TALES OF THE TURF.

The trotter Filbert Wilkes has been purchased for $5,000 and Sunflower for $4,000 by a stock company at Pipestone, Minn.

Capt. S. S. Brown, of Pittsburg, who retired from the turf at the close of the racing season last year, has come back again.

Penelon, a good horse just now, has been deemed a broken down animal on several occasions, and was once sold for the low price of $300.

Isaac Murphy is reported as all right, barring a little rheumatism. M. F. Dwyer and Green Morris will probably sign the colored Archer for 1891.

Jockey Bergen has been set down for the rest of the season for disobedience at the post. He is a good rider, but unfortunately for him he is continually incurring the displeasure of the starter.

There is a good deal of floating talk about a Pennsylvania pool bill to be put through at Harrisburg this winter. In that event Philadelphia capitalists will push their new race track scheme at once.

C. W. Williams offers any one who will buy eighty acres of land in the vicinity of Independence, Ia., $2,500 in cash, provided the purchaser shall become resident and shall stock his place with not less than $5,000 worth of high bred mares.

The Kentucky Derby was first run in 1875, and was won by Aristides. In 1876 it was won by Vagrant; 1877, by Baden-Baden; 1878, by Day Star; 1879, by Lord Murphy; 1880, by Fonso; 1881, by Hindoo; 1882, by Apollo; 1883, by Leonatus; 1884, by Buchanan; 1885, by Joe Cotton; 1886, by Ben Ali; 1887, by Montrose; 1888, by Macbeth II; 1889, by Spokane; and 1890, by Riley.

DAUGHTERS OF EVE.

"Annt Fanny" Barrow has written forty-five books for children.

The court of appeals at Paris has decided that Victor Hugo's daughter, Adele, is entitled to all the profits that may accrue from his literary works.

Professor Harriet Cooke, professor of history in Cornell, is the first woman ever honored with the chair and equal pay with the men professors. She has taught in Cornell twenty-three years.

Caroline Dodge, who is seeking to enforce a contract entered into by a railroad in behalf of her grandfather, argued her own case before a full bench of the supreme court in Boston recently.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is said to have tried the "mind cure" in Boston with happy results, although Miss Alcott, who also experimented with that treatment, derived no appreciable benefit from it.

The sale by Mrs. King, of Corpus Christi, the "cattle queen" of Texas, of 15,000 2-year-old steers is probably the largest single order for cattle ever filled in Texas. The consideration was $32,000. Mrs. King's ranch is worth $300,000.

The pastor of the Methodist church at East Davis, Mass., is Miss Annie Shaw, a handsome and finely educated woman of 43. When 15 years old she taught a country school, and she is as thoroughly grounded in medicine as she is in theology.

STRANGE TALES.

A man named Lowe has taken an affidavit that a blue gum tree at Whittier, Cal., has grown forty-five feet in one year.

The coasters of the Fiji islands will not eat until they can sit down upon the ground directly over a triangle made of three small fishbones; then they only handle the food with the left hand.

W. A. Fulton, one of Clayton county's (Ga.) oldest and best citizens, died recently. Just as he drew his last breath the old clock, which for forty years had faithfully kept time, stopped and has not run since.

Partially fill a glass with water, lay a piece of writing paper over it, press it gently with your hand and you can turn the glass upside down, remove your hand from the paper and not a drop of water will spill.

In counting his small change recently a Michigan man found the most valuable five cent piece extant. The jarring on the table caused the piece of money to split in two, and from the center rolled a gold dollar.

In Austria women are employed to carry the mortar and brick to the builders. They work from 7 in the morning till 6 at night, with one hour at noon, and receive twenty cents a day. Most of these female headcarriers are unmarried and homeless.

CHAT OF THE STAGE.

J. K. Emmet is going to make another trip around the world with "Uncle Joe; or, Fritz in a Mad House."

"A Scandal in High Life" is the title of a new play which will be produced by Barry and Fay next season.

A new play by Davis Edward Marshall, of the American Press association, will be produced next season.

The business introduced by English authors on the opening night of "All the Comforts of Home" in London has been discarded, and the company is playing now Gillette's version with great success.

