was cut will have it restored to the original amount and that, thereafter, they will all be dealt with on their merits."

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

Judge Gear's Obsequies
at Masonic Temple
and Nuuanu.

The funeral of the late Judge George D. Gear from the Masonic Temple yesterday afternoon was very largely attended by representative citizens of all nationalities. Every available place in the waiting rooms in the building was occupied by friends of the deceased who were present to pay their final respects to the memory of the Judge.

There were regular masonic ceremonies in the lodge before the public was admitted and when the doors were opened the gathering found the room well filled with Masons, but chairs were provided for the public. On the platform in the east sat T. C. Petrie, master of Pacific Lodge and several of the past masters. The casket containing the remains was placed directly in front of this platform with the face of the deceased toward the east. On the floor, around the casket, were grouped the floral offerings from friends and the organizations to which the Judge belonged during life. A handsome bank of roses was from Mrs. Gear, an open book in white flowers was from the attaches of the Attorney General's office. The Elks sent a handsome piece in purple asters and the Shrine a piece representing the crescent and scimitar of the order. A copy of the shield of the K. of P. was beautifully wrought in colored flowers as was a Maltese cross made of red carnations. Crosses in purple asters and yellow marigolds were among the attractive pieces and there was an abundance of beautiful wreaths, and cut flowers in bunches. After the arrival of the mourners the audience was rapped to order and the service for the dead read by Mr. Petrie and a prayer said by Rev. J. W. Wadman, a member of the lodge. A quartet consisting of Mrs. Mackall, Mrs. James D. Dougherty sang "Nearer My James D. Dougherty" and "Nearer My God to Thee," and the relatives and friends of the deceased were then afforded an opportunity to view the remains.

The casket was borne from the building by Dr. J. W. Wayson, Hon. A. S. Humphreys, Hon. W. J. Robinson, Hon. E. C. Peters, Charles Hall, E. Farmer, C. R. Collins, and Fred. Harrison who represented the judiciary, bar and the organizations of which deceased was a member.

Proceeding to Nuuanu cemetery there were further services conducted by Master Petrie and prayers by Rev. J. W. Wadman and Rev. W. D. Westervelt. A guard of honor at the side of the hearse in the march to the cemetery and in the incinerating house where the services were held was composed of the National Guard.

HOLLOWAY TO HAVE ONE MORE TITLE

Acting Governor Atkinson signed the commission of C. S. Holloway as president of the Board of Agriculture yesterday afternoon shortly before leaving his office for the trip to Maui. Holloway will take the place which is made vacant by the resignation of W. M. Giffard, who leaves the position on account of the fact that he sails for the Coast on the next Alameda.

According to the law, the president of the board acts as its executive officer and as such must sign all checks and without his approval no expenditure of money can be made. For this reason it is necessary that someone should fill the vacancy at once. Upon the return of Mr. Giffard, he will be reappointed to the position, Holloway resigning to leave the vacancy.

The Naval and Military Defense of Hawaii—An Exposition

DR. N. B. EMERSON.

Hawaii's situation in the mid-Pacific before annexation was like that of a beautiful and richly-clad woman without a protector on her travels in a rude age. It would have been but a mockery for a gallant knight to have endowed the lady with his name, if to that he added not the protection of his lance and sword. The natural relief to Hawaii's situation came with annexation to her nearest neighbor, who had proven himself her best friend. It would be almost a literal carrying out of the above distressful analogy if the United States were to rest content with the gift of its name to the road-worn maiden, while denying to her the bulwarks and engines of defense.

In the times when no man went abroad without his blade belted to his hip, it ill became anyone who valued his own security to forego this respect-compelling insignia. The victories of The Hague are still only a promise that has not yet borne its fruit of national disarmament. The old injunction holds good, "He that hath no sword let him sell his garment and buy one." We are far from the millennium; armies and navies still continue to be the guardians of national possessions.

The preparation of these things—the building and emplacement of a gun, or the construction and armament of a battleship—are tasks that consume years. They can not be extemporized amid the shock of battle as were the earthworks that Sherman threw up about Atlanta.

The motives for the armament and defense of Hawaii must be such as appeal to the honor and interest of the great nation of which we form a part; for both the honor and national well-being of America are at stake in the peace and safety of Hawaii; honor, because it does not comport with the dignity of a great nation that any portion of its domain should lie open to the intrusion of an invader; interest, because alike in war and in peace the strategic value of Hawaii to America is something that can not be reckoned in money value. If one could estimate the damage and demoralization that would ensue to our country, the terrible disadvantage and handicap under which she would labor, were she obliged to contend in war with a powerful nation that held Pearl Harbor as a base of supply and repair; and could he put into figures the mountain of treasure which America would then gladly expend in the effort to win back her lost possession, that sum would approximately represent the outlay which America would be justified in expending today in order to put far away the possibility of ever contemplating such a disaster.

Nature has furnished at Pearl Harbor a land-locked bay that ranks number one among the defensible harbors of the world. With Pearl Harbor for

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CATHEDRAL PARISH

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's cathedral was held last night at 8 o'clock in the Sunday school room. Bishop Restarick, as dean of the cathedral, presided. John Effinger was elected clerk.

The dean read a report as to the condition of the parish stating that not counting the Hawaiian congregation there are 1050 baptized members and that the total enrollment of the cathedral and St. Peter's chapel is 1500.

The treasurer, Mr. L. Tenney Peck, reported the total receipts for the year as nearly $14,000 which included $3300 to the Building Fund.

The committee on the Alice Mackintosh memorial through T. Clive Davies made a report showing a careful consideration of the whole matter, and told of the consultation of architects and the estimate as to the most of the proposed tower. The committee was continued. The report of the building committee was read by George Denison, who gave an account of the money expended up-to-date and who estimated and there is money on hand to finish the addition now being erected. The various guilds and societies of the parish made reports, all showing active work.

Mrs. W. L. Emory, secretary of the Woman's Guild, read the report which told of its work and Mrs. R. Ryecroft gave its financial statement showing that the guild has over $1000 on hand for the Mackintosh memorial and some $500 in the general fund.

The committee on the new altar reported $1011 on hand for that object. All reports showed steady growth during the year and a good financial condition.

The election of vestrymen resulted, as follows: Robert Catton and H. M. von Holt, Wardens; George F. Davies, E. W. Jordan, Thomas Sharp, George Denison, W. L. Emory, L. Tenney Peck, James Wakefield, Vestrymen.

ANNUAL MEET OF POULTRYMEN

R. C. Brown Is Elected as President for Next Year.

At the annual meeting of the Hawaiian Poultry Association, held at the Government nursery building last night, R. C. Brown was elected president for the ensuing year to succeed W. E. Wall. The meeting was closed with a vote of thanks to the retiring officers and also to the Advertiser for the assistance which it had given the association during the year.

