BANCROST, THE HISTORIAN.

A Pen P'sture of the Venerable Writer-

An Active Old Man. [Washington Cor. New York World.] Bancroft, the historian, is one of the most noticeable figures in Washington society. The remarkable preservation of his vi or at the advanced age of 84 years, is what makes him the most interesting. He is not the most charming conversationalist in the world. He fairly roars as he talks. He appears always as if he were addressing some . a dozen yards away. He shouts i veral sentences at a friend in this high key and hen without waiting or listening to Layone esse he moves to address someone else He calls as much as the most active recently young man. He darts in and out of the leading houses of the town with a light ship that is almost offensive in its exuberant agility. This veteran still has a slin erect figure. His legs are straight. There is no weakness there. He holds himself to ether with all that goes to make a good n litary set-up. He is especially agile in the pro-

ence of ladies, and under the inspiring same

of a lovely society bud, the veteran curvets, shies and skips with the lightsome grace of some of the thoroughbreds he has ben 80 fond of riding in the past. This is a picture of him as I saw him the other day: He sat in a low, easy pony phaeton drawn by a stout black horse, wearing a plain, unornamented harness. Just back of him in the rumble sat his favorate colored groom, who held the reins over the historian's left shoulder. The old man wore a dark-blue untrimmed Prussian officer's cap pulled well down upon his glearning eyes, looking out through a huge pair of round, heavily gold-mounted glasses resting upon a real hawk nose. A snowy-white silky mustache and beard brought out ha fresh color, and stood out in strong contrast with the dull black of his heavy pilot-cloth overcoat, while about his legs was an atghan of red, black, and yellow worsteds. It was a warm, sunny day. His horse jogged along with a steady gait, while the veteran roared a soliloquy at his servant about his calling places. The man leaned forward deferentially and superintended the calling list When he said stop the veteran would throw aside his afghan and skip up the steps, seeming to restrain himself by an effort from turning handsprings on his way. Mr. Bancroft lives a very regular life, and as he has always taken a great deal of outdoor exercise, it is not hard to account for his long life. He has never burdened himself with work. He has been all his long life writing a history that could have been written in ten years with moderate labor. One page of manuscript a day of 250 words he regards as a good day's work. Mr. Blaine, his fellow-historian, a man in the full vigor of his life, regards 1,000 words a day as all any man can be expected to do well for a period of protracted work. Think of this. oh! merciless editors, who crack the whip

A RETROSPECT.

Thirty-three years ago this day (July 2, 1856) the first number of the PACIFIC COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER WAS issued in the wooden building which formerly stood opposite Bishop & Co.'s Bank on Merchant street. For printing it, a new Adams power press and printing office, types, etc., had been imported from Boston via Cape Horn. 'The day set for issuing the first number was looked forward to with much interest, and a large crowd of the leading citizens of Honolulu filled the printing room at the hour when the edition began to be worked off. Barnum W. Field secured the first impression, Captain Thomas Spencer the second, Captain B. F. Snow the third, and so on, each one regarding his copy as a prize worth preserving. The edition was one lulu; and all his official acts, as such, are thousand copies, which was deemed porters stock. Only two sources are ordered to receive full faith and credit by a sufficient supply for all the wants open for this, the East Indias and of the town, but before the close of the week not a copy was left at the publication office. The size of the paper was about that of the present | is 782,866 tons, against 1,065,466 tons > daily. It would be interesting, were it possible, to reproduce, a list of the names which were on the first subscription book of the ADVERTISER, some gone to the better land, and others still living here or elsewhere. Among them were all the leading merchants and residents of that day

-Wyllie, Judd, Stephen Reynolds, Armstrong, Corwin, Dr. Lathrop, Everett, Rice, Snow, Dr. Wood, G.D. Gilman, Post, Capt. Makee, F. L. Hanks, R. C. Janion, Macfarlane, Hopkins, Captain Hackfeld, Stephen Spencer, J. T. Waterhouse, F. Spencer, H. A. Pierce, Bishop, Melchers, J. Parker, Heuck, Castle, Hall, Cooke, Stangenwald, Von many others.

The platform on which the ADVER-TISER rested when it commenced in 1856 was popular rights—the greatest good of the greatest number, without regard to color, race or condition, and this is the platform on which the ADVERTISER and its weekly consort, the Hawaiian Gazette, rest to-day, and shall continue so long as they remain under the control of their present manager, who established the Pacific Commercial Advertiser in 1856.

In connection with the above, an interesting item may be noticed here, regarding the vignette in the heading of the Daily. It was sketched by the writer from the cross-trees of one of the guano clipper ships lying at anchor near the bell buoy off the port, in 1855, and the drawing was sent to Boston, where it was engraved and electrotyped. This electrotype plate has been in use during the past thirty-three years, and it is estimated that from it have been struck off Eastern powers, and the Mexican nearly if not quite two and a half millions of impressions, in the weekly, semi-weekly and daily issues, and its appearance now is about as clear as when first put into use.

