PLAGUE IS AT BRISBANE

DISEASE BROKE OUT AFRESH
OCTOBER 10.

Vessel Had One Passenger for This Port—Was Subjected to Only a Nominal Quarantine.

Plague has broken out at Brisbane again. This news was brought by the steamship Moana which arrived from Sydney and Brisbane last night. The vessel was sighted shortly before 11 o'clock but did not come alongside the wharf until this morning.

For a time it was thought that the vessel would be subjected to the most rigorous inspection and fumigation, but after Dr. Cofer learned all of the facts connected with the reported outbreak of the plague, he decided to take only the necessary precautions.

The vessel left Sydney October 8 and arrived at Brisbane October 10. On that day, a man was taken sick and died the same day the evidence being that it was plague. There had been no plague in Brisbane for two months previous, and the place had been declared a free port by the quarantine officials. The victim was sick but a few hours, however, and unless the indications fail, the plague is still in existence in Brisbane. Further details of the case were not obtained by the ship's officers.

When the vessel was boarded this morning, it was found that she had one passenger for this port. He had come from Brisbane, the infected plague port. In addition, there were 204 tons of coal, 50 cases of canned butter, 256 cases of spirits, 7 packages effects and 3 packages merchandise to be landed here. The vessel had a clean bill of health, except for the plague case at Brisbane.

Dr. Cofer decided to send the vessel to the quarantine wharf and maintain a nominal quarantine over her. The cabin passengers and ship's cabin officers were permitted to land but the steerage passengers and ship's crew were required to remain aboard. It was decided not to land the coal but the other freight was landed and will be fumigated.

The vessel had an uneventful trip from the Colonies. Among her passengers are the three daughters of Captain M. Carey, her commander, who are en route to Vancouver from where they will go to Oakland to attend the marriage of their sister Miss Violet Carey to Daniel Callaghan, a brother of Arthur Callaghan who was engaged in coffee planting on Hawaii some years ago. The wedding will occur November 12.

Mr. and Mrs. James Riel are also passengers for Vancouver. He is a partner with Harry Lee in the World's Entertainment Company which was here some months ago and played such a successful engagement at the Hawaiian Opera House. He is going home to secure more talent. His company is said to be doing a very profitable business in the Colonies.

The Moana will take a number of passengers from this port, among them being George F. Denton. The vessel will sail for Victoria and Vancouver at 4 p. m. this afternoon.

SCHOOLS AT OAHU.

Superintendent of Public Instruction left by this morning's train to look into the matter of school accommodations at Oahu Plantation. The school building there has been erected and there are 180 pupils already and 30 more, Porto Ricans, clamoring to come in. The legislature made no appropriation for building an additional school building, but the superintendent has gone down to see what arrangements, if any can be made to meet the necessities of the case.

THE HOPPER RESIDENCE.

The directors of the proposed men's hotel have offered to sell the Hopper residence to the Commissioners of Education to be moved to the adjoining property of the Pohukaina school for a school house. The offer will be considered but it is not thought likely that it will be accepted. The projectors of the men's hotel desire to replace the Hopper residence with a building designed and built specially for their purposes.

INCOME TAX APPEAL PAU

LEGALITY OF TAX WILL NOT BE APPEALED TO WASHINGTON.

Islands Will Bring in Nearly Three Quarters of a Million of Which Oahu Contributes Two-Thirds.

The probabilities are that the Income tax will not be appealed to the higher courts at Washington, but that local millionaires, bondholders and merchants will pay the two per cent tax imposed by the last legislature without further dispute.

The Merchants' Association which is interested in the matter will hold a meeting the latter part of this week, at which it will determine whether the matter will be carried further or not. There are a number of the members extremely anxious to have the affair decided one way or the other and there are also several members of both the association and the Chamber of Commerce who have already decided that the best way is to drop the matter.

The Merchants' Association has gone so deeply into the matter that it is now in the position where some decisive step must be taken one way or another and, from the general feeling exhibited, the legality of the tax will not be questioned by an appeal to the supreme court.

There will be a goodly sum brought into the exchequer from the two per cent imposed when everything is collected. The total amount for the whole islands will aggregate in the neighborhood of about three quarters of a million of which Oahu will donate two thirds of the amount or in the close to half a million dollars.

The amount at first seems somewhat large but when calculation is made of the large plantations that have to pay a tax not only upon their net income but also on their surplus, the remembrance that there are forty plantations all of which will contribute at a low estimate an average of $2500, the aggregate sum seems feasible.

All taxes are payable by the fifteenth of November subject to a ten per cent addition to the taxable amount and annual interest at nine per cent.

MONEY FOR HOSPITALS

BOARD OF HEALTH AND THE APPROPRIATIONS.

Sum Set Aside by the Legislature.

Lihue Hospital Makes Application for Her Share.

At the Board of Health meeting this afternoon the question of the payment of hospital subsidies as provided for by the last legislature will come up, on an application of Lihue hospital for its share. The Board will make a ruling on the terms upon which it will turn over the money, and the decision in this case will be a precedent to be followed in other cases, the most important being that of the Queen's hospital. The appropriation for Lihue was $3,000 for two years.

The Legislature set aside $20,000 a year, or $40,000 for the fiscal period of its appropriations, for the Queen's hospital. So far there has been no move from the hospital management to get the money, but it is understood that an application will soon be made.

The Board will probably adopt a rule requiring all hospitals that receive government help to make monthly financial statements and monthly reports as to patients. On this condition Lihue may get the money asked for, and it is not thought that any of the hospital managements will object to these conditions. Under an opinion rendered by Attorney General Dole, however, the hospitals accepting such subsidies are required to receive all patients who may need their assistance, and to treat those who are unable to pay without charging. They are also required to charge for those who can pay, under their charter.

The reports which the Board of Health will ask for from the hospitals will be of some value in a statistical way. The Board, if the new system goes into effect, will be regularly in receipt of official reports from the Queen's hospital and others, as to cases treated.

NATIVE FAUNA COMPLETE

WORK OF NATURALIST PERKINS
NEARLY COMPLETED.

Many Curious Facts About Hawaiian Bugology—Bishop Museum Loses Valuable Assistance.

R. L. C. Perkins, the naturalist, who in connection with the Bishop Museum and an English scientific exploration society, has for a period of eleven years assiduously studied the life and habits and obtained specimens of the Hawaiian fauna, has now practically completed his work and will permanently leave the islands, returning to England, by the end of the year.

