WHO WILL BE THE CHAMPIONS?

Only Three More Games of Baseball
During Present Season.

ALL THE CLUBS CAN TIE.

Silver Trophy Presented by A. G. Spaulding as a Perpetual Championship Prize—Winning Clubs of Former Years—Visit of All—Americas.

The baseball season of 1895 is fast
drawing to a close—three more games remaining to be played. The Stars and Kams meet today, and if the former is successful, that club will in all probability win the championship, although there is a possibility that all the clubs may tie at the conclusion of the series. This can be accomplished if the Kamehamehas win today's con-grand Hawaiian feast tendered the visitors. During Mr. Spaulding's visit he took great interest in ball playing here, and with a highly commendable spirit offered to advance it by presenting the magnificent silver trophy which adorns this page. It was afterwards voted by the Honolulu league, and agreed to by Mr. Spaulding, that the prize should become perpetual. An extract from the minutes of a meeting of the Honolulu

Baseball Association, held September 9, 1889, says: "At a meeting of the league and at which the following clubs were represented, viz., Honolulus, Star, Kailani, Hawaii and Kamehameha, it was voted unanimously that the cup presented by A.
G. Spaulding be held as a perpetual championship prize. On November 26, 1890, Geo. W. Smith, agent of A. G.
Spaulding, notified the league that the cup had arrived, and on the 29th of the same month was formally presented by him, response being made by Rev. W. B. Olson. Mr. Smith was requested to write Mr. Spaulding asking that the league be allowed to hold the cup as a perpetual prize, according to the vote at the meeting on September 9, 1889. Later, the league was informed that the resolution met with Mr. Spaulding's hearty approval." The championship of 1889 was won by the Stars, W. C. Wilder, Jr., captain, together with the gold baseball presented by C. A. Brown. The gold

Silver trophy presented to the Hawaiian Baseball Association as a perpetual prize by A. G. Spaulding. Won by Stars in 1889; Kamehamehas, 1890; Honolulu, 1891; Kamehamehas, 1892, 1893; no award for 1894. Now on exhibition at Pacific Hardware company.

test and defeat the Unknowns next Saturday, and the Unknowns defeat
the Stars on the 31st, the final game of the season. Today's game should be very interesting, as both clubs will undoubtedly play to win. The Stars have much the advantage, as Captain Mahuka and Crowell, two of the Kams best players are absent. Beside,
Captain Ganzel and his players have one game to the good, and will endeavor to add another in order to carry off the pennant.

Baseball has had a decided boom
this year, and beyond a doubt more interest has been manifested in the outcome than in many years. Taken as a whole, the games played during ball is a highly prized memento and is now in the possession of Captain Wilder. In 1890 the Kamehamehas were successful, followed by the Honolulu in 1891. The Kamehamehas won the championship series of 1892 and 1893. On account of an unfortunate circumstance, which resulted in the wounding of one of the ball players by an outsider as a result of a wager on one of the games, followed by a contest resulting unsatisfactorily to the Kamehamehas, no award was made for the year 1894, although that club was far in the lead.

Winners of the championship series have been recorded on the back of the cup in order. The trophy has been in the possession of the Baseball Association since presented and is now on view at the Pacific Hardware Company. Officers of the Association and patrons of baseball met to work in the early part of the present year and revised the game, much to the delight of the general public. Old scores were smoothed over and a league of four clubs organized. Later developments showed that more satisfactory results
would follow a league of three clubs, and such was fully organized and equipped—being composed of Stars, made up principally of last year's Crescents, with several new players,
chief among them being John Ganzel, an ardent enthusiast of the game, who was made captain of the club: Unknowns, with James Thompson as captain, of last year's Hawaii, and an independent club composed of former students of Kamehameha school,
under the name of Kamehameha Alumni Association, most of them being players with that club last season.
The series opened on May 4th with a schedule of eighteen games.

From the beginning good exhibitions of ball playing were given. The Kams easily took the lead in the first part of the series, but was soon reached by the Unknowns, which club gained steadily and held first place until last Saturday, when defeated by the Stars.

