EDUCATIONAL EXCITEMENT

There is a pronounced desire on the part of some educational reformers to break with tradition and custom. The air is fairly vibrant with their criticisms and their demands. They strike a responsive chord in those who feel that there is something wrong with our educational practice, but those who are unable to diagnose their own feelings. There is always a large element of our total population ready to be led by those who shout the loudest and gesticulate the wildest. It is true that progress usually results from criticism. Critics should not be condemned merely because they criticize; they may be condemned because of the methods they employ, or because they use untrue or untrustworthy statements, or because they fail to be constructive.

There are at least two classes of people in education, as there is in nearly every other calling, who are working harm. One of these is stupid in its conservatism and the other is malignant in its reforms. The unlicensed speech of these reformers is sometimes taken as an expression of scientific doubt. We are told by them that the old is wholly valueless, that we should not only destroy our educational superstructure, but dig up its very foundations. This wild appeal has met with an altogether too hearty response; it has been the cause of failure of many a young schoolmaster who was promoted to an administrative position before he became sufficiently judicious and wise to cling to that which has the sanction of a long and successful experience.

There is some conservatism that is just as stupid as some reform is malignant. It is as inimical to educational progress for some to stolidly refuse to listen to the beckonings of progress as it is for others to resort continuously to the vocabulary of passion. One clings with blind faith and reverence to his traditions while the other pushes some virtue to fanatical excess and disturbs the objective relations of things. They are equally bad.

The common sense of the mass is shown in their balanced minds, not in rushing madly off to some absurd extreme nor in standing stolidly or indifferently against the reconstruction of any institution. The wiser leader in education recognizes thoroughly that the true view lies somewhere in between these two extremes. He will struggle to preserve the conceptions of morality and ideals of thoroughness and of accuracy of our educational forbears. Such things may be traditions, but now, perhaps more than ever, attention should be called to, and increased emphasis placed upon them. Our wise leader will not only cling to and cherish these, but he will give sympathetic ear to the valid claims of the reformers—he will recognize the increased complexity of modern social and industrial life and the consequent modification of school materials and school practice. He will not seek to revolutionize educational theory and school-room practice, nor will he fight to keep it unchanged. He will make changes as rapidly as the shifting conditions of life and the needs and character of his community warrant.

"Engaged," Very Soon, Yes?

The three-act comedy entitled "Engaged," so professionally produced by the dramatic troupe of the Iluma Club of Makaweli last year, is to be revived and presented to the Lihue theater goers on the night of February 8th. Special scenery has been prepared for the performance, and no efforts will be spared to make the second presentation (if possible) more successful than the initiative performance. The troupe is coming at the request of the members of the Mckihana club.

ROUGH HOUSE OVER A FEUD

Special to The Garden Island
KOLOA, January 25.—This place was the scene early Tuesday morning of a royal battle between employees of the Koloa plantation, when the Hunt brothers, nursing a grudge against one, Kuhlman lay in wait for the latter at the plantation stables. According to Kuhlman's story on reaching the stable he was attacked by the Hunts, one of whom held him while the other played a tattoo on his proboscis. Fighting himself free from his assailants, he returned to his house where he enlisted the assistance of a grown son after which they hiked it back to the scene of combat, where on finding his assailants still holding forth, the battle was renewed a la black snake route.

Fiercely raged the affray, the Kuhlman faction gradually gaining on the adversaries and had not the miniature war been interrupted by Manager Charles Wilcox serious results might have followed. The case was investigated by the police department with Judge Kapahae who on hearing the evidence reserved his declaration of sentence. It is, however, generally predicted that a suspension of sentence for thirteen months will be meted out to the parties at fault.

Poles May Be Our Next

Jazef Okolowich a prominent Pole who accompanied Dr. Victor S. Clark on the latter's return from the East, spent last week in looking over the labor situation with a view of finding future homes on our plantations for several hundreds of his country. Mr. Okolowich expressed himself as highly pleased with conditions in general and the hospitality of the people in particular. He was the guest of Mr. Boreiko, bookkeeper for the Kilauea plantation on Friday night the two having met for the first time since Mr. Boreiko's last European tour a number of years ago. Market Superintendent Starrett accompanied the distinguished visitor on a tour of the plantations including Koloa, McBryde, Makaweli, Waimea and Kekaha.

