SOLID FOR

THE REPUBLICANS

A wireless was received from Kauai last night stating that the whole Republican ticket, with the exception of Willard, candidate for county attorney, had carried. Willard had been defeated by twenty votes but the island of Nihaui, with thirty votes, had not yet been heard from.

The Mikahala was held at Nawiliwili until 8 o'clock last night for the purpose of bringing the news to Honolulu in case the wireless should fail to work. The message of last night is confirmed.

The returns from Nihaui must be brought to Kauai in a whaleboat so it is not likely that the final result so far as the county attorney is concerned will reach Honolulu until this afternoon or evening some time. The Nihaui vote will have no effect on the other Republican candidates, who were overwhelmingly elected.

The ticket elected on Kauai is as follows:

Supervisors—George H. Fairchild, Francis Gay, Geo. W. Mahika, M. A.

COUNTY ACT CASE

READY FOR

TRIAL ON APPEAL

When the Territorial Supreme Court sat this morning, with Justices Frear, Galbraith and Perry on the bench, the calendar was called and the case of Dole et al. vs. Cooper et al., involving the constitutionality of a portion of the County Act, was answered as ready and will probably come up this week.

The matter contested concerns the Territorial Board of Public Institutions and originated in the Governor, Secretary, Treasurer, Auditor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the Attorney General, as the Board of Public Auditor—J. K. Farley, Assessor and Tax Collector—C. A. Rice.

District Attorney—S. K. Kaeo, (Ind.) Treasurer—John A. Palmer.

Sam Dwight Is Elected In Fifth

The official count made in the Secretary's office gives the Republicans a gain of one Supervisor in the Fifth District. Some of the returns came to the Secretary's office over the telephone shows Sam Dwight to be elected over Mahoe (HR) by one vote. It is stated this morning that a protest has been filed against the count in the Seventh Precinct of the Fifth. It is claimed by Home Rulers that Inspector Birbe threw out tickets because of marks placed on them by himself with his thumb dipped in ink.

Following are the totals from the Secretary's office:

SUPERVISORS-AT-LARGE.

M. P. Robinson (R)	2,330	elected
John Lucas (R)	2,234	elected
Frank R. Harvey (D)	2,214	elected
James H. Boyd (HR)	2,195
Abraham Fernandez (HR)	2,157
George F. Renton (R)	2,152

SUPERVISORS FOURTH DISTRICT.

A. Hoeking (R)	1,415	elected
J. A. Gilman (R)	1,356	elected
David Nottley (HR)	871
C. W. Ashford (D)	1,040

SUPERVISORS FIFTH DISTRICT.

Republicans Safe In Control THOUGH Home Rulers Talk Recount

There were many politicians in the city who did not get a wink of sleep last night and hundreds there where who did not leave the downtown streets for home until after 5 o'clock this morning. There was no show of excitement of any kind on the streets and yet there was a show of interest that must have immediately struck any one watching out for indications that the voting at the various precincts in the two districts was very close indeed.

In the afternoon, the Republicans were somewhat blue for the Home Rulers were voting with a regularity and in numbers that would have disconcerted even some of the braver spirits.

The word was passed around from place to place that the Republican ticket would surely be defeated and that the party of good government would be lucky to get in three of their men. This feeling grew until the shades of night began to fall and returns came over the wire from the various precincts, showing that the Republicans had a fine fighting show.

Bad news was first received but this did not last long.

The report came over the wire from Republicans at Waimanalo that Sheriff Brown had been defeated by Wise, although the total vote was of course on the small side of thirty.

The report spread throughout the streets like wildfire and Republicans began to show signs of disappointment. It was not long before the telephone bell in headquarters jingled again and then came the news that four of the precincts of the Fifth District had gone Republican. It was immediately concluded by the Republicans who were listening for the slightest news from the other side of the island, that if the Home Rule district could pile up a majority for the Republican party then there was really nothing to it and the causes for worry had passed out of sight forever.

Then the Fourth District returns began to come in and it was seen that there was not such a great Republican majority as might have been expected. Once more the Republicans who had gathered in headquarters on Fort street, began to worry and walk up and down the stairs. The outlook was certainly discouraging. There was the Eighth Precinct of the Fourth District, which should have piled up all kinds of a majority for the Republican party, running a neck and neck race with the Home Rulers. It was really discouraging.

However, the Second Precinct was in the meantime piling up a grand majority for the Republican party and reports began to come in that the vote would be something like four to one.

This caused a brightening of spirits all along the line and the enthusiasts seated around the long table in Republican headquarters started in to cheer for the success of the Republican party. Previous to this there had been but very little noise indeed. The politicians were too intent on the close figures that were coming in to be able to give any time to such a thing as cheering.

When five precincts of the Fifth District had been heard from, the vote for sheriff was footed up and it was found that Brown was something less than twenty votes ahead of Wise with the Fighting Seventh still to be heard from.

This is the way things went all through the night, up to midnight and past. First it was a situation that seemed to promise unqualified Republican success with every candidate elected and then it seemed as if the Home Rulers would walk off with the election in their pockets. Finally, all the precincts were heard from with the exception of the Seventh of the Fifth and then the footings were taken. It was seen that every Republican was

HOME RULERS ARE WINNERS IN EAST HAWAII

As to East Hawaii, including Hilo, the Home Rulers have carried the day. If the news sent over the wireless last night is to be depended on, Andrews was beaten for the sheriffship by the white votes just as Pratt was beaten in Honolulu by men who were all the while advising the Hawaiians to vote the straight ticket.

