Freight From New York Will Come In Thirty-Five Days' Time DIRECT BOAT FROM SALINA CRUZ

Honolulu is to have a 35 day freight schedule from New York. This announcement was made today by the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co. which is enabled to make this time, which cuts the present schedule nearly in half, through the new Tehuantepec route. The need of better accommodations for this city in the handling of New York freight has been felt for some time and has been met by the American-Hawaiian with a special service for which the steamship Nebraska will be used.

The new service will commence next month and the Nebraska will leave Salina Cruz, the Pacific port of the Mexican National Railroad, on April 24. She will come direct from there to Honolulu where she will load sugar for the return. If this boat is kept on the same run she will be able to make the trip every six weeks, the sailing time between her and Salina Cruz being 12 days and the rest of the interval being used in discharging cargo and loading sugar.

For freight to reach here by the Nebraska on her first trip it should be ready to leave New York on or before April 2. This will give plenty of time for the trip to the isthmus and for any extra time which may be needed in handling at that point. The Nebraska, while one of the smaller of the American-Hawaiian boats, can carry 5000 tons of cargo and should, on her new schedule, be of great convenience to the merchants of Honolulu. She is commanded by Capt. Knight, who is well and favorably known in this city and her other officers are all old timers here.

NINTH DAY.

FORENOON SESSION.

The House was called to order at 9 o'clock this morning. Superintendent of Public Works Holloway informed the House that he was ready to appear before the committee at any time.

Auditor Fisher also informed the House that he was ready to meet the House Finance Committee when wanted.

The Speaker ordered that ten copies of each bill introduced be furnished C. R. Buckland for the use of the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association.

Long reported for the Education Committee on House Bill 44 and recommended three appropriations for repairs to school houses.

The appropriation for the school house at Kaimaliu was withdrawn at the request of the proposer, Hon. Kaimaliu.

The appropriation for repairing Holoaia school was tabled, as the title of the property was questionable.

House Bill 50, relating to an appropriation of $1,500 for building a new school house for Panalua, Kau, was tabled.

House Bill 49, providing appropriations for repairs to school houses, was recommended by the committee.

The Education Committee recommended that appropriations be made for repairs to schools in Kohala.

House Bill 45, the Education committee recommended the passage of appropriations for repairs to schools in Kau; for repairs to schools at Honomakau, Pololu, Honolua, Makapala, Halawa.

Hughes, chairman of the Public Expenditures and Accounts Committee, reported on Attorney General's Department expenditures. The committee condemned the practice of the Attorney General in paying the court officer and Detective Doyle's salaries out of incidental appropriations and recommended that a rider be attached to the appropriation bill for current expenses, prohibiting the payment of salaries under said bill.

Correa introduced a resolution providing appropriations for the following purposes: For completion and extension of School street, $15,000; lane from School street to Kuahini road, $10,000.

Moanani introduced a resolution providing $10,000 for educating poor children in the colleges or universities of the mainland.

Money for Salaries.
Secretary Atkinson informed the House that the Governor had signed the following bills:

House Bill 13, an act to appropriate money for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the session of the House of Representatives, Territory of Hawaii, of the year 1907 from the public treasury.

Senate Bill 20, an act to appropriate money for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the regular session of the Senate of the Legisla-

NINTH DAY.

The Senate enjoyed a very interesting session this morning. From the point of view of the members and officers it was especially interesting on account of the fact that they got their first installment of their pay. The Senate passed the House concurrent resolution accepting the $30,000 appropriation made by Congress to pay for legislative expenses, swallowing the proviso that they must not claim pay for an extra session, like a bitter dose of medicine, though they did make a wry face at taking it. It was evidently not the pecuniary consideration which bothered the Senators, but they certainly did not like the lack of confidence which it implied.

Immediately after the passage of the resolution the gubernatorial big stick was put back in its closet and the echo of the ayes had not died away when Secretary Atkinson brought in the message announcing that the appropriation bills for Senate and House expenses had been signed and were thus available.

The Senate convened at 10 a. m. House Concurrent Resolution 5, accepting the $30,000 Congressional appropriation, though condemning the proviso it carried with it, came up from the House, and Coelho moved that it pass.

Dowsett amended to refer to the Judiciary Committee. Coelho said the Senate was being held up. This delay was simply for the purpose of getting a legal opinion. The amendment was put in to prevent the poor man from getting into the Legislature.

The motion to refer was lost.

Resolution Is Passed
The motion to pass was put to the aye and no vote. Makekau, McCarthy and Smith voted no; Hayelden, Woods, Hewitt, Dowsett, Chillingworth, Lane, Coelho, Gandall, Knudsen, Kalama and Bishop, aye.

Immediately upon the resolution having passed, a message was received from the Governor that he had signed the two bills appropriating $30,000 and $20,000 for House and Senate expenses respectively.

House Bill 50, amending section 122 Revised Laws, passed first reading and was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

To Raise Court Clerks' Pay
A petition was received asking that the salaries of Circuit Court Clerks be raised to $125 a month, that the bailiffs be made ex officio assistant clerks, that their pay be raised to $100, and that of the stenographers $200 a month. Referred to the Ways and Means Committee to be considered with the Appropriation bill.

Lane introduced a bill giving the Governor, with the approval of the Senate, the appointment of Tax Assessors, which has formerly rested with the Treasurer. Passed first reading.

Dowsett reported for the Ways and Means Committee reported on the additional appropriation bill.

CARTER WINS FIGHT WITH LEGISLATURE

Solons Are Bluffed By Brandishing Of Big Stick

GOVERNOR SIGNS $50,000
APPROPRIATION BILL

As Soon as the Law-makers Promise
To Be Good, the Executive Allows Them Their Money

Governor Carter has won out in his first fight with the Legislature. He brandished the big stick and the Solons played the part of Davy Crockett's coon—"Don't shoot, I'll come down."

It was easy. The Governor had them dead to rights and they couldn't even squirm. They wanted to soak him, but they were afraid. It was a cold bluff, but it worked like a charm.

It was that $50,000 appropriation bill to pay the expenses of the legislative session that did it. The law makers wanted the money and they wanted it badly.

The row was over the matter of the acceptance of the Federal appropriation of $50,000 with a string to it. The Governor insisted that the Legislature should promise that in case of an extra session, they would draw no pay for it and no mileage fees.

"That didn't look at all good to them. 'What are we here for anyway?' seemed to be the idea of many of them. 'Let it to get our hands in the public crib? There is a chance for us to make $200 a piece for an extra session, and why should we forego that?'"

But when it came to the matter of signing the appropriation bill for $50,000 to pay the expenses of the session, the Governor held back. He let it be understood that when the Legislature agreed to accept the Congressional appropriation with a string to it, he would sign it. "Yes, yes," and not before.

The legislators bluffed and blustered—but they came through. Yesterday Representative Hughes' resolution accepting the terms of the Federal appropriation was passed in the House, and this morning the Senate fell in line and passed it.

And then the Governor cut the neck. "Let it to get our hands in the public crib? There is a chance for us to make $200 a piece for an extra session, and why should we forego that?'"

Land Selected For New In Manoa Valley Mid-Pacific University 38 ACRES OF KIDWELL-METCALF ESTATES

The purchase of 38 acres of land in Manoa Valley adjoining College Hills for the site of the Mid-Pacific University has been practically completed by the Hawaiian Evangelical Association. The land belongs to the Kidwell and Metcalf estates and it is understood that the price is very close to $10,000.

A meeting of the association was held yesterday afternoon at which everything but the last formalities was concluded and these will be looked after at a meeting of the finance committee which will be held on Monday afternoon. The committee consists of Theodore Richards, chairman; P. C. Jones, C. M. Cooke, P. J. Lowrey, and W. C. Smith.

The plan which will be carried out consists of the unification of Mills Institute, the Kawaiahae Seminary and the Okamura School for Japanese. In one institution and under one management. The plan is by no means a new one and was to have been carried out before but the Association was unable to purchase the land which it wished from the Kidwell and Metcalf estates and it is understood that the present deal has been carried on through the agency of the Henry Waterhouse Trust Co., real estate department.

While no one was willing to make a definite statement in regard to the plans which had been made for the new university, it is understood that a wealthy lady of this city has offered the money with which the first and largest building shall be erected and that tentative offers of other buildings have been made.

ALL IS PEACE AND HARMONY. SAYS HOLSTEIN

The House of Representatives, having lost its fight with the Governor over the matter of the $50,000 appropriation for legislative expenses and the acceptance of the Federal appropriation of $50,000 with a string to it, is now trying to make it appear that there never was any fight, that everything between the legislators and the Governor has always been peace and harmony. Speaker Holstein announced this morning that an enormous impression appeared to have got around that there was friction between the Legislature and the Chief Executive of the Territory. No such friction, he said, existed. Everything was lovely.

SENATE SWALLOWS

The passage of the bill with the amendments that the Public Works item, “Completion extension Waialua building lease to County from Feb. 1, 1907, $1,000,” be made to read “Completion of Waialua jail and fire department building, and refunding the County for amounts expended by it in construction of such building, $1,000,” and that under the head of Department of Education the item reading “Unpaid rents and incidentals, $6,630,” be made to read “Unpaid rents and incidentals, $5,130.00.”

The report says: “In explanation of the above your committee would state that it has been brought to its attention that the County of Maui has already expended and is still spending its own funds toward the completion of the building known as the Waialua jail and fire department and independent of any possible existing arrangement made between the Superintendent of Public Works and the Board of Supervisors of the County of Maui, it is your committee's opinion that the County should be reimbursed for such amounts thus expended.”

The reduction of the item of $5,630 to $5,130, under the head of Board of Education, is occasioned by the striking out of the item inserted by the Superintendent of Public Works for the purchase of an automobile. Your committee is of the opinion that it is not advisable that such an item should be inserted in a bill which, as recommended in the message of the Governor, is presented to meet the estimated requirements of the several departments of the Government to the end of the present biennial period. Your committee does not consider an automobile one of these requirements.”

The report was adopted.

Recommend Raise of Pay
The Ways and Means Committee also reported on the bill raising the pay of Government laborers to a minimum of $1.50 a day in part as follows:

“While not desirous of hampering the economical administration of the work of the Counties, your committee feels that there is merit in the provisions of this bill to the extent that if a judicious selection of labor is made, and faithful and efficient service is rendered in carrying on the public work in the several Counties, the wage rate as fixed in the bill is not excessive.”

Makekau gave notice of a bill to encourage railroad development on Hawaii.

Hewitt introduced a bill exempting from taxation the property used in certain industries. Passed first reading.

Education Bill Deferred
Senate Bill 16, appointing committees of education in the Counties, came up for second reading.

Coebo said the bill was useless in its present form. He moved that consideration of the bill be deferred for one week, so as to permit the making of certain amendments, which were to be suggested by interested parties on the other islands. This carried.

House Bill 4, relating to drivers' licenses, was referred to the Miscellaneous Committee.

Senate Bill 27, raising the pay of Government laborers to a minimum of $1.50 a day, came up for second reading.

Smith said he did not oppose fair and liberal compensation for those who worked for the public. However, the measure needed careful consideration. He did not believe it prudent to dictate to the Counties what they must pay, regardless of what the work might be. He did not see why the bill should pass.

There were some kinds of work for which $1.50 a day would not be good business. It was not pleasant to oppose such a popular measure, but it would be to the public benefit to do so.

Hayesden pointed out that the passage of the bill would in some instances work to the detriment of the laborers. The Counties had only a certain amount to spend and if the pay scale were raised, less laborers would be employed.

Bishop took the floor, while Kalamia took the chair, and moved that the provision whereby the County workers were included in the operation of the bill be stricken out. The Counties should be given a free hand to fix their own scale of wages.