PLANS FOR BIG ANNUAL MEET ARE PAU

Preparations have been completed for the annual meeting of the Kauai Teachers' Association, which is to be held in the Lihue school building on Friday next. A principals' meeting will be held at the Lihue hall on Saturday, when it is expected that most of the principals and a number of prominent officials will be present.

Bridge Club Entertains

Mrs. Dean, Sr., and Judge C. S. Dole, entertained the members of the Lihue Bridge Club at the Fairview Hotel last Friday evening. The club has a membership of ten in all, each of whom has the privilege of inviting a guest to their meetings which are scheduled for every other Friday. The club aims to carry out the Bohemian idea so far as possible, thus rendering their meetings entirely informal which is making a hit.

There were four tables, and as many prizes given. Mrs. Stewart captured the ladies' first prize, while Mrs. D. Wm. Dean was awarded consolation prize. Mr. Carter won the gentlemen's first prize, while Judge Dickey got away with the consolation prize. Playing continued until eleven o'clock, when delicious refreshments were served. Mrs. Dean and

MAY GET 80 ACRES

"It is now very probable that homestead lots containing sixty acres will be allowed the Kapaa Homesteaders. In fact, I am under the impression that if those who are desirous of even larger holdings were to ask for eighty acres, they would not meet with much opposition in securing them. The lease in which the canning factory is concerned will be sold on February 5th., and as soon thereafter as possible prospective homesteaders will do well to get down to business. I think that the settlement association scheme will very likely prevail in the final settlement of these lands. One of the reasons given for the small acreage allotted to the homesteader is that there would not be land enough to go around. It is my opinion that as the land has practically lain idle due to the smallness of the lots, it is now up to the land office to increase the size of the lots in order to induce homesteaders to settle, and this increase would be about right if it were eighty acres."—STARRETT.

According to further statements by Mr. Starrett, the canning factory will be operated at the end of five years on the cooperative plan which will include the homesteaders, and that prior to this time all dividends will be put back into the improvements in the plant. It is calculated that by the end of five years, a plant worth $500,000.00 will have been established. There are in all 7,000 acres of land to be homesteaded in the immediate vicinity of the proposed canning factory. This, at 80 acres to the man, would mean a colony of more than 800 people. Just watch Kapaa grow—pineapples.

The onion and potato crops are better than was anticipated. Irish potatoes are abundant, and Jack Coney is said to have a field of onions which would make your eyes water.

All Mortality Records Broken

All mortality records have been broken since the present congress began. Vice President Sherman, six senators and 16 representatives having died. One representative-elect, Joel Cook of Pennsylvania, died before congress convened.

The full mortality roll of the Sixty-second congress follows:

Vice President Sherman, Senators Frye, the president pro tem; Davis of Arkansas, Heyburn of Idaho, Taylor of Tennessee, Rayner of Maryland, Nixon of Nevada, Representatives Anderson of Georgia, Bingham, Kipp and McHenry of Pennsylvania, Connel and Malby of New York, Foster of Vermont, Gordon of Tennessee, Hubbard of Iowa, Latta of Nebraska, Madison and Mitchell of Kansas, Loudenslager of New Jersey, Utter of Rhode Island, Wedemeyer of Michigan and Wickliffe of Louisiana.

Extra Taxation Is Necessary

The sum of $606,668.80 is to be raised in real and personal taxes among the counties of the territory to pay the salaries of the department of public instruction, and Treasurer Conkling has completed the apportionment showing the amount that must be raised during the coming year in each county. Real and personal property taxes for this purpose must be raised in the various counties in the following amounts:

County	Amount
Oahu	$ 9,441.65
Maui	1,048.40
Hawaii	130,312.45
Kauai	66,430.30
Total	$606,668.80

BIG TIME AT KEGEL CLUB

The members of the Kegel Club celebrated the Emperor's birthday at their club house last night in the hilarious spirit which the true German so well knows how to display when it comes to such important occasions. A typical German feast, appropriate refreshments and speech making were noticeably pleasing features of the evening.