May Howard, the burlesque star, now in the sixth year of her professional experience, was born in Chicago twenty-six years ago. She made her first appearance as a chorus girl with the Dixey Adams company.

Dainty little Ida Muller accompanies her husband, Ben Tuthill, to Europe in June and will probably not appear in stage life again, as she has announced her determination to retire permanently at the close of the present season.

Frederick Paulding, who for the past two years has been playing leading juvenile parts in the Jefferson-Jessie company, will retire from that organization and will begin a starring tour next September under the management of George L. Smith.

Barry's Tricopherous

Established 1891.

Infallible for removing, invigorating and beautifying the hair, removing dandruff, and all affections of the scalp, and curing eruptions of the skin, diseases of the glands, muscular and integumentary, and relieving itching, cuts, abrasions, etc. The affinity between the membranes which constitute the skin and the hair which draws its sustenance from this triple envelope is very close. All diseases of the hair originate in the skin of the head. If the pores of the scalp are clogged, or if the blood and other fluids do not circulate freely through the small vessels which feed the roots with moisture and impart life to the fibres, the result is dandruff, shedding of the hair, grayness, dryness and hardness of the ligaments, and entire baldness, as the case may be. Stimulate the skin to healthy action with Barry's Tricopherous, and the torpid vessels, recovering their activity, will annihilate the disease. In all affections of the skin and of the substrata of the skin, and in the process of the disease, the use of Barry's Tricopherous has its specific action, and in all affections and injuries of these organs it is a sovereign remedy.

Beware of Counterfeits.

From the Greatest Living Prima Donna, Madame Adelina Patti-Nicola.

Moscow, July 30th, 1888.

Messrs. BARCLAY & Co., New York.

Dear Sirs:—I take pleasure in announcing to you that Barry's Tricopherous is one of the best remedies always to be found on my dressing table. In my conception it is one of the best of toilet waters, and for the bath it is not only delicious, but refreshing and invigorating. I recommend it without reserve.

Daily Bulletin

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party,
But established for the benefit of all.

MONDAY, MAY 11, 1891.

Captain Eads' plan of placing jetties at the delta of the Mississippi river, to deepen the channel, has been condemned by Mr. Jacques Redway, who has lately issued a pamphlet on the subject. Mr. Redway recommends that the plan of storage reservoirs, now in process of construction at the head of that great river, be so extended as to take up 95,572,000,000 cubic feet of water. This plan, it is alleged, would not only prevent freshets, but could be used so as to prevent the low-water period, which generally lasts about three months each year.

Since the passage of the McKinley bill the tin plate manufacturing industry has been steadily extending itself. Latest advices state that the new industry has now reached proportions where the manufacturers have determined to unite in order to more rapidly reach a point where they will be able to supply the American market. An organization for this purpose was effected in New York about two weeks ago. After conference, the firms interested were able to state that as soon as a few more mills can be erected, upon which work is to be pushed, the manufacturers of tin plate in the United States will be able to produce 60,000 tons a year.

The frequency with which leading divines of different denominations are falling away from the letter of their creeds has again been illustrated. This time the case is that of Rev. Dr. Briggs, professor of theology at the Union Theological Seminary (Presbyterian) of New York. This case is almost an exact parallel of that of the Rev. Howard MacQuary, and recalls to mind those of Rev. Drs. Newton and Rainford and several minor cases. The peculiarity which makes Dr. Briggs' case noticeable is that the charge of heresy, which has been brought against him, has been turned into an engine of persecution by his reverend brothers. These disputes, so frequently arising in the last few years, are most unfortunate. Each of them has so far resulted in placing the incorrigible divine before the public as a martyr to intellectual liberty. Dr. Briggs' alleged heresy was committed in his inaugural address delivered when he accepted the chair of theology in the Seminary. It is hinted that Dr. Briggs will likely take the ground, in his defense, that the Presbytery should reverify its creed first, and discipline its divines afterwards.

