HEARST FOR CONGRESS

New York, Oct. 2.—The Democratic Congressional Convention of the Eleventh District tonight unanimously nominated William Randolph Hearst as candidate for Congress from that district, comprising the seventh, ninth, eleventh, thirteenth and fifteenth assembly districts and parts of the fifth and seventh. There were 276 delegates present.

LIEUT.-COL. MAUS ROBBED'S VICTIM

His Cottage Entered and Valuable Articles Stolen.

OFFICER AND HIS WIFE WERE AT HOTEL DANCE

BAG AND DRESS SUIT CASE TAKEN TO PLACE NEAR CENTRAL UNION CHURCH AND OPENED.

Lieut.-Col. M. P. Maus, who arrived here in the transport Thomas on General Miles' staff, had an unpleasant experience last night which rather mars the otherwise pleasant stay in Honolulu. Last night while Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Maus were attending the festivities in honor of the visiting officers given at the hotel, someone entered the room in the hotel which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Maus. The door had been locked but had been broken open by the burglar who had taken from the room a handbag and a dress suit case containing articles belonging principally to Mrs. Maus.

When the couple returned to the room, which is in the wing facing Richards street, they discovered the loss. The police were notified and officers were at once sent to the spot to investigate the affair.

This morning early Miss Von Berg, daughter of the janitor of the Central Union church, while watering the flowers on the grounds, came across the missing handbag and dress case. The handbag had been pried open and rifled of most of its contents. Among these were four razors, three of which had been taken away, while the fourth was found in the vicinity.

One side of the dress case had been cut open along two of the edges leaving a triangular flap through which the burglar got the contents.

As the razor which was found was broken, it is probable that the burglar used it in cutting open the dress case and broke it in that operation.

The burglar secured about $20 in cash, a gold watch, three razors and some jewelry and other articles belonging to Mrs. Maus. The police are at present investigating the case.

BROWN ON WRIGHT

High Sheriff Brown when seen this morning concerning the case of W. H. Wright, the missing treasurer, stated that from the news brought by the Alameda there could be no doubt but that Wright made good his escape by that steamer and had probably gone south from San Francisco.

When asked as to what Officer McDuffie would do in case Wright succeeded in reaching Mexico, the sheriff stated that McDuffie had orders to follow Wright and keep him in sight.

If Wright was in Mexico, McDuffie could not arrest him without first procuring extradition papers. This would be a very long-winded business, involving first a request from Governor Dole to President Roosevelt and then a request from President Roosevelt to the President of Mexico, that Wright be given up. In the meantime all McDuffie could do would be to keep close tab on Wright.

Vote for Camara, Independent candidates for the Fourth District.

MORE HOME RULE WANTED.

JAMES H. BOYD WRITES TO MANUEL COOK

Manuel Cook, clerk in the Public Works Department, received a letter by the Alameda from Superintendent James H. Boyd. He hoped his wife would be well enough for them to return in the Sierra.

Mr. Boyd expressed surprise at having received no letters or papers from his official friends. All that he knew of the trouble of Chief Clerk B. H. Wright was from the brief note of W. H. Wright, Treasurer, shortly before he absconded, which has been previously mentioned in the newspapers.

In this letter to Mr. Cook the Superintendent of Public Works did not discuss that affair of his own office.

Mr. Cook wrote and sent papers to Mr. Boyd by the Alameda, using a given address at Oakland, but Mr. Boyd evidently had not received any of the matter. He would have communicated with his chief earlier but for the common expectation that Mr. Boyd would be home by the China or the Ventura.

Governor Dole, in answer to a question, said this morning that the departmental situation would remain unchanged pending the arrival of the Sierra.

JUMPED OVERBOARD

ACT OF DESPONDENT CABLE SHIP SAILOR

RED SEA IS HIS BURIAL PLACE. WAS UNFORTUNATE MAN'S VERY FIRST TRIP.

The British cable steamer Anglia, which is now in port, had a rather uncanon experience on her trip out here from London. The steamer was just nearing Port Said in the Red Sea when one of the firemen jumped up on the rail and before anyone could stop him, he had plunged headlong into the sea. Despite efforts to save him, the unfortunate man was lost.

The present trip was the man's first voyage as a fireman and as his work consequently was not satisfactory, he often called down the wrath of his superiors upon his head. This preyed on his mind and when the terrific heat of the Red Sea, which was passed through in August, the very hottest time of the year, added to his miseries, the unfortunate fellow was probably seized by an uncontrollable fit of despondency and consequently quickly ended his woes in the water which centuries ago destroyed Pharaoh's army.

HILO REGISTRATION

Kauai and Oahu have both reported an increase in their registration and now comes Hawaii with the same story, showing that greater interest is being taken in the present campaign than in the one of two years ago. The following wireless message was received at Republican headquarters this forenoon:

Hilo, Oct. 10, 1902.
A. L. C. Atkinson, Honolulu.
Registration first district fifteen hundred and seventy-one, an increase of two hundred and sixty-four over that of two years ago.

AN ESTIMATE OF HAWAII'S REVENUE

Completed by Acting Treasurer Henry E. Cooper To-day.

TOTAL ESTIMATE FOR YEAR IS $1,805,898

BULK OF MONEY WILL BE COLLECTED BY NOVEMBER 15 AND WHOLE IN SIX MONTHS.

Acting Treasurer H. E. Cooper today completed, with the assistance of Tax Assessor Pratt, an estimate of the probable revenue of the Territory for the ensuing year. The total estimated revenue is $1,805,898 and as Mr. Cooper concluded giving out the figures for publication, he remarked:

"It is a much better showing than I had dared to hope for. The great bulk of it will be collected by the 15th of November and the whole of it probably within six months."

Mr. Cooper, as Acting Superintendent of Public Works, is also having completed in that office a statement of the balances of appropriations, contracts outstanding against appropriations and authorizations of road boards against appropriations, so as to know absolutely the obligations of the department.

Below are the estimates of revenue:

MARRIED

New York, Oct. 4.—A cable dispatch was received in this city today announcing the marriage at Buenos Ayres of Putnam Bradle Strong and May Yobe. The dispatch was addressed to Emanuel M. Friend, who acted as their counsel here and was as follows: "Married Buenos Ayres second. (Signed) 'MAY STRONG.'"

OLD TERM ENDS, NEW ONE BEGINS

Recess One Day Between Federal Court Sessions.

TRIAL FOR MURDER UPON HIGH SEAS

MURDERED CAPTAIN JACOBSEN'S WIDOW A WITNESS—PANELS OF GRAND AND TRIAL JURIES.

Judge M. M. Esteé yesterday adjourned the April term of the United States District Court without day. It has been open continuously with the exception of a short vacation in mid-summer. Today constitutes the entire recess until the October term opens, which will be on Monday at 10 o'clock.

One of the leading criminal cases will be the trial of Tanbara Giasuburo for the murder of Captain Jacobsen, master of the schooner Fred. J. Wood, upon the high seas. Mrs. Jacobsen, wife of the murdered man, and Mr. Thayer, secretary of the E. K. Ward Lumber Co. owning the vessel, are witnesses, both of whom arrived in the Alameda.

This is the list of the Grand Jurors: N. E. Gedgo, Charles R. Frazier, Harry W. Foster, C. M. Cooke, J. E. Fullerton, Antonio Fernandez, Charles J. Ludwigen, Robert W. Atkinson, Gus. Froboese, J. A. Low, Wm. J. England, Bruce Cartwright, Jno. S. Ellis, Frank da Camara, Wm. R. Aylett, E. I. Spalding, Willow Baldwin, Fred. Ganzel, A. J. McKenzie, A. K. Eldredge and C. Bolte.

Two of the Grand Jurors, drawn have died, James Anderson of Malakau and G. E. A. Thrum of Honolulu. Antonio Fernandez has not taken his summons out of the postoffice and it might be difficult for him to do so, as there are three of him by name in the Honolulu directory.

The trial jury panel is as follows: Herbert E. Gares, John R. Gilliland, Henry A. Giles, H. W. Green, Walter F. Dillingham, Arthur Berg, J. M. Camara, S. Peck, W. von Graevemeyer, H. Cannon, J. S. Andrade, James Steiner, F. W. Beardslee, Andrew T. Bannister, Wentworth K. Buchanan, M. G. Silva, Andrew Chalmers, A. W. Pearson, C. Huestace Jr., M. Phillips, H. M. Mott-Smith, Albion F. Clark, H. P. Eakin and J. F. Clynne.

Mr. Mott-Smith is in Paris. Three of the panel were discovered not to be citizens after summoning, but one or more of them may have qualified since.

Marshall Hendry has suitably prepared the chamber of former Judge Humphreys for a Grand Jury room, installing the proper furniture, a water cooler, etc.

The Grand Jury appears on Monday, the Trial Jury on Tuesday.

There is probability of the Summer guardianship case being compromised with something for everybody in interest out of it, not excepting the attorneys on both sides.

ACCESSORIES

PROSECUTED

Governor Dole was asked today if proceedings were liable to be instituted against parties suspected of aiding Treasurer W. H. Wright in his flight from the consequences of his malfeasance. "That may depend upon the obtaining of evidence," was the reply.

"As accessory or accessories?"

"Yes, or maybe conspiracy."

WRIGHT SURE ENOUGH

SHOWS HIMSELF ABOARD ALAMEDA SECOND DAY

DISGUISED AT HANDS OF BARBER DETAINED IN QUARANTINE.

LEVANTED FOR OLD MEXICO.

Upon the return of the steamer Alameda yesterday evening, no doubt was left that William H. Wright, the defaulting Treasurer of Hawaii, had absconded in that vessel. Wright stowed away a short time before the sailing time of the Alameda and showed himself to the ship's company the next morning out from Honolulu.

Pruser Thomas C. Smith gave Wright a ticket, receiving from him the first-class fare made up of $65 gold and $10 Hawaiian silver. Wright gave the name "W. Harrison," his lawful identification all but the surname. The clandestine passenger kept very closely to his stateroom, No. 7, throughout the rest of the voyage, suffering much sickness and coming out, if at all, after dark. As his ticket was not used by the quarantine physician here, Wright was detained three days at Angel Island quarantine station.

When he appeared before the Alameda's officers, the fugitive was without mustache besides having had a short clip of his hair.

Captain Herriman had met Wright in Honolulu, but cannot say that he identified him in the person of the passenger "W. Harrison."

After being released from quarantine the absconding Territorial Treasurer took the train south and is supposed to have gone to Mexico.

CITIZEN FITCH'S FORBEAR

Visiting the art store of King Bros. a Bulletin reporter chanced to see a quaint document just framed to order. It was a proclamation by Thomas Fitch Governor of Connecticut, issued at Norwalk on March 11, 1765, appointing Wednesday, the 11th of April following, as a day of public fasting and prayer.

The proclamation exhorts "ministers and people of every denomination with becoming seriousness, devotion and solemnity to unite in keeping this fast, abasing themselves before the Most High under an affecting sense of the rebukes and chastisements of heaven, whereof it hath pleased the Lord in righteousness to visit his people, and with full purpose of heart to turn unto Him by repentance and amendment of life."

"Likewise," the document proceeds, "to offer prayers to Almighty God for our Sovereign Lord King George the Third, for our gracious Queen Charlotte, their Royal Highnesses George, Prince of Wales, and the Princess Dowager of Wales and all the Royal Family," the substance of prescribed petitions being for blessings on the king, his counsel and family.

At the foot of the paper, which is beautifully printed in old style, appears a line of black letter prohibiting all manner of servile labor on the fast day.