Artist Wix In A New Role

Portrait painters in water color are rare and those who have attained the height reached by Otto Wix are still rarer. Hanging in the Wichman store on Fort Street are two specimens of the handiwork of this artist, portraits of Rev. and Mrs. Hans Isenberg of Lihue, Kauai. Effects not obtainable by the use of oil colors are shown in the texture of the skin and the shadows.

The portrait of Mrs. Isenberg is remarkable for the natural poise, for this lady, so well known to residents of Kauai and Honolulu, when in repose slightly tilts her head and Mr. Wix has painted the portrait so. The face is as Mrs. Isenberg appears when listening attentively to remarks interesting to her. Her white hair causes a doubt as to the faithfulness of the artist only in the minds of those who have not seen Mrs. Isenberg during the past few years. To those who know her well, the likeness is pronounced perfect.

That of Mr. Isenberg is even more remarkable as to likeness and effect attained by Wix. The face is a fine reproduction in water color of the subject, the technique is Wix's best and the flesh tint and texture can scarcely be improved upon. Unlike oils, water colors permit of a close examination without revealing any of the tricks of the artist, if tricks there are. Both pieces are worthy of highest praise from artists and laymen alike because they are so different from any work shown here for a long time.

Mr. Wix had given up portraiture for landscape painting when he was advised by an English painter, who visited his studio in California after Wix had done some Hawaiian characters, to drop the big out-of-doors for smaller surfaces. Then he resumed and has done several pieces since. He shows great delicacy in handling and a careful study of his subject; through them he obtains the results.—BULLETIN.

May Get Help

Steam Plow Engineer Padgett of Makaweli is said to be entering into negotiations with a firm who will place his cane loader on the market at once. Preliminary plans are said to be under way which when completed, will subsequently mean the greatest boon to plantations ever invented. Inventor Padgett has labored patiently for many years on his machine, cutting out parts here and adding others where he thought improvement and simplicity might result, until he has finally turned out the only successful cane loader ever constructed. The sum of money which has been spent in perfecting this all important piece of machinery is by no means inconsiderate, running up into the thousands of dollars. That he is now to receive the aid he has found it necessary to seek, his friends hope is true, for if ever a man deserves to make a winning, it certainly is Inventor Padgett, who has spent the earnings of the best years of his life in an ultimate attempt to solve a problem which has baffled hundreds who have tried in vain to produce. Long may he live to enjoy the fruits of his strenuous life.

FROM present indications, it would seem as though the suffragist movement were destined to sweep everything before it. That woman has an equal right to have her say in the administration of governmental affairs should not be questioned for a moment. That she will display little or no judgment in the use of her newly acquired power is one of the objections brought forward by the opponents to the cause. Nothing could possibly be further from the real facts in the case, for there are but few men, who, if honest with themselves, but will frankly admit that what little success they have had in life has been chiefly due to the influence of some good woman. In the United States, we pride ourselves in the treatment we accord the feminine sex. Therefore, insofar as the American voters are concerned, to further object to the extension of equal rights to a class of citizens whose superiority over nine-tenths of the present voting population is so apparent represents a new type of manhood which cannot be compared with the American idea of a true gentleman.

As to the suffragist movement in this Territory there are a number of influential, earnest workers whose endeavors in behalf of equal rights for women are beginning to show results. If we might be permitted to make a suggestion, we would say that the cause could be greatly strengthened by the establishment of a newspaper through the columns of which much information regarding the progress being made by the party could be given to a much larger number of people.

THE GARDEN ISLAND offers the use of its columns gratis to those interested in woman suffrage and cordially invites those sufficiently interested in the subject to have no hesitancy in taking advantage of this offer.

CITY papers have a great deal of fun at the expense of the country newspaper because it details the little happenings of the community in which it is published; because it mentions the comings and goings of people and other seemingly unimportant personal mention. Of course there are things in some country papers which make even an up-to-date country editor smile. But the editor who says, "Bill Jones was in town yesterday and left two big round cart wheels to pay for a year's subscription. Come again, Billy," are growing scarcer each year. Even at the worst, the little personals in the country papers are honest and sincere, and written in good faith, while the society pages of the big dailies contain columns upon columns of fulsome flattery of men and women whose only claim to notoriety is the fact that they have money with which to buy their way into "society." Not only is the country newspaper man honest and sincere in his little, unimportant personal items, but he plays no favorites—he gives space to the rich and poor, the high and the low, the big and the little.

