Governor Carter stated this noon that the statement of the Advertiser this morning to the effect that he had received the correspondence between Kuhio and the President, in regard to the postmaster's affair, and has written tersely to Kuhio on the subject, was not correct.

"It is true," said the Governor, "that I received a copy of the correspondence, but I did not write tersely to Kuhio. As a matter of fact, I did not write at all. I looked upon the affair as a misunderstanding and considered the incident closed."

Expert Testimony About Bullets Is Not

EVIDENCE OF ZABLAN
BLOTTED FROM RECORDDUNNE AND ROBERTSON SUC-CEED IN EXCLUDING MUCH OF THE PROSECUTION'S EVIDENCE.

Deputy Attorney General Peters had a hard row to hoe this morning in introducing his evidence in the Jones case. Considerable testimony was taken, some of which seemed to be of considerable value, but J. J. Dunne and A. G. M. Robertson put up a strenuous battle and succeeded in having a great part of it stricken from the record.

The first witnesses heard today was Armorer Elvin of the police station, who is an expert on guns and bullets. Elvin told of the various characters of bullets, especially in regard to the shape and size they assumed after having been fired at a hard substance. He gave evidence regarding the relative sizes of 32 and 38-caliber bullets, saying that "Almost anyone could tell the difference."

After Elvin's testimony had finished the defense moved that it be stricken out altogether, as it was not proper expert testimony, as he had himself said that anyone could tell the difference. The motion was carried and all the armorer's testimony went for naught.

Benjamin P. Zablan, the clerk of the Police Court, took the stand, bringing with him the record showing the proceedings of the trial of Jones on a charge of assault and battery on Mrs. Jones on June 18, 1903. Zablan stated that on that occasion Jones had sworn to him that even if he had to go to jail for three years for this offense, he would, when he was released, have his revenge on Mrs. Parmenter and her family.

After this Zablan read the record of the proceedings which showed that Jones had been sentenced to go to jail for five days and pay the costs of court.

Zablan's testimony caused another great legal battle between Dunne, Robertson and Peters. It ended by the striking of Zablan's testimony from the record on the ground that it was hearsay.

Among the witnesses who were in the hall today waiting to be called was former Deputy Sheriff Chas. F. Chillingworth, who procured a full confession from Jones immediately after his arrest at the police station a few days after the night of the murder. This confession is one of the main props of the prosecution and will undoubtedly be the cause of a great and strenuous legal conflict.

FAILURE TO ENTER

Manchuria, freight laden, drawing thirty-two feet, unable to enter harbor yesterday.

This is the terse but eloquent text of a cablegram which the Governor this afternoon sent to Delegate Kuhio in Washington. The Governor expects that this striking illustration of the urgent necessity of the deepening of the Honolulu harbor may be of value to Kuhio in his efforts to have Congress give a liberal appropriation for the purpose of deepening the harbor.

Japanese Arrested

Woman From Train

For the first time in the history of this Territory the Federal "Act for the Suppression of Train Robbery" has been brought to bear. When the defendants in the case are not exactly train robbers within the usual meaning of the word, the offense, which they are alleged to have committed, certainly comes under the provisions of the Act quoted, which provides that any person trespassing on a train with intent to commit murder, violence and robbery on any person thereon shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding twenty years or a fine not exceeding $5,000. The defendants in this case did not take coin or golden treasures, but that treasure above all others, namely, a woman. The tale, which hangs thereby is quite interesting.

It seems that a Japanese laborer from Waipahu came to Honolulu for a short stay with his wife, Tasuro Yamakaka. A cook from Waipahu, named Hironaki, who also was in town, became enamored of the fair lady and endeavored to persuade her to leave her husband come with him. Tasuro virtuously refused to listen to his advances and prepared to go back to train robbers within the usual meaning of the word, the offense, which they are alleged to have committed, certainly comes under the provisions of the Act quoted, which provides that any person trespassing on a train with intent to commit murder, violence and robbery on any person thereon shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding twenty years or a fine not exceeding $5,000. The defendants in this case did not take coin or golden treasures, but that treasure above all others, namely, a woman. The tale, which hangs thereby is quite interesting.

Driven to desperation Hironaki decided to do by force what he could not accomplish by persuasion. As a consequence he secured two procurers from Waipahu who agreed to get the woman and the woman remonstrated but to no avail. The two bravos caught hold of the woman and pulled her out of the car. The unfortunate husband tried to resist, but was overpowered. The woman managed to get back

Hawaiian Securities

San Francisco wants Hawaiian movement.

Mainland investors are snapping up, or endeavoring to snap up Hawaiian plantation securities. The market in San Francisco has a bull movement for Honokaa, Hawaiian Commercial and others.

Some five hundred shares of Honokaa were sold today to San Francisco parties, at prices ranging from $23.37 1/2 to $24.25. Yesterday San Francisco wanted a big block of Hawaiian Commercial but Honolulu holders would not let go.

Honokaa is very much in demand and there is a standing order from the mainland for as much as can be purchased. The same condition will probably prevail as to Hawaiian Commercial.

This morning the Henry Waterhouse Trust Company received a cable from E. Pollitz & Company of San Francisco to the effect that Hawaiian securities were advancing on the market there and that there was a strong bull movement.

THOUGHT FORMS AND STEREOPTICON VIEWS

At the Alexander Young Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock Mr. Charles W. Leadbeater will deliver a lecture on thought forms, showing the different forms produced by thoughts. All persons interested in the power and control of thought will be able to see for themselves what a mighty force they have within them for good or evil.

Every thought, however fleeting, produces a form in the finer matter of the universe. Thus a good thought is perpetuated as an active beneficent power, an evil one as a maleficent demon. And so man is continually peopling his current in space with the offspring of his thoughts and desires, makers of weal and woe to others, bringers of weal and woe to himself.

A gift to an institution or a charity can be provided for in no better way than by creating a trust instead of making the gift direct.

The donor is thus assured that his gift will be permanently invested for a perpetual income.

TO DRAW NEW TAX LAW Tonight Settles Championship

COMMERCIAL BODIES IN JOINT COMMITTEE

EVIDENCES OF WEALTH SHOULD NOT BE TAXED — ONE PER CENT. OUGHT TO BE SUFFICIENT.

The entire matter of the tax law was at yesterday afternoon's session of the Merchants' Association turned over to a joint committee to be selected by the Association, Chamber of Commerce and Hawaiian Planters' Association. The tax committee of the Merchants' Association will act with those appointed by the other bodies mentioned. It is the general desire to draw up a scheme of taxation that will prove satisfactory to all commercial interests.

The secretary of the Association was instructed to notify other commercial bodies of the action taken at the meeting of yesterday.

It was the object of the meeting to consider the report of its committee on taxation, J. Wakefield, H. F. Wichman and T. J. King. The latter did not sign the report submitted. The gathering of members was smaller than was desired. President Smith referred to the report of the committee having been published and having caused a great deal of comment, favorable and critical.

A member of the committee having received a letter from Mr. Bowen on the subject, Secretary Trent read the communication which is given below.

Mr. Wakefield said that in the report no attempt had been made to draft a tax law, the idea had been to furnish suggestions.

The committee's report was taken up and discussed by sections.

Mr. Bowen suggested that if the idea of "aggregate values" was done away with in the tax law it might be found that a one per cent tax would not be enough to run the government. Still, one per cent should be tried for. President Smith thought if the government needed more than one per cent to run on it should reduce its expenses.

Mr. Bowen strenuously maintained that there should be no provision in regard to the taxation of mere evidences of wealth, unless to exempt them from taxation. Public stocks and bonds should be exempted.

President Smith had found that the section giving Tax Assessors access to books had met with unfavorable comment. He said it was designed to reach the small Asiatic element. Assessors would not likely insist upon examining the books of a firm of the standing of Castle & Cooke, for example.

It was on Mr. Bowen's motion, seconded by Mr. W. W. Harris, that the joint committee action, as noted above, was taken.

Honolulu, February 2, 1905.
Mr. George W. Smith, President Merchants' Association.

Dear Sir: Referring to the report of your committee appointed to deal with the "Suggested Amendments to the Present Law Providing for a Tax on Real and Personal Property," I write as follows:

1. A Minor Criticism—Paragraph No. 9 of the report should be placed as No. 4, because the "Definition" of "Personal Property" should come before any law upon the subject.

2. Definition of Personal Property—In the definition of personal property, there should be no reference to "public stocks and bonds," other than of specific exclusion character. The law should clearly state that all property must be material and tangible, and, as such, both real and personal, should be taxed wherever found, always exclusive, however, of notes, mortgages, deeds, or other title papers, book accounts, stocks and bonds, which, in the law shall be specifically regarded as only evidences of property and therefore non-taxable.

3. Doubtful Character of Paragraph No. 10—Of course, No. 10 is intended as a protection to island merchants. Its full aim need not here be gone into. But, no matter how desirable, or just, it may be, its place in the law comes more under the department of income taxation than under the property tax provisions. But, even so, its feasibility would certainly be tested, along constitutional lines, such as "a discrimination tax law," or "a law in restraint of trade." I am sure the agencies, or semi-agencies, would at once refer to and apply all of the rules and regulations of "Interstate Commerce," etc., to upset it.

4. Your Committee's Recommendation ought to be looked into where, at the close, they would retain from "Sections 821 to section 837, inclusive, of the Present Tax Law." If my impression is correct there have been some changes in some of those sections. If I understand correctly, all that pertaining to fire and life insurance has now been placed under the care of a special insurance commissioner, which is different from the plan named in the sections referred to touching upon insurance returns. Probably the committee intended, however, not to interfere with existing laws more than upon the points named in their report.

5. One Subject Not Touched Upon—Your committee probably also thought (if they contemplated it at all), that it might not be in their province to make special study and report relative to the advisability of doing away altogether with the so-called property (?) tax law, known as "Enterprise for Profit," where taxation is attempted on McFadden and Modlin are awaiting the sound of the gong that will call them to the center of the ring tonight. They will battle ten rounds with five-ounce gloves for the featherweight championship of the Hawaiian Islands.

This fight is attracting unusual attention in sporting circles. It is an assured fact that the contest will be on its merits. There is not the least shadow of a doubt but what both men will do their utmost to carry home the purse. The defeated man will leave the Orpheum tonight without a cent.

These same two lads met on the second day of January of this year and fought six rounds to a draw. Every one who saw the contest expressed themselves as having seen the fastest fight ever had in this country.

Both men will weigh in at 131 lbs. over weight he must forfeit $100.

Prof. R. A. Woods will act as referee and with such a man as he in the ring everything is sure to run off smoothly.

Besides this main event there will be a 6-round go between Sailor Morch off the ship Bear, and Young Scott of San Francisco. This should be a fight well worth the price of admission. Ashcroft will meet Viera at 115 lbs. in the curtain raiser. Fighting Harris will go four rounds with Young Nelson at 120 lbs.

There will also be six Japanese on hand to demonstrate their skill in wrestling and the new science of Jiu Jitsu. In all, this is the most attractive program ever arranged here. A large crowd is sure to be on hand to witness the affair.

SATURDAY, FEB. 4, 1905.

St. Petersburg, most any day, these days—Quiet has been restored. Only a few score of fifty were killed or injured by the troops.

Having elected Maj. Heffern president and Thomas Cabahan recording secretary, the Trades and Labor Council has demonstrated that it holds the Pinkham Commission members in more than ordinary esteem.

The gang that has been busy hammering stock quotations are unable to explain why prices should be lower when the values of Hawaii's properties are steadily increasing. Hence it is that the public after really studying the situation improves the opportunity to buy.

The Governor's statement regarding his alleged terse reply to Delegate Kuhio's letter on the postmaster's report shows how much evidence may be placed in the reports made by the morning paper. The whole thing is fiction created to bolster petty personal prejudice against Kuhio and to curry favor with the Governor. The latter, however, is quick to puncture the lie.