ALAMEDA IN PORT

The steamship Alameda arrived from San Francisco last night at 6 o'clock, bringing three days' later news of the Mainland. The Alameda's passage was only a fair one, she being delayed by head winds and a breakdown of her machinery.

The steamer brought a fair list of passengers, among them being Captain Rodman of the Iroquois, who returns from a short stay on the Coast, where he went on account of the serious illness of his wife. Mrs. Whitling, wife of the commandant of the local Naval Station, was also among the passengers.

The Alameda brought about 1,200 tons of freight.

POLO MATCH.

There will be a match game of polo on the Kapiolani Park grounds at the usual time this afternoon. Following will be the personnel of the competing teams:

Blue—Damon, Potter, Dillingham and Castle.

White—George Brown, Judd, Shing, Irvine and McAdory.

Patronize home industry: when you need starch, order Pia, or Hawaiian starch. All grocers keep it for sale; costs no more and is superior to any imported.

BASEBALL TODAY.

The baseball game on the Makiki grounds this afternoon will be between the Brunswicks and Y. P. A. C. play to begin at 2:30 o'clock sharp. The teams will play as follows:

Brunswicks—D. Kabaulelo, c.; J. Bolster, p.; W. Welch (captain), 1b.; Mana, 2b.; Kiwa, 3b.; C. Macfarlane, ss.; Kalolo, lf.; H. Anderson, rf.; Makanaui, cf.

Y. P. A. C.—M. Sebastian, c.; M. Gomes, p.; H. Kaal, 1b.; V. Fernandez, 2b.; J. Fernandez, 3b.; A. Marcellino (captain), ss.; P. Correa, lf.; A. Sebastian, cf.; J. Marcellino, cf.; A. H. Rodriguez, M. Souza, J. Santos.

The Y. P. A. C. heads the list with 1099 per cent, the Brunswicks and Makikis are both 333, having each won three and lost one game. The Y. P. A. C. have won two games.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

The results of the tennis matches on the Beretania Tennis Club courts yesterday afternoon were as follows: G. Thompson won by default from E. R. Adams. J. H. Harrison won by default from W. H. Roth. S. H. Derby won from P. M. Lansdale, 7-5, 6-3.

Matches will be played today as follows:

3 p. m.—S. H. Derby vs. O. Thompson, C. Carter vs. L. King.

5:30 p. m.—W. H. Dabbitt vs. P. H. Macarton; A. R. Cunha vs. J. H. Harrison.

NEW YOAN FOR JAPAN.

London, Oct. 2.—The report that a big Japanese loan is to be floated is confirmed. The Baring Brothers, the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and the Yokohama Specie Bank will issue next week $25,000,000 Japanese bonds bearing 5 per cent interest. They will probably be issued at par.

BISHOP POTTER MARRIED

BISHOP POTTER AND ELEGANT MANSION OWNED BY BRS. CLARK.

Cooperstown, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The marriage of Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark to Bishop Henry C. Potter took place at noon at Christ's Church, this place.

At the main entrance to the church the guests were met by ushers, who were Mrs. Clark's three sons, Edward Severin Clark, Lieutenant Robert Sterling Clark, Ninth Infantry, U. S. A., and Stephen A. Clark, Waldo C. Johnson and M. Sutherland Irving.

The church was elaborately decorated with palms and flowers. When the guests had been seated, the Rev. Dr. Grosvenor, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, of New York, who performed the ceremony, and the Rev. George F. Nelson took their places and awaited the arrival of the bride.

The organist began the Lohengrin wedding march, and the bride, escorted by Lieutenant Robert Sterling Clark, marched up the aisle, where they were met by the bridegroom and his best man, Rev. Dr. Geo. F. Nelson. Mrs. Clark was attended by her niece, Mrs. Chaffee, as maid of honor, and Mrs. D. F. Woods, of Philadelphia, one of her oldest friends, The Rev. W. W. Lord pronounced the benediction.

The bride's gown was of white satin crepe de chine, trimmed with points, applique lace, and was of extremely simple design. In the place of a bonnet, the bride wore a fichu of points applique lace. The only jewelry worn by the bride was a brooch of diamonds. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

A wedding breakfast was served to about thirty at Fernleigh, Mrs. Clark's residence.

The admission to the church was by card.

There were a very few intimate friends and a few members of old Cooperstown families admitted to the church.

WESTERN EXPANDED METAL & FIRE PROOFING COMPANY.

San Francisco, Sept. 25th, 1902.

To the Hawaiian Electric Co., Ltd., Honolulu, T. H.

Gentlemen:—We have almost completed our contract for fire-proofing the Young Building in Honolulu, Hawaii, on which building we have used Westinghouse motors, furnished and erected by you for all of our hoisting purposes, also for machinery for mixing concrete and the same have given perfect satisfaction in every respect. In fact, we find that the electric power and appliances have been much cheaper for us than either steam or gasoline. This is proven to us by the fact that we have used both steam and gasoline on different buildings on the Coast and other places, with greater cost for doing the same class of work. We have used your motors for over seven months and were only delayed once for about twenty minutes, which delay was caused by lightning entering your station and shutting down all machinery.

We deem it a great pleasure to recommend your electric power and apparatus to any one doing similar work and believe that it would give satisfaction in any other class of work where either steam or gasoline power could be used.

Thanking you for the courteous treatment we have received from you during all our business transactions, we remain, yours very truly,

Duchess of Marlborough Was Not Greeted

London, Sept. 27.—Circumstances which attended the homecoming of Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough, have given rise to a renewal of comment on the relations observed this season between the Duke of Marlborough and his American wife.

Unwelcomed was the return of the Duchess yesterday. The Duke did not meet her at Hulton station. No carriage was in waiting, nor was there a servant to do her bidding. Her isolation from anything that could suggest family ties could not have been more complete. One less brave than the lonely little traveler might not have regarded the situation with the same apparent equanimity.

Her departure for America was unmarked by the presence of the Duke, as was her return after two months' absence. Yet Blenheim is within ninety minutes' run of London. It will be only a short time before the Duke will start on his tour of India. The Duchess does not accompany him.

VENEZUELAN WAR.

Paris, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Matin from Port of Spain, Trinidad, says that a battle was fought on October 1 between the Venezuelan forces and the revolutionists, the result of which is unknown.

The rebels surrounded the Government force. It is reported that President Castro with his army attempted to enter Caracas, but was unable to do so. The rebels were numerically stronger than the Government forces, and intercepted the latter's communications.

There is intense excitement in Caracas. The impression is that the war is nearing its end and that Castro has been definitely beaten.

The dispatch adds that news has been received from Carupano to the effect that the French consular agent at that place and the manager of the French Cable Company, who were arrested by order of General Vellutini, have been released.

The French population is very indignant at the arbitrary acts of General Vellutini, who is a son of a Frenchman and was destined by President Castro to represent Venezuela in France. Energetic action on the part of the French Government is expected.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGE

New York, Oct. 3.—"You may expect to hear something about the challenge for the America's cup in a week or eight days." This was a statement made by Sir Thomas Lipton to a group of acquaintances yesterday, says a London dispatch to the Herald.

A. W. Macdonochie, member of Parliament, who is the largest Army contractor in Great Britain, was with the Baronet at the time. He is sailing for America on the Fuerst Bismarck on business which he said will affect the interests both of America and England, but the exact nature of which he would not disclose.

Macdonochie, it will be remembered, gave a dinner to J. Pierpont Morgan at the House of Commons. From that dinner resulted, so the friends of Macdonochie assert, the arrangement made by the shipping combination with the English Government. That Macdonochie has another errand, there is not the slightest doubt. That it has to do with Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge the correspondent says he has good reason to believe. This inference is gathered from the following conversation:

"When does your steamer reach New York, Macdonochie?" inquired the Baronet of the Member for Aberdeen shire.

"Next Friday," was the reply.

"Well, by that time," resumed Sir Thomas, "you will hear something of a challenge."

RUTH HANNA ENGAGED

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The announcement of the engagement of Miss Ruth Hanna, daughter of Senator Hanna, to Joseph Medill McCormick, son of Robert McCormick, of this city, recently appointed Ambassador to Russia, was made today. The engagement is not only of interest to Cleveland and Chicago society, where the two young people have been reared, but to the leading political and social circles of two continents.

Embassador and Mrs. McCormick recently returned to America. Whether the visit is the vacation trip of the Embassador during the time of his change from the Austrian mission to that of Russia, or whether it means that the wedding is soon to take place, has not been announced. In fact, the date for the wedding is not yet public. The existence of a betrothal, or at least the possibility of one, has been hinted at before.

Miss Hanna, whose coming-out party was an event in Washington society two seasons ago, is a graduate of Farmington. She is a fine equestrienne and lover of outdoor sport generally. McCormick, who is namesake and grandson of the late Joseph Medill of the Tribune, has adopted his grandfather's profession since his graduation from Yale, and is a member of the Tribune staff.

GERMAN DISCOUNT RATE.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—The rate of discount of the Imperial Bank of Germany was raised from 3 to 4 per cent today. The rise in the bank rate which had been anticipated was due to the large increase of bills discounted by the bank of Germany and to the rise of the bank of England's rate.

MOROS ROUTED.

Manila, Oct. 4.—Captain John J. Pershing's column has completely routed the Maric Moros in the island of Mindanao, killing and wounding a hundred of them and capturing and destroying forty forts. Two Americans were wounded.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1902.

Within a few hours of the completion of the great Atlantic steamship combination, trans-Atlantic passenger rates were advanced. Yet they say "Trusts are not antagonistic to the interests of the people."

"Married" is the message May Yoh and Strong send to their friends. And the public is thus informed that the curtain has rung down on the last act of a lascivious drama which has served only to ruin homes and violate every sacred principle of the marriage vow.

The nomination of Bird S. Coler as the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York indicates that David B. Hill's rescue work has been successful at least within his party. Coler has very small chance of election, but the country has reason to be gratified that the standards of one of the great parties in the Empire State have been raised to a higher level.

The election of John McCulloch as Governor, by the Vermont Legislature puts an end for the present to one of the most interesting fights on the liquor question of recent years. In the State election McCulloch, the regular Republican candidate, was opposed by Percival Clement, local option Republican, and Felix McGarrick, the regular Democratic nominee. Clement made a very picturesque campaign, and made such inroads on the Republican prohibition forces as to prevent McCulloch obtaining a plurality, which, according to the Vermont law placed upon the newly elected Legislature the responsibility of electing the Governor. The regular Republicans carried the Legislature by a good majority over all and secured McCulloch's election. Clement's campaign, though unsuccessful, showed that the conservative State of Vermont is beginning to consider prohibition a good theory but a doubtful quantity in practice.

QUALIFICATIONS OF VOTERS.

Editor Evening Bulletin:—The Organic Act, Article 2, Section 40, says that in order to be qualified to vote for representatives a person shall First—Be a male citizen of the United States.

Second—Have resided in the Territory not less than one year preceding and in the Representative district in which he offers to register not less than three months immediately preceding the time at which he offers to register, etc.

I notice that the United States Court has been turning out embryo citizens by the dozen within the last few days, who have registered as voters, one of them being petitioned to run for office at the November election.

Is not this a somewhat anomalous condition?

A citizen of the United States (he might be a native son) comes to this Territory on November 10, 1901, and by reason of this circumstance is, under the terms of the Organic Act prevented from exercising the right (which otherwise his citizenship guarantees him) of voting at the general election. Can an alien, resident here and becoming a citizen the last day of registration, in the last hour of that day obtain the privilege and boon denied a citizen of the United States?