Following is the standing of the clubs to date:

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.
Clubs.	Games Played.	Games Won.	Games Lost.	Per- cent'ge.
Stars...	10	6	4	.600
Jinks's	10	5	5	.500

to get rid of Chinese labor. The presence of a large number of Chinese in the islands was considered a dangerous menace to their well being, and as long ago as the early seventies an earnest effort was made to secure Japanese laborers. For some time the Japanese government refused to listen to any such propositions, but finally an arrangement was made by which Japanese laborers could go to Hawaii. This arrangement was, however, as totally different from anything like coolie emigration as it was possible for any system to be. In the first place, the whole arrangement was made the subject of a formal treaty. The interests and welfare of the emigrants were guarded in every particular. They were provided with interpreters, doctors and special inspectors, and were granted what was little short of a species of extra territoriality in their new home. It was possible for them at any time to return to their native land, and they were not bound by any sufficient cause from their voluntarily assumed obligations, and in no case was hardship or oppression possible. Under the plan of supervision and control, ably devised and carried out with the utmost care, the experiment has had a wonderful success, and has resulted in mutual profit and satisfaction to the Hawaiian planter and the Japanese laborer.

Would Not Go to America.

It seems unnecessary to point out that this state of things is essentially unique, and that it could not occur except under the peculiar conditions which prevail in the Hawaiian Islands. The Japanese who go to Hawaii are picked men, and a certain proportion of their wives and families accompany them. The men, as a rule, are small farmers or farm laborers, who desire to earn enough to pay their debts, to buy more land, or in other ways to improve their condition at home. When the time of their service is ended they either return to Japan or re-engage for a further term with the planters. They have not set out on a roving mission, but, as a general rule, upon a specific purpose. There is only the slightest likelihood, at least in the great majority of cases, of their going to the United States and there becoming a menace to domestic labor. The Hawaiian planters would in any case be able to offer them inducements as tempting as any to be found in the United States. Labor is an article of prime importance in the Hawaiian Islands, especially so under the peculiar conditions which at present prevail there, and it is only reasonable to suppose that the planter will use every effort to prevent the diversion of skilled labor. It is equally fair to surmise that the efforts will be seconded by the officials of his own government, as well as by the Japanese official whose duty it is to promote the welfare of their countrymen in Hawaii. There can be no such thing as coercion in either case, for the laborers are free agents in all essentials; but, on the other hand, all the facts combine to prove that the islands can never become a half-way depot, as it were, for the shipment of contract labor to the United States.

If, therefore, any contractor, so called, in Hawaii has offered to provide such labor he is evidently trading upon the credulity of those with whom he deals, or—and this seems much more probable—some over-zealous official has discovered a veritable mare's nest.

Like Any Other Foreign Nation.

So far as regards the emigration of any portion of her laboring population to the United States, Japan stands precisely upon the same footing as any other foreign nation. This country has its laws regarding the importation of contract and other labor, the force and validity of which every other state is necessarily bound to recognize. In accordance with these laws the subjects and citizens of numerous foreign countries—Italians, Russians, Japanese and others—have been turned away from the shores of the United States. This is right and proper, for it is entirely within the province of every independent state to control its domestic affairs in its own way. But it is neither just nor polite to make any discrimination in the application of such restrictions, or to be spurred into an exhibition of superfluous zeal through the apprehension of a purely imaginary danger. Happily, the circumstances of the present case do not warrant the belief that there will be such a result as this, or that there will be need of recourse to any other or more stringent measures than are provided by the terms of existing laws.

So far as Japan is concerned, the government has conclusively shown that it has no desire to countenance the infraction of the laws of other nations in this regard by making regulations which provide, among other things, that no Japanese shall emigrate to a country where his coming would be in violation of law. This stipulation of itself might well be regarded as a satisfactory quietus to those visionary fears to which the problem of the dangers of Japanese immigration have given rise.—D. W. STEVENS in Washington Star.

The Time.

The weekly paper, out today, will contain, besides the usual editorial notes and comments, a poem on ex-Marshall Hitchcock's farewell to the Guards. The cartoons illustrate live topics; one of them dwells upon Bickal's farewell to Hawaii. Next week's issue of The Time will be a special one of sixteen pages, and will contain a double page illustration of the Cricket Club's concert, which takes place on the 20th instant.

Kohala Telephone Company.

At the annual meeting of the Kohala Telephone Company the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: John Hind, president; E. C. Bond, vice-president; G. P. Tulloch, secretary and treasurer; W. P. McDougall, auditor. Messrs. H. R. Bryant, T. S. Kay and H. H. Renton, directors. For the year ended June 30, 1895, the company declared a dividend.