Delegate Kuhio having by hard work and the strong cooperation every community should give its Congressional representative, secured a favorable report on the harbor appropriation and the bill for the scientific study of leprosy. The Prince of Knuckers comes to the front with a declaration that the Delegate is of no use anyway, a speaker in the House of Representatives is needed. The jumping from corner to corner in the struggle to discredit the Delegate does nothing if not render aid to the enemies of Hawaii. Kuhio is working for this Territory in a manner that forces the Knuckers to an appeal to their old time prejudices in order to have something derogatory to say of him. The real men of the community have no sympathy with the critics capable of nothing but a prejudiced snarl.

If as suggested by United States Commissioner of Immigration Sargent, Italian immigrants are available for plantation laborers in large numbers, this may solve the labor problem in Hawaii. The question arises whether the dagoes are any more desirable than the recent importation of Porto Ricans. In Southern California, the Italians are of a domestic and agricultural turn of mind, and have built up an Italian-Swiss colony whose reputation for fine wines and grapes is becoming world renowned.—Hilo Tribune.

The idea that Italians may be as undesirable citizens as the Porto Ricans is preposterous unless it be proposed to seek the dogs of all Italy. There is no doubt that Sargent's proposition is a splendid one which will be quickly taken up by the representative leaders of Hawaii. If he will explain how these people are to be landed in the Territory without coming in conflict with Federal laws. That's the rub, and if Congress can't soften its heart toward Chinese it might at least open a way for the population of the Territory by citizens or those eligible to become such, which Congress can do if it will.

Advocates of a restricted franchise may read with profit what Lincoln Steffens says in McClure's Magazine of conditions in Rhode Island. He starts off with the announcement that "Rhode Island ought to be one of our most conservatively governed states. The suffrage is restricted by property qualifications; the balance of power is taken from the cities by a scheme of representation which puts Providence, with 29,000 voters, on an equality with Little Compton, which has 78. Thus the legislature is controlled by the delegates of the good old American stock out in the country, who surely ought to be trustworthy wielders of citizenship." Then he makes a statement of fact that "the System of Rhode Island is grounded on the lowest layer of corruption that I have found thus far—the bribery of voters with cash at the polls." Of course Hawaii with its fund of righteousness and intelligence could not, with a restricted franchise, drop to the debased standard of Rhode Island. It would nevertheless be dangerous to make the experiment with a community that is Puritanical—when discussing the other fellow.

PASSING TOURIST NOTATION.

If the town did not have ample hotel accommodations, and more, for the people it is entertaining, Honolulu would be dividing its time with the stock problems in remarking upon the large number of visitors in the city.

Travellers are beginning to realize that Hawaii is a good place for a winter's outing. They are beginning to come our way. Even the doubting Thomases who scoffed at the idea of these Islands and this city getting any tourists in opposition to the great centers of the South and West, are realizing that more strangers are coming to Hawaii on pleasure bent and from all indications they appear to be having a good time and talk of coming again.

The town is not so full of visitors that it is having difficulty in making them comfortable, but a distinct gain has been made. This is gratifying, and, as the scoffers may, the situation today vindicates the efforts of the merchants in the community who have been pegging away at the tourist problem, spending what money they could get and constantly keeping at the work of putting Hawaii before the public.

Mistakes have been made. Mistakes come in the natural course of human events. At the outset the committee in charge of the promotion work allowed a lot of money to be spent outside the Islands that might better have been kept at home. It is claimed that other mistakes were made. Taking it for granted that such is the case, the people of this city, the purchasers, can reckon the money they put into the wharfrage tax which pays the price of the promotion business, as money well spent. They could afford to spend more. It would be an investment second to none of a public nature from which all classes derive benefit.

Results is what the business man wants. Heretofore the charge has been that results were not forthcoming. At the end of a year, a failure to have more tourists in the town than could be taken care of caused some of the good but mistaken citizens to write the promotion business off as a waste of good money. Let them make an observation while some of the results are in evidence as they are this winter.

They can put it down as a well established fact that there are more people today who know that Hawaii is on the map than ever before, more who know this place as a winter pleasure ground, more who are thinking of coming to Hawaii. These are the results that tell the story of the growing success of the tourist campaign, in spite of its mistakes.

In the midst of other matters that are attracting more immediate attention, it is well to note the facts in passing. Because some time later in the dull season it is possible and even probable that one or more will look up and ask, "Where are the tourists?" and, there being none in the immediate vicinity, claim that this tourist promotion business is no use.

MASTERLY ARGUMENT

The Hawaii Herald says:

Asked about the effect of the Pinkham report Mr. B. F. Dillingham said he considered Mr. Pinkham's report a masterly argument in which the rights of citizen labor were not encroached upon. "As I understand it," said he, "the Pinkham commission was established for the purpose of ascertaining the exact labor conditions of these islands. If citizen labor was being ignored by the plantations or if the citizens, in the opinion of the trade unions, were not being given the proper consideration then it was to be ascertained and an agreement made. They were to set some point at which citizen labor was to meet plantation labor and decide upon a policy that was to be carried out in the future."

FOOHNG SUEY SAILORS.

Sailors from the Foohing Suey, with a grievance called at The Bulletin office today and wanted to know whether they could get justice from the Federal Court. They claim that they saw District Attorney Breckons and he responded, "So far as I can see you've not been soaked so very badly." He said if the case came up at all it would be on Monday. They have been waiting anxiously for action. The ship leaves port next week, and according to their story they will be hustled off to Hilo where they have no opportunity for appeal to the courts, and then off for New York which they disapprove.

STEVEDORES PROTEST.

Governor Carter has received a letter from Senator Aehl in which the writer states that a number of stevedores, headed by Wm. Olepau, have called on him with a complaint against the employment of alien labor on the coaling and discharging of transports calling here.

CHINESE NEW YEAR

RECEPTION

AT THE CONSULATE

A great and brilliant gathering filled the Chinese Consulate, corner of Berronia and Victoria streets, this afternoon between 12 and 2 o'clock.

Chinese Consul Chang Tso Fan and his wife held a reception in honor of the Chinese New Year, today being the official New Year's day.

A general invitation having been extended to the public a large crowd gathered at the hour of noon. The Hawaiian Government band was in attendance, playing throughout the reception. A huge Chinese flag floated from the Consulate and the scene was a gay one with the elegant costumes of well-to-do Chinese business men, who mingled hospitably with their bachelors and Hawaiian friends who had gathered to present the compliments of the season. Refreshments were served. The cars were crowded handling folks from all over town.

Governor Carter was among the callers at the Consulate and the various Consular representatives of other countries dropped in during the course of the reception and left their cards and compliments.

COFFEE EXPERT

VISITS CARTER

Mr. Kerns, a coffee expert who has been in the coffee business for twenty years at London, Ceylon and New Zealand, was a caller on Governor Carter this forenoon. He spoke in high terms of island coffee, stating that he thought that the Hawaiian coffee industry would soon be of more value to the Territory than sugar cultivation.

Kerns stated that he was convinced that much of the coffee which he bought at New Zealand as Java was really Hawaiian. For this he paid 26 cents a pound while here it cost only 15 cents. He was certain that much of the Hawaiian low grade coffee, which was at present not thought good enough for export, could by a simple treatment, be made very palatable. Even the local pea berries could be used to advantage. To convince the Governor that his theory was right Kerns gave the Governor a tin of low grade coffee which he had treated, to try. This coffee he figured was worth six cents a pound before treatment and about eight and one-half after it had been treated.

Hilo, Feb. 2.—Before noon yesterday Sheriff Andrews, in the presence of a few citizens invited to be present, formally surrendered his authority as Sheriff of Hawaii to his successor, John C. Searle. Sheriff Andrews addressed those present saying why he had invited them, what had been done and was to be done. He paid a high compliment to Mr. Searle afterwards unpinned a handsome gold star, his badge of office, and handed it to Mr. Searle with the remark that it had been presented to him when he was sheriff of Maui and that he prized it too highly to give it away but it would be a pleasure to him to have Sheriff Searle wear it until he could provide one for himself. The new sheriff responded and addressing those present said it would be his aim to administer the affairs of the office as well as his predecessor had done, and if it was possible to do better he would endeavor to do so. He said he would establish a confidential bureau which would draw to him the assistance of the citizens, without whose help no one could expect to succeed.

C. S. Smith spoke on behalf of him-

PROF. L. J. MILLER.

Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 327 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows: "As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents.

"I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health.

"I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."—PROF. L. J. MILLER.

He created the impression of extreme friendship and loyalty to Mr. Andrews and if there was any doubt in the minds of those present his utterances on this occasion dissipated it. There were no other speeches and no further ceremony aside from a general offer of congratulations to Sheriff Searle.—Herald.

"Builds up the System."

Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Treat Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.:

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do all it claims. I have used it several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always feel that I do them a service for I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than for Five Years."

Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes:

"I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctored with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna."—James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy my Meals as I Used to."

Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured."—J. W. Pritchard.

Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

BARBERS' LICENSE

AS MEANS TO

BAR JAPANESE

Some of the barbers of the city are seriously discussing asking the Legislature to provide for a $100 a year license for barbers, with a view to shutting out the wholesale Japanese competition.

A few of the better class barbers have been discussing the proposition for some time and have reached the conclusion that if a law is passed compelling all barbers to pay one hundred dollars per year to the government for a license to carry on this business, the sum thus paid will more than be made up by the increase of business to the white barbers by the unwilling-ness or inability of the Japanese barbers to pay the license.

While the white barbers have not as yet taken any united action in the matter, some of them, indeed, being opposed to the idea, it is said that such measure will be introduced to the Legislature.

At present the Japanese handle a large bulk of the business and make their competition generally felt. As finally recommended the amount of the license fee may be reduced from the suggested $100 to $50.

Some of the barbers this morning expressed themselves enthusiastically in favor of the license proposition. Others were doubtful as to what attitude they would assume, hesitating at the idea of paying any license at all.

JOHN RILEY DEAD

John Riley, for many years engineer of the road roller, died at the Hospital for Incurables soon after taking his breakfast. He had been an inmate of the hospital for more than two years.
Rheumatism and heart disease caused his death.

Mr. Riley was a native of New York city and was for many years a conspicuous figure in politics there, being a leader of the Irish element. Several times he was elected to the City Council of New York and once to the State Legislature. It was while engineer on a train in the States that he was all but frozen to death in a blizzard, resulting in the paralysis of one of his legs and hips. Mr. Riley was an active spirit in the old American League of 1893.

RUSH TO HAWAIIAN

The Royal Hawaiian Hotel has overflowed. Guests coming on the Kinau this morning could not be accommodated and Manager Church was driving around in a hack trying to get quarters for them. The last time the Hawaiian Hotel was filled was years ago, before the Alexander Young and the Moana were built. All of this does not look very much as if the tourist trade was diminishing.

POISON IN WATER

TO KILL BALDWIN

FOUND BY CHANCE

Representative-elect W. J. Sheldon, of Kaula, now in this city, gives some interesting details of the attempted poisoning of Manager B. D. Baldwin of Makaweli plantation and his family.
By mere accident the poison, which is a Japanese preparation, was discovered in the water. Some of the identical stuff was subsequently in the quarters of the Japanese servants. After that a cook, a workman and an ordinary servant were arrested. The sugar house man was released, after careful examination, but the others were under the serious charge of attempting to commit murder by poisoning.

The preliminary examination of the two prisoners was to have taken place on Wednesday, but the exact results are not known here. Mr. Sheldon was asked to defend the prisoners but as he had to come to Honolulu to attend the session of the Legislature it was necessary to decline.

Mistrial Result Of Schnack vs. Montano

Judge De Bolt's jurors seem to have agreed to disagree. At least another mistrial was recorded today, the as-sumpt case of J. H. Schnack vs. Mary J. Montano having that result. The dispute was for the sum of $1,250, which Schnack claimed as his commission for selling for $25,000 a piece of Maui land belonging to the defendant.