The Samoa Times, a single demy newspaper published at Apia, costs 20 cents each copy. It has leaked out that L. D. Nathan & Co. of Auckland, N. Z., own the available land on Pago Pago Harbor, by regular deed of conveyance dated August 11, 1873. The American Government have a grant or lease of the harbor, but

OUR SAN FRANCISCO LETTH

Per S. S. Umatilla, San Francisco, Ju 21, 1889.

(From our special correspondent.) Sugar Matters. An Eastern authority gives the following encouraging information: The question of price is fast becoming of secondary importance to ques tion of supplies, of both raws and refined. A notable feature of the week is the further decrease of 11,261 tons in receipts from Cuba and news from the British West Indies that the season is closing with 15,000 tons less sugar for shipment from Trinidad than last season, and corresponding shortages from other islands. Thus far there has been no extraordinary decrease in the United States receipts (33,391 tons) under last year; but now interest does not consist in what we have received, but in what we have in hand and are to receive, and where it is to come from. The importers stock is but 24,222 tons against 150,135 tons, a deficiency of 125,918 tons which last year existed in local stocks for refiners to draw against as their own supplies gave out. The refiners have lost 5,585 tons for the week, and have now but 28,800 tons in excess of same time last year. A point which cannot be emphasized too much is apparent from these figures. The importers will have no local stocks as they had last year to give the refiners, when the usual foreign supplies gave out; therefore the necessity for hunting the world for unusual supplies is many times multiplied, for the refiners' stocks must be maintained and increased to give them any security at all against an absolute dearth of supplies. #### EAST MAUI FEMALE SEMINARY.

Early History of the Institution-Its Anniversary Examination-Suggestions, Etc.

It is twenty years since a few good people on Maui secured a Charter for a girls' boarding school. The school buildings were not erected nor teachers secured till about June, 1871. Miss H. E. Carpenter, who then began her labors in connection with this school, and for fifteen years has been the efficient, beloved, and honored Principal, has given the school its character and reputation as an attractive home as well as a well managed training school for Hawaiian girls. The Christian influences, and the domestic as well as intellectual training, for which the school has been noted, have a self perpetuating testimony to their inestimable value in many Hawaiian homes to-day in every island of the Changes in the population and occupation of Makawao, where the school is located have been as great and noticeable as in every other district. Hawaiians have disappeared, foreign resident artisans have grown fewer and fewer during the last decade. Within the last five years Chinese and Portuguese have been the stillness of a sparsely populated grazing district has taken the place of the sounds of the kapa beating, and the later cries of household domestic animals. Now the solitary traveller winds his lonely way for miles of well-fenced roads with few habitations. But anniversary day at the East Mau Female Seminary is still regarded as one of the great festival days, and from every quarter people come up the long ascent to "Maunaelu." Last Thursday, June 27, at 9 o'clock the spacious school-yard was occupied by horses and brakes and wagonettes, while the various rooms were thronged with an assemblage of visitors, eagerly inspecting the specimens of school work, or fancy work, or the appetizing cakes and breads from the kitchen department. Presently the changing of the big bell (a gift from W. W. Hall,) summons the crowd to the school hall where the various teachers conduct recitations in the special topics of study they have been teaching their pupils. Classes in Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, History, English Literature, show the careful and successful training they have re-ceived, though the Primary Department, the mysteries of the printed page, or sing with bird-like trills the simple songs of youthful glee or pathos. Then, all gather in the hall for the closing rhetorical exercises, and these ended, crowd the verandahs to see the graceful groupings in the calisthenic drill on the lawn. Brief addresses follow from the President of the Board of Trustees, G. E. Beckwith, of Haiku, and the various visiting ministers from the different parishes on Maui. The lunch is deftly served, and quickly despatched, and soon there is it is many a mile back to the far away homes; and night will fall ere some can return to the distant locality whence

No additional action has been taken in New Zealand regarding mail communication with America; but the Auckland press devotes considerable space to the advantages that must accrue to the colonies from continued direct communication with San Francisco. There have been very heavy and protracted rains and floods in many parts of New South Wales and Victoria. Severe gales of wind have also devastated the coasts, and many cases of shipwreck have occurred, accompanied in some in-

The prependerance of opinion amongst those who have studied the question on the spot, points to the conclusion that colored labor is a necessity for the planters. It is not merely a question whether white men can work in the overpowering heat of the canefields, though that is a very important issue; nor it is simply a matter of cost. The question of trustworthiness is also to be considered. There is less fear of the blacks than of the whites suddenly scurrying down the different roads, for it is many a mile back to the far away homes: and night will fall ere some can that at two general elections the constituencies have pronounced against colored labor. Politicians cannot afford to disregard the voice of the constituencies, even though in obeying it the prospects of a great national industry may be sacrificed.

