> About forty members out of the total membership of one hundred and twelve attended the annual meeting of the Hawaiian Historical Association held last night at the University Club, at which a number of papers of decided interest were read and the announcement made of the preparation of some papers of recent historic interest. Among these papers are the original and final drafts of the Constitution of 1894, which were promised by Judge Dole, and others are the original drafts of the abdication address drawn up by Chief Justice Hartwell at the request of a committee headed by Paul Neumann. There are three or four different drafts, the amendments from the original being incorporated at the request of the Queen, to whom they were submitted by Mr. Neumann.

In presenting these papers to the society, Judge Hartwell stated the circumstances under which Mr. Neumann was enabled to discuss the wording of the address with the Queen, who was at that time under arrest. He, the speaker, had called upon President Dole to secure the permission, assuring the President only that in his, Judge Hartwell's, opinion it would be perfectly safe to allow the interview. Other reports of the occurrence have been circulated, but these are the facts," added the Chief Justice.

Minister Declares Internationalization Is Not Wanted---Lisbon Agitated Over Conspirator's Arrest.

(Associated Press Cablegrams.)

PARIS, January 28.—In a debate in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, M. Pichon, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated that France would never permit the internationalization of Morocco.

Recent events in Morocco, particularly the declaring of a holy war by Mulai Hafig, the usurping Sultan of Fez, has brought the question of the policing of that country once more before Europe. At the Algerian conference, during which France and Germany approached an open rupture, it was decided that France and Spain had paramount interests and the right alone to land troops for the preservation of order. The announcement that France intends to insist on this agreement will mean the sending of a stronger French force to Morocco and the practical occupation of that country.

One of the finest ponies ever seen here came down from Kauai on the Hall last Sunday. It is a mare named Princess, and was bred by Charlie Rice of Kauai. She is broken to polo and is said not only to have speed, but to be a crackerjack at the game. There is a misunderstanding between the Chinese Athletic Club and that breezy and instructive vernacular journal the Man Sang Yat Bo, which may or may not result in hatchets.

ALOHAS WILL GIVE CONCERT

On Friday next, January 21, the grand concert and dance given by the members of the Chinese Aloha Club in celebration of the Chinese konohi, will take place at the K. of P. hall on the corner of Beretania avenue and Fort street. This will be on the eve of the Chinese New Year.

The committee in charge of this affair is working hard on the preparations and everything will be in shape when the time comes. John Noble, the natural-born whistler, will be there with one of his whistling solos and several local, singers are also to be heard. Another number on the program is an address to be delivered by tary of Hawaii.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S BIRTHDAY.

Wherever there are German colonies or colonies of Germans, the patriotic praises of Emperor William were heard yesterday. His health was toasted and his achievements sung. He himself has contributed largely to the diffusion of Germanic blood throughout the world, for he has been a great advocate of colonization. During his reign colonization has risen to a major place in

No single estimate of Emperor William has yet become recognized as the accepted one. But no estimate of him which does not recognize in him a man of very high capacity in very many directions, is accepted at all. Years of steady achievement accompanied by an ever increasing popularity among his cwn subjects have wholly dispelled the ideas that found expression at times in the earlier part of his reign, sometimes that he was a charlatan and sometimes that he was a madman,

Forceful to the spectacular, versatile almost to the trivial he may be. But he is spectacular by reason of his forcefulness, and if he takes up matters seemingly trivial, it is because they are included in the grasp of a great mind, and not because his mind is limited by them.

His is a great personality. In qualities of action he is equalled probably by no ruler on earth; in qualities of pervasive influence he is excelled only by his royal uncle, King Edward.

Though we may not all have celebrated his birthday as Germans, we may all take a pride in him as a man of action,

MARTYR'S CROWNS AT A DISCOUNT.

A recent New York dispatch says:

"Determined to devote his life to the care of the lepers in the colony of Molokai, Vincent Mossin arrived in New York from Antwerp this morning. He is 22 years old * * * an athletic, ruddy-faced, jolly young man. He says he expects sooner or later to succumb to the disease, but trusts he will be spared long enough to do some good."

It is quite probable that he said this, and that such was his thought as to his future. But when he arrives here, which will not be for some time according to present plans, he will find little sympathy among his superiors with any such morbidly sentimental forebodings. The Catholic church, which has had upwards of thirty years' of experience in the Molokai Settlement, does not now send men or women to the settlement expecting them to succumb to the disease. It expects them to lead not only pure moral lives, but clean, wholesome physical ones, which it has been found are a comparatively certain guarantee of immunity. Brother Joseph Dutton's quarter of a century in the settlement, the many years that the sisters have lived there in charge of the Bishop Home for girls, the fourteen years that Father Wendelin spent there, and his grief because he was called away to other fields of labor, all tend to discredit the idea that real service at the Leper Settlement is the inevitable road to the inevitable martyrdom from the dread disease.