The latest Washington despatches received here announce that the Hon. H. W. Blair, lately appointed United States Minister to China, has been recalled to Washington. The reason of Mr. Blair's recall is alleged to be because the Chinese Government formally objected to his appointment, probably on the ground that Mr. Blair has been for years an opponent, in the United States Congress, to Chinese immigration.

It is quite likely Mr. Blair will be sent to Japan. In reality it makes but little difference what man is sent to China as Minister, as far as the question of Chinese immigration is concerned. This point has been already virtually settled in politics upon the demand of the people of the Pacific Coast, and any influence the Chinese Government might bring to bear through any United States Minister would hardly serve to modify the position Congress has already taken on the Chinese question. The fact is, that neither of the great political parties in the United States would dare advocate Chinese immigration with any hopes of party success. Congress will reflect this general political view. It therefore makes little difference whether the United States is represented at the Court of the Flowery Empire by an anti- or a pro-Chinese Minister.

BURIAL OF DR. SMITH.

Impressive Services in the Church He Founded Long Ago.

A large concourse of people assembled in Kaunakapili Church yesterday afternoon, for the funeral services of the late Rev. Dr. Lowell Smith. Hon. A. S. Cleghorn and Major Jas. W. Robertson, Her Majesty's Chamberlain, sat in the Royal pew. Among those noted mingling with a large attendance of the native congregation were the following: His Excellency J. L. Stevens, United States Minister, and wife; Mr. H. W. Severance, United States Consul-General, and wife; Hon. A. F. Judd, Chief Justice, and Mrs. Judd; Hon. and Mrs. W. D. Alexander, Hon. H. M. Whitney, Hon. and Mrs. S. M. Damon, Hon. and Mrs. C. P. Iaukea, Hon. J. B. Atherton and H. G. Crabbe, Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. Cornwell, Mrs. Widdifield, Mrs. W. B. Oleson, Mrs. W. W. Hall, Mrs. C. N. Spencer, Principal Hosmer and Prof. Lyons of Oahu College, Mr. F. A. Schaefer, Italian Consul; Mr. J. F. Hackfeld, German Consul; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hopper, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Paty, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lytle, Mr. and Mrs. D. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Morioka, Messrs. C. J. Lyons, C. M. Cooke, P. C. Jones, M. P. Robinson, W. There was a beautiful display of flowers along the choir railing over the platform. The emblematic compositions were very striking. An evergreen cushion on the reading desk bore the Hawaiian salutation "Aloha" in white flowers. The portals of the building were draped with crape. For a few minutes before three o'clock the church bell tolled solemnly. At the appointed hour the coffin, a handsome one of native woods bearing a rich silver name plate, was carried into the church and rested on a bier at the head of the main aisle. A procession followed the remains into the church, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Dillingham and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Kluegel, and Mr. W. F. Frear, chief mourners, and Rev. Dr. Hyde, Rev. H. Bingham and wife, Rev. Dr. Beckwith, Rev. W. D. Westervelt, Rev. B. W. Oleson, Rev. O. P. Emerson, Dr. N. B. Emerson, Messrs. W. W. Hall and H. Waterhouse, together with representatives of Kaunakapili congregation, those named after the chief mourners being persons conspicuous now in Hawaiian missions and the descendants of early missionaries from America.

Mr. Wray Taylor, who officiated at the organ, played a soft voluntary thereon, and accompanied the choir in a Hawaiian hymn. Rev. J. Waiamau, pastor of the church, prayed in Hawaiian, and then another hymn was sung in the same language. Rev. Dr. Beckwith then read passages of Scripture, followed by remarks on the strong faith of "our beloved father," who, during the four years of the speaker's pastorate in Central Union Church, was one of the most constant in attendance on his ministrations. He was there to be found, although laboring under deafness, "trying, as it were, to catch if it were only the echo of praise and prayer." His presence had been an inspiration. "Very precious hast thou been to me, my beloved brother," were the closing words of the speaker over the coffin.

