The Lover's Plot.

AN OLD-TIME YARN.

Sir George Mackenzie, who flourished in the last half of the seventeenth century, was one of the most eminent jurists ever known in Scotland, besides being a brilliant man of letters. He inherited wealth, and during his busy life he added so much to it that he became one of the wealthiest men of his time. As a politician he was self-willed and stubborn, and at times violent. Between himself and the young Earl of Bute a strong political difference existed, which neither showed a disposition to harmonize. Yet the Earl had fallen deeply in love with Sir George's daughter, and the love was by her returned. The lovers knew that the stern old advocate would not consent to their union. In fact, it is doubtful if Sir George would have admitted Bute to his house as a friend. His feelings were deep and bitter, and he had been heard to denounce the Earl as little better than a renegade.

The lovers put their heads together and consulted. They were eager to be made man and wife. Of course, the young lady could elope and be married clandestinely, and the father could not help himself; but, ah! he could disinherit his recreant daughter; and that must not be. The young Earl was not mercenary. The damsel's prospective wealth, as heir of her rich father, had given her not a particle of extra attraction for him; yet he did not like the idea of having his wife deprived of her just inheritance; and, naturally, he did not care to lose such a broad and grand estate—for this daughter was an only child.

At length the Earl hit upon a plan, and resolved to act upon it. He visited Sir George in his chambers, while the latter held the office of King's Advocate, and appealed to him for assistance.

Now, as man to man, in matters of business, or in any way not involving brotherly love, Sir George held the young Earl in high esteem; and there was no man of his acquaintance whom he would have more readily assisted legally. Furthermore, the advocate had not the remote idea that Bute either loved his daughter, or that he was familiar with her.

"Sir George," said the Earl, when he was ready to open his business, "there is a young lady in this city whom I dearly and devotedly love; and she has confessed her love for me. Her father is wealthy. Now, sir, I care not for the lady's money; yet it would not be pleasant to have her father disinherit her. From this you can judge that the father is opposed to our union. At all events we fear that such is the case. Now, my dear Sir George, I know that you would not hesitate to avouch for my worthiness."

The old man nodded assent very pleasantly.

"And, sir, I think you would be willing to exert your influence in my behalf, if I should marry the lady clandestinely. Your influence would be effectual, I am sure."

And so the Earl went on until he had brought Sir George not only to promise his assistance toward preventing a disinheritance, but so far had the keen old lawyer entered into the spirit of the thing that he advised the Earl, by all means, to go ahead.

"Why," he exclaimed forcibly,
"the man must be blind, or a fool,"

PRISON AS A PUNISHMENT.

We are often inclined to think that our little town is a highly moral and quiet-living spot, because there are no outward signs of a pillikia. Because the surface is one unruffled expanse, we think that the depths below are alike in repose. Yet, no one who has noticed the long strings of prisoners defiling along our streets every morning and evening, will deny that crime of some kind, perhaps trivial or commonplace but still crime, is rampant in our midst.

It is, therefore, a necessity, not only for our rulers but for every true citizen, to consider whether the best means are taken for the suppression and the eradication of this criminal society amongst us. We do not deny that there are laws on our statute books which were promulgated for that purpose, and that these laws are faithfully carried out; but we do say that judging from statistics the number of prisoners is on the increase and that therefore these laws fail, not in the suppression of crime, but in its eradication.

And we lay the blame of this on the kind way in which our prisoners are treated. What deterrence is there in imprisonment to a criminal who knows he will be allowed to go out in the open air every day, that he will not have to work too hard, and that he will get his board and lodging in, perhaps, better style than if he had been an honest man and lived in his own home. He comes along the streets to his work clad, it is true, in a garb which marks his position, but which does not prevent any of his acquaintances stopping him in his walk and giving him the latest news and probably some water melon.

What is wrong in this, is, not the charity of his acquaintances, that is excellent on their part; but the want of a line of demarcation between the two. Apparently they stand on an equality, the prisoner and the free man, the disgraced criminal and the honest citizen. Neither seems to feel any shame or any want of ease in the transaction. It is as though both were free and honest.