"Of course there is plenty of work yet to be done," said Mr. Perkins this morning, "thirty years more could be spent in the life study of all the various insects and much as yet to be learned in the breeding of the specimens."

"There are over a thousand varieties of beetles for example that I have located and there are many lowland varieties that will never be known as lowland vegetation was supplanted by agriculture before this work was taken up. The insects of the islands, like the birds, vary in the various islands and comparatively few of them are identical through the group."

Mr. Perkins' work covered practically everything that flies, walks or creeps on the earth beneath and invades, conchology, as applied to land shells, ornithology and entomology. Only the sea and its inhabitants were left severely alone.

Many curious facts have been deduced from the labors of Mr. Perkins and his associates. The butterflies proper of Hawaii are only some seven or eight in number, but there are plenty of moths nocturnal and diurnal some of them very beautiful in their coloring and markings, some of them unknown to the rest of the world-wide in their habits.

Here too are the only known dragon flies that do not start in life from the water, or of which the larvae are non-aquatic. The big pinus that are deemed so effective among the mosquitoes are all imported and the native dragon flies are slim bodied. Fragile looking things that would have to make three bites at a mosquito. The birds of the islands are decidedly insular in their habits and appearance. The Hawaiian substitutes for woodpeckers have bills that resemble the hammer to their possible utility or manner of use. The land shells are very beautiful in variety, though many of the species have already disappeared.

Nearly all the specimens which are now being taken back by Mr. Perkins are carefully packed for shipment and will be insured for the voyage. After the recent fire Mr. Perkins has a natural fear that his bugs will be destroyed before he can get away with them, and never hears a whistle in the night without a spasm of fear that the work of years is going up in smoke.

The amount of laborious patience and labor in setting out the thousands of insects, many of them much smaller than a pin's head, and of arranging each antenna, wing, case and individual leg in visible order, can hardly be realized by the layman. Many of the smaller beetles have a box like cavity in their chest into which they carefully pack all their means of propulsion before succumbing to the deadly fumes of the cyanide with which they are meticulously killed.

Any one who has noticed the smaller common beetles sheathing their wings in their wing cases can imagine the difficulty of straightening them out with fine brushes and needle. Beetles and other insects always die with their wings twisted and tangled up anyway and by the time they are ready to be dried to brittleness. Whenever possible Mr. Perkins has secured sets of the various kinds, sometimes two or three dozen of each.

Near the end of it. Another long year's work remains in the classification of all the specimens. This work is done not only by Mr. Perkins but by associates in the shape of famous scientists who for sheer love of it undertake the labor, being to them, simply rewarded by a good specimen of the insect classified. Many of the rarer bugs of Hawaii are now represented by single specimens in the hands of private collectors, their whereabouts being however as well known as that of a masterpiece of art.

Some of the specimens now going back will remain with the savants, some return to the Bishop Museum and the bulk of them repose for the benefit of posterity in the British Museum. When the work is concluded, it represents thirty years of constant work on the part of Mr. Perkins and will all be summed up in the three or more bulky volumes of the work now being published in sections in London for the Bishop Museum on Fauna Hawaiensis. To the layman the only really interesting parts of the work lie in the beautifully colored plates and the introduction, yet to be written. The rest is dry as dust and severely technical.

There will probably be a successor appointed in course of time by the Bishop Museum to take Mr. Perkins' place, but even then the specimens will have to be sent to the English scientists for determination, the only complete collection being in England. Mr. Perkins has not yet definitely decided whether he will carry on this work when he returns to England as a scientist while an exacting, is not a remunerative mistress.

MAXWELL TO THE FORE

NOW POLITICALLY PROMINENT IN AUSTRALIA.

Sugar Planters of Queensland Put Him Forward in Their Fight Against Prohibition of Kanaka Labor.

Dr. Walter Maxwell has sprung into prominence lately in Australia outside of his scientific attainments. It is brought about by the introduction of a bill in the Commonwealth parliament prohibiting the importation of Polynesian or other laborers except white men and this bill is spoken of by the Australian papers as the "Kanaka" laborer's bill and seems to have created considerable consternation in the sugar industry of Queensland where much of the cane field labor is done by Polynesians. The Australian papers are full of the subject and the Sydney Morning Herald gives prominence to the following dispatch from Brisbane.

BRISBANE, October 6.—On receiving the text of the Kanaka Bill the Premier immediately sent a letter to Dr. Maxwell asking an expression of that gentleman's opinion on its probable effects. Dr. Maxwell in reply states: "Concerning the measure with its present provisions, if it passes I am persuaded it will paralyze the industry. The effect will be instant. A very large proportion of cane growers are depending upon the banks and other financial houses to aid them in producing and harvesting their crops and in the permanent development of the farms. This aid will stop in many cases at once. My relations with the growers on the one hand, and with money institutions who sought my opinions, cause me to be painfully well aware of the situation and of what must happen if the threatened action is taken. A further effect will be that the industry must stop from want of labor to make the harvest of the future crops if the time provisions of the bill are enforced. There is not in the country, I believe, and cannot be got within the specified time. The sheer economic result that must follow is patent. Putting the matter briefly, assuming it to be enacted that the Pacific Islander must go, then in those districts which may survive the effects of such labor, 10 years is the minimum time within which it will be found possible to adjust the industry to the proposed new conditions and provide labor for its continuance. Concerning the great importance of the sugar industry and the probable future effect of such legislation upon it, I do not require to reply by mere verbal opinion. The Sugar Experiment Stations Act, which constituted my present advisory relation to your government and to the sugar industry, compelled me to formulate a view, while my opinion justly justifies the future of the sugar industry in view of impending legislation. I had to reply that my experience in other countries, with my observation in this country, and the history of labor experiment in the State, forced me to conclude that if the industry should be made wholly dependent upon white labor, then sugar growing north of Mackay must die out. It will not be instant but I consider it certain. It must be primarily understood that cane growing is totally different from growing potatoes or maize. If labor is short and the farmer cannot produce 2000 bushels of maize then he can grow 1000 bushels, and find a market. But sugar is a manufactured article, and must be made where the cane is grown. If the mill requires 30,000 tons of cane to make it possible to open up and pay running expenses and only 5000 tons are grown, then the mill stopped just as effectively as though not a stick of cane is grown. I consider it certain that cane will not be grown solely by white labor north of Mackay to keep the mills in existence. In a more formal and reserved sense, this view is expressed in my statement made to the Federal Premier. In reply to the late Secretary of Agriculture's further urgent inquiry, 'But what shall we do with our cane farmers? We cannot leave them to starve on the ground like sheep in the West when drought overtakes them.' I stated that any enactment which involved closing up the northern canefields if passed for other than economic reasons should in common equity provide compensation to the mill owners and by such means I considered it possible to remove the farmers to more southern districts, where cane-growing may be rendered possible by white labor aided by scientific appliances."

