CONTRACT & BOND HANAPEPE SCHOOL BUILDING

Contractor Geo. E. Marshall drew the attention of the Board to the fact that no provision had been made in the contract signed by the Board and himself as to the manner in which payments were to be made and requested that some provision be made. Upon motion, duly seconded, the following was to be inserted and become a part of said contract.

"Payments made under the contract shall not be conclusive evidence of the performance of the contract, either the whole or in

THE PASSION TIDE SERVICES INSPIRING

The special passion tide services were more than usually inspiring and helpful and more than usually well attended this year. They were quietly devotional in tone of a highly intelligent and profoundly suggestive character, reaching down to the deepest things of life. Instead of dealing with the more or less hackneyed themes of superficial religion, they dwelt on the deeper interests that are vital to all thinking people whatever their belief or lack of it. The interest culminated in the Good Friday Service when the audience was held spell-bound and in tears by the portrayal of Divine Love as typified by the Shunamite woman and her stricken suffering child.

Such reverent and inspiring meditation cannot help being a solace and a benediction to the feverish trend of life even here at the far ends of the earth.

part, and no payments so made shall be deemed an acceptance of defective work or improper or unsuitable materials. Payments will be made on monthly estimates of the value of the amount of work done [materials furnished and incorporated into the structure] to the extent of 80% of such value. When the work contracted for is fully completed in accordance with plans and these specifications, and accepted by the Commission, and all liabilities fulfilled, final payment will be made."

The Secretary was instructed to notify the Superintendent of Public Works of the insertion of this clause.

KOLOA, April 6.—Mr. W. R. Felter, well-known throughout the Islands as an expert accountant accompanied by Mrs. Felter, arrived here today. Mr. Felter having accepted the position of bookkeeper for the Koloa Plantation. Both Mr. and Mrs. Felter are accomplished musicians and will be warmly welcomed into Koloa's social circle. They returned from a vacation to the coast by the last Sierra, remaining but a few hours in Honolulu before taking the Hall for their new destination.

Mr. H. H. Brodie, Superintendent of Public Schools, Island of Kauai, made certain recommendations as to changes in the front and back elevations of the building and in regard to excavations. After general discussion the suggestions were agreed to and the Contractor stating that he was willing to carry out the changes without extra cost, the Secretary was instructed to write him a letter embodying the proposed changes for his formal acceptance and agreement to carry out.

NARROWLY ESCAPES FALL TO DEATH

Cow on Trestle Causes
Big Pilikia--Stops
Engine

LIHUE'S EASTER SERVICES

A tragedy was narrowly averted last Thursday night, when freight train No. "23" of the Lihue and Hanamaulu division ran over a cow which had apparently attempted to cross the bridge which spans the Hanamaulu River near Hanamaulu at the dizzy height of nearly two hundred feet.

The train pulled out of Lihue, empty shortly after eight o'clock. On approaching the Hanamaulu bridge, Engineer Figueira brought his engine to the usual speed, and to his carelessness in so doing, probably the entire train crew owes its life. He had scarcely entered the bridge when his engine was observed to be acting strangely. He applied the breaks but before the engine could be brought to a full stop, the front wheels had been lifted from the track. A hurried investigation revealed the remains of a cow which had been run down and become entangled with the machinery. A wrecking crew soon appeared on the scene and succeeded in clearing the track without considerable delay. Had the engine toppled over, a sheer drop of nearly two hundred feet to almost certain death to the train crew would have resulted. The engine was slightly damaged.

LIHUE CHURCH EASTER SERVICE

The Easter Service at the Lihue Union church Sunday morning was more than usually interesting and effective.

The church was beautifully and profusely decorated in white and green lilies the feathery bamboo predominating. A magnificent large bouquet of Culla lilies given by Mrs. C. H. Rice was specially admired. The appropriate Solo "I know that my Redeemer Liveth" was most effectively rendered by Mrs. Wm. Henry Rice. A modest but singularly sweet and restful anthem by the choir relieved the more jubilant Easter hymn--which were rendered much more inspiring by the violin accompaniment of Mrs. F. L. Putman.