The jury retired this forenoon to consider the verdict. After having been out for considerable time it returned and said that it agreed on a verdict but wanted the court to settle the exact amount. Judge De Bolt stated that he could not do this, as it was the business of the jury. The jury returned again and everyone was certain that a verdict had been found for the plaintiff. The surprise was therefore great when the jury finally returned with the statement that it could not agree. It is reported that one juror, John Maguire, held out against the rest. A mistrial was accordingly entered.

Purser McNamara, of the steamer
Ke Au Hou, reports the following suggar left on Kaula yesterday: K. S. M., 1,500; Mak., 20,500; G. & R., 5,200;
K. P., 3,900; Lihue, 3,652; H. M., 3,270;

Social Side of Life

One of the prettiest luau of the season was given by Miss Irene Dickson at the residence of her parents in Kaplanolani Park on Sunday in honor of her birthday.

The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Brown and a charming little girl presented each arrival with a chrysanthemum lei composed of shaded pink and green crepe paper most naturally constructed.

Miss Dickson wore a lovely lei on her head composed of natural pink rosebuds and green leaves, and she led the way to the tables with Prince Kawanakoa.

The feast was unusually inviting because of the beautiful flowers lavished upon the tables, which were spread under a large canopy composed of bunting. A feature of the luau was the waving of many exquisite kahilis by Hawaiians during the progress of the feast. The Ellis Brothers Glee Club sang and played delightfully and received many encores. Among those present were Prince and Princess Kawanakoa, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tenney, Mrs. Helen Noonan, Mrs. Herbert, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Benson, Mrs. Cunha, Miss Rose Cunha, Dr. and Mrs. High, Mr. and Mrs. James Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt, Miss Roth, Miss Sargent, Mrs. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Wingate Lake, Dr. Murray, Mr. Willie Roth, Miss Genevieve Dowsett, Miss Violet Makee, Mr. Webster, Mr. Wicketta, Mr. Cunha, Admiral and Mrs. Beckley, Miss Beckley, Mr. Clarence Waterman, Mr. Richard Wright, Mr. Allan Walker, Mr. Walker.

A most enjoyable picnic luncheon was given by Captain and Mrs. Henry Lyon on the Iroquois last Saturday, a half day being spent among the lochs at Pearl Harbor. A very pleasant interlude during the afternoon was a mock trial arranged and carried out by Mrs. Niblack and Mr. Gerrit Wilder. Captain Niblack, who had committed the heinous crime of leaving a freshly painted screen door ajar in such a manner that Mrs. Niblack's frock received a bright green stain, thus ruining and injuring the frock beyond repair and making it necessary to purchase a new one, was asked for damages to the tune of one hundred and fifty dollars.

Mr. F. H. Humphris Sr. was His Honor the Judge and his remarks were pungent with wit and humor. Much laughter was created as the jurors were sworn in to the court of justice, many witty remarks being made at the expense of the fair jurors. As there were two married couples among them the point was advanced that man and wife being one it was necessary to choose two more in order to make the number complete from a legal standpoint. Mr. Lewis Brown made many pertinent remarks at this juncture, bringing in the fact that as half a juror he was entitled to certain attention. Mr. Gerrit Wilder made many droll remarks at the expense of the plaintiff, jurors and defendant impartially in his character of bailiff. Mr. Parke and Lieut. Slattery were the lawyers for the plaintiff and Major Fuller, Lieut. Cronin and Paymaster Brown for the defendant. The case was conducted in a humorous manner by the aforesaid lawyers, and much laughter was created by their unexpected sayings. Captain Niblack was finally released by order of the judge on condition that he buy Mrs. Niblack a new frock costing not less than one hundred and fifty dollars, and in addition a bottle of benzine and a public apology as well.

Among those present on this excursion were Captain and Mrs. Niblack, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown, Miss Gertrude Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Isenberg, Mrs. George Davies, Captain and Mrs. Goodwyn, Mrs. Wm. Taylor, Mrs. Walbridge, Miss Annie Parke, Mrs. Moore, Miss Moore, Mrs. Ward, Captain and Mrs. Humphreys, Major and Mrs. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. Daniel Burnham, Miss Burnham, Dr. and Mrs. Rossett, Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mrs. M. M. Scott, Miss Scott, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Gartley, Mrs. A. G. Hawes, ex-Governor Clegg, Mr. Vizzavona, Mr. Canavarro, Captain Hamlet, Lieut. Slattery, Lieut. Cronin, Paymaster Brown, Mr. F. H. Humphris Sr., Mr. John H. Bliss, Dr. Knudsen, Mr. Fred. Schultz, and Mr. Wm. Parke.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Scott are spending three weeks at the Forestry Lodge near the Pali. Mr. Scott has been persuaded to exhibit his work in the Kiloana Art Rooms in about two months' time. He has done some charming studies of the Pali and surrounding country. He is well known in Europe, India and New Zealand and his paintings occupy important places in the palaces of royalties. He is a landscape painter of unusual ability and the public will appreciate the opportunity to view the work of this well known artist.

Mr. John H. Bliss was the host of a dinner at the Moana Hotel on Sunday evening for Mr. and Mrs. C. W. C. Deering, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Miss Margaret Burnham, Miss Nannie Winston, Mr. Ernest Hartmann and Mr. Richard Wright.

The luncheon that Mrs. M. M. Scott gave on Tuesday for Mrs. Henry Lyon was a very pretty affair. The table was artistically decorated with violets and the place cards were uniquely designed with varieties of the fish family. Among those present were the guest of honor Mrs. Henry Lyon, Mrs. Faxon Bishop, Mrs. F. M. Hatch, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Edward Tenney, Mrs. Fred. Macfarlane and Miss Annie Parke.

Mrs. George Carter's "At home" day on Wednesday was thronged with visitors throughout the afternoon. The guests were met by Mrs. Harry Macfarlane and Miss Garry Macfarlane and conducted to the hostess, who was assisted in her arduous duties by Mrs. Raymond de B. Layard and Mrs. Edward Adams. At the table Mrs. Bernice Walbridge presided and delicious refreshments were served.

The Carter mansion is a perfect one for entertaining and Mrs. Carter is a very popular hostess, as is amply demonstrated by the crowds of people who flock to her "Wednesdays."

Captain and Mrs. Albert Parker Niblack gave a charming bridge whist party at the Naval Station in honor of Captain and Mrs. Lyon on Wednesday evening. The luau was decorated with flags and bunting, the Argentine flag playing an important part in the decorative effect. In the naval rooms geraniums and asters made a brilliant showing in conjunction with ferns and greens. The first prize, a lovely bouquet of purple and white Russian violets, was awarded to Mrs. Henry Lyon and the first man's prize to Mr. T. A. Hays. This was a boutonniere of violets. The consolation prize, a bon-bon box of candy, cut for by Mrs. Wm. Taylor and Mr. Richards Ivers, was won by Mr. Ivers. A delicious supper was served about eleven o'clock. Mrs. Niblack was attractively gowned in spangled net over black satin and she wore diamond ornaments. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivers, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Swamy, Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. Charles Wight, Mrs. Walbridge, Mrs. George Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Hays, Mrs. Wm. E. Taylor, Miss Annie Parke, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Lieut. Snow, Lieut. Brown, Mr. Vizzavona, Mr. I. Dillingham and Major Potter.

Mr. and Mrs. Schaefer gave one of their delightful dinners on Tuesday evening for Captain and Mrs. Lyon. The table decorations were roses and among the guests were Captain and Mrs. Niblack, Mr. and Mrs. Faxon Bishop, Dr. and Mrs. Cooper, Dr. Coker and Miss Elsa Schaefer.

The Buffalo Express of January 15 has an interesting picture of the motor parade of Thanksgiving Day. The long picture is unusually clear. At one side quite by itself there is a picture of Mr. C. W. C. Deering's motor and the occupants come out very distinctly. The Motor Journal also has good pictures of the parade. The prize winners and those that had honorable mention are especially spoken of. There can be no better advertisement for our beautiful islands, for tourists must certainly be attracted by something so unusual. Miss Nannie Winston, at present wintering at the Moana Hotel, has done the islands a great amount of good in this way, for she has not only written most interesting facts about the islands but has given lectures as well, profusely illustrated.

Miss Alice Campbell, who has been so ill, has recovered enough to accompany her mother, Mrs. Campbell-Parker, to Santa Barbara, Cal., where she will remain until her health is re-established. She will not be married to Mr. Walter Macfarlane until the summer. Mr. Macfarlane returned this week from the Coast, whence he was called by the illness of Miss Campbell.

Mrs. Henry Highton returned in the transport Sheridan this week after a long visit in New York and San Francisco. Her sister, Mrs. Cooke, is not yet married to Mr. Maurice de Breu as was announced in San Francisco, but the marriage will take place very shortly. Mrs. Highton expects to return to New York in the interest of a patent which she has been successful with. She is looking well and expresses herself as delighted to be here again. The Hightons are at the little bungalow at Waikiki.

The wedding announcement cards have been received of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Crawford Heron. Mrs. Heron was Miss Emily Mees, the charming governess at the British Consulate.

Miss Mist of College Hills gave a very pleasant little tea on Thursday afternoon.

Lieut. Slattery goes to the Coast on the next transport to claim a bride. He will return very soon and he and his prospective bride will reside for the present at the Alexander Young Hotel.

The Kiloana Art League expect to give an afternoon tea at their rooms in the Alexander Young building in about two weeks for the purpose of exhibiting the Hawaiian hand made laces. This will be most interesting, and I believe, the League are offering a prize in order to encourage the girls to further efforts. Another interesting feature of the exhibit will be hand-made laces of the Argentine Republic kindly loaned by Mrs. Henry Lyon. It is hoped that everybody who can will attend this exhibition, for the object is most worthy and instructive. Cards will be sent out at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Macfarlane entertained quite a company over Sunday. Among others were Dr. and Mrs. Humphris, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. C. Deering, Mr. F. H. Humphris Sr. and Mr. Jack Carter. The Deering's motored down and were delighted with the condition of the roads. The Macfarlane parties are always enjoyable. Last Sunday they took their friends for a trip in the launch through the beautiful lochs of Pearl Harbor.

The annual luau was observed at the Lunallilo Home on Tuesday, the birthday of King Lunallilo. There were many invited guests who thoroughly enjoyed the unusual spectacle. The grounds were thronged throughout the afternoon by crowds of people and the Home was in festive attire. The portrait of Lunallilo was decorated with flowers and the Hawaiian flag. The guests are all received by Mrs. Philip Weaver Sr., the charming matron of the Home and beloved by all. Punch and cakes were served to the guests prior to the luau. An aged Hawaiian sang on ohi to the memory of Lunallilo during the afternoon. The Government band gave a concert during the progress of the luau which was greatly appreciated. Mrs. Alapai and Mr. Ellis sang a duet, "Uncle Sammy," which was vigorously applauded. The luau was a picture in itself. The long table was covered with ti leaves and every

Symphony Society Elects Officers

The Honolulu Symphony Club held its annual meeting last night, electing the following officers: C. Hedemann, president; B. L. Marx, vice president; W. H. M. Nole, secretary; Mr. Bayer, treasurer; Carl Mott, librarian. Directors—E. Kopke, Sr., P. L. Weaver, House Committee—E. Kopke (chairman), Mr. Hillefeld and J. A. M. Johnson.

The future leadership was the subject of interested discussion. No direct word has been heard from Prof. Stockton, to whom the baton has been offered. Karl Busch, who has been leading the orchestra very successfully during the past few months, was tendered a vote of thanks. It was stated that Mr. Jocher, who was the most successful and popular leader the Society ever had, might return to Honolulu soon.