In concluding Dr. Maxwell says: "I shall, however, have to urge the most careful consideration of the government in the interest of cane farmers. If legislation should render cane growing impracticable we have 2500 of these men the backbone of their districts, and they must not be lost sight of, yet subjects which are matters of opinion and divisions in Parliaments are questions of life and death to those men in the fields."

ITS 75TH ANNIVERSARY

TO BE CELEBRATED BY HOUSE OF C. BREWER & CO.

A Long Career of Successful Mercantile Operations Comprehending Half the World in Its Scope.

The officers of C. Brewer & Company will be the scene of a very unusual celebration Wednesday afternoon, October 30. This day will mark the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding.

Invitations have been issued for this event and no doubt these will be very generally accepted. It is not often in any part of the world that a mercantile house is able to celebrate the completion of three-quarters of a century of continuous activity. This is especially true in so new a part of the world as this. The house of C. Brewer & Company is almost completely contemporaneous with the history of civilization in Hawaii.

The invitations are very modest in their wording. They read: "You are invited to attend the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of C. Brewer & Company, at its offices, Queen street, on Wednesday afternoon, October thirtieth, at two o'clock, to hear a historical paper prepared by Mr. P. C. Jones."

This paper, it is understood, is the result of much painstaking research and will be most interesting and valuable. The House of C. Brewer & Co. is undoubtedly the oldest business enterprise in the territory. James Hunnewell an officer of the brig Bordeaux Packet on December 8, 1817 agreed with Alexander Blanchard the master to remain in Honolulu, where they were, after the sale of the vessel, and to dispose of the balance of her cargo and invest and forward the proceeds. After remaining here for some time and doing business in connection with a number of men, in 1824, he established a business in Honolulu. He bought premises that were occupied for over forty years by the firm that grew from the business he began. In the fall of 1830 Hunnewell left for his home in Massachusetts, leaving the Honolulu concern in charge of Henry A. Pierce, who had been a clerk under him.

Business at first was small and was done by barter. Sandal wood was the chief native product and was almost the currency of the country. But Honolulu's progress began at the twentieth, and the business soon began to enlarge.

After Hunnewell's return in November, 1830, he turned the business he had established over to Pierce. The latter formed a partnership with Thomas Hinkley. The latter, however, was compelled by ill health to leave Honolulu, and he died before he reached home.

Captain Charles Brewer was the next member of the firm. He had made a number of visits to Honolulu and had settled in the town. In 1835 he went with Pierce, and for eight years the business in Honolulu was among Hunnewell's business houses. Pierce retired in 1843 and the house then for the first time took the name of C. Brewer and Company. Captain Brewer joined with the firm of Marshall and John Sisson, a partnership being formed which expired in 1847, when the business was taken over by a firm known as S. H. Williams & Co. The members were Stephen H. Williams, James F. B. Marshall, and William Baker, Jr., and later F. B. Snow as well. In 1850 Snow took charge of the business and in 1857 he left for New York and B. W. Field was in charge.

Charles Brewer, Jr., a nephew of Captain Charles Brewer, was the real successor to the business. In September, 1859 Sherman Peck joined him and the firm name again became C. Brewer & Co., a name that has continued up to today. Brewer retired in the summer of 1861, and in October of the same year Charles H. Lunt joined Mr. Peck. They were joined by H. A. P. Carter, in the summer of '62, Lunt retiring in May, '63.

The members of the firm so far mentioned are all dead now, but the firm has grown steadily and has retained the name of Brewer, James Hunnewell, the founder, died in Charleston, Mass., May 2, 1869, at the age of 75. He came from one of the oldest of American families, the Hunnewells having lived on Massachusetts ground for over two centuries.

James Hunnewell was well known and highly respected in the islands and was regarded as one of the best friends the natives had among the whites. After his death King Kamehameha Fifth said of him to his son: "The name of the late James Hunnewell was early associated with the commercial interests of these islands, and his long and useful life was marked by such constant goodwill to my kingdom, that I shall always cherish his memory with sincere regard. Although he was only removed in the fulness of time, I deeply sympathize with you in the loss of such a parent, but I congratulate you in the inheritance of such an honored name."

LEGISLATORS SUMMONED

GRAND JURY FINISHING ITS WORK.

Sends for Members of the Legislature.
Transition Period Cases Have Been Gone Into.

After a session of four weeks the Territorial Grand Jury this morning began closing up its work preparatory to making a lengthy report to Judge Gear. The jurors have been in session an unusually long time and have made a large number of investigations. For actual work done, the jury will probably hold the record here for a long time.

This morning the Grand Jury sent for several members of the legislature, and for a copy of proceedings and the rumor-mongers of the judiciary building soon had sensational reports in circulation. It was reported that the jurors had taken up the legislative bribery matter, which a former Grand Jury spent a long time over. Representative Fred W. Beckley, Senator W. C. Achi and Representative Jonah Kumalae were summoned as witnesses. As the former Grand Jury made a very exhaustive inquiry into the bribery matter, it is not thought that this is the occasion of the present summoning of legislators.

The Grand Jury has gone into the old transition period cases, and will report to Judge Gear on all the cases of men confined in Oahu jail who were convicted of infamous crimes without indictment by a Grand Jury, without a unanimous verdict of twelve jurors. There were many such cases, and the jury has had a lot of work with them. Some of the prisoners have been indicated over again, and their cases will crowd the criminal calendar of the circuit court.

The report of the jury will probably be presented to Judge Gear tomorrow morning.

The federal grand jury is also nearly through its work. It held no meeting today, but will assemble again tomorrow morning, and on Friday morning will probably be ready to make a final report to Judge Esteo. This jury has had very few cases to investigate.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.