The wireless of last night announced the election of the following:

Supervisors—Deaha (R), Lalakoa (H. R.), Lyman (H. R.), Makekani (H. R.), Palau (H. R.). Sheriff—Keolanui (H. R.). County Clerk and Recorder—Norman Lyman (R.). Auditor—N. C. Williford (H. R.). Treasurer—R. A. Lyman (H. R.). Surveyor—Cook (R.).

Today the Bulletin received a wireless to the effect that Wm. E. Edmonds (H. R.) had been elected Assessor and Tax Collector.

This leaves only the district attorney to be heard from. The candidates are as follows: John U. Smith (Kamika Lohi) (H. R.); W. H. Smith, (Kamika Pokole), (R.).

elects if it depended on the precincts so far heard from.

However, there was still another blow to be received. Mention of the Seventh had been kept in abeyance and Republicans were hoping that at least their candidates would hold their own. Suddenly the door of the small room at headquarters burst open and a messenger presented Senator Crabbe with partial returns from the Seventh. They were as bad as could be expected and when the respective figures were added to the totals already received from the remaining precincts, all who had collected to hear the news admitted that it looked very blue for the Republican party.

However, the votes had not all been counted and there was still something good in store for the Republicans for at about 4 o'clock in the morning, all the returns having come in, it was found that nine of the Republican candidates had been elected. Today this has changed for the better and it is announced from the Secretary's office that Mahoe of the Fifth has been beat up by one vote by Dwight.

Quiet prevailed in the neighborhood of the various booths throughout the time that the ballots were being counted. Even out in the Fighting Seventh, whither a large number of people wended their way in the expectation of trouble, kept within the limits prescribed by the law although there was much grumbling over the number of ballots that were being thrown out by those in charge. Not a little feeling was expressed against the methods of one Birbe, whose language was especially prominent.

The throwing out of Home Rule ballots in a number of the precincts, notably the Seventh of the Fifth, alleged irregularities, particularly in the Seventh of the Fifth, and other little things here and there have caused the Home Rulers to consider contesting the election. What form this will take will be settled on at a meeting of the Home Rulers to be held this afternoon. A large number of the Home Rulers are clamoring for a recount.

The Home Rulers held a short meeting at the noon hour today to consider the matter of protesting the election, the results of which were announced last night. Nothing definite was done and another meeting is being held this afternoon to further consider the advisability of protesting. It is stated on the best of authority that, although a protest along the lines already suggested is almost certain, the papers will be filed with the proper authorities today.

The greatest of care is being taken, evidence is being gathered and pos-

BARK PARIS POSTED

Norman Watkins, of the Hawaiian Fertilizer Company, the local agent of the overdue French bark Paris, this morning received a cablegram from San Francisco stating that the Paris had been placed on the overdue list with re-insurance quoted at 10 per cent. The Paris is a French bark. She is today 178 days out with a cargo of coal from Cardiff for this port. As she is one of the new French vessels which were built at the time the ship subsidy went into effect she is expected to be quite a fine vessel. It is thought that the Paris may have met very bad weather off Cape Horn, such as has lately been encountered by several vessels there, and that her master, Capable grounds for a protest are being weighed and considered. The Home Rulers who were seen by a Bulletin reporter stated that they had obtained legal advice and felt sure that there were ample grounds for a contest.

RETURNS ARE MEAGRE FROM TWO OUTSIDE COUNTIES

News from West Hawaii and Maui is decidedly meagre. Neither Republican headquarters nor the Secretary's office has received any word outside of what was learned over the wireless last night. At 11 p. m., the following from West Hawaii was received at Republican headquarters:

"West Hawaii has elected supervisors as follows: McGuire (Rep.), Hind (Rep.), Woods (Rep.), Kellikoa (Rep.). (McGuire and Kellikoa had Home Rule endorsements.)"

The following was received from Maui:

"The Republican ticket is probably elected. There are still four precincts to hear from, two of which are doubtful."

Lahaina—Returns from Walluku and Lahaina give the Home Rule ticket a majority. There are only Lanai and Molokai to hear from.

DETAILS OF DEATH OF HAWAIIAN BOY

The body of the late Melville Monsarrat, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Monsarrat, who was accidentally shot by a schoolmate in attendance with him at Belmont, arrived in the Sierra this morning in charge of C. T. Wilder, who kindly superintended all the arrangements in connection with the transportation of the body to Honolulu. The body has been taken to Holani Pa, 317 Richards street, the home of Mrs. Monsarrat's mother. The funeral will take place from St. Andrew's Cathedral at 3 o'clock tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon, the Rev. Canon Mackintosh officiating.

The following account of the accident is from a San Francisco paper of October 25:

San Mateo, Oct. 24.—While out duck-shooting on the bay marauding this morning Melville Monsarrat, a student of Reid's Belmont School, was accidentally shot by E. E. Richter, another student, and died from the effects of the wound six hours later.

The two young men, accompanied by Ward Wells of Honolulu, also a Belmont student, were just finishing their morning's sport on the bay and were removing the shells from their guns when the accident occurred. Richter, still sat in the boat, from which the others had alighted. The craft imperceptibly swung around and at the moment of discharge his gun was covering Monsarrat. The full load of duckshot penetrated the left thigh of the young man, fracturing the femur and fearfully lacerating the flesh.

The students were remote from any habitation and a high tide was running, so that Richter and Wells had great difficulty in getting their wounded companion inland where assistance could be obtained. After binding up his leg as well as they could they carried him by boat and in their arms until a wagon was secured, in which he was conveyed to Gardner's Sanatorium at Belmont.