Rev. S. E. Bishop delivered a funeral discourse, in which he sketched the career of the departed missionary, of whom he said at the outset, "This most venerable father whose mortal part lies in our sight for the last time was one whom all men knew to be of blameless purity, unselfishness, and most godly devoutness, as well as of untiring activity in good works." Lowell Smith came from the old Puritan stock of New England. He was born in Heath, Massachusetts, Nov. 27, 1802. He made profession of Christian faith in 1823, "when New England churches were ringing with the news of the cordial reception by Hawaii of the pioneer missionaries, and of the renunciation of idolatry, and just after the second band—Richards, Bishop and their company—had embarked for these islands." In 1829 he graduated from Williams College and in 1832 from Auburn Theological Seminary. As Father Smith said on his golden wedding day in 1882, he had a threefold conviction of his duty to preach the gospel to the heathen. He was married Oct. 2, 1832, to Miss Abba T. Toney, Nov. 21 of that year the young couple embarked at New Haven, Conn., on the ship Mentor, in company with Rev. and Mrs. B. W. Parker. With the exception of Mrs. Parker, who survives him, Dr. Smith was by a great many years the oldest representative of mission families. He was eight or ten years longer in the country than any who have survived him. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dimond came here two years, and Hon. S. N. Castle four years after him. These, however, were not missionaries although connected with the mission.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith arrived at Honolulu May 1, 1833. The speaker traced their career through the initial difficulties to their successful work in founding Kaunakapili church. They were first stationed at Kalaupala, Molokai, as associates to Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock. Beginning to preach in native in three months, Mr. Smith's labors achieved a success that is regarded as a forerunner of the great revival of 1837-8. In 1834 the general meeting transferred Mr. and Mrs. Smith to Waiawa, Ewa, on this island, their parish including Waianae and comprising a population of over 5000 souls. They met the hostile opposition of the Boki, chiefs of Waianae, but the body of converts gradually increased. Mr. Smith's success as a physician induced many to forsake the native doctors and to attend his public services. The Ewa church, organized in 1836 with 18 members, subsequently reached the number of 2800 members. Mr. Smith soon after began the immense adobe church which so long crowned Waiawa hill, and which was completed by his successor, Rev. A. Bishop. The speaker told of the lamented missionary's great activity in visiting all parts of his district. In 1836 the necessity of attending to the education of hosts of children in the capital was recognized and Mr. Smith was called to Honolulu to take the work in hand. A large reinforcement to the mission enabled him a year later to resign the schools to Mr. and Mrs. Cooke. He had already been appointed to "commence a second church and congregation at Kaunakapili." There for more than thirty years he labored hard and with eminent success. He retired from the pastorate in 1869, but continued long to be a father and counselor to the church. "The old quaint edifice which he and the people built in 1837 gave place some years since to the present sumptuous temple of worship. A grand organ swells the music where he and his wife once led the simple melodies. But probably no voice more ringing, no tones more inspiring to faith and righteousness than his will ever fill this newer house." Mr. Bishop concluded by telling of Dr. Smith's untiring work for the good of the natives to almost the end of his extreme old age. "I think the native people would always take 'Kamika's' medicines when they would that of no other white doctor, and in all ordinary maladies he was a physician of no mean skill. It was less than one week before his death he made his last rounds." What impressed the speaker most in Father Smith was his pure, simple, single-heartedness. With him the way to do a thing was to do it.

Rev. J. Waiamau delivered a funeral sermon in Hawaiian, after which Dr. Beckwith offered prayer. The choir of Central Union Church sang a hymn in English, and Mr. Bishop pronounced the benediction in Hawaiian. The congregation were invited to pass by the coffin and take a last look at the features of the departed father. In the hands was placed a beautiful calla lily. Many Hawaiian men and women wept as they looked in the face of their great friend. The pall-bearers were five native elders of Kaunakapili Church, with Rev. W. B. Oleson, Mr. W. W. Hall, Mr. Henry Waterhouse, Rev. W. D. Westervelt and Mr. Tannatt. A long line of carriages followed the hearse to Nuuanu cemetery, where brief services were held over the grave by Dr. Beckwith and Mr. Waiamau, the choir of Central Union Church singing a hymn.

THE FULL PENALTY.

Thos. E. Evans is given the "Same as a Chinaman" for his opinion.