And we will never be able to eradicate confirmed criminals from amongst us till something is done in this direction, till public sentiment is aroused both in the breast of the Hawaiian and foreigner and it is felt by all to be an everlasting disgrace to be condemned to prison for a criminal deed.

Let the laws (which, we hear, are on the statute book) be strictly enforced as regards the intercourse of prisoners with free men in the streets. Let the prisoners be made to feel that they isolated from intercourse with honest people till their term of punishment expires.

And we urge our charitably disposed citizens to form a Discharged Prisoners' Aid Society, for the reformation of criminals while in the gaol, and strengthening their new purposes when they get outside. In other countries these societies have done good work and why not here.

The above remarks do not apply to their treatment while within the gaol walls, as they are there subjected to the restraints of discipline, but they apply to the street life, so to speak, of the prisoners.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondence is solicited on the topics of the day, or what may become so. We reserve the right to excise purely personal matter. We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents.—Ed.

EDITOR DAILY BULLETIN:—The editorial of the Daily P. C. Advertiser of to-day is devoted to the subject of a Municipal Government for Honolulu, and it seriously suggests that "a charter constituting a city government might be granted to Honolulu by the King in Council." The worthlessness of the suggestion will be at once perceived by a reference to the Statutes. Section 1442 of the Civil Code reads:

"The Minister of the Interior shall have full power, subject to the provisions and conditions of this chapter, in his discretion, by and with the advice and consent of the King in Privy Council, to grant charters of incorporation, for agricultural, commercial and manufacturing purposes, and for cemetery associations, as well as to charter other incorporations, either aggregate or sole, ecclesiastical or lay, banking and municipal corporations alone excepted, which shall be chartered only by the Legislature." (The italics are mine.)

However, it would not be surprising if the Premier should advise granting a municipal charter in the manner suggested, it would only be parallel to the astuteness displayed in some other counsels of his.

CITIZEN.

Honolulu, August 16, 1882.

The Anjer Head sails to-day at 4 o'clock p. m.

The Board of Health met yesterday. First answer to our question.

The Edward May sails to-morrow with many Chinese passengers for Hongkong.

His Majesty gave a lunch in honor of Gen. Comly yesterday afternoon, at his Waikiki residence. The band enlivened the party with appropriate music.

The great credit sale at Hackfeld's will be resumed to-day at 10 a. m. Yesterday the bidding was brisk and spirited, and judging from the attendance there must be an immense number of Chinese traders in Honolulu. Some of the wealthiest from the other Islands were also present.

The bark Oberon, from Liverpool, is 100 days out to-day. Her last voyage was made in 108 days, and we remember the Captain saying he would try to get in in 100 days next time. So she may be expected any time.

The Appropriation Act is at last published, the total is $3,563,116.86. Now comes the question, how we are going to pay the excess of expenditure over income. Because even if we borrow the money we will owe that amount.

The latest town gossip yesterday was that Mr. Curtis Iaukea would go to Japan on Friday. Rumor even took upon herself greater powers and not only suggested but appointed Mr. Curtis Iaukea's successor in the Foreign Office. Inquiries however, proved that the rumor had no foundation other than idle gossip.

The dust on Fort street yesterday was a frightful annoyance to every one. At times nothing could be seen at a yard's distance. It is high time the Minister of the Interior took some measures to provide water carts and abate the nuisance. People are grumbling so much that they propose a municipal council be established whose business it would be to attend to these things.

The Moi Keiki cleared yesterday at the Custom House for a fishing voyage to Christmas Island. J. C. Cooke, master, and 7 men.

At 12 noon yesterday a sale of the lease of government lands at Kapapala was held. It was knocked down for $160 per annum to P. C. Jones, Esq., as representing the Hawaiian Agricultural Company.

ANOTHER HOUSE ROBBERY.—On Tuesday afternoon some person stole 25 feet of garden hose from No. 1, Wellington Place. It is high time the police got on the track of these petty larcenists, as apparently there is a gang of them about. What they do with hose, however, is a puzzle.

The Suez left San Francisco at 3 p. m. on the 9th.

We call the attention of capitalists, investors, and others to the fact that Messrs. W. O. Smith & Co. announce, for sale, some shares of very valuable plantation stock.