After a slight delay which was occasioned by the fact that a quorum was not present till 8:15, the meeting was called to order by President W. E. Wall, J. J. Greene acting as secretary. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The report of the treasurer, showing that there was a small cash balance on hand, was adopted, as was the report of the auditor. In this connection President Wall stated that the reason there was so little money on hand was that the Association had purchased in the neighborhood of $200 worth of exhibition coops during the year past and that for the coming show there would be comparatively little expense. He also spoke of the good work which had been done during the year by Secretary Sayres and recommended that a committee be appointed to make a number of changes in the by-laws, one of which should provide for a small monthly salary for the secretary.

The report of the nomination committee, which had been appointed at a previous meeting, was read and shortly after nominations for officers were called for. The following gentlemen were named and were elected unanimously, the secretary casting the ballot: President, R. C. Brown; secretary-treasurer, J. J. Greene; auditor, J. K. Brown; directors, Messrs. Beardmore, Wall, Fraser and Giles.

Upon motion of Charles Fraser, a committee to consist of the incoming and the retiring president was appointed to recommend such changes in the by-laws as were necessary. Applications for membership were received from Marshal Quintal, J. F. G. Stokes and A. F. Cooke. Their names were balloted on and all three were declared duly elected members of the association.

All the business of the evening having been transacted, W. E. Wall moved that a vote of thanks be passed by the meeting for the useful services of Treasurer Sayres during the past two years. This was carried and was followed by two more motions of the same kind referring to the retiring president and secretary. The meeting then adjourned.

Among those present were W. E. Wall, J. J. Greene, Geo. Curry, Thomas Ruecastle, Judge Weaver, Henry Giles, B. F. Beardmore, K. C. Ables, J. K. Brown and Charles Fraser.

BABBITT WILL GO ON TRIP TO HAWAII

Superintendent of Public Instruction Babbitt leaves next Tuesday on a trip of inspection of the schools of Hawaii. He will be gone some little time as he will visit all the schools in Kona, Kau and Puna. In speaking of his trip he said:

"I have never visited these schools and now am taking the opportunity to do so before the end of the present biennial period, as after July 1 we will have money available with which certain necessary repairs will be made. By making a personal inspection of the buildings I shall be able to see what is needed and understand any requests which are made by the teachers."

There will be a meeting of the Board of Education on Monday at which a number of matters of importance will come up. A special teachers' meeting may be called for this afternoon.

OPENING ON SATURDAY.

Silva's Toggery will open for business next Saturday. A cordial invitation is extended you to visit this up-to-date establishment in the Elks' Building, King street, near Fort.

Wouldn't you go again?

De Wolf Hopper had a slight cold one night, and in a certain speech referred to it in this fashion: "I went to my doctor," he declared, "and the doctor said I had been eating too much nitrogenous food, and must stop it and eat farinaceous food. Since then I haven't been able to eat at all, for I don't know what either word means."

A SYMPOSIUM ON HAWAII NEI

The New York Independent's Special Edition for These Isles.

The Hawaiian edition of the New York Independent was put on sale yesterday at some of the bookstores. It contains the following articles, each illustrated by a picture of the author:

Progress in Hawaii, Sereno E. Bishop; Americanizing Hawaii, Bishop Restarick; Is Hawaii Making Good? Doremus Scudder; Land Settlement in Hawaii, Sanford B. Dole; The Hawaiian Judiciary, Chief Justice Frear; Honolulu, Walter G. Smith.

Speaking of the symposium, the Independent says editorially:

We are very fortunate this week in being able to give our readers a very valuable series of articles about our new Hawaiian possessions. We need add nothing here as to the worth of these Islands to us, or as to their importance as the halting place for all commerce which must cross the Pacific Ocean. That commerce has but just fairly begun. In a hundred years the Pacific commerce will equal or surpass that which crosses the Atlantic. San Francisco or Seattle will be as large a city as New York. Then Hawaii will hardly be large enough to find room for all the steamers that must stop in its ports. The country which holds Hawaii will hold control of all that commerce.

We are very glad to learn that our Congress made no mistake when it insisted on universal democratic suffrage for the Islands. The wise men of Hawaii doubted. They would have restricted suffrage to the educated and the well-to-do; but with no small courage we said that we must trust the people at all hazards. The hazards seemed too great for a few years; but now the wise men tell us that the native Hawaiians are just like other people, amenable to the teachings of experience, lovers of honesty, and that an honest government is now achieved. They are poor ethnologists who imagine that only Anglo-Saxons can become fit to rule the world.

So we pass from these matters, so fully argued by our Hawaiian contributors, to ask a question which not one of them has here raised, but which one of them, Dr. Sereno E. Bishop, an authority on volcanoes, has elsewhere asked and answered—Where did the Hawaiian Islands come from? How came they there, left alone, in the middle of the great Pacific?

That carries us back many millions of years. What is the cause of the deep hollow of the Pacific Ocean, which covers half the globe? One likely answer is, that when, in the course of the evolution of our solar system, the moon separated from the earth, flew off from it, it escaped from that side of the earth where now is the Pacific Ocean. Then, say some astronomers, the outer crust of the earth had begun to harden, the equator bulged much more than it now does, and the velocity of revolution was much greater than now, and the separation of that portion of the earth which has made the moon caused the first great breaking up of the earth's crust and raised the great Eastern Continent opposite the hollow left to be filled by the waters of the Pacific, while a portion of the crust that remained broke off from Asia and moved westward to form the American continent.

The specific gravity of the rocks on the surface of the earth averages about 2.7, while that of the total earth is as high as 5.6. This shows that the lighter portions of the earth are near the surface, and the heavier are toward the center. Now, the specific gravity of the moon is 3.4. When the moon was flung off from the earth, at a time when the earth's shape was much more ellipsoidal, and it was revolving in four hours, instead of twenty-four, the centrifugal force which threw off the material of the moon must have taken a considerable portion of the lighter crust, and not a little of the heavier portion below it, so as to bring up its specific gravity to 3.4. Now, to return to Hawaii, we find that the specific gravity of the upper part of the mountain, Mauna Loa, is 2.1, while that of the lower part is 3.7. This may be explained from the fact that this material comes from the lower level of the crust of the earth, left under the ocean when the moon escaped, while the upper portion comes from volcanic scoria. The volcanoes of Hawaii are caused by the thinner crust of the earth under the ocean, just as those along the edges of the continents are due to the cracks in the breaking of the strata that had their first origin when the continents were created by the pushing and crowding and moving of the crust of the earth when the moon was flung off.