It begins to look to the ordinary observer that an eruption between the Inter-Island Co., and its captains may occur at any moment. It is most unfortunate that parties upon whom such vast public interests rests cannot come to an amicable agreement, thus saving all interested parties much needless waste of money, and incidentally creating a greater degree of confidence among the patrons of the Company. If, as charged by the captains, the company is importing men to take their places, it seems that the proper course to pursue would be to have the matter referred to arbitrators. In the recent trouble between the Inter-Island and the captains, the latter were conceded to have gained a decided victory. All of which was well enough in one way, but for the traveling public and that of inter-island merchants the inconvenience caused by the delays in shipping meant a great loss.

THE appointment of janitors for our public schools was hailed with delight both by teachers and pupils alike. However, the nonappearance of said janitors has caused some speculation as to just when this important personage will put in an appearance. In the meantime Friday afternoon's manual training continues to consist of gathering up germ-be-laden papers, banana peels, etc., by the school children.

WHENEVER a man gets the idea that the town cannot get along without him he ought to go away for a month or two. When he returns he will probably find that his absence has not made any perceptible difference.

BONUSES aggregating $1,000,000 must be given if the convicted labor leaders succeed in getting released from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth Kansas. This represents $10,000 for each year's sentence.

SOMEHOW or other, everybody seems to be entering the new year with renewed hope and faith in its promises for a successful year. Even the republicans are trying to look pleasant.

Once again is the call of the baseball fan heard throughout the land; again the same dope is being flung to the breeze regarding who is who on the diamond, and if rumor is any criterion, each town has succeeded in beating up a bunch of ball tossers whose prowess means ultimate success. The McBryde team which all but won the 1912 Championship will be composed of some of the best material on the island, having had the advantage of selecting the material through the surveillance of those who took part in the Junior-League games.

The Waimeaas will come into the diamond with renewed vigor and determination, while the Makawelis, the 1911 Champions, claim to have so greatly strengthened their crowd as to render defeat impossible.

Koloa, which as everyone knows, hung on the ragged edge of the precipice of utter defeat during the past season, will be brought to the rank of the steel by the addition of Engineer Girvin.

Lihue is browsing around with every indication of securing a team this year which can be bet on as penant winners. There is no reason why, with Hanamaulu to draw on that Lihue cannot connect up a bunch of players with as much git-up-and-go in them as any other district.

Kawaihau, is in the field for blood. They will have a stronger team in the field this year than ever. They have been practising during the off season almost constantly with the result that they enter the season with the assurance of winners.

Kilauea, commonly known as the "big sluggers," and Champions of the 1912 series, stand ready to defend themselves against all comers. "Ready" was their answer to a reporter who asked one of their members if steps had been taken towards the organization of their team for the coming series. And ready they are, for during the past season, it was a conceded fact that this team was the best all-round aggregation of players in the field.

A meeting of the Kauai Athletic officials will probably soon be called for the election of officers and arranging the schedule for the coming series.

Some Ball Chatter

No matter what the experts write or what the fans may shout, A series isn't over till the final man is out.

Honesty, ability and hard work are always rewarded in Sunday school books, but in baseball they often result in a swift kick.

The player who wallops and wins a game is a hero for only a day.

But it takes him years to outlive the fame that he gets by a bone-head play.

They Call For Mr. Wood

He is old and worn and drooping
And has lost his ancient hold,
And his curves no more go swooping,
"Writhing as in days of old,
And they whisper of him sadly,
As a man whose lost his blood,
But when things are breaking badly
There's a call for Mr. Wood.

The Baseball Fan

The baseball fan, or bug, is a human being whose lungs have been developed at the expense of his gray matter. His name is derived from the word "fanatic," meaning one who is bughouse.

Aside from making the welkin ring and splitting the ear drums of the innocent bystander, the chief object of the fan's existence is to provide baseball magnates with motor cars and wealthy water.