At 10 o'clock this morning Justice Foster asked Mr. Peterson, counsel for Thos. E. Evans, if he wished to say anything before sentence was delivered.

"I have nothing to say, Your Honor," replied Mr. Peterson. Deputy Attorney-General Chas. Creighton not being in the courtroom was sent for and in a few moments entered.

"Have you anything to say on this matter, Mr. Creighton? Mr. Peterson has stated that he has nothing to say."

Mr. Creighton responded laconically, "If Mr. Peterson has nothing to say, I have nothing to say."

Justice Foster told Mr. Evans to stand up, and the order being obeyed, addressed the defendant in substance as follows:

"Your counsel declines to say anything. The whole responsibility now rests on me. The fact that an appeal lies from me to the Supreme Court and a jury does not weigh at all. If a short sentence of imprisonment would meet the case, or one of no imprisonment, I should be happy to release you on such terms. Or if you had made a confession, that would have revealed others engaged in the business, and enabled the Government to stop it, I should take the fact into consideration. You have not been convicted of importing opium, but of having it in your possession. Under the law you are in exactly the same position as a Chinaman who has been caught smoking opium. I cannot allow the fact of your being a gentleman with a family to weigh with me, or deal with you differently from what should be done in the case of a Chinaman or of a sailor found with opium in possession. Although the tendency in modern criminal law is to respect persons, there is nothing in the law of this case to justify respect of persons. Your offense is not a crime. It is the doing of something forbidden in the law, the penalties being to prevent the traffic in opium. I do not know of any better way to secure the prohibition of the business. I shall give you the full penalty of the law—$250 fine, $5 costs, and one year's imprisonment at hard labor. If on appeal to the Supreme Court you get a lighter sentence, I shall be one of the first to congratulate you."

The defendant was somewhat staggered by the sentence, as he dropped back into his chair.

Mr. Peterson noted an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The judge said the bond would be one thousand dollars.

Mr. Peterson—"It could not be any more."

"AERMOTOROLOGY."

The man who wants a windmill usually looks around and investigates the statements made by the dealers in the respective mills. We are pleased to recommend purchasers to parties who have Aermotors on their plantations because we know what the result will be. Thus far we have not had a bad report from any of the mills we have sold here; in every instance we have received the same satisfactory expressions. When we procured the Agency of the Aermotors we did not do so blindly; we felt that if the machines were good enough for the officials of the Union Pacific Railway they were good enough for us. We saw hundreds of places on the line of that road where wooden mills were being replaced by the Aermotor. We thought it a good indication of which way the wind was blowing and arranged accordingly. There is not a windmill in existence that will do the same amount of work, last as long, or that can be bought so cheap as the Aermotor. It is ridiculous to say they will not last! Who ever saw piece of steel that would not outlast wood in any climate?

The Aermotor has so many advantages over other windmills that it would require all the space in this paper to set forth half of them and as new features are cropping up almost every day we can hardly keep up with them even in the many changes in our "ads." We have concluded then to condense all the good features of the Aermotors and express them in four words, "They are the best," and anyone who has seen an Aermotor at work will agree with us.

There are so many good uses to which the Aermotors may be put that they are becoming a necessity on every ranch and plantation. In a few months the question will not be "how many acres of cane have you," or "how many head of stock do you own" but, "Have you an Aermotor?" and the probability is that the answer will be in the affirmative. It's a pretty sure sign that the Aermotors give satisfaction when persons return to our store and buy a second one.

A NEW INVOICE OF CYCLONE WINDMILLS JUST RECEIVED.

A large number of Cyclone Windmills are in use in these islands, and have given invariably satisfaction. People who are using them will tell what they do. They are rapidly displacing cheap steel mills on the coast because the latter "will not do the work required of an ordinary mill."

The Cyclones are the strongest—are perfect self-regulators—the most durable and have more wind surface and will run in a lighter breeze. They will do more work in the same wind and are the simplest, they have less friction than any other mill and require no care, except to keep them oiled. They are made of the best materials.