The authority for this theory of the origin of the Pacific Ocean is our most distinguished astronomer, Prof. W. H. Pickering, of Harvard Observatory, who in these conclusions develops the researches of Prof. George H. Darwin, and whose discussion may be found in a late paper entitled "The Place and Origin of the Moon." Just now it interests us for Hawaii's sake. It has been flippantly remarked that it must not be suggested that, because the moon came from Hawaii, the people of those islands are lunatics, for all the lunacy was carried off, and there was left only what is sane.

He remains in San Francisco to represent the Territory of Hawaii in the United States Circuit Court in the case of the United States vs. Registrar of Conveyances Merriam. This case, which was decided in favor of Merriam by Judge Dole in the local Federal Court, has been appealed and will come up in San Francisco on May 23. The case is one in which Registrar Merriam refused to record a map with a judgment which was filed by the United States, giving as his reason that a law recently passed provided for the filing of maps separately. A writ of mandamus was asked for by the United States to compel him to record the map but on the hearing of the case was refused by Judge Dole.

THE BISHOP AND THE FARMERS.

No man can give an intelligent opinion on the subject of small farming in Hawaii until he ceases to identify minor agriculture with the methods and crops of the North Temperate zone and considers the situation from a purely tropical standpoint. Most of that opposition to the small farmer idea, which is not selfish and feudal, arises from a total misconception of it. One hears, continually, that hay and grain, potatoes, corn and cabbages, turnips and pumpkins, cannot be raised, in Hawaii, by white men at a commercial advantage to them. That position is not quite unassailable, for one must credit the Kona Orphanage with handsome returns from its fields and gardens, also Lahainaluna, the Boys' Industrial School, the Volcano House and many suburban homes. But what has all this got to do with the success which is freely prophesied and partially achieved by tropical small farming?

These remarks are suggested by some paragraphs in the otherwise excellent paper which Bishop Restarick contributes to the Hawaiian number of the New York Independent. Here they are:

Homestead lots have been taken by many in the Hamakua district, but from personal conversation with the Portuguese there I have yet to find one who is able to make a living on a homestead by growing anything which at present can be raised. In the Kula district, where they grow corn, they are more successful.

We want these homesteads occupied, but what can the people on them raise? Coffee will not pay; they have tried it and abandoned it. Pineapples must be near a cannery, and the market may easily be overstocked. Bananas must have a ready market. Some raise cane for the plantations and some grow corn. People theorize on paper about Americanizing Hawaii by getting people to go into small farming. I have yet to see one white man other than Portuguese who has succeeded or one practical man who believes it can be accomplished. I know of one white man who grows wheat for hay. When cut, he has to haul it six miles to a place where there is less rain so that it can be cured. Outside of a few who raise pineapples (employing Japanese labor), there is no crop which has paid on the Islands but sugar, and much has been spent in trials. A certain place, Wahiawa, is often quoted as having white men who raise pineapples. I was there the other day, and found that the original fourteen families have dwindled to five, some having leased and some sold out. Since then, the growers have organized a joint stock company with a capital of $400,000. While it is the opinion of the practical men of Hawaii that small farming by Americans will not succeed, there will be a number of small plantations where pineapples, sisal, rubber and tobacco will be grown. These are and will be owned by white men or companies of white men and worked by such labor as they can get. To grow sugar requires a certain class of labor, a class content to remain laborers. This may be an un-American outlook, but it is the condition, and no one can deny it. It is the history of every tropical country in raising staples, and to disregard history is a folly. It is all very well for Americans to think: "History or law does not affect us; we are great enough to disregard them."

This looks serious, but it is not a fair statement of the case. Against the fact that some Portuguese are not making a living on the land, might be put the other fact that many of them are, according to the capital, the training and the intelligence which they have taken into the business; but on either side we know of none who have gone into tropical small farming save, perhaps, the few who are raising wine grapes on Maui and bananas elsewhere, and doing it successfully. Most of the Portuguese are in truck farming, not small farming, and their success or failure does not enter into the small farm discussion. The true small farmers are men like the Louissons and Bruners, the Wahiawa colonists, Peter Lee, Barnard, Edwards of Napoopo, the Murdoch people; the farmers who supply the products of the Pearl City Fruit company; White and Baldwin, in pineapples, the sisal people and the rubber people on Maui and in Puna. These are practical men—as practical in their sphere as the Bishop is in his; and if the latter were to attend a meeting of the Farmers' Institute and visit the United States Agricultural Experiment Station he will meet other practical men who would be glad of an opportunity to convince him that diversified industries are not only possible in Hawaii but that they are steadily and surely augmenting the resources of these Islands.

The Bishop says "Coffee will not pay; they have tried it and abandoned it." How about the coffee raised and marketed by the Louissons and W. W. Bruner? It pays them, despite the fact that coffee is not protected by the tariff. If protection can be had, our coffee will be second only to our sugar in commercial importance. That pineapples must be near a cannery is no argument against them or their cultivation. It is a mere truism. Apples should be near a cider press, olives near an oil press, and beets near a sugar mill, but it has proved as easy to get the facilities needed for the Hawaiian crop as for the mainland ones. The proposition includes factory adjuncts. As for the demand, "practical men"—the men in the business—are pleasantly aware that it is increasing all the time. They are putting their money in pineapples and getting more back.

Bishop Restarick admits himself that small pineapple, sisal, rubber and tobacco plantations are practicable here. Well, isn't that small farming? And what matters it if one chooses to call the small areas plantations instead of farms if they give the white and unincorporated American a chance?

The Bishop also seems to think that there can be no small farming here on the American plan if aliens are hired to do any of the labor. But this argument does not go far when one reflects that, for 75 years, the mainland farmer has been manning his fields with peasant labor from Ireland, Germany, Scandinavia and Italy. He has rarely attempted to do all the work himself. But were the results of that any the worse for him or for the institutions which his presence and influence conserved? If the American farmer in Hawaii chooses to hire Portuguese, Spaniards, Russians or even Asiatics, the circumstance will not deprive Hawaii of the benefit it expects from him as the nucleus of a substantial middle class, nor of the financial returns of his exports.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP.

The account given by Bishop Willis in a letter published recently in the Advertiser, of the difficulties encountered by an educated Chinese gentleman in securing admission into the United States, furnishes much food for reflection. Here was a young man of blameless character, in sound health, on his way to seek admission to a theological school in California, where he expects to fit himself as a qualified teacher of Christianity amongst his own race.

Nothing could be urged against him but his nationality, for which he was in no way responsible. He had learned in the western religion to which he had been converted, that the Almighty, worshiped by Christians, was no respecter of persons. He had also learned that underlying principle of Christianity taught in the Golden Rule. Yet, on the threshold of an enlightened and supposedly Christian country, he meets with the treatment ordinarily accorded criminals—ticket-of-leave men who must give an account of themselves, because, while ostensibly at large, they are still objects of police surveillance.