The bear hibernates during the cold months, but not the fan. Winter and summer he roams about seeking whom he may talk to death. In summer he waxes fat on box scores and in winter he lives on hope and a few meager crumbs he can glean from the sporting page.

Baseball Defined

Autumn is divided into two parts, to-wit: baseball and football. Baseball is supposed to be a summer pastime, but it is hard to kill and always lingers until the middle of October, when it gasps its last dying gasp in the form of a post-season series.

A section of autumn is known as Indian summer, due to the throngs of Indians who dig up their wampum and gather in ball yards while a few chosen Indians do a war dance for glory and gate receipts.

Autumn is the open season for experts who fill three columns of space per diem making predictions and three more columns to explain why said predictions did not come true.

Autumn is also the glad some season when the basebailer opens the morning paper to learn that he has taken his pen in hand and written dissertations on the national pastime.

A FEW REMARKS

—By—

The Wise Man About Town

I met a man, who said to a third person present. "So-and-So's a friend of yours, I believe?" "No, only an acquaintance," was the answer. "But, I've seen you together frequently and—" "Nevertheless," repeated the third person, "he is an acquaintance. I have very few friends. And I value them too highly to class them with the rest of the people whom I know." Is there wisdom in this viewpoint? I wonder! In hard, cold fact, I suppose there is. In fancy, in ideality, I grow less inclined to draw the line.

The theory that few people notice the color of eyes—any eyes—is supported by a recent occurrence in Colorado. At election time husbands were allowed to register for their wives, but had to describe their personal appearance. The men got along all right till it came to the eyes, when many of them couldn't tell at all and had to go home to find out. I'd like to know what happened when they told what they'd come for! If there wasn't a chill in the atmosphere, I much mistake my guess.

Some one has been taking teacher to task. Some one—a superintendent of schools, I believe—has said that the teachers must give better excuses when they stay away from school. At last we are getting even for the excuses the teachers wouldn't accept in the days when we went to school! How many teachers have declined to give us credit for the time we were not there, because the reason mother put down in the note was not convincing! Ah! well! It's a hard world! With everybody thinking everybody else should be on the job! First we get it and then the other fellow gets it! In her turn the teacher gets it!

China forbids her woman to wear trousers at the very moment when some women in the United States consider wearing them! Western attire will hereafter grace the persons of Chinese, both male and female! Shirtwaists and skirts for women, "just fancy that, now, Hedda!" A college girl of my acquaintance received a photograph during the holidays of one of her classmates at Wellesley, a little Chinese girl; in this same skirt and shirtwaist. Very nice looking she is, too, and greatly liked. I'm told. She would not be half so nice in the other attire. Neither would any of the wild women in this country who elected to wear it. But, will there be any such? Can there be anybody on earth so foolish?

I've been hearing lately about some extravagant people. They were highly disapproved, and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that there is something all wrong about spending money when we haven't got it. But the nicest people I know are those who spend and spend freely. It is their natural impulse. I'm leaning lately toward a new theory on this subject. I believe that the reason the highest type of person is generous is because that person is at least approaching a period of development when he will have so much that he may, without qualms of conscience, spend riotously if he so desires. While seeing only too clearly the folly of spending out of proportion to one's present visible supply, I do believe that on the whole the impulse toward so-called extravagance is anything but ignoble.

The population of the United States is now put at 96,496,000. Total money in circulation per capita about $55 just at this moment. Some figure sharps also reckon that about fifty-five persons have $96,496,000.

MAKAWELI STEAM PLOW ENGINEER INVENTS CANE LOADER

Spotswood Padgett, Veteran Engineer, Produces
The First Built Machine

$10,000 GUARANTEED

Here is $10,000 (guaranteed) of life insurance policies which I am willing to use as security: Nineteen years' paid in on a Manhattan Life Insurance Co. policy, and a sixteen years' paid in Germania Life Insurance policy.

H. S. Padgett.
Makaweli, Kauai.

"Now as some have started in on a cane loader proposition, it has aroused the old vim in the writer. I therefore hereby reproduce an illustration of an invention of mine for the consideration of those interested in this line, with the hopes that the managers of the plantations may become sufficiently interested to consider my proposition. I will absolutely guarantee the above policies as security. I am open for any communication and will guarantee my machine to do everything claimed of it.

