dewish Sect in Gilleta The Slavonic novelist, M. Sacher Masoch, has recently given an interesting lecture on the Jewish sects in Galicia, ir the course of which he described the Karaites, who acknowledge only the first book of Moses as their religious guide. The Karaites base their beliefs on the love of the divine; they are virtuous for virtue's sake Where reason and revelation agree, they say, we accept them as two excellent things, but where they disagree we must hold with revelation, for if reason had been sufficient revelations would have been superfluous. The Karaites consider that it is not allowed to discuss the fundamental basis of revelation. Another of their precepts is, "If you cannot do that which you would like to do you must be willing to do what you can." The Karaites pray in Hebrew, with bent heads. In the east they never light a fire, and in Galicia, where the climate is more rigorous, they let Christians light it for them. The sect numbers 40,000 in Galicia. One peculiarity by which they are distinguished from all other Jews is that they consider commerce in goods which they themselves have not produced to be illicit, for which reason they are nearly all agriculturists or stewards. Until lately they were exempt from military service, but at present they are employed in the ambulances. No Karaite has been condemned in any law court in Poland for the last four centuries. - Kan-

A Frenchman who has known Gen. Boulanger for a long time says there is something effeminate in him; overstrung N. B.-On and after May 15th, MISS CLARK will have charge of nerves, unequal temper, vanity and amiability. Whenever he chooses he is a perfect soldier. Often he is cold, absentminded, swinging his pince-nez like a censer. The forehead is low, but vaulted like that of a thinker, his head is small and his face exactly like that of a bird of prey. His beard, which is lighter round his mouth, and his hooked nose confirm the impression. He looks like a vulture, with his veiled gray eyes, but not like an eagle who soars toward the sun. His thin, long hands are adorned with jeweled rings. And when the war begins? Then Boulanger will mount his horse, leave the white scarf of the war minister to somebody else, and call out, as Gambetta did before him, "The general for whom thou art waiting am I."-Home Journal.

A Frugal New Englander.

A laughable story is told at the expense of a Boston gentleman, who came with a party of excursionists to the coast. When the Bostonian had been duly dusted, and all traces of travel carefully removed from his immaculate broadcloth and shining oeaver, he turned to the affable porter with a benign smile, and vouchsafed: "Well I suppose you want something for your trouble," and, drawing out his portly wallet, he took therefrom two bright new pennies, and, with the air of a man who was doing rather more than was expected of him, or the occasion demanded, presented them to the porter. A look of puszled astonishment overspread the feature of the African, as nothing smaller than the five cent nickel circulates here; but as soon as he regained speech he passed them back with the remark: "We has no use for them here, sah!" "Oh," replied the frugal New Englander, "keep them, keep them, you may go east some time."-San Francisco Cor. Jamestown Journal.

Seeing a Ghost.

Mr. Ballou tells a funny story of Father Taylor, who was for so many years the popular preacher to the seamen in Boston. It is entirely characteristic of the good old man's kindness of heart.

He was once lured to try his hand at he rod, and soon brought up a very litle fish that had been tempted by his bait. He took the small creature carefully from the hook, gazed at it a moment, and then cast it back into the water. with this advice:

"My little friend, go and tell your ecother that you have seen a ghost!"-Youth's Companion.

THURSDAY, : AUGUST 1, 1889.

THE riot, or insurrection as it may be more properly termed, which commenced on Tuesday morning, terminated before dark, as stated yesterday, by the unconditional surrender of the principal leaders, Wilcox and Boyd, who are chiefly responsible for it and for the damage resulting therefrom. These mis- dent soldiers and volunteers could guided young men were adopted as the wards of the nation, under the power at their back is an unconquer-Gibson regime, sent to Italy, and able menace to destructive insurrecgiven as good an education in mili- tions when duly called upon by the tary science and tactics as it was constituted authorities and the law possible to obtain under the tutilage abiding residents. of the best instructors of the Italian government, which generously ad- what unaccountable that the large mitted them to the privileges of police force of the city were taken native born Italian youths. which can be inflicted.