A few years ago a Chinese who had been a resident of Terre Haute, one of the large cities of Indiana, furnished another example of the gross and barbarous injustice of which a powerful nation may be capable. He had been engaged in business in the city mentioned for more than twenty years. He had accumulated considerable property, being an industrious and provident man. He had paid his taxes; he had committed no offense against the laws. His children were sent to the public schools and had been educated as Americans. He went on an excursion to Niagara Falls, and ignorantly crossed the bridge to the Canadian side. It will scarcely be believed that, though wife, home, family, the property earned by years of honest toil, were all in the city he had left, with no thought of such consequences, he was forbidden to return.

The members of Congress from the State, the Baptist church of which he was a member, the best element in the whole country, were all enlisted in his behalf and for months, at least, to no purpose. Whether he was ever permitted to return is not known.

When one reflects upon the fountain source of the legislation that has made such outrageous injustice possible, one's faith may well be shaken in the stability of a representative form of government. Those at whose dictate such laws were enacted are themselves, in spirit and intent, far more alien than the races at which they are aimed. They are less peaceable as members of the community, and less useful as citizens.

Several years ago the Vanderbilts were notorious as automobile "scorchers" in Newport. Alfred Vanderbilt was fined several times. He paid the fine—a mere trifle to a man of his wealth—and kept on scorching. The judge finally let it be known that at the next offense imprisonment would be added to the fine, and the scorching ceased. Another millionaire, William E. Dodge of Yonkers, New York, son of the philanthropist, has just been fined $100 with ten days' imprisonment for the same offense. A few hundred dollars are nothing to the millionaire, but even one day in prison is a record that he can never quite live down. The enforcement of such a sentence will have a salutary effect, where milder means have failed.

THE BIGGEST BROKERS GIVE UP BUSINESS

CHICAGO, April 30.—The largest brokerage house in the world, Charles G. Gates & Co., is out of existence. Partners of the firm acknowledge today that they had decided to quit business. Rumors to the effect that Gates & Co. intended to retire had been heard for some time, but the members of the concern had denied the reports in an emphatic manner every time the question was put to any of them.

Past denials and today's confessions of liquidation are explained by the remark that when the reports were first heard that an acknowledgment of dissolution would have meant ruin to the house and a second panic on the Stock Exchange. Charles G. Gates & Co. owed approximately $90,000,000, all of which represented Wall-street deals. These staggering liabilities were accentuated by the fact that grave dissensions had broken out among the twelve partners. Several of the latter objected not only to the enormous obligations the firm had incurred, but also to the manner in which the debt had been piled up.

It was charged that the chief special partner, John W. Gates, was responsible for one-half of these liabilities, and it was insisted that this be reduced, if not liquidated, at once. The determination of three of the general partners to have this settlement made was the beginning of the end. New York banks scented trouble and demanded that the firm take up its loans.

And in her possession, the United States can hold her nearest possible western foe at a remove of some thirty-five hundred miles—some twelve days' sail from Honolulu, or eighteen days' sail from San Francisco; with Pearl Harbor in the clutch of an enemy, this interval of separation is cut down to twenty-one hundred miles—only five and a half days' sail from San Francisco. In this statement we have the whole story. In amplification of this view we only need to remind ourselves that the propelling force of a fleet is steam, and that means coal; that the radius of a ship's activity at sea is equal to one-half the steaming distance of her coal-supply, and when that is exhausted her activity comes to an end. More than this, we must remember that a warship is a complicated machine, in constant need of repair. It feeds on coal and iron and must always be within reach of a repair shop and a graving dock. When Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet finally reached Japanese waters the ships were foul with marine sea-growth and their speed and efficiency reduced far below scheduled average.

What need is there of forts and guns if there is a fleet at hand to defend the ports and bases of supply and repair? To this we answer that the business of a fleet is to keep the sea and not to hover about its home-ground. Forts and land defenses are supplementary to navies and may be likened to the home-guard, the housekeeper, who holds watch and ward when the man of the house is away on his errands of business. We would call to mind the disaster that threatened our own national capital when Early made his famous raid into the District of Columbia in 1864, while the army of the Potomac was watching General Lee.

The allegory with which we opened this exposition tells but half the truth. If the lady needs the sword and lance of the knight for her defense, it is not less true, as we may further suppose, that the knight has equal need of what the lady can give to him. Their lands are contiguous, and if her castle perched upon the hill overlooking his domain should fall into alien hands, all would betide the fortunes of the brave knight in the day of battle.

The fortunes of America and of Hawaii, whether in war or in peace, are one and inseparable. N. B. E. February 18, 1907.

THE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

The Hawaiian Forester's Ideas About the Coming Institution.

The Hawaiian Forester and Agriculturist, which has just come out, contains the following:

By far the most important event to the agriculture of this Territory which has been recorded for some time, is the provision by the Legislature of a sufficient fund to establish and maintain a well equipped Agricultural College. The exigencies of modern life have made it incumbent that the agriculturist of today, in order to be efficient and to render his land fully remunerative, be a man of wide knowledge and experience, whose methods are founded upon the substantial basis of practical science. The days have long since passed which only demanded of the tiller of the soil that he should follow the slow and laborious footsteps of his progenitor and be content with a scanty harvest wrung from the unwilling earth.
With such unprogressive and conservative methods the agriculture of the day has no concern, and the country, whose people are contented with them must as long as they obtain, remain backward and undeveloped.

The necessity of imparting the technical knowledge necessary to modern husbandry by means of scientific educational institutions has only been properly appreciated in comparatively recent times. It has been brought about by a number of different agencies, some of them operating from without and others having their inception in the industry itself. The cumulative effect of the conditions referred to, taken as a whole has been to render ever more and more exacting the amount of special knowledge and training necessary in the successful agriculturist. The quantity of expert information now demanded is so great that no individual can acquire it from mere personal observation or from serving an apprenticeship in the routine of an ordinary farm. It is therefore necessary that educational institutions be established where the sound practices of modern agriculture may be acquired. To effect this, recourse must be had to well nigh every department of human knowledge. The geologist, the botanist, and the chemist must be consulted, and physics, physiology and the mechanical arts must alike yield their assistance. The laws determining heredity must be investigated and those influencing the perpetuity of beneficial individual traits investigated. The science of bacteriology will be required to teach an understanding of various operations of the dairy which formerly were relegated to chance. The practices of the modern forester must be evoked to render productive sterile wastes and to reclaim areas denuded by the improvidence of a thoughtless generation.