Makawao Garden Party.

An entertainment will be given on the grounds of Hon. H. P. Baldwin's residence at Haiku, Maui, on Friday evening, 30th inst., for the purpose of raising a fund to be expended in Christmas entertainment for Hawaiian Sunday schools and various charities.

An interesting program, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections, charades, tableaux, side shows, etc., will be carried out. The entertainment will be the grandest ever given on the island.

President Off on a Trip.

President Dole and W. N. Armstrong leave for the other side of the island this morning on a recreation trip. The President will stop at Waikane and be the guest of Hon. P. C. Jones, Mr. Armstrong continuing on to Kuloa, Chief Justice Judd's place. Both gentlemen will return to town on Monday.

To Volcano on Bicycles.

George H. Paris and wife left for Hilo yesterday. Mr. Paris will combine business and pleasure while away. With Mrs. Paris a trip will be made from Hilo to the volcano on bicycles. From that place the lady will journey to Kau, taking a steamer there for Kailua, where she will remain for a month.

Valkyrie III.

The designer of Valkyrie III has apparently reserved a surprise until the eve of the challenger's departure from Scotland for the United States. A set of nickel-steel spars, including a mast of the same material, has been provided for the new boat, which will be several tons lighter than the usual pine sticks; and thus the weight aloft on Valkyrie III will be reduced quite as much as the Defender has gained by her aluminum ribs and side plates. With her sail spread increased to nearly 14,000 square feet the new Valkyrie is expected to show even more speed than was indicated in her matches with the Britannia.

HALL'S COTTAGE PAINTS

Do seem to please our customers a little better than any thing ever before brought to the Islands in the line. If you want cheap mixed paints do not call for these as they are made of pure lead, oil and colors, and not of "Long Island dirt" mixed with fish oil. They are cheap though if you wish to take lasting qualities and choice tints into consideration.

Our "NAVY DECK AND FLOOR PAINTS" also take well. These are especially prepared for floors and dry hard in a night.

Now that we have received our big invoice of GARDEN HOSE, and the pumping plant is about to get in its daily work, no one with a home should be without a garden or a nice green lawn. The hose we have is so well and carefully made that a 3-ply hose will last better than 4-ply of other makes, and is lighter to carry about.

CITIZENS' GUARD ATTENTION! A good deal of interest is being taken in Citizens Guard Company's on every island in target practice, and the Hilo Citizens Guard is about to issue a challenge for a 10-man match at 200 yards, with a National Guard of Hawaii Company. They all come to us when they want cartridges, or targets, and many are learning to reload their old shells and can thus afford many more rounds per month, per man. We keep in stock the best assortment of loading tools, powder measures, lead ladles and molds. Also the correct thing in way of powder, primers, lead, tin, etc. We have targets, and paper to make targets, and entera to make pasters, and after you get an outfit from us you will be able to make 5's and 4's right along provided always that you are steady, if not the bromide store is right handy on the opposite corner from us. We also have a few of the best Military Target Rifles made. Scores of 47, 48 and 49 out of 50 made at the Honolulu Rifle Association range weekly prove this. The price is low and every man who enjoys target practice can afford to have one.

Call and satisfy yourself about our stock of all these things and our prices as well.

STREET CAR COURTESIES.

Story of a Man and a Cigar and a Woman and a Dog.

A Lexington avenue car, as it was passing Fifth street the other afternoon, says the New York World, was boarded by a gentleman who at once entered and took a seat. He was so preoccupied that he allowed the cigar which he held in his fingers to go out half-smoked, and his hand, resting on his knee, hung out into the aisle.

At Fifty-fifth street an elderly and dignified matron entered. She was accompanied by her dog, which she picked up and carried into the car, without even glancing at the conductor to see if he objected. The conductor happened to be in an amiable mood, and so made no protest. She settled herself in a seat, placing the dog at her feet. She then regarded critically the man sitting opposite, and at once spied the cigar, which she evidently thought was lighted. She made two or three significant motions from the man and the cigar to the conductor and from the conductor to the cigar. Then, as the conductor did not respond, she suddenly leaned over and plucked the cigar out of the man's fingers and flung it out of the open car window, casting at the same time a most withering glance at the offender.