The most gratifying fact connected with the disturbance is this, that it was subdued by the ordinary force of the Government, without calling in assistance from the naval vessel in port, and in the short space of twelve hours after the public announcement of its commencement. The Government relies for its protection and that of the people on the Household troops, the four rifle companies and such volunteers as may offer their services. These numbered perhaps 400, and proved amply sufficient to quell the outbreak. The household troops were on duty at the barracks, in the palace building, and at the King's boat house, where he was staying. Those in the palace under Major Parker stood nobly at their post, and de serve some special recognition for their unyielding bravery, when pit ted against their own countrymen.

The work of the few sharpshooters stationed in the Opera House which overlooked the palace grounds and the four pieces of cannon planted in front, will demonstrate the value of this arm of military force in silencing the battery as it did, driving off the rebels from their work of loading and firing the cannon. Had it not been for these few men at the outset, the artillery used by the rebels might have destroyed the Opera House, Government buildings and other buildings within their range. Unfortunately they had an ample supply of amunition to have kept them at work for several days, if they had had the men and provisions to keep up the struggle.

Many blamed the Government for not "rushing things" just as soon as the insurrection broke out. Some would have proclaimed martial law, others would have issued proclamations calling all citizens to arms. Instead of this, it relied on its own forces, and preferred to move cautiously and thus ensure success in every movement, as was the case. No blunder nor mistake was made that we are aware of; though greater precau tions might and should have been taken before the outbreak.

Peace has been secured by the legitmate authority, but this peace can only be permanently maintained by promptly executing justice on the leading offenders, and perhaps pardoning the dupes. If the law is not strong enough to secure their conviction and punishment, then some other means must be resorted to, for these conspiritors cannot be permitted to go free and resume their seditious tactics, under any circumstances whatever. The peace of Hawaii demands justice in this case. It is hinted that no Hawaiian jury will convict Wilcox and Boyd. If they fail to do it, some punishment will be meted out to them.

Before closing some notice should be taken of the two native papers, the Elele and Oiaio, which have been urging the rioters on to make demands, and to demand changes which they have no right to do, uttering falsehoods and irritating statements which have culminated in this recent outbreak. We have simply to say to the conductors of these journals that there is a point his return to his home he would beyond which it is not safe to proceed, and it will be wise to heed this advice. The peace of Hawaii Must AND SHALL BE PRESERVED, and all attempts to instigate popular insurrections must be put a stop to. "peaceably if it can be, forcibly if it

WHERE WERE THE POLICE!

Yesterday morning business in Honolulu resumed its usual course; and the safety and quiet of the city which were disturbed so much by it open to every maritime nation of the globe and let us see what they the events of Tuesday, have been maintained by resident soldiers without foreign aid. This fact should be a warning to insurrectionists. The utter impossibility of an unpopular rebellion being successful on these islands, was on Tuesday illustrated in the plainest manner. Had the rebel force been a thousand strong instead of a hundred, a similar result would most certainly have happened, although the causualties might have. been more serious. Even if the resihave been worsted, the foreign naval

On the other hand, it is someduct shows them to be utterly unfit | they did not know that an organ-serving only of the severest penalty on for sometime previous, and that the intention of the leader or leaders was to do what they did on Tuesday morning last? We do not think the police could have been ignorant that a movement of this kind was in progress, and some explanation is needed from those in charge of the Honolulu constab ulary, to satisfy the public upon this important particular.

The fact was that the city was wholly taken by surprise; a lawless band of armed men marched through some streets of Honolulu unopposed, and the alarm was given from the telephone offices only after the insurrectionists had taken possession of the Palace grounds. The public generally were aware that such a movement had been or was meditated; but the carrying out of the movement never entered the head of the average citizen and all went to their beds on Monday night in blissful ignorance that an insurrection of a dangerous nature would take place in the city before sunrise. Why all this ignorance, and who is to blame for it?

Every one will acknowledge that the residents of Honolulu should be safe from the risks of these sur prises, but are they safe? That there could be perfect safety under a properly organized police force, there is not the slightest doubt; but is the present police able to render that safety; and, if so, why was it not done previous to Tuesday morning?

