President of the Provisional Government of the Hawaiian Islands.

Minister of the Interior. Mr. Emmeluth said that some time ago the Education Committee made a report, with a number of recommend-ations which have never been acted upon. One of them was the following, and he asked that action be taken upon it: We recommend that all the revenues of the Board be paid into the general treasury as Government realizations, and that in future the appropriations for the Board be made sufficient to cover all of the estimated expenses; that the elerical force be limited to the secretary of the Board or clerk of the President as he is defined by statute, and one assistant, who shall act as messenger and book clerk; that after disposing of the books, material, etc., now on hand, the Board try to make some equitable arrangement with local desiers for the sale of school-books and supplies.

the Attorney General sant the latter should be referred to the Board of Education. Mr. Emmeluth said that he knew

Mr. Emmeluth, on the item, salary of the President, $24,000, spoke of the hard times prevailing. He said that hard times prevailing. He said that the Government should exercise as much economy in salaries as in public works. He would like to have this first item discussed, and would move that it be reduced to $20,000, or $10,000

Minister Smith said this salary had already been fixed by law.

Mr. Brown said the original recommendation of the Judiciary Commit-tee was $10,000, and that it had been raised by the Councils.

Minister Dumon sald the salaries of the President and the Judiciary had been fixed by law and the Councils should stand by them.

Minister Smith quoted the minutes of the meeting when the bill fixing the salary was passed, and showed that Mr. Emm-luth had supported the increase to $12,000 a year.

Mr. Emmeluth said he was not ashamed to have changed his mind

Mr. Wilder thought that if the salary could not be changed simply by changing the item, that it should pass

Mr. Morgan moved to make it $8400. Minister Smith opposed the reduc-tion without regard to the present personnel of the Cabinet. Responsible men for such positions should receive pay adequate to their services. and it was due to the country and to the Administration that the Ministers should be properly paid. any necessity for a secretary. Mr. Allen would agree with Mr. Emmeloth if extraordinary conditions did not exist. In a state of settled relations between the two countries Hawall might do with less representation. Minister Smith said he had been told by Mr. Armstrong that the Minister from Hawali was the poorest paid foreign representative there. The little country of Venezuela paid its Minister $20,000 a year. While the situation at Washington caused them great anxiety, he could not understand a proposition to do away with this office. Mr. Tenney asked if the Ministers considered that the office of Secretary of Legation was positively necessary. Mr. Morgan believed in doing away with the band after the Constitutional Convention, providing we had some system of municipal Government. At present, for reasons of economy, he would vote aye.

At a meeting of the Fifth Ward surgeon is about it. Club on Wednesday evening, a resolution was passed the tenor of which was that those in office in Hawaii nei, who have refused or neglected to take the outh and register should step down and out.

There are a good many officebolders in the Fifth Ward, many of whom are natives and all of whom receive small salaries. They have all registered, and for so deing, they receive daily beratings from their daily press and are held up to the ridicule of their fellows. They do not care for that, as they have accepted office and are willing to take the conseopences of a loval adherence to the Government. It renders it all the more difficult for them when men in high position receiving a much higher salary are not compelled to register or take the cath. They think all should comply with the requirements of registration and Nations, and a few other things ever since the days of John Locke. especially those in office.

POOR BOONOMY.

Just after the Civil War in the United States, the negroes got control of the Legislature of South Carolina. One day a member proposed that the Executive mansion be furnished with a desk, costing $15, for the use of the Governor's secretary. A monkey-faced negro member from the swamps arose solemuly and objected. "Mr. Speekah! I'se o'jects to dis obstravagance. De hole faui'tsh ob my house doant cost ober five dollahs. I o'jects !"

The objections of Messrs. Emmeluth and Ena in the Advisory Council, to the item for pay of the Secretary of Legation, in Washington, shows that there are economists here as well as in South

Our Legation in Washington is on a miserable, insufficient and disgraceful footing, so far as its financial maintenance is concerned. Even the little republics of South America, with no interests at Washington, expend twice and thrice as much as we do for their Legations at Washington. The expenses there are governed by custom, and are beyond individual control. A respectable private family in that city, keeping in touch with public life, is forced to spend $10,000 judgment, has been argued and a year or more.

The late Minister to Washington, Mr. Carter, in order to maintain the dignity of the office, expended annually three times the amount of the salary, and in such a manner damage case of Kasukai Kelley to reflect great credit on our people. The matter of annexation is of vital importance to us. We shall make no headway by adopting cheap methods of furthering our interests.