This evening the Club will give a smoker concert at Haalea lawn. The program will be as follows: Overture, "Fra Diavolo".....Orchestra Song.....Hugo Herzer Mew's Dance.....Orchestra Song.....Clifford Kimball Solo (cello).....G. Tobriner Shepherd's Dance.....Orchestra Song.....J. Doherty Song.....F. Melchers Torch Dance.....Orchestra Recitation.....Bruce Hartman Solo (guitar).....E. Kaal "Blue Danube Waltz".....Orchestra Song.....Clifford Kimball March.....Orchestra of her sister, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr., in the property, Mrs. Oelrichs found she had an elephant on her hands. The big and beautiful new caravansary represented an investment of almost a million and a half, and it would take nearly $700,000 more to furnish it. Mrs. Oelrichs would not provide this sum, and all the hotel men approached would not touch the proposition. Situated as it is on the crest of Nob Hill, the Fairmount is very inaccessible for vehicles, the only approach from down town being by a journey out as far as Leavenworth street and back. However, three car lines, connecting with all parts of the city, pass its doors and San Franciscoans are great patrons of street cars. Mr. de Young has, I understand, taken an interest in the hotel and will complete and furnish it, and if his conduct of his newspaper property, to say nothing of other large enterprises, be any criterion, he will know how to make it pay.

A charming little dinner was given on the "Bear" in honor of Mrs. Wingate Lake on Tuesday evening by Mr. Mead. The table was decorated with malle leis entwined with carnations and at each plate were the same blossoms. The Ellis Glee Club sang and played throughout the dinner. Among the guests besides the guest of honor were Miss Sargent, Miss Dowsett, Miss Dickson, Miss Makee, Mrs. Dreshner, Mr. Colette, Mr. Lake, Dr. White, Captain Hamlet Mr. Spilvao, Mr. Dorey, Mr. Schumaker and Mr. Glover.

Among the guests present at the card party at the Hawaiian Hotel were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. King, Mrs. Melvin, Dr. and Mrs. High, and Mrs. Stevens from the Young Hotel; and Captain and Mrs. Sherman, Dr. and Mrs. Baker, Lieut. and Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Newcome, Mr. and Mrs. Sachs, Major Fuller and many others.

On St. Valentine's night a housewarming will be given at the Hawaiian Hotel by Mr. Church.

Chinese New Year is being observed with much vigor. Many housewives are in a sad quandary, for they are cookless. The Chinese will take a holiday once a year, and the only thing to do is to gracefully submit, or, if you are lucky, find a Japanese substitute.

Second Prize —IN— BULLETIN $1000 CONTEST

AN ANGELUS PIANO PLAYER. Value $250.

The universal demand for more music, for better music, for music whenever and wherever it was desired, was the inspiration to men who understood both mechanics and art. The ANGELUS is the result. It is the instrument which places the power of musical execution and expression in the hands of every one having access to a piano. It is made in the form of a beautiful little cabinet in various fancy woods to match your piano or music-room. It may easily be moved to the piano when you desire it as an aid for playing and as easily removed when you have finished. Even a child can do this.

THE WILCOX & WHITE COMPANY introduced the ANGELUS in 1897—the first instrument of its kind ever placed before the public, as the U. S. Census Report of 1900 testifies—and ever since then the musicians, inventors and mechanics of this Company have been constantly developing the ANGELUS until it today may be justly called the piano-playing aid, for it now is a means which reads the notes always correctly for any one and places them with its little pneumatic fingers to the proper keys of the piano, causing them to be held down or released, according to the relative value or time of the notes in the score; the performer produces the touch, either heavy or delicate, as desired, with the air produced by the pedals. The elasticity of the air gives the plant resilient touch as of the human finger.

Thus you see, the ANGELUS is the means for any one to play the piano with skill and expression, yet without the necessity of finger-practice or the need of knowing one single note. It is the means for those who have music in their souls, but have not had the opportunity or time to acquire the skill (not talent) to play the piano.

When using the ANGELUS as an aid the individuality of the performer is always retained, for it at all times faithfully reflects the feelings by which the performer is dominated, and the playing is not mechanical only to that degree to which the performer is mechanical. It is a perfect means for the musician, for he now can interpret his favorite classics through its fingers (which never get out of practice as his own do), and through its simple and convenient expression-devices can control the time, touch and expression. These devices are so complete that you can not only play loud or soft, fast or slow, but you can accent a note or chord, and can play the theme or melody of a composition loud while the accompanying notes either in the treble or bass will be subdued and flowing.

With our latest patented device, the phrasing-lever, you can prolong or shorten syllables in the rendition of songs—can phrase to suit your own taste or fancy; can take any liberty known to the musician.

The ANGELUS ORCHESTRAL is a unique instrument. It is similar to the ANGELUS, excepting that it contains beautifully voiced reeds, which may be used or not just as the performer desires. The beauty of many compositions is greatly enhanced by using the reed tones in combination with the piano.

The ANGELUS has received the most enthusiastic testimonials from the noted musical artists of the day (D'Albert, Hoffman, Sembrich, De Reszke, Kocian, and many others), but after all, the most valuable endorsement is the grateful appreciation in which it is held in the homes of the thousands of purchasers, for which it was primarily intended, and in which it has wrought a resurrection of musical interest and an enlargement of musical enjoyment little short of the miraculous.

The Hawaiian News Co., Ltd., controls the sale of the Angelus in Hawaii. They guarantee the instrument and will gladly explain its operation.

MR. DOOLEY ON BANKS AND BANKING

"If Iver I Have Anny Relations With a Bank, Hinmissy, It Won't Be 'n Th' Way Iv Puttin' Money In."

"Well, sir," said Mr. Dooley, "I've been doin' th' bankers in this country a gr-rear injustice."

"How's that?" asked Mr. Hennessy.

"I've put thim down all me life as cold, stony-hearted men that wud as soon part with their lives as with their money. I had a pitcher iv a banker in me mind, a stern, hard-featured ol' gentleman with curly side-whiskers settin' on th' people's money an' stallin' off both th' borrower who comes be night with a dhrill an' th' more rayfined burglar who calls in th' daytime with a good story. I was afraid iv thim. I wud no more dare to ask a banker to take a dhrink or shoot th' shoots with me thim I wud an archbishop. If I talked to wan iv thim, I'd look up all me statements in th' almanac an' all me wurruuds in th' ditchery to see that I got nawthin' wrong. An' I made a mistake about thim. Far fr'm bein' a hard, cynical class, th' bankers iv America is a lot iv jolly dogs that believes in human nature, takes life as it is, aisy come, aisy go, hurrah boys, we'll be a long time dead. Hard to borrow money fr'm thim? On th' contrary, it's hard to keep thim fr'm crowdin' it on ye. They'll lend ye money on annything ye shove in, on a dhrream that ye saw a sojer on horseback, on th' sad story iv ye'er life or on ye'er wurruud iv honor if ye're ready to go back on it. I niver knew what collateral was until this lady fr'm Cleveland come along. Collateral is a misstatement on which bankers lend money. If ye broke into a bank in Ohio tomorrah, ye'd probly find th' vaults full iv Louisiana lottery tickets, bets on th' races an' rayports iv crystal gazin'.

"Bankin' is a strange business annyhow. I make up me mind that I need more money than I have, or I want to build a railroad in Omaha or a gas house in Milwaukee or Mrs. Chadwick wants an autumobile or something else happens, an' I start a bank. I build a brick house, put in gratings on th' window an' ye an' Donohue fight each other to see who'll get his money first to me. I accept it very reluctantly an' as a gr-rear favor to ye. Says I, 'Hennissy an' Donohue,' says I, 'ye across me knees. But wan day ye an-re rayspectable wurrukin' men an' I will keep ye'er money fr' ye an' ye hurry down to see me. 'Sor-rather thim see ye spind it in rioch-ry,' says I, 'but I've just given it ous livin',' says I. 'As a gr-rear all to a lady who come out iv th' Chinese laundry nex' dure an' these lithographs be lendin' thim to me frinds,' says I. 'If ye want iv th' money back ye can have it anny time between nine in th' mornin' an' three in th' afternoon except Sundays an' holidays,' says I, 'but don't both come at wanst,' says I, 'or nayether iv ye'll get it,' says I. Well, ye lave ye'er money with me an' I suppose ye think iv it lyin' safe an' sound in th' big strong box where th' burglar boys can't get it. Ye sleep better at nights because ye feel that ye'er money is where no wan can reach it except over me dead body. If ye on'y knew, ye've not turned ye'er back before I've chased those hard-earned dollars off th' premises. With ye'er money I build a house an' rent it to you. I start a railroad with it an' ye wurruud on th' railroad at two dollars a day. Ye'er money makes me a prom-nent citizen. Th' newspapers interview me on what shud be done with th' toilin' masses, manin' ye an' Donohue; I construet th' foreign policy iv th' government; I tell ye how ye shud vote. Ye've got to vote th' way I say or I won't give ye back ye'er money. An' all this time ye think iv that little bundle iv pitchers nestlin' in th' safe in my brick house with me settin' at th' dure with a shotgun missy an' Donohue,' says I, 'ye across me knees. But wan day ye an-re rayspectable wurrukin' men an' I will keep ye'er money fr' ye an' ye hurry down to see me. 'Sor-rather thim see ye spind it in rioch-ry,' says I, 'but I've just given it ous livin',' says I. 'As a gr-rear all to a lady who come out iv th' Chinese laundry nex' dure an' these lithographs be lendin' thim to me frinds,' says I. 'If ye want iv th' money back ye can have it an-

"If Iver I have anny relations with a bank, Hinmissy, it won't be in th' way iv puttin' money in. Were ye iver in a bank? Ye wudn't be; I was wanst. Wanst I was eighty-five dollars on me way to bein' a millionaire an' I went down town an' threw th' money into th' window an' told th' bank-er to take th' best iv care iv it. 'We can't take this,' says he. 'Why not?' says I. 'I don't know ye,' says he. 'Niver mind that,' says I. 'It's me money not meself I'm thyrin' to intrajooce to society,' says I. 'It's a very nice kind iv money an' even if ye don't like it now 'twill grow on ye,' says I. 'Or at laste I hope so,' says I. D'ye know, Hinmissy, he wudden't take th' money till I end get Dorsey, th' plumber, to assure him that I was fr'm wan iv th' oldest families that had come to Archey Road since th' fire. Havin' satisfied himself that me money was fit fr' other people's money to associate with, he tol' th' policeman to put me in a line iv people with blue noses who were clutchin' at postal orders in front iv a window where a young fellow fr'm wan iv th' rile families iv Europe sat. Th' prince was properly indignant at havin' to take money fr'm strangers an' he showed it be glarin' at th' impydint depos-itors. When it come me turn, I wanted to tell him how I hated to part with me little money, how long me money an' me had slept together an' niver had a cross wurruud; how its slightest nod was a command to me, but now I sup-posed th' time had come when it must go out an' see something iv th' wurruud on'y I hoped 'twud be happy among strangers an' he wud be good to it because 'twas all I had an' not large fr' its age. I felt very sentimental, Hinmissy. Fr' two years I'd counted that money forty times a day. I knew ivry wrinkle on it. I had what ye might call a legal tenderness fr' it. But before I end deliver me senti-mental address called, 'A Poor Man's Farewell to His Rolyboly,' th' young duke grabbed th' bundle, tossed it over into a pile, hit me on th' chest with a pass book, mut-thered, 'Burglar' under his breath an' dhrove me fr'm th' bank penniless. As I passed be th' pris-idint's office, I found th' great man biddin' a tearful farewell to Gal-lagher iv th' fifth ward. Ye know Gallagher. He owns all th' cop-per mines in Halsted street, has a half intrust in Jack's tips on th' races an' controls th' American rights in th' Humbert family. 'Ar-re ye wan iv us?' says I. 'Wan iv what?' says he. 'Wan iv us de-positors,' says I. 'I am not,' says he. 'I've jus' dhropped in an' borrowed a thousand,' says he. 'What thin' is so like money ye can't tell on?' says I. 'On a good thing this afternoon at Noo Orleans,' says th' lady fr'm Cleveland fooled thim bankers?' asked Mr. Hennessy. 'Ye'd think they'd be too smart to be bunkoed.'