Roasts County Officials
Coebo opposed the amendment. It was on account of the discrimination made by County officers where certain laborers, who were friends of theirs, were paid $5 a day for doing nothing, that the bill was introduced.

Smith said that the bill would not remedy this defect.

Hayesden pointed out that the bill did not prevent the payment of a higher sum than $1.50.

The amendment carried.

Smith asked what was left of the bill, now that the amendment had passed. He did not see any need of passing the bill now.

Kalamia, the introducer of the bill, moved to defer consideration of the bill for a week. Carried.

The Senate adjourned until Monday.

DELVING INTO THE LANAI LAND DEAL

Many Questions Asked By Investigating Committee

The House committee to investigate the Lanai land deal met last night in the throne room. All the members of the committee, except Akau, were present at this investigation, and Rawlins conducted the examination.

P. E. Harvey, the surveyor, was the first witness called. He was put through a severe examination. He stated that he was in Lanai to survey the lands at the direction of the government.

M. T. Linn, secretary of the Land office, was sworn and stated that he was in charge of the office during the absence of Land Commissioner Pratt. He said that he had received an application for the exchange of a certain portion of Lanai lands, from H. H. Cooper but did not read the contents of the letter. The letter for exchange of lands at Lanai was printed by direction of the Governor, Linn stated that the expenses for printing the notice were not paid by the land office.

F. E. Dodge, superintendent of the Bishop Estate lands was sworn. He stated that Superintendent of Public Works, Highway in 1927 suggested to him to have certain Bishop Estate lands and more particularly the Bishop wharf and the site in the vicinity exchanged for the government lands. In the months of October and November, 1927, a suggestion was made to have a certain individual purchase the Bishop wharf site with the exchanged purpose of exchanging it for the Lanai lands afterward. About five months after the offer to Highway made by the Bishop Estate was withdrawn and the deal fell through. There was no direct deal made between the government and the Bishop Estate. About twenty years ago there were in active agricultural pursuits followed on the island of Lanai.

L. M. Vetterlin of the Mutual Telephone Company was sworn. He said that he was familiar to a certain extent with the island of Lanai. Was there when the Mammeli plantation was in operation and had planted cane on the Bishop Estate lands, particularly that portion known as the Papalele land. A certain area of the water was found from which the water flowed freely. The water from the Mammeli gulch was not used by the then Mammeli plantation Co. Palalele gulch water was extensively used and the plantation lost about $75,000 by being unable to use it. There were about 182 acres of land cultivated with the cane and 150 acres of the rocky lands plowed. Lands at Lanai were not suitable for homestead, or for agricultural purposes.

Charles Gay was sworn. He said that he was a rancher and was approached by Mr. Pratt, formerly of the Hawaiian Telephone Company, to invest money in the plantation business. Pratt told him that he would sell the island of Lanai for $350,000, as offered by a certain Britisher. Gay offered $250,000 for the island but was turned down. At the sale of the land in question under foreclosure of mortgage, Gay bought it for $125,000, and the sale was confirmed by Judge Gurnea who was then on the bench. W. G. Linn's shares were not included in the property sold under foreclosure. Gay offered $25,000 for the interests of J. F. Colburn for whom J. F. H. Wines sold a number of shares at any price that could be gotten at the market. Gay paid $125,000 for the interests of Linn and Hayselden. After he had got hold of the Lanai lands, Gay expended a large amount of money towards improving the lands. During Governor Dole's administration, Gay asked to purchase the government's interests. Having consented to sell the government lands on Lanai, Gay told went up on the U. S. S. Albatross to inspect the lands. After his return to town, Surveyor Harvey was sent up to survey the land. When Charles Eugene Governor in place of Dole who had resigned, Secretary Akaka on behalf of Gov. Carter and Land Commissioner Pratt went up to look over the land. As the instance of Pratt, the Governor consented to sell the government's interests for $125,000, which Gay refused to give. Sometime afterwards Pratt suggested to exchange the government lands for the Bishop wharf, but it was not done.

In response to Rawlins' question, Gay said that Mammeli lands contained 2195 acres, Palalele 5227, and Keolu 1928, all of which belonged to him. Prior to the purchase of Lanai lands, Gay said he made a little money on them, but since then the lands became dry and desolate and during the last two years he had lost about 10,000 sheep for lack of water.

The committee adjourned at 10:30 p. m. to meet again at 7 o'clock tomorrow.

Among the spectators present were Judge Gurnea, Senator McCandless, Senator Worsley, Land Commissioner Pratt, Superintendent Highway, A. V. Green, George Davis, Deputy High Sheriff Lee, Inspector Priner, Representative Long, and others.

According to Admiral Beckley of the steamer Kaima, the Japanese fleet was to leave Hilo this morning. The bark Amy Turner was also scheduled to leave the Hawaii port today, her destination being San Francisco.

FORCED TO ASSIGN BY LUMBER TRUST

Campbell Claims Big Three Caused Him To Go Broke

The attorney for the defense in the lumber trust case did not say a word of his own during testimony in the cross-examination of Matthew Campbell.

Campbell had been on the stand some time and had given some testimony regarding the lumber trust case. He had been refused the right to cross-examine the members of the Big Three. He said he had not one shipment of lumber down from the Coast at a 27 rate, but was that the rate, so far he was concerned, was 21 to 21.2. It has since been reduced to 21.

On cross-examination, counsel for the defense asked Campbell whether it was not true that in 1921 he was compelled to make an instrument for the benefit of his creditors, the intent of the question evidently being to show that this was the reason he could not get lumber brought down from the Coast.

But the question proved a hammer. Campbell replied that he did not make an assignment, but that the reason for it was the action of the lumber trust in forcing him to pay such high rates for transportation. The "lumber trust" had forced him into bankruptcy.

Mary Baker Eddy relatives do not subscribe to the practice that everything is all right, unless they get their share of science profits.

If this Legislature will finish its task in sixty days, the taxpayers can afford to pay a little more for expenses while the work is going on.

Why not pass a law that the man who "ticks" his wife or children
shall also be ticked by an officer
selected for ability to do it?

Doubtless the expert
witness will be read with interest
by the experts of Hawaii's courts
called upon to decide whether a man can be crazy through poor.

There is no occasion for anything
but the greatest good-will between
the Executive and the Legislature.
They have agreed on an appropriation
for expenses with an open road.

A practical demonstration of how the voting is done under the proposed primary law would increase knowledge of what the law is, and wipe out the large number of big-bears created by lack of knowledge.

Our country is getting mighty close to the intimate affairs of Brazil
when a gasoline explosion on board
a Rio de Janeiro ship warrants the price of cable and land telegraph
to send the announcement all over the country.

Masterly inactivity represents the progress of the McKinley Memorial Association. It has land and money, but thus far there is no memorial in Honolulu to impress the visitor or the resident that William McKinley occupied any particular place in the hearts of his countrymen in Hawaii.

There's no harm in refusing to accept the Kaimuki park proposition,
but if the guardians of the Memorial fund do not move to make the McKinley Memorial a reality, their children's children will be forced to finish the task.

An earthquake in Hilo was reported in mainland papers as a Hawaii quake. One result was that a family of five that spent last winter
here and intended to come again, turned aside to Arizona. Lack of funds is not the only difficulty
Hawaii has to contend with.

It is to be hoped the special Land Committee will make clear to the public why it feels called upon to investigate a transaction which is completed and concerning which no charge of fraud has ever been brought by the most excited opponent.

The United States Senate has always been pretty good to Hawaii,
and ought to be able to do so
our ships for a fair price of the subsidy bill. The bill passed by the House is so radically different from the one given Senate approval that ample margins for trading are sticking out all over.

PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN.

Senator Chittenden's bill for
the protection of children and controlling parents to care for their own
children, if passed, will be a great
benefit to the children of Hawaii.
It will be a great benefit to the children
of Hawaii.

In this connection the suggestion
has been made in the Bulletin that a special law should also be passed to
control parents who give their children
to the custody of strangers. It should be an act to protect the children of Hawaii
from the hands of strangers.

The Bulletin hopes that the bill
offered by Mr. Chittenden will be passed by the Legislature without other
amendments than those to make it
more effective. It will be a great
benefit to the children of Hawaii.

When this bill becomes a law, as
it should before the Legislature ad-
journs, the way will be opened for the youth of Hawaii to secure a college
education without going to the mainland.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Senator Chittenden's bill providing
for the establishment of a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts follows
up the inquiry set in motion by Mr.
Chittenden at the last session of the Legislature, and gives definite character
to the recommendation of the Governor in his message to the Legislature.

When this bill becomes a law, as
it should before the Legislature ad-
journs, the way will be opened for the
youth of Hawaii to secure a college
education without going to the mainland.

Incidentally the establishment of the college will place Hawaii in a position to obtain from the United States Government the land grant endowment and the cash appropriation
of $25,000, a year which
now goes to every similar college
existing in every State and every
Territory of the United States.

Hawaii will have to make a small
beginning, as every other State and Territory has done before it. With
this college, a first-class High School
—as recommended by the Governor's
message—and the High School of Hilo,
the youth of Hawaii will have
educational opportunity that is second
to none, and free to anyone who wants to learn.

PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN.

Senator Chittenden's bill for
the protection of children and con-
trolling parents to care for their own
children, if passed, will be a great
benefit to the children of Hawaii.
It will be a great benefit to the children
of Hawaii.

In this connection the suggestion
has been made in the Bulletin that a
special law should also be passed to
control parents who give their children
to the custody of strangers. It should be
an act to protect the children of Hawaii
from the hands of strangers.

The Bulletin hopes that the bill
offered by Mr. Chittenden will be passed by the Legislature without other
amendments than those to make it
more effective. It will be a great
benefit to the children of Hawaii.

When this bill becomes a law, as
it should before the Legislature ad-
journs, the way will be opened for the
youth of Hawaii to secure a college
education without going to the mainland.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Senator Chittenden's bill providing
for the establishment of a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts follows
up the inquiry set in motion by Mr.
Chittenden at the last session of the Legislature, and gives definite character
to the recommendation of the Governor in his message to the Legislature.

When this bill becomes a law, as
it should before the Legislature ad-
journs, the way will be opened for the
youth of Hawaii to secure a college
education without going to the mainland.

Incidentally the establishment of
the college will place Hawaii in a position to obtain from the United States Government the land grant endowment and the cash appropriation
of $25,000, a year which
now goes to every similar college
existing in every State and every
Territory of the United States.

Hawaii will have to make a small
beginning, as every other State and Territory has done before it. With
this college, a first-class High School
—as recommended by the Governor's
message—and the High School of Hilo,
the youth of Hawaii will have
educational opportunity that is second
to none, and free to anyone who wants to learn.

There is no occasion for anything
but the greatest good-will between
the Executive and the Legislature.
They have agreed on an appropriation

THE BEST FRIENDS OF PE-RU-NA ARE THE MOTHERS AND CHILDREN

MR. F. BROOKMAN
WIFE AND CHILD

MRS. J. C. STERLING'S
CHILDREN

G. H. FARMER
and SON

Pe-ru-na Should Be Kept In Every Household

Where There Are Little Children.

Pe-ru-na should be kept in the house all the time. Don't wait until the child is sick, then send to a drug store. But, have Pe-ru-na on hand—accept no substitute.

Children are especially liable to acute catarrh. Indeed, most of the afflictions of childhood are catarrh.

All forms of sore throat, quinsy, croup, hoarseness, laryngitis, etc., are but different phases of catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Pe-ru-na has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Pe-ru-na, if taken according to printed directions, is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. It does not produce temporary results, but it is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh.

For special directions everyone should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Pe-ru-na is for sale by the following druggists and will supply the retail trade in Honolulu, Hawaii: Benson,

Mrs. F. Brookman, 814 Meade street, Appleton, Wis., writes: "I have never had a return of the catarrh, which had made me so miserable and unhappy before I began taking Pe-ru-na. I would not be without it in the house, now. I have a baby boy, two years old, to whom I give Pe-ru-na for a cold, and my husband also takes Pe-ru-na. I thank you and wish you well."—Mrs. F. Brookman.