Two more runaways yesterday afternoon. The horses in one of Clark and Co's drays ran away from the steamer wharf up Fort Street, and were not stopped till they passed Hotel Street. They overturned a post at the lower end of Fort Street but did no other damage. A young lady was seated in an express waiting in front of Mellis' when one of the embarking the near approach of the runaways got her out of the vehicle and pulled it on one side, saving her from serious injury, if not death. The horses were pluckily stopped by a young man in the employ of Mr. McIntyre, we believe, who deserves great credit for his presence of mind. Fortunately, a very few carriages were in Fort street at the time, though half an hour previous it was nearly blocked with them. Also, yesterday afternoon, one of Foster & Co.'s coal carts was being unloaded on the wharf and the horses ran away but were soon stopped. We hear the top of the cart was knocked off. A third runaway team, said to be H. R. Macfarlane's, on King street, last night at 7:30.

The tower at the rear of the Hotel is now being shifted to the rear of the kitchen. It is intended to put a 10,000 gallon tank on top to supply water to the upper story. This would not be needed if the water from the well would only rise 6 inches higher.

MR. DAGGETT, the new American Commissioner, arrived by the Suez last night. He takes the place of General Comly.

In coming in last night the stmr. Suez collided with the Anjer Head, and also with the wharf. Some damage was done but in the darkness we could not learn what. She brings dates to 9th inst.

The Daily Bulletin.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1882.

who would reject such an alliance for his daughter—one of the oldest names in the realm; a fair share of wealth, and a coronet. Go ahead, my lord, and I will sustain you if I can."

And the Earl went ahead. That very evening he arranged with the lady, and on the following day they were privately married.

In the evening Sir George missed his daughter. He had just inquired for her, when a door was opened, and she and the Earl of Bute entered, hand in hand, and advanced straight to his chair and went down on their knees.

Not a word of explanation was needed. The old advocate caught his breath, changed from a death-like paleness to a furious flush half-a-dozen times, and finally gave in.

"Sir George, henceforth I shall take great pleasure in sustaining my wife's father," said the Earl.

A hot response was upon the parent's lips, but he swallowed it, and gradually a sense of the absurdity of the situation possessed him, and anon he burst into a hearty laugh, and the erring children were forgiven.

To Our Harbor Authorities.

Regarding an important experiment in electric lighting, which has been made in Table Bay, the Cape Times of Monday, 24th April, says:—"On Saturday evening the harbor was for the first time illuminated by the electric light, and those who had opportunity of seeing the docks under the brilliant and novel display had no difficulty in appreciating the great improvement that will be effected when the new system of lighting is fully introduced. The Harbor Board have decided to have a month's trial of the light, and if the result proves satisfactory there can be little doubt as to the system being permanently maintained, as even the preliminary experiment on Saturday evening clearly showed the advantage of the electric over the gas light. It is several months since the Harbor Board workmen commenced to erect the tall lamp-posts required for giving the light the elevation necessary for throwing the rays over a wide area. Sixteen posts have been erected at various points round the docks, eight of them being twenty-three feet in height and eight eighteen feet. The system of lighting employed is the Brush patent, which is being extensively adopted for outside illumination. Motive power is supplied by a twelve-horse power portable engine, placed in one part of the engine-house of the new graving dock. Here is also placed the dynamo-electric machine—a very large and powerful one—which generates the electric current, and communicates it to the lamps through the insulated wire connecting them. Each of the lamps is provided with four carbons. Only two of these burn at one time, and when they are done the other two are lighted by a very ingenious contrivance, and by this means a continuous light can be maintained for sixteen hours. Everything being ready on Saturday a trial was made before dusk, but of course the light was not properly seen, and it was not continued long. At nine o'clock the current was again turned on, and the gloom of the docks was speedily dispelled by the bright glare of the electric lamps. The experiment lasted an hour and a half, and during that time the light remained wonderfully steady and bright. Of course there was a flickering now and then, but even when the light from the carbons faded slightly there could be no question as to its superiority over its ancient rival, the gas. The gas lamps were kept alight during the experiment, and they had a very "tallow dip" appearance compared with the bright and attractive light which threatens to supersede them. It is expected that the electric light will be in full operation on Tuesday night."