"Don't ye believe it," said Mr. Dooley. "Nobody is too smart to be bunkoed. Th' on'y kind iv people that can be bunkoed are smart people. Ye can be too honest to be bunkoed but niver too smart. It's th' people that ar-re thyrin' to get something fr' nawthin' that end in gettin' nawthin' fr' ivry-thing. I niver can burst into tears when I read about some head-bein' robbed be a confidence game. Canada Bill, Gib Fitz or Mrs. Chadwick niver got anny money fr'm square people. A man that buys a goold brick thinks he is swindlin' a poor Indyan that don't know its value; a fellow that comes on to buy fr' five hundred dollars tin thousand dollars worth iv somethin' is so like money ye can't tell th' difference is hopin' to swindle th' government; th' foolish man that falls fr' th' three card thriek has th' wrong card crimped fr' him when th' dealer's back is turned; th' shell wurruker always pretends to fumble an' carelessly show th' farmer which shell th' little pea is under; an' th' lady fr'm Cleve-land eudden't have got anny more money on Andy's name thin' on mine if she hadn't promised to di-vide with th' bankers. I rayfuse to sob over thim poor, gloomy financiers anny more thin I wud over th' restless capitalist who loses his all in a wire tapping en-terprise. When a nun gets more thin six per cent. fr' his money, it's a thousand to wan he's payin' it himself. Whinver annybody offers to give ye somethin' fr' nawthin', or something fr' less thin it's worth, or more fr' something thin it's worth, don't take anny chances. Yell fr' a policeman."

BRIDELESS GROOM WORKED FIVE HOTELS FOR HIS PRACTICAL JOKE

San Francisco, Jan. 14.—He registered under the name of B. H. Webster, gave his residence as the Presidio and then unfolded to the clerk at the Occidental a story of his proposed marriage to a Los Angeles belle. He wanted the best suite of rooms in the hotel, and having carefully inspected them the stranger informed the clerk that his fiancée and her mother would arrive the following morning on the Owl from the south. The prospective groom arranged for having the bridal apartments decorated with flowers, leased the hotel parlors for the nuptial ceremony, engaged a carriage to meet depot on their arrival from Los Angeles and finally completed the preparations for his marriage by going to a telephone and engaging a well-known clergyman to perform the ceremony in the Occidental Hotel parlors at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

When yesterday morning came Manager Hooper and a force of employees carefully arranged and decorated the bridal apartments and cleared the big parlor for the wedding. Shortly before the arrival of the Owl train a carriage was dispatched to the depot. Manager Hooper and the clergyman, who had arrived in advance of the expected couple, sat themselves down in one of the cozy corners of the hotel and quietly discussed ecclesiastical matters. Half an hour later the carriage driver returned to the Occidental and calling Manager Hooper aside poored into his ear a story that made the usually smiling boniface angrily gnaw his lower lip.

When the driver reached the railroad depot he found several other hackmen there on a similar mission. Their stories tallied with that of the man from the Occidental. Certainly there was a possibility that several brides might be coming from the south. Building their faith on that prospect the Jehus had patiently awaited the arrival of the train. But no brides came, and the drivers returned with their vehicles to their respective hotels.

Later in the day there was a lively conference between several hotel managers over the phone, and they learned that they had all been fooled by a stranger. The same individual had gone to the Grand Hotel, where he represented himself as Henry Allen of Martinez and made elaborate arrangements for his approaching marriage. As William Allen he had engaged rooms, flowers and hacks at the Russ House, and had later played a similar trick upon the unsuspecting clerk at the Lick. The California Hotel also fell happily into the matrimonial scheme of the stranger and was able to boast last night of having as many wilted flowers on hand as the Occidental, Grand, Lick or Russ. The designated hotel managers agreed that they were the dupes of some fellow whose mind is deranged on the subject of matrimony.

Splendid Attack and Defense During Final Port Arthur Fight

Headquarters of the Japanese Third Army, in Front of Port Arthur, Dec. 29.—After many weeks of patient toil by a regiment of the center division the making of nine tunnels under the north wall of Rihlung Mountain fort through solid rock was completed and the mines laid on December 28.

Without warning seven mines containing two tons of dynamite were exploded at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 28th. The spectacle was magnificent. The entire front walls of the fort seemed to be lifted into the air in a tremendous opaque curtain of earth and debris of all kinds.

There was no preliminary bombardment to give the Russians a hint of what was in store for them. Half the garrison perished as the result of the explosions and the subsequent charge of the Japanese.

The force of the explosions was tremendous. The entire hillside was covered with earth and debris and the fort was filled to a level with the broken walls of the fort.

In anticipation of a stubborn resistance by a large garrison the Japanese before daylight pushed a large force into the trenches, where they remained concealed until the explosions took place. The moment the mines were fired a whole park of siege guns opened a concentrated fire upon the fort, which was obscured from view by the bursting shells. Under cover of this wonderful practice a large force in the nearest saps charged over the filled-in moat and attacked the first line of Russian trenches, behind which were machine guns.

The Russians were thrown into the greatest confusion and many of them were killed by the explosions. Nevertheless they fought desperately, but were not able to withstand the numbers and determination of the Japanese, who passed over the broken walls like ants in the face of a fire from the machine guns, and the first line of trenches was captured after twenty minutes of awful fighting.

The fort was arranged in two levels. In the lower level there were in the rear were machine gun trenches, with a deep interior. In the center of the higher level there were quick-firing guns, and heavier guns in the emplacement. In the rear of the higher level masonry were the concreted barracks, the magazines and the kitchens of the garrison.

When the Japanese captured the lower level in the first spirited charge they were not able to advance farther. With splendid courage, however, the black masses of troops maintained their position, notwithstanding an awful concentrated fire from the fortresses and from artillery in the forts of Antze and Etze mountains, across the gorge of the Shuishi Valley, and made a trench line from the broken walls to capture the machine gun trenches.

All the time Japanese artillery bombarded the rear of the fort and the Chinese wall, so as to prevent the arrival of reinforcements.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Japanese massed and captured the machine gun trenches and the lower section of the fort. Then they charged the higher level in splendid form, going up in twos and threes until a large body had gained the crest of the north-east corner. Before dark the walls of the higher level were black with men, who had gained the interior in small parties, despite the awful fire.

In the meantime more of the Japanese gained the higher level of the fort from the gorge at the west side.

The Japanese attacked in overwhelming numbers from all sides, but the remnant of the garrison continued to fight with splendid spirit, contesting every inch of the interior.

Under cover of darkness the Japanese captured the last sections and the barracks at 3 o'clock in the morning. One hundred and fifty of the garrison escaped through the connecting trenches in the rear of the fort, which they destroyed by mines to prevent pursuit. Three prisoners were taken and the others of the garrison were killed.

The Japanese losses during the day and night were about one thousand killed or wounded.

With the fort the Japanese captured four guns of large caliber, seven quick-firing guns and two machine guns, besides others not yet counted. In the gorge at the rear of the fort they captured thirty quick-firing guns which had been mounted ready to repel any attack upon the fort from the rear. Before retreating the Russians set fire to the barracks and kitchens, which are still burning.

Considering the enormous strength of the fort, its capture at such small cost of life was a great success.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Influenza is more prevalent and more fatal in Chicago this winter than at any time since the epidemic year of 1891, according to the weekly bulletin of the Health Department. Twenty more deaths from this cause were reported during the week.

Investigations by Dr. Robert B. Preble, a medical inspector for the department, are held to show "there can be no question that influenza or la grippe is the most important factor in the increase of pneumonia and in consequence of heart disease."

Statistics are quoted as proof that the deaths from heart disease and from pneumonia have increased at almost exactly the same ratio since 1843. The fact that the germ which causes pneumonia also irritates the membrane covering the valves of the heart is commented on.

BY ARI OBSAROIRI CUSS.

The wise men of the East says that honesty is the best policy, an' a fool an' his money is soon parted, but I ginerally observe that taint so much fooltiness, as honesty an' a third party, that does the mischief.

A man that haint no mind to speak of wot never be put to the trouble of collectin' his thoughts.

Goin' to college don't make a man no better fudge of wimmen. I notice that a majority of scholars learns the most they knows about wimmen after they gits a divorce.

The School of Experience is cracked up to be the thing, but I knows that it has blamed high tooishness fees.

What a man learns in one business aint agoin' to make him git rich in t'other.

A mean man and a man of means often means the same thing.

The average man don't care a darn how much iron enters his soul, but he is mighty scumptions about the lead that gits into his body.

It looks like there aint nothin' in the world will change the names of some of our old maids except a special act of legislature.

White shines the scalp of him that haint no crown.

It's plain to me that the ancients knowed nothin' about astronomy or they'd have called the earth the Lord's football instead of his footstool.

The man that denies there's a God in the day time ginerally's afraid of devils at night.

"The Truth About Morocco." An indictment of the Policy of the British Foreign Office With Regard to the Anglo-French Agreement, by M. Afaio, Comendador Ordinario de la Real Orden de Isabel la Catolica, With an Introduction by R. B. Cunningham Graham. 8 vo., $1.50 net.

"The world," they say in Morocco, "is a peacock and Morocco is the tail of it." The high native estimate put upon the land is somewhat confirmed too by the anxiety European nations exhibit for its control. France under the present agreement with England wields the preponderating influence.

Concessions with regard to Egypt were made in return for privileges to the west of the French colonies in Tunis and Algeria. But public opinion has not approved the course of the British government entirely. The sense of grave danger to national interests is voiced in a book just published by John Lane, "The Truth About Morocco." The author, M. Afaio, held an official position in Morocco for ten years under the late Sultan and during the regency of the late Vizier Ben Mousa. His experience renders him intimately conversant with the conditions he describes and his close association in the native government gives him full knowledge of the effects of the French control against which he protests as detrimental to the world at large. Mr. Percieris, lately the prisoner of Raisuli, has suggested the administration of Moroccan affairs from Washington. He recommends all who wish to form a reliable opinion about the country of the Moor and its inhabitants to "give this clearly written volume their closest and most unprejudiced consideration." Mr. Afaio sets forth the commercial aspects of a critical situation as well as the political and strategical and examines the progress of European colonization in North Africa at length.

"Old Gorgon Graham," by George Horace Lorimer. Cloth; 5x7 1/2 in., 308 p.p.; Illustrated. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. $1.50.

Those who have read "Letters From A Self-made Merchant to His Son," (and who has not?) will not miss enjoying this even better book by the same author, whose fund of humor, wit, philosophy and "horse-sense" seems inexhaustible. There bubble up in sparkling freshness over every page and make it downright pleasant reading.

The book will appeal more to women than Mr. Lorimer's first volume although the son's wife and baby are only incidentals.

The old pork packer's ideas about marriage, mother-in-laws and divorce are just as good as those about his business.

"Good mothers often make bad mothers-in-law, because they usually believe that, no matter whom their daughters marry, they could have gone farther and fared better. But it struck me that Helen's ma has one of those retentive memories and weak mouths—the kind of memory that never loses anything it should forget, and the kind of mouth that can't retain a lot of language whom it shouldn't use."

"On general principles, it's pretty good doctrine that two's a company and three's a crowd, except when the third is a cook. But I should say that when the third is Helen's ma it's a mob, out looking for a chance to make a rough house. A good cook, a good wife and a good job will make a good home anywhere; but you add your mother-in-law, and the first thing you know you've got two homes and one of them is being run on alimony."

"There are a lot of women in the world who think that there's only one side to the married relation, and that's their side. It's a mighty curious thing how a woman who has the appetite and instincts of a turkey-buzzard will often make her husband believe that she's as high strung and delicate as a canary bird."

"It never does any special harm to let people have their own way with their mouths. No one really knows anything about women except a widower, and he forgets it when he gets ready to marry again. There's only two jobs for a man in his own house—one's boss and the other's office boy, and a fellow naturally falls into the one for which he is fitted. When you differ with your wife, never try to reason out who's in the wrong, because you'll find that you've proved it to her she'll still have a lot of talk left that she hasn't used."

Old Graham who isn't half so crusty as he seems, goes off to various resorts leaving his son at the old stand—Union Stock Yards, Chicago. He writes back giving his son good advice on many matters, telling a story or two now and then to pin down some particular fact.