Edward Williams, a negro, was taken to the police station this morning as the result of the shooting of a Chinese laundryman named Sing Kau at the Wo Hop shop 744 Richard street. The negro went inside the laundry to try and sell a revolver to Sing Kau. The weapon was loaded. Williams began to show the Chinese, the mechanism of the weapon, and handled the pistol so carelessly that the weapon was discharged. The bullet entered the left arm of the Chinese, near the elbow, making a slight flesh wound. The police are not inclined to consider the case serious and regard it as an accident. The Chinese was sent to the Queen's Hospital.

PLUMBERS' CASE POSTPONED.

The case of C. H. Brown against Davidson, et al., known as the plumbers' trust case, was postponed this morning by Judge Esteo until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

THE BEST METHOD.

The best method of protection yet devised is life insurance. Every man, rich or poor, owes it to himself, his creditors, his family some measure of indemnity against loss, in proper proportion to his means, and commensurate with his responsibilities. Life insurance is a necessity, not a luxury. As a charge against income it is quite as legitimate as taxes or fire insurance. Take out a policy in the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society, A. What Next?

There is a point beyond which the tired brain and worn-out nerves seem to lose all power of recuperation, and when that point is reached the only end is insanity and death. If you are nervous, restless, irritable of temper, have no appetite for food and cannot sleep at night; if you are despondent, melancholy, have no ambition for work and no ability to concentrate your thoughts, ask yourself that question, "What next?" There is one thing you can do that will bring the answer you so much desire. If you will begin at once with Dr. Miles' Nervine it will give you the rest, the quiet, the sweet, refreshing sleep that leads to life renewed and health restored.

"For six months I was so nervous that I could not sleep in bed, and would sometimes have to be carried out of doors to get fresh air. Then my body would get numb and perspiration would drip from every pore. I would have spells of blues and melancholy, frequently breaking out with sobs and crying. The best doctors here could give me no relief, and seeing an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Nervine I decided to try it. After using it two days I went to bed and slept all night—the first time in nearly a year. Then a load seemed to fall from my shoulders and from that day I continued to get strong until my health was completely restored." Mrs. L. B. MILLARD, North Clarendon, Pa.

CHINESE COURT TO PEKING

LEAVES HONOLULU ON OCTOBER SIXTH.

Is Traveling in Great State and Creating the Impression of a Triumphant Re-entry of the Capital.

YOKOHAMA, October 12.—A telegram from Shanghai says that Hsien Intelligence reports the Court as on the verge of setting out for Peking, the day of departure from Hsien being that originally fixed, namely, the 6th of October. The same telegram adds that Viceroy Chang Chih-tung has been absolved from the necessity of going out to meet the Court in transit. This intelligence it will be observed does not show that the Court has actually set out, but it does indicate that the intention of setting out has not undergone any of the changes recently recounted by rumor. Every one interested in the peace of the East must hope that the news will prove well founded, for the Court's return to Peking would be a trustworthy indication of sincere intention to carry out all China's newly made engagements and to re-establish friendly relations with the outer world. It is difficult to think that an European Court would take such a step under similar circumstances. With this metropolitan province and his metropolis virtually in the hands of foreign forces, a Sovereign might be excused if he decided to take up his residence elsewhere. The Chinese court will deserve great credit if it returns to Peking, and will show a degree of confidence in foreign good faith very largely in excess of any confidence reposed in the Chinese government by foreigners.

YOKOHAMA, October 12.—The Chinese court did actually leave Hsien on the 6th instant, "as advertised." There is to be a sojourn of some days at Kailong. Perhaps it may be extended into several months, but that is not likely. We can only repeat that the court deserves great credit. It is giving a signal proof of its confidence in the bona fides of the powers.

Concerning the departure of the court the Asahi has a telegram which says that the Emperor and Empress mother set out in the forenoon, and were followed in the afternoon by the Empress Dowager, the Prince Imperial and the Ministers of State. The Imperial party is traveling in great state, large sums being lavished en route. Apparently that means that a triumphal character is being given to the court's progress. Such, at least, is the light in which a great display will naturally be interpreted by the Chinese under the circumstances. On the other hand, we can easily conceive that their majesties are unwilling to create the impression of returning to their capital in a manner suggesting humiliation or defeat.

RUMMAGE SALE.

The Ladies' Aid Society propose a novelty for their forthcoming fair. This is what they say about it: "The popularity and success of rummage sales in the States have determined the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church to have a rummage booth at their fair to be held November 21, on Hanaia lawn. Nearly every person has some articles which are of no use to him but may be of great service to somebody else. Such things will constitute the furnishing of the rummage booth. We are persons having such articles kindly donate them to the fair, and confer a favor upon the ladies by leaving them at the Methodist parsonage, corner of Miller and Beretania streets, or by informing Mrs. G. L. Pearson concerning them. Books, pictures, dishes, lamps, articles of furniture or of bric-a-brac will be thankfully received."

CAPTAIN DRAPER.

The Army and Navy Journal says: "Captain Herbert L. Draper, U. S. M. C., whose death from heart disease at Hong Kong, China, we briefly noted last week, was conspicuous for service in 1893, at the time of the trouble in Hawaii, which resulted in the overthrow of Queen Liliuokalani and the establishment of an American protectorate by Minister Stevens and Captain Witte, of the cruiser Boston. Captain (then lieutenant) Draper was at that time attached to the Boston, and commanded the marines who were sent ashore at Honolulu to preserve order and protect American interests. He met the situation with commendable nerve and tact. When the war with Spain broke out he was ordered south as adjutant of Colonel Huntington's battalion and took part in the occupation and defense of Guantanamo, being personally the first to raise the Stars and Stripes on Cuban soil. For bravery at Guantanamo he was brevetted captain, to which rank he was later advanced in the regular order. About three years ago Captain Draper was sent to the Philippines, where he took an active and most creditable part in the campaign. His first post was at Subig, and he soon cleared that section of insurgents, later serving efficiently as collector of customs for the district. Captain Draper leaves a widow, who had been with him for the last year, and three children."

THE FAILINGS OF EDUCATION.

The methods of public school instruction, as applied in New York City, do not always meet the approbation of the parents of the pupils, as was evidenced the other day when a German woman of commanding figure strode into the school and approaching the principal demanded: "What is a lobster?" "The principal politely explained that a lobster was a species of shell fish. "Well, how many legs has it—a lobster?" "The number of legs was stated. "Well, I work me for a hurry, and if your teacher cannot find better things than to ask my boy Jakey how many legs has it, a lobster, and make him come home to bodder his fadder mit questions, 'What it is, a lobster?' it is paid peenness."—Youth's Companion.