It is not our wish to cast reflections upon the police; but our duty as journalists compels us to formulate questions which have arisen in the public mind, and which ought to be answered by those who are responsible for acts and omissions of the guardians of the peace of this

THE YACHT RACE.

The recent performances of the Valkyrie, the Earl of Dunraven's new yacht, will not warrant him, it is said in sending her across the Atlantic to compete with our American yachts for the America's cup. The Valkyrie hardly holds her own with English yachts which are known to be no match for the Volunteer and Puritan and others of the American flyers, so it would be sheer folly to pit her against them in the hope of carrying the cup across the Atlantic.

All that can be said is that the America's cup will remain in the hands of its present possessors for at least a year more; but there will be a general feeling of regret that there is to be no international contest this year, that is, if Dunraven withdraws his challenge, as it is probable he will do. When he sold his coal mine and devoted the proceeds to building and equipping a yacht, it was sincerely hoped that we had found a foeman worthy of our steel, and the Earl of Dunraven, who is well-known in the United States and Canada, was applauded for his liberality and devotion to the sport of yachting. There will be a universal feeling of sorrow that the Valkyrie has not come up to the anticipations of her owner, for the love of fair play and a genuine contest is as deeply implanted in Americans as in Englishmen, and we should have been more than glad to see the Valkyrie entered for the America's cup against one of our own yachts.

Last winter there was considerable talk about an Australian designer who was in the United States for the purpose of studying American models of yachts, and it was intimated, if not directly asserted, that on build a yacht to be entered for the America's cup. Since that time, however, we do not recollect having heard anything more of the matter, and it is not probable that Australia will come into the contest this year.

ceived except from the Valkyrie, and if that be withdrawn the yacht race will go by default for this year.

It would not be a bad scheme to get up an international regatta in the widest sense of the word. Throw can do in the way of building and sailing yachts. Sweden and Norway used to build very fast vessels and the French are coming to take very much more interest in yachting than in former years, so there might be arranged an international

UNRELIABILITY OF CABLEGRAMS.

Cablegrams received from the other side of dividing oceans and seas, are attended with considerable expense; and, in order to make them worth sending, exaggerations and colorings are often given to these dispatches that render them unreliable, although eagerly read. Especially is this the case with cablegrams sent to Australasia, and the following are samples received by the progressive colonists of the Greater Britain on the south side of the equator:

The difficulty between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States of America, with reference to the action taken by the former to conserve her interests in the north-western waters | On on the Alaskan side of the Behring sea, has been amicably settled.

There is great excitement in British Columbia owing to the decision arrived at by England to protect the sealers. Torpedo boats are being fitted to protect the harbour of Victoria, Vancouver

The Irish residents in San Francisco, are agitating for the establishment of an Irish Republic in California. A body of troops put a stop to the proposed prize fight between J. L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrane in America. The wave which swept down the Conemaugh Valley and overwhelmed Johnstown is described as being 50ft. high rushing along with awful force and carry ing all before it. To add still further to the exaggeration and unreliability of many cablegrams received by our cousins of Australasia, the newspaper comments are sometimes similar to the following clipping from the Fiji

The mail brings us intelligence of fearful floods in America by which 25,000 victims have lost their lives, property is destroyed to the value of eight millions sterling, and 15,000 unfortunates among the survivors are left perfectly destitute. And, we are told at the same time of a hurricane at Hongkong which has suddenly sent 10,000 of our species to their final account.

We omitted the name of Dr. Kimball in our report of Tuesday's riot, where the services of the medical gentlemen are mentioned. We are now informed that all the wounded were under Dr. Kimball's care, but that he deputized others and Beatine, Miss Mahon, Princess to perform a portion of the work.

> In our "By Authority" column is a notice of government land to be sold on Beretania street, Honolulu; and another notice of government land to be leased at Manoa, of 186 acres area. Both these sales will take place to-day at 12 noon in front of the Government Buildings.