Three doctors, Hardner and McClannahan of Belmont and Norris of San Mateo, did all that medical science could do for the patient's relief, but three hours had already elapsed since the accident, which occurred at 9 o'clock. Amputation was necessary and the limb was removed, but the loss of blood, the shock and the unavoidable delay had been so great that it was impossible for him to rally, and he died at 3 o'clock, two hours after the operation.

Young Monsarrat was the only son of Julian Monsarrat, a prominent planter of Honolulu, and a nephew of Samuel Monsarrat, superintendent of a telephone company in San Francisco. He was 17 years old and in the lowest class of the upper school at Belmont, this being his first year there. He was prominent in the local sports and was the fullback on the third football team of the school.

Young Richter is a son of Dr. Erwin Richter of Belmont, and Mr. Reid states that the father and son are utterly crushed over the unfortunate accident. He also stated that the boys were trying to carry out their standing instructions, which are that they shall not enter or leave a boat with shells in their guns while hunting. But for the untimely swinging around of the boat while Richter was relieving his shell no accident would have occurred.

SIERRA HAD VERY UNPLEASANT TRIP

The Oceanic steamship Sierra arrived from San Francisco early this morning. She was docked at the Hackfeld wharf at about 8:15 o'clock. The Sierra experienced very rough weather during the whole trip from San Francisco to this port. A heavy northwesterly swell with rough sea caused the steamer to roll a great deal. Seas were shipped occasionally but no damage was done. The Sierra made the voyage in five days and fourteen hours.

The big liner carries a large list of passengers both for this port and for the Colonies. Among the passengers for Honolulu are Colonel A. McKenzie, Major H. B. Moon and Captain G. W. Reed, who constitute the board of army officers sent to this island to select suitable sites for coast defenses.

Among the other Honolulu passengers are many well known island people such as Chas. H. Atherton, of the firm of Clark & Cooke; Walter G. Dunsen, of Hackfeld & Co.; Mrs. W. M. Giffard, the wife of Mr. Giffard of Irwin & Co.; Allan Herbert, the well known horticulturist; T. K. James, the popular hotel man; G. Kunst, the Hawaii and Samoa capitalist; J. S. McCandless, Dr. J. T. McDonald, the bacteriologist of the Board of Health, who returns from a vacation spent on the mainland; A. T. Miles, of Holmes & Stanley; S. B. Rose, of Wilder Steamship Company; O. G. Traubagen, the architect; H. E. Waity, of Bishop & Co.; John Waterhouse, of Alexander & Baldwin; Alexander Young, the hotel owner, and many others.

The Sierra brought 237 tons of freight for this port. She is scheduled to sail for the Colonies at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

PORTO RICO'S GOOD SUGAR SEASON

New York, Oct. 3.—Interesting stories are told by returning travelers who have seen Porto Rico. Even more entertaining, and certainly more instructive, are the statements made about the island by men who have lived there some years and who know all about its business at present, and who are reasonably well informed regarding its future. While it is admitted that the future is in a degree uncertain, depending much upon the willingness and ability of those who are exploiting the island's resources to work long and hard, those in the best position to know say that the outlook is encouraging and that there isn't much doubt about ultimate prosperity and profit from investments.

Mr. George K. Cummings of the Citrus Fruit Co. of Porto Rico has been here from San Juan, and he talked very instructively with a Commercial representative respecting the present status of different varieties of business enterprises and pointed out some possibilities for the future. Mr. Cummings' company is engaged solely in developing and selling orange plantations. Whatever fruit he sells may be termed an incident of the main business. He sells an orange grove and contracts to cultivate it for three years, thus avoiding the possibility of failure through lack of skilled care. Visitors to the island say that the company's property is the show place of the island and more nearly represents the possibilities of scientific citrus fruit culture than any other plantation in Porto Rico.

IN REGARD TO SUGAR.

Discussing the agricultural situation, Mr. Cummings said:

"The sugar crop of this year is the best Porto Rico ever had. The weather was just right at grinding time and the proper amount of saccharine matter was present in the cane. The weather has much influence on the cane at this season, and unless it is right the sugar crop suffers. The sugar planters are making a great deal of money. In fact, they are probably more prosperous than any other agriculturists in Porto Rico. They have a good crop, quality is unsurpassed and they find a ready market at good prices. This combination of favorable circumstances places them easily in the lead of Porto Rican agriculturists."

"With the coffee planters it is different. When Spain ceded the island to the United States coffee growers lost their Spanish market and have not as yet secured one equally as good in the United States. The American people do not seem to care for Porto Rican coffee, notwithstanding the fact that it is the best coffee in the world. It costs, say, 7½ cents per pound to raise it, while Santos coffee can be produced for 4½ cents. Besides, it is practically impossible to get an American broker to take hold of it. Coffee shipped here most nearly always be transhipped to Europe. The principal market now is in Germany. It seems very strange one knowing the American people and their liking for good coffee that they should allow the best coffee in the world, grown at their doors and on their own territory, to go abroad for a market.

"As may be imagined from the state of affairs in coffee, there is much poverty in the coffee-producing districts. Poverty there is not starvation, because nature is more generous than she is here and fruits, which will sustain life, are produced in abundance. Neither is the question of clothing and fires one which must be solved by the unfortunate planters for their dependents; but for all that, the poverty retards development and is really productive of great want, even if it does not bring the people to the verge of starvation."

COFFEE NEEDS ADVERTISING. Numerous experts have been tried to bring about a better condition in the coffee districts. Conventions of coffee growers have been called, which have discussed the situation and have made plans to advertise their product liberally, but so far nothing has been accomplished. The failure to obtain recognition in this market has been an influential factor in a discouraging situation. Properly advertised, I feel sure Porto Rican coffee would sell much more readily, especially to the fancy trade, than does Santos now. Its high price is against it, but there are plenty of people who would be willing to pay the price provided they knew its qualities and it was obtainable as easily as other coffee.