The address dwelt on the significance of the vitality of Christianity as a justification of its origin.

The special collection for the Hawaiian Board aggregated $23.00.

COUNTY FATHERS PROVIDE A HOME

Probably the most important transaction which has ever taken place in Lihue since the creation of County Government, was the purchasing of a town site for "the Lihue," by the County Fathers at their meeting last Wednesday morning.

The newly acquired property, embraces a five, acre tract of land beginning at the lower side of the Lihue Park, the same now being in cane which will be harvested at once, in order to expedite preparations for the construction of county buildings.

The county paid five hundred dollars per acre for its share in the new town site, and it is understood that some handsome structures will shortly be built thereon. A courthouse, jail, county offices and an upper story with large hall facilities, are said to be among the possibilities.

Surveyors will shortly be put to work on the laying out of town lots along the makai side of Main Street, and the prospects for a real estate boom in Lihue are at present exceedingly promising.

Mrs. W. H. Rice Jr., will be hostess at a luncheon Thursday afternoon.

The names of the winners are: Sua Takemoto, grade VI; Sinkichi and Shinji Nishimoto, grade III; Blarcito Camastio, grade I. Two brothers in the second grade being equally commendable, in every way, I divided the amount between them.

Yours respectfully,
Miss M. S. McClymont.

Dear Mr. Bridgewater:

This is a little note that the little girl wrote (enclosed.) She is seven years old and in the first grade. She worked very hard to get the money, most of the children did I think.

Voices could be heard everywhere saying, "Good man, Mr. Bridgewater, eh?" and "Mr. Bridgewater never can forget us, etc."

I wish you could visit us oftener for the children love to see you.

I wish to thank you also as well as my pupil for your kindness.
April 5, 1912.

My dear Mr. Bridgewater:

Your nice letter with its four big dollars came to us on Wednesday. Yesterday morning, just after flag salutation.

In due time they were presented to the winners and it is needless to tell you that the fortunate ones were delighted and even to the less fortunate ones, it seemed a happy event for, with the handing out of each dollar there was a "storm of applause."

The children are sending you letters by this mail.

With good wishes and many, many thanks for this kindness and the many others, I remain.

Very sincerely yours,

He Did!

The hour was late and the young men at the dance had removed their gloves.
One girl present, fearing for her dainty gown as she glanced at the moist hands of her perspiring partner, said shyly: "Pardon me, would you mind using your handkerchief?"
The young man hastily drew out his handkerchief and blew his nose.

"FIELD" day sports in Honolulu are all the rage at present.

AND it is also noticed that the initials "T. R." stand for "To Retire."

WHEN H. T. Hancuff of Holton, Kansas, announced himself as a candidate for sheriff, it shatters the Shakespearean tradition that there is nothing in a name.

THE appropriation of several hundred thousand dollars for the Nawiliwili harbor, begins to give unmistakable evidence of "who's who" in the Kauai port affair.

THE GARDEN ISLAND has entered into compact with the Promotion Committee of Honolulu, to "Boost Kauai for Tourist trade," and would welcome communications of such a nature from any source. As soon as possible.

THE world seems to have accepted in good faith the statement that Roald Amundsen, the intrepid Norwegian, has discovered the South Pole, but how many people believe that either Cook or Peary reached the North end?

THE controversy over the authorship of the Houn' Dawg song is still raging and it is now said to be an old German cradle song written before 1499. It seems to be a settled conviction, however, that the man who wrote it, is dead, and still another conviction is that he ought to have died before he wrote it.

In a recent issue of the Hawaiian Star, we observe that it alluded to itself as the first newspaper in the Territory having had a building constructed especially for the purpose. We beg to enlighten the Star somewhat by saying that THE GARDEN ISLAND has occupied such a building for nearly a year.