To my mind the construction of the law should be that a man must be a citizen of the United States for one year before he can present himself for registration. If this is sound logic, then every one of the 244 aliens who have been made citizens since July 1st of this year, and who have registered, are illegally registered and subject to challenge at the polls.

Will you kindly publish your views on this matter and invite discussion of the same, and oblige,

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

The Bulletin sees no occasion for challenging the newly made citizens, the construction of the law by the local Board of Registration having followed the interpretation customary throughout the United States as far as this paper is aware. The lately naturalized citizens have fulfilled all the obligations of residence required by the Organic Act, and having taken the oath of allegiance are entitled to full rights of citizenship. If the suggestion of our correspondent were followed, the naturalized alien who had lived in the Territory for several years would be on the same basis as the late arrival from a foreign land. The United States is very liberal toward the foreigner who's desirous of assuming the responsibilities and privileges of American citizenship.

The Bulletin will gladly publish any comment or suggestion on the question which may occur to citizens of the Territory.

PRINCE IS OF AGE

There was a persistent rumor abroad on the streets yesterday that Prince Jonah Kalaniano'le would be withdrawn because of his age. It was stated that he was only twenty-eight years of age. Who started the story is a mystery but certain it is that it was not done by any Republican. The object was undoubtedly to cause doubts to arise in the minds of those whose intention it is to vote for the Prince.

At all events, the rumor was so general that the matter was mentioned at Republican headquarters last evening previous to the meeting of the executive committee. However, it is stated now, once and for all, that Prince Cupid is over thirty years of age and is therefore perfectly eligible to run. It would seem, from the rumor, that political opponents are beginning to fear defeat. This question has all been threshed out and before the Prince was named a candidate, the matter of his age was definitely established.

Another good Home Ruler has planted himself firmly in the fertile field of the Republican party. He is none other than W. H. Kallimail, the market keeper, who for two years has been one of the staunchest of the Home Rule supporters and who was recently a delegate to the nomination convention of this island.

The announcement of the change of base took place at the Republican rally at the home of J. L. Kaulukou in Aiea last night, when Kallimail himself declared that, in the interest of his country, he felt it incumbent upon him to join the Republican party. This declaration came as a great surprise and brought forth cheer after cheer from the assembled crowd.

Kallimail went on to say that he deplored the plans of the Home Rulers along the line of raising race prejudice. He was the only member of his family who was not a Republican. His three sons were members of the party and he thought it was about time for him to get on the right side. The Republican party was the only one that could lift the Territory out of the rut into which it seemed to have fallen.

The other speakers of the evening were D. P. R. Isenberg, L. L. McCandless, J. L. Kaulukou, Chas. Broad, Holi and Nakookoo.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Republican party last night the details of the big meeting down the road on Monday night were arranged. The committee in charge of the matter reported that satisfactory arrangements had been made with the railway company by means of which trains will be furnished from both Honolulu and Waianae. A number of hand boys will be taken along to furnish music.

LUNG TU'S ABROAD

Not long ago, the Chinese controlling the company playing at the theater on Liliha street, were notified that they would have to pay higher rent for the place. The management thought this was "rubbing it in" a little because the demand for an increase was made not at a time when business was flourishing but when there was a great falling off in the attendance. Therefore, it did not take long for a flat refusal to any increase in the rent being paid.

Of course, the owners of the building had no other alternative than to order the management of the company to take their little punk sticks and cymbals and go.

Although there is not very much love existing between Chinese and Japanese and a Chinaman would do almost anything rather than make terms with a Japanese, still the management was forced to the alternative of making arrangements for the lease of the theater at the corner of River and Pauahi streets.

The first play, or rather the first instalment of the play, was given in the new place last night and a large crowd was in attendance. During the progress of the squeaks and squeals, there was a sound of ripping cloth and of creaking boards and into the dull parts of the play was thrown somewhat of the tragic as the management of the show realized what was taking place.

It appears that the Lung Tu's in order to revenge themselves on the show people for refusing to pay an increase in rent and walking out of the Liliha street theater bag and baggage, were on hand in considerable numbers. In order to disturb the players and audience they took to cutting the cloth that is revealed between the cracks and in order to produce a more soul stirring sound, they started in to rip off the boards.

A search was made for the people who created the disturbance but all the Chinese from the inside could see upon their arrival outside was a number of innocent looking Chinese standing with their hands in their pockets. If any one of the disturbers should be caught in a repetition of the offense there is no question whatever that the continuity of the play will be disturbed by an impromptu juggling act.

The usual Saturday concert with an entire change of program will be given at the Temperance Hall this evening. Songs, dances and laughable sketches.

CHILDREN'S ENDOWMENT INSURANCE

—ACCORDING TO—
Mutual Reserve Life Company's Plan

Third Largest Mutual Legal Reserve Insurance Company in the State of New York.

ENDOWMENT Insurance for young children is not a novelty in life insurance, though not very extensively carried on. There is a growing demand for this method of making provision for the future of children, however, and the MUTUAL RESERVE LIFE has adopted three plans to meet this demand. Under all plans the age is limited to children of from two to eleven years of age and the policy is payable at the age of 21. The cheapest form of policy has an annual premium varying according to age from $10 to $50 with no return of premiums if the child dies before the policy matures at the age of 21. The second form, with an annual premium ranging from $20 to $80, stipulates that in case the child dies before the policy matures the full premiums with 3 per cent interest are to be returned.

On the third plan the policy is issued on the life of the parent or guardian for the child's benefit when arriving at the age of 21, the cost depending on the age of the parent or guardian, who is subject to a regular examination. This plan provides that in case of the death of the parent or guardian before the endowment period is reached the policy becomes at once paid up for the face amount, payable when the child is 21 years old without further premiums. If the child dies after the death of the parent or guardian all the premiums which have been paid will be returned to the legal representatives of the child, and if the parent or guardian survives and the child dies at any time after the first year the premiums paid are returned to the former. This policy is limited to parents or guardians from 20 to 54 years of age, the annual premiums at the age of 21 being $25.00 where the child is 2 years old, $50.00 where he is 3 years old, and $75.00 at age 10. No other company we believe issues this latter form of child's endowment.—INSURANCE HERALD.

First two forms, no examination required.

General Booth Visits States

GENERAL WILLIAM BOOTH, COMMANDER OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

New York, Oct. 4.—On the steamer ship Philadelphia which arrived today from Southampton was General William Booth, the head of the Salvation Army. Twelve tugs and three side wheel passenger boats bearing soldiers of the Salvation Army met the Philadelphia at Quarantine and gave an enthusiastic welcome to General Booth.

"I have come here for a tour of five months," said the general, "my object being the consolidation and expansion of the Army."

General Booth was asked if he would try to bring under one head the volunteers of American and the Salvation Army.

"I will not," he said. "I shall not attempt to in any way interfere with the army. I am friends with every one and I shall try to remain so."

CAN RESTORE LIFE. Alexandria, Ind., Oct. 3.—Dr. C. W. Littlefield asserts that he can restore the dead to life. He says he has recovered one boy who was undoubtedly dead, and has restored animals numerous times after rigor mortis had set in.

He declares life is not necessarily dependent upon organic functions. Where death has been due to causes which have not impaired the issue formation or torn down the structure of vital organs, life may be recalled. "Volatile magnetism," says the physician, "is the power that can reanimate the dead body." In his experiments Littlefield uses a powder of which the basis is common salt.

APPEAL TO THE COURT

MINE OPERATORS PLAN TO SETTLE THE STRIKE

INTERVIEWS GIVEN OUT AFTER CONFERENCE WITH PRESIDENT—SAY MITCHELL CAN'T HOLD MEN.

New York, Oct. 4.—The presidents of the anthracite coal roads arrived here from Washington on a special train today. E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of the Erie Railroad Company, who represented that company at the conference with President Roosevelt at Washington, said today:

"There is nothing to add to my statement at Washington yesterday in respect to the proposition made by us that in case we cannot satisfactorily adjust any grievances with our own employees it shall be referred to the judges of the Court of Common Pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination. This certainly provides a tribunal which affords the miners every possible protection, but we cannot be expected to turn the conduct of property which involves the interests of such a large number of people over to the control of an irresponsible and illegal association and place the lives and property of our loyal employees at their mercy. Our offer affords every opportunity for fair and liberal treatment with appeal to an impartial tribunal free from the influences of the bituminous coal combination. Our forces of men are increasing and we produced yesterday over 4000 tons of coal."

President Truesdale of the Lackawanna road had nothing to add to the statement submitted by him to the President at Washington yesterday. He believed, he said, that it was not the intention of the authorities to call out the Federal troops.

President Fowler of the New York, Ontario & Western road, said:

"It is not unlikely that the public may jump at the conclusion that Mr. Mitchell offered to resume operations immediately in order that the suffering public might be relieved at once. I think it worth while to call attention to the fact that Mitchell offered at yesterday's conference to make an agreement for not less than one year, or more than five years, as may be mutually determined."

"Now, the point I wish to make clear right here is this: 'Mitchell cannot order an immediate resumption of work because the by-laws of the United Mine Workers declare that such a proposition must first be submitted to a convention of its delegates. That cannot be done in less than two weeks' time. That much notice, I am told, is called for in the by-laws.'

"The public will observe that there is a great difference between work immediately and resuming work at the end of two weeks. In a word, Mitchell's proposition has a string to it. Moreover, how do the operators know that Mitchell can control his men? Did they not go back on him at Hazleton two years ago when he ordered them not to strike."

"The trouble is that there are two sides to this fight—the responsible side and the irresponsible side. The operators stand for something; the miners are in a position to draw out of any agreement their leaders may make. It is impossible to make a binding agreement with Mitchell."

The wireless telegraph service is now open for business to Mahukona and all points on Hawaii and Maui. Telegrams will be received at the Inter-island Telegraph Company's office, 14 Kaunamann street.

THE WILCZEK CONCERT

The opportunities to hear artists of note in Honolulu are deplorably limited and when an occasion presents itself there should be no lack of enthusiasm. Franz Wilczek ranks among the first of the violin soloists of the world, having attained that enviable position, first through musical genius and second by years of labor and experience. Mr. Wilczek has appeared in every large city in the world as a soloist besides having been concert master with all of the best concert orchestras in America. Theodore Thomas brought Mr. Wilczek to New York as soloist for the opening of the Lenox Lyceum in 1890.

Mr. Wilczek tells a very good story on himself which shows that the gentleman is not free from the eccentricities of artists. Having been engaged to play at a very important concert in Brooklyn in which he was the soloist of the evening and having as well a number of social calls to make in New York the same afternoon, he found that he had just sufficient time left to dress and reach the theater. After hurriedly donning his dress suit he grabbed his violin case and started for the cars reaching the stage in Brooklyn just as the call boy was searching the dressing rooms to inform him that he was next on the program. Of course every lady was more or less excited after their anxiety and Mr. Wilczek was exceedingly nervous after his rush from one city to the other. Taking a hurried glance at himself in the mirror he threw open his violin case only to find it empty with the exception of a roll of music which was about the same weight as his violin would have been.

Of course it was out of the question to think of playing on a strange instrument and after a few excited explanations Mr. Wilczek returned to his rooms in New York a little more than $200 lighter in pocket than would have otherwise been the case.

Mr. Wilczek will be assisted by Mrs. Macfarlane, Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Miss von Holt, Miss Carrie Castle, and Hugo Herzer, practically a stranger in Honolulu musical circles. Mr. Herzer, however, is the possessor of an exceptionally good baritone voice which shows the effect of careful schooling and will successfully handle the portion of the program entrusted to him.

OREGON COMING.