It is well understood in Washington that the salary of a member of the House of Representatives, which is $5000, forbids him to enter social life if he relies upon that only. If he does enter it, his expenditure doubles at once. And yet we expect our Legation to make a decent showing on an insufficient allowance.

Both Mr. Ena and Mr. Emmeluth could have ascertained the value of the services of the Secretary of the Legation if they had chosen to inquire about it.

Perhaps they would prefer to put our Legation under one of the planters' contracts and hire men at $13 a month to do the work.

ABOUT PORTUGUESE.

The Movement to Get Them Goes Actively Forward.

The members of the Executive Council held a conference Tursday with representatives of the Pasnters' Labor & Supply Company relating to the importation of Portuguese laborers from the Azores. Besides the members of the Government, Messrs. W. G. Irwin, H. F. Glade, C. Bolte, F. M. Swanzy and G. H. Robertson were present. The Government has for some time been collecting informations on this subject from various sources, and this was laid before the meeting.

The indications seem to be that the present is a favorable time to secure immigrants from this quarter. For a variety of causes the effort to obtain Portuguese from the Pacific coast has not been very successful. If immigrants are obtained from the Azores, they will come under the auspices of the Board of Immigration, at the expense of the planters. The proposition is that the Planters' Labor lanterns, whose bright colors added & Supply Company send a Commissioner to the Azores, who shall be duly accredited from the Hawaiian Government.

The planters seem to be very favorably disposed toward the proposition to get more Portuguese, if, as seems not unlikely, they can be secured.

PERSONNEL OF THE NAVY.

Admiral Walker and Others Before the Joint Committee.

Admiral John G. Walker, Lieutenants Colwell and Statnon, and Ensign Key appeared r-cently before the joint congressional commission now investigating the personnel of the payy. Admiral Walker made an explanation of his bill, under which A band stand had been built, he showed that, should it be enacted into law, and go into operation in 1894, the navy list in December, 1890, would be as follows: Twenty rear admirals, sixty captains, eighty com manders, three hundred and twenty five lieutenants, seventy five lieutenauts of the junior grade, and thirty five ensigns. The changes that would be effected are as follows:

All captains would be promoted by 1900 to rear admirals retired; all commanders, lieutecant commanders, and about thirty five lieutenants would have been promoted to cap taincies or retired; lieutenants from about No. 35 to 195 would have been promoted to the grade of command er or retired; the lieutenants, junior grade, all the ensigns, and about sixty of the two classes of naval cadets now at sea on their two years' cruise would have been promoted to the grade of lieutenant.

Lieutenant Colwell argued in favor of having officers placed on shore duty instead of being retired, this being a good means for preventing stagnation, and increasing the opportunities for promotion.

Ensign Key favored the proposed bill of Secretary Herbert, with some modifications, his idea being that the methods of promotion should be a little more radical.-Washington Star.

CORRESPONDENCE.

An Article on Government as a Moneyed Corporation.

Ms. Epiron:-The recent disturbance in South Carolina furnishes the world with another illustration of the fallacy and absurdity of government control over industries properly belouging to the governed. There the State government, by very questionable methods of political jobbery, succeeded in wresting the liquor industry from its citizens, and had started upon the novel scheme of monopolizing the traffic in spirits, the profits of the business being turned into the State treasury. Of course in this case we discover room for argument on both sides of the question; but the determined opposition the law has met with must impress every right minded person with the fast that it is both unjust and dangerous for a government to attempt to monopolize any industry upon which the governed are dependent for livelihood. We are very apt to be misled by unauthorized acts of government, and to suppose them proper and authorired; and when we accept unauthorized acts as a basis of proceeding, we are most certain to drift into errror. Governments are established solely for the protection of the people. Their departments are organized and managed for the protection of life, property and liberty. The fundamental ment makes the government a protector and not a guardian. It is not for government to assume the functions of the individual and enter pursuits other than those necessary for this protection. What the people can do for themselves it is not necessary for the government to do for them; for it would be useless to form a government to do what could be done be-fore it was formed. Because, perchance, a government can prosecute certain work better than an individual is no reason it should do so; by so doing it becomes a kind of despotic dictator. If a government affords full and complete protection to life and property, and leaves the peo-ple to develop the country and manage their own affairs, it fulfills its office to perfection. A strong government is a necessity; but complex departments -cessitating an army of officers, and built upon the erroneous idea that a government is a mammoth organization for business, debases politics, substitutes a greed for office in place of a desire for the welfare of the nation; and this leads to corruption and rottenness, of which we have had, and still have, glaring examples. A con dition of this kind must certainly work mischief. I could never approve of a government taking charge of the nor business, nor, in fact, of anything the people are capable of man-aging. If this be right, why may the government not run everything? Why not take charge of the railways, all mercantile, mechanical and agricultural pursuits? The tailoring establishments, the bakery and the brew-ery? From the proceeds, why not build fine hotels where the citizens of the particular Utopia may life and sleep and lounge at ease? Absurd! Why absurd? Simply because these things are beyond the province of government.