At last we have the faint gleam of a hope for real political reform.
A New York man is reported to have offered an Easter hat to each woman worker who discovered an attempt to record an illegal ballot in the New York primary election.
If a woman with an Easter hat as an incentive, can't bring political reform, then this republic might as well shut up shop and go out of business.

EDITOR GARDEN ISLAND:

In order to settle an argument, please let me know through the columns of your valuable paper, what per cent of our taxes is devoted to public school purposes.
CITIZEN.

Out of the sum of one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars paid into the county treasury for taxes, the public school system is allowed ten thousand dollars, which amounts to nearly six per cent of the sum total.—Ed.

EDITOR GARDEN ISLAND:

KINDLY explain to me the meaning of the term "The Initiative,"
"The Recall," "The Referendum."

READER.
The "initiative" is the right of the people by petition, to present bills to the voters to approve in a general election, irrespective of the legislature.

The "recall" is the right of the people by petition to compel a public official to stand election at any time.

The "referendum" is the right of the people by petition to submit any law passed by the legislature to the voters for approval or repeal at a general election.—Ed.

A Little of Everything Worth Knowing

Smart Dressing

Street gloves are seen with impression clasps.

All varieties of fringe will continue in high favor.

Plain, flat revers will be a predominating feature in spring suits.

Pearl decorations have a wonderful popularity; they "belong" everywhere.

Draped toques of satin and changeable taffeta are extremely fashionable.

A most unusual costume was fashioned from black velvet. The skirt, slightly wider than those popular earlier in the season, had a hem of ermine. The coat was a tunic. A design of roses and tendrils made of ermine covered the back and front. An ermine scarf was worn with this.

First hats for springs are either small and close or large and high trimmed.

Faille is a ribbon weave that is expected to be in good demand for millinery trimming.

Collarettes continue to be much worn, and they appear in many new designs with fancy edgings.

Tailor-made dresses are severely plain, with the same tailoring and finish that are given to suits.

Hat scarfs of changeable silk, with wide bordered ends in artistic colorings are a novelty for the spring "tailored" hats.

Velvet leaves cut out and applied on satin or taffeta hats are another form of trimming which has been introduced lately.

Gray, united to one of the deeper shades of yellow, is one of the most fashionable of color combinations.

The new bag-cap is attractive for the theater, dance or restaurant. It is made of fine chiffon, through which the hair may plainly be seen. A band of jeweled meshwork, finished by dangling ornaments over the ears completes the cap. This is a style borrowed from the long ago. The ladies stowed away their hat in nets richly encrusted with jewels. Great pride was taken in the possession of these beautiful head ornaments.

Swelled head with running at the nose is a good indication of roup.

Fine houses and fine feathers will not make hens lay; egg-making food is essential.

Don't overfeed the chickens or the hens. They do better if they have to scratch for what they get.

Milk in any form is both meat and drink for laying hens, as it contains constituents of white or albumen of eggs.

Let the fowls share the surplus milk with the pigs. It furnishes material for both eggs and healthy growth of bone and muscle.

For hatching, select smooth, shapely eggs, discarding very large or very small ones, and these if possible, from the best layers.

Young ducks and geese must be kept away from water to swim in until they are at least a month old. Give them an abundance of drinking water in vessels that they cannot get into with their bodies.

Boys, persuade your parents to buy a pair, trio or pen of pure bred poultry. Select some practical variety, build a small house and make your own yards; feed and care for them. Keep an account of money spent and received. At the end of the year you will have derived much pleasure, turned to some use your time, and derived some money profit.

It is an excellent idea to use sawdust for the inside of the hen house, and especially under the roosts, as it will absorb all the moisture which gathers there. All the wet sawdust should be cleaned out each week and dry sawdust put in its place for as soon as it becomes thoroughly wet it cannot absorb any more moisture, and, when in this way, is really a nuisance, but if replaced with dry sawdust each week it will simply be a very easy way to keep the house clean from filth.