"The most beautiful cotton imaginable grows in Porto Rico, but cotton is not a sure crop, owing to a destructive animal, half insect and half mole, which burrows to the root and bites off the tender stalk. It doesn't always do this, but its propensity for the tender stalks of plants is such that cotton is an uncertain investment, and will be until some method of combating this destroyer is discovered. If it didn't fly it could be kept in check, but the animals may come by thousands from unexpected quarters and destroy a cotton field in a few hours. The cotton is certainly excellent and were the crop certain would rank with the best in the world."

ARMY OFFICERS TO SELECT POST SITE

Among the passengers who arrived in the Sierra this morning were the Army officers appointed on the board to select a site for a military post near Honolulu. Major William E. Birkheimer, Artillery Corps, inspector of artillery for the Department of California, is the president of the board, whose other members are Colonel McKenzie, Engineer Corps; Major H. B. Moon, Tenth Infantry, and Captain G. W. Reed, Ninth Cavalry, reporter. The board will select a site for a permanent large post in Pearl harbor, and Camp McKinley, which is a cantonment of two Coast Artillery companies, and is on hired ground, that will be abandoned as early a date as possible. The new post will be a mixed garrison, at first probably comprising Coast Artillery and Infantry troops. Owing to the importance of the islands it will doubtless be a heavily garrisoned station. The board is under further orders to make a reconnaissance of the whole islands with a view to selecting sites for other posts, and the officers detailed for this important work will be here at least six weeks.

SUGAR SHIPMENT.

The San Francisco Chronicle of October 29 has the following to say on the shipment of sugar:

Huge cargoes of sugar are to be carried from Honolulu to New York by steamers and ships controlled by Welch & Co., representing the opposition to the planters connected with the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company. The steamers Comenough and Pennsylvania and the American ship Henry Villard have all been chartered by Welch & Co. for this purpose.

KILLED IN FOOTBALL.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21.—During the progress of the football game here this afternoon between the midshipmen and the Baltimore Medical College, Robert E. Lewin, a player on the latter team, whose home was in Plainfield, N. H., was seized with heart failure and died almost at once. The accident took place toward the close of the first half, but the contest was terminated by order of the superintendent as soon as the seriousness of the affair became known. The youth received no injury of any kind that could be disclosed by the most careful examination. He did not fall during a rush nor lie on the ground after a tackle was made, as is the contrary, had after a play lined up with the others from the scrimmage. Suddenly young Lewin asked the referee to call time and dropped to the ground.

The game was spirited, but devoid of unnecessary roughness.

THE BURNING QUESTION

Ask your neighbor how much it costs to burn incandescent electric lights. She will tell you "not any more than kerosene."

Now how about the convenience?

Do you think there is any comparison?

Most people think electric lights come high, but that is a mistake—ask your neighbor—if she uses electricity she will tell you.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 4, 1903.

We must act upon the motto of all for each and each for all.
There must be ever present in our minds the fundamental truth that in a republic such as ours the only safety is to stand neither for nor against any man because he is rich or because he is poor, because he is engaged in one occupation or another, because he works with his brains or because he works with his hands. We must treat each man on his worth and merits as a man. We must see that each is given a square deal, because he is entitled to no more and should receive no less.
Finally, we must keep ever in mind that a republic such as ours can exist only in virtue of the orderly liberty which comes through the equal domination of the law over all men alike, and through its administration in such resolute and fearless fashion as shall teach all that no man is above it and no man below it.—President Roosevelt.

THE ELECTION RESULT.

Election returns received up to the hour of going to press indicate that the Republican party will control three of the five counties in the Territory, with the Home Rulers having given the Republicans in this county the closest contest of any election yet held.

Kauai could hardly be considered fighting ground, since the only real contest was for District Attorney, in which the regular Republican candidate was defeated by an independent Republican. It was largely a personal issue with contending business interests leading the fight.

West Hawaii County also lacked the clear-cut contest characteristics. Two Republican Supervisors were endorsed by Home Rulers.

East Hawaii was swept by the Home Rulers. Every indication points to the East Hawaii result being a protest against Sheriff Andrews, who was placed at the head of the Republican ticket by a convention made historical in consequence of the bitterness aroused. With Andrews at the head, East Hawaii Republicans had little or no hope of winning, though they gave him the earnest support which party unity demanded.

Maul gone to the Home Rule-Democratic combination, with Lanai and Molokai to hear from, leaves little prospect of Republican success unless Speaker Beckley worked to the same ends in his home district that he did in Oahu.

Oahu County has had the fight of its career and the Republicans have the so-called "independent" vote in their own ranks to thank for it. The outspoken opposition to candidates on the Republican ticket had its certain disastrous effects on party unity the day of election. Curtis Iaukea and Chris. Willis were unquestionably elected by Republican voters, and John Wise's remarkable run against Sheriff Brown could only be accomplished through the assistance of Republican votes.

If the Oahu election teaches anything, it is that citizen-movement propositions and the doctrine of lukewarmness for the straight ticket are nothing more or less than means of making defeat a probability. Such tactics furnish an example of a political cut-throat game that can only end in disaster where the margin for the party to come and go on is but a few hundred votes.

As a natural result of the narrow margin by which Oahu Republicans have won, demands for recount are rife and charges made of deliberate count-out by corrupt election officials. These may be accepted as a matter of course and, as contests arise, can be dealt with on their merits. This situation is largely in the hands of Secretary Carter, and it is safe to say he will not change his determination to assure the people so far as his authority goes of a free ballot and an honest count.