The Process Explained by a Warehouse Clerk-Results Obtained.

[Baltimore Herald.] "Sweating and resweating tobacco," said a young man in the top story of a South Charles street warehouse "are very interesting and curious industries."
"What does the term sweating mean?"

asked the reporter.

"Drying out the rankness and the gum." answered the young man. "It also brings out the dark colors. I will explain the process to you briefly. It is applied only to the leaf tobacco which is used for cigar wrappers. After the tobacco is cut it is put on bulk—that is, in large piles, where it remains during the winter. Then, the following summer, after being closely packed, it is put through the first 'sweat.' It is put on bulk in large warehouses like huge bundles of hay, and there it stays during the summer. The natural heat generated suffices to do the sweating. Sometimes the heat becomes so great that a pile is set on fire by spontaneous combustion, though this does not often occur. The tobacco is packed stalk by stalk with the leaf attached, each stalk and leaf being called a

"The resweating is done, as I said be-fore, to dry out the rankness, and the superfluous gum and to bring out the dark colors that are so much admired in cigar wrappers. This, a fact, is the only way in which the desirable Maduro and Oscuro shades can be produced. "The resweating does not affect the strength of the leaves, but only the color. Or, perhaps, I should say, it does not render the tobacco more strong. It is a popular fallacy that a strong eigar must have a dark wrapper, or that a dark wrapper indicates a strong cigar. As a matter of fact, if anything. the dark resweated leaves are milder than than the natural buff and snuff-colored

"How is the resweating done?" fell from the mouth of the listening scribe. "We get the hands of tobacco in large boxes from the dealers. It is first taken out of these boxes and cased-there, like that," he said, pointing to a man who was gathering up double handfuls of the etalks and dipping them, butts down-ward, for a moment in a trough filled with water, which was deeply dyed with the coloring matter of the leaves. . "After soaking the ends of the bands in the water they are placed on a casing table, stems upward, where they are allowed to drain—this consuming from fifteen minutes to one hour. The stalks are then put back into the original boxes, and there they remain for forty-eight hours. Each of these boxes holds from 300 to 450 pounds of leef tobacco.

Hospitalities of a Philadelphia Club. There is a club of solid men in Phila delphia which takes supreme delight in extending its hospitalities to some honored guest and then guying him until he imagines that he has by some mistake got imagines that he has by some mistake got into a lunatic asylum. Their latest victim was United States treasurer, Conrad N. Jordan. They invited him to an elaborate banquet, where everything was conducted with the utmost decorum and reserve until he was called upon to respond to a toast. Scarcely had he mentioned how happy he was to be among them when the whole company started in lustily to sing "Happy Moments." Gratified, though slightly amazed, at this exhibition of enthusiasm, the treasurer proceeded with his speech, only to be interrupted by a stentorian voice giving out the notes of a stentorian voice giving out the notes of a stentorian voice giving out the notes of "One Bright River and that Bright River is Jordan," in which all tongues vociferously joined. At this stage of the proceedings the guest began to comprehend the programme, and modified his remarks so as to admit of a graceful finish. But the watchful chorus leader divined his purpose and rang out the keynote of "Roll, Jordan, Roll!" Finally, when he had gladly sat down, the festive hosts comforted him with "Jordan am a Hard Road to Trabbel." We will not divulge the to Trabbel." We will not divulge the name of the club, because it has other victims on the list whom it proposes to entertain and astonish in due season.-New York Graphic.

South Carolina's Phosphates.

[Scientific American.] The phosphate rock bed of South Carolina now supplies the world with the chief part of all the phosphate of lime used in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers, and this industry was unknown there until 1868. The greatest length of this phosphate rock bed is about seventy miles, the city of Charleston being about the center of the most accessible deposits. It crops out at the surface in many places, and is found distributed over large areas at the bottom of many of the rivers.

It is mined in three ways, by open quarrying and digging in the land; by dredging and grappling with powerful steam machines in deep water; by handpicking and with tongs in shallow streams. Its average price is about $6 a ton, and the state levies a tax of $1 a tod on all that is shipped, making it an important item. portant item of revenue. These phos-phates are the remains of very ancient an imal life, and fragments are brought uc not only representing the tapir, horse, elephant, and mastodon, but amphibious ones, such as the seal, dugong, walrus, Incubator-Hatched Chickens.

[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.] The latest charge against incubatorhatched chickens comes from the cooks of the Saratoga hotels, and is that they are tough and stringy. The incubator broods are fed upon corn meal and boiled petatoes instead of their natural diet of grubs and worms, and are kept in contracted and dirty quarters, which is held to account for the inferior flavor.

> Startling Statistics. [Detroit Free Press.]

There are 1,232 men in this country with artificial noses, and over 2,000 with artificial ears, while it is calculated that only one man in every ninety-seven is perfectly sound in mind and body.