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—The battleship Oregon has received orders to sail about the middle of this month for the Asiatic station, to relieve the Kentucky, which is to return to the Atlantic by way of the Suez canal. Large quantities of stores and ammunition have been taken aboard the Oregon during her stay here, and she is in readiness for the long trip across the Pacific. A stop will be made at Honolulu en route. The cruiser New York, never before on this coast, is expected to arrive here soon from the Asiatic station, and is to be retained permanently on the Pacific station.

CALIFORNIA PIONEER.

Alameda, Oct. 3.—R. Frank Clark, a prominent insurance man and early resident of the Island City, died at 3 o'clock this morning at his home, 1808 Alameda street. Death was due to paralysis, following nervous prostration. While he had been ailing for some months, and critically ill for ten days, the news of his death was a shock to many friends. He went to the mountains about three months ago, hoping to benefit his health, but found little relief. Deceased had been identified with the Firemen's Fund Insurance Company for seven years.

The 1902 Social Club will give a masquerade ball on Friday evening, October 17, at San Antonio Hall. The grand march will take place at 8:30.

Spanish Queen Has A Romance Recalled

London, Sept. 29.—A dispatch from Madrid says: It was positively announced in court circles tonight that Christina, recent Queen Regent, mother of young King Alfonso, was secretly and morganatically married to her master of horse, Count of Escosura, during her recent journey to Austria. It appears that a romance of youth is behind the sensational marriage. Years ago, so the story is now told, Christina and the Count loved each other to such an extent that their love of state walked in and separated them. Christina was compelled to wed Alfonso's father, while the Count could only curse his fate in silence and accept the inevitable, which in this case was nothing less than a royal decree. However, as master of horse, the Count was able to be near the woman who, though Queen now, was his sweet-heart still.

Madrid, Sept. 29.—The story of the marriage of Queen Maria Christina to the Count of Escosura is declared here to be false.

COLER FOR GOVERNOR

Saratoga, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The Democratic State Convention was so strenuous in its final hours as almost to bring personal conflict, and yet terminated in such perfect harmony as to allow the completion of the State ticket with less than 100 delegates out of 450 in the hall. The ticket named was as follows:

Governor—Bird S. Coler, Brooklyn.

Lieut. Governor—Chas. N. Bugier, Oswego.

Secretary of State—Frank M. Ott, Chautauque.

Controller—Chas. M. Preston, Ulster.

Attorney General—John Cuneen, Erie.

State Engineer and Surveyor—Richard W. Sherman, Oneida.

State Treasurer—George R. Finch, Warren.

Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals—John C. Gray, New York.

Japanese Fishermen Fight Korean Pirates

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 3.—Mail advices from the Orient tell a story of the capture of a Korean pirate junk by a handful of Japanese fishermen. The pirates had attacked and looted a hamlet on the island of Chujado, near Quelpart, and were torturing the prisoners taken because of their failure to get ransom, when some Japanese fishermen rowed to a village for assistance. The pirates, after taking what they could find, sailed away, but there was not much wind and five boat crews of fishermen managed to catch up with them and for an hour a rifle duel was kept up without damage. Then the fishermen threw numbers of bamboo sticks filled with oil with burning fuses into the junk and set fire to her. In the confusion they boarded the junk and killed eight pirates and took nine prisoners, the remainder—there had been fifty on board—jumped overboard. The Japanese destroyed the junk and turned the prisoners over to the Korean authorities.

HIS HEAD CUT OFF

New York, Sept. 27.—Capt. Jas. B. Craft, a wealthy resident of Glen Cove, Long Island, was foully murdered this morning in the Empire Garden Hotel, a disorderly resort at 33 West Twenty-ninth street. His head was cut off with a butcher's cleaver and thrown into the furnace, and his body was hidden in the cellar of the dive under a pile of beer barrels. Robbery was the motive of the crime. Thomas Tobin, a waiter in the place, is believed to have been the actual murderer, and he has been arrested. But others are believed to have been implicated in the crime, and other arrests have been made.

Others in custody are: Alexander McAnerney, the bartender at the Empire, who says he watched Tobin behind his victim, and Robert Kelly, who described himself as the porter of the place; Grace Burnett, who says she is a saleswoman, and two other women are in the House of Detention, held as witnesses. Thomas Purcell, a student of Charlestown, Mass., and William Hopkins, also a student of Brooklyn, were arrested, as they passed the night in the house, but they were able to prove their ignorance of the crime, and were discharged later in the day.

MISHAP TO NEVADAN.

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—The American-Hawaiian Company's big freighter Nevadan has sustained serious damage on Hunters Point drydock and it will probably be some weeks before she is ready for sea again. Owing to an error in placing the keel blocks a number of the Nevada's plates were badly dented and will have to be replaced. She will remain on the dry-dock until the repairs have been effected.

OIL ON ALAMEDA.

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—As a result of the great success of the oil-burning plant on the steamer Mariposa, the Oceanic Company has decided to install a similar plant on the Alameda, probably after her next trip to Honolulu, when the vessel will go to the Rusden Iron Works for that purpose.

BOYD TO RETURN IN NEXT STEAMER

A. S. Cleghorn received a letter from his daughter, wife of James H. Boyd, saying that her husband and herself would return to Honolulu in the Sierra. Mr. Boyd would have taken the Alameda but, as his wife desired to accompany him and all the good rooms in the latter steamer had been taken, they decided to await the Sierra. Mrs. Boyd writes:

"I was very much surprised to hear that Mr. Boyd was expected back by the China, as no one had written him to return, though he had heard from Treasurer Wright about the trouble, but he promised to write full particulars by the next boat, which he failed to do, and no one has sent for Mr. Boyd or written him a line to come back."

No mention is made of Treasurer Wright, so the presumption is that he did not present himself to his former colleague in the Territorial government.

Dr. Nelson, the Alameda's surgeon, saw Mr. Boyd at the San Francisco dock just before the departure of the steamer and he said he intended going home next steamer.

A letter was received from Superintendent Boyd, under date of San Francisco, October 3d. Mr. Boyd anxiously questions the receipt here of letters forwarded by him and asks for the reasons why no response had been made thereto. He complains of the manner in which "the Treasurer has left me in ignorance of affairs in the Public Works office, especially as regards the B. H. Wright shortage." The only letter received by him from the Treasurer "was by the China, and in which he says that the chief clerk had promised to settle the shortage." Boyd quotes the ending of the Treasurer's letter as follows: "I think you may better come back; I will write you again on the 12th."

No other letter being received from W. H. Wright, from any member of the Government, nor from any one else, depicting the existing state of affairs, Superintendent Boyd states he "obtained the idea that everything was O. K." The first file of Honolulu papers he obtained from Col. J. K. Soper and from W. L. Greive and from the news therein relating to his chief clerk he would have returned by the Alameda but for the condition of his wife. He will leave San Francisco by the Sierra on the 16th inst., arriving here on the 21st or 22d. In closing, Colonel Boyd says that the first few days abroad were days of pleasure and sight-seeing, then the illness of his wife compelled the taking of private apartments, and he saw few Honolulu people. He ends by saying: "This has been a poor vacation for me, my wife ill, things going wrong in the office, and I in a state of perplexity and bother because I receive no letters of information. My vacation was to end in November, and I come back sorry I ever started, and will be glad to get home again."

GERMAN PICNIC.

At 1:30 p. m. today a special train will leave the Oahu Railway Co.'s depot for Pearl City, carrying officers and men of the Cormoran and taken to the grounds of B. F. Dillingham at Pearl City, where a big picnic is to be given. A large tent has been erected on the grounds and from this refreshments will be served during the afternoon and evening. The band of the Cormoran will accompany the ship's company to Pearl City.

The committee in charge of things has arranged to have the men transferred from the Cormoran and taken to the railroad wharf in Hackfeld's lighter. The second train will leave the city at 3:15 p. m. The last train from Pearl City will be at 9 p. m. Tickets for the picnic are for Germans by birth or parentage, and can be secured at Hackfeld & Co.'s, Hollister's drug store, and the Hawaiian Star.

TWO MEN BADLY WANTED BY POLICE

Two new faces appeared on the "Wanted" file this morning. One of them belongs to a man who is wanted by the Commissioner of Police at Brisbane. This fellow is J. W. Henderson, alias Donald McLean, alias J. A. Cameron, alias James Williams. The following description of him is given: About 35 years of age, about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, stout built, florid complexion, heavy reddish mustache, sideburns on level with lobes of ears, almost bald on front of head, slightly Roman nose. Dresses in dark coat and vest and grey tweed trousers. Has also a grey tweed suit, a Lamington and a hard black hat, also a brown Chesterfield overcoat.

Under the name of Donald McLean this man is believed to have received compensation for the New South Wales Government for injuries received by him through falling from a train in 1900 and to have previously received, under the name J. A. Cameron, compensation from the West Australian Government under similar circumstances.

The other man, Henry Simmons, is wanted by the authorities of Syracuse, N. Y., on an indictment warrant for manslaughter. He is 22 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weight 160 pounds, light wavy hair, grey eyes, dusky in dress, is a light drinker, smokes cigarettes, and his occupation is a shoe factory worker. He hails from Oneida county, N. Y., and is supposed to be living under an assumed name.

The circular further states: If the great majority of these were Ja-

WINDJAMMERS ARRIVE.

No less than four windjammers arrived from foreign ports this morning. The American ship Ivy, Captain Stetson, arrived from Hakodate with 15,722 bales of crude brimstone.

The American schooner S. T. Alexander, Johnson, arrived from Newcastle with 1125 tons of coal.

The American barkentine Echo, Young, arrived from Newcastle with 1197 tons of coal.

The American bark Omega, Mackie, arrived from Newcastle with 960 tons of coal.

An Italian investigator, Prof. Livio Vincenzi, at Sassari, claims to have discovered the whooping cough bacillus. He found it, as stated in the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift, in the expectorations of children suffering with whooping cough in some cases it being present in a very large quantity, while it was absent in other processes of sickness. Prof. Vincenzi ascertained by a series of researches the peculiar qualities of the little organism, but he did not succeed in causing it by inoculation on animals the same disease as in human beings. It is, however, a well-known fact that whooping cough never occurs in animals.

The Hilo Tribune of October 10 gives a record of 64 men naturalized by Judge Little during the week previous.

The great majority of these were Ja-

GENERAL LEW. WALLACE'S QUEER INTERVIEW WITH A NOTED OUTLAW

The murderous handit must have a singular attraction for the writer of romance. Gen. Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," devotes much attention in his latest book to "Billy the Kid." This celebrated outlaw of the "wild and woolly," who has never before had a biographer of distinction, occupies several chapters.

The general will also for the first time relate the true story of the "Kid's" terrible vendetta against him and his officers. The general's encounter with the desperado occurred in 1879, while Wallace was Governor of New Mexico. A more intimate acquaintance, however, was brought about when it became necessary for Governor Wallace to interview "Billy the Kid" personally. The interview was arranged to be held at night, and, in readiness for the occasion, two men a few minutes before midnight sat silent, eager, expectant, huddled together in a little hut on the outskirts of old Santa Fe, N. M.

Their gaze, says the Indianapolis correspondent of the Detroit News-Tribune, was fastened on the door.

One man was the owner of the ride home that stood desolate on the shifting sands of the great mesa. The other was Gen. Lew Wallace, Governor of New Mexico.

The hands of the clock pointed to the hour of 12. The hush deepened. Suddenly it was broken by the sound of a resolute knock on the door of the cabin.

"Come in," said the Governor of New Mexico.