No Doctor Required.

Mr. Edward Otto, 927 De Soto street, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"I cannot say enough for Pe-ru-na. It has done great work in my family, especially for my oldest boy. We had doctored with three or four different doctors and they did not seem to do him any good.

"We gave up hopes of cure, and so did they, but we pulled him through on Pe-ru-na.

"We had several doctors and they said they could do no more for him, so we tried Pe-ru-na as a last resort, and that did the work. Since then we keep it in the house all the time, and no doctor is required."—Edward Otto.

There are a multitude of homes where Pe-ru-na has been used off and on for twenty years.

Such a thing could not be possible if Pe-ru-na contained any narcotics.

For special directions everyone should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Pe-ru-na is for sale by the following druggists and will supply the retail trade in Honolulu, Hawaii: Benson,

The Benefit Which the Children of the United States Have Received From Pe-ru-na Can Never Be Put Into Words.

The chronic ailments it has prevented, the suffering it has mitigated, will never be fully recorded.

But at least this much can be said: that the coming generation owes a great debt to Pe-ru-na, for it is in the tender years of youth that slight ailments are liable to develop into lasting diseases, thus blighting the whole career of the individual.

The mothers who are bringing up their children to-day to believe in Pe-ru-na are speaking from their experience.

These children brought up to believe in Pe-ru-na from the start, will, when they become heads of families themselves, use Pe-ru-na with unquestioning faith.

A Child's Life Saved.

Mr. G. H. Farmer, New Martinsville, W. Va., writes:

"My little son, Harry, is well and healthy now and we think if we do as you directed to, he will keep his health and grow strong.

"We know that our little son's life was saved by your wonderful medicine, Pe-ru-na, and we shall always praise Pe-ru-na and use it in our family when needed.

"Should we have any more catarrhal trouble in our family, we shall always write to you for treatment."—G. H. Farmer.

Medical Advice.

For free medical advice, address: Dr. S. H. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

All correspondence held strictly confidential.

Mrs. J. C. Sterling, 1311 Brown Avenue, Norfolk, Va., writes:

"My little boy, Meredith, suffered with indigestion so badly he could not eat anything without it making him very sick, so I thought (as many others have) that I would try Pe-ru-na, and it worked like a charm.

"Now he eats anything he wishes, and I would not be without it for anything.

"My other little boy, Alfred, two and a half years old, has taken it and received as much benefit from Pe-ru-na as his brother.

"I hope my testimonial may be of some benefit to others, as I feel as though I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. J. C. Sterling.

Mr. Howard Andrew Sterner, Muddy Creek, Pa., writes:

"I have Pe-ru-na in my house all the time and won't be without it. It is good for children when they take a cold or croup. It cured my baby boy of croup.

"I have introduced Pe-ru-na into six families since I received your last letter, and four have seen relief already."

—Howard Andrew Sterner.

Pe-ru-na Protects the Entire Household.

As soon as the value of Pe-ru-na is appreciated by every household, both as a preventive and cure, tens of thousands of lives will be saved, and hundreds of thousands of chronic, lingering cases of catarrh will be prevented.

When Sickness Comes to the Little Ones

It Is the Mother Who Chiefly Suffers.

She suffers even more than the child who happens to be sick. Her sympathy is deeper than that of any other member of the family.

The mother looks forward with dread to the torrid heat of summer, thinking of her children and the many liabilities to disease that are before them.

Spring and summer are sure to bring ailments, especially among the little folks.

It does not take a mother very long to discover that Pe-ru-na is the best friend she has in time of illness among the children.

A Multitude of Mothers

Have discovered that Pe-ru-na is their standby, and that in many of the ailments of spring and summer to which the children are subjected, Pe-ru-na is the remedy that will generally quickly relieve.

Whether it is spring fever or stomach derangement, whether it is indigestion or bowel disease, a catarrhal congestion of the mucous surfaces is the cause.

Pe-ru-na quickly relieves this condition of the mucous membranes. Its operation is prompt; the children do not dislike to take the medicine; it has no deleterious effects in any part of the body.

It simply removes the cause of the disagreeable symptoms and restores the health.

Every mother who has not tried Pe-ru-na in her family should familiarize herself with Dr. Hartman's booklet, "The Ills of Life." This booklet should be in every family. It gives most valuable advice as to the use of Pe-ru-na for the various catarrhal diseases so general to-day.

Pe-ru-na is a household remedy for 23 catarrhal ailments of winter and summer, acute or chronic.

The mothers all over the United States are the best friends that Pe-ru-na has.

The Mothers Hold Pe-ru-na in High Esteem.

Not only because it has cured them of their various ailments, but because it promptly relieves the children from the throes and grasp of catarrhal diseases.

We have in our files many testimonials from mothers whose children have been cured by Pe-ru-na. However, the large majority of mothers who use Pe-ru-na, we never hear from.

But we do hear from a great number of mothers who are so overjoyed at some special good they have received from Pe-ru-na that they cannot restrain their enthusiasm. They are anxious to share these benefits with other mothers.

"AN EXPERT WITNESS," SAYS MR. DOOLEY,

"Is A Doctor That Thinks A Man Must Be Crazy To Be Rich."

By F. P. DUNNE.

(Copyright, 1927, by H. H. McClure & Co.)

"W" HAT'S an expert witness?" asked Mr. Hennessy.

"An expert witness," said

Mr. Dooley, "is a doctor that thinks a man must be crazy. That's three iv'most iv us, but these doctors don't mean it th' way I do. Their theory is that anything

th' rich do that ye want to do an' can't do is looney. As between two men with money, th' wan with most money is craziest. If ye want a diploma fr' sanity, Himself, th' on'y chance ye have iv gettin' it is to commit a crime an' file an inventory iv ye'er estate with th' court. Ye'll get a certy-ficate iv sanity that ye'll be able to show with pride when ye're let out iv jail."

"In th' old days if a man kilt another man he took three jumps fr'm th' scene iv th' disaster to th' north corridor iv th' County Jail. That still goes fr' th' poor man. No wan has thried to rob him iv th' privilege won fr' him be his ancestors iv bein' quickly an' completely hanged. A photograph iv him is took without a collar, he's yanked before an awful court iv justice, a deef-mute lawyer is appointed to look after his interests an' see that they don't suffer be bein' kept in th' stuffy atmosphere iv th' courtroom, th' State's attorney presents a handsome pitcher iv him as a fiend iv human form, th' Judge instructs th' jury in unprejudiced jurors in a hurry to get home that they ar-re th' sole judges iv th' law an' th' fact, th' law bein' that he ought th' be hanged an' th' fact bein' that he will be hanged, an' before our proletery frind comes out iv his thrance he's havin' his first thorough fill iv ham an' eggs, th' clargy ar-re showin' a wonderf'ul amount iv interest in him, an' he's rayceivin' attentions fr'm th' Sheriff that must be surprisin' to a man iv his humble station.

"A few days later I r-read in th' pa-pers in a column called 'Brief News Jottings,' just below a paragraph about th' meetin' iv th' Dairy-man's Association, an account iv how justice has pursued her grim course in th' case iv John Adamowski. An' I'm thankful to know that th' law has been avyged, that life an' property again ar-re safe in our fair land iv freedom, an' that th' wretched criminal lived long enough to get all he wanted to eat.

"Justice is all a poor criminal asks fr' an' that's what he gets. He don't deserve any better. 'Tis like askin' on'y fr' a pair iv docces in a car-d game an' havin' to bid thim. If I done wrong I'd say: 'Don't deal me any justice. Keep it fr' thim that wants it. Under th' circumstances all I ask is a ge-rat deal iv justice an' much mercy. I do not ask to be acquitted be a jury iv me peers. I am a modest man an' I'll accept me freedom fr'm th' humblest bailiff in th' land. I do not care to come triumphant out iv this orded an' ruyport other larceny cases fr' th' newspa-pers. All I ask is a block's start an' some wan holdin' th' policeman's coatfalls. I waive me right to be thried be an incorruptible, fair, an' unprejudiced Judge. Give me wan that's on-fair an' unprejudiced an' that ye can slip something to."

"No, Sir, whin a man's broke an' does something wrong, th' on'y temple iv justice he ought to get into is a freight car goin' West. Don't niver thrust that their tough-lookin' lady with th' sword in her hand an' th' handkerchief over her eyes. She may be blind, though I've seen thriles where she raised th' handage an' winked at th' audience—she may be blind, but 'tis th' fine sense iv touch she has, an' if ye venture into her lodgings an' she goes through ye'er pockets an' finds on'y th' pawnticket fr' th' watch ye stole off Hogan, she locks th' dure, takes off th' handkerchief, an' goes at ye with th' sword.

"But suppose ye have a little iv th' useful with ye. Ye br-reak into Hogan's house some night sufferin' fr'm an uncontrollable impulse to take his watch. Don't get mad, now. I'm on'y supposin' all this. Ye wouldn't take his watch. He has no watch. Well, he's sound asleep. Ye give him a good crack on th' head so he won't be disturbed an' hook th' clock fr'm under th' pillow. Th' next day ye're arrested. Th' pa-pers comes out with th' news: 'Haughty sign iv wealthy family steals watch fr'm awful Hogan. Full account iv d'readful career iv th' victim. Un-written law to be invoked, an' there's an article to show that anny wan has a right to take Hogan's watch, that he was not a proper man to have th' care iv a watch, anyhow, an' that ye done well to look it. This is always th' first step to rd securin' cold justice fr' th' rich. Ye're next thried a number iv nearly all th' ministers' associations, an' finally, in order that th' law may be enforced without regard to persons, an expert witness is hired fr' ye.

"Th' thrile begins. Ye walk in with a quick, nervous stride an' set th' watch be th' court clerk. 'Ar-re ye guilty or not guilty?' says th' clerk. 'Guilty an' glad iv it,' says ye'er lawyer amid cheers an' hisses. 'Have ye th' watch with ye?' says th' court. 'I have,' says th' prisoner, smilin' in his peculiar way. 'Lave me look at it,' says th' court. 'I will not,' says th' prisoner, puttin' it back into his pocket. 'How ar-re ye goin' to defend this crook?' says th' Judge. 'We ar-re goin' to prove that at th' time he committed this crime he was insane,' says th' lawyer. 'I object,' says th' State's attorney. 'It is not legal to introduce evidence iv insanity till th' proper foundations is established. Th' defence must prove that th' prisoner has money. How do we know he isn't broke like th' rest iv us?' Th' court—'How much money have ye got?' The prisoner—'Two million dollars, but I expect more. Th' court—'Objection overruled.