Of those agencies operating from within which have necessitated the application of scientific and other modern knowledge to agriculture, may be briefly mentioned the inherent tendency of all cultivated crops to develop disease or invite the attacks of insect pests, when grown upon an unprecedented scale on the same ground for many successive generations. It is not necessary in this country to dwell too long upon the object lesson which has been before it of this phase of the question with regard to our staple industry. In the early history of Hawaii when sugar cane was only grown in such small quantities as to satisfy the local requirements of the natives, it is improbable that the plant was attacked to any appreciable extent by either fungoid or insect pests. As the industry has developed, however, and the area of production increased to extraordinary proportions, together with the growth of successive crops upon the same land, the development of special breeds of cane has rendered the crop itself susceptible to the ravages of special disease, and has also facilitated the introduction of enemies from other countries. So great has been the effect of these onslaughts that were it not for the prompt and energetic application of entomological and other scientific methods it is questionable whether a ton of sugar could now be exported from the Islands. With regard to the sugar planter, the enormous extent of the industry, enables him in Hawaii to equip and maintain a scientific establishment, with a corps of expert officials, to combat the evil. With the agriculturist, however, there is often no such recourse and he must often rely upon his own knowledge and experience to act promptly in matters affecting the very existence of the venture upon which he has invested his capital. Nor is it the large industries which have to assert their well-being by a constant scientific warfare. In some countries, as is known to every reader of agricultural history, whole industries have been destroyed for lack of promptly instituting scientific remedies when the enemy was yet in its incipient stage. In many instances communities which have become enriched by a successful industry have become utterly impoverished in a few seasons by the failure of their staple crop under the attack of disease. Coffee, vanilla, the grape vine, and many other industries have both made and ruined the fortunes of countries, and the latter phase has unquestionably been due to the lack of proper scientific knowledge and a lively sense of the impending danger. Referring again to more local conditions, it does not take great observation to discern that even with all our boasted scientific knowledge, the mango crop of the islands is in danger of suffering materially unless the continual application of modern knowledge be exerted on its behalf. Our taro crop, essentially a primitive industry and one at first thought which should be immune from such dangers as have been referred to, is threatened with more than one disease. The condition of our rice industry was lately so precarious that the cooperation of both local and Federal assistance was enlisted to discover suitable remedies to re-estate it among our remunerative agricultural pursuits.

It is only by recourse to the accumulated knowledge of the sciences as understood and intelligently applied by modern experiment and practice that a substantial and permanent improvement can be achieved in this industry.
But by these helps, an almost double yield of improved grain can be predicted, at a smaller cost than that necessary to produce our present crop.

The welfare of a rapidly-increasing part of our inhabitants is more or less closely associated with the pineapple industry, yet here is a condition of affairs which has obtained before in many countries and which contains within itself the factors for its own destruction from disease. The prompt application of approved methods is necessary to ward off the threatened enemy, and here again we look to science for a solution. Before these onslaughts, the individual, however hard-working, however energetic and intelligent is absolutely helpless, without a scientific training acquired in a modern agricultural college.

Among the external influences which have been at work to accumulate the sum of knowledge necessary to successful husbandry may be mentioned the development of market demands, the intensified competition among producers, the general raising of the standard of living in progressive countries, and the dissemination of education.
This latter factor has acted as an especial stimulus in this direction, as it has been seen that of two men endowed in other respects alike, success has followed the one who possessed the greater store of suitable learning to draw upon. With the factors alluded to at work has come the necessity of larger crop production and of more economical methods of tillage and harvesting. To assist the enhancement of harvest, the chemist and the soil expert, who have determined the proper constituents of plant food, and the scientific plant breeder, with special knowledge of the laws determining the establishment of varieties and the evolution of new breeds. The question of economic harvesting has been very generally solved by the mechanical devices of the engineer.

It is not alone in the plant crops of the farm that this special knowledge to which we have been alluding applies, but the same is necessary to the breeder of all farm stock. With these latter, whether the object aimed at is the profitable production of horses or sheep, or even the more lowly feathered stock, the most successful operator will be the one who has the greatest store of suitable knowledge to draw upon. The chicken breeder will have more opportunity to succeed who has the principles of Mendell's laws of heredity to assist him, than he who is groping in the dark, as must he whose lore has been learned by merely observing local conditions.

It is to be noted that the legislative appropriation to which we have alluded does not confine its operation to agricultural education alone, but embraces in its scope the wide field covered by the mechanic arts. The liberal policy of making provision for instruction in other departments of technical education is to be commended, and its influence will doubtless exercise as beneficial effect in other branches of industry as that which we anticipate in agriculture.

With the establishment of an institution in this Territory imparting a knowledge of the sciences tending to a better knowledge of the requirements of every department of husbandry, and affording a technical education in other fields calculated to fit the student for the diversified industries and means of livelihood of the islands, a new impulse will be given to the development of Hawaii. We predict a great work and future for the Agricultural College soon to be founded in our midst and wish it all success.

FRENCH SOLDIERS SHOW ILLITERACY

PARIS, April 27.—Some curious revelations have been published regarding the condition of education of the French soldier.

An officer, while resting after a march, asked one or two of his men out of curiosity what they knew of Joan of Arc. The answers were such as to surprise him in no small degree.

Painfully impressed by the men's ignorance he drew up a short catechism containing the following questions, which he submitted to the men in his company: "What do you know of Joan of Arc, of Bayard, of Louis XIV, of the French Revolution, of Napoleon I, of the war of 1870, of Alsace-Lorraine?"

Most of the men had to confess that they knew nothing at all about the subjects on which they were being questioned. Others who attempted to answer showed the most deplorable ignorance, such as "Bayard was a great sailor." "Louis XIV was an officer who lived in 1547." "Napoleon was the Emperor of the whole world for 100 days." "Alsace-Lorraine is a great town of France." "Napoleon died in prison after being taken to Cler-mont Ferrand." "Joan of Arc was one of the Queens of France who was burned by the Prussians in 1870." "The Revolution took place because of the death of Louis XIV."

Sixty per cent of the men had never heard of Napoleon.

at this time invites disease and pain.

When her system is in a deranged condition or she is predisposed to apoplexy or congestion of any organ, the tendency is at this period likely to become active and with a host of nervous irritations make life a burden. At this time also cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, melancholia, dread of impending evil, palpitation of the heart, irregularities, constipation and dizziness are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period of life when this great change may be expected.

Mrs. Fred Certia, 1014 So. Lafayette Street, So. Bend, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the ideal medicine for women who are passing through Change of Life. For several months I suffered from hot flashes, extreme nervousness, headache and sleeplessness. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I had made up my mind there was no help for me until I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my bad symptoms ceased, and it brought me safely through the danger period, built up my system and I am in excellent health.

I consider Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound unsurpassed for women during this trying period of life."

Mrs. Henry Lee, 60 Winter Street, New Haven, Conn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"After suffering untold misery for three years during Change of Life I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
I wrote you of my condition, and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and followed your advice, and to-day I am well and happy. I can now walk anywhere and work as well as anyone, and for years previous I had tried but could not get around without help. I consider your medicine a sovereign balm for suffering women."