Daniel.

I am going to write an essay on Daniel who was a good man and I hope he will not wake up as it is on him. Daniel started in life as a taxcollector (that is a man that takes care of skins) and made a hit. As he was of a very desirous exposition he decided to fumigate the forests in search of the game that wore the same skins that he was intoxicating. So he set out alone and together with his bow and arrow. Coming to an deep ravine he looked over it at once and beheld several lions looking at him out of their eyes. But he counted without his cost. The wind blew him overboard and he was caged up with the lions. But Daniel was a good man being both an Home Ruler and a Republican. So he said: "I will not fear," which he didn't. "I will tie this bandana around my left ear and they will know me from which," which he did. And the whole news came out in the BULLETIN which is the only paper that gets NEWS and doesn't use scissors exclusively.

SHORT STORY FOR EVENING HOURS

A REUNION IDYLL

Ellis Candler, Commander of the G. A. R. post in his town, was a very busy man. The surviving veterans of his regiment were to have their annual reunion on the 23d and arrangements were all completed for days of camp life. He was getting anxious, however, about the tents which were to be loaned his association by the State Military Department. It was now the 21st, the date set for their arrival, and not even the State armorer, who was to superintend the pitching of the tents, had put in an appearance. Capt. Candler telegraphed the Quartermaster General and received a dispatch to the effect that the tents had been sent by freight several days before. He then sought the freight agent, who owned to a bill of lading, but who insisted the goods had been sidetracked somewhere en route. The afternoon train brought the armorer, who could throw no light on the subject; neither did he care to. He had been detailed to come to Ashley Hill and erect tents. He had carried out his orders and was ready to pitch the tents when they should arrive. It was not his duty to trace them and he should consider it unbecomingly to do so. He got impatiently in the office of the little hotel relating to the struggling crowd of loungers Munchausen tales of how to put down the rebellion.

Frankie with apprehension. Capt. Ellis Candler took his woes home to pour into feminine ears. They were always at least sympathetic.

"Why don't you telephone the Quartermaster General, papa?" inquired his daughter Eloise, a pretty, fair-haired girl of 19.

"That's a good idea, Eloise," he said. "I'll go down to the office now and jerk them up down there."

In the course of two hours he returned flushed and weary, but jubilant. "I called up the Capitol," he said, "and I got the Assistant Quartermaster General. He said the tents were here and to go and investigate the freight office. I did and that gawky of a Luke Hawks finally said: 'Well, there is some tents and stuff come, but I don't jibe with the bill.' He wouldn't let me have the tents. It was an awful small piece of red tape for him to take advantage of, but he hasn't got over my beating him at last election. I knew he wouldn't give in, so I called up the Capitol again and the Assistant Quartermaster General was as mad as a hatter. He just talked straight from the shoulder about that Luke Hawks and finally he said he'd catch the next train and come down here and get those tents for me if he had to punch Luke Hawks's head."

"I told him he was a fighter after my own heart, and I got him to promise he'd stay over for the reunion. He'll stay with us, of course, till we go into camp, so, ma, you want to prepare for him."

"What's his name?" asked Mrs. Candler.

"I couldn't catch it over the phone. He's Colonel, though. I didn't get his regiment, either."

"What time will he get here?"

"About 6 o'clock. I am going down now to get the boys out and escort him up with the hand. It's due a State officer and a Colonel," and the strenuous Captain of the old Fourth rushed off to collect his forces.

Mrs. Candler went to assist her "help" in the preparation of supper. First, however, she bade Eloise go and don one of her pretty white gowns.

"Oh, mother, what's the use?" Eloise had protested. "He's some old soldier with a host of war stories who won't know a calico from a dimity."

"Never mind! He's company and it'll please your pa; besides, here's the summer nearly over and you haven't had the worth of your best dresses."

Eloise sighed as she listlessly attired herself in a dainty summer frock. Two years at boarding school and a two months' visit the pre-eding winter at a school friend's who resided in Buffalo had entirely convinced her that the society of Ashley Hill was not to be desired. She recalled the dances, theatres and freddie confidences she had enjoyed last winter with Leonard Haverly, while visiting her friend. He had been entirely devoted to her until she was called suddenly home by the illness of her mother.

She remembered the look in his handsome eyes as he bade her farewell at the train and the tenderness in his voice when he eagerly asked permission to write to her and begged her to let him know of her safe arrival and her mother's condition. For the first two weeks after her return, her mother's illness had absorbed all her thoughts, although she had penned him the little note as she had promised. After the convalescence she had eagerly gone to the postoffice day after day, but the letter in the long-for handwriting never came. Her sentiment for the handsome young fellow had been something between interest and love—just intense enough to arouse her pique and pride at his fickleness and at the same time preventing her from bestowing her affections elsewhere.

Despite her lack of interest in her personal appearance tonight, she had never looked prettier than when she came down to the dining room to see that the table was properly set. In the meantime, the G. A. R. post and a band were assembled at the depot awaiting the coming of the train and their distinguished guest. The train brought not one passenger for Ashley Hill, a headless boy with square shoulders and military bearing, who looked with much astonishment at the multitude.

"I didn't suppose Ashley Hill boasted of so large a population," he thought.

Just then he was accosted by Captain Candler. "Say, young man, do you happen to know if the Assistant Quartermaster-General was on your train?"

"Well, I guess I do," was the reply, accompanied by a hearty laugh. "I am the Assistant Quartermaster-General. Are you the commander of the post who talked over the phone with me?"