"This machine has been successfully demonstrated over a period of 18 days. At that time, however, the machine being driven by individual engines stationed on each wheel, striking potholes, caused the fame to twist and injure the gear. The advent of the gasoline engine, has illuminated this difficulty and a highly successful price of machinery is the result.

"The loader has a 55 foot loading space, and if necessary, even the elevator can be used. In a day of 10 hours (taken at random), 24 men loaded 318 cars, an approximate aggregate of 954 tons of cane."

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that I, HENRY SPOTSWOOD PADGETT, a citizen of the United States, residing at Makaweli, on the Island of Kauai and Territory of Hawaii, have made certain new and useful improvements in Cane-Loaders, of which the following is a specification.

My invention is an improvement in cane-loaders for use in loading cane onto cars or other carriers.

and the invention consists in certain novel constructions and combinations of parts, as will be hereinafter described and claimed.

In the drawings, Figure 1 is a top plan view of my machine, parts being broken away. Fig. 2 is a front elevation of the machine. Fig. 3 is a side elevation thereof; and Fig. 4 is a detail cross-section on about line 4-4 of Fig. 1, showing the ball-bearings for the turn-tables.

In connection with suitable framing, including truss-rod, bolts, &c., I provide at the front of the machine a transversely-extending endless carrier or apron, A, which extends from side to side of the machine and beyond the wheels B and discharges at one end to an upwardly-inclined endless elevator C, which is designed to discharge the cane into a car or other receptacle, it being the usual practice to run cars on portable tracks in convenient position to receive the cane. The carrier A is provided at one end with a driveshaft A, having a pulley A2, while the carrier C has a drive-shaft C', provided with a pulley C2, and these pulleys A2 and C2 are connected by belts 1 and 2 with pulleys on the drive-shaft D of an engine E, which may be suitably supplied with steam from a boiler F, carried by the framework. By this means the endless carrier A is driven and the elevator C is also driven, both being driven from the same engine, as will be understood from Fig. 1 and the foregoing description. At the upper end of the elevator C, I provide cutting mechanism, consisting, preferably, of the revolving knife G, whose shaft has a beveled gear, G', meshed by a beveled gear G2 on a shaft G3, which also has a beveled gear G4, meshing with a similar gear G5 on the shaft C', so the revolving cutter will also be operated from the engine E, as best shown in Fig. 1 of the drawings. By this means the cane is cut in short lengths and drops when so cut into the car or other receptacle.

The wheels B have their axles provided with worm wheels H, suitably fixed with respect to the wheels and meshed by worms I on shafts I, which are driven by the engines J, which engines may receive steam from the boiler F and are supported and turn with the turn-tables K, in which the wheels B are supported. I thus carry the engines for driving the wheels B on the turn-tables which support said wheels, so the engine will move with the wheels in adjusting the turn-tables and will always be in proper relation to the said wheels, as may be desired. The turn-tables K operate within rings L, formed to receive them, and ball-bearings L' may be provided between the turn-tables and shown in Fig. 1, so the turning of the steering-shaft and its drum will operate to similarly adjust the turn-tables to cause the wheels B to incline in one direction or the other or straight ahead, according to the direction in which it is desired to move the machine. It will also be noticed that the wheels B are driven by this connection it will be understood that one wheel may be driven forward and the other back and the turn-tables be turned in order to secure an accurate steering of the machine.

The rear end of the frame is extended at O and has a castor wheel O', as shown in Fig. 3, the machine being supported by the wheels B and O', as shown. B this means I am able to make the frame approximately V shape, so the machine can go up or down hill and on the side of the hill and can be steered by turning the turn-tables or by such operation combined with varying the speeds of the opposite wheels B. It will be noticed that by arranging all of the supporting-wheels in rear of the carrier A cane can be put on any portion of the drapery of the apron, and by moving the said drapery independently of the machines for propelling the machines over the ground the drapery can be operated when the machine is at rest or while the machine is being moved from place to place, as may be desired.