The door flew open, and, standing with his form outlined by the moonlight behind him, was the most feared, the most desperate, and the most hunted man in the great Southwest—"Billy the Kid." In his right hand he carried a Winchester. In his left was a revolver. The weapons covered the two occupants of the room.

"I was to meet the Governor here at midnight. It is midnight; is the Governor here?"

The light of the candles flickered against a boyish face, yet the man who stood in the doorway was the most notorious desperado in New Mexico. He had killed scores of men; he was the quarry of every sheriff from the Rio Grande to the bordering foothills that shut in Death Valley. In facial features "Billy the Kid," the notorious handit and fugitive from justice, was a mere stripling. His narrow shoulders were rounded, his posture slightly stooped, his voice was low and effeminate. But his eyes were cold and piercing, steady, alert, gray, like steel.

General Wallace rose to his feet and held out his hand, inviting the visitor forward for a conference.

"Your note gave the promise of absolute protection," said the outlaw, warily.

"I have been true to my promise," replied the Governor. "This man," pointing to the owner of the cabin, "and myself are the only persons present."

The rifle was slowly lowered, the revolver returned to its leather holster. Billy advanced and the two seated themselves at opposite sides of the narrow table.

Explaining his midnight interview with "Billy the Kid," General Wallace says:

"The man whose deeds of blood had drawn upon him the gaze of an entire nation was born a New York waif. Before he was more than ten years of age he was brought to Indiana, and in Terre Haute and Indianapolis, where he was raised, he was known as William Bonney. In 1874, when he was about seventeen years old, he suddenly left his home, crossed the Mississippi and came into the country of the men of his kind—the frontier of the far West.

"Billy" began his career with an oath to kill John Chisum, his first employer, or when the lad reached the plains. Chisum and the "Kid" had been unable to agree on terms of settlement for a season's work. The result was the lad's fearful vendetta, sworn not only

ROOSEVELTIAN

A. Laurier Low, the Washington correspondent of the Boston Globe, has characterized the speech made by President Roosevelt at the Bangor (Me.) fair grounds as a sermon on American citizenship. The speech, which seems to express very fully the President's ideals, is as follows:

Old American Spirit.

I am glad to greet the farmers of Maine. During the century that has closed the growth of industrialism has necessarily meant that cities and towns have increased in population more rapidly than the country districts. And yet it remains true now as it has always been that in the resort the country districts are those in which we are sure to find the old American spirit, the old American habit of thought and ways of living. Conditions have changed in the country far less than they have changed in the cities and in consequence there has been little breaking away from the methods of life which have produced the great majority of the leaders of the republic in the past. Almost all of our great Presidents have been brought up in the country and most of them worked hard on the farms in their youth and got their early mental training in the healthy democracy of farm life.

The forces which made these farm-bred boys leaders of men when they had come to their full manhood are still at work in our country districts. Self-help and individual initiative remain to a peculiar degree typical of life in the country. Life on a farm, in a lumbering camp, on a ranch. Neither the farms nor their hired hands can work through combinations as readily as the capitalists or wage workers of cities can work.

Advancing Agriculturists.

It must not be understood from this that there have been no changes in farming and of the farm life. The contrary is the case. There has been much change, much progress. The Granges and similar organizations, the farmers' institutes and all the agencies which promote intelligent co-operation and give opportunity for social and mental intellectual intercourse among the farmers, have played a large part in raising the level of life and work in the country districts. In the domain of government the department of agriculture since its foundation has accomplished results as striking as those obtained under any other branch of the national administration.

By scientific study of all matters connected with the advancement of farm life by experimental stations; by the use of trained agents, sent to the uttermost corners of the globe; by the practical applications of anything against Chisum, but against all of Chisum's other employes as well.

"For each herdsman employed by you whom I kill," Billy sent word, "I will deduct $5 from our unsquared account. If I kill you," he added, grimly, "my bill will be receipted in full."

"Then his bloody career began. It was not long until William Bonney, the waif, reared in the midst of the peaceful surroundings of Indiana, became the most feared man in the Southwest. At the same time he was the most revered, the most adored, and the most respected man in the Territory. It was the kind of good reward that sometimes comes to the bad men."

"Shortly before I became Governor of New Mexico, Chapman, a young attorney at Lincoln, had been murdered. Half a dozen men were arrested, accused of the crime. Among them was Jesse James.

"While it was more than probable that one or more of the men charged with the murder were guilty, it was impossible to prove the allegation, for the witnesses, filled with terror, fled the country. When I reached New Mexico it was as stated on every hand that 'Billy the Kid' had been a witness to the murder. Could he be made to testify? That was the question on the tip of every tongue.

"I had been sent to the Southwest to pacify the Territory; here was an opportunity I could not afford to pass by. Therefore I arranged a meeting by note deposited with one of the outlaw's friends, and at midnight was ready to receive the desperado should he appear. He was there on time—punctual to the second.

"When 'Billy the Kid' stepped to the chair opposite me I lost no time in stating my proposition.

"'Testify,' I said, 'before the grand jury and the trial court and convict the murderer of Chapman and I will let you go free, with a pardon in your pocket for all your mistakes.'

"'Billy' heard me in silence; he thought several minutes without reply. 'Governor,' he said, 'if I were to do what you ask they would kill me.'

"'We can prevent that,' said I. 'Then I unfolded my plan. 'Billy' was to be seized while he was asleep. To all appearances his capture was to be genuine. To this he agreed, picking the men who were to effect his capture. He was afraid of hostile bullets and would run no risks. Another stipulation was to the effect that during his confinement he should be kept in irons. 'Billy the Kid' was afraid also of the loss of his reputation as a desperate man."

The plan agreed upon in the cabin on the lonely mesa at midnight was carried out to the letter. "Billy the Kid" was seized the following morning and confined in the Lincoln county jail.

"Billy," thought at his own request kept in irons, did not remain long confined. One morning the guards led him to breakfast. Returning, the desperado drawled, in the feminine voice that was a part and parcel of his character:

"Boys, I'm tired. Tell the Governor I'm tired."

The manacles slipped like magic from his wrists. The guards stood stupefied and "Billy the Kid," laughing mockingly, walked leisurely from the jail yard through the gate and across the street. Easily, gracefully he threw himself into the saddle on the back of a horse standing near at hand, and, putting the spurs to the animal, dashed away. "Billy" was gone. He had not escaped in the night. He had walked away in the broad light of day, with his guards, heavily armed, standing about him.

They were not in collusion with the desperado; General Wallace satisfied himself of that fact. But how account for Billy's escape? Hypnotism, some say; hypnotism, or that strange something that lurked in the depth of the steel-gray eyes.

The desperado's freedom, however, was not long lived. He was arrested shortly afterward for a series of murders and brought again to the Lincoln county jail. Patrick Garrett was sheriff; he was probably the one man in New Mexico who did not fear "Billy the Kid." He was his match in every respect—as calm, as desperate, as certain.

Perhaps "Billy" knew this; at any rate, he must have considered himself in desperate straits. He sent for General Wallace. The general refused to respond. Then the outlaw sent him a note. The note read:

"Come to the jail; I have some papers you would not want to see displayed."

"I knew what he meant," says General Wallace. "He referred to the note he received from me and in response to which he appeared at the but on the mesa. He was threatening to publish it if I refused to see him."

In the end the desperado was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. When the sentence was read he stood before the trial judge and said:

"Judge, that doesn't worry me a bit. 'Billy the Kid' was not born to be hung."

He was a thorough fatalist. He believed he bore a charmed life. He believed he would not die until his "time came," and then death was inevitable. From the courtroom "Billy" was led back to the jail. Nine men were put on guard, and he was never allowed a moment from the sight of one of them. On the day before that set for the execution one man sat in front of "Billy" while he ate his dinner. During the meal the guard forgot himself and suddenly stooped. "Billy's" quick eyes took in the situation at a glance. With a leap he sprang upon the bending man and dashed his brains out with his handcuffs. He seized the dead guard's revolver and his steel-gray eyes gleaming, he walked forward deliberately and routed all the other guards, who ran to the assistance of their comrades.

Once more "Billy the Kid" escaped in the full light of day, through the doors of the jail. He forced a blacksmith to break the manacle chains, seized a good horse that stood near by and rode away.

He called back as he spurred the animal into a gallop:

"Tell the judge that I said, 'Billy the Kid' was not born to be hung."

But "Billy" had forgotten one thing; he had not reckoned with the character of the man who was sheriff of the county. Garrett shut his teeth hard, like a man who is determined to accomplish his purpose, no matter the obstacles presenting themselves. He set out to take "Billy the Kid," dead or alive.

Garrett received information that "Billy" had gone back to an old fort in the mountains to see his sweetheart. Garrett followed. He lay in wait in the dooryard of the house of "Billy's" love, and finally his vigil was rewarded when he saw the door open and a man step out into the white light of the moon.

He passed out into the night. Garrett crept to the door and passed in. He covered the girl's father with his gun.

"Not a word," he said, and slid behind the headboard of the bed.

The door opened again, and "Billy the Kid" entered. He seemed to scent danger as a camel scents rain; he did not touch him that something was wrong. He cried to the cowering old man in Spanish:

"Who's here?" he asked. "Who's here?"

Garrett raised his revolver; two shots rang out on the quiet air and the room filled with smoke. A form tottered, then crashed to the floor. In the merciless hand was a smoking revolver; for the first and last time the notorious New Mexican outlaw had missed his aim. Garrett escaped unscathed. But there were two bullet wounds in the body of "Billy the Kid," and both pierced the heart. Garrett's aim was unerring.

Today there is a little lowly heap of earth located at Las Cruces, N. M. To the curious stranger some idle native may, now and again, point out this little grave and explain, with a certain pride, that Las Cruces possesses the final resting place of the worst man that ever infested the Southwestern border.

which in the theory has been demonstrated to be efficient; in these ways and in many others, great good has been accomplished in raising the standard of productiveness in farm work country, in the East or in the West, in the North or the South. Each of us, unless he is contented to be a lumberer on the earth's surface, must strive to do his life work with his whole throughout the country. We live in an era when the best results can only be achieved, if to individual self-help we add the mutual self-help which comes by combination, both of citizens in their individual capacity and of citizens working through the state as an instrument. The farmers of the country have grown more and more to realize this, and farming days tended more and more to take its place as an applied science—though as with everything else, the theory must be tested to practical work and can avail only when applied in practical fashion.

Rugged Independence.

But after all this has been said it remains true that the countryman—the man on the farm, more than any other of our citizens, today, is called upon continually to exercise the qualities which we like to think of as typical of the United States throughout its history—the qualities of rugged independence, masterful resolution and individual energy and resourcefulness. He works hard (for which no man is to be pitied) and often he lives hard, (which may not be pleasant); but his life is passed in healthy surroundings, surroundings which tend to develop a fine type of citizenship. In the country, moreover, the conditions are fortunately such as to allow a closer touch between man and man than, too often, we find to be the case in the city. Men feel more vividly the underlying sense of brotherhood, of community of interest. I do not mean by this that there are not plenty of problems connected with life on the farm, life in our rural districts. There are many problems; and great wisdom and earnest disinterestedness in effort are needed for their solution.

Personal Duty.

After all, we are one people, with the same fundamental characteristics whether we live in the city or in the heart. Each must remember that while he will be noxious to everyone unless he first do his duty by himself, he must also strive ever to do his duty by his fellows. The problem of how to do these duties is acute everywhere; it is most acute in great cities, but it exists in the country, too. A man to be a good citizen, must first be a good bread winner, a good husband, a good father—I hope the father of many healthy children; just as a woman's first duty is to be a good housewife and mother.