Women passing through this critical period should rely upon Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If there is anything about your case you don't understand write to Mrs.
Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It is free and has guided thousands to health.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health, actually thousands of women, you cannot well say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." It is your duty to yourself and family to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Is the Hawaiian Making Good?

By Doremus Scudder, D. D., in the New York Independent.

Racially he is dying out. But what of our ancestor the Briton? It would exhaust the resources of ethnological mathematics to calculate, in the case of any American of English forbears, the correct proportion of Briton, ancient Roman, Norseman, Dane, Saxon, Norman, Hollander and Huguenot-French in his hopeless upmix. Hawaii drifted into the interracial stream so late that the gradual absorption of a comparatively pure stock is happening before our very eyes. There is this added factor, that civilization had had time to originate some very virulent diseases and to establish in her own bailiwick a considerable degree of immunities before she invaded this Paradise. Hence her first contact with the non-immune Hawaiian was cruelly fatal. But he has practically recovered from this shock. He is now following the historic trend by blending into the common human family rather than by fading out of existence.

He is making good in the process; that is, he improves with miscegenation. It is not a one-sided transaction, for he gives as well as gets. Marry a Hawaiian to a Chinese and the resultant is every way a finer product. The output gains through the Polynesian mother rare social charm, is more cosmopolitan, more approachable and courteous than the Celestial father, while the trick of making ends meet, industry, frugality and business sense gratefully testify to the hoary Asian heredity. This cross is universally liked and climbs high in positions of trust.

The white Hawaiian does not derive quite so much evolutionary stability from his father, who may have been a degenerate. But some of America's best blood has been imparted to the Islander, to say nothing of the sturdy European, who has done his share of intermarrying. These "half whites," as they are called, are a steadily increasing factor in racial evolution here. They are harder to manage than the pure Hawaiian, but are a distinct advance upon him. A goodly number of our most capable people—trusted, successful and in every way an honor to Hawaii—are "half whites."

When the race shall live only in past history it will be seen to have left behind a gentleness of disposition, a courteous dignity of bearing and an open-handed friendliness sorely needed by a sterner, more abrupt and selfish products of colder climes. In losing his racial life the Hawaiian will sweeten the cosmopolitan man now in the evolutionary alembic.

For eighty-seven years the best of Occidental civilization has focused itself upon Hawaii. Coincident with that best and preceding it for forty-two years, the world also turned loose its worst in the Islands. The little handful of missionaries who came to bring Christian ideals, reinforced by a few other foreigners of high character, were always far outnumbered by those whose evil lives issued a constant appeal to the Hawaiian to remain in savagery. This disparity so strongly affected that noble Christian naval officer, Captain Thomas Ap Catesby Jones, of the United States sloop-of-war Peacock, in 1826, that in writing of the famous "trial" of the missionaries, in the house of Chief Boki, he said: "I own I trembled for the cause of Christianity and for the poor benighted Islander, when I saw, on the one hand, the British Consul, backed by the most wealthy and hitherto influential residents and shipmasters, in formidable array and prepared, as I supposed, to testify against some half a dozen meek and humble servants of the Lord, calmly seated on the other, ready and anxious to be tried by their bitterest enemies, who on this occasion occupied the quadruple station of judge, jury, witness and prosecutor." In all the discussions as to the capacity of the Hawaiian for civilization it should never be forgotten that from 1820 until today he has consistently, as a people, made choice of the better, when confronted first with Christianity and his own debasing superstitions; second, with universal education and continuance in ignorance; third, with constitutional government and absolute monarchy; fourth, with acquiescence in annexation promising the Islands peaceful development and reactionary race hatred; and, finally, with lofty ideals of citizenship and the spirit of graft. This he has done in the face of sinister counsel, always ably presented by representatives of superior civilization.

So must for general historic statement. How is it with the Hawaiian of today in his approach to twentieth century motives? We Americans are keen for testing the staying power of a race by its industrial development. Up to 1839 the personal property sense did not exist in Hawaii, and it was not until 1848 that the native commoner came to own real estate in fee simple. In 1902, just fifty-two years after the Great Mahele, or division of lands by the King, we find 37,656 Hawaiians and part-Hawaiians taxed for real estate valued at $12,817,278. This would be equivalent to a holding of the value of $340 for every man, woman and child of that race.

In 1890 one person in every eleven of those of Hawaiian blood, counting all sexes and ages, owned real estate; in 1896 the figures advanced to one in every eight; while in 1902 they reached one in every six. The national census of 1900 shows that 43 per cent. of Hawaiian families owned their own homes, as against 28 per cent. for Caucasians living in the Territory, while for the entire American Union the figures are 44 per cent. But 85 per cent. of the homes owned by Hawaiians are unencumbered, while only 65 per cent. of those owned throughout the United States are recorded as free from indebtedness. After all that has been written concerning the exploitation of Hawaii by whites this is a suggestive showing.

Bulletin No. 66 of our National Bureau of Labor presents certain tables of occupations, wages, hours of labor and nationality of employees in a number of the industries of Hawaii in 1905. The report states that "No attempt was made to cover all establishments in the Territory, but in certain industries nearly all establishments of any importance are included in the table."

Out of a total of 51,616 employees tabulated, there are 2271 Hawaiians and 112 part-Hawaiians, or 2383 in all. Of these, 1557 are classed as laborers, while 826 are employed in occupations requiring more or less skill. These 826 are found in almost all of the trades, e. g., engineers, firemen, carpenters, woodworkers, painters, paperhangers, plumbers, blacksmiths, boiler-makers, machinists, molders, compositors, linotypers, pressmen, proofreaders, conductors, brakemen, motormen, ticket agents, freight clerks, electricians, linemen, masters of steam vessels, first and second mates, pursers, foresters (one), shop and gang foremen, etc.

As a general rule the white employee, whether American or North European, is paid higher wages than the Hawaiian, though there are not a few exceptions. The four Hawaiian motormen and four conductors on the Honolulu electric system are paid the same wage as their white fellow workman. The highest wages paid to Hawaiians are $5.74-1-2 per diem, received by the masters of two steamers, the seven American masters averaging $5.84 and the five other white captains $5.75. The two Hawaiian first mates, however, receive an average of $3.83-1-2, while six Americans and two Germans of the same rank are paid only $4.51-2 and two Englishmen $3.64-1-2. Board is also added in the cases of these masters and mates. A careful study of the tables seems to indicate that where skill does not more largely determine the wage, the Hawaiian employee is apt to be paid on a basis regulated by the scale of living. Hence he receives less than the white American or North European, a trifle less than the Portuguese and more than the Asiatic. Doubtless for a like reason the part-Hawaiian is apt to receive more than his full-blooded brother. Where, however, skill is determinant of wages, the Hawaiian who excels may be even better paid than the white; thus a Hawaiian pile driver receives $3, while three Americans average only $2.33-1-2; twelve Hawaiian painters on plantations (where free house rent is added) are paid $1.51; a German of the same craft $1.25. In the skilled trades, as a rule, however, the Hawaiians have not yet had time to become as proficient as their competitors. Considering their heredity and the meager incentive in their environment, all luring toward the fiftful activity incident to fishing and tilling the soil in the oldtime way, together with the dearth of opportunity to learn modern trades, the record of 1 adult male in every 12 employed as a skilled laborer is most creditable. Out of 396 steam engineers in the Territory, no less than 59 are Hawaiians and 5 part-Hawaiians. There are 76 native overseers and 1 head overseer on the sugar plantations.