While it may be preferred to employ steam-engines at J and D and to supply them with steam from the boiler F, it will be understood that these motors J and D may be of different varieties—such, for instance, as electric motors, in which event they could be suitably supplied with current from any source of power.

The shaft M for steering the machine may be supplied with a hand-wheel M2 or other suitable means for convenient manipulation by the operator.

Having thus described my invention, what I claim as new, and desire to secure by Letters Patent, is—

1. A machine for loading sugar-cane, comprising the framing, the main wheels provided with worm-wheels, the turn-table supporting said main wheels, the motors carried on said turn-tables and having drive-shafts provided with worms meshing with the worm-wheels of the supporting-wheels, the rings in which said turn-tables are supported and turned, the steering-drum, the cables connecting said drum with the opposite turn tables, the endless carrier extended across the front of the machine, the elevator at one end of said carrier, the cutter at the upper end of the said elevator, the drive-shaft for the elevator, gearing between the drive-shaft and the cutter, and the motor connected with and operating the elevator drive-shaft, substantially as and for the purposes set forth.

2. A machine for loading cane, comprising the framing, the endless carrier extended across the front thereof, the elevator, means for operating the elevator and the carrier, the turn-table rings supported by the frame, the turn-tables turning in said rings, the steering devices connected with said turn-tables, the main wheels supported in the turn-tables, and the motors supported by the turn-tables and connected with the main wheels, whereby to drive the same, substantially as set forth.

The combination in a machine, substantially as described, of the framing, having the turn-table rings, the carrier extended across the front of said frame, the turn-tables operating in their rings, means whereby said turn-tables may be turned in unison, and means for operating the main wheel, substantially as set forth.

A machine substantially as described, comprising the framing provided at its front side with the endless carrier and having the rearward extension and the castor-wheel therein, the turn-table rings supported in the main frame, the turn-tables in said rings, means for turning said turn-tables in unison, the main wheels supported in the turn-tables and motors carried by the turn-tables and connected with the main wheels whereby to drive the same, substantially as set forth.

The combination with the main frame and the carrier extended across the front side thereof and the elevator at one end of said carrier and provided at its end with a revolving knife, the engine geared with the carrier and elevator and arranged to operate the revolving knife, the turn-table rings, the main wheels supported by the turn-tables, the motors carried by the turn-tables and arranged to operate their respective main wheels and means whereby the turn-tables may be turned in unison, substantially as set forth.

The combination in a machine, substantially as described, of the endless carrier and elevator, a motor for operating said carrier and elevator, the main wheels, and motors for operating said main wheels, such motors being independent of each other and of the motor for operating the carrier and elevator, substantially as set forth.

The combination in a machine, substantially as described, of the frame, the main wheels, the turn-tables supporting said wheels, means for adjusting said turn-tables and means for operating the main wheels independently of each other, all substantially as and for the purposes set forth.

Innocence doesn't have to prove it by the clothes it wears.

Some men speak of the family in the same tone of voice they do of jury duty.

When a girl is going to become engaged to a man it's a bid she won't let him know about it till everybody else does.

What comforts a woman about reading the Bible is how sweet natured women always did have to put up with unreasonable men.

When you see a man getting up long before his usual hours he isn't going to work early; he's got to clean his pipe and it will make him late at the office.

A sure way to have a mild winter in the country is to move into town so to escape it.

A man wants his wife to have faith in him when what she needs is to get money out of him.

One satisfactory thing about wasting money gambling it won't be lost on sure investments.

The trouble with a girl's natural complexion is it will tell what her best beau has been doing to it when he won't.

A Rich Man's Pocket-Money

In a current magazine the statement is made that Andrew Carnegie is often out with as little as one dollar in his pocket. Mr.
Morgan is another who carries less than the average clerk. It is also stated that few rich men even bother to take a check book with them. Their credit is so good they do not feel the need of currency.
All the same, I should think that they'd occasionally get into a n awkward situation. They do not need to "flash the roll of bills," the way a "bunder" has been known to flash it. But you'd think they would prefer to have a wallet comfortably filled and placed somewhere conveniently about their persons. How do we know that they don't? How does anybody know that they don't? They may just have that dollar to talk about.Our readers' attention is called to what Henry May & Co., have to offer their customers in the butter line.