CAME NEAR DYING.

"For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely. I went to sleep and did not awake for eight hours. On awakening a few hours ago I felt so gratified that the first work I do on going to the office is to write to the manufacturers of this remedy and offer them my grateful thanks and say, 'God bless you and the splendid medicine you make.'" This remedy is for sale by all dealers, Benson, Smith & Co., general agents, Hawaiian Islands.

A REVIVAL.

Now and again the question of female suffrage comes up here, and the fact that the President when Governor of New York pronounced himself in favor of woman suffrage, may once again make the issue a live one. Where woman suffrage has been tried it has had a great measure of success. Why should it not? Compare individual with individual and you will find in many women the intellectual superiors of the self-styled Lords of Creation. The vote of intelligent, cultured women, and their example in voting would carry influence far reaching in its effects.

Because we have female suffrage there is no need for the quiet and motherly woman to rush to the political platform and rant alongside the raucous sisterhood of the Carrie Nation or Gougat type. But give woman her vote and she will record it intelligently, quietly and with unerring instinct as to what is right and pure and good. Much of the opposition to the introduction of female suffrage comes from the professional politician. True womanhood dislikes the professional politician and is ranged against him. Even now, without a vote, womanhood is a power which the professional politician has to reckon with; and to take into consideration, but with a female vote the average ward grafter would find himself in very deep waters indeed.

After all one can never fully understand the logic of excluding woman from a political voice. Our remote ancestors of the Teutonic race called the matrons of the tribe into their councils, and when they followed their advice they were generally successful. In many of our modern homes it is the wife who is the guiding star and the adviser of the husband, whose brilliant successes may be the theme of comment.

Woman suffrage would be a good campaign issue here. Years ago it was a very live issue and was strongly favored by elements which are now in opposition. One of the counters to woman suffrage was that though a large number of highly intelligent voters would be obtained, there would be a still greater mass of ignorant ones added. But this is no argument, as any one can learn by going over the list of male voters. Suffrage means ignorance in the mass, and brains and determination to wield that mass in a valuable power.

The Woman's Journal of Boston, Mass., has this to say upon the President's attitude upon this question:

"Roosevelt is the first President of the United States since Abraham Lincoln who had expressed himself publicly in favor of woman-suffrage before attaining the Presidency. Cleveland proved himself favorable to it by actions rather than words, as he signed bills giving women partial suffrage in New York when he was governor of that State. Hayes favored it in his quiet way, and helped the senior editor of The Woman's Journal to get a woman's rights resolution through the National Republican convention of 1872. Garfield recognized its growing importance. He said: 'Laugh as we may, put it aside as a jest if we will, keep it out of Congress or political campaigns, until the woman question is rising on our horizon larger than the size of a man's hand; and some solution, ere long, that question must find.' Some other Presidents were believed to be more or less friendly to it, but Roosevelt and Lincoln have been the only ones to put themselves conspicuously on record.

"It is still fresh in memory what consternation Roosevelt excited among conservatives by his recommendation of woman-suffrage in his message to the legislature when governor of New York. And Lincoln said, in a letter to the electors of Sangamon County, Ill., published in the Sangamon County Journal, June 13, 1836: 'I go for all sharing the privileges of the Government who assist in bearing its burdens; consequently I go for admitting all whites to the right of suffrage, who pay taxes or bear arms, by no means excluding females.'"

FORESTS.

The question of forestry is vital to the interests of the Territory of Hawaii. Unfortunately there is practically no one in the Territory who understands the subject. There are some few men who have a smattering of so-called knowledge, and there are a few who pretend to have knowledge and have none, but the thoroughly trained forester as he is known in Europe, in India and in the United States, is an unknown quantity in the Territory of Hawaii. We have had experts upon fish, and they may do us some good, though one is apt to think that the men who go out to catch the fish and present them practically at our tables are perhaps more to be commended than the experts as far as our particular stomachs are concerned.

We have had other "experts" in different lines, but what we really need is some practical man who can have power enough to regulate our forests. One way or another our forests keep dwindling. Any man or woman who has lived here a third or so of a century, and whose work has been outside of the capital city, must recognize that the forests of the islands have been retreating backward and upward.

That there are various causes which bring about the destruction of forests all can agree. That at one time there was too much forest land is another point upon which most of us can agree, but that the wholesale destruction of forests can go along as it is now occurring, no one, but a man who does not know what he is talking about can agree in. The forests are the life blood of the Territory and we are only now beginning to realize the terrible harm we have done our islands by not taking care of our forests.

One can never contemplate these beautiful Hawaiian islands without thinking how great a wrong has been done to them through forest denudation, and it is not the foreigner who is entirely to blame. It is the old Hawaiian chief who must bear some of the burden of reprobation. The magnificent forests of Waianae, forests which stretched onto the Lihuehuan plains were practically destroyed by the Oahu chiefs in their greed to find sandal wood, which they desired to turn into so-called civilized "luxuries"—gin, champagne, silk, velvet and gems.

With the example of St. Helena before us we should take the greatest care of our forests. The recuperative power of our soil is very great, and with a little care much can be done to reinvigorate our forest land. We have a specimen of it in the Makiki forest, where the trees are flourishing in fine shape. It is not so many years ago that it was planted out, and now there is a dense growth. This gives us an example of what can be done. At Lihue on Kauai a somewhat similar experiment was tried, and met with signal success. At the latter place a German forester was engaged who laid out the forest upon scientific plans. The Makiki forest was not laid out on highly scientific plans, but it accomplished its object as an experiment and an ocular demonstration.

The success of the Nuuanu reserve is another pointer as to what can be done with care. Before the Hillebrand Ranch rights were acquired by the government the upper part of the valley was pretty well denuded, and even the thick and apparently impenetrable "Hau" was becoming trampled out. A decade or so of perfect peace with no cattle to trouble the growing underbrush, or interfere with the young trees, has produced a wild tangle of jungle which greatly helps out our water supply.

The cattle men have strenuously denied that the cattle destroy the forests, but the object lesson is before us in many places. Trees do not live for ever, they die like everything else on this globe, but young trees should take the place of the old ones. It is true that cattle may not actually kill the old or adult trees, which die when their allotted time comes, but they very effectually kill off and trample down the young trees which form the recuperative element of the forest. Thousands of acres of such lands can be shown on Hawaii, the old trees dead, and no young trees or undergrowth whatever. Land Commissioner Boyd does not know how to class such land.