"That's me. You must excuse me. You gave your title as Colonel and I got you set down in my mind as a Civil War veteran. You see we old soldiers are quite apt to forget the young blood."

The Assistant Quartermaster-General gave another of his inspiring laughs. "I am Colonel by virtue of my office as Assistant Quartermaster-General, and I am Assistant Quartermaster-General by virtue of being a national guard officer and a hustling politician."

"Well, it's a good one on me," laughed the commander, and he introduced the Assistant Quartermaster-General as such to the post, who bade him a hearty welcome and to his great amusement escorted him to the hotel to the music of the Star Spangled Banner.

They gave him the best the hotel afforded and he then proceeded to call the freight agent to time, secure the tents and order the delinquent armorer and a squad of workmen to be up and doing at sunrise. It was evident that the young Colonel was forceful. When Capt. Candler was escorting him to his home he suddenly exclaimed:

"I don't know your name yet. I didn't catch it over the phone."

"Haverly, Leonard Haverly. I don't know yours either."

"My name is Candler."

The young man started. "I wonder if I haven't met your daughter, Miss Eloise Candler?"

"Yes; she's my daughter. And you know her?"

"I met her at Buffalo last winter at the home of Miss Woodson."

"Well, don't that beat all! And Eloise is expecting me to bring home an old soldier!"

"I have been up at our camp ground for a month," said the young Colonel presently, "and I knew nothing of your business transaction until you phoned today. I had a clerk look it up and he simply gave me the place the tents had been killed to and the number of your post. I didn't notice your name."

They had now reached the Candler residence, and the Captain ushered his guest into the dining room.

"Oh, here you are, Eloise! Here's some one you know. I'll go and tell ma to dish up the supper."

As the Captain left the room Eloise turned and beheld the ideal of her girl-fancy. The color quickly rose in her fair face, but she gravely and courteously bade him welcome and then turned again to the flowers she was arranging in the center of the table.

"Papa expected an old soldier," she said with a slight smile.

"And are you sorry, Eloise, that I came instead?"

"No," she said, but in a very formal manner. "I am very glad to again meet a friend of Mabel's. I have very pleasant recollections of my visit in Buffalo."

He looked at her intently. He was a wonderful man for action and directness. "Eloise," he demanded suddenly, "why didn't you answer my letter?"

"I have never received a letter from you," she replied with some indignation in her accents.

"I wrote you the day I received your note and directed it as you said. Box No. 17."

She looked at him with incredulous eyes. "I never received it," she said indifferently.

At this moment her parents entered followed by the servant, who bore a tray.

"Why, Ellis? Why didn't you take him in the parlor?" said Mrs. Candler in an aside of consternation to her husband. Mr. Candler laughed and presented the young Colonel. They then sat down to supper. Eloise took but little part in the conversation, which was confined principally to the absorbing topic of tents and the reunion.

When they arose from the table, Capt. Candler announced that they must all go down to the post rooms and meet the "boys." Col. Haverly resolutely took his position at Eloise's side and the Captain and his good wife left discreetly back a few paces.

"Eloise," said Haverly in low, reproachful tones, "you don't believe me, do you?"

"Yes," she said slowly. "I believe you, but I wish I had received the letter."

"Do you, really?" he asked eagerly. "Did you want to hear from me? I felt awfully chagrined at not receiving a reply. I wouldn't write again, because I put it in a return envelope, and as it never came back to me, I was confident you had received it."

They had now reached the business portion of the little village. In front of the drug store stood a stout, ruddy-cheeked man who stopped the young couple. Eloise greeted and introduced him as Dr. Wardell. "I was just coming to call upon you, Eloise. I have got a confession to make. My wife got out my overcoat today to see if the moths were not inhabiting it, and in a pocket she found this letter addressed to you. I remember now when your mother was sick last winter, your father telephoned to me one day to stop at the post office and get his mail on my way to the house. I got several letters from your box and this must have slipped down in the lining." He handed her the long-delayed letter.

"I am so glad," murmured Haverly, looking tenderly into the soft eyes of the smiling girl, when they had walked on a few steps, "that you said you believed me before it was proven to you."

And the next letter she received from Leonard Haverly came duly to hand—and heart—Belle Maniates, in New England Homestead.

MORMON CONTROLS SENATOR.

Salt Lake, Utah, Oct. 26.—The power of Joseph P. Smith, president of the Mormon church, was strikingly illustrated today, when Senator Reed Smoot withdrew his application for franchises for the system of electric railways which is to connect the towns in Central Utah and for which franchises have been granted by other cities in the State.

The application as made by Smoot's company had been favorably considered by the Salt Lake City Council and the Council was ready to grant it when Smoot's company sent in a letter withdrawing its application. Investigation as to causes behind the withdrawal brought out an unusual condition of affairs. Smith personally headed a protest in which strong objection was made to the new company being granted the franchise. When Apostle Smoot heard of President Smith's action he hastily retired from the field.

THE NOVEMBER SMART SET.

The November number of The Smart Set opens with a novelette by Cyrus Townsend Brady, entitled "The Corner in Coffee," in which this distinguished author appears at his very best, both as to form and substance. The story has an absorbing plot, at once ingenious and distinctive, while the characters are drawn with vitalizing clearness. This is a narrative of love and business mingled, wherein Wall street appears as the battlefield of Cupid. Dr. Brady's admirable literary style adds to the reader's delight in this capital novelette.