The opening up of new sections of ountry should be left to the people, that they may act as necessity requires. In the United States, the ing for and inducing Europe to unload its filthy and lawless population upon the States, leads to the development of socialism—and other "isms" thrice damning. If socialism is a danger, the United States Government must bear the blame in not leaving the law of increase and progress to work out its own natural result. The desire for increase of population and the set-tling up of the country to a degree beyond that afforded by inter-Mrs. Gans Will Give a Series of immigration, has made it necessary to call upon government to do that which was not contemplated by organic law, and which cannot be considered a duty of government. America has invited trouble by indisthese unfit to govern a blind goose, much less to have a voice in the gov ernment of a great untion. By this process the government has been weakened government may grow beyond its strength. Material may be gained which adds to the growth but injures the stability. When govwheels will run smoother than when tions of a corporation, engages in all sorts of business, and comes into com-petition with private enterprise. The question is not what government can so, but what it may do, consistent with the purposes for which it was established.

A BRUTAL POLICEMAN. Officer Logan Breaks a Prisoner's

Leg and Arm. Officer Logan, a native policeman, is liable to get himself into trouble if he continues acting the way he did last evening. He clubbed a man whom he was arresting so hard that he broke his prisoner's leg and arm. The unfortunate man was taken to Queen's Hospital, where he had his frac- for it she ought to have it. tured members set by Dr. Wood.

The arrested man was named Kamoa. He had been taken into custody on an alleged charge of wife-beating, and was arrested on the proprietor of the triple alliance Queen street near Punchbowl, by Officer Logan. The man, if the stories of several eye-witnesses can be believed, was going peaceably along with another native officer, and Logan, who was on horseback, was following the pair accompanied by the usual crowd that attends forcing process by government aid any arrest. Logan began flicking and credit, which throws open vast areas that cannot be occupied by calling for and indicates. Figure 4 by calling for and indicates the prisoner, telling him to "hurry up." This, Kamoa stood for a time, but at last his patience were out and he snatched the whip out of Logan's hands. When the officer found his whip was gone he drew his club. and, jumping from his horse, started to club the prisoner. He struck him a severe blow on the arm, which snapped like a pipe-stem. Kamoa then caught hold of Logan's coat with his other hand and slipped and fell to the ground. Logan then struck him again, this time on the leg, which also broke. Kamoa was then carried to the police station. He told the officers in charge that his leg and arm were broken. He asked to be allowed to go to his bome, and was laughed at by the officers. It was proved to their satisfaction at last that the man was not trying to play on their sympathies, and they very kindly allowed him to be taken to the Queen's Hospital.

Logan's story differs, naturally, from the above, which, however, is vouched for by several parties. The polceman said, when asked about the matter, that he did not know whether he had broken the man's limbs or not, and he was vehement in his statement that it was not his fault if he had done 80.

"Kamoa dared me to come down from my horse and fight him" said Logan, "and when I refused to do so he grabbed the reins of my horse, and also my whip. When he did this, I struck him on the arm with my club. He alipped and fell, and I think he broke his leg then. After he fell, I got off my horse, and struck him again with my club. I struck him on the leg, but I do not think I broke it then."

This is the third case of police brutality that the authorities will have to investigate. The case of employers to discharge all Loys and Kamos seems entirely unjustifiable, girls under the age of twelve years. as the evidence of several people. DRESSMAKERS' SCHOOLS AND "MIL-LINERY INSTITUTES" FOR GIRLS.

WOMAN AND A TRADE.