This action aroused the man, who glanced at the lady, and quickly comprehending the situation, quietly leaned forward and picking up the dog by the nape of the neck, neatly dropped him out of the window behind him. The lady was too horrified to utter a word, but collected herself sufficiently to leave the car at the next crossing and go back after the dog. The man crossed his feet and continued his train of thought. The conductor smiled. So did the passengers.

Kilauea's Rival.

Vesuvius, with its reawakened crater, is a popular and interesting spectacle. According to the London Daily News, crowds of native youngsters play around the crater's very edge, where it is not so deep as to emit unbearable heat, and pelt each other with smoking bits of lava. "A strange crowd of sight-seers! Men in their shirt sleeves, women in their white jackets, come along singing, playing the tambourine, beating time even on empty petroleum tins, anything to make a noise, taking the demonstration of the mountain as a good joke. A few carriages bring foreigners as far as it is possible, after which the tourists must walk. The people who keep little drinking shops on the high road up the mountain drive a roaring trade."

Y. W. C. T. U.

When I see our school boys stunting their growth and drying up their brains with smoke; when I discover that their very cigars are soaked in alcohol and liquors, and that the boys are baited with beer, and enticed into saloons by music, games and evil company; when I am told of their degeneracy in scholarship, so that the percentage of girls who graduate and who take honors is steadily gaining on that of the boys, it seems to me that I can not wait until the schools of my country focus their splendid light upon the problem of prevention. It is a glorious thing to go to the rescue of wicked and ruined manhood with the lifeboat of reform, but far better to build a lighthouse on the sunken, warning the unskilled voyager of his danger. In the light of ten years' work as a teacher of total abstinence from alcoholic poison, I solemnly aver that had I the power, our system of education should be so changed that the course of study for every pupil, from the kindergarten toddler to the high school graduate, should be grounded where God grounds our very being—on natural law. They should know the laws of health, since their physical being is the firm base of the whole pyramid of character. The blessed word "health" once literally meant "holiness" and that means simply "wholeness." This body of ours was meant to be the temple of the Holy Spirit, but enemies have taken possession of it and dimmed or well nigh extinguished the Shekinah. The alcohol and nicotine poison, leagued with bad food, unnatural dress, bad ventilation, and ill proportioned exercise, are the demons that hold the sacred citadel.—F. E. Willard.

ORIENTAL LUXURY AT HOME

The wonders of the Orient lay revealed before the eyes of all who care to see them, and that, too, without it being necessary to journey to lands across the seas.

The Oriental never does any more work than is necessary, and when not working, his engrossing care is to make himself comfortable. In many respects the art of living appears better understood in the East than in our bustling Western world.

There is now hardly a fashionable home that has not its Oriental room or rooms, or at least its cozy corner; sometimes the latter is Japanese in effect, sometimes Turkish; but whatever it is, be sure it is the result of an inner craving for the beautiful things of life.

These are made from No. 1 Crepe. Pith Hats, colored and white, have also been reduced from $2 to $1 each. Four-in-Hand Neckties, which will be sold for 20 cents a-piece or $2.25 a dozen.

I make a specialty of taking orders for matting ranging from plain solid to others with colors so blended as to be almost too pretty to use. Crepes will be made in any design imaginable.

WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, EDITOR.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1895.

CONSIDERING the peaceful condition of the community and the apparent disposition to cease from a continuous hammering against the inevitable results of the development of a representative government in this country, it becomes a matter of serious consideration whether the Government will not do well to hasten to carry into effect the lenient policy toward the political offenders now in prison, which was forecast by the pardons granted on the Fourth of July. As was stated by this paper at that time the future action of the Government must necessarily depend upon the attitude assumed by those who were first granted their freedom by the Executive. We believe leniency should be dealt out on a sliding scale in which the rank and file of the political offenders should receive consideration at the earliest possible moment. The offense of the leaders is made doubly serious from the fact that they led and misguided an ignorant class, honest in conviction and little realizing the enormity of the political crime committed. At the present time there seems to be no good reason why the prison doors should not be thrown open and the majority of the natives detained in consequence of the January troubles allowed to go their way.

EXECUTIVE POWER IN INSURRECTION.