"I'm sorry you ask so many questions that you haven't a right to ask," he begins, "because you put yourself in the position of the bull-pup who started out to smell the third rail on the trolley right-of-way you're going to be full of information in a minute."

"After you have found ninety-nine sound reasons for hiring a man, it's all right to let his relationship to you be the hundredth. It'll be the only bad reason in the bunch." Then he goes on to make observations about people—

"It's a mighty curious thing how many people think that if a man isn't spending his money their way he isn't spending it right. A broad-gauged merchant is a good deal like our friend Doc Graver, who'd cut out the washerman's appendix for five dollars, but would charge a thousand for showing me mine—he wants all the money that's coming to him, but he really doesn't give a cuss how much it is, just so he gets the appendix."

Old Gordon has had his experience, too, with borrowers of money: "I've usually found that these quick, glad borrowers are slow, sad payers. And when a fellow tells you that it hurts him to have to borrow, you can bet that the thought of having to pay is going to tie him up in a bow-knot of pain."

And what he says about letters is as true as the rest: "You should answer letters just as you answer men—promptly, courteously and decisively. The only letters that can wait are those which provoke a hot answer. A good hot letter is always foolish."

Those who want Benjamin Franklin up-to-date should read the rest of Old Graham's talk.

"The Best of Stevenson," Edited by Alexander Jessup. Cloth, full gilt, top, size 4 1/2 x 7 1/2 in., 390 p.p. H. M. Caldwell Co., Boston, Mass., $1.50.

There is an introduction by the editor on "The Best of Stevenson," historical and critical, referring chiefly to the sketches in this volume. A complete list of the writings of Stevenson precedes the introduction, but we fall to find in it one book that has a local (Hawaiian) interest, namely, "The Bottle Imp." "An Open Letter to the Reverend Dr. Hyde of Honolulu," is also included.

Some years after this letter was published, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Mr. Stevenson and Dr. Hyde" were interchangeable terms among certain newspaper writers.

"Will o' the Mill," "Virgilinus Puellique," "The Flight in the Heather," "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Voice Among the Trees," "Markheim," "Aes Triplex" and a few poems have been chosen as the "best"; the choice seems very good, though most readers would wish to include "Treasure Island," and several of the charming essays.

The publishers have made a pleasing book in outward appearance, and in type and paper. "The Best of Balzac" has appeared in uniform style, and the best work of other great writers will be issued as later additions to the series.

"The Man Who Pleases and The Woman Who Charms," by John A. Cone. Cloth, 4 1/2 x 6 1/2 in., 131 p.p. Third printing. Hinds & Noble, New York, 75 cents.

An unpretentious volume about which the author says: "The makers of books have been divided into two classes—the creators and the collectors. In preparing this volume the author has made no claim to a place in the first division, for he has been, to a great extent, only a collector. The facts which the book contains are familiar to intelligent people, and the only excuse offered for presenting them in a new dress is that we need to be reminded often of some truths with which we are most familiar."

The matter, however, is quite as much the writer's own as what is found in other books on the subject, and as for being reminded of good manners when we see them. Lowell said: "We are the most common-schooled and the least educated people in the world."

The writer's style is smooth, and all the advice or information given should be thoughtfully received by anybody wise enough to know how to read it.

The best of us need some prodding regarding our every day conversation and manners; we grow thoughtless if we don't become really unkind in our intercourse with others, we let the strenuous life lead us away from the amenities, and, in our acceptance of the dictum—"business is business," we forget that work, business enterprise, money, are small matters compared with gentleness, courtesy, and all that constitutes the essence of the Golden Rule. The author tells us that the great men who were gruff were great despite their want of manners, not because of it; that the majority of us who are not great cannot afford to copy the faults of our superiors. Also, he tells us what we know, that polished manners and real courtesy are not indicative of shallowness, want of faith or a deceitful character, but show forth real greatness, unselfishness, and sympathy. The surly man who doesn't like to say a word of love or praise; who snarls at what he considers offusion in others, who waits with impatience for others to get through with even the forms of polite exchange, excuses his detestable habits and utter selfishness by saying that he is honest, and that others are not; by advertising his ugliness as open frankness.

There are many apt and valuable quotations in the book not taken altogether from standard books, but from newspapers, being rescued as it were.

It would be a good thing for Hawaii if this book were read and followed by every man and woman who lives here, including, also, Mr. Bulletin Bookman.

"Eighteen Miles From Home," by William T. Hodge. Cloth; 4 1/2 x 7 in., 230 p.p. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.

A delightful story issued by the publishers of "Letters From A Self-Made Merchant to His Son," Mr. Peter Finley Dunne's and Holman Day's books.

It is not the number of miles a man travels but the character of his experiences and vicissitudes that makes an account of them interesting to others, either in real life or in story books.

Poor Joseph Beecher goes only eighteen miles from home, but he meets with enough trouble to fill a gazette-sized book.

Maternal pride and an immature conception of his own talents serve to make him the victim of a traveling fakir, he loses all his hard-earned wages, and finally gets into jail, though, indeed, he is innocent of anything but "innocence" all the way through.

The delusion that go many have harbored to their misfortune—a false estimate of their own intellectual powers—takes the country boy away from his cooping and his home, and the cold, calculating but generally quiet just world, receives him at his true value in the line he professes expertise in, and finds its derision in his face. Flat failure stops his progress and further humiliation, and while he languishes in jail charged with an attempt to get away from paying his bills, his sweetheart comes to him, first, to upbraid, then to love and comfort him.

When his uncle dies leaving him all the property, he returns home, having learned his lesson. There are pathetic scenes and many amusing ones in the book; the closing chapter mends every matter that needs it, and Joseph Beecher, happy in the love of a loyal girl, finds that he was better fitted for cooping than he was to be a "Play actor."

A book covering a hitherto unoccupied field, entitled "The Younger American Poets," is announced for publication by Little, Brown & Co., early in November. The author is Miss Jessie B. Rittenhouse, best known as the editor of the three-volume edition of Omar Khayyam, containing the rendering of Fitzgerald, Whinnell, and McCarthy, which became a standard work, combining, as it did in the several translations and The Introduction, all the data necessary to a study of the poem.

"The Younger American Poets" is a book of literary criticism pure and simple, without any attempt at personal gossip, but it contains needful biographical data supplied in brief notes at the end of the book. The writers treated of in the volume include Richard Hovey, Bliss Carman, Louise Imogen Guiney, Edith M. Thomas, George E. Woodberry, Frederic Lawrence Knowles, George E. Santayana, Alice Brown, Richard Burton, Clinton Scottard, Charles G. D. Roberts, Gertrude Hall, Josephine Preston Peabody, Mary McNeil Fenollosa, and others.

H. M. Caldwell & Co.'s catalogue of books is a treat to look over. The cover-design is quaint and artistic while the books several of which we have reviewed in these columns, include almost every department of literature, juvenile, kindergarten, "pleasant street" series, popular editions, famous books for girls, famous books for boys, gift books and the deservedly popular "Red Letter Library" with such titles as "Essays of Elia," "Imitation of Christ," Emerson's "Essays," "Confessions of an Oplum Eater," and so on.

Madame Adam (Juliette Lambert), the author of "My Literary Life," published this fall by the Appletons, reveals her artistic temperament in little incidents which she relates of her early life. Part of her education, as is true of most French girls, was made in a convent. "Do you know," she said one day confidentially, "the part I enjoyed most was making the deep curtsy to the Archbishop when he came."

Last Days In Port Arthur Forts Were Hours Of Fearful Struggle

Chefoo, Jan. 2.—Commander Kartow of the Russian torpedo-boat destroyer Vlastni in an interview tonight said:

"Port Arthur falls of exhaustion—exhaustion not only of ammunition, but of men. The remnant of the garrison left had been doing the work of heroes for five days and five nights, but yesterday it reached the limit of human endurance.

"In the casemates of the forts one saw everywhere faces black with starvation, exhaustion and nerve strain. You spoke to them, but they did not give answer, only staring dumbly.

"The lack of ammunition alone would not have suggested the seeking of terms. Scant ammunition had long been common in the fortress, and during the past month many of the forts had nothing with which to return the fire of the enemy.

"The Russians sat in the casemates firing not more than once to the 200 shots sent by the Japanese. Then when the assault came they repulsed the enemy with bayonets. But the men themselves, having existed for three months on reduced rations, were so worn that it is marvelous they stood the final strain so long.

"Yesterday General Stoessel would still fight. His wound, which was received early in the siege, had been bothering him, but his determination to fight while one man stood had not been diminished.

"But we cannot fight," said his generals. "Our men cannot move. They sleep standing. They cannot see the bayonets at their breasts. We can order, but they cannot obey."

"Then you generals fight," said Stoessel, clenching his fists.

"He seemed fanatical on the subject, but finally he was brought to see reason by the insistence of his subordinates. Admirals and generals, sometimes with broken voices, urged the step which all had dreaded so long.

"I am sure Port Arthur would have sought terms a month ago had it not been for General Stoessel, who with bulldog tenacity repeatedly refused to permit such action to be taken. He had told his Emperor that he would never surrender, and he meant to keep his word.

"The greatest loss suffered by Port Arthur occurred a fortnight ago, when Major General Kondratenko was killed. Officers and men alike regarded him as the brightest star in Port Arthur's firmament. When his death became known, the fall in the spirits of the soldiers was plainly visible.

"General Kondratenko was seated in the casemate of a certain fort, discussing with seven other officers the best way of countermarching against the Japanese, when an eleven-inch shell burst, killing everybody in the casemate.

"General Nogi has taken Port Arthur with his artillery and his tunnels. His rifle bullets were seldom found to be of use.

"We constantly endured a bombardment fiercer than any in history. The Japanese periodically assaulted, and then, if repulsed, they calmly resumed their bombardments.

"We who came here today do not know the terms of surrender suggested by General Stoessel to General Nogi, nor the answer to them, having left Port Arthur even before the messenger had been dispatched. The general impression, however, is that Stoessel has proposed that the army shall go free and that he alone be made a prisoner. Even that concession seemed to wrench the sturdy old man's heart.

"Whether or not the negotiations terminate in an agreement on terms of surrender, it is certain that Port Arthur is doomed. We still have some ammunition and some guns on Liaotai Mountain, but that mountain is not adapted for the best defense from the land side, and the Japanese would find its capture easier than the other tasks they have attempted. Tiger's Tail Peninsula has to be similarly viewed, and Gold Hill has been without ammunition for three months.

"Since reaching Chefoo I have seen that attempts have been made to make it appear that Stoessel alone wished to surrender, the other generals desiring to continue the fight. This is a lie, and it is based solely on personal dislike of Stoessel.

"It is a simple story. Had the ammunition held out, the fortress would have held out indefinitely. For months we held Port Arthur by bayonets alone, until flesh and blood could do no more. When a man fell there was none other to replace him. Thus the garrison was gradually worn down. Two-Hundred-and-Three-Meter Hill alone cost us 5,000 men. The capture of that hill was the beginning of the end.

"The Japanese artillery was excellently served. They had 400 guns bearing on 203-Meter Hill. They advanced their trenches while their artillery was shelling the Russians out with a shower of metal and then occupied the Russian positions.

"In personal combat the Japanese was greatly inferior to the Muscovite. One Russian could take care of three Japanese in a bayonet fight and some of our soldiers have records vastly higher than that. The Japanese are good, brave soldiers, although I have little liking for them.

"It has cost the Japanese 80,000 men to take the fortress, while some say they have lost more than 100,000. The number of our own dead is not known, even to the high officers.

"The fighting since August has been merciless. When Rihlung Mountain was taken, 500 men occupying a casemate were not able to emerge, so quickly came the Japanese rush. The Russians tried to get out by the use of their bayonets in the face of machine gun fire. Thus every man died—trying to resist machine guns with bayonets alone. The Japanese did not give them a chance to become prisoners, but the men would have preferred death anyway.

