THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The speech, or perhaps more properly, the message of President Dole, read at the opening of the Constitutional Convention calls for a word of favorable comment. It is the first document of its kind ever issued in Hawaii and differs from the former speech from the throne upon the same lines that a republic differs from a monarchy, a democratic from a centralized government, the rule of the people from that of the individual. It marks the foundation of popular government upon the ruins of a system that had long outlived its vigor when the crash came which resulted in the establishment of the present regime.

Viewed as a whole the message of President Dole may be considered one of the ablest documents that has fallen from the new order of affairs. Its tone is unquestion-ably statesmanlike, concise and dispassionate. The broader and wiser view of the political situation is held throughout, which counsels concession in unessential matters but insists that no concession of principle shall be made.

As the President points out, the duty which devolves upon the Convention is very great and will call forth the highest wisdom and best patriotism of that body during the formulation and discussion of the future fundamental law. It is true error or omissions can be afterwards cured by amendments, but this method is tedious, expensive and sometimes dangerous to the stability of the state and should be avoided by forethought if possible.

From what has been hinted in the message, as to the form and substance of the new draft of a constitution to be submitted to the Convention for their aid and guidance, it is anticipated the framework of the document will be drawn upon the same liberal and progressive model outlined by President Dole. This document has been laid before the Convention this afternoon and will be read with deep interest by all.

DEPARTURE OF MR. SMITH.

Mr. Walter G. Smith, late editor of the STAR, left by the Mariposa yesterday for his home in Sherburne, New York. He will journey thither by way of the Panama route and expects to sail from San Francisco for the isthmus on June 8th. After arrival in New York he will publish several articles on isthmian affairs including the great canal project.

Mr. Smith arrived in Honolulu a little over one year ago and at the establishment of the STAR was placed in editorial charge thereof.
During his sojourn in Hawaii he has been a prominent advocate of annexation and has greatly furthered the cause by clear and incisive writing, of which he is a master.
The consequence has been he has made many fast friends among Americans and annexationists and

At all times Mr. Smith has with-ten and spoken for the common people and has been a worthy leader of the white man's cause from the political bondage of semi-savagery.
The popular estimation in which he is held by his countrymen was fully voiced in the words of fire-well addressed him yesterday by the members of the American League, and it is within the bounds of justice and truth to add that the American Union Party and the Provisional Government as fully appreciated his valuable services for the advancement of Hawaii, and with the STAR utter Aloha nui across the water to Mr.
Walter G. Smith.

It is quite true the public has all the time between steamers to pre-cure money-orders at the Post Office, as various applicants have been informed when applying for foreign orders on steamer day.
But this is not the point. The average man who uses the money order department does not possess a bank account from which he can draw at pleasure and, in fact, as any business man knows, money for remittances come to hand nine times out of ten at the last moment, or nearly so, before the steamer sails. In any event, there seems to be no good reason for the rule which insists that money orders shall be applied for a day before the sailing of the steamers. This may be the result of an old custom or there may be good and sufficient reasons therefor. If the former is the case the matter should be reformed at once; if the latter, the reasons should be clearly and fully stated so that the public can hereafter prepare for a hardship in the public service that must be endured if it cannot be cured.

Cured of Scrofula

The People will have Hood's

Mr. Dorman's Experience
"My boy, now 9 years old, had scrofula in one eye from the time he was a baby; discharge all the time. Of late we have been giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it has done all that medicine can do. The scrofula has disappeared, and his eye is healed up and well."

Hood's Cures

fully believe Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine in the market. I keep a general store, and it is not a trick to sell Hood's Sarsaparilla for the people will have it. I sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than all other medicines together and the store would not be complete without it. My wife has also been entirely cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I am heartily thankful for what it has done for us."

June 1, 1894.

The laborers in the constitution vineyard will be plucking fruit for weeks to come. This opinion is based upon the fact that it took a dozen or so men to prepare the draft as well as upon the fact that the members of the Convention really have no precedent to follow. The conditions here are different from any other government in history. Practically it is a minority of foreigners framing a document which shall govern a majority of natives of the soil. In the preparation of the constitution the representatives of the majority labored under the conditions of the country made acceptable to nearly all the States. Some points were objectionable to the convention almost from the beginning with a very radical ideas of a few of the delegates, but those same delegates were willing to compromise for the sake of harmony.

There are some provisions in the brief to be submitted to the delegates which may be objected to but as the members represent one party in politics, and as it does not seem probable that the constitution, when completed, will be presented to the voters for confirmation or rejection it is hardly possible that the provisions will meet with serious opposition. Some of the members who are familiar with the political workings in the United States may object to the clause providing for the election of the President by the members of Congress and Senators instead of by popular vote. Why it should not be decided in the latter way will no doubt be explained by the projectors of the brief. Perhaps the greatest point for deliberation will be the matter of franchise. The document provides, and wisely perhaps, that suffrage shall be accorded only to those who become citizens after a certain term of residence in the Islands, but there is a little proviso tacked on regarding discrimination. No other government, at its formation, had the same elements to deal with and to conciliate, as has this one of Hawaii. It is not merely the fact that one political faction favors one form of government and another party something else—but it is the hundred other and more important details for the proper and peaceful governing of the people that must be considered. If mistakes are made in the convention time will show where and what they are and they may be amended with greater facility than in the United States where it requires, not only a majority of votes in Congress, but in each state legislature, and just here it may be noted that the Constitution of the United States was framed in such a way that during a century but fifteen amendments have been found necessary, a fact made more noticeable by the existence of but seven articles in the original document.

While the convention is in session there is no reason why the planter contingent should not keep an eye on the Jones Locked Fence. The labor question will have its place in the constitution and the economic method of fence building should have its place with the people who are interested in the production of sugar or in raising cattle. To make a fence that will last longer than any other, will cost you less than to build the ancient style where posts are used every six or eight feet. Our spring wire stays and washers take the place of posts and cost you eight cents instead of seventeen. You can build a mile of this fencing for fifty or seventy-five dollars less than you can any other and it will last five times as long.