Among the short stories in the number, Elizabeth Dyer's "A Visit in Black and White" is a strikingly clever presentation of an extraordinary situation. Janet Loring writes "Vladimir's Villa," a most amusing extravaganza. In contrast to these are an exquisite bit, entitled "The Marquis in His Garden," by Gardner C. Teal, and "The Luck of the Dolans," by Louise Herrick Wall—a sensational narrative with the atmosphere of the Pacific Coast. Other notable stories are "False Prophets," by Owen Oliver; "A Life Sentence," by Charles Belmont Davis; "The Bishop's Cross," by Richard Le Gallienne; "Pyrrhia's Husband's Affair," by Cecil Charles; "A Bachelor Dinner," by Edward Boltwood, and "Ad Astra per Aspera," by Leta Field Hubbell.

An article that will interest every reader is from the pen of Julian Hawthorne, entitled "Can Ladies Smoke Tobacco?"

When two men fall out they stop speaking to each other, but when two women fall out they keep on talking forever.

FORM OF THE BOND

Following is the form of Hawaii's new Public Improvement bond:

Following is the form of bond: UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

(Territorial Seal.) TERRITORY OF HAWAII.
 Public Improvement Bond, Series 1903-04.

The Territory of Hawaii hereby acknowledges itself indebted for value received and promises to pay to the bearer the sum of in gold coin of the United States of America or its equivalent at the present standard of weight and fineness, on the first day of October, 1918, with interest thereon at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum payable semi-annually on the first day of April and the first day of October, on the presentation and surrender of the interest coupons hereto attached as they severally become due. The principal and interest of this bond are exempt from any and all taxes whatsoever and the payment thereof constitutes a charge upon the consolidated revenues of the Territory of Hawaii. Both principal and interest of this bond are payable at the office of the Treasurer of the Territory in Honolulu, Hawaii, or, at the option of the holder hereof, at Wells, Fargo & Company's Bank in the City of New York. The Territory of Hawaii reserves the right to redeem this bond at the end of five years from the date hereof, or at any time thereafter, on the payment of the principal and accrued interest.

This bond is one of a series of one thousand bonds of like date, tenor and amount, issued pursuant to an Act of the Congress of the United States of America, entitled "An Act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii," approved April 30, 1900, and pursuant to an Act of the Legislature of the Territory of Hawaii, entitled "An Act making special appropriations for the use of the Government of the Territory of Hawaii during the two years which will end with the 30th day of June, A. It is hereby certified that all the conditions, acts and things essential to the validity of this bond exist, have happened and have been done and that every requirement of law affecting the issue thereof has been duly complied with, and that this bond is within every debt and other limit prescribed by the laws of the United States and of the Territory of Hawaii, and that the faith and credit of the Territory of Hawaii are hereby irrevocably pledged to the punctual payment of the principal and interest of this bond according to its terms.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the Territory of Hawaii has caused the official seal of its Treasurer to be affixed hereto and this bond to be signed by its Treasurer and by its Registrar of Public Accounts and the coupons hereon to be annexed to be signed with the engraved or lithographed signature of its Treasurer this first day of October, 1903.

Christian Science Scored By Dowie

New York, Oct. 27.—At the early morning service at Madison-square Garden today Dowie gave a brief address on "Covetousness," and also spoke about the work done by his followers here, saying that a great many converts had been adopted and 240,000 homes visited. He announced that a public baptism would take place in the garden this week, but that he had not decided when it should occur.

About 1000 persons attended the regular morning meeting, when Dowie talked on Christian Science and especially on Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy and her book. He declared that Christian Science was neither Christianity nor science. Mrs. Eddy's book, he declared, was "inconsistent with the first elements of good sense. The only possible charm in the book seems to be that it is impossible to understand. There is one grain of truth in Christian Science—it teaches that disease does not come from God."

"As to the arguments of the Scientists that there is no such thing as feeling, tasting or smelling except in imagination of persons, it is all bosh."

Dowie concluded by saying that Christian Science undermines all common honesty and veracity in the human mind.

The evening meeting was largely attended and perfect order was maintained. Dowie talked on theocracy which he predicted would in ten years sweep the country, meaning that the rule of God would then be supreme. In conclusion, he invited those in need of comfort to remain and talk with the elders. Some hundreds stayed.

WALL STREET AFFAIRS

HENRY CLEWS' REVIEW OF FINANCIAL SITUATION

THINKS THE BOTTOM HAS BEEN REACHED—INDUSTRIAL FUTURE UNCERTAIN—THE STRINGENCY.

New York, October 17, 1903.

Conflicting conditions still confuse the stock market outlook. It is quite plain, however, that the time has arrived for clear cut discriminations, and that experienced judgment is necessary in deciding where liquidation has gone as far as justified and where it has not. It is equally evident, also, that the market has not permanently turned and is not yet on the way to real recovery; and yet there is no escaping another conclusion, that many good stocks are selling much below intrinsic value, having changed hands at sacrifice prices in order to meet pressing obligations or to protect securities of doubtful value. This unusual movement has disturbed the market's equilibrium, so that there is to-day a wide disparity in values which cannot be adjusted until both the good and the bad have reached a level more in keeping with new conditions.

Beyond question, the better class of railroad securities are selling at very attractive prices to investors. Our railroads are in both excellent physical and financial condition, honestly managed, not over-capitalized, and generally speaking are up-to-date in all respects. In event of business reaction their dividend paying capacity is not likely to suffer, for the reason that there is such a large margin between earnings and necessary operating expenses that any loss in earnings could be readily compensated for by diminished outlays for improvements, to say nothing of the economies made possible by recent betterments. It is safe to say that American railroads were never such sound and profitable investments as they are to-day, and this fact is sure to result in their gradual absorption into strong boxes at a time when good securities are becoming decidedly scarce. In this section of the stock market, therefore, there is substantial reason for a revival of confidence, even should additional unexpected shocks induce still lower prices. When recovery does set in from present exaggerated depression the better class of railroad stocks will assuredly lead the advance.