Some people are considering whether the Wilcox riot was the "afterglow" of the Celestial phenomena recently seen in the heavens; while others think that the insane demonstration had some connection with lunar disturbancesaffected probably by too close proximity of the planet Mars.

A Cabinet meeting was held yester-day, at which it is expected matters connected with Tuesday's riot were considered. Our reporter found the Mar-shal silent yesterday afternoon when questions were put relative to the Palace arrests, and our representative was referred to the Attorney General. Queer.

Casualties of Tuesday's Riot.

The following particulars of casualties consequent upon Tuesday's riot, did not reach us in time for mention in yesterday's issue:

The Queen's bungalow suffered most; and it is terribly shattered by the dynamite bombs, especially in the roof and second story. The furniture, of this portion of the building, some of which was rare and valuable, was utterly ruined; and the whole structure was most destructively shaken and riddled

The Opera House is very much Rev. J. H. Mahoe and | damaged in the roof, and also portions of the interior. Grapnel shells burst in the upper portions of the structure tearing and slashing everything in their way. One grapnel shell passed through the front door, and flew over the auditory to the King's box, behind which it exploded with destructive effect. Four of the front windows had several panes of glass smashed in each, and the front wall and door are pitted and riddled second story is devoted to machines in with the effects of shot. Several of repose, locomotives and others. Beams these marks will be difficult involve and the internal damage will involve many expensive repairs. The injuries to the Palace and Government buildings are comparatively slight. Several of the Palace windows were broken by bullets; and, what is called the "Chambers" room of the Supreme Court, on the second story, had also one of its windows broken by bullets from Kawaiahao church steeple. The marks rolling bridges. These rolling bridges, of two of these missles have made a striking appearance on the wall; and, until they are filled up, stare the Court in the face when important issues are under its consideration.

Several grapnel shells fell in the lower part of the city and inflicted damage to these transmit motion from the center of private dwellings and other buildings. An inquest is in progress on the bodies leates an increase. Up to that the wounded are progressing favor of those killed in the riot, and we learn

A report reached us late last night that Robert Boyd had died of his wounds; but we have had no confirmation, and hardly believe it. Later we learn that this story has no foundation; but on the contrary, Boyd is improving.

THE AMERICAN EXHIBIT AT PARIS.

Eddison's Wonderful Inventions-Machinery Hall.

The American department of the exposition, although incomplete, is called the most interesting, the most curious section in this great fair.

Congress appropriated $250,000, but Americans were not enthusiastic, and, until after the Presidential election, there had been few requests for space in the department devoted to the United States. We have now, in spite of the apathy displayed, 1200 exhibitors. hibits, and we occupy in all about 100,000 square feet of space. The United States Government has every reason to be proud of the work, as far as it goes; in machinery and agriculture, America is in advance of other nations; in electrical inventions, jewels, gold and silver smiths' work, cut glass, pottery, etc., no nation can surpass ours. It is said also that America has, next to France, the best display of fine art. It is very difficult to write in detail of the American section at the present time, because the catalogues are not ready, and the objects exhibited are not classified.

Above a window is a bust of the great inventor, and on each side French and American flags, composed of colored incandescent globes. Perhaps the most wonderful feature is 20,000 incandescent lamp bulbs. One sees the illustrated history of Edison's telegraphic and telephonic inventions, a huge dynamo, an incandescent bulb illuminating a series of designs, showing graphs, electrical underground wires, graphophones, etc.

The other electrical sections are very interesting—the Bell telephones, the Western Electrical Company's exhibit, Gray's telotographe; Abdank's collection, containing a complete publication of what has been written on electricity, etc. Professor Thomson, among other curiosities, exhibits a ring of massive copper seven inches in diameter, supported in the air by the repulsion of invisible magnets.

The American industrial section is very simple in aspect, decorated only with the arms of each State. In the center, around a pavilion containing valuable ores, are ranged the four greatest exhibits-the show of plated ware, the display of crystal and porcelain of most exquisite design, the exhibit of jewelry, with the $400,000 diamond necklace, which is the observed of all observers, and the display of a firm which exhibits a solid silver centenary vase forty-five inches high, weighing 120 pounds and valued at $25,000. The enamels and wonderfully worked articles in silver that surround this vase are greatly admired.