The report does not include mercantile establishments or government offices, where a constantly increasing number are employed as clerks, bookkeepers and typewriters. Out of a total of 414 teachers in the public schools of the Territory in 1905, no less than 154 were of Hawaiian blood, as against 250 whites. The fierce competition that marks modern business practically shuts out the Polynesian. There are very few merchants among them. There are, however, a number of successful lawyers and many earnest, faithful clergymen.

The American people are probably more interested in the experiment of giving the franchise to the new races that annexation has brought into the Greater United States than in any other one feature of the expansion problem. There can be no doubt that Hawaii is shedding new light upon some of the details of this question. Two very important factors present here should not be overlooked. The first of these is educational preparation. At the very outset of their campaign the early missionaries began to teach the Hawaiian nation to read. Within a few years of their landing in 1820 it seemed as though the entire population were mad with the fever to learn. As a result after one or two generations illiteracy was practically unknown on the Islands. The Hawaiian is a born booklover and delights to discuss what he reads.

Again, as early as 1840 a constitution was proclaimed by the King, and the people began to elect representatives. There were but seven chosen popularly out of fifteen in a single chambered legislature. In 1852 a second constitution instituted two houses, the members of the upper being appointed by the King, while those of the lower were chosen by universal suffrage. In 1864, under a reactionary sovereign, the pendulum swung back to a single house and a suffrage conditioned by a slight property qualification and by the ability to read and write. In 1887 a revolutionary movement substituted a fourth constitution with a ministry responsible to the legislature, two houses, the upper with members chosen by electors possessing a moderate property qualification and the lower a popular assembly. Thus Hawaiians were prepared for the present era of manhood suffrage by many years of progressive training in citizenship.

At annexation strong influences were brought to bear upon Congress to secure a Territorial Senate based upon restricted suffrage, but without success. Gloomy forebodings of native misrule were given wide currency, and the first few years under the Organic Act seemed to justify them. The first Legislature was shamefully bad, and the second hardly an improvement, while a number of Hawaiian officials proved corrupt. Yet nothing better could have been expected as the outcome of lost sovereignty. President Cleveland's doleful policy and the flocking together of cheap native demagogues and carpetbaggers from the mainland. The wonder is that the recoil from the strict control of the Provisional Government and the Republic to the laxity of Uncle Sam's gentle oversight was not more upsetting. The experience was salutary in convincing good men, both whites and Hawaiians, that the racial friction aroused by the Cleveland-Blount-Willis episode had no ground for existence, and that union for good government must prevail. The one commanding Island statesman who made this possible was Judge Sanford B. Dole, whose consistent policy, first as head of the Provisional Government and Republic and next as first Territorial Governor, ideally embodied justice to all. The man of the hour who seized the happy moment in 1904 to speak the word that brought Hawaiian and white into happy cooperation was our present Governor, George R. Carter. The election of that year gave a Legislature that would suffer by comparison with none on the mainland. Finally, last November, in Oahu County, the opportunity was granted the Hawaiians to decide between a graft-corrupted machine, identified with the Republican party, to which they had begun loyally to turn, and independence of political action. Thus the crowning test of ability to wield the ballot in obedience to twentieth-century principles was clearly applied to the native race. They came forth from the ordeal triumphant. The machine was buried past resurrection and that by Hawaiian votes. The history of the past six years reveals a power of self-government in this race of a quality scarce believable. The historical student, however, sees in it no miracle. Not only did his previous political history affect his capacity for self-mastery, but his church polity also even more fundamentally trained his power. In 1883 the Hawaiian churches were freed from missionary control and set forth on a career of self-government. Modeled after the Puritan pattern they taught this people how to think, debate and vote from conviction. Though the church did not gain so much from this experiment, the State did, and is now reaping its results.

In fine, it is not too much to say that the hope of honest government for this Territory lies to no small degree in the Hawaiian, and that there is one best of reasons for believing that he will justify expectations. Congress made no mistake in granting manhood suffrage to its mid-Pacific Territory. Superficial critics are wont to speak slightly of the religious life of the Hawaiian, and the assertion is not uncommon that the Christian native is but a whitewashed pagan. Not a little may be urged in support of this contention by those who have not wide and deep acquaintance with the Island. A pretty volume could be made out of the topic "American Pagan Superstitions." Yet we have had more than one thousand years' start of Hawaii in Christian heredity and environment. Intimate connection with the natives excites only wonder that less than one hundred years should have taken so completely out of their lives the debasing conceptions which ruled their great-grandfathers. When one recalls the success in America of innumerable quacks, "Indian" doctors and nostrums of faith cure, Christian Science, divine healing and the like, the exceptional Hawaiian, in his resort to a kahuna (witch doctor), seems not so unresponsible. Occultism will take generations to kill, and in this regard the American has no right to cast a stone.

The test of Christian character, however, resides more in the upbuilding of positive virtues—honesty, chastity, kindness, peaceableness and the like, which go to make up brotherhood—than in a total elimination of the backward ground of fears inherited through untold ages of ancestors. It is here that the Hawaiian is giving surest evidence of the radical change wrought in him by our common religion. So far as assemblies, preaching, singing and other emotional manifestations of a belief in God go, the Islander is of course the peer of any people, but this is not the question.

Is he truthful? To answer this inquiry in the case of any race is not easy. Are Americans truth tellers? The reply will vary with each one's knowledge of individual Americans, or his acquaintance with certain circles of finance. Yet it cannot be doubted that as a whole Americans are truthful. We are still evolving as truth speakers and have by no means reached the goal. It is entirely unreasonable to expect in a people but eighty-six years removed from savagery as complete an average development of the idea of truth and of obedience to the ideal as we show. When this is said, it can be added that the degree of truthfulness evidenced in ordinary affairs by the Hawaiians is a remarkable tribute to the power of Christianity. There is simply no comparison between him and the Italian as pictured by Macaulay in one of his famous essays. He will falsify under stress, but then, what average man of any race will not? It is largely a question of the degree of stress. With the Hawaiian the breaking point is fairly high, taking the whole human world into consideration.