Bloomers were named for Mrs. Amelia Bloomer, a popular lecturer and editor of the "Lily." She only wore them for a few years, renouncing them "lest she should only be remembered by that."

Floriculture Notes

With increased sun the plants will need more water.

Sow the annual candytuft in the spring as early as the ground can be planted.

It is a fact not generally known that chrysanthemums and geraniums can be grown in the same pot without fear of mixing.

More beautiful effects can be secured from the flower garden by a little careful study of the ground to be devoted to that purpose.

The pink, called by some the "flower of perfection," can be easily grown and your spring order should include one or two of the tested varieties.

If you haven't yet received one of the new seed catalogues, send to one of the established houses for one, as you are almost sure to want a new variety of flower this year.

Hydrangeas, amaryllis and other plants which have been wintered in the cellar or set aside for their period of rest, may now be brought out into the sunlight for fresh

A poultice of cranberries is recommended as a cure for erysipelas.

Try taking cod liver oil in tomato catsup if you want it to be palatable.

No girl need complain that she cannot take exercise so long as she can walk.

Trimming the eyelashes will weaken the eyes as well as make the ends stubby.

Oil of cinnamon, applied twice a week, will cure warts.

The practice of wearing eyeglasses belonging to other persons is extremely injurious.

A hot salt bath just before retiring is recommended in cases of nervous restlessness.

Do not eat between meals habitually, or at irregular intervals. Lettuce, if taken in time with lemon juice, will cure jaundice.

Pure sweet oil is an excellent and mild laxative for infants and young children.

A salt water gargle is a simple and effective remedy for an ordinary sore throat.

When the liver is out of order take plenty of outdoor exercise and breathe deeply.

A dyspeptic can eat and retain raw eggs when nothing else will stay on the stomach.

A few waving locks about the forehead, temples and ears are becoming to a thin face.

If He Were Not.

An English clergyman turned to a Scotchman and asked him: "What would you be were you not a Scot?"

The Scotchman said: "Why, an Englishman, of course!"

Then the clergyman turned to a gentleman from Ireland and asked him: "And what would you be were you not an Irishman?"

The man thought a moment and said: "I'd be ashamed of myself!"

Humorous Threat

"How—"

The savage chief held a glittering spear near the captive missionary.

"—do you like this?"

His tone was not facetious, but the captive was undismayed.

"Well, if you ask me—"

He glanced at the weapon, the propinquity of which was not comforting.

"—it goes against my stomach!"

Unfortunately, however, the captive was in a locality where there is no market for humor, and the end came soon.

Hints On Etiquette

A letter or note sent by a friend should never be sealed.

Formal calls are made between the hours of 3 and 6.

Invitations should be sent a week or more in advance of entertainment.

Politeness is like charity; it may cover a multitude of the sins of personal defects.

True politeness simply consists in treating others as you yourself would wish to be treated.

Street costumes are worn by guests at a luncheon; they remove their wraps, but retain their hats.

Cultivate the gentle art of listening; a good listener is often more appreciated than a good talker.

When calling, if the doorbell is not answered it is customary to slip the calling card under the door.

It is permissible and an act of friendship and courtesy to shake hands with your hostess on leaving.

First calls should always be returned promptly, within ten days or a fortnight if possible, and within a month at least.

For a small party informal notes of invitation may be sent; if a large affair have engraved invitations formally worded.

Although it is not obligatory to call upon the guest visiting a friend, it is a polite and delicate attention and one appreciated by both.

Cultivate the habit of saying pleasant things; you can do this without being insincere. If you look for it there is something good in every one.

A formal call should be of at least ten or fifteen minutes' duration, but not over half an hour unless you would have your hostess "twice speed her guest."

If unable to attend a reception given in honor of some one, send or mail your cards to whomever issues the invitations on the afternoon of the reception.

When introduced, men always shake hands, and it is also permissible for women to do so; in fact, the handshake is often an indication of the character.