In the briefs of counsel in the habeas corpus case of Kalaniana'ole, allusion was made to the celebrated Eyre case and the judgment of the highest British tribunal on the methods used in suppressing insurrection. On the breaking out of the negro insurrection, Governor Eyre proclaimed martial law, appointed a military commission, which promptly tried, convicted and executed George Gordon and Samuel Clark, who had fomented the insurrection. One Phillips was aggrieved at the action of the Governor and brought suit against him. The Legislature of Jamaica had passed an indemnity act relieving the Governor from personal responsibility, and the question before the high court of England was the justice or constitutionality of this law.

The court met the question promptly and vigorously. It admitted that indemnity acts involved manifest violations of justice, and deprived those who had suffered wrongs of their vested rights, and it conceded that such laws might be made to cover acts of the most tyrannical arbitrary kind. But the court concluded that if the acts were honestly done in the suppression of an existing rebellion, and under the pressure of urgent necessity, they were justifiable.

The case of Eyre, it is well known, excited intense interest in England, and the philanthropists moved in a body against him and pronounced him a bloodthirsty tyrant. But the courts saw, and sensible Englishmen saw that the authority of the queen could not be maintained, if the power to put down insurrection was crippled in any way. In the summary execution of Gordon, it was conceded that the Governor had acted hastily, had in fact lost his head, but the court and the English people did not fail to sustain him in spite of his weakness.

It was fortunate that the case of Kalaniana'ole was brought by Mr. Neumann, so that the people of these islands might clearly understand the law of insurrection. Those who are interested in the matter, especially those who foment trouble, and expect to escape through some technicality, may read the briefs of counsel and the opinion of the court with much edification and extreme profit.

OUR TRADE WITH JAPAN.

Should the interpretation placed upon Mr. Armstrong's writings concerning Hawaii's interest in Japan, by his critics be taken as a criterion, it might well be inferred that the writer had become a Japanese convert and had forgotten the foundation principles of the Government of his native heath, whereas in point of fact in the order of impressing upon the public the commercial possibilities of a larger trade with Japan, he has given utterance to a combination of words which to the careful reader are by no means as terrifying as some people have endeavored to make them out. It is not the object of this paper to offer explanations for which, to the common sense reader, there is no necessity, we do believe however that too much stress cannot be placed upon Mr. Armstrong's suggestions as to the duty of the Government and business men of this country to follow closely the commercial development of this "new nation" that has arisen in the East.

It is all very well to talk of Hawaii's being at the cross-roads of the Pacific and business being bound to come "our way," but the magnificent opportunities opening before the country may rot in the ground of beautiful generalities, unless business push and tact sets to work to expand upon lines that make business rather than sit quietly by and take what comes in this direction by virtue of our fortunate position. It is impossible to attempt to compete with larger nations, but Hawaii ought at least to gain its proportional share, though a small one, which it will not do if it fails to take the current when it flows. Without detracting in the least from our trade with the United States, an additional interchange of products with the East might also be built up as our communications become more frequent and direct. Hawaii wants business from whatever source it can be obtained, and if Japan can take products that cannot be disposed of in any other market, it is the proper thing to watch Japan markets.

Timely Topics

August 15, 1895.

The meaning of free coinage of silver under present conditions is "The right of any one to deposit silver at a United States mint and have every 371 1/4 grains pure silver, worth in its bullions form, 52 cents, stamped 'one dollar,' which dollar shall be a full legal tender at its face value in payment of all debts and obligations of all kinds both public and private, in the United States."

The dishonesty of thus giving a coin, which is worth 52 cents, the legal debt paying value of one dollar does not need to be enlarged upon.

From the foundation of the government of the United States, the effort was made to establish a coinage approximating as closely as possible to the commercial ratio of the two metals.

Both Hamilton and Jefferson urged the necessity of adhering to market ratio. Never until the modern silverite came to the front was it seriously proposed to mint dollars with full debt paying power worth only half their face value.

If the people of the United States feel that the prosperity of the nation, and any one section particularly, demands the coinage of two metals, let silver and gold be placed on such a ratio that they can subsist on their merits. There is more silver than gold, so why should the silverites be afraid of gold competition?

Is it not more profitable to have the silver of the United States used as a medium of exchange at its true commercial worth in connection with gold, than to have it all silver—free silver—and the dumping ground for the silver of the world.