Much has been learned about leprosy since Father Damien volunteered for the work of the settlement. We do not yet know just how leprosy is communicated. But we do know that it is not readily communicable, and that barring those accidents arising from the obscurity of the method of communication, clean, careful, and wholesome living are almost complete security stituted the organization up to the against the contagion.

The experience of the Board of Health with its employes and agents is and possibly twenty-one. These thirtyin point to the same effect. Its superintendents and its physicians, to say one, in the order in which their name nothing of other employes, have spent many years of usefulness at the settle- are signed to the membership roll, were ment, free from any taint of the disease. Father Damien was undoubtedly a martyr to his faith and his devotion. To him the martyr's crown descended of right. His halo sheds luster on the Catholic church. But the Catholic church looks very much askance at any more martyrdoms of the same sort. Of another of its ministers at the settlement who became a victim of the disease, the church had no peans of praise, nor no martyr's crowns. Isolated from his brethren and from work among the lepers, he accepts at the hands of the order to which he has made his vows, the penumbra of forgetfulness while he lives. The Catholic church expects those it sends to the settlement to go there to live, not to die.

It is one of the hopeful things in regard to the disease, and for its victims and for the settlement, that a more correct view of the disease and of the conditions at the settlement is beginning to prevail.

MONUMENTS AND INSTITUTIONS.

Although it was decided some time ago by the overwhelming concurrence of opinion that the Alice Mackintosh Memorial should take the form of a memorial tower for St. Andrew's Cathedral, the mere discussion of an incident of the progress of the memorial is sufficient to call out a suggestion that the memorial take some other form. In these days that is always the case. The suggestion in this instance is that the memorial should take the form of an endowment for the care of somebody at the Queen's Hospital or the Leahi home. That is the type of benefaction which is usually proposed when a memorial is suggested. The form of the argument always is, that it is wiser to do something that will benefit somebody than to put up a carved stone or build a structure. So far as the argument has any force it is because of the assumption that a statuary or an architectural monument has no utility-does no one any good; and the further assumption of some minds that an eleemosynary memorial-the endowment of some institution for the instruction, relief, to come in large numbers about the or benefit of some particular class of people-will recall the memory of the founder more constantly, and be more permanent than a statuary or architectural monument.

Neither assumption is true. Not only are statuary and architectural monuments of the highest utility, but no monument is so constant a reminder of the person honored, nor, in a world of mutations, so permanent.

C

The essentials of a statuary or architectural monument are Beauty and Truth-the most constant and permanent things on earth-united in art. A statuary or architectural monument which is really a work of art-and none other should be erected-is a blessing and a benefit to the whole community. Its influence is silent, pervasive, constant. The children playing about the foot of a monument that has real artistic worth, unconsciously imbibe its the year the Honolulu organization was artistic and other lessons. The soul of a community blessed with statuary or formed, architectural monuments, is uplifted and made better. What did Greece or Rome give to the world that was of half the value-half the real utility-of their public works of art?

To do good is indeed worthy. By some it has been exalted into a religion. But the essence of doing good is personal service. That Mrs. Mackintosh gave. To pretend to continue the spirit of her good works by setting mere money into the service of any class of the community, however much money may be thus contributed or how perpetual the service may be, is mere mockery. The spirit and personality are not there, and the recipients of the benefits are the members in the days before a paid Monday, February 3rd, neither reminded of, nor grateful to, the individual whose bounty they receive

Nor have such memorials the quality of perpetuity. The conditions of human life are constantly changing, and the records of the world are full of eleemosynary foundations that have long outlived their usefulness. But art was given was comprehended at least embedied in stone, survives the wreck of empires and of institutions, im- as to very many of the Old Guard by mutable, because presenting truth. The pyramids, the monumental and architectural remains of Greece and Rome, the Taj Mahal, the churches and monuments of Europe, these are both the enduring things as well as the beneficent things.

If institutions could take the place of monuments, the statue of John Harvard, at the great institution which bears his name, would be an absurdity. The consensus of thought and opinion which decided on an architectural monument for Mrs. Mackintosh was a well-guilded one, and sought a form of expression both the most fitting and the most enduring. It is to be hoped that no burst of sentimentality will change the determination so wisely reached.

Fifteen years ago, Irving B. Dudley, the United States Ambassador to following statement: "I have used Brazil, whose name figures in the news of fleet festivities, was the police Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for mymagistrate of San Diego. It happened that he had once been tutor in Mark self and family and find it to be one of Hanna's family, so entrance to large politics, when McKinley came to the the best medicines for coughs and colds front, was easy. F. W. Damon opening with a delightful panegyric of the term "Missionary" which he declared would "become the proudest gem in the nomenclature of our island life," gave in a most interesting way how the Y. In introducing Mr. F. J. Lowrey to respond to the toast-'What We Gave,' Toastmaster Davies very gracefully recalled that Mrs. Lowrey had given one afternoon a week for a long time to the juniors of the Y. M. C. A.