Isabella Proctor Gives Her Experience-A Crying Need of the Day-Handlerafts For Poor Girls-Time and Money Thrown

Trade schools for women are one of the crying needs of the day-places where poor girls may learn some handicraft by means of which they may carn a living. So evident is this necessity that not only have a number of practical schools of various trades been started, but a large crop of so called "institutes" has sprung up like a lot of mushrooms and with no firmer basis. This is the more unfortunate in that to the average young woman who wishes to learn a trade the money for tuition comes with difficulty, and if the expenditure goes for nothing it is a serious matter to her. She naturally expects that if she works diligently the course of lessons will give her a degree of knowledge and practice that will at least fit her to occupy a place among the lowest wage earners of her trade. But it is too often the case that she ends by knowing very little more than she did when she began.

The writer has had experience of two such establishments in New York city. The first was that of a dressmaker. She was a handsome old lady, to whom her pupils were of much less importance than her customers. She cut to measure and taught a "system" which she professed to have invented herself. The system was a good one, but as its invention must have involved a considerable aptitude for mathematics, and the old lady was very ignorant, there is room for doubt as to its authorship. At any rate, she understood it theroughly, and when she had time she imparted its general principles to some of her pupils. She was so eager to work for customers that she usually kept the girls busy as mere seamstresses. In other words, instead of paying her saws ing women she was paid by them. The whole establishment was a scene of chaos, with no method except that by which the garments were cut. No material was ever in the same place twice. Flatirons, the great aid to neat dressmaking, were seldom hot when needed, and if hot they were dirty. There was a dearth of pins and a paucity of instruction, and to a young woman lacking the deftness of home experience, as so many poor and ill educated girls do, the outlook must have been discouraging. There was this much in favor of the place-that there was something tangible to learn if one could only get hold of it. A girl with no previous practice, however, wants something besides general principles-she wants thorough personal instruction, and if she pays

The second establishment was a "millinery institute," one of the many which have been extensively advertised lately. A shop was in connection with the school, and orders were also taken, and spent so much time in the shop and with the order customers that she had almost no leisure to give to her pupils. They were penned up in a small, skylighted back room without ventilation, half of them with nothing to do, while the milliner sat in the store down stairs. Girls eager to learn would remain two and three hours at a time utterly idle because no orders nor shop hats, the only work with which the school was supplied, were given them to make—or mar. Most of the pupils were poor, and many of them came from out of the city, and their tuition money and car fare were utterly wasted day after day. Occasionally the milliner would tell a girl to take a piece of muslin and practice making a bow, but as she did not tell the girl how to go to work the latter might as well have tried to learn by herself at home for nothing. Each pupil was supposed to bring her own scissors and thimble, but unless she also brought milliner's needles, pinchers, thread and pins she scon found berself at a standstill in what little work she was given to do.

The writer was early taught to make and sew on velvet folds-it took perhaps an hour to learn-and being rapid at it always had it to do when she had any work at all. That was almost the only thing she learned during the four or six weeks spent in that crowded and stuffy room where the girls ate their lunch eon on the worktable heaped with ribbons, velvets and flowers in destructive confusion, and where all the phases of demestic life went on beyond a partition 6 feet high. There were not books enough for the girls' own hats and coats nor sound chairs enough for all to sit upon. All knife platting had to be done by hand because the plaiter was lost or broken long ago, and there was seldom an iron and never a board to press it when it was done. In fact, the mistress of the "institute" fulfilled hardly any portion of her contract except the receiving of the money. She guarantees to find positions for pupils "when competent," but how long would it take a girl to become competent under such lack of instruction?

It is the same with many persistently advertised typewriting and stenography schools. They are mere traps to secure the money of unsuspecting and too often needy persons. When that is obtained, the pupils are welcome to teach each other what they can with the aid of a few dogs' eared books.

Everybody, rich or poor, should learn a trade, but nobody should pay to enter a trade school without first ascertaining all the particulars regarding its im-truetion rooms and management and if there is any prospect of receiving an adequate amount of teaching for the tu-INABELLA PROCTOR.

Greenlee v. Davis, 19 Ind. 60. 2 Washburn Resl Prop. pp. 414 and 415 (Ed. of 1862) Counsel for contestant urges that it is absurd to call a son the "ancestor" of his father, but the Circuit Judge rightly held that according to the meaning of our statute he must be so considered. We, as above indicated, sus-tain this view. The statute allows the kindred of to the decedent are excluded. The parties in this case are the appellees. the full sisters of the decedent Ehn. and the app-llants, who are the children of Ehu's balf brother.