"Th' expert is called. 'Doctor, what expere-ance have ye had among th' head cures?' 'I have been fr' forty years in an asylum.' 'As guest or landlord?' 'As both,' says doctor. 'I will ask you a question. Supposin' this prisoner to be a man with a whole lot iv money, an' supposin' he went to this house on th' night in question, an' suppose it was snowin', an' suppose it wasn't, an' suppose he turned fr'm th' right hand corner to th' left an' upstairs, an' supposin' he wore a plug hat an' a pair iv skates, an' supposin' th' next day was Wednesday—' 'I object,' says th' State's attorney. 'Th' statutes, with which me larned frind is no doubt familiar, though I be darned if he shows it, fr'bids th' mention iv th' days iv th' week.' 'Scratch out Winesday an' substitute four o'clock in January,' says th' court. 'Now, how does th' sentence r-read?' 'Th' next day was four o'clock in January, an' supposin' th' amount iv money, an' supposin' ye haven't got a very large salary holdin' th' chair iv con-nip-tion fits at th' college, an' supposin' ye don't get a cent unless ye answer r-right, I ask ye, on th' night in question whin th' prisoner grabbed th' clock was he or was he not funny at th' roof?' 'I object to th' form iv question,' says

th' State's attorney. 'In the eighth sentence I move to strike out th' wurruld 'and' as unconstituted, unprofessonal, an' contrary to th' laws iv evidence.' 'My Gawd, but my client no rights in this court?' says th' other lawyer. 'Ye bet he has,' says th' court. 'We'll strike out th' wurruld 'and' but we'll substitute th' more proper wurruld 'alookness.' 'Did ye see th' prisoner afther his arrest?' 'I did.' 'Where?' 'In th' pa-pers,' says th' court. 'His back was turned.' 'What did that indicate to ye?' 'That he had been sufferin' fr'm a variety iv tomame excoelsa.' 'Greek wurruds,' says th' court. 'Latin an' Greek,' says th' expert. 'Proceed,' says th' court. 'I come to th' conclusion,' says th' expert, 'that th' man, when he looked th' watch, was sufferin' fr'm a sudden tempest in his head, a sudden explosion as it were, a sudden I don't-know-what-th' divyle-it-was, that kind iv whin off in his chimney, like a storm at sea.' 'Was he in any way bug before th' crime?' 'Not a bit. He suffered fr'm warts whin a boy, which sometimes leads to bozimalral leptocolographophilophtomania, or what th' Germans call tantrums, but me gin'rall conclusion was that he was perfectly sane all his life till this minnit, an' that so much sanity went to his head an' blew th' cover off."

"Has he been sane iver since?" says the lawyer. 'Ye'd better have a care how ye answer that question, me boy,' says th' prisoner, carelessly jingling th' loose change in his pocket. 'Sane,' says th' expert. 'Well I shud think he was. Why, I can hardly imagine how he stayed feathery-headed long enough to take th' villain's joolry. Sane, says ye. I don't mean anny disrespect to th' court or th' bar, but if ye gentlemen had half as much good brains in ye'er head as he has, me distinguish'd frind, ye'd not be wastin' ye'er time here. There ain't a man in this country th' akel iv this ge-rat man. Talk about Dan'l Webster, he was an idly compared with this joynit intellect. No, Sir, he's a fine, thoughtful, able, magnificent specimen iv man an' has been iver since between twelve four an' twelve four an' a-half on that fatal night. An' a good fellow at that."

"What d'ye propose to do to stand this here testimony off?" says th' Judge. 'I propose,' says th' State's attorney, 'to prove be come rable experts, men who have earned their reputations be testifyin' eight ways fr'm th' jack in a dozen criminal cases, that so far fr'm bein' insane on this particular night, this was th' on'y time that he was perfectly sane.' 'Oh, look here, Judge,' says Bedelia Sassyfrass iv Th' Daily Pluff, 'this here has gone far enough. Th' man's not guilty, an' if ye don't want a few remarks printed about ye, that'll do ye no good, ye'll let him off.' 'Don't pay any attention to what she says, Fitzzy,' says another lady. 'Her decayed newspa-per has no more circulation thin a cucumber. We expect ye to follow th' instructions printed in our vally-able Journal this mornin'.

"Sir,' says a tall man risin' in his place. 'I am th' Riv'rend Thompson Jubbs.' 'Not th' notory-ous shepherd iv that name?' 'Th' same,' says th' Riv'rend Jubbs. 'That lowly worker in th' vine-yard iv th' Lord who astonished th' wurruld be latin' glass in th' pulpit an' havin' the Bible tattooed on him. I wish th' privilege iv standin' on me head an' playin' 'A charge to keep I have' on the accorpeen with me feet.' 'Granted,' says th' court. 'I will now charge th' jury as to th' law an' th' fact: I am all mixed up on th' law; th' fact is there's a mob outside waitin' to lynch ye if ye don't do what it wants. Th' court will now adjourn be th' back dure.' 'Where's th' prisoner?' says th' expert. 'He has gone to address a mother's meetin',' says th' clerk. 'Thim I must be goin', too,' says th' expert. An' there ye ar-re."

"I'm glad that fellow got me off," said Mr. Hennessy, "but thim experts ar-re a bad lot. What's th' difference between that kind iv tistymony an' perjury?"

"Ye pay ye'er money an' take ye'er choice," said Mr. Dooley.

DAM COMMITTEE HOLDS QUAKER MEETING

Nothing doing at the meeting of the dam investigation committee last night. The Public Works Department representatives seemed to be willing to go ahead and Mr. Whitehouse was of the same mind.

In answer to a question by Chairman Chillingworth, Mr. Holloway stated that the first actual correspondence between himself and Mr. Kellogg was through the medium of the cable.

The committee put in the evening reading to on a lot of correspondence relating to dam matters.

Mr. Holloway was requested to have copies of his correspondence with Mr. Kellogg ready for exhibition at the next meeting of the committee, which will meet on Tuesday night.

HOME TALK

EVEN at this late day it will not be amiss to praise the fine appearance of Mrs. George Potter at the Floral Parade. Her mount was unexceptionally good,
and the young woman also rode well
and looked very sweet. She received the first prize for the best appearing-lady rider, and her cousin,
Miss Alice Macfarlane, got the second prize. She is a handsome girl and looked very fetching on her horse. Mrs. Potter and Miss Macfarlane got the first prize for the best-appearing couple. Miss Emma Rose and Miss Adele Dreier came in second and were much admired. Mrs.
Erdman and Harold Dillingham
were awarded the first prize for the best appearing lady and gentleman and Mrs. Erdman was given a prize for the most original character rider. Mr. Dillingham and his sister were well mounted on perfectly matched white horses and rode beautifully. Miss Dorothy Hartwell and Mr. Judd, who got the second prize, came in for a good share of admiration. Next year, they say, more society girls will enter and, in time,
the Floral Parade will be the great city event of the year, like the horse show in New York.

An elaborate dinner was given by Col. and Mrs. George Macfarlane at their villa at Waikiki on Saturday evening. A large silver bowl of red roses adorned the center of the table
and silver candelabras with red shades made an attractive light for the ten guests who enjoyed the exquisite appointed table with its lavish display of silver, cut glass and china. Rose place cards were at each plate. The guests were Major and Mrs. Van Vleet, Mrs. William H. Avery, Miss Combe, ex-
Governor Cleghorn, Lieut. Eppley,
U. S. A.; Mr. Douglas McRyde and
Mr. MacGown of the Manning.

After dinner the guests went on to the Japanese reception.

These moonlight nights have been very agreeable for horseback riding and many of the young people have taken advantage of it. There was a party of eight who came to grief the other night just around Diamond

Head. The young woman whom the accident befell had never ridden
astride, and as her mount was spirited she found herself hung high and dry to the limb of a tree while she snatched just in time to save herself a nasty tumble. The others, in blissful ignorance, rode on, but one of the number happened to look back and saw a sight which will go down in the annals of his memory.
Needless to say, the young woman was saved from her perilous but comical position, and not one of the party will reveal her name.

Judge and Mrs. Sanford B. Dole gave a luncheon on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Witherley, the sister of Mrs. Dole, who is visiting here from Castine, Me. Among the guests were Mrs. Knudsen, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Knudsen, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Knudsen, Mr. and Mrs.
Audrey Robinson and Mr. and Mrs.
Francis Gay. Begonias were the table decorations, and most gorgeous they were. The Knudsen are a great acquisition to Honolulu society and it is pleasant to learn they will be here for several months.
They are at the Moana Hotel, and their day At Home is like a reception, for the guests simply pour in and during the afternoon.

The tennis tea which Mr. and Mrs. Harry Macfarlane Jr. gave on Sunday last in honor of Mr. and Mrs.
Turner, Mrs. Burnette and Miss Ridgeway was attended by nearly fifty people. The tennis court is an ideal spot for an entertainment, at least, and on Sunday the perfect
weather helped to make it the success it certainly was. Both Mr. and Mrs. Macfarlane have entertaining down to a fine art and everybody copies their affairs.

The Turners, who have taken the Fred Macfarlane villa at Punahou,
are not strangers here, for two years ago they made Honolulu a visit and were so charmed with the climate and hospitality that they decided to return. Miss Ridgeway was much admired and admired dresses very well.
Mrs. Burnette is also attractive and is receiving much attention.

Among the guests were noticed
Mrs. Henry Macfarlane, Major and

Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Jewett, Mrs. Landers, Major and Mrs. Van Vleet, Miss Combe, Mrs. Fairchild, Dr. and Mrs.
Smith, Miss Harvey, Misses Violet
Make, Lady, Helen and Alice Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilder, Captain Heldt, Captain Humphrey,
Lieut. Eppley, U. S. A.; Lieut. Case,
U. S. A.; Mr. Will Roth, and many others.

A San Francisco paper has the following and those here who know
Lloyd Osborne will appreciate it fully:

I hear that the relations of the Lloyd Osbornes have become so strained that Mrs. Osborne, who was living in Florence, has hurried back to San Francisco and taken possession of the Osborne half of the Stevenson home in Hyde street. Lloyd Osborne, they say, was threatening to sue her for divorce and the gossips have picked out as his next possible choice Mrs. Frank Norris, the fascinating widow of the young California merchant who died so prematurely a few years ago.

Mrs. Osborne is one of the Roman matrons in style and totally different in temperament from her Bohe-mian husband, whom the gossips ac-
credit with a somewhat flirtatious disposition. As long as the wife lives in her San Francisco home in Hyde street her spouse cannot by lock or crook get a divorce on the ground of desertion. The gossips further say that the agitation of the poor man was most pathetic when he found that he was not being legally deserted. He is alleged to be a great heart-breaker and given to making Byronic remarks like this
when he meets a fair one:

"May I call you Mary?" or
"If your husband weren't looking I'd kiss you," which I believe is the way the natives of the Samoan Islands make love.

The reception and ball which Consul General Miki Saito, the officers of the Japanese Merchants' Association, and the manager of the Yokohama Specie Bank gave last Saturday evening in honor of Admiral Tomiooka and the officers of the Japanese squadron was a brilliant and elaborate affair. Honolulu was out en masse and she bowed low before Consul General Miki Saito, who received with the Admiral. The Con-sulate was decorated with flags of all nations, but the American flag and the flag of the rising sun were entwined behind the reception committee. It was a remarkable and brilliant sight, for the prominent Japanese wore their orders. Camp McKinley was well represented in gorgeous uniforms. Many prominent Hawaiians wore their orders, notably Col. S. M. Parker and Sheriff Iaukea, both handsome men whom the strangers present asked about at once. Rows of middies, a fine-looking set of young men, occupied one side of the room. The Ellis Quinter Club was enclosed in a bower of greens, and the delicious refreshments were served on the adjoining lanai. Dancing was indulged in by everybody who could get on the floor.

Count Mori, who danced like an American, was very popular. Many of the officers spoke excellent English and they were very attentive to their fair guests. There was a fairly good sprinkling of pretty Japanese ladies in their picturesque kimonos, which is always much admired. The aloofness furnished protection for flirtatious couples and were somewhat overcrowded during the dances.