Good forest cultivation and preservation on definite and scientific lines we must have. Perhaps the next Legislature may give attention to this subject. The last Legislature was far too much engaged in politics to care whether forests increased or decreased, or whether there were any forests at all.

The appointment of E. R. Hendry as Federal Marshal puts a man in the office who is thoroughly conversant with his duties, and who has strong affiliations with the Territory. It is a satisfactory appointment and further shows the desire upon the part of the administration to take Island men for Island offices.

Instances of hoodlumism in athletics do occur, just as lapses from strict morals occur in the church, or unprofessional conduct among doctors or lawyers. Such instances can be met by rigid exclusion of the offenders from all participation in any future games. A rigid adherence to a rule of this kind is of the very highest value in keeping up the standard of sport.

The flurry over the "brutal" captains and officers is quieting down. It went very well for a time, but the shipping interests of the United States are too important and too powerful to allow such a picnic to go on. Nothing has been said on the surface, but a good deal has been intimated quietly, and a very decided halt has been called. The number of prosecutions for cruelty on the high seas will dwindle down to nothing within a few months. Excess of zeal is sometimes worse than no zeal at all.

Now some one again is going to try distilling rum. Many years ago there used to be brave arguments upon whether we should distill rum or not. Formidable arrays of figures were brought forward to show that if the plantations could only distill rum, the rum would pay all the running expenses and the sugar would be clear profit. Finally a bill authorizing distillation was passed; and jubilation were its supporters, while its opponents wept bitter tears. The result was comical. Only one plantation tried the experiment, and it did not pay any profits. The plantation went into the hands of other owners shortly after. The law remained, but no one made use of it. But just think what an amount of rhetoric was lost and wasted over it. The test of cash returns is the best test after all.

Tax Collector Preparing for a Rush of Payments—Will Collecting Income Tax Returns.

Beginning with November 1 the office of the tax collector will be kept open at night until nine o'clock, to enable those who are not able to visit the office during the day hours, to pay their taxes. Tax Collector Pratt says he will try the experiment for a week and if the night business warrants it, he will keep open every night up to November 15, when taxes become delinquent.

Taxes are coming in slowly now, but a heavy rush is expected at the end. A large part of the work being done in the office is still in connection with the income tax returns, which are rapidly being looked. There is much interest in the amount of the tax, but Pratt says that it is impossible to make an estimate at this time. The government needs every cent it can get and department heads are anxious to know how much they can depend on from the new source of revenue.

Pratt is constantly securing more returns. "There are very many returns to be secured yet," said the collector.
"There is no doubt that a large number of people who ought to have made their returns neglected to do so. We are out after these now and are finding more every day. They are not principally stragglers, but principally other people.
We investigate their sources of income and assess them accordingly."

The collector also stated that he would accept treasury warrants at any time for taxes. Holders of such warrants who are discounting them have no need to do so, for Pratt will take them at face value, though the treasurer is not paying them yet.

Taxes are delinquent on November 15, after which ten per cent is added.

THE BANANA GAMBLERS

CHINESE TEMPLE OF FORTUNE AT WAIKIKI.

Well Protected and Carefully Hidden Dens Where Orientals are Believed of Their Habit Between Bars.

At the mouth of Manoa valley, where the fertile silt in the mountains widens to the sea, waves in the ever present breeze an array of ornate standards, the ragged banners of acres of banana plantations.

The land, whose seaward limit is the Waikiki road, from the Bishop's switch to the Waikiki limit of the Hawaiian Hotel annex, is leased from the owners by thrifty Chinese, several of whom own a little but form the enterprise and live their lives in the wealthy fellow countrymen.

From the road the banana stretch appears in regular parallel lines far back towards the valley. A bird's-eye view would show a maze of strips of land between which lie stagnant ponds of water half choked with green reeds and masses, into which the honey and golden carp, fat and sluggish, bore their way. These are the mosquito breeding grounds of the city. Thousands of winging larvae occupy every square foot of the semi-liquid. At night the land is humming with their song, an American would be tortured beyond self control in a few moments.
These strips of land are joined by finny bridges, narrow pieces of planking while along the edges overhanging the wide leaves runs a little pathway.
Here and there in the heart of the plantation appears a broader, firmer road leading between the low avenues.
These lead to sheds, dwellings, barns where live the stock, the coolies and their few draught animals.

The whole place is a mighty swamp out of which rise the ridges of dirt where grow the bananas. Everywhere lie shells, rounded pebbles, that show that not so long ago the sea washed in and Hawaiian warriors landed their cannoes for a foray up wild Manoa.

Here and there a firmer clump of land grass grown, supports a few coconut trees with maybe a broader foliaged growth overshadowing a stack of rice straw or dried banana withies made from the outer skin of the cellular, fleshy atoms.

Here, in a community of their own, live the men who cultivate the place.
There are no women, no children. For domestic or more unalloyed delights the coolies travel on the cars to their countrymen in town four miles away.
Here they live as apart from the world as if they were on the banks of the Pai-ho. All day long they work in the green twilight of the translucent leaves where the weighted branches hang low with the green candleabra of the ripening fruit. Clad only in blue denim overalls, their naked skins glisten with per-piration in the intense tropical heat of the long avenues. The wind flutters the leafy banners overhead, the sunlight is reflected back from the shining leaves, but along the paths no sunshine falls or breezes rustle.

Work ended, rice and vegetables eaten the coolies in languid enjoyment light up their pipes and in senuous intoxication dream a cycle of a day. On advantage have they gleaned from modern civilization, they claim a Christian holiday and Sundays loaf and gamble all day long. Generations of mental inactivity have not diminished the physical passions of John Chinaman. He is an ardent gambler as the world proceeds. Nothing stops him, police regulations or the raids of the officers themselves. For the latter they are always prepared.

In town the defenses take the shape of trapdoors, sliding panels, many exits and guarded entrances. In the banana gardens the precautions are even better.
Chinaman come from town on one car and often return after a bad quarter of an hour on the next, despoiled of all their earnings, sometimes ten sometimes a hundred dollars, for they are blooded gamblers and despise a small stake. Gambling is in their blood as the love of the lottery is second nature to the Italian peasant.

There is not a household that has two or three Chinese servants living on the premises, but the quarters nightly bear the click of the dominoes in the all enthralling che fa.