Silver is not on a par with gold in Hawaii, but when it is used as a medium of exchange, locally, a few dollars less than what are charged for other wheels will buy you a "King of all Cycles," the MONARCH.

When a man comes into the store with the "cold cash" in his hand and says he wants a MONARCH, it means that we are doing business.

It seems too bad to have to refuse to accept the money, and explain that the one wheel left is a sample and that we could not part with it, but will take his order for a wheel to arrive, and if it is not just what he ordered he need not accept it.

We have had to refuse such offers, but in every case we have booked an order. This is the only way that we can supply the demand for MONARCHS.

BRAVE MEN FLYING TO THE HELP

In Lake Superior—Marvelous Promptness
at Columbia River Fishing Grounds—True Tales From the Life Savers' Logbooks.[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.
Reprinted by permission.]

The schooner Reed Case, from Duluth to Portage Lake, Mich., arrived off the mouth of the Portage canal on the 19th of October, 1888, and as though the wind and sea were against her attempted to pass between the piers to the narrow entrance of the canal. Watchers on shore, among them surfmen of the ship canal station, saw the schooner lagging to the leeward and surmised that she would miss the entrance. The kept on and struck the leeward pier with a force that stove a hole in her bow. The sea lifted her and hurled her a second time against the pier, but she managed to stand out into the lake, where she let go both anchors. One chain parted immediately, and a single anchor not being enough to hold her, she dragged down the lake along shore. Having the fortune to drift into shoal water, the anchor fetched her up about two miles from the life saving station. Looking badly, with all hands at the pumps, and rolling and pitching terribly, she had barely come to anchor when the gallant lifeboat of ship canal station was alongside. Having started with sail and almost lost their mast in the terrible sou'easter, the life savers were astounded to find the captain of the schooner about to send off his yawl with a messenger to bring a tug. Only by dint of hard rowing with a powerful crew had the lifeboat ridden the fearful breakers.

The keeper of the surf crew told the skipper that no tug would venture out in that sea; but, although the schooner was leaking at a rate sure to swamp her, he offered to remain alongside for the worst if the captain would not consent to go ashore in the lifeboat with his men. This he refused to do and insisted on sending his own yawl, when the keeper humbly offered to set the messenger ashore at the nearest point. Making for a sand beach close at hand, the surfmen soon found the breakers too heavy even for their staunch craft and were obliged to ride before the wind toward a lee under the bluffs far down the lake. While crossing a reef of low water a huge comb wreathed an ear from the hands of one of the rowers and knocked him down in the boat. Striking the beach almost immediately, the boat was turned broadside to land and a hole knocked in below the water line. The surfmen managed to get the boat upon the beach, and the messenger went off to the harbor to call a tug. Meanwhile the wind veered, and a heavy snow-storm set in. Although the skipper had virtually told the life savers to mind their own business, they were as persistent in devotion to duty as he was willful and reckless. In order to be ready for the worst the beach apparatus was hauled abreast of the scene, and this task alone was a most heroic one. Snow and slush covered the ground and masked the bog holes along the swampy shore. When the apparatus reached the spot, the vessel had drifted so far from shore that it was doubtful if a line could be fired across her in case she grounded. The lifeboat was useless, and there was no way of communicating with the people on the ship. Night closed in, and a fire was built on the beach. Half the crew took up the vigil while the others returned to the station to get some food and also to bring the surfboat to the beach if possible. This last proved more difficult than the hauling of the apparatus. The breakers drove upon shore with such tremendous force that the little craft was hurled back again and again. It was then loaded on a wagon and hauled part of the way across the neck of land lying between the canal and the scene of operations.