A TRIP THROUGH THE UREWERA COUNTRY.
 (By Count Axel Wachtmeister, in Bay of Plenty Times, Tauranga, N. Z.)

So much has been lately said about the Urewera Country in connection with the Governor's visit, and the savage state of this natives, their exclusiveness, that it is sufficient to rouse the curiosity of any tourist, and partly in hopes of finding some remains of Maori ancient customs, that we determined to go through the country, though everyone advised us not to go. Our party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, Mr. Ballion, myself and Guide McDonnell. Our first misfortune was going to Wairoa. The steamer we were in had to return to Napier without being able to land us on the beach, the entrance to the river being completely blocked up by a high sandbank. We waited at Napier two or three days, and then had another try. Fortunately this time there was no sea, and we managed to get ashore in a small boat rowed by a couple of natives. A wagon drove us up to Wairoa, a charming little township situated on the bank of the river. We employed the day in buying provisions, tent, etc., and next morning rode up to Onepoto, at the southern end of the Waikaremoana Lake. The road is excellent all the way, and towards the end it ascends rapidly up to the bush, which begins here and continues right into the Urewera country for more than 50 miles. The scenery was very grand as we ascended and reminded us of certain parts of the Rockies in America. When we approached the summit in the dusk of the evening, we got a view of the Lake, and the scenery was superb and never to be forgotten. Waikaremoana is undoubtedly the most beautiful lake in New Zealand. Although it may not possess the grandeur and ruggedness of Lakes Te Anau and Manapouri, it has more of the real picturesque. It is surrounded by undulating hills, which, in some parts, are precipitous and everywhere covered with bush.

The scenery changes as one goes along the lake. At present the only way of going over the lake is by a canoe. We entered the largest one (about 60 feet long), and were paddled over by a lot of Urewera natives. We landed in a pretty bay and pitched our tent in the bush. We passed the first night in the tent, much annoyed by mosquitoes, and next morning began the journey on foot. It is 19 miles to the first native settlement, and the native track, such as it is, is not good enough for horses. We had six natives with us, who carried our provisions and swags, and showed us the way. The Ureweras had had a meeting the night previously, and resolved to let us pass through. They did not think we looked like robbers or gold-miners, especially as we had a lady in the party, but they still regarded us with suspicion, and as once I drew out my pocket-book, came directly to see what I was doing and persisted in following us round everywhere. The weather was wet, and the track, if it deserves such a name, was hardly visible. We followed blindly our Maori guide, who, regardless of the comfort of our party, took us over the hills straight up and down, and when we got into a valley where there was a large creek, the Maories told us we should have to wade up the creek for three miles. We determined to camp before proceeding further, as we were being wet through. We managed to pitch our tent, lit a fire to dry our clothes, but were soon driven into the tent by the rain which again began to fall, and spent a chilly night on our bed of wet and hard cabbage leaves.

Next morning we commenced our march up the creek, the natives, to spare themselves the trouble of cutting a track, having laid the road right in the creek. We splashed up as well as we could, Mr. Fowler carrying Mrs. Fowler in the worst places. Sometimes the water was up to our knees, once or twice up to our waist, but we at last got through safe and sound. We had to climb another steep hill, and at last reached the top of the Hula range. The weather was cloudy, so we unfortunately lost the view, which is said to be most extensive. We marched on till evening and still found ourselves miles away from our destination. The rain had nearly ceased, and when we camped passed a more comfortable night. The weather turned out fine the following day, and our spirits rose accordingly. Two of the Maories went on to announce our arrival, and after having waded through the last creek, we found a horse waiting to convey Mrs. Fowler to the settlement. The Maories showed great admiration of the wahina, as called Mrs. Fowler, and never ceased wondering at her venturing into their wild country. They anxiously enquired if we had enough provisions, and said that in case of need they could go without for three days. The first settlement we came to, Te Mimi, is situated high up on a hill, and has a magnificent view over the surrounding country, a long valley lies in front, in which we could see several other settlements in the distance. The settlements are small, the largest being Matatua, containing about 50 Maoris. The natives of Te Mimi received us very kindly, gave us a wahine to sleep in, treated us to potatoes, delicious wild honey (the best we ever tasted) and slaughtered a pig in our honor. In the evening they invited us in to their wahine, a low smoky place, with a furnace containing burning charcoal in the middle, and a door just large enough for an ordinary sized man to creep through. They began their proceedings with a long monotonous chant, evidently some semi-Christian invocation.