"Realize this end! Picture a fort strewn with shells and you have a picture of the end of Port Arthur.

"One peculiar incident of the siege was in fort No. 3, where for three months the Japanese occupied one part of the fort while the Russians occupied the other. They fought ceaselessly, assaulting each other and mining and countermining.

"Once when a Japanese Prince was killed the Japanese sent to negotiate a truce in order that they might secure the body from heaps of others which had long remained unburied. The Russians received the envoys courteously and in an easy manner, as if they had untold breweries working, gave them the last bottle of beer at Port Arthur, with the idea of creating an impression of plenty.

"As a matter of fact, the only real ration for three months has consisted of rice, which ultimately caused hundreds to fall sick of scurvy, a disease much like beriberi. Last month the rations were reduced forty per cent.

"Nothing was thought too great a sacrifice in order to impress the enemy that all was well inside the fortress.

"This is the first potato I have tasted for two months—and is this really, truly steak?"

Criminal Agreement Between Railroads

New York, Jan. 20.—The American prints what purports to be a copy of an actual pooling agreement made between the Southern Pacific Company and the Santa Fe, providing for a division of business and earnings. This agreement was signed by J. C. Stubbs of the Southern Pacific and Paul Morton as an official of the Southern California Railroad Company the name of that part of the Santa Fe operating in California.

The agreement, in brief, shows that California was divided in two by arbitrary lines and that there was between the two railroads a full arrangement as to rates, commodities and points shipped to and from. Each road was to report to the other as to the business done and the actual rates collected. The California shippers were absolutely at the mercy of these two roads.

At the time the agreement was signed, it was in violation of two distinct laws—the Sherman anti-trust and the interstate commerce law. Both laws provided that at that time for a punishment by a fine of $5000 and imprisonment in the penitentiary. In the case of the Sherman anti-trust law, imprisonment would have been for one year, and in the case of the interstate commerce law, imprisonment would have been for not more than two years. Legal experts say that neither Stubbs nor Morton can be prosecuted, because the offense, which the agreement indicates they are guilty of, has been outlawed by the statute of limitations.

Tariff Director Stubbs of the Southern Pacific has always denied with emphases that his road had any pooling agreement with the Santa Fe or any sort of agreement.

Whether or not the negotiations terminate in an agreement on terms of surrender, it is certain that Port Arthur is doomed. We still have some ammunition and some guns on Liaotai Mountain, but that mountain is not adapted for the best defense from the land side, and the Japanese would find

ALL NIGHT BANK.

New York, Jan. 12.—With the acquisition of a site at the southeast corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street, a district of fashionable restaurants and hotels, the first night-and-day bank is to be established. Delmonico's and Sherry's will be its neighbors.

All preliminaries were settled to-day at a meeting of the directors and within a few months the new institution will be established in a commodious building to be devoted entirely to its uses. In connection with the bank there will operate a night and day safe deposit company. Its aim is to provide means by which its depositors may have the use of their funds at any hour out of the twenty-four. Those who wish sums of money in an emergency will find the night and day bank useful, for there will always be a cashier at its window.

The idea was suggested by the experiences of several men who, although they had large sums of money in down-town banks, were unable to get money for an emergency. Hereafter all night banking business has been done by restaurants and hotels and it was necessarily limited.

For the accommodations of those who attend the opera the safety deposit department of the bank was primarily organized. Women returning from the opera or other places of amusement may leave their jewels in the vaults of the company before returning home.

If you are looking for a good saddle, call at the Schuman Carriage Co. Young building. They are opening up a fine line at prices to suit the times.

ASSEMBLE PARLIAMENT

London, Jan. 12.—King Edward at to-day's meeting of the Privy Council signed a proclamation convening Parliament for February 14. The session will be opened by the King personally with full state ceremonies. The unusual lateness of the date of the opening is interpreted to mean that the Government does not propose to press any redistribution bill, but to give the aliens bill, which Premier Balfour had definitely promised, the first place in its legislative programme.

Recent speeches of Ministers confirm the belief of an early dissolution of Parliament, and it seems likely that through the international abstention of the Chamberlainites, the Government will find a pretext for voluntarily dissolving Parliament toward the end of March and hand over to the opposition the seemingly thankless task of formulating the budget.

Premier Balfour, speaking at a banquet given in his honor at Glasgow to-night, avoided the fiscal question, except to say that he had nothing to add or retract from his Edinburgh speech.

Speaking at Liverpool to-day, Joseph Chamberlain related that on one occasion a monarch said to him:

"Of all things connected with your history, the one I admire most is your colonial policy."

Chamberlain replied to this:

"I think you do us too much honor. We never had a colonial policy, but somehow we have been allowed to blunder into the best parts of the world."

The Parliamentary bye-election in the Mile End (East London) district to-day, resulted in a victory for Harry L. W. Lawson, Unionist, by the narrow margin of 76 votes over Victor Straus, Liberal.

San Francisco, Jan. 21, 1905.

To the legal profession:
I was a witness to the following: Two years ago Professor Yost of Palo Alto, who was in an extreme condition due to Bright's Disease, came to my office with his physician (who had Diabetes) to meet a party who claimed cures had been discovered for these fatal diseases. The facts cited were astounding and both went on the treatment. To the amazement of us all, both recovered, and the physician is now using the treatment in his practice.

Learning that my old law partner, Judge R. R. Bigelow had Bright's Disease, and that his case was looked upon as hopeless by his physicians, I told him of it. It resulted in his complete recovery. As to the curability of Bright's Disease and Diabetes, I have no more doubt about it than that I am living.

Fryer Gets Money For Oriental Chair

Berkeley, Jan. 17.—His Excellency Sheng, mightiest of all the great men in China, has been induced by Professor John Fryer, of the department of Oriental languages at the State University, to provide five scholarships for Chinese students now at the university.

The first installment of the funds has been received by Professor Fryer, and four of the five fortunate Chinese students have been selected as beneficiaries of their distinguished countryman's liberality. The students chosen are later to be supplied with employment by Sheng, in China, and already can dream dreams and see visions of political place and preferment at the hands of the powerful Sheng.

This is the first instance on record, according to Professor Fryer, who is an authority on Oriental affairs and thoroughly versed in all the history of the Orient's relations with the West, that scholarships have been given by a Chinese official to the students of any American or European university.

The act of the Chinese official is the result of an interview had with Professor Fryer last June when he called upon Sheng at the latter's home in Shanghai. These students are here on their own resources and have difficulty in paying their own way.

Sheng is head of the Railway and telegraph administrations in China as well as in control of nearly all the other important organizations for the introduction of western learning and methods into China. He is at the head of the liberal party, his position being greater and his power more extensive than any other man in the kingdom.

BISHOP TALBOT CASE.

New York, Jan. 20.—A second presentation to be brought against the Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Bishop of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania, upon charges made by Dr. Ingram N. W. Irvine, which is now being prepared as the result of a conference held in this city, contains, it is understood, in the main only two charges. The first is said to be "immortality," meaning "lying," and the second "violations of ordination vows."

The first charge is based principally on the Upjohn letter and contains nineteen counts, but more may be added before the paper is finally sent to Presiding Bishop Tuttle of St. Louis. The charges of "violation of ordination vows" rest solely on the unfrocking of Dr. Irvine. They draw the Episcopal divorce canon, which was recently enacted, into the controversy. The charges against Bishop Talbot in connection with Mrs. Elliott of Huntingdon are reiterated and several new features have been added. There may be, it is said, a third charge but the presenters have not yet decided on this.

Much difficulty was experienced in obtaining two presbyters from Bishop Talbot's diocese to attach their names to the paper, but according to signatures of rectors or priests at present engaged in that district. Any priest at present employed in missionary work who is connected with the diocese of the accused may be eligible.

A BURGLAR'S ROMANCE.

Mr. Emley was a burglar. He was, however, a select burglar, an artist in his profession.

On a very dark night one March he walked up the front steps of the finest house in Castletown. The house had been sold a few weeks before to a gentleman in France, and Mr. Emley's business for visiting the place before its owner returned from abroad were known only to himself.

As was a cool man, never taken unawares, prepared for any situation which might present itself, and if on that dark night he was surprised to see the door before him suddenly open, no one would have guessed it. Certainly the servant on the inside of the threshold did not. He started back in dismay, believing it to be his new and unknown master who stood confronting him.

"Good evening," said Mr. Emley, raising his hat.

"Wh-h-hy, we didn't expect you for several days yet, sir," stammered the servant.

"Indeed!"

"Would you like something to eat, sir?" suggested the servant.

"I am hungry, and ah—ah—"

"Jenkinson, sir."

"Thanks. If you have something to drink, Jenkinson, it's a trifle raw outside. And—by the way, has any letter come for me lately?"

This was an excellent stroke of diplomacy on Mr. Emley's part. He was anxious to know who he was. The address on the envelope would tell him.

"A letter came two or three days ago, sir, but we forwarded it immediately to Paris."

"I must have missed it. How was it addressed?"

"Just 'F. M. Smith. The Grange, Castletown,' sir. I think it was an advertisement."

"Probably. I'll have supper here."

"Yes, sir."

By noon next day Mr. Emley had in a large degree overcome the strangeness of his situation. He no longer had an almost ungovernable impulse to gather to his bosom all the silver on the sideboard, and noisily flit through the nearest window.

"I would be an honest man were I in reality," Mr. Smith, he told himself, running his hand carelessly over a jeweled sword hilt that hung on the wall.

But the sword hilt held strong attractions not consistent with moral reform, and Mr. Emley strolled out of doors and down the gravel path.

Through the gates came a messenger boy with an orange envelope in his hand.

"Good afternoon, my little man," said Mr. Emley.

"Good afternoon, sir," said the boy.

"You have a telegram?" Mr. Emley tore open the envelope. The message was from Paris, and read:

"Accident. Return in a month."

"F. M. Smith."

"Hurrah! Mr. Emley, allow me the pleasure of bidding you a long adieu! Mr. Smith, make yourself perfectly at home for a month, and I think it's high time you became acquainted with your new neighbors."

Mr. Smith proved an exceedingly popular man.

The older men said he was "a good fellow," and the younger men admired the way he spent his money—or, that is, ran up bills. Although his path was one of roses, and he went on his way rejoicing.

It was at a ball that he met the woman in the case.

And it was no wonder that under the smile of fortune he forgot he was wanted by the police of almost every large town in the country, and walked through the ballroom with head held proudly erect.

It was thus that she first saw him.

"Who is that?" she inquired of a friend.

"Where? Oh, that is Mr. Smith, of The Grange."

"Of the Grange! Up here on the hill?"

"Yes. Haven't you met him yet?"

"No," she answered, looking curiously at him. "I have not."

She was introduced to him as Miss Lormer.

"She only got back from Paris a few weeks ago, too," said the friend who introduced them. "How strange you did not meet her over there, Mr. Smith."

"Well, ah! Paris is rather a large place, you know," said Mr. Smith.

"I only came from London last night. Have you been there long?"

The earnest eyes were uplifted, and Mr. Smith was glad he could tell the truth.

"No, only a fortnight."

"How dull it must seem to you after Paris, especially as you have no relatives here, nor anyone you know very well."

"I don't find it dull, now," he said meaningly.

The gray eyes dropped and the petals of the rose were cruelly mutilated. There was silence for a while.

The third week seemed hardly begun ere it was finished, and he was gazing with dismay upon the unavoidable ending of his adventure. Another telegram, announcing the exact date of the real Mr. Smith's return threw him into a momentary whirlwind of passion and defiance.

"I will not give it up. I will not."

But things finally readjusted themselves to their normal condition, and Mr. Smith was but a thin mask covering Dick Emley, smartest burglar that Scotland yard had ever known.

"I have had my taste of high life, and it has been perfect," he soliloquized, "and the only thing to do now is to gain some lasting benefit from it—a sort of interest on my money, as it were."

Castletown was a little old town, and within its narrow limits, treasured many priceless ancestral heirlooms. Family relics were its great distinction, and chief among these was silver. Every household recognized in society had their silverware, heavy with age and tradition.