The son of Eun being the ancestor from whom the estate came to him. to exclude the appellants they must be not "of the blood" of the son of Ehu. They are of his blood, for their father Kasikapu had the blood of Eau, they two having the same mother, and, consequently, Kasikapu was "of the blood" of Eau's son. Kaaikapu being in the same degree with Ebu's full sisters (the appellees) his (Kasikapu's) children take their father's share by right of representation.

The statute does not say that to inherit the person must be of the "fall blood" of the sncestor. The word "full" is not in this part of the statute and this meaning would be inconsistent with the first part of the statute which allows the half blood to inherit equally with the full blood. There is abundant authority for this position. Washburn in his work on Real Property, 2 Wash. R. P. p. 412, says that "when reference is made in the language of a statute regulating descent to such as are "of the blood" of the person from whom the estate came a father is accounted to be of the blood of his daughter." Suffrage.

MR. EDITOR:-In the article, "Shall the Women Vote?" written by Hon. W. N. Armstrong, one finds the apotheosis of the heartlessness with which Mrs. Willis, wife of the American the male human species have ever considered the female, where the question was one of justice and equal rights.

Who but a man could ever have thought out this postulate of wis com: Would it not be an act of wise statesmanship, for the coming Constitu-ti nal Convention to establish female suffrage with a high property quali-fication ottached to it!"

The italies are not intended by Mr. Armstrong, but in them lies the key to the situation.

Does any one imagine for one mo-Does any one imagine for one moment that a Hetty Green, with all her high property qualifications, would make a more intelligent citizen than a Mary Wollstonecraft, a Mary Godwin, or a George Eliot? Or does one not rather see that the noblest, the purest, the sanest and the most able women would be exampled by such a standard of selection? cluded by such a standard of selection? Nowhere is man's self-centred egotism so apparent as in his treatment of his wife and mother; and he will willingly confess himself an ass to convince her that he is made of different if not quite superior clay.

Now, why should women not have extended to her the right of suffrage upon the same plane of equality as man? From times of savagery down to our present, all men, except the most enlightened, have been possessed by a vague dread of some mysterious evil which was to attend the extension of equal rights to their mothers, sisters and wives. Is it not about time that we got rid of this bogy, root and branch? We have gone so far as to believe that an enlightened bad man often makes a better citizen than a narrow-minded well meaning one. Does it, therefore, require any extended study of political philosophy to explain the natural effects on civil government of the co-operation of an intellectual woman with her clean notions of good morals? Man has never considered any law as applicable to woman except the law of his own inclinations, and by assuming to himself the right of undisputed authority over them he has stood in his own light and so held the best half of our intellectuality in abstraces until now; and now he abeyance until now; and now he would attack some condition as silly as his former objections. He is so in the confines of their territory, but shrewdness in trade is not the surest sign of mental worth or civil desirabe sought other than that of high property qualifications. A Chinaman would fill that condition, yet he is not wanted for the reason that his civilization is not ours. All minds are wanted as citizens who are able to educate, to refine, to enlighten and to improve. The pure minded woman

WHARF AND WAVE.

DIAMOND HEAD, April 26, 10 P. M.-Weather cloudy ; wind, fresh east.

The erratic piledriver sprung a leak about 3 o'clock yesterday morning and when her hold was until the gin frame rested on the wharf. The frame had to be cut away before the scow could be righted. Foreman Ouderkirk says that a new and much larger scow would be built immediately. It will be 18 feet wide and 38 feet long. In the mean time a temporary land driver will be built. Work on the new wharf is progressing. The new twin-screw torpedo boat Speedy, of the British navy, which has had two or three trials recently, has water tube boilers of the Thornycroft pattern. Thus far the results are highly satisfactory. The engines developed a horsepower of from 4,500 to 4,700 and the vessel showed a speed of twenty knots in rough weather and shallow water with easy firing. It now remains to be seen whether the boilers possess durability.

John Haug, a marine architect, has designed a triple-expansion engine for J. Ward, of Charleston, W. Va., the inventor of the tubular boilers now in use on the United States coast defense ship Monterey. The cylinders are placed on either side and in the centre of the vessel, and not back of each other, as

A triumph in engineering is rereported from the mountains of Peru, where a twin-screw steamer of 540 tons, 170 feet long, and 30 feet wide, has been successfully launched on Lake Titacaca, the highest navigable waters in the world-more than 13,000 feet above the sea.