At ten o'clock in the morning the Irmgard was in the lead, about three miles ahead, with the Tobey a close second and the Phelps and the Fort George behind. Before the day was over the other three had outstripped the Fort George and she was left behind. The Tobey was sailing beautifully, and, when last seen, had taken the lead from the Irmgard.

Only once after this did the winner of the race see any of the vessels. That R. & L. Co.'s 9:15 a. m. train from was at 10 o'clock on the next morning. There was a heavy haze, and when it lifted for a moment the Phelps was seen about two miles away on the port quarter. From then on it was a case of sailing as fast as possible and not a vessel in sight. When Captain Fullerton arrived here, he expected to find that the Irmgard and Tobey were already in port.

> In speaking of the race yesterday Captain Fullerton did not have very much to say. He was satisfied with what his ship had done, and that was enough. In regard to the trip, he made the following short statement:

"We had fine weather all the way down and made a fairly good trip. Or the first day, with a fair wind, th others started to run away from me but with my own weather a little later on, it was different. If the Phelps had beaten us to Kahului we surely would have seen her, as we were close in, with a southerly wind, and loafed along Maul very near the shore. The fleet is at present routed that way. Mr. Wetmore sees the possbility of the loss of two or more battleships.

Mr. Wetmore declares in his letter that it is significant that the Japanese Ambassador should be recalled just at the moment that the fleet started, and then adds that it would not be in the least surprising when once the fleet gets out of reach of the wireless telegraph was a matrimonial tangle in which an that the Mikado's Charge de Affaires irate mother-in-law from the Coast would serve notice that his Government will not tolerate exclusion legislation, the country becoming inflamed

He Commits Forgery to Clear-Himself of Horse Stealing. .

Joe Everett, a very black and a very bad man, goes to the penitentlary for five years from yesterday under sentence for horse-stealing. It will be more by good luck than by even his to stand a trial also for forgery, growing out of his desperate efforts to prove innocence of the charge under which the jury found him guilty.

The trial of the rogue began yesterday morning before Judge Lindsay. Under an indictment for lareeny in the first degree, the specification was that, on the fourth of December last, Everett stole a bay mare belonging to A. Huggins, of the value of $175. Assistant County Attorney F. W. Milverton appeared for the prosecution, and A. T. Brock, assigned by the court, for the defendant.

Charles Butzke, Wentworth M. Buchanan, Frank Godfrey, Thomas W. Carroll, O. H. Walker, William F. Story, Frank J. Robello, A. W. Van Valkenburg, John H. Jones, James Stuart Sharp, Clifford Kimball and John W. Macdonald were the jury.

Positive evidence of Joe's unlawful acquisition of the animal was connected and conclusive enough. The defense set up by Joe, on the witness stand, was that he bought the horse for $100 from Huggins, paying $85 down and the rest in instalments. He showed what purported to be receipts for these payments, but the body and signature of each were identical in penmanship-a fair style of business chirography at that -- and at a glance were identifiable as the handwriting of Everett when compared with them in a letter he had written on the subject

George Waterhouse, called as an expert in rebuttal, gave his sworn opinion that the receipts were signed by their writer and written by the same hand as was the letter bearing the signature COMMISSION AGENTS of the defendant. Huggins, on the stand, had by direction copied one of the receipts, signature and all, and Mr. Waterhouse testified, direct and cross that it would be impossible for the writer of that exhibit to write the body and signature of the original The signatures of the receipts were misspelled variantly as "Hogans" and 'Hogins.'' They could not stand a moment's comparison with the clear though shaky signature of the old hackman, "A. Huggins," appended to the complaint in the warrant.

> Just before the case was given to the jury, Juror Macdonald asked to have a look at the receipts. Mr. Brock's objection on the ground that they had only been introduced for the purposes of the expert testimony was sustained, but Mr. Milverton's proffer of the accepted by the court, exceptions be- also, and note results.

ing noted. Then the papers went the rounds of the jury box.

the jury briefly, stating at the outset that there could be no reasonable oubt of defendant's guilt. His exdanation of possession of the horse had been absolutely proved false by the evidence in gebuttal. Another false statement by Everett, as fully proved. was that he had asked the Honolulu District Court to permit him to introduce the receipts on his examination there. Prosecutor Brown had testified he said nothing about receipts in the

Mr. Brock opened on the question of degrees, arguing that the animal was not worth $50 and hence its stealing not first degree larceny. He contended undoubted foxiness if Joe does not have that Everett's testimony had not materially been shaken except by Huggins, who was interested in the case and, moreover, was very fond of the old mare. Huggins was represented as being unreliable, further, because five minutes after he wrote the paper in court, when it was shown to him, he could not remember having written it. If defendant was found guilty, Huggins would take the horse away and have the $100 Everett said he paid to him besides.