In the educational department what impresses one are the photographs of schools and universities.

In the agricultural department America has no rival. The corn palace, built entirely of Indian corn, serves as a restaurant, where is offered to the public corn cooked in every possible manner. The agricultural implements intended to make labor easy for man and beast, such as mowers, reapers and thrashing machines, are curious to the European Machinery Hall is a master-piece of modern mechanical art, and in its style astonishing as the Eiffel Tower. The Vendome Column would be at ease under this gigantic scaffolding, and an army of 30,000 men with 12,000 or 15,000 horses would there find abundant room for a comfortable bivouac.

The scaffolding is formed of articulated iron arches, with hinges as large as a man's body. Each arch weighs 400,000 pounds, and because of the articulation each arch swings freely. In the center of Machinery Hall four galleries, about ninety feet in length, are reserved for machines in motion. A gallery in the second story is devoted to machines in for transmission of power are in transpierced metal supported by cast iron pillars. Beneath these beams are metal supports, through which pass iron beams bearing pulleys; from these pulleys, by means of belts, the machines receive their power. The iron pillars are at a distance of thirty-five feet, one from the other, and on the iron beams circulate two kinds of wheeled vehicles, called moved by electricity, carry visitors from one end of the gallery to the other. Thus twenty-five feet above the surface one can have a good view of the entire mechanical installation. The motor machines are thirty-two in number, and a belfry composed of four columns. In the centre of the palace is an electrical lighthouse, but so numerous are the wonderful machines the hall was not considered large enough and various inventions are scattered about in other departments .- [Corr. SHILOH'S BEGINNING.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE FEDERALS IN CAMP.

A Quiet Evening and a Glorious Dawn -At 5:30 in the Morning-A Sharp Musketry Fire-The Battle Begun-Surprised.

Early on Saturday, April 5, 1862, we passed Savannah, the headquarters of the general commanding; at noon we made fast to Pittsburg Landing. About an hour afterward we landed, or rather marched up the steep bluff, and encamped 200 feet south of the landing. Four companies, with our ammunition and tents, were sent forward to the advance of the whole army, extreme left of Pentiss' division. I was appointed immediately "officer of the day" of the remaining six. This was our first day upon the soil of Tennessee.

Soon as we had selected our "quarters" upon the smooth grass, with the fair blue sky overhead, we set about getting something to eat and drink. The night soon fell and, as its shades began to creep from the east, the merry soldiers near the landing departed for their respective regiments; the stove was closed; the sutlers under canvas let down "the flies" and covered up their truck; the men riding horses trotted into the budding woods; the shades grew nearer, but all was quiet, save an occasional shot to the southwest. This, and only this, broke the stillness of the early evening of the eve of the battle of Shiloh.

Not a sound of battle upon the air, no vision of to-morrow's strife mingled with the first slumbers of the Union thousands as they gathered their blankets around them and sank into sweet, soothing sleep on the night of the 5th of April. 1862. In the morning the rustling of harness, the patter of the mules, indicated that those useful, hardy animals were refreshed; yet the darkness was still in-

A GLORIOUS DAWN. A loud whinny from a big gray horse belonging to one of our field officers startled me. I jumped up, and there beyond the Tennessee I beheld as glorious a dawn as ever mortal eyes beheld. In a few moments the sun rose over the dusky landscape and rent the network of night. Birds twittered and sang in the recesses of the ash and the elms; the camp was awakening-ah! Billy Burke climbs into a wagon a little distance to the south-ward, and with his polished copper bugle sounds the reveille as it was never heard before in the army of the Tennessee. The last notes of the bugle had scarcely rolled away in grand reverberations when the thud of a dozen axes were heard preparing fuel for the matutinal meal. Six hundred men making their toilet al fresco was a curious scene. It was the first time they had to sleep upon the ground and "dress" in public. Alas! it was the last night and first of more than a score of these jocund hearts, who kept bantering each other upon the mirror he was using, the kind of soap he had and the scent of the oil he put into his hair.