How about honesty? Secretary Taft, in an address at his alma mater not long ago, sketched vividly the aegle development of the idea of personal property. As has been remarked, until a half century or so ago, the Hawaiian commoner never conceived the notion, except as a dog does his bone. Since that time he has advanced centuries in decades. The tendency to breach of trust in spending funds for which he is responsible is all too common. It is not, however, evidence of criminal intent, as it would be with us, but rather of lack of the property sense. That progress in the acquirement of this idea is being made with rapid strides, particularly since annexation laid wider responsibilities upon Hawaiians, is a matter of common observation. The race is steadily making good in honesty.

A more vital inquiry relates to chastity. Before the advent of Christianity here this was absolutely unknown and unguessed on these islands. Promiscuity ruled supreme. Here, it seems to me, the triumph of the moral ideal has been more marked than anywhere else, especially when it is borne in mind that Mormonism has been present with its deadly poison for decades, and that since the early days of discovery the unprincipled white man has fought every step of the way to purify of home life with a ferocity of which our American mainland knows nothing. Besides this, the Hawaiian home is exposed to the frightful assaults of the horde of young, unmarried Asiatics, themselves devoid of chaste ideals. How any upbuilding of pure family life could be expected under this combination of conditions passes human wisdom to conceive. Yet it has been and is being done. Young girls subjected to temptations unguessable in the States are being trained to resist. Pure homes are growing in number, and with increasing frequency lapses in youth are followed by reformation both lasting and of wide influence. Christianity undertook its mightiest task in the endeavor to frame in this climate, out of the most unworkable materials, an ideal of chaste living, and it is succeeding.

In the other virtues Hawaiians need fear no comparison with us who boast a Christian ancestry many fold longer. They are determined to spare no pains to lift themselves still higher. They do not begrudge expenditures for education which would give serious pause to legislators on the mainland. The total school attendance of children of native stock has steadily increased from 7911 in 1903 to 8267 in 1906. Little by little the ambition to be worthy of the new century is getting its grip upon their hearts. Not a few are beginning to leave the Territory for higher education on the mainland. Any serious-minded student of human progress who thoughtfully transports himself back one short hundred years must confess that one of the miracles of history has been enacted on these faraway islets, and that the Hawaiian has justified many fold the gifts which civilization has made him.

LEE LET BRIBERY

Second Charge Will Be Made Against Former Clerk Kellett.

The unavoidable absence from the city of one of the chief witnesses in the Lee Let bribery trial which was set for tomorrow morning before Judge De Bolt, will cause postponement of the case and it will be set for trial again Friday morning. The other case on the calendar for tomorrow, an embezzlement charge against Lee Yun Kwai, will be postponed. The case was the result of a quarrel between the defendant and his mother and the matter has been adjusted so that it is now satisfactory to both parties.

Judge De Bolt's jurors will, in consequence of this, be given a short recess and will not be called on to appear in the court till Monday when the Kellett case will come up.

For the second time P. D. Kellett, Jr. will appear before the Circuit Court on a charge of embezzlement. He pleaded guilty the first time he was tried and was sentenced to one year in jail by Judge Lindsay. At this time he made what was supposed to be a complete confession of the embezzlements which had taken place while he was acting as clerk in the court of Judge De Bolt.

The present charge for which Kellett will be placed on trial next Monday, was discovered after Kellett had been in jail for some time and the charge is that he embezzled the sum of $2344 which comprised the property in the estate of a Chinaman named Kan Yee, whose guardian Kellett was appointed on Jan. 25, 1901. The embezzlement was not discovered till March 1 of the present year.

Did you see IT?

THE WORRIED WOMEN.

They say men must work and women must weep; but alas, in this too busy world women often have to work and weep at the same time. Their holidays are too few and their work heavy and monotonous. It makes them nervous and irritable. The depressed and worried woman loses her appetite and grows thin and feeble. Once in a while she has spells of palpitation and has to lie up for a day or two. If some disease like influenza or malarial fever happens to prevail she is almost certain to have an attack of it, and that often paves the way for chronic troubles of the throat, lungs and other organs; and there is no saying what the end may be. Let the tired and overladen woman rest as much as possible; and, above all, place at her command a bottle of WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION a true and sure remedy for the ills and maladies of women. It is palatable as honey and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. Search the world over and you will find nothing to equal it. Taken before meals it improves the nutritive value of ordinary foods by making them easier to assimilate, and has carried hope and good cheer into thousands of homes. It is absolutely reliable and effective in Nervous Dyspepsia, Impaired Nutrition, Low Vitality, Wasting Conditions, Melancholy, Chlorosis, Scrofula, and all troubles of the Throat and Lungs. Dr. E. J. Boyes says: "I have found it a preparation of great merit. In a recent case a patient gained nearly twenty pounds in two months' treatment, in which it was the principal remedial agent." It carries the guarantee of reliability and cannot fail or disappoint you. At chemists

JAPANESE PEDDLERS
PAID REVENUE FINES

Under orders of Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Drake eight Japanese vendors of soda water, tobacco, cigars, etc., from push carts, were gathered in yesterday morning and fined $50 apiece for selling tobacco in the original packages without qualifying properly with the United States Internal Revenue department. The Japanese all paid the fines with little trouble and for the present will probably sell no tobacco. They may overcome this difficulty by filing bonds for $500, but none of them have offered to do so thus far.

THE MOTTO OF THE IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE IS "ONE THING AT A TIME." THE "ONE THING" ON WHICH THEY WANT TO CONCENTRATE ATTENTION NOW, IS TO CLEAN THE STREETS AND SIDEWALKS, AND KEEP THEM CLEAN. WON'T YOU HELP?

The housewarming of the clubhouse of the St. Louis Alumni Association, which is located Ewa of the Pacific Club, will take place towards the end of this month and the members of the Alumni are making great preparations for the affair. One of the most interesting features will be the rendering of college songs by a chorus of fifty or sixty voices. SPEAKS IN PRAISE OF CZAR'S TROOPS

ST. PETERSBURG, April 30.—The Lower House of Parliament today passed the recruiting bill by 220 to 194 votes. The House also adopted a resolution setting forth the necessity of decreasing the number of men to be called to the colors and passed a law abolishing the custom of providing soldier servants for officers and the using of troops for police purposes.

President Golovin apologized in behalf of the House for the incident last night, during which Zuraboff (Socialist) made a savage attack upon the army and the Government, which for a time threatened to precipitate trouble, and ended in Zuraboff being deprived of the right to the floor of the House and being formally rebuked. Golovin said that in view of yesterday's reflections upon the army, he considered it to be his duty to announce that the House regarded the army, which was true to the fatherland, as deserving of all respect and gratitude.

It was understood that this apology was acceptable to Premier Stolypin. The Socialists, however, retorted with a signed protest declaring that Golovin's words infringed the prerogatives of the House, were opposed to the dignity of Parliament and suggested the election of another president.