Police officers have attempted to raid the banana gamblers but in vain. The game goes on first in one, then in another of the sheds hidden among the leaves. The main entrance opposite the Bishop's switch is always open and unsuspicious. Peaceful horses, a multitude of ducks, imperturbable Chinamen smoking or working, who talk among themselves and snarl the word that a stranger is within the gates in an ordinary tone of voice. The many paths leading into the interior of the swamp are a maze unreasonable by day and full of pitfalls by night.

Everywhere the stems and leaves close the vistas on either side. As you travel further the little plank bridges are missing, carried off by scouts, there are ditches to jump or fall into the dark.

Somewhere in the center of the maze lies a slimy scummy pond, deep enough to dampen the ardor of the most enthusiastic detective. In the middle, fifteen feet from shore, rises a wooden shack with one window light reflected in the water. The click of the dominoes and the babble of Oriental tongues comes from the interior. A plank lowered drawbridge fashion admits the eager gamblers or is lowered to allow the unfortunate speculator to depart.
Long before the stranger arrives however, the light is out, the draw bridge up the players scattered through the shadowy groves, cursing the foreign devil silently but fluently, and waiting to hear them reported safely off the premises before they resume their worship at the Temple of Fortune. A balloon box, with a parachute descent is apparently the only practical means of immunity has made them bolder of late and last Sunday a domino game was in full blast only a hundred yards from the main entrance. The building is a new shed built over a ditch and boasts one window and two doors. A face inspects you as you come up and there is merely a friendly game in progress until you pass.

Some day their boldness will result in carelessness and there will be a long array of gamblers arraigned before Judge Wilcox while the bananas hang temporarily untended at Waikiki.

THE WISCONSIN ARRIVES

100 HATTESSHIP ANCHORED OFF HARBOR.

Admiral Casey Aboard—Is En Route to Pago Pago—May Come Inside Harbor To Coal.

The handsome new battleship Wisconsin arrived this morning from Bre-merston and went to anchor off the harbor. This is the first visit of the commander to this port and is, in fact, the first she has made away from the immediate vicinity of the Pacific coast. She has been in commission but comparatively a short time, having been finally completed in February of this year. Captain Heister is her commander.

The Wisconsin is now the flagship of the Pacific squadron. Admiral Casey having recently transferred his headquarters from the Iowa to the newer battleship. He is now aboard the Wisconsin. The Wisconsin is en route to Pago Pago, where Admiral Casey is to officially on the court martial, which will inquire into the charges of intoxication passed against Commander Ties who was recently, was the governance of Tutuila.

The Wisconsin is one of the newest of United States battleships and is regarded as one of the best. She is certainly one of the speediest and on her trial trip made chase on to 18 knots. She is 355 feet in length, 32 feet beam, draft 25 feet, displacement 11,500 tons, gross tonnage 6,500 tons and is fitted with twin screws and vertical expansion engines.
She has not the superimposed turret like the Kentucky, her turrets being 15 inch barbette turrets. She has 15 guns in her battery, which is similar to the usual battery of the seagoing battleships. She was launched at the Union Iron Works in San Francisco, November 25, 1898.

Just how long the vessel will remain in port has not yet been determined.
She has given orders for 800 tons of coal. It may be finally decided to bring her inside the harbor and coal her.
Coaling will be rather difficult outside, whereas it can be accomplished in much less time and with considerably less trouble if she comes inside. The battleship Oregon did not come inside last May but the Wisconsin does not drift as much water as did the more famous vessel. Captain Heister and Captain Pond visited the vessel after she came to anchor and went out to her this afternoon to consult with Captain Heister as to whether he would not come inside the harbor.

The vessel will remain here at least three or four days coaling but it is hardly likely that a public reception will be held aboard the vessel. It is promptly. Her officers are: Captain George C. Heister, commanding; Lieut.
Commander John B. Milton, Executive Officer; Henry T. Mayo, Lieut. Commander; George W. McKelvey, Lieut.
Henry A. Wilcox, Lieut. Philip Williams, Lieut. Charles T. Vonckling, Lieut.

ing Warrant Machinist George M. Heinen, row.

After going to Pago Pago the vessel will proceed to Valparaiso and from there steam up along the South American coast.

We say that "gray hair is starved it feeds the hair. Just keep that in

MORMONS INVADE JAPAN

MIRADO'S EMPIRE STIRRED UP OVER IT.

Both the Vernacular and The Foreign Press Devote a Great Deal of Attention to the Matter.

YOKOHAMA, October 12.—The advent of Apostle Heber Grant, missionary of the Mormon church to Japan, with the intention of proselyting the Mikado's kingdom has stirred up Japan as few things in a religious way ever have.
Both the vernacular and the foreign press are filled with articles concerning the matter.

The following taken from the Japan Mail give an idea of the feeling aroused by the matter.
A petition has been presented to the authorities against allowing the Mormons to propagate their creed in Japan.
The petitioners are the three principal societies for the reform of customs in regard to women, namely, the Nipon Fujin Kyofu-kai, the Tokyo Fujin Kyofukai, and the Yokohama Fujin Kyofukai. They set forth various reasons. In the first place they allege that when the Mormons publicly announce abandonment of the doctrine of plural marriage they are guided merely by political considerations, and that in fact they continue to practise the doctrine though they profess to have eschewed it. In the second place, the petitioners charge the Mormons with holding an extreme form of the principle that the end justifies the means, and say that the history of the propagation of the creed is disfigured by shocking deeds. In the third place, the Mormon organization is declared to be subversive of submission to legally constituted authorities, for at their head are elders and a prophet whose commands all members of the sect are bound to obey implicitly. In the fourth place, their method is to remove to their own settlement at Utah all proselytes who are prevented by the laws of the country in which they live from yielding unqualified obedience to the Elders and the Prophet. The petitioners claim that any one of these four reasons is sufficient to condemn the Mormons, and that the cumulative effect of the four is overwhelming. They add that the authorities are understood to be taking steps for the control of evil sects at home, and that no hesitation should be shown in refusing admission to an evil sect from abroad. They conclude with the proverb wakaba no uchi ni tsunazareba ono wo mochiuru, kui aran (unless the sapling be plucked up the axe will have to be used at last).