The hospitality of the Japanese is proverbial and on Saturday evening
they did everything in their power to make the evening pass pleasantly. The Japanese music was much enjoyed, the novelty appealing to the guests. Among those entertained were Governor and Mrs. Carter,
ex-President and Mrs. Sanford B.
Dole, Admiral Very of the Navy,
Major and Mrs. Van Vleet and officers at Camp McKinley, Judge and Mrs. Dickey, the Consular service, Bruce Cartwright, Jr., representing his father, who was too ill to be present; Secretary A. L. C. Atkinson, Col. and Mrs. George Macfarlane, ex-Governor Cleghorn, Honorable S. M. Damon, Prince and Princess Kawananakoa, Col. and Mrs. S.
M. Parker, Dr. and Mrs. H.
Murray, Mrs. Henry Taylor, Mrs. W.
H. Avery, Capt. and Mrs. Joyner and officers of the Manning, Judge Lindsay and Mrs. Lindsay, Mr. James

Wilder, Mrs. George Fairchild, Major and Mrs. Russell, Paymaster Brooke, Mrs. Jewett, Major and Mrs.
Geo. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. A. G.
Hawes Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Taylor,
Pfeiffer and Mrs. M. M. Scott, Mr.
and Mrs. Richard Ivers, Miss Mar-ton Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Scott,
Mr. and Mrs. Crehore, Judge
Hartwell, the Misses Hartwell,
Mr. and Mrs. A. Judd, Mr. and Mrs.
George Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Montague Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Davies,
Mrs. A. P. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. J.
O. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Babbitt, Miss
Carter, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Campbell,
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holmes, Lady Heron, Mr. and Mrs. Lanz, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stanley, Miss Hanford, Dr.
and Mrs. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Wilder, Miss Katyd Jones,
Mr. and Mrs. Tenney Peck, Mr.
Cushman Carter, Mr. and Mrs. B. F.
Dillingham, Judge and Mrs. Frear,
Mr. and Mrs. Morton Siggs, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dodge, Mr. and Mrs.
Atherton, Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mr.
and Mrs. A. Afong, Mr. John H.
Bliss, Miss Nannie Winston, Mr. and Mrs. Gartenberg, Mrs. Margaret
Marx, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Marx,
Miss Marx, Mr. and Mrs. Walker,
Mr. and Mrs. von Holt, Mr. George
Davies, and many others.

Mrs. Edward Tenney and Mrs.
Noonan are fitting away for the summer in April. They will go to Lake Tahoe.

A most enjoyable poi luncheon was given on Wednesday by Mrs. Mutch
at Kalili for Mrs. Wilcox of Kuaui.
The table presented a picture which is seldom seen even here, for every dish used was of Hawaiian origin.
A huge calabash in the center of the table filled with yellow hibiscus,
a rare flower seldom used, made a spot of beauty. Lots of malle intermingled with yellow hibiscus, were given each guest, and yellow hibiscus and malle leis were used lavishly in the table decorations. An appropriate corsage of hibiscus was at each plate. After lunch the guests played cards and late in the afternoon the beautiful marble bathing pool was inspected and proved no
tempting that a few of the guests
took a plunge. Among those present were Mrs. Campbell-Parker, Mrs.

Ellen Low, Mrs. Chillingworth, Mrs.
Dreier and sister, Mrs. George Lucas, Mrs. Charles Lucas, the Misses Mutch, Mrs. Cook.

The following about Doctor Woolsey, so well known here, is of great interest:

A good many reminiscences of the late Dr. E. H. Woolsey have been published, and several writers have referred to him as never having been married. This is a mistake. The Doctor was married over 20 years ago to a Miss McGilveray, a highly accomplished and charming young lady who belonged to an excellent Oakland family and moved in the best society. The Doctor gave a bachelor dinner at Tubbs' Hotel before his wedding and had as his guests many of the best-known men
of Oakland, including the late Dr.
Foote and the late Wm. D. English.
Dr. Woolsey was an intense Democrat and had many influential friends amongst the Southern people, who in early days were very prominent in society and politics in Alameda County. The Doctor's wedded bliss was of short duration,
and he and his young wife separated. No one who knew the highly talented medical man well was in the least surprised at the separation,
for the Doctor was not cut out for a Benedict. He was a most erratic and choleric man, though at heart
one of the best in the world, and the woman who could live with him
would have to possess all the qualities of Job and Solomon, besides the virtues and charms of her own sex.

The only thing on earth this remarkable medical man was really devoted to with all his heart and soul was his profession. He loved it as a true artist does his art, and was happiest when saving off some one's leg or making an autopsy. He might possibly have risen to a greater height of happiness when tearing to pieces in an article for some medical journal the theories of some practitioner he did not like. He was one of the most disputatious men that ever lived and dearly did he love a good fight. In his early days
he was always warring with some one about medical theories, or political questions. Had he lived in the middle ages his sword would be busy six days in the week. If his life had been spent in London or in New York, instead of Oakland, he would have become one of the great authorities in his profession, for he had few equals in the world as an able, highly trained and totally fearless surgeon. He was a thorough man of science with nerves of iron.

A delightful house party was given by Miss Greenwell of Kona on the 20th. The party, consisting of
Mr. and Mrs. Woods of Kona, Mrs.
Russell Walbridge of Honolulu, Miss Anna Paris and Mr. Henry Green-well, with the hostess, left the Greenwell residence about nine o'clock. The ride of over twenty miles up the mountain-side was celestial in the fresh morning air,
which every moment grew more exhilarating. After an ascent of five miles the snow-clad dome of Mauna Loa was revealed, the dark blue of its slope forming a marked contrast to the whiteness of its snowy cap.
Just before reaching Puulehua, the comfortable mountain home of the Greenwells, with its elevation of nearly five thousand feet, a glimpse was caught of the snowy crest of Mauna Kea, with its darker neighbor, Hualalai, in the foreground, covered with clouds. Puulehua, with its exhilarating air, its glorious sunset and magnificent views, has an-added charm in having been the former home of the well known Dr.
Trousseau, who was a great personality in Honolulu a few years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Scott have returned from Kona, and are booked to depart on the 20th for California and the Yosemite Valley.
After that they intend to tour Mexico. Mr. Scott has had enormous success in the Islands. His landscapes adorn many a mansion. The Scotts, who have figured largely in the social life here, will be greatly missed. Two of Mr. Scott's pictures are owned by Mr. Wanamaker of Philadelphia and burned in the recent fire of the Wanamaker country house.

PATRIOTISM INTERPRETED BY YOUTH OF VARIOUS PARENTAGE

PATRIOTISM

By Daniel Neal of St. Louis College—Son of Hawaiian Parents.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

There is not an American on the face of the earth who does not on this day cherish a filial veneration for the memory of George Washington, the Father of his Country, and the greatest patriot America has ever produced.

The birthday of Washington endures in the heart of every American the fires of patriotic love. It makes his bosom swell with that honest pride which characterizes every citizen of the United States of America, the glorious nation of which the illustrious and immortal Washington was the creator.

The American people instinctively feel that they owe to the Father of the great Republic an everlasting debt of gratitude. As private citizen, Washington was ever ready at his country's call, not even dreading the long journey to Fort Duquesne in the midst of winter, through a country beset by treacherous Indians, to whose savage cruelty his life was at every moment exposed; as soldier he defended the standard of liberty in the New World; as statesman he directed his councils toward the best interests of the nation; and as president he guided the ship of State through the perilous times of the early Republic in such a manner as to command the admiration of the entire world.

Washington's success in gaining the independence of his country was truly phenomenal. The secret of his brilliant achievements lay in his unwavering trust in the Almighty and in his disinterested indefatigable zeal for the welfare of his country. The example of Washington will continue to animate the American people throughout all ages, and till time shall be no more, will this nation revere his memory and give to him its undying love.

Young men of today, on us rests the responsibility of upholding the honor of America, of zealously promoting its interests and of defending it at all times and in all places against the attacks of every enemy. America must have a terrible in our soul. Our right arm must be here; she must find us every ready to shed our blood to the last drop in defending or avenging her.

The two things that enter into the composition of a genuine American patriot are a firm reliance on an overruled Providence, and a deep fellowship with our countrymen. We may never have occasion to combat the foe without, but we shall always have to fight the traitor within. The soul of our nation is its patriotism. No nation can be strong unless every man is a patriot. The man who so debases himself as to sell his vote is a traitor, and the man who buys that vote is a traitor. The man who so cautions his vote as to help an unworthy candidate into office, casts his pearls before the swine. He loses sight of the dignity of American citizenship; he goes over to the enemy's camp. The man who sells his vote for a few dollars, is a traitor. The man who sells his vote for a few dollars, is a traitor. The man who sells his vote for a few dollars, is a traitor.

The bigot who ostracizes a man for his race is another enemy of the Republic. We believe all men are created equal and therefore any man that loves his race and is loyal to the country, must be considered a man and a patriot.

The monopolist who worships at the shrine of Mammon—who defrauds the honest laborer of his just hire—who makes one man rich and a hundred poor—who carries millions in his pocket, but not a grain of patriotism in his heart—that man, I say, is totally devoid of feeling for his fellow-man; he is not an American. Public office is a public trust, and only the patriotic man ought to hold it. Only the patriotic man will do his full duty at all times, and never will he attempt to enrich himself at the expense of his honesty. Integrity is emblazoned on his coat of arms, whereas fraud and deception mark the contemptible trickster.

Men of Hawaii, we are Americans. True Americans are men of distinction the world over. We glory in our lot. Could we have a better? It remains for us to prove ourselves worthy of the country which has so kindly taken us under her protection, and this we can and will do by cultivating the manners and sentiments of a thorough American gentleman. And now fellow-citizens, let me propose three cheers for America and the three greatest patriots America has ever produced: George Washington, the Father of his Country; Abraham Lincoln, the Savior of his Country; and Theodore Roosevelt, the Gentleman of his Country.

PATRIOTISM

By Miss Cassidy of Honolulu High School. Daughter of American parents.

As we look about us today, we see everywhere flags and other decorations commemorating the birth of "The Father of Our Country"—the Father of our patriotism. The hurrying business world is for the time forgotten, and we meet with higher and nobler thoughts than those of bringing gain, thoughts of patriotism. And what greater tribute can we pay to George Washington, the man who first gave the country so dear to us all, and who first showed us how to love it?

A century has passed since his time, and the United States of America has been, by universal suffrage, enrolled among the great nations of the world. At some steps she faltered, and at others she seemed about to fall, but in each case, loyal hands upheld her, and she passed safely on. Her rapid advancement, however, is not to be wondered at, when we stop to think of American institutions and government. It is good laws and good government that foster patriotism, without which no nation can exist.

Some, perhaps, will say that the youth may be taught patriotism. To some extent he may. He may learn to glory in the brave deeds of his ancestors, and become familiar with the qualifications necessary to make a good citizen. He too may burn to be on the battle field where, by his heroic deeds, he can prove his loyalty. Such patriotism, however, would be short-lived without a government worthy of it. Education alone cannot produce true patriotism. That nation possesses it, which commands it.

The government without the love of the people who will say is worthless. It is doubtless so. But let the people once see the sound principles of the government; they will take the courage for what it is, and their highest aim and greatest desire will be to better it, to improve it internally, commercially and nationally.

Nor will this be a passing wave of enthusiasm, of so-called patriotism, which seems to rouse a nation to frenzy in times of war. At such periods, the outcry leads to bounds of reason, and the eagerness for blood becomes maddening. Those, however, whose voices are heard the loudest at such times, are often those who do not stand behind the guns. Yet, they call this patriotism, and condemn those who reasonably oppose their views, and seek peaceful and bloodless conclusions.

Still we do not wholly denounce war. In some instances it has been inevitable, indeed the only means of restoring peace, and of preserving national life. The men who fought and died on the battle fields could have given no greater, no nobler proof of their patriotism. The world can produce a long list of such men, whose names and praises are today reverently spoken by ourselves. And if their words are to be believed, it is a sweet thing to die for one's country. Nevertheless, we are glad to say that in this enlightened twentieth century, war is looked upon with less favor and arbitration is gaining the recognition of the nations.

But shall patriotism be limited to one nation? Surely that would be a bigoted and narrow policy. The deepest and greatest translation of patriotism, would include not only national, but also international patriotism. A nation may be compared to an individual. Like the individual it has its ethics and morals. The Golden Rule of man is to love his neighbor as himself. If a fellow countryman be in trouble and greatly in need of assistance, and his neighbor refuse to aid him, he is inhuman. Each nation has her neighbors. Shall her motto be to love her neighbor, or shall it be to love herself and have no thought about her neighbor? Surely the first would be the better one. It could not lower a nation, it would rather raise it among the nations.