It was strange that no one had thought of a silver exhibition before Mr. Smith proposed one, but nobody had, and the idea was hailed with delight.

"Having proposed the plan, the very least I can do," said Mr. Smith, "is to offer the exhibition the use of my house and my services."

As he owned many rare pieces of silverware himself, and the public at large was curious to see the interior of his new home, he was gratefully thanked and the offer accepted.

Two evenings this exhibition lasted, and all Castletown turned out. The affair was one of great social magnificence.

He had taken the precaution of having the silverware packed in small boxes, but even so, he found difficulty in loading it on to the cart he had driven out upon the lawn. But at 3 o'clock the cart was filled. Climbing into the high seat, and taking the reins, he turned back toward the house and smiled.

"It is a very cold day, Jenkinson," he said.

Then he chuckled softly to the horse and began his journey. It was a very little journey. The horse had not taken 10 steps before some one stepped out from the shadows and caught hold of the bridle rein. Mr. Emley sprang to his feet, only to find himself looking into the barrel of a revolver.

"I beg your pardon," said a soft voice, "but could I speak to you for a few moments?"

For the first time in his life Mr. Emley was stunned, helpless, at the mercy of his opponent. The voice was that of Miss Lormer.

"If you will get down from the cart," she said, "I will put this revolver away. I am a very good shot," and she laughed, "but the thing makes me nervous."

"Who would have thought that you were in the profession, too?" Mr. Emley muttered in dazed tones as he mechanically climbed down from the cart.

Miss Lormer laughed again, more heartily than before, and it was then he saw that she was not alone. A man stood at the horse's head. One of his legs was bandaged, and he leaned heavily on a cane. He was a tall, good-looking young man, and returned Mr. Emley's survey with great interest.

Noticing the exchange of glances, Miss Lormer turned to Mr. Emley, slightly embarrassed.

"Allow me to introduce to you Mr.

Smith, my fiancé."

Mr. Emley started and flushed. Quickly recovering himself, however, he bowed to the stranger.

"Thank you," muttered the real Mr. Smith.

"Yes," said Miss Lormer, reflectively, leaning her head on one side and looking down at the revolver which she held in one hand and patted with the other. "You see, I met him in Paris, and we became engaged."

I wanted a home here, where I was born, so he bought the Grange, and I picked out the servants. That is why you weren't known as an imposter at once. Mr. Smith was coming here with me, but had an accident, so I extended my visit to London, where I was waiting for him. When I came here I was rather surprised to see you, you know."

She looked up with a twinkle in her eye—"but you were such a good actor I hated to interfere. Of course I had to tell Frank but he always lets me do as I please, and here we all are."

She smiled triumphantly, as though having successfully gathered together a picnic party and Mr. Smith stood leaning against the horse, evidently much amused with the situation. It was hard to realize that the gentlemanly Mr. Emley was a common burglar, as, indeed, he was not.

"And now that we are here, what are we going to do?" asked Mr. Emley.

His voice had a strange, unnatural sound that made Miss Lormer wince. Perhaps her conscience was not entirely untroubled as to her treatment of him.

She held out her hand.

"I think," she said gently, "you had better go."

Mr. Emley bowed low over the little hand. He lifted his hat to Mr. Smith, and turning, walked away from them into the darkness. When he was far enough away to render conversation inaudible, Miss Lormer called to him:

"Wait a minute!"

He stood in the darkness waiting, and she fearlessly went up to him.

"I don't like to think of you going away without anything," she said; "here, take this."

She pulled a tea rose from her hair, thrust it into his hand, and ran back to her lover.

"Dick," said Mr. Emley to himself, "you have been awakened."—By R. L. Sanderson.

TO KEEP OUT PLATT

New York, Jan. 13.—At the meeting of the Postal Progress League in Cooper Union to-night Chairman Post of Battle Creek, Mich., said he had prepared papers and would ask the Supreme Court of the United States for a restraining order to prevent Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York from occupying his seat in the United States Senate on the grounds that he does not fulfill his duties according to his oath of office; that he subverts the interests of the people whom he has sworn to represent to the interests of a corporation he really represents.

Post made his announcement in a speech entitled "Our Errand Boy." After having referred to the postal deficit and the fact that the people of the country pay annually to the railroads $40,000,000, Post said:

"Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York is president of the United States Express Company. Word has passed around to other Senators that no definite action should be taken on the post check money bill. Senator Platt was approached by my representatives to know his attitude on the question, and he clearly defined the fact that he was opposed to the measure because it was contrary to the interests of the express companies. In other words, after having taken the oath of office to represent to the best of his ability the people of New York, he ignores their interests or the interests of the public where those interests conflict with his own company's and would directly affect his own earnings. In still further words, he is drawing two salaries, one from the express company and the other from the people."

"We met with strong opposition from a New York statesman in a position to lay some heavy blocks in front of the wheels of progress, Ellis H. Roberts, Treasurer of the United States."

"I have papers already prepared and will ask the Supreme Court at Washington for a restraining order to prevent Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York from occupying his seat in the United States Senate on the grounds that he does not fulfill his duties according to his oath of office; that he subverts the interests of the people whom he has sworn to represent to the interests of a corporation which he really represents. It is possible that the Supreme Court may not grant this restraining order. We shall make an urgent effort for it, however."

After the meeting closed in answer to questions, Post said that his lawyers, D. E. Dawson and Nathan Wilson, would present the matter against Senator Platt to the United States Supreme Court next week, but would not specify the day.

With the Sporting Men

STANFORD'S BASEBALL TEAM.

Stanford University, Jan. 14.—Baseball practice will begin on the Stanford diamond next Monday and from that time until the final inter-collegiate games with the University of California daily contests will take place under the eyes of Coach Cowden. First work will be done with the freshmen, as the baby intercollegiate game comes first. The interclass games will be played early so as to leave plenty of time for the development of splendid team work on the varsity.

Stanford will not have a veteran nine to start with. Of last year's team four men are back in college and of these three were new players last season. Sales will pitch and with good coaching should prove strong. Captain Trowbridge is back at shortstop, Colbert at first and Chalmers in left field. To fill the vacant positions are Scott, catcher; Dally, catcher; Dudley, infielder; Funke, infielder—all members of last year's second team, and a score of freshmen players.

Coach Cowden believes that frequent games will develop a baseball team, so the varsity will play every Saturday during the season. Barring practice will be run through daily James Lanagan, the football coach, who pitched for Stanford during two seasons, will probably coach the pitchers.

WANTS TO FIGHT BRITT.

New York, Jan. 13.—Jabez White will leave England at once to fight Jimmy Britt late in March or early in April before the Yosemite Athletic Club of San Francisco. Charley Mitchell, in behalf of White, today cabled the club to send him $500 for expenses. While White is persistently "knocked" by men who never saw him fight, Referee Charles White, who saw the English lightweight battle with Spike Sullivan in London during coronation week, in June, 1932, thinks the Englishman has an excellent chance with any man in the present lightweight division.

"Jabez White trimmed Spike Sullivan easily," said Charley White, "in a fifteen-round go and Sullivan was as good at that time as he ever was in his life. Everybody knows that Spike, when he was right, was a tough proposition, and he certainly was right for that fight. He had been training with Tom Sharkey and was fit. Several well-known Americans were so con-dent he would win that they bet big money on him.

"White fights more on the American style than any fighter I saw in England. White understands the game thoroughly."

Andy Mulligan of Washington Athletic Club of Hot Springs has offered Britt and White a purse of $10,000 or a percentage of gate receipts to fight before his club.

"I do not think White will leave England before the latter part of March," said Manager Jim Coffroth of the Yosemite Club last night. "I have been in communication with him for several weeks past in regard to terms and minor details and he seems willing to make the long trip, but I cannot be led to believe he will start for more than two months."

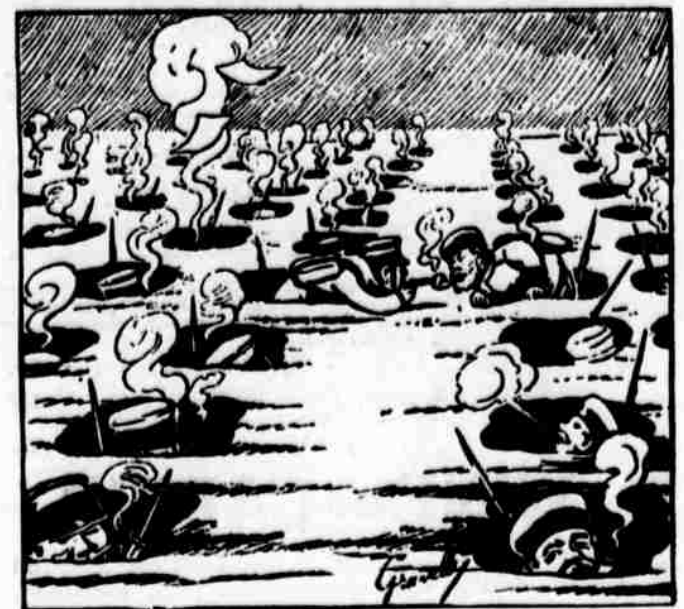

"Tom O'Rourke is looking after White's business in New York, while Charley Mitchell represents him in the Old World. I think the match is a certainty if nothing goes wrong in the meantime. White is willing to accept the terms I offered him and I expect to close the deal of matching him with Britt in the course of a few weeks."

OIL SPOILS DUCK SHOOTING.

San Rafael, Jan. 15.—The hunters who for years past have made Richardson's Bay their retreat during the duck season have practically abandoned that place and will search for new quarters. The cause of their sudden departure is attributed to the oily condition of the water in the upper bay, which has saturated the ducks, preventing them from flying. The birds, mostly canvasbacks, have found a retreat on the marshes, but are practically helpless. The late southwest winds have caused the oil which is discharged in the bay near Point Richmond to float into Richardson's Bay instead of finding an outlet to the ocean.

The shores of the bay were lined with men and boys today and they had no difficulty in bagging the helpless birds. Many Sausalito hunters, who shoot for sport, have decided to look for new quarters at once. They say the ducks have not a chance and as they are real sportsmen they prefer to look for a pond where the ducks will get an even break. The birds not covered with oil have gone in search of new homes and they will probably not return to Richardson's Bay for many moons. The oil-covered birds, helpless to search for food, will perish in a few days.

BOY BILLIARD CHAMPION.

Kansas City, Jan. 16.—Willie Hoppe, the boy billiardist, scored the highest average of his career in defeating Jacob Schaeffer, the world's billiard champion, in the first block of 400 points in their match at eighteen-inch balk line billiards tonight, winning by 400 to 127. Hoppe's high run being 169.

SWAYNE IMPEACHMENT.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Further consideration was given in the House of Representatives to-day to the impeachment charges against Judge Charles Swayne of the Northern District of Florida. There was a noticeable lack of interest in the case except among a few members.

Littlefield of Maine, referring to the incompleteness of the report of the testimony of Judge Swayne, said he had had a conversation over night with Palmer of Pennsylvania and Gillett of California, his colleagues on the Judiciary Committee, both of whom had informed him that the testimony relating to the Haskins bankruptcy case had been so inadequately reported that they had directed that that portion of the evidence be not printed, preferring to allow Judge Swayne an opportunity at a later hearing to restate the case.

With great bitterness of feeling Littlefield closed his speech, saying there had been no hunting or hounding of Judge Swayne until O'Neal sought to get his revenge and undertook with his own weapon to paralyze the arm of every court that sat. O'Neal, he said, was dead, but behind him he had left that legacy, and a fair construction of the record showed that O'Neal's friends were, to an extent, carrying it on.

An earnest plea for a separate vote on each of the twelve articles of impeachment was made by Parker of New Jersey, one of the signers of the minority report in the Swayne case. He said that except in the case of Judge Swayne's expense account the alleged impeachable acts complained of were so old and stale that they should not now be revived.

The Swayne charges were then laid aside and the House adjourned.