The Mormons have amended their application and presented it again to the Prefectural Authorities of Kanagawa.
Their first application was in English and it failed in some other respects to comply with the requirements of law.
Its rejection, therefore, was not on the merits of the case but merely because of technicalities. Christianity is becoming a many fashioned institution in this country. For our own part we trust that technical blunders may long in-pede the inception of Mormon propagandism.

Some amusement has been caused in Tokyo journalistic circles by a rumor as to the contents of the Mormons' application for permission to propagate their creed in Japan. They ask leave to erect tabernacles, to preach by the way-side and to visit at least one hundred houses daily. The "at least" (hiakken ijo) is a quaint exhibition of zealous energy. It appears that the Latter Day Saints intend to be very busy, which goes to the credit of their earnestness, but the Citizens of Tokyo and other towns may be excused if they look forward with some trepidation to this vehement invasion of their domiciles. A Saint with a contract on hand to visit at least a hundred houses daily, and preach or pray in each one of them, must be as smart as a gale of wind and will not be much more welcome.

Writing on the attempt to establish a Mormon mission in this country and the comments of the Press thereon, the Rikugo Zasshi says that the resolute manner in which newspapers and magazines have protested against giving special religious sanction to polygamy is a very hopeful sign. Although it is true that in the past concubinage has been almost universally practiced in Japan, there is no doubt that at the present time there is a very strong feeling against it among influential people, and consequently Mormonism is regarded with aversion. But apart from the question of polygamy, the Rikugo thinks that it will be a subject for deep regret if the Mormon varieties already prevailing in this country. Of all the sects that profess Christianity in any way it seems to the Rikugo to be the least worthy of respect or patronage. The legends and the pretended Divine revelation on which it founds its claims for credence are childish and hardly merit serious criticism. The sect in any respect resembles the Tenrikyo here.
But while we say this, continues the Ri-kugo, we must confess that few of us Japanese know what is the real teaching of the modern Mormon missionary.
It is not to be supposed that he would come here simply to preach polygamy and propagate superstition. It is impossible for the authorities to decide on any action till they have taken steps to ascertain what are the leading tenets of the sect. And as regards the public, why are not measures adopted to elicit from the Mormon missionaries themselves some statement of their views and doctrines? Why not hold a large meeting for this purpose in the Kanda Seinen Kaikan? asks the Rikugo.

A SELFISH, IMMORAL CAT.
The new Carlyle matter in the October Critic consists mainly of several letters written by Mrs. Carlyle to a housemaid who lived with her in the middle sixties. The maid, now an elderly matron brought the letters to the Carlyle House on Cheyne row, Chelsea, a few months ago, and chatted a little concerning the Carlyles and their friends. There is an amusing account by Mrs. Carlyle of Thomas' reprehensible feeding of a cat while he ate his meals,—he would give her "bits of meat and dribbles of milk to the ruination of the carpets and hearth-rugs." She couldn't cure him, and "the dining room carpet was so old and ugly that it wasn't worth rows with one's husband about!" But there was a new cloth, and it must be "protected against the cat abuse!"—
"So what I wish is that you would shut up the creature when Mr. C. has breakfast, or dinner, or tea. And if he remarks on her absence, say it was my express desire. He has no idea what a selfish, immoral improper beast she is, nor what mischief she does to the carpets."—Springfield Republican.

WERE TRULY MAN AND WIFE

AFTER 15 YEARS' SEPARATION THEY FIGHT.

The Wife Finds the Husband and as He Didn't Seem Pleased She Got Mad—Both Go to Jail.

PORTLAND (Or.), October 14.—John H. Moore and his wife, Louise, have just been strangely reunited in this city after fifteen years' separation, during the latter part of which each believed the other dead. Stranger still, the couple, as soon as they became positive of each other's identity, began to fight it, and both were taken to jail. It was an Enoch Arden story, with a difference.
The Moores were married in the East twenty years ago. Mrs. Moore had been a widow and was possessed of considerable property. She set Moore up in business and he failed. She started him again with the same result.
Then Moore fled his home and came West. He prospered for a time and, having saved some money, decided to return to his family. He wrote to a friend at his old home to inquire if his wife was still there and received a reply that she had married and left the place, having heard that her husband was dead. Moore decided then not to try to find her. Later he heard she was dead and then he began to go downward. Finally he drifted into the saloon business in Portland.

Mrs. Moore was not dead, however.
She had waited long for her husband after he disappeared and finally concluded that he was dead. Then she set out to earn a living for herself and her son. She drifted West and finally brought up at Portland. Passing along a street she saw on the door of a saloon the name of the husband who left her fifteen years ago and whom she believed to be dead. Moved by an impulse she entered, and there stood her husband behind the bar. Mrs. Moore made herself known at once, and Moore was greatly surprised, but not apparently delighted. This angered Mrs.
Moore, and she attacked him. He defended himself by knocking her down, and a fight followed which only ended when both participants were taken to jail.

Get Strong

Food alone will not always make one strong. In this climate the system needs a tonic, something to give vim, vigor and life. There's more truth than poetry about "that tired feeling." About ten out of every ten have it. It's simply nature craving for something it doesn't get from ordinary food.

Good malt extracts are highly recommended by physicians for a run-down condition. Much depends, however, whether you get the real grain extract. Why then take chances when you can get the best? That's

Royal Malt Extract

Brewed from selected barley. Every bottle full of strength-giving nutriment. It's beneficial effects will be felt at once. It will give you vim, energy and restored strength. Insist on getting R-O-Y-A-L and accept none "just as good."

Shirts Sacrificed

News for Men this Week.

The New York shirt manufacturers are already showing their 1902 patterns of shirts. Anomalous as it may seem, these shirts will be worn on the streets of Honolulu before they are seen on Broadway. That's because it's always summer here.

We have ordered our quota of the new shirts and in order to make way for them, we place the balance of the old stock on sale at

35 Cents apiece

Don't make the mistake of thinking that these are inferior shirts,—just because they are cheap. They are regular dollar shirts of fine Madras, solid colors and perfect fit. A dollar does today what it would have taken three to do a few short months ago.

With the negligee shirts we have placed a few fine LAUNDERED WHITE SHIRTS which will go at the same price

35 Cents

As a bait? Well, yes, as an extra inducement to get you men coming in here for your furnishings. These shirts are of "Wachusett" and "Garland" manufacture, with fine 2400 linen bosoms and wristbands, felled seams, reinforced back and front, and with long full dress, or short bosoms. But there are not many of them, so you'll have to step lively, gentlemen, if you would participate in the spoils.