As for the industrial section of the market, its future, it must be admitted, is uncertain. Liquidation in that quarter has been simply tremendous, and it would seem as if these securities had fully paid the penalty of excessive inflation. It must be remembered, however, the industrialists have not yet withstood the crucial test of a business reaction; their decline thus far, steel excepted, being due to failure of promoters and underwriters to float their new creations. The general conservatism now prevailing in business circles, while an assuring symptom, is strongly suggestive of reactionary tendencies. If merchants buy less, as they are doing, when the harvest is good and farmers prosperous, it means less to do in factory; and if railroads begin to economize and stop unusual outlays, that means less demand for steel and many other products. Business men recognize that prices of materials and labor are too high, that construction work of all kinds is too expensive and uses up capital too rapidly. Much work is consequently deferred, and the decline in steel is the first step in an inevitable readjustment to a lower level. Labor, too, must take its share. Wages and exactions of the unions have risen to practically prohibitive points under an overaggressive and overreaching leadership. The coming winter is likely to see many idle workmen, and the labor movement, a movement having great possibilities for good, has been weakened by its own follies, which will be likely to cause a setback in its aggressiveness for some time to come. The present reaction is just as much the result of excesses of labor as the excesses of Wall Street, with this difference; that the penalty for the latter has almost been paid while the penalty for the former is still to fall upon those at fault.

September returns of exports plainly show the effects of backward harvest, the total for the month being $11,000,000 less than last year. Our imports, however, fell off nearly $5,000,000, so that the month's excess of exports was $28,000,000, against $37,000,000 a year ago. Figures for nine months show a much more rapid growth in imports than in exports, but this tendency will be quickly arrested should we meet any decided trade reaction. More concern has been displayed over the friction between Japan and Russia than deserved at present, though war in that direction is among the strong possibilities in the distant future. Unnecessary concern is also shown over the approaching Presidential election. Experience shows that the latter event always has less influence than feared, and in the interim we are likely to have little new legislation—"Stand pat" being the political watchword.

Should liquidation break out afresh still further declines may be anticipated, though if it proves to have run its course prices may slowly harden. The worst of the decline seems over, and the best securities will eventually yield a good profit at these prices. The industrialists are fortunately but little held on margin, so that the speculative situation is not seriously threatened in that quarter; but losses have been heavy among those able to take the

PLATT'S WIFE ACTRESS.

Fort Kent, Maine, Oct. 18.—Mrs. T. C. Platt was once an actress. She played minor roles in E. E. Rice's "Evangeline" for several weeks fifteen years ago, when she was Mrs. Lillian Snow. She left the stage to marry Dr. Janeway, to whom she was introduced one evening after the theatre. In the office of Manager Rice there is now a picture of her as she appeared with the Evangeline Company.

Mrs. Platt, when she was sixteen—Carrie Thompson she was then—was known to all Aroostook county for her personal charms, and her wedding to Senator Platt has revived many memories of her. Few babies have opened their eyes into such a cheerful world as did Carrie Thompson at Portage Lake, Maine, in 1860. Her mother was very poor, and the baby was adopted by Mrs. Daniel Larlee of Perth. The father had died not long before.

At sixteen she married Howard Snow of Woonsocket, N. H., and a baby daughter was born. Snow was a drummer. His bride had left him some time before his death and lived at her home here for about a year.

From here Mrs. Snow went to Boston, where she engaged successfully as a music teacher. Not long afterwards she went to New York and joined the Evangeline Company.

After her wedding to Dr. Janeway she revisited her old home here and received a glad welcome.

Notice to Candidates for County Offices.

The attention of candidates for County Offices is drawn to the following sections of the Rules and Regulations for Administering Oaths and Holding Elections, as amended by an Act to Provide a Government for the Territory of Hawaii:

Section 31. Within twenty days following any election, each candidate, and each agent or committee acting for or on behalf of any candidate, shall file with the Secretary of the Territory an itemized statement of his or their expenses by, for, or on behalf of such candidate or election, showing each amount expended, the purpose or object for which each expenditure was made, and the person or persons to whom made; which statement shall be sworn to by each person making such expenditure, and shall be open to public inspection.

Statement When No Expenses Are Incurred.

Section 32. If a candidate or any agent or committee acting on his behalf has or have incurred no expenses on account of such election, he and they shall file within twenty days after the election with the Secretary of the Territory, a sworn statement setting forth such fact.

Expenses Legally Incurred.

Section 33. The following expenses, and no other, may be legally incurred by or for a candidate for election as Senator or Representative, viz:

1. His personal expenses as a candidate.
2. Expenses of printing and advertising.
3. Cost of stationery and postage.
4. Expenses of public meetings.
5. Rent and supplies of committee rooms not to exceed one for each polling place.
6. Salaries of not more than one clerk and two messengers for each polling place.
7. Salaries of not more than one watcher on election day only, at each polling place.

KAUAI PLAYERS HERE.

The polo players of Kauai, who are soon to indulge in a series of contests with the Honolulu team, arrived in the Mikahala this morning. Among these are C. A. Rice, A. H. Rice and J. Mallina. The ponies of the Kauai men have already arrived in the city. Both men and horses are in good trim and will give the Honolulu players all they want to do.

VANILLA CUTTINGS.

There arrived by the Sonoma from the South Seas yesterday a large number of vanilla bean cuttings for Jared G. Smith, director of the Experiment Station. They were enclosed in a very neatly made basket made out of cocoon leaves. The cuttings are in the very best of condition. They were still on the wharf this morning.