Japan has recently shown such a spirit. She saw a neighbor in distress and although that neighbor was but a few years ago her bitter enemy, she came nobly to her rescue. Love of one's native country should ever be first in the hearts of its people; but this love can never be so exalted, so grand, as when national patriotism shall be joined and develop international patriotism.

"It's coming yet for a' that, That man to man the world o'er Shall brothers be for a' that."

Our Agent, Mr. Childs, writes that "no extension out of Los Angeles has ever created the interest that this has," and his statement applies not merely to citizens of Los Angeles and nearby cities but also to the many thousands of Middle-west and Eastern people, who are now in Southern California spending the winter and who, from the general publicity given to this excursion, will learn much of the attractions offered by Hawaii.

Among others who will take passage on the Ohio are: J. E. Cowles, Les A. McConnell, F. H. Sanborn, John D. Clark, W. C. McFarland, Frank D. Owen, D. C. Teague, James Irving, H. Rootcher, A. W. Swainford, Mrs. Everett, Fred Allen, Chas. Pierce, A. Vignolo, Philip Forve, John Swainford, Frank Gottsche, William Niles, E. E. Armour, Mrs. Frank Wiggins, R. M. Fulton, Mr. Everest.

Respectfully submitted, H. P. WOOD, Secretary.

NEW BANK BUILDING

The Yokohama Specie Bank has purchased the lot on the corner of Merchant and Bethel streets. The deed was entered for record yesterday. The price paid was $29,407.

It is the intention of the Yokohama institution to erect a building for banking purposes on their newly acquired property.

PATRIOTISM

By Wa Chan of Honolulu High School—Son of Chinese parents.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—You are gathered here to celebrate this day—the glorious day, on which the great American Patriot was born. This is one of the rare occasions, in which you should be reminded of the love and respect for your country. You should keep in mind that Patriotism is a virtue, ranking next to Religion, and founded upon principles of justice, and is the purest impulse of the human heart. Love of country is one of the noblest motives in our hearts. It is a self-sacrificing virtue, and is next to the love of God.

True patriotism leads us to make any personal sacrifice for the country's welfare, to offer our lives in its service, to consider ourselves as children of a great family. True patriots will never violate the national laws. They will know their country intelligently. They will desire to see all public positions filled by wise and honest men, having the welfare of their country at heart.

False patriotism will, by advancing personal ambition and aims, endanger the destruction of the whole country. It will induce men to seek office simply for private interest, to accept bribery without regarding the commonwealth, will suffer party spirit to undermine public interest. The destiny of citizenship lies in good teaching. Children must first be taught at home to be patriots. Next, this virtue must be instilled in every school boy. Let him learn to love his school colors, to show loyalty in the interscholastic contests. In this respect, the American schools are highly devoted. For humanity's sake, they admit alien scholars, because they know the moulding of the future nation is largely in their hands. As a foreigner, I appreciate their kindness.

Patriotism does not mean that one must love one's own country alone, but one must have the feeling toward all mankind. Since God is our common father, we are brothers. Why, then, some nations should entertain the idea of exclusiveness, when they are tenants on earth in common? It is due to fear and greed that the barriers are set between nation and nation. The United States has no fear of European immigration, and yet she prospers. May this country continue to be generous, and not be tarnished by passing measures of exclusiveness. If there is, at present, a bar against any nation, let it be removed. Unneighborliness causes bloody conflicts. In this age, war is to be avoided as much as possible. President Roosevelt showed his patriotism as a peace-maker of the last war. Although he is a representative, the whole glory goes to America. We have learned from the Japanese a lesson of patriotism, which means self-sacrifice for the country's honor, and the country's wealth. It is the patriotism which can go to a neighbor's assistance and wrest his country from a foe; even that neighbor was once a foe himself.

If the love of country is not taken into the consideration of moral standpoint, it checks the progress of humanity. If we praise undeserving men simply to court their favor, we injure the spirit of patriotism. Let us be honest, and say what we think. Patriots, as a rule, are good men, being courageous, honorable, and self-sacrificing. In their hearts, they have love and pride—love of the soil, the mother earth. They will honor the flag, defend and save it from disgrace at whatever cost.

History has left many traces of patriotic men. After many victories, Augustus would have become the undisputed master of the Roman world, but he declined all honor and distinction, which were thought to remind the Romans of kingly power. Julius Brutus roused the Romans to expel the tyrannical Tarquins. Brutus loved his country better than his children, and put his two sons to death, because they attempted to restore the Tarquins. When the earth in the Roman Forum one day gave way, and a great chasm appeared, which the soothsayers declared could only be filled by throwing into it Rome's greatest treasure. Thereupon, Metellus Curtius, a noble youth, mounted his steed in full armor, and declaring that Rome possessed no greater treasure than a brave and patriotic citizen, leaped into the abyss, and the earth closed upon him. Cato committed suicide rather than survive the downfall of the Roman Republic. In obedience to law, Socrates preferred to drink poison rather than to make his possible escape. Leonidas met his fate in defending the pass of Thermopylae rather than retreat from the station entrusted to his guidance. These are typical instances to impress your minds. Should they not inspire you to the spirit of patriotism?

Will women make good patriots? If they had the equal rights with men, they would change the political problem of the world. I have heard many women express their desire to vote. Think of Joan of Arc, though a peasant girl, conceiving the notion of ridding France of the English army of the Hundred Years' War. It was she that led the French to victory. Does this not signify the woman's love of country? The women will also make good rulers. Elizabeth of England, Catherine the Great, and Queen Victoria are the proofs. Surely, the voice of women in the Government would be an invaluable aid. Therefore, let the women have their franchise.

America produced a long list of patriots. Foremost among these are Abraham Lincoln and George Washington. The latter fills your heart with pride this day. The stamp of patriotism is left upon you. Think how he served his country without compensation, in spite of hardships and dangers. How unselfish he was in not accepting a third term's nomination for the presidency, thereby holding the constitution sacred! This comes under the head of patriotism, and it is this virtue that makes men great.

In celebrating this day, Hawaii is doing her part in patriotism. Look at the flags floating over the public buildings, and over private homes! The people of Hawaii are indeed patriotic. How enthusiastically do they sing, "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "Hawaii Pono!" With what zeal are the Promotion Committee at work?

All Americans, wherever they are, are proud of their country. They do not lack reasons. Their country is where true freedom exists. They inherited the hard-earned liberty and freedom from the struggles with tyranny and oppression. But nations, like individuals, cannot be perfect. It is about time that patriots should attend to "Child Labor," "Women's Franchise" and "The Attitude Toward Foreigners."

In the days to come, let patriotism be cherished in all hearts. Let it be the standard of humanity, of reason, of honor, and of righteousness. Let there be no war. Let one nation desire the good of another, and of the world.

KELLETT IN COURT ON ANOTHER CHARGE

An additional defalcation has been tacked onto P. D. Kellett Jr. The latest case is in connection with the guardianship of Kan Yee, a minor.

A hearing of the master's report was given before Judge Lindsay yesterday afternoon.

Kellett was in court but referred all matters to J. Alfred Magoon, who is Kellett's surety on a $3,000 bond in the present case.

Mr. Marcellino, the master, stated that he had seen Mr. Magoon, who claimed that he had nothing to do with the matter.

The Judge has issued the usual orders for an accounting. Mr. Marcellino was appointed guardian to give him power to make a demand on Kellett for money due on the accounting.

When refusal to produce the balance by Kellett, which seems probable, it is expected there will be warm times for Kellett.

KENNEL CLUB WANTS MANGY DOGS KILLED

A special meeting of the Hawaiian Kennel Club was held Thursday evening at the Young building to consider the subject of Miss Rose Davidson's crusade against mangy dogs. There was a large attendance. President D. P. R. Isenberg presiding.

The work being done by the humane officer was discussed and was approved by all present and the secretary ordered to write to both the Board of Health and to County Sheriff Iaukea, telling them that the Kennel Club would do everything to support the movement.

Among those present at the meeting were:

D. P. R. Isenberg, C. L. Crabbe, W. Henry, Dr. Rowat, Dr. Pottier, P. E. Ryan, John Kelly, W. H. Charlock, J. S. Lemon, W. J. Stewart, Tom Sharp, C. T. Littlejohn, Allan Rowat, Colin Campbell, A. B. Angus, G. M. Cook, W. D. Stein.

The letter sent to County Sheriff Iaukea was as follows:

C. P. Iaukea, Sheriff County of Oahu.

Dear Sir:—At a special meeting of the Hawaiian Kennel Club last evening it was unanimously resolved that the Club would do everything within its power to assist your department in its crusade to rid the town of mangy dogs. Dr. Pottier has offered his services in the matter of disposing of the animals in the most humane manner.

C. L. CRABBE, Secretary.

NORMAL CLASS GAME

In the first of the inter-class games between the classes at the Normal School, C2 defeated A by a score of 14-9. The line-up:

C2—Casino Spechman, May Akeo, forwards; Alice Harper, Daisy Kael, centers; Marion Wilhelm, Angeline Silva, guards.

A—Emma Lewis, Kall Watano, forwards; Marion Hastie, Ella Goo Kim, centers; Keahi Naitimu, Rica Soares, guards.

Officials: Henry Williams, Edwin Fernandez, Miss Stewart.

PUNS BEAT THE HIGH SCHOOL

The Punahou No. 1 team defeated the High School No. 2 at soccer yesterday by a score of 1-0. The game was close all the way through, the best work being done by Withington. Mon Yin for the Puns. The line up:

Punahou—Frazier, goal; L. Withington, Akina, full backs; Smith, Lo On, P. Dodge, halfbacks; Mon Yin, Desha, Lyman, S. Dodge, Davis, forwards.

GOLF AT HALEIWA

There has been no great excitement in golf circles for some weeks now and tomorrow is rather a slack day itself. A number of the local golfers will go to Haleiwa, where Manager Bigwood has arranged for an informal hotel tournament. Prizes will be awarded and, as the links are getting into shape, some good scores may be expected.

Next Sunday will see the monthly tourney for the White Rock trophy, which will be played for on this occasion at Moanalua.

SPORTING NOTES

There is a baseball game at the League grounds between the Tenth Infantry and the Rapid Transits this afternoon. No admission will be charged.

The cricket game between the Honolulu Cricket Club and the Everton picked team, which will be played at the Makiki grounds at 2 o'clock, today should be close and interesting.

The regular practice shoot of the Hawaiian Gun Club will be held at the Kakaako traps tomorrow.

The second number of the "Referee," published by H. M. Ayres, appeared this morning and is much brighter and better in every way than the first number of his paper. It contains interesting news and comment on both local and foreign sports.

The Coast papers are devoting a good deal of space to Barney Joy at present.

Harry Lewis proved an easy mark for "Honey" Melloy in their recent match. Four rounds, in which Lewis was outclassed all the way, ended in a clean knock-out.

Vice Commodore Thynne of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, is a guest at the Young Hotel.

SKELETON FOUND OF SUICIDE

Deputy Sheriff Pahlia came to town this morning and stated that he held an inquest yesterday over the remains of a Chinaman. The remains had been where it was found for some time, as there was nothing but the skeleton left. It was identified as being that of a Chinaman by the name of Lum Fai, who had been missing from Feb. 17th. He was lying with his face upwards. A .28-caliber revolver was found lying alongside of him, and upon examination, a bullet hole was found in the skull, the bullet having entered on the right side and gone right through and out of left side just above the temple. The verdict of coroner's jury was suicide.

Alonso C. Williams, clerk of Fresno County, Cal., left his home about 10 o'clock on the evening of Feb. 3, to answer a telephone call. He has not been seen since. His wife has made frantic search of neighboring cities without avail. Williams' reputation is unblemished.