It was fully 5:30 o'clock in the morning when we set out toward our camp. We didn't know where it lay. We didn't ask many questions about it as we briskly marched alongt hrough Hurlbut's division. The boys were making at fresco toillettes; the camp kettles hang over a thousand fires and the "veterage" grounded to the fires and the "veterans" crowded to the end of their "company streets" and fraternally gave the new-comers a warm welcome by clapping of hands, and the usual inquiry: "What regiment?" "What state?" "Bully for you!" etc. But no preparation to repel an enemy. We had barely cleared the line of tents when a sharp musketry fire was heard on our right, "Skirmishing," was the remark. A laugh followed. We continued onward; we saw a number of tents through the trees to our right; more on our left. Filing abruptly from the road to the left we entered a pretty piece of un-dulating land and soon after halted upon the ridge of an orchard, at the base of which a bright stream ran gurgling to

THE BATTLE BEGUN. Again the muskets rang out. The general's horse reared and almost threw the rider, who slightly changed color as he firmly held the reins and guided the frightened animal, which immediately dashed into the thicket on the right, followed by the aide-de-camp. He was Ben Prentiss, of Quincy, Ills.

The general had hardly gone 100 yards when the "skirmishing" and the

when the "skirmishing" and the "pick it firing" burst into a terrific par of cannon. We were about to p. in our tents, when from the woods on the other side of the stream a volley came over our heads which sounded like the whirring of partridge. We heard no shot in our immediate front. We saw no one. To fall in, take our muskets and retire by the left flank down a ravine and ascend into an opening was the work of a few moments.

The battle of Shiloh had begun. About 2 o'clock p. m., after a long tramp in the sun, we moved forward and halted. Ambulances passed us with their freight of human suffering, and blood oozing from the floor joints. Forward and halt again for the order. Still the guns thundered and the wounded were borne past us pale and powerless, but tenderly cared for by all. Forward once more. Halt and lie dow. A sudden volley on our left found its way to our front. In an instant we were on our feet. The first man to fall was the color-bearer, but he rallied on the instant, while the blood from his forehead tinged the flag he held with an iron grip. He was carried to the rear after being relieved. In front and flank the enemy poured a brisk fire into our ranks which cut us down by the score. It was Breckenridge's brigade against a regiment. A battery on our right opened on the enemy, but he steadily advanced while we sullenly retired, badly hammered it is true, with the red flag at a Louisiana regiment in advance, whose bearer seemed to have a charmed life. Near this place and about this time of the day Gen. Albert Sidney Johnson fell mortally wounded. We were the last troops brought into line of battle on the lest on the first day.—Ex-Consul Terrell in Philadelphia Times.

Gantions Concerning Bathing.

How often is it necessary to bathe? This depends both on the individual and the nature of the bath. Some people, who perspire recely, find it necessary to bothe daily others require a bath only three or four times a week. Taken indiscriminately the Turkish and Russian baths are unsafe, and may in certain conlitions be positively dangerous. In ses of heart disease, a tendency to by or congestion of the brain Rusa or rokish baths are exceedingly unstated that pis class of bat h should never be indulged in without the advice of a physician. The tub bath stuits most of us, but the temperature in every case should be high enough to prevent chills, and this re ark applies also to sponge baths, which are the safest, and may, with advantage, be taken every a lay .-Phila foliali imes.

As there is no SIMPLE TEST by which adulterated soaps can be detected, the SAFE COURSE is to purchase only those soaps which bear the name of a long-established and reliable house. SINCE 1806 Colgate & Co. have made only the best of articles; as a result, their toilet soaps and perfumes are sold in ALL PARTS OF THE CIVILIZED WORLD, and are everywhere acknowledged to be the STANDARD for purity and excellence. The toilet soap and handkerchief perfume held in highest esteem by the American public is CASHMERE BOUQUET, and over 30 first awards testify that they are "unequaled in quality and perfume."