On the last mile of the journey the road proved impassable for the wagon, and the surfmen dragged the boat like a sledge the rest of the way. A hole was stove in her by striking a snow covered rock, and thus the life savers found themselves with two unaided boats and a useless beach apparatus to face a wreck now threatening to collapse at any moment. During the night the captain's messenger had arrived on the beach with the answer that no tug would venture out into the lake in that storm. At daylight the schooner was seen in the trough of the sea pitching heavily and in danger of going completely over. To the surprise of the keeper of the life crew he saw the schooner's yawl being lowered in spite of all warning. With the canvas cover of his beach wagon he made a sign of large letters, "Boat coming," and stretched it between two trees in sight of the wreck. It was too late however; the yawl had shoved off and on striking the breakers quickly capsized. Two men clung to the yawl, but the strong undertow cast them back every time they drifted near shore and a gallant rescue was made by the surfmen. Joining hands, a line was formed reaching out into the breakers. The man farthest out caught a line attached to the yawl and towed the boat in, saving both men. A third man had been seen before the boat capsized. He sank near where the yawl went over, and the ship's messenger, who had been watching from a distance, recognized him as the captain. The men rescued were too weak to stand besides being chilled through, and part of the crew labored to save them while others prepared the surfboat for a heroic attempt to get off the wreck before dark. One of the men refused to risk his life in the beating craft during such a sea and was promptly discharged for mutiny. Nothing daunted, the others took the oars and succeeded in getting the boat beyond the breakers, but the first comb encountered half filled it with water, so that one of the already short handed crew was kept busy bailing. The leak also enlarged and water came in almost as fast as one man could bail it out. But the carmen never themselves for a powerful effort and with a gallant dash put the boat alongside the vessel. Luck seemed to turn in an instant, for after taking off the four survivors and hauling out the surfboat the brave fellows made a quick dash for land and beached the boat without a mishap. Six lives saved by their promptness was the record of a day's work ushered in by accidents and marked throughout by stubborn recklessness on the part of the master of the imperiled sailors.

A more marvelous rescue still, but not more gallant, occurred at the mouth of the Columbia river, Washington, one day in May, 1884. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon that day the keeper of the cape station stood on a high point near the cape lighthouse, maintaining a watch, for the wind was blowing a strong sea over the bar into the mouth of the river, where the fishermen in skiffs were busy casting their nets. Suddenly he saw a skiff containing two men capsize in the wild outer breakers at least two miles from the lighthouse. Springing down the hill, he picked up half a dozen volunteers, hurried them to the station, where they were equipped with life preservers, and in a few minutes the surfboat was speeding over the treacherous waters, now calm as an inland lake and in another moment broken by ridges and hollows as rough as the stormy sea. When the strong river current and the rushing tide met, the commotion was like that of a tidal wave over a high sandy bar. Yet the rowers made the two miles in 30 minutes and found a man in the water lashed to an upturned fishing skiff. He was cut loose and hauled into the surfboat, and then the keeper discovered that the skiff was not the one sighted from the lighthouse hill. He had used a glass when on the outlook and had distinguished her color. The rescued man stated that he had had a companion when the skiff capsized, but that he had gone to the bottom.

The surfboat was headed toward shore with the rescued man. Meanwhile the keeper scanned the surface of the water, but saw no trace of the first skiff. Making land at the nearest beach, which was Sand island, the life savers found a boat drifting in the breakers that answered to the description of the one seen by the keeper. After hauling the surfboat the party set out again and pulled desperately to the windward in the direction of the first wreck. The keeper stood in the bow with his eyes strained upon the foam of the sea. Finally he detected a small black object rising and falling on the foam of the breakers, about 500 yards from shore. Drawing nearer, the object proved to be several cork floats, part of a wrecked fishing net, and in the center of the latter, underneath, the head of a man. The head at times totally disappeared, when the almost lifeless body would be buried under the foam of the wild surf. Every man of the crew understood at a glance what had happened. The fisherman had become entangled in a net by the action of a sudden wind. The boat had capsized, yet, being free and light, had been blown away, while the poor fisherman, struggling to free himself from the mesh, had become the more hopelessly snared. All hands on the surfboat clutched at the net and hauled a large section of it to the side of the boat. The work of disentangling the poor fellow was great. His limbs were tightly bound as by human hands, and every button of his coat was wound about by the small cords of the net. With feverish haste the life savers worked, knowing that there was not a moment to lose. After freeing him the carmen pulled back to shore while the keeper attempted to restore circulation in the rescued man. After getting him ashore more than two hours were spent by the port surgeon and his helpers in bringing the nearly lifeless form into activity.

The whole adventure of those brave volunteer life savers lasted about three hours. Although the imperiled lives were few, yet the excitement, even when the quest narrowed down to a single human life, was intense. The man last rescued had had a companion, and it was their boat which the keeper had seen capsize. Both catastrophes had occurred at the inrush of the flood tide, the belated fishermen remaining too long in the effort to save their nets. The work of rescue had been marvellously prompt, and in the case of the man released from the net almost miraculous.