The business duties, the home duties, the duties to one's family come first. The couple who bring up plenty of healthy children who leave behind them many sons and daughters fitted in their turn to be good citizens—such a couple emphatically deserves well of the State.

Duty to Neighbor.

But duty to one's self and one's family does not exclude duty to one's neighbor. Each of us, rich or poor, can help his neighbor at times; and to do this he must be brought into touch with him, into sympathy with him. An effort is to be welcomed that brings people closer together, so as to secure a better understanding among those whose walks of life are in ordinary circumstances far apart. Probably the good done is almost equally great on both sides, no matter which one may seem to be helping the other. But it must be kept in mind that no good will be accomplished at all by any philanthropic or charitable work, unless it is done along certain definite lines.

Spirit of Condescension.

In the first place, if the work is done in a spirit of condescension it would be better never to attempt it. It is almost as irritating to be patronized as to be wronged. The only safe way of working is to try to find out some scheme by which it is possible to make a common effort for the common good. Each of us needs at times to have a helping hand stretched out to him or her. Everyone of us slips on some occasion, and shame to his fellow who then refuses to stretch out the hand that should always be ready to help the man who stumbles. It is our duty to remember that there is no earthly use in trying to carry him. If a man will submit to being carried that is sufficient to show that he is not worth carrying. In the long run, the only kind of help that really avails is the help which teaches a man to help himself. Such help every man who has been blessed in life should try to give to those who are less fortunate, and such help can be accepted with entire self-respect.

The Soft Head.

The aim to set before ourselves in trying to aid one another is to give that aid under conditions which will harm no man's self-respect and which will teach the less fortunate how to help themselves as their stronger brothers do. To give such aid it is necessary not only to possess the right kind of heart but also the right kind of head. Hardness of heart is a dreadful quality, but it is doubtful whether, in the long run, it works more damage than softness of head. At any rate both are undesirable.

The prerequisite to doing good work in the field of philanthropy, in the field of social effort, undertaken with ones fellows for the common good, is that it shall be undertaken in a spirit of broad charity. The other day I picked up a little book called "The Simple Life," written by an Alsatian Charles Wagner, and he preaches such wholesome sound doctrine that I wish I could be used as a tract throughout our country. To him the whole problem of our complex, somewhat feverish modern life can be solved only by getting men and women to lead better lives. He sees that the permanence of liberty and democracy depends upon a majority of the people being steadfast in morality and in that good plain sense which as a national attribute comes only as the result of the slow and painful labor of centuries, and which can be squandered in a generation by the thoughtlessness and vicious. He preaches the doctrine of the superiority of the moral to the material. He does not undervalue the material, but he insists, as we of this nation should always insist, upon the infinite superiority of the moral and the sordid destruction which comes upon either the nation or the individual if it or he becomes absorbed only in the desire to get wealth.

Good and Bad Citizens.

The true line of cleavage lies between good citizens and bad citizens and the line of cleavage may, and often does, run at right angles to that which divides the rich and the poor. The sinews of virtue lie in man's capacity to care for what is outside himself. The man who gives himself up to the service of his appetites, the man who the more goods he has the more he wants, has surrendered himself to destruction. It makes little difference whether he achieves his purpose or not. If his point of view is all wrong he is a bad citizen whether he be rich or poor. It is a small matter to the community whether in arrogance and insolence he has misused great wealth or whether though poor he is possessed by the mean and fierce desire to seize a morsel the biggest possible of that prey which the fortunate of earth consume. The man who lives simply and justly and honorably, whether rich or poor, is a good citizen, those who dream only of idleness and pleasure, who hate others and fail to recognize the duty of each man to his brother these be they rich or poor are the enemies of the state.

Misuse of Property.

The misuse of property is one manifestation of the same evil spirit which under changed circumstances denotes the right of property because this right is in the hands of others. In a purely material civilization the bitterness of attack on another's possession is only additional proof of the extraordinary importance of being regarded as a valuable foundation on which happiness may with wisdom be built is mistaken for happiness itself, so that material prosperity becomes the one standard, then alike by those who enjoy such prosperity in lawful or criminal ease and by those who in no less evil manner rail at, envy, and long for it; poverty is held to be shameful, and money, whether well or ill gotten, to stand for merit.

New all this does not mean condemnation of progress. It is mere folly to try to dig up the dead past, and scant is the good that comes from asceticism and retirement from the world. But let us make sure that our progress is in the essential as well in the incidentals. Material prosperity without the moral life toward righteousness means a diminished capacity for happiness and debased character. The worth of a civilization is the worth of the man at its center. When this man lacks moral rectitude, material progress only makes bad worse, and social problems still darker and more complex.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The world is divided into workers and shirkers, and the shirkers have settled down into the complacent belief that it is the business of the workers to carry all the heavy loads.

The entire object of true education is to make people not do the right things, but enjoy the right things.—Ruskin.

Could you see every man's career in life, you would find a woman clogging him or cheering him and goading him.—Thackeray.

Begin by denying yourself and by and by you forget yourself. The kindness which was at first just a duty becomes a pleasure and a joy. Self-denial becomes glorified into self-forgetfulness.

Wisdom is the abstract of the past, but beauty is the promise of the future.—Holmes.

Observations of a Feminine Iconoclast

Some mothers seem to study how to thwart and exasperate their children, doing so with a ridiculous majesty of mien which sickens the onlooker. As soon as they discover the preference of the child for eatable, dress, or diversion, they forbid it.

This is the same kind of woman who poses as a saint. "No, indeed," says she, as she glances at her husband's well-stocked plate. "I have neither inclination nor capacity for a great quantity of food. A little suffices me."

It is now the time of year when the young female fool appears in full dress at the seashore hotel table with brilliant red nose, scaly forehead and cheeks, and with a startling line where the sunburn stops and the natural white skin appears on her shoulders and arms.

Also is now the time of the male idiot who goes out on the sailing trip armed with some of these ten-horse power cheroots. When the inmates of that boat begin to feel precariously, with their dinner, so to speak, hanging in the balance, then does that infernal lunatic draw forth one of his rank cigars, and, with a short and grinning apology, lights up and puffing forth a fearful and bluminous vapor. It is not many minutes before his victims turn their backs upon him and refuse to be comforted.

Where Marriage Is Really a Lottery

In the Russian province of Smolensk there is a most extraordinary lottery every three months.

The tickets cost about two shillings, and there is only one prize. This consists of the entire sum made by the sale of the tickets, amounting to about $50, together with a lady described as of noble birth.

The tickets are only sold to men, and the winner of the prize has to take the lady or forego the money. If married already he may, however, put any friend to whom he wishes to do a good turn in the position of prize winner.

It may happen that the winner of the lottery is willing to marry the lady, but he does not meet with her approval. In that case they are permitted to remain in single blessedness and to divide the money.

It is not difficult to imagine that even in Russia, where old maids are generally looked down upon, the chosen bride may often decide that the sum of two hundred and fifty pounds is a more desirable possession than a lord and master of whom she knows nothing.

HATS ARE USELESS

Do we need hats? asks a writer in the London Globe. With the history of our race, with the dispositions of our ancestors and with the physical ailments of our immediate progenitors we have inherited the notion that the hat is as necessary to bodily salvation as flannels to the cricketer or the "jumper" to the sailor. But is it? According to some authorities there is no more fruitful cause of baldness in men than the tight-fitting box that they jam so remorselessly about their ears. If men would only go about the streets with their craniums exposed to the beneficent rays of the sun and to the genial blessings of Zephyrus, their heads, we are told, would burgeon with crisp young hair and smile like a fertile valley. Children, we are reminded, are ceasing to wear shoes, since sandals are now firmly established in the nursery and on Brighton sands. Soon, therefore—the logic is irresistible—as the child is father to the man, men will put off the topper, the billy-cock, even the delicate straw, and walk hatless under heaven. We have no doubt in the world that it is wisdom to wear hats as little as possible, but we cannot so force our imagination as to picture, even in the dim future, this hatless generation. Besides the disarrangement of one's locks, there is the profound difficulty for the nervous of returning a lady's bow without something to pull from his head, and, in addition even to this, there is the dreadful possibility of colds in the head.—Providence Journal.

"I suppose you made it a point not to miss the Camfante when you were abroad last summer?"

"Oh, yes," answered Mr. Cumrox, unconsciously conscious that his wife's eye was upon him. "Mrs. C. and I always make it a point not to miss any of the great opera singers."—Washington Star.

NEAT INDOOR COSTUME

COURTESY

Courtesy is that quality of soul refinement that is the result of generation after generation of gentle thinking. It is a quality impossible to purchase, impossible to acquire at easy cost.

Polliteness is but the shallow imitation of courtesy, and often masquerades as a refining quality in life, when it is courtesy that truly refines mankind. Polliteness can be assumed, courtesy never. One can be trained upon the surface of the mind, the other must be born in the soul.

It is courtesy that a mother extends to her children; it is love as well, but the delicacy of her attitude toward her offspring is a real lesson in courtesy.

Noble natures are often impolite, often lack surface politeness, but have real courtesy in the soul, where great and good men really live. They would not, they could not, stoop to low, cunning, or contemptible meanness.

Polite people may be the very quintessence of cunning, so artful that the world regards them as delightful people until their shallow souls are uncovered. The difference between the polite person and the courteous soul is as wide as the gulf that separates evil from good.—F. E. Elwell, Curator of Sculpture, Metropolitan Museum of Art.

REFLECTIONS

Be assured that your only treasures are those that you carry in your heart.

As many vices come from things neglected as from things too highly esteemed. There is no great achievement that is not the result of patient working and waiting.

Many Things May Be Used Over and Over

It is an excellent plan to have a box for hat trimmings, in which all the millinery odds and ends left over from season to season may be kept. Fashion rotates with such unerring regularity that good hat trimmings are quite likely to be in demand after two or three have passed. Steel ornaments, for example, are in and out of vogue at intervals. If at all handsome, they are expensive and well worth keeping.

They may be cleaned from dust and discoloration by rubbing them with a brush dipped in paraffin oil and then in emery powder, afterwards polishing with a piece of flannel or chamois. Bits of handsome lace—and this does not mean expensive lace, but the good trimming lace whose services for one season on a hat by no means exhaust their usefulness—should be carefully looked after and preserved.

are in nearly every case of the popular canotier shape, worn tilted over the eyes and trimmed with white wings and loops of snowy satin ribbon. The long drooping hair bows are appearing in a moderate form, but many smart hats are entirely without them, which is really a welcome relief, for if ever a style was done into the ground it was this one.

Pale blue hairy felts are all the rage, but it must be an ethereal evening shade of blue. They are trimmed with pure white.

The Rooster's New Role.

Of course you know that this summer parrots were the latest craze in hat trimming. Well, now it is roosters. Yes, the common barnyard fowl is raised to the dignity of a hat trimming. He squats in a most likable position on the crown of the hat. With head erect and glassy eyes a-twinkle, he certainly looks as if he could crow any minute, and his comb, made of red flannel, is quite warlike and convincing. He is the sole trimming on the felt shape which is usually dark green, black or deep blue in color with edges bound with black velvet. The rooster is a greenish black with the exception of the bright spot of color afforded by his comb. Could any fashion be more foolish?

Shirtwaist Costumes.

Shirtwaist costumes of silk, both changeable and plain, are the thing just now. The silk is soft in texture and for this season wears well. The bright green and changeable blue are the most stylish, and with them are worn sailor and canotier shapes of green felt or silk trimmed with blue or green parrots' wings—in fact, the combination of blue and green is most popular. Dresses of moire—that is, silk and wool moire—are also seen quite frequently. They are made plainly with little strapped effects, and the fit seems to be the one essential.