The Ureweras are all Hauhaus and very constant church goers—at Matatua the church bell was constantly ringing. After the chanting an old Maori chief held a long oration accompanied by violent gestures, of which of course we do not understand anything, and after him another man, the same in whose wahine we were lodging, held another oration. We afterwards heard that it was all about our coming to the settlement. The old Maori was furious at our being let through, and wanted us to go back the same way; but the second speaker protested, and at last it was decided that we should be allowed to pass, especially as we had a lady with us, which seemed to the Maoris a guarantee of the harmlessness of our purpose. The next day we started for Matatua, the principal settlement, where there is a carved meeting house. We were disappointed in finding so few carved houses, but they had nearly all been burnt down during the war, and the carved house at Matatua has only been built a short time. We passed a settlement where the younger generation were playing football. It is to be feared that when the old generation shall have disappeared, there will be nothing left of the old Maori custom, as the young men nearly all work as shearers or on the survey. They seem prompt to learn all the white men's vices. While we were at Te Mimi they proposed that we should be made to pay, and about two miles outside the settlement we met a Maori coming towards us with a notice fixed on a paddle, dated 1st April, to the effect that each person that passed through the Urewera Country should pay 10s, and £1 for a horse.

We determined to go on, and at our arrival at Matatua we were received with the utmost cordiality, the whole population came out, and there was no end of speechifying and laudations in our honor. A large new wahine was allotted to us, and two Maori maidens selected to serve on us. During the evening we had the whole village in our wahine, and it was with the greatest difficulty we could persuade them to leave us when we retired, especially the women, whose admiration for Mrs. Fowler, the first white woman they had ever seen, was unbounded. When they heard she came from the Hawaiian Islands, (from whence the Maoris are supposed to have originally come), and were shown the photograph of the King and Queen of Hawaii, they wanted Mrs. Fowler to stay with them altogether. The next day it was raining, and we were pressed to stay, so we made the best of it we could, and had the pleasure of entertaining the natives all day. The carved house we were only allowed to gaze at, at a distance, but as far as we could see, the carvings were extremely handsome and in very vivid colors, mostly red, yellow and white. The chief Whenuanui, who objected to our going inside the carved house, was otherwise extremely civil, as also were the other Maoris. The Maoris seem to attain a very old age, the oldest man we saw (he looked as if he was at least 100 years) was lying in a miserable little wahine all by himself left there to die. He was coughing very heavily, and had apparently not many days to live. It is a pity civilization has not been able to do away with such a barbarous custom as this.

The Urewera natives, as a rule, are very dark, darker than any Maoris we have seen elsewhere, and the old people are mostly tattooed. Among the women we found several beautiful types, pointing the origin of the Maoris to be from a higher race. Some of the types one could almost call Semitic. We were surprised to find a little girl with almost golden hair, evidently a pure Maori. The following morning we started off, with eight very skinny Maori horses, up an immense hill, at the top of which we had the most beautiful view. We then went into a valley, and along a creek which we had to cross continually. The bush scenery is sublime, and we saw some very large pine trees, almost as large as the big trees in California. The track was here at least visible, having been cut by a Maori for the benefit of Te Kooti. The greenness of the younger Maoris showed itself again in their wanting us to pay for traveling on the road, but that we promptly declined to do. It was quite dark when we arrived at Te Whaiti. There we spent our last night in a wahine, and next day reached Galatea, where our interesting journey came to an end. It appeared wonderful to us to be again in civilized quarters, and to eat with real knives and forks. On the whole we were pleased and interested with our journey, the magnificent scenery alone makes it worth while to visit, and if we were a little disappointed with regard to the native customs, we had enough pleasant experiences to make us consider the trip a success. We soon reached Rotorua, and there our party dispersed.