The professional title of the husband should not be used on the wife's calling card. A doctor's wife should have her cards engraved: Mrs. John Samuel Brown.

If receiving an invitation to a wedding you cannot or do not care to attend, your calling card should be mailed so it will reach its destination on the day of the wedding.

Why It Was.

"These certainly are delicious snails," commented a diner at a New York hotel, as he eagerly devoured a dish of the toothsome morsels.

"First you have ever eaten, sir?" politely asked the waiter.

"No, but we don't get them where I live," said the diner.

"No?" asked the waiter. "And where is that, may I ask?"

"Philadelphia," was the laconic answer.

"Why," said the astonished waiter, "have you no snails in Philadelphia?"

"Oh, yes," answered the man, "we have them but we can't catch them."

By Faith Made Whole

With a collie, tawny, brown and white, clear marked, thoroughbred, Stevent, editorial writer and cynic, strode into the office and threw his gloves on the desk nearest the window. When he was not working there, it was always neatly piled with manuscript and papers. And it was the only one that was. The others were strewn and littered from Monday morning until Saturday night. Sunday did no better for them. It sort of went with success in the craft—to throw things around. The chief did it; and everybody knew the chief could "push a pen." Billy, now, was neat; and heaven knows Billy was slow to catch. He didn't look very well when he was on; son of the chief, though, rubbing the soft green mold-off the first year out of college.

When the new editor first came on, the force regarded him critically. This habit of neatly stacking up things met with disdain. "Not much in him with that for a start," Butts had said. Butts was telegraph man and used to copy, pots of paste, shears and men all in a jumble. "Not much, I guess," the rest agreed; and there opinion stuck for a week.

But Macafee, mayor, political boss and scoundrel underneath, made a try, just here, for state politics; using for leverage the municipal office he had insulted and bemaneled. Most people were afraid of Macafee; Stevens was assigned to him. He took care of him nicely, and after the first shot from his pen neither the force nor Macafee doubted the ability that handled it.

The political boss interviewed the editor to fight or make terms; at the end of the interview there remained no doubt in his mind that Steven's tongue was as direct as his pen. Election proved the point of his work.

After that, the new editor was "Steve" around the office. That marked his solid footing, and he could rubberband and tabulate his doggoned stuff, if he chose. Butts said.

When Steve was sitting, he didn't look tall; but he was. His shoulders were wide and straight across and his sides lined solidly up and down, with little intake at the waist. There were long legs thrust under the desk, and this was where his inches lay. He had done hurdles and the pole vault at college, the same, Billy spoke of every day for his own. But nobody supposed Steve knew the place: Billy claimed office honors from there.

This morning Steve was late. The desk nearest the window had received several glances from the chief; but he acknowledged Steven's greeting with a nod, as though he hadn't been thought of for a week. The collie came and sniffed around, but lay down at Steve's "Charge Tam!"

For an hour there was stillness in the room, save for the sound of pens, stub ones, tearing over rough yellow copy paper. There was plenty of noise in the hall; "devils" scurrying along with proof and bringing back copy; reporters up two steps at a time to get up stuff for the noon edition; the pound of presses; the click of telegraph and ring of telephone.

A boy knocked at the door and came in without waiting for answer. The chief looked up and nodded. "Ready, Stevens?"

"One page," and Stevens flung out to the boy the sheets shoved in a pile at his left, and went on writing. The older man glanced over the closely written matter, waited a minute to receive the remainder and then put it all, with some stuff of his own, into a wire basket on the leaf pulled out of his desk. The messenger picked it up and went on the run down the hall.

The chief swung round in his chair and sat regarding the profile over by the window. Stevens was pulling the collie's ears and stroking them back; but he wasn't looking at the dog. Something up the street held his attention, not his especial interest, though. You couldn't be just clear where that was; but it wasn't up the street. His eyes were gray, not large and not small, but well set. They were much darker in the center, and this area had a habit of deepening when he was bearing his thought down hard. He was looking this way now.