Soda Water ...Sal...

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1930, by Frank H. Spearman

HE'S the great engineer which we called the skyscraper. He was a little fellow, but he was a pilot to tender. Our master mechanic, Neighbor, had an idea, after her terrible collision that she could not stand heavy main line passenger runs, so he put her on the Aetion cut off. It was what railroad men call a jerk water run, whatever that may be, a little jump of ten miles across the divide connecting the northern division with the Denver stem. It was just about like running a trolley, and the run was given to Dad Sinclair, for after that lift at Oxford his back was never strong enough to shovel coal, and he had to take an engine or quit railroading.

Thus it happened that after many years he took the throttle once more and ran over, twice a day, as he does yet, from Aetion to Willow Creek.

His boy, George Sinclair, the kid engineer, took the run on the floor opposite Foley just as soon as he got well.

George, who was never happy unless he had eight or ten Pullmans behind him and the right of way over everything between Omaha and Denver, made great sport of his father's little smoking car and day coach behind the big engine.

Foley made sport of the remodeled engine. He used to stand by while the old engineer was oiling and ask him whether he thought she could catch a jack rabbit. "I mean," Foley would say, "if the rabbit was feeling well."

Dad Sinclair took it all grumpy and quietly. He had railroaded too long to care for anybody's claff. But one day, after the skyscraper had got her flues pretty well chalked up with alkali, Foley insisted that she must be renamed.

"I have the only genuine skyscraper on the West End myself," declared Foley. He did have a new class H engine, and she was awe inspiring, in truth. "I don't propose," he continued, "to have her confused with your old tub any longer, Dad."

Dad, oiling his old tub affectionately, answered never a word. "She's full of soda, isn't she, father?" asked George, standing by.

"Reckon she is, son."

"Full of water, I suppose?"

"Try to keep her that way, son."

"Sal Soda, isn't it, Dad?"

"Now, I can't say. As to that I can't say."

"We'll call her Sal Soda, George," suggested Foley.

"No," interposed George. "Stop a bit. I have it. Not Sal Soda at all. Make it Soda Water Sal."

Then they laughed uproariously, and in the teeth of Dad Sinclair's protests—for he objected at once and vigorously—the queer name stuck to the engine, and sticks yet.

To have seen the great hulking machine you would never have suspected there could be another story left in her. Yet one there was—a story of the wind. As she stood, too, when old man Sinclair took her on the Aetion run, she was the best illustration I have ever seen of the adage that one can never tell from the looks of a frog how far it will jump.

Have you ever felt the wind? Not, I think, unless you have lived on the seas or on the plains. People everywhere think the wind blows, but it really blows only on the ocean and on the prairies.

The summer that Dad took the Aetion run it blew for a month steadily—all of one August—hot, dry, merciless, the despair of the farmer and the terror of trahmen.

It was on an August evening, with the gale still sweeping up from the southwest, that Dad came lumbering into Aetion with his little trolley train. He had barely pulled up at the platform to unload his passengers when the station agent, Morris Reynolds, coatless and hatless, rushed up to the engine ahead of the hostler and sprang into the cab. Reynolds was one of the quietest fellows in the service. To see him without coat or hat didn't count for much in such weather, but to see him sallow with fright and almost speechless was enough to stir even old Dad Sinclair.

It was not Dad's habit to ask questions, but he looked at the man in questioning amazement. Reynolds choked and caught at his breath as he seized the engineer's arm and pointed down the line.

"Dad," he gasped, "three cars of coal standing over there on the second spur blew loose a few minutes ago!"

"Where are they?"

"Where are they? Blown through the switch and down the line forty miles an hour!"

the postscript. "What can I do?" All the while the station agent, poor fellow, sat on the engine, looking at his watch, waiting it out, chortling at all under his thick, grey, grizzled wool, fast as thought could compass.

No, I headed for Aetion, and her pace was a bustle every mile of the way—three cars of coal bowling down on her, how fast he dared not think, and through it all he was asking himself: what day it was, Thursday? Up! Yes, George, his boy, was on the floor No. 1. It was his day up. If they met on a curve—

"I suppose her?" roared Dad Sinclair in a hoarse tone. "What are you going to do?" "Burns," thundered Dad to his fireman, "give her steam, and quick, boy! Dump in grease, waste oil, everything! Ace you clear there!" he cried, opening the throttle as he looked back.

The old engine, pulling clear of her coaches, quivered as she gathered herself under the steam. She leaped ahead with a swish. The wheels churned in the sand, bit into it with gritting tires and forged ahead with a suck and a hiss and a roar. Before Reynolds had fairly gathered his wits Sinclair, leaving his train on the main track in front of the depot, was clattering over the switch after the runaways. The wind was a terror, and they had too good a start. But the way Soda Water Sal took the gale when she once felt her feet under her made the writhing engine at her throttle set his mouth with the grimaces of a gamewster. It meant the runaways—and catch them—or the ditch for Soda Water Sal, and the throbbing old machine seemed to know it, for her nose hung to the steel like the snout of a pointer.

He was a man of a hundred even then—Burns—but nobody knew it then. He hadn't thought much about Burns before. He was a tall, lank Irish boy, with an open face and a morning smile. Dad Sinclair took him on because nobody else would have him. Burns was so green that Foley said you couldn't set his name afire. He would, so Foley said, put out a hot box just by blinking at it.

But every man's turn comes once, and it had come to Burns. It was Dick Burns' chance now to show what manner of stuff was bred in his long Irish bones. It was his task to make the steam—if he could—faster than Dad Sinclair could burn it. What use to grip the throttle and scheme if Burns didn't furnish the power, put the life into her flues as she paced the wind—the merciless, restless gale sweeping over the prairie faster than smoke could fly before it?

Working smoothly and swiftly into a dizzy whirl, the monstrous drivers took the steel in leaps and bounds. Dad Sinclair, leaning from the cab window, gleefully watched their gathering speed, pulled the bar up notch after notch, and fed Burns' fire into the old engine's arteries fast and faster than she could throw it into her steel hoofs.

That was the night the West End knew that a greenhorn had cast his chrysalis and stood out a man—knew that the honor roll of our frontier division wanted one more name, and that it was big Dick Burns. Sinclair hung silently desperate to the throttle, his eyes straining into the night ahead, and the face of the long Irish boy, streaked with sweat and channeled with the glare of the furnace as he fed the white hot blast that leaped and curled and foamed under the crown sheet of Soda Water Sal.

There he stooped and sweat and swung as she shewed and lurched and jerked across the flat plates. Carefully, nursingly, consciously he pushed the steam pointer higher, higher, higher on the dial—and that despite the tremendous drafts of Dad's throttle.

Never a glance to the right or the left, to the track or the engineer. From the coal to the fire, the fire to the water, the water to the gauge, the gauge to the stack and back again to the coal—that was Burns. Neither eyes nor ears nor muscles for anything but steam.

Such a firing as the West End never saw till that night; such a firing as the old engine never felt in her choking flues till that night; such a firing as Dad Sinclair, king of all West and East End firemen, lifted his hat to—that was Burns' firing that night on Soda Water Sal, the night she chased the Aetion runaways down the line to save George Sinclair and No. 1.

It was a frightful pace—how frightful no one ever knew; neither old man Sinclair nor Dick Burns ever cared. Only the crew of a freight, side tracking for the approaching blast, saw an engine flying light; knew the hostler and the quarry, for they had seen the runaways shoot by—saw them, a minute after, a star and a streak and a trail of rotten smoke fly down the wind, and she had come and passed and gone.

It was just east of that siding, on Burns and Sinclair always maintained, but it measured 10,000 feet east, that they caught them.

A shout from Dad brought the dripping fireman up standing, and, looking ahead, he saw in the blaze of their own headlight the string of coaches standing still ahead of them—so it seemed to him—their own speed was so great, and the runaways were almost equaling it. They were making forty miles an hour when they dashed past the paralyzed freight crew.

Without waiting for orders—what orders did such a man need?—without a word Burns crawled out of his window with a pin and ran forward on the footboard, clinging the best he could as the engine dipped and lurched, climbed down on the cowcatcher and lifted the pilot bar to couple. It was a crazy thing to attempt. He was much likelier to get under the pilot than to succeed, yet he tried it.

Then it was that the fine hand of Dad Sinclair came into play. To temper the speed enough, and just enough, to push her nose just enough and far enough for Burns to make the draw bar of the runaway—that was the mastery of the big seamed hands on the throttle and on the air, the very magic of touch which on a slender bar of steel could push a hundred tons of flying metal up and hold it steady in a play of six inches on the teeth of the gale that tore down behind him.

Again and again Burns tried to couple and failed. Sinclair, straining anxiously ahead, caught sight of the headlight of No. 1 rounding off Fallon's bluffs.

He cried to Burns, and, incredible though it seems, the fireman heard. Above all the infernal din, the tearing of the flanges and the roaring of the wind Burns heard the cry. It nerved him to a supreme effort. He shipped the eye once more into the draw and managed to drop his pin. Up went his hand in signal.

Choking the steam, Sinclair threw the brake shoes flaring against the big drivers. The sand poured on the rails, and with Burns up on the coilers setting brakes the three great runaways were brought to with a jerk that would have astounded the most reckless seapracers in the world.

While the plucky fireman crept along the top of the freight cars to keep from being blown bodily through the air, Sinclair, with every resource that brain and nerve and power could exert, was struggling to overcome the terrible headway of pursuer and pursued, driving now fearfully into the beaming head of No. 1.

With the Johnson bar over and the drivers dancing a gallop backward; with the sand striking fire and the rails burning under it; with the old skyscraper shivering again in a terrible struggle and Burns twisting the heads off the brake rods; with every trick of old Sinclair's cunning and his boy's dexterity every one of them in the cab of No. 1—still they came together. It was too fearful a momentum to overcome, when minutes mean miles and tons are reckoned by thousands.

They came together, but instead of an appalling wreck, destruction and death it was only a bump. No. 1 had the speed when they met, and it was a car of coal dumped a bit sudden and a nose on George's engine like a full-back's after a center rush. The pilot doubled back into the ponies, and the headlight was scoured with nut, pea and slack, but the stack was hardly bruised.

The minute they struck George Sinclair, making fast and leaping from his cab, ran forward in the dark, panting with rage and excitement. Burns, torch in hand, was himself just jumping down to get forward. His face wore its usual grin, even when George assailed him with a torrent of abuse.

"What do you mean, you red headed lubber?" he shouted, with much the lungs of his father. "What are you doing switching coal here on the main line?"

In fact, George called the astonished fireman everything he could think of until his father, who was blundering forward on his side of the engine, hearing the voice, turned and ran around behind the tender to take a hand himself.

"Mean?" he roared above the blow of his safety. "Mean?" he belowed in the teeth of the wind. "Mean? Why, you impudent, empty headed, ungrateful rascal, what do you mean coming around here to abuse a man that's saved you and your train from the scrap?"

And big Dick Burns, standing by with his torch, burst into an Irish laugh, fairly doubled up before the onslaught by and listened with great relish to the excited father and excited son. It was not hard to understand George's amazement and anger at finding Soda Water Sal behind three cars of coal halfway between stations on the main line and on his time, and that the fastest time on the division. But what amazed Burns most was to see the imperturbable old Dad pitching into his boy with as much spirit as the young man himself showed.

It was because both were so scared and of their wits were scared over their narrow escape from a frightful wreck; from having each killed the other, maybe—the son the father, and the father the son.

For brave men do get scared. Don't believe anything else. But between the fright of a co-sword and the fright of a horse man there is this difference—the coward's scale is apparent before the danger, that of the brave man after it has passed, and Burns laughed with a tremendous mirth "at the two of them again," as he expressed it.