Experiments at San Francisco and elsewhere on the Pacific Coast have demonstrated that Japanese coal is at least two-candle power richer in gas than Australian coal. The Japanese are jubilant, and four more ships are now under charter to carry coal from Japan to San Francisco.-Ex.

Capt. Braddock Chester, the oldest whaling captain in New England, died April 6th at his home in Groton, Conn., aged 84. He had commanded vessels from New York, New London and Mystic. He began his voyages at the age of 15, and when 19 commanded a whaler.

The bark Albert received sugar from the steamer J. A. Cummins yesterday. From present indications it is doubtful if Captain Griffith will get away tomorrow. If not he will set sail on Monday.

Italian ships are worked cheaper than those of any other nation. The monetary expense of an Italian ship with a crew of twenty men is about $475: of an American ship $1000.

The steamer Iwalani and the schooner Mary E. Foster discharged their cargoes of sugar into the Australia yesterday. Bos'n Ben, "the Australia's pet," who is under arrest for smuggling, was not examined yesterday in Court. The case went over until today.

On last Tuesday morning the foretopmast of the steamer Pele was carried away while she was on her way to this port. She put back to Makaweli for temporary repairs.

The next news from San Francisco will reach here by a sailing vessel. The Planter, Irmgard and C. D. Bryant are all supposed to be on their way now.

The future movements of the steamer Likelike are uncertain. It will not be decided for a day or two whether or not she will be laid up in rotten row.

The steamer Warrimoo will be due from Sydney on next Tuesday. She will be followed two days later by the Alameda. The French cruiser Duchaffault is taking on coal. She will leave for the Marquesas within a few days. The steamer W. G. Hall will morning at 10 o'clock. The bark Amelia will leave for Port Townsend today in ballast.

In Twenty-Four Days.

The time required for a traveler to circle the earth has been greatly reduced since the imaginary trip of Jules Verne's "Phileas Fogg," who succeeded in getting around the globe in eighty days, in spite of storms, shipwrecks, Indians, and detectives, The question how long it would take now to go around the earth has recently been discussed in the Antwerp Geographical Society.

The answer given by M. E. de Keyser was sixty-seven days, including the loss of a day at New Yerk, the journey being made eastward by way of Yokohama and San Francisco. But in the near future this time is likely to be cut down to forty five days, and perhaps less, through the completion of the railroad across Siberia, which, at the present rate of progress may be open from Europe to the Pacific in ten years.

With the average railway speed for long distances doubled, it is predicted that in the coming century a traveler may be able to go filled with water, she turned over around our planet in twenty-four days.

The erratic piledriver sprung a leak about 3 o'clock yesterday morning and when her hold was filled with water, she turned over until the gin frame rested on the wharf. A triumph in engineering is rereported from the mountains of Peru, where a twin-screw steamer of 540 tons, 170 feet long, and 30 feet wide, has been successfully launched on Lake Titacaca, the highest navigable waters in the world-more than 13,000 feet above

 In Twenty-Four Days.

The time required for a traveler to circle the earth has been greatly reduced since the imaginary trip of Jules Verne's "Phileas Fogg," who succeeded in getting around the globe in eighty days, in spite of storms, shipwrecks, Indians, and detectives, The question how long it would take now to go around the earth has recently been discussed in the Antwerp Geographical Society. The answer given by M. E. de Keyser was sixty-seven days, including the loss of a day at New Yerk, the journey being made eastward by way of Yokohama and San Francisco. But in the near future this time is likely to be cut down to forty-five days, and perhaps less, through the completion of the railroad across Siberia, which, at the present rate of progress may be open from Europe to the Pacific in ten years.

With the average railway speed for long distances doubled, it is predicted that in the coming century a traveler may be able to go around our planet in twenty-four days.

The new twin-screw torpedo boat Speedy, of the British navy, which has had two or three trials recently, has water tube boilers of the Thornycroft pattern. Thus far the results are highly satisfactory. The engines developed a horsepower of from 4,500 to 4,700 and the vessel showed a speed of twenty knots in rough weather and shallow water with easy firing. It now remains to be seen whether the boilers possess durability.

John Haug, a marine architect, has designed a triple-expansion engine for I Ward of Charleston.