Plain pale colored taffetas make very handsome evening dresses when combined with rich sating colored lace and chiffon to match the gown. A dress of this sort recently displayed by a dressmaker was all embroidered with Persian medallions and was picked out here and there with tiny touches of black velvet and irregular application of ecru lace.

Applique trimming, by the way, seems to be more popular than ever, even in patchwork style, which most of us thought was condemned. Any number of white dresses are being made up for those of the smart set. These range from white hairy goods trimmed with the heaviest white passementerie to white panne appliqued with Irish crochet and crepe de chine with ornamentalations of fine venetian lace. A good many black chiffon gowns are also putting in their appearance, and one of the handsomest which was shown recently was all appliqued with little ovals of silky black panne outlined by a thin line of black jet. Fashions promise to be rather striking this winter—Kate Clyde in Brooklyn Standard-Union.

A Dozen Recipes For Toothsome Oyster Dishes

A Plain Stew.

Remove the oysters from their liquor and rinse. Strain the juice and put them together into a saucepan. For a quart of oysters add a tablespoonful of butter, four tablespoonfuls of rolled cracker crumbs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and a cupful of cold water. Boil for two minutes and remove from the fire. Just before serving, stir four tablespoonfuls of cream or milk.

Milk Stew.

For a milk stew two cupfuls of milk. Have ready a quart of oysters, a tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of cracker crumbs and a level teaspoonful of salt. Boil for two minutes and add the hot milk.

Cold slaw or cabbage salad and crackers are served with the stew.

Pigs in a Blanket.

Rinse large oysters and season with salt and pepper. Wrap each oyster in a thin slice of bacon and pin it securely with a toothpick. Have a hot frying pan ready and fry until the bacon is crisp. It adds to the flavor if the oysters are first cooked in butter and lemon juice.

Oysters en Brochette.

Plump large oysters in butter and lemon juice or in their own liquor. Fold over each oyster a very thin slice of bacon, transfix it with a skewer, and continue until all are thus used.

The Latest Color Is Sapphire Blue

The very latest arrival from Paris is sapphire blue. It is the new color which French women have made the vogue, and which American women are therefore bound to follow. And it is such a beautiful shade that only the slightest prompting is needed to make it popular.

It is a regular brunette's blue, and the blonde girl who has so long held a monopoly on the blues must give way. Her darker sister can wear the new color equally as well, some say better than can she.

The exact shade of the sapphire blue is hard to describe. It is not a cadet, it is not a navy blue. Either one is common in comparison. It is really darker than the one, lighter than the other and brighter than both.

The gem for which it is named conveys the best idea of the shade, which really matches it. You catch its reflection again in the deepest blues of the summer skies. The woman who is gowned in it conveys the impression of brilliancy, and it takes a regal bearing, the bearing for which the American girl is famed, to carry it well.

Sapphire blue is so new that it has scarcely reached the counters of the department stores as yet. But it is here in the imported gowns which sound the advance note in styles.

It can be had in voile and the softer fabrics, but the distinctive sapphire blue gown is of linen and designed for summer wear. The gowns direct from Paris are hand-embroidered in white and seem, as the combination may seem, made over a foundation of white taffeta silk. Parisian modistes insist on the silk lining, declaring that it gives grace to the rather stiff and more unyielding outer material.

There should be four oysters threaded on each skewer. Place the skewers on a double broiler and broil about two minutes on each side.

Escalloped Oysters.

Butter a baking dish. Have at hand oysters that have been rinsed and juice that has been strained. Put a layer of oysters in the bottom of the dish. Cover with rolled cracker crumbs, dot with bits of butter and season with salt and pepper. Continue in this way with alternate layers of oysters and crumbs until all are used. Turn over the dish enough oyster liquor or milk to moisten the mixture. Cover the top of the dish with buttered crumbs and bake until brown. It will take about twenty minutes. Serve in the baking dish.

The escalloped may also be baked in shells or individual casseroles or ramekins. If the small dishes are used, send each to the table on a folded napkin placed on an individual plate.

Oyster Fritters.

Drain and chop a pint of oysters. Mix with them the oyster liquor, adding enough water to make about one and seven-eighths cupfuls. Mix into batter, with two cupfuls of flour and a heaping teaspoonful of salt. When it is smooth stir in a tablespoonful of olive and two eggs. Drop by small spoonfuls into hot fat and fry until delicately browned. Drain on paper and serve hot.

Broiled Oysters.

Plump oysters should be selected for the purpose. Rinse and dry them with a towel. Sprinkle each oyster with salt and paprika. Have a griddle "hissing" hot. Butter it thoroughly and cover it with the oysters. As fast as they are brown on one side turn them over. Remove to a hot dish in which is melted butter.

Drain and season with salt and paprika twenty-five large oysters. Grease an oyster broiler, arrange the oysters on it, close it, and broil over the coals until they are brown. Have at hand a cupful of the oyster liquor, seasoned with a tablespoonful of butter, salt and paprika. Add the oysters to it and serve hot.

Panned Oysters.

Plump a quart of medium-sized oysters in their own liquor, adding a tablespoonful of butter, a tablespoonful of cracker crumbs, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, and salt and paprika to taste. Serve on toast.

Oysters au Gratin.

Prepare a quart of oysters. Put them in a saucepan, but reserve part of their liquor. Add a heaping tablespoonful

Gowns and Hats

Already the thoughts of fashion's votaries are turning toward cool weather clothing. Most tempting articles of wearing apparel fill the windows, and she will be a strong-minded woman indeed who does not invest in some of these fall novelties.

In the first place, there are those striking little pedestrian costumes, costumes, which have become all the rage since Elsie De Wolfe set the fashion. She was seen wearing one over on the other side while traveling, and immediately a dozen were made like it, for anything in the line of dress which this chic actress chooses to adopt becomes the vogue. Now even the department stores have these undeniably smart suits.

The Norfolk Costume.

They are made in two styles—the plaid blouse, ending in a stitched cloth belt at the waist line and decorated with collar and cuffs of contrasting color in cloth or velvet, and one with the strictly Norfolk effect. The latter is really an acquired taste, if one may express oneself about dress as one might about caviare or olives.

The fact is, the mannish cut is a little startling on the average woman, and you have to get used to it. Imagine a perfectly straight coat exactly like a man's Norfolk, except the sleeves, which have sometimes a softening touch in the shape of fullness or cuffs of a contrasting shade. This coat is not intended to curve in at the waist line, but is bisected by a loose belt of the stitched cloth or one of patent leather like those worn by children.

The skirt which accompanies it is plaited until within ten or twelve inches of the bottom, where it is allowed to flare. It is unlined, and the lower edge is finished with a narrow hem and several rows of stitching.

The jacket is generally lined with some bright silk, either red, the new shade of green or royal blue. But the important point is that the skirt is cut perfectly round and just clears the ground; so good-by to the short skirt and, in one sense, too, good-by to the trained skirt. Both were exaggerations.

The Long Walking Skirt.

One advantage of a long walking skirt is that it can be worn with a far more elaborately trimmed hat than would be possible with the more abbreviated skirt we have been used to, and as the average woman does not look well in a severely tailored-made hat you can see that the new length of skirt is going to be very popular.

Now a word about the materials of which these little suits are made, for the material counts for everything with so plain a costume. The texture is wiry and firm, the most popular pattern a dark blue or brown with tiny white fleckings. Then there are the pepper and salt mixtures, the very narrow and delicate stripes and even tiny checks giving a granite effect. With the dark blues and grays a touch of red in the shape of facings and cuffs is often introduced, in which case the red is duplicated in the hat.

The Latest in Hats.

And, speaking of hats, I am not much impressed with the advance models shown. They look queer, patchy and home-made. Don't you know how the average home-made hat looks? A jumble of everything and nothing in its place. There is a great deal of trimming under the brim, and the brims are generally upturned at such an angle that this is rendered necessary. I noticed in particular one red hat which even had a bunch of red tips placed on the under band, where they gave an odd, lopsided effect.

Some of the tailor-made hats, however, are beauties. Take the hairy white hats, for instance. They are handsomer than ever and really resemble some beautiful white fur. They

Freak Craft Makes No Headway Save In the Way the Wind Blows

As a designer of freak craft Captain William Finn, of 221 Thirty-third street South Brooklyn, takes the blue ribbon, the cake, the palm and the laurel wreath, with all other emblems of the highest success thrown in. Captain Finn calls his freak thing the Shad, and he has not complimented that fish overmuch in doing so.

The unusual and entirely unique design of the Shad is not the sum of its freakiness. About the freakiest thing about it is the way it sails. It sits in the water something like a tub would, and, big, clumsy thing that it is, it is tilted by every wave and away by the gentlest swell. It refuses to sit still even at anchor or when moored at dock.

The Shad arrived in New York waters recently. It came unannounced, and people wondered what the queer looking sloop was as it came into the bay, making a bluff at sailing, but apparently drifting about like a box with sails on it. It came from Savannah, where it was put together eight months ago for a shad fishing boat. The trip from Charleston, S. C., was made in two weeks. Captain Finn was a lone mariner on this trip, except for a short distance that he was accompanied by a negro who deserted him. The queer sloop just rode the waves and slid along on its flat bottom before the wind when it could, and stood still or went backwards when the wind came contrary to the way it was headed.

Captain Finn is a ship's rigger by trade, and nine months ago he decided to go South and fish for shad. He went to Savannah, and, finding no fishing sloop there to suit him, he had one built according to a design he furnished. Finding that the waters around Tybee did not yield the great amount of shad expected, he decided that fishing there was unprofitable. His boat had cost him a little over $1,000, and he didn't care to sell it in Savannah for a big sacrifice, so he decided he would come back to Brooklyn in it. A less intrepid sailor would have paled before such a voyage, but Captain Finn had confidence in his flat bottomed craft. "She skims over the surface of the water just like a flying fish," he says of the Shad. "I've seen her jump five feet forward right clear out of the water."

The trip was a long and tedious one for the lone mariner and he sighed many sighs of relief when he steered the boat into the slip of water at the foot of Twenty-sixth street and moored it.

The Shad is 35 feet long, 12 feet beam, 5 feet deep and draws 2 1/2 feet astern and fourteen inches forward. She has a 14-foot centerboard and is divided below by a transverse bulkhead into cabin and hold. She is crudely built of 2-inch hard Georgia pine plank, unpainted, the cracks being filled with tar. The boat is box-shaped except that one end is turned up a bit, and the sides are narrowed in at the bow to give it somewhat the shape of an ordinary sloop there. Its tall mast is a slender pine tree, trimmed and barked. Its boom is a pine sapling treated likewise. It carries a big area of sail, but it can make little or no headway except in the direction of the wind.

According to Captain Finn the Shad "just sneaks along." On the voyage from Savannah the captain had a hard time with his pet craft, and was lucky that the wind was steady and in the right direction. For forty-eight hours he went without sleep when the crude tiller played out. Some days he got to sleep as much as four hours on a stretch while his boat "just sneaked along."

Captain Finn doesn't know what he will do with the Shad, but talks of using her for codfishing.

THE HUMAN FACE AN OPEN BOOK

The human face is often spoken of as a mask, behind which our real self is sheltered. This is essentially untrue for the face reveals one's hidden character to an exact degree. Any one who has passed the age of 40, and who has been at all observant, can pretty well sum up a stranger's individuality at a glance. Many can do it at the age of 25.

Some aver that it is the general impression from which they reach their decision, others study the features and gather a sum total from the various attributes noted. Each and every one has his own particular way to judge another.