No man on the West End could turn on his pins quicker than George Sinclair, though, if his hostliness mistook him. When it all came clear he slipped into the old cab the cab he himself had once gone against death in—dead with stumbling words tried to thank the tall Irishman, who still laughed in the excitement of having won.

And when Neighbor next day, thoughtful and taciturn, heard it all, he very carefully looked Soda Water Sal all over again.

"Dad," said he, when the boys got through telling it for the last time, "she's a better machine than I thought she was."

"There isn't a better pulling your coaches," maintained Dad Sinclair stoutly.

"I'll put her on the main line, Dad, and give you the 108 for the cut off, huh?"

"The 108 will suit me, Neighbor. Any old tub—eh, Foley?" said Dad, turning to the cheeky engineer, who had come up in time to hear most of the talk.

The old fellow had not forgotten Foley's sneer at Soda Water Sal when he rechristened her. But Foley, too, had changed his mind and was ready to give in.

"That's quite right, Dad," he acknowledged. "You can get more out of any old tub on the division than the rest of us fellows can get out of a Baldwin consolidated. I mean it too. It's the best thing I ever heard of. What are you going to do for Burns, Neighbor?" asked Foley, with his usual assurance.

"I was thinking I would give him Soda Water Sal and put him on the right side of the cab for a freight run. I reckon he earned it last night."

In a few minutes Foley started off to hunt up Burns.

"See here, Irish," said he in his off hand way, "next time you catch a string of runaways just remember to climb up the ladder and set your brakes before you couple. It will save a good deal of wear and tear on the pilot bar, see? I hear you're going to get a run. Don't fall out the window when you get over on the right."

And that's how Burns was made an engineer and how Soda Water Sal was rescued from the disgrace of running on the trolley.

The Deception of Distance. "It's very deceptive to judge of the size or capacity of an object which is fifty feet or more in the air," said an architect to the writer as we were passing the royal courts of justice a few days ago. "Now, look at that clock," pointing to the law courts clock, which hangs about seventy feet above the pavement. "It looks very small, doesn't it? Hardly big enough to hold a man. Yet a party of us breakfasted in the case before the works were put in." Everybody knows how deceptive is the appearance of the Westminster clock. Looking at the dial from the embankment or from Great George street, it seems as if a man of medium size could easily stretch across the dial with both arms. Yet it would take four pairs of outstretched arms to cross it. The minute hand, which looks like an ordinary walking stick, is longer than the two tallest soldiers in the life guards. The figures on the dial are bigger than a three-year-old child, and the second dots are as big as a dinner plate.—London Graphic.

Feeling a Critic. What can be more mirth provoking than the naive simplicity with which a pompous critic, who prides himself on his lynx eyed acuteness, will sometimes walk into a trap that has been set for him? When Alexander Pope was translating Homer he read by request several books of the "Iliad" to Lord Halifax, whom he characterizes as a literary coxcomb, at his house. During the reading his lordship several times stopped the poet and suggested that certain passages might be improved. Perplexed and irritated by the advice, the poet withdrew with Garth, who laughed heartily at the incident, and told him to leave the verses just as they were, to call on Halifax a month later, thank him for his criticisms and then read again the verses to him unaltered. Pope followed this advice, saying to Halifax that he hoped his lordship would now find his objections removed, upon which Halifax, delighted, cried out: "Aye, now they are perfectly right. Nothing can be better."—William Matthews in Success Magazine.

Men and "Love Stories." When a man has passed through the cycle of emotions called love he has had his adventures; other people's cease to have a personal bearing, and he anticipates nothing further from them.

It is not so with the young man and woman who, as the proverb says of the young bear, have all their troubles before them. The world of love, so full of mystery for them, has become to the maturer man translated into the concrete terms of domestic life, and the relations of man and woman pass into the domain of fact that can be tested by experience.

Yet novelists do not seem to understand this psychology of the mature man, and they continue to make the love story their chief staple, so that they are read chiefly by young men and women as callow as their own heroes and heroines. Peculiarly they are of course catering for a larger market. The number of the immature by age and the immature by nature are always the larger part of man kind.—London Saturday Review.

Warm, Debilitating Weather

Many people, after a long spell of oppressive heat, suffer from lassitude, loss of spirits, and a general "run down" feeling.

They need a course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, a medicine which has revived and restored to active life and health thousands of such sufferers. A lady who recently returned by England from South Africa writes concerning this "wonderful medicine":

"While in Cape Town the past summer I suffered greatly from the long-continued heat. I was completely worn out; my blood seemed to become as thin as water, and I lost all energy and interest in life. My friends recommended

During the reading his lordship several times stopped the poet and suggested that certain passages might be improved. Perplexed and irritated by the advice, the poet withdrew with Garth, who laughed heartily at the incident, and told him to leave the verses just as they were, to call on Halifax a month later, thank him for his criticisms and then read again the verses to him unaltered. Pope followed this advice, saying to Halifax that he hoped his lordship would now find his objections removed, upon which Halifax, delighted, cried out: "Aye, now they are perfectly right. Nothing can be better."—William Matthews in Success Magazine.

Men and "Love Stories." When a man has passed through the cycle of emotions called love he has had his adventures; other people's cease to have a personal bearing, and he anticipates nothing further from them.

It is not so with the young man and woman who, as the proverb says of the young bear, have all their troubles before them. The world of love, so full of mystery for them, has become to the maturer man translated into the concrete terms of domestic life, and the relations of man and woman pass into the domain of fact that can be tested by experience.

Yet novelists do not seem to understand this psychology of the mature man, and they continue to make the love story their chief staple, so that they are read chiefly by young men and women as callow as their own heroes and heroines. Peculiarly they are of course catering for a larger market. The number of the immature by age and the immature by nature are always the larger part of man kind.—London Saturday Review.

Feeling a Critic. What can be more mirth provoking than the naive simplicity with which a pompous critic, who prides himself on his lynx eyed acuteness, will sometimes walk into a trap that has been set for him? When Alexander Pope was translating Homer he read by request several books of the "Iliad" to Lord Halifax, whom he characterizes as a literary coxcomb, at his house. During the reading his lordship several times stopped the poet and suggested that certain passages might be improved. Perplexed and irritated by the advice, the poet withdrew with Garth, who laughed heartily at the incident, and told him to leave the verses just as they were, to call on Halifax a month later, thank him for his criticisms and then read again the verses to him unaltered. Pope followed this advice, saying to Halifax that he hoped his lordship would now find his objections removed, upon which Halifax, delighted, cried out: "Aye, now they are perfectly right. Nothing can be better."—William Matthews in Success Magazine.

What Prominent People Say The Harrison Mutual Burial Ass'n

Messrs. Harrison Mutual Burial Association:

Gentlemen:—Your Association not only assures every member of a proper and decent burial at a very small cost, but relieves others of a responsibility they are not always prepared to meet.

Yours respectfully,
FATHER H. VALENTIN.

Messrs. Harrison Mutual Burial Association:

Gentlemen:—I have carefully investigated the plans of your Association and am heartily in favor of the idea. You may put me on your list as a member, and I recommend everyone to join whether they think they will need the benefit or not.

Respectfully yours,
WM. W. HALL.

I value highly my own membership in the Harrison Mutual Burial Association and recommend every man, woman and child in Honolulu to join.

P. C. JONES.

Gentlemen:—I cheerfully give my endorsement to the Harrison Mutual Burial plan and believe it a great benefit to the community.

Very truly yours,
H. H. PARKER.

Harrison Mutual Burial Association:

Gentlemen:—Every man ought to carry some kind of insurance. It seems to me that this should come first, and I have yet to find a plan which seems more practical or more reasonable than yours. Am glad I have been a member from the start.

Very truly yours,
HENRY C. BROWN.

Mr. W. W. Hall:

I became a member of the association of which you are the president, a little after its start, and am satisfied with what it has fulfilled. The deceased members have received burial respectably, and had it not been for your association their living ones would undoubtedly feel the funeral expense considerably. I recommend every man and woman and child to join in.

M'KINLEY MEMORIAL

DON'T WANT ZOO SITE

The McKinley Memorial Association held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the board-room at the Bank of Hawaii. There were present Judge Sanford B. Dole, president; Charles M. Cooke, treasurer; John G. Rothwell, secretary; Rev. W. D. Westervelt, F. A. Schaefer and John A. McCandless. T. C. Davies, the remaining member, was absent on Ha Hawaii.

Treasurer Cooke exhibited the accounts of the Association. The proposal to purchase the Zoo property for the purpose of making a children's play ground was rejected. The majority claimed that the property now owned by the Association was revenue producing and was by no means a "white elephant." That at a proper time it could be made into a park that would far surpass the Zoo property.

THE STOLEN HORSE.

An Old Proverb with a New Application.
The woods are full of "so-called" remedies for Baldness.

You may call anything in creation a remedy, but to use them in like looking the stable after the horse is stolen. Baldness and Dandruff are caused by a germ—if you don't kill the germ the germ will kill the hair.

Scientists have labored with the problem of a preventative for Baldness for many years.

Newell's Herpicide is the product of a modern idea, and will cure Dandruff and prevent Baldness because germs cannot exist when you apply Herpicide. Herpicide is a valuable hair dressing and scalp disinfectant as well as a cure for Dandruff.

SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE

ENTERTAINS SAILORS

There was a jolly social gathering at the rooms of the Seamen's Institute last Thursday evening. Officers and men from the S. S. Elaine, S. S. Inveric, Bk. Invermay, Andrew Welch, R. P. Rithet, Helene and S. C. Allen were present and made things move in a good old "sea salt" way.

The event was a farewell concert to the ships about to leave port. The affair was conducted by Mrs. Arthur Wall, to whom great credit is due for the delightful way all numbers passed off during the evening.

After the entertainment coffee and cakes were served to all present.

BILL INTRODUCED
FOR THE CHILDREN

At last the children are to have a law for their protection—if the bill which has been introduced into the Legislature becomes a law. Senator Chillingworth yesterday afternoon introduced into the senate an Act for the prevention of cruelty to children. Representative Hawkins will look after the matter in the House.

The bill was prepared by Judge Whitney, the one man in Honolulu who has been taking any great interest in the welfare of the children. It is in line with sentiments that have from time to time been expressed by the Bulletin, though it does not go as far as was suggested by this paper editorially a few days ago. The bill provides for the protection of children from cruelty on the part of their parents or guardians, but does not provide a penalty of the non-support of children by their parents. Following is the wording of the bill:

An Act for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Be it Enacted by the Legislature of the Territory of Hawaii:

Section 1. Any person who shall willfully abandon or injure in health or limb any child under his legal control or shall neglect to provide such child with suitable and necessary food or clothing or shall cruelly or unreasonably strike, beat, fog or chastise any such child shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in a sum not exceeding Two Hundred Dollars ($200) or imprisoned for a term not exceeding six (6) months.

Section 2. This Act shall take effect from and after the date of its approval.

First M. E. Church.—Services tomorrow as follows: 6:30 a. m. Sunrise service on Punchbowl; 9:45 a. m. Sunday school; 11 a. m. public service. Bishop Graham preaches. Weekly Bulletin $1 Per Year

MONSTER
HOSIERY SALE

A Great Purchase of Men's Women's and Children's Hosiery at about 40 Per Cent off Ordinary prices.

The opportunity Came our way and we divide the Benefit with you.

We will commence Friday March 1st, a big four days sale of the Largest, Cheapest, and Best Assorted Stock of Hosiery that was ever shown in Honolulu.

When we say the sale will last only four days we mean it. Every pair should be sold in one day at the prices we are offering, but should there be any left-overs at the end of the fourth day, we will place them in stock at their ordinary values and turn our attention to something else.

Read this list of prices and come to Alakea street and inspect the various lines all laid out on the tables, marked and classified in their various lots.