The Worst That Could Befall.

The following is a story of an incident that actually took place at the marine barracks, at the Charlestown navy yard: A soldier was one morning brought before the commanding officer, charged with the offense of telling a lie to one of the other officers. After the major had heard the evidence he said to the culprit, "Do you know what will become of you if you tell lies to your officers?"

The soldier quickly replied, "Yes, sir; I shall go to hell."

"Worse than that, sir. Worse than that," said the commanding officer. "You will be tried by a naval court martial."—Boston Globe.

Responsive "Grumbling."

An excellent though unconscious criticism of the rapid and incoherent manner in which too many congregations perform their part of the "responsive reading" of the Psalms on Sunday was made by a small boy on his return from his first attendance at church.

"Mamma," he remarked, "the people don't like the minister, do they?"

"Why, certainly, Harold. What made you ask such a question?" was the reply.

"Well," said Harold sturdily, "he read something, and then they'd all grumble, and then he'd read some more, and they'd all grumble again!"—Elmira Telegram.

End of a Useful Career.

"Rick, old fellow," said the drayman, patting the patient animal affectionately, "you've been a good horse. You've served me faithfully, and your working days are over. It would be a sin to put a harness on your poor old frame again, and I ain't going to do it. You've hauled your last load, Rick. Come along, old fellow!"

And he led him gently to the butcher's and sold him.—Chicago Tribune.

CONTRABAND GOODS CAPTURED.

Gold Watches, Chains and Whiskey Found on Bark Castle.

Systematic Smuggling Gang Said to Have Been Unearthed—Big Business in Precious Stones—Probable Arrests.

For some time the customs authorities have been quietly working to unearth and capture a gang who have been systematically smuggling liquors, watches, diamonds, etc. Recently clues were obtained which will undoubtedly result in the capture of the operators. One of the persons interested in the contraband trade, who is said to have had differences with other members over division of the spoils, gave information concerning the operations of the gang.

It is believed a lucrative trade has been built up by smugglers in watches and diamonds, a large number of precious stones are said to have been brought into the country recently.

In searching the bark S. N. Castle yesterday afternoon customs guards found four gold watches, seven gold watch chains and eight cases of whiskey concealed in the donkey engine room. The contraband articles were taken to the custom house, appraised and stowed away. The goods did not appear on the ship's manifest. A guard was placed on the bark and the search will be continued this morning. No opium was discovered.

The customs officers have well defined suspicions against certain parties, and several arrests are likely to be made today in connection with the matter.

LIBRARY EXTENSION.

Foundations Laid and Work Commenced on the Walls.

The work on the addition to the building of the Library Association is being vigorously pushed by the foreman, F. J. Wilhelm, under the direction of C. B. Ripley, the architect. The extension that formerly stood at the mauka end of the main building and contained the janitors' work room and other conveniences has been entirely removed, including the foundation, which was found inadequate to sustain any portion of the new structure.

The entire rear wall of the main building has been taken out, as has most of the side wall on the street side of the circulating department, the object of the latter being to allow the placing of a number of narrow windows where they will come in the alcoves between the cases. The foundations of the new portion are all laid and today the bricklayers will commence putting up the new wall. The internal administration of the library goes on as usual, and there has been no break in the circulating department, although it has thrown a large amount of extra labor on the librarian, who is entitled to great credit for the successful way in which things have been conducted under difficulties.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Linting Machine in Operation at Cooke's Fertilizer Works.

A. F. Cooke started up his cotton linting machine at Iwilei yesterday. After a few changes it worked well. Next week he expects to put twenty tons of cotton seed through the machine, separating the lint—which will be sold as waste—and turning the seed into meal for fertilizer.

In connection with W. N. Armstrong's report on the possible extensive demand for cotton in Japan, Mr. Cooke inclines to the belief that a large and remunerative production of the fleecy staple would result from systematic culture of land lying close to Honolulu and elsewhere in the islands. More is expected to be heard from the industry just being developed by Mr. Cooke.

Despondency and mental depression are more likely than not the result of poor digestion, bodily infirmities or physical decline. A cheering food-medicine, such as will improve digestion, destroy disease germs, build up the general health, and thus remove the cause of depression. It has been aptly called "Bottled Energy." For throat and lung troubles, and all wasting diseases, it has no equal.