However, we will observe the conformation of the features. It is not the case that because one has such and such a chin or nose he thereby acquires a certain characteristic. But he is apt to have that characteristic if he has that sort of chin or nose, because long observation has found that most people with the chin or nose in question have that peculiar characteristic, and each feature counteracts or adds to the sum total of a nature. To consider the chin first:

A pointed chin signifies that person is hard to please, from the sentimental or matrimonial standpoint.

A person with a narrow, square chin is apt to love unworthily, or to marry beneath him.

The broad, square chin denotes the propensity of earnest devotion, of ardent love, and is usually accompanied by great strength of intellect. Faithful love or constancy is shown by the broad round chin. The owner of such a chin is apt to be of a sanguine temperament. The indented chin denotes the desire to be loved. In a man it is not an admirable sign, unless accompanied by other balancing qualities, as it gives a lightly come and lightly go disposition.

A large mouth is much more to be desired for a man than a small one.

If teeth are long and not narrow the owner has large, liberal views, strong passions, and heroic virtues. Teeth that are long and narrow belong to people of weak character. If broad and short, strong mental powers are indicated—if close together the person has a quick intelligence. Evenly growing teeth show a better disposition and better developed mind than those that crowd and overlap each other. Teeth that project outward show inquisitiveness; if they project outward upon the lower lip the person possesses generosity. If they turn inward the person is penurious. Where the upper teeth project greatly over the lower ones, it shows a nonemotional nature, and a lower order of intellect. Vertical teeth represent an even temper. The more the teeth and gums are displayed in conversation the less profound the mind. Teeth unusually pointed and sharp show a depraved nature.

There is a whole world of tell-tale indications in the apex of the ear. If it lies close to the head and is small the owner possesses a refined, susceptible nature. But if the top starts away from the head at a well-defined angle that person has an uneven disposition, and is not to be relied upon. If the ears stand forward so as to show their entire form, when the face is seen from the front, cruelty is denoted. Delicacy and poetry of feeling are indicated by a thin ear, while a thick one shows the reverse.

The closer the ends of the hair cling together, the more intellectuality does the owner possess. When the ends show a tendency to curl, it is an infallible sign that the owner has inherent grace and poetic ease of body. The straighter and less yielding—though not necessarily harsh—the hair, the firmer and more positive is the woman's nature. Treachery and jealousy hide beneath lusterless or dead black hair nine cases out of ten. Hair that may appear of the finest texture and be glossy almost to brilliancy, when viewed at a little distance, but that on close examination is found to have a broken or split appearance—indicates an unbalanced character; a woman with an excess of especially queer notions, and one who, while she may be nice enough to bow to on the street, should be avoided as an intimate friend.

Being Civil Engineer I am subject to Sciatic pains, Cramps from fording streams, sleeping out of doors in tents, etc. I have derived more relief and benefit from these troubles from one bottle of Kickapoo Indian Oil than from a dozen doctors, and this is without exaggerating."—E. ## REGION of the LAST ERUPTION

FRENCH CRUISER SUCHET.

MT. PELEE IN ERUPTION.

The island of Martinique bids fair to be either wiped out or made practically uninhabitable in consequence of the recurring outbreaks of Mount Pelee. The last outbreak, in which several thousand lives were destroyed, has caused more widespread fear among residents of other sections of the island than at St. Pierre. Following the first outburst a degree of security was engendered by the belief that the volcanic forces had expended their power, and other parts of the island were reasonably safe. This is disproved by more recent events. The French cruisers Suchet and Tage are constantly on duty to render service as may be required.

JOHNSON'S CAMPAIGN CIRCUS

Mayor Tom's campaign for control of the State of Ohio, which began a few days ago, is one of the most unique ever attempted in any city or any other State. It partakes of all the features of a circus—the tent, seats, wagons, band of music, horses, etc.

His Original Idea.

The scheme is original with Mayor Tom, as the rotund chief executive is familiarly called in Cleveland. First, he ordered a tent with a seating capacity of 6,000 people, then he ordered another of the same size, lest something should happen to the first. The second one is held in Cleveland ready for shipment on an hour's notice.

Next Johnson visited a factory which makes circus seats. The result was an order for the platform, horses, and boards for seats. He also ordered 500 seats for the ladies, for he invites them especially to attend his meetings.

A wagon-maker was next seen, and when the interview was over, Mayor Tom had signed a check, and the wagon-maker was happy. In a few weeks his shop turned out ten huge circus wagons twenty feet high, and big in proportion.

Run Like a Circus.

"This is to be my circus," said Johnson, when all these things were ready, "and it shall be run just like a circus." He selected for his manager, C. J. Wagner of New York, who once managed a big show. Wagner hired a boss canvasser man, boss animal man, and boss seat man, all of them experienced men, and they in turn hired men to run their different departments. Next a tall sized the whole bunch up, and in a few days, neat shawl suits were delivered, also blue shirts and campaign hats. Everybody was thus uniformed. Meanwhile, fifty horses had been bought.

Then Mayor Tom sent for Wagner. "Circus all ready?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many pieces in the band?"

"The Biggest Band in Town."

"Haven't any band."

"What? You going to run a circus without a band? Go have the biggest one in town—union band, of course," and Wagner did. He hired a band of forty pieces, and then announced that the grandest, most stupendous, most expensive political show on earth was ready to take the road. Great banners were painted, and streamers on the sides of the caravan horses bore the legend:

TOM L. JOHNSON Will Speak In THE BIG TENT TONIGHT.

The caravan left Cleveland some time ago. At its head, in his big red automobile, "The People," rode Mayor Tom.

from the local electric light company in each town. The men are all experienced and know their business.

Parading the Town.

After dinner at 6 p. m. the band parades the town, not to gather the crowd, for that gathers itself, but to "make some noise," as Johnson puts it. When the concert is over the big show begins. With Johnson are all the State candidates, who travel by train. Local candidates are also invited to speak. And several days before the arrival of the circus local Republican leaders receive personal letters from Johnson inviting them to speak. He pledges them courteous treatment, and a fair share of the time. If they accept, as two or three have, he puts pointed questions to them concerning taxation and public service franchise.

They try to apologize and this gives him the chance he has waited for. The crowd always hugely enjoys this "act." After the show, Johnson seeks a host tel, the circus men go to sleep and the caravan takes the road again at daylight. It is scheduled to keep on until November 3, and that the Republicans are alarmed by it is shown by Hanna's determination to bring in the President and his Cabinet for campaign speeches in Ohio, to offset the effect of the circus.

Johnson is bearing every cent of the expense. The outfit cost him $125,000 and the cost per day is estimated at about $2,500. But Johnson is worth $3,000,000, and can afford to turn politics into a circus if it amuses him.

He is having lots of fun out of the campaign, besides being sure that he will turn the State over into the Democratic camp.

DISMISAL?

"Forgive," you pray; again, "forgive!" But still you throw To Stella, passing there below, A glance too lingering and sweet; And still you greet Fair Ida, with that tender smile— Yet all the while "Forgive," you pray; "forgive!"

"I love," you cry; "I love but you!" And yet you bend O'er Rome's hand, and will not end From whispering to Isabel Quick words, that tell In her bright eye and glowing cheek: "Then me you seek."

To cry, "I love but you!" Go to, poor trifler! You must know That he who elms Too freely from all pretty lips And finds in every lovely eye Cause for a sigh.

Dwells but a moment in the thought And then—in naught.

And yet—I do not know!—Hildegard! Hawthorne! In October Smart Set.

"Briggs was lucky to escape from that boarding house fire," "Yes; fairly lucky. His wife got out wearing his only suit of pajamas, and now she refuses to give them up."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SAID BY ROOSEVELT

It is a good thing to have great factories and great citizens, but it is a better thing to have strong and decent men and women.

Play is a first-rate thing, so long as you know it is play.

We shall win out in the future, not by seeking to take the course that is pleasantest, but by finding out the course that is right and following that.

You must trust to the citizen himself to work out the ultimate salvation of the state.

The crimes of craft and the crimes of violence are equally dangerous.

The worst enemy of the people, upon whose behalf mob violence is often invoked, is the man who invokes it.

It is not a kindness to bring up a child in the belief that it can get through life by shirking the difficulties.

I despise the man who will not work.

STRANGE POKER GAME

"The last poker game in which I participated occurred in Santa Fe some five or six years ago," said Capt. R. F. Turnbull of New Mexico, at the Riggs House.

"The Territorial legislature was in session, and, of course, when night came a good many of the members resorted to cards for amusement. I had set my face against the seductions of draw, and hadn't been in a 'seance' for ten years prior to this affair. I had quit for sundry good reasons, and I never expected to 'throw' a card again, but somehow I yielded to the importunities of friends, and found myself in a party of six, where everybody had a good sized roll and the limit had been taken off from the outset.

"There is no thrilling incident to relate, no story of marvelous hands, no fight with knife or pistol. It was one of the quietest, pleasantest games you ever heard about, and not a rude or profane word was spoken. From start to finish luck had been on my side. I did not hold any extraordinary cards, but somehow I always had the top hands, and as I played them for all they were worth, many a big pot came my way.

"We played all night long. Nearly every man was loser except myself. When daylight came I was over $5000 winner. Of the other players, three had lost this entire amount; one was about even, and the remaining one was not over $400 to the good. I very much wanted to quit, not because I was ahead, but because the coming day had much important work for me.

"Finally, as I watched the drawn and eager faces of the losers, and saw how keen they were to keep the game going, I formed a resolve which I put into almost instant execution. I began separating my chips into four piles; three of which I calculated represented the amounts due the bank from the trio of losers. The fourth, a much smaller stack, was what I had bought out originally.

"Here, gentlemen," I said, pushing back my chair, "this game ends, so far as I am concerned," and then I shoved over to each unfortunate chips enough to make him whole. "Take these, with my compliments." They protested against what they called my silly liberality. There wasn't a man present that couldn't afford to lose what he had that night, but I had no notion of taking my friends' money, even though I had fairly won it. That was my last game of draw, and nothing could induce me to ever play again."—Washington Post.

HER LATEST DISCOVERY.

When speaking "In Praise of Books" at the commencement exercises of Bryn Mawr College, Richard Watson Gilder told of a good friend of his who found in almost every new book taken up something to surprise her. "Something so very much in the nature of a discovery," he said, "that it became a sort of joke among us—these 'discoveries' of hers.

"A party of us were making that ever-wonderful Hudson river trip once," he went on, "and this woman, whom I regard as one of the ablest of the workmen and appearance of the devil idea in literature, both sacred and profane. It was obviously her latest discovery, and her enthusiasm was such that at Peekskill one of the party went ashore and wired a mutual friend in New York:

"Emma has discovered the devil!" The telegram did not reach its destination until quite late that night, and the recipient was feeling a bit under the weather. It was this combination, taken with the seeming triviality of the message, that inspired the reply: "Tell Emma to follow up her discovery."—New York Times.

THAT FLY.

In fluent speech vociferous You oburgate that fly; You style him most pestiferous— And still he hovers nigh.

With maddening pertinacity He lingers near your face, With confident audacity Settles ever in one place.

His appetite's insatiable; Upon your cheek he's glued; Apparently he never ate Of such ambrosial food.

You strike at him in frenzied ire With well-directed aim— Whilst he's off like a house a-fire, But he comes back just the same.

Your futile rage, oh, angry man, You'd better far resign And give, with all the grace you can, The fly a chance to dine.

A rosy buzz of victory, And lo, he speeds away, To come again in elfin glee And feast another day.

—Eugene Ross in New York Sun.