After an absence of about half an hour the jury returned a verdiet of guilty as charged.

Judge Lindsay roasted the negro to a turn in pronouncing sentence. He said he had no doubt the defendant wrote and signed all of the receipts. His record showed he was not a fit ten years, but made it five with the advice to Everett to leave the country as soon as he got out of prison.

PLAY AT ORPHEUM

"When Her Soul Speaks," produced at the Orpheum last night, is a strong emotional play winch should prove pleasing to a large portion of the theater-goers. It is almost devoid of comedy, but is deep in heart interest and in story, and to those who like the serious play, the problem play, it should appeal in great measure.

The story concerps an miniate of a refuge home, Gertrude Rathburn, sent there by force of circumstance, though entirely innocent of wrongdoing of any kind. Refused honest employment and spurned by all honest people, she has almost despaired of Walalua Agricultural Co. Ltd. to living when the opportunity is offered her to go to South Africa as a nurse during the Boer war. Returning to England, she poses as another girl, in her desire to have the respect of other people, and succeeds in winning general love and admiration. Her deception is eventually exposed, but she has so endeared herself to her friends that she retains the high position she has won.

Much of the action of the play is between Miss Gladys Kingsbury and Miss Florance Plummer, both of whom made the most of their opportunity. their work being as strong as any they have done during the engagement. Mr. Cooley, as David Daingerfield, a young clergyman, displayed his versatility by playing a different role than any he has played here before. Charles Dey got much out of a thankless part. while Miss Nera Rosa was excellent in the role of a philanthropic member of the British nobility. The balance of the characters, while they were many, were of minor importance.

The play is to be repeated tonight. Tomorrow afternoon "When Women played up to and including Thursday continuing for the balance of the week, Goo Shee $50.000 Suit Settled Cheaply-Oiher Court Proceedings.

After dragging through court for almost three years, and after the lapse of nearly four years and six months since the cause of action occurred, also when a jury newly empaneled was on hand for a new trial of it, the Goo Shee $50,000 damage suit was yesterday dismissed, with costs to plaintiffs, by Judge De Bolt upon announcement of a settlement outside of court.

It is understood that a sum a little under one thousand dollars was accepted by complainants to quit.

Goo Shee, widow of Chang Yee Tong, and C. K. Ai, administrator of his estate, brought suit on March 10, 1905, for $50,000 damages against Mutual Telephone Co., Ltd., and Honolulu Rapid Transit and Land Co., Ltd. on account of the killing of Tong by a live wire near King street bridge on the night of August 19, 1903. The case was tried in June, 1907, a mistrial resulting and a new trial being ordered on the 26th of that month. Continuances were had until the trial was set for yesterday, when the ending came. R. W. Breckons and J. J. Dunne were the original attorneys for plaintiffs, being joined later by W. W. Thayer. A. G. M. Robertson represented the Mutual Telephone Co. and Castle & Withington the Rapid Transit Co.

MIOWERA ..... FEB. 8 AORANGI ..... FEB. 5 AORANGI ...... MAR. 7 MOANA ...... MAR. 4 The big thirteen-foot shark a the Aquarium has been visited by a large number of people since he was hauled over the coral reef and put into the big tank on Saturday last. Thirteen feet of shark is bigger than thirteen feet of almost anything else, and the big fish keeps the tank water in a swirl as he swims ceaselessly about looking for an avenue of escape back to the open > Sharing the captivity of the shark is a pilot fish, some ten inches long, which clings close to the sandpaper hide of the selachian just abaft the big dorsal fin, making little dashes from its refuge there along the shark's back from in the lee of the fin as the big fish swings around and around his cramped quarters. Pflot fish accompany sharks about in deep water, nearly every one of the monsters having one or more of these little companions, but it seems extraordinary that the pilot fish at the Aquarium should stick to his big friend throughout all the excitement that prevailed during his capture and ultimate transfer to the tank.

TOURIST PLAYERS TO

NEW YORK, January 14.-One of the most extensive tours ever attempted by a theatrical company is now being planned by a party of American players. It is their intention to start in April on a journey around the globe, in the course of which they will visit nearly every civilized country of the world.

The company will be under the direction of Mark A. Luescher and will be composed of Daizie, the dancer; Miss Josephine Cohan; Harry Lee, the character actor; Frederick Niblo, the humorist, and one other artist who has not yet been selected.

According to the present plans the party will sail from San Francisco in April, stopping at Honolulu, and then visiting Australia, New Zealand, Japan, China, the Philippines, South Africa, Turkey, Italy, France, Germany and England.
