THE MORTALITY BARD.

"I want to get a position for my wife on your paper, if I could," said a meek man with a slight tinge of reproach, as he came into the Boomerang office yesterday and sat down on the desk with his coat-tails in the cold, damp depths of the paste fountain.

"She is really one of the literati, although people who have known her only by her washin' and ironin' don't suspect it. I, however, know her great mental scope. I've been married to her twenty-one years next frost, and I've been thrown more or less in contact with her. My soul and hers have communed together time and again, and we have discussed questions of considerable depth off and on.

"She writes a good legible hand and quick in figures. Whether you want some one to make out bills for pay locals, or write a eulogy on a paid up subscriber, she's your huckleberry. She's a perfect lady, and you might have her on your corps for years and the forked tongues of scandal would never touch you. She's plain, of course, in feature, and has an impediment in one limb, it being shorter than the other by about four inches. This gives her an eccentric movement when she walks, like a self rake reaper; but Lord, you never'd notice that after you come to know and love her.

"She can trill a stanza of poetry occasionally, too, if you give her time to think of a few hard words. She has wrote some as fine things as I have ever saw in the English language. She is better, however, on death than anything else. She loves to turn loose and mourn in easy rhyme at so much per stanza and found.

"She wrote a short poem on the death of a young man in your neighborhood, who was drowned while in a swimming in the Stinking Water creek. It run something like this:

"O, treacherous, treacherous tide,
Young William for to drown—
To madly yank him off his base
And whirl him round and round.

"We found him in the twilight hour,
Freed from his earthly woes;
His clam face upward turning,
And alkali up his nose.

"His person was sunk in the shifting sand,
His mouth was open wide,
The pollywogs nestled in his ears,
Beneath the fragrant tide.

"His open-back shirt lay on the shore,
And the balance of his trousseau,
While his soul went scooting up the flume,
Out through the ether blue.

"Twas down around the Coyote Point
We found him when evening fell,
And we planted him under the cactus vines,
In the shaft of the Mountain Bell.

"Good by William, far away
On the edge of a large damp cloud,
Though you're among the angel gang,
You needn't feel so doggon proud.

"I will also leave with you a few sonnets which are the work of her pen. You can look them over and let me know in a day or two what salary you feel like paying a woman of her strength of intellect and grip of genius. Till then adieu. I will call again Friday and complete the trade." Without another word he was gone, and he has not been seen since. Latter on, however, when we want to double up the subscription of the paper, we will publish another one of these poems. Will our present facilities we do not dare to do it.—[Bill Nye.

JUNIUS AND PROGRESS.

We are under obligation to Junius for the pains he has so kindly taken to point out to us and to the public "evidences of the progressiveness of the present government." It is seldom that our inquiries are answered at all, and seldom still that they meet with such prompt and polite consideration. This unusual and unexpected treatment moves us to tender our special thanks to our learned friend, and in this public manner testify our deep appreciation of his condescending kindness.

Here we would have rested the matter, feeling we had done all that common courtesy required towards one who had conferred on us a favor; but lest the noble Junius should smile in his sleeve and think in his heart that "the little BULLETIN is gifted with a certain amount of credulity that he would do well to restrain," or lest the garrulous Gazette, who is so blind as to be unable to see that "reply" in the Elele, should again accuse us of being "gulled by the insinuating and unreliable Advertiser," duty to ourselves constrains us to take a cursory review of those wonderful "evidences of progressiveness" enumerated by Junius.

No doubt the "Department of Foreign Affairs" did its duty by forwarding to "every Consular Agent of this Kingdom" a certain declaration, refuting "statements concerning the labor traffic in these islands;" but it did no more than that Department has been in the habit of doing from the days of Wylie. Even the credulous Junius says "it is not much."

In what way has the "general health of the nation" been improved by the action of the present government? The "general health" here in Honolulu has usually been much impaired during the wet season, for several years past, by typhoid fever. If the present season, so far, is comparatively free from that cause of suffering and death, does Junius wish us to believe that the improvement is due to the fact that the government have had under consideration a scheme for the sewerage of the city? A previous Board of Health was admittedly responsible for the introduction of the small-pox epidemic of 1881, but we are in no way convinced that the present Board would have done any better under the same circumstances. Has any ship brought small-pox into our harbor or roadstead during the incumbency of the present Board of Health? And have they by their "strict measures" prevented its getting ashore? Junius doesn't show very much respect for truth when he says, "The former Boards literally did nothing but pay out salaries." Was it the present Board who put up the original buildings at Kakaako? Junius would have us believe so? The less he has to say about "paying out salaries" the better for his own cause. It is believed that too close a scrutiny of that particular matter will not make the present Board appear in the most favorable light. No one questions that "progression" has been made in that direction. It is a good thing that "the present Board have engaged doctors," and it would have been well if the same Board had not, by their treatment, driven one or two others out of the country. Do you, Junius, know why one of the Kani doctors left the Kingdom two or three weeks ago? Our voluble friend does not specify particularly those "great improvements made in the management of lepers," but is good enough to tell us that it is the "intention to gather them"—the lepers—"all in." This is a proper progressive step, but we cannot so qualify that preliminary "progressive" move, namely, the public announcement of the "intention," by which lepers were afforded an opportunity of concealing themselves, which opportunity has been duly improved by many. According to Junius's showing, the Board of Health must be an uncommonly "progressive" body of men, for he says that they "are just getting to work after being seven months in office!" What a lively Board!

Ordinary individuals, that is, persons of ordinary brains and ordinary activity, would have commenced work seven months ago; but these are no ordinary men; they are so "progressive" that they must be "seven months in office" before "getting to work!"

We are sorrow that our short space compels us to part company with our friend Junius, for the present; not, however, without hope of resuming intercourse at some future time. Before parting we would like to ask him to keep us posted in "the progress that" is being "made in the way of roads and bridges on Kauai, Maui, and Hawaii;" because he can show us the "improvements" on those islands in a brighter light than our correspondents who reside there. Our youth and circumscribed experience cannot fail to be benefitted by contact with the age and large experience of one who "travels around the islands occasionally;" and if he should ever again leave this island and go so far as Wailuku to witness the trial of a steam plow, our "young man" would crave the privilege of joining him.

THE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Re-assembled on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, when Dr. Hyde read a paper from Mr. Olesen on the use of teaching Hawaiians elementary English. Mr. Moore followed with a paper on methods of teaching. A good discussion followed each.

On Wednesday morning, after prayer by Dr. Hyde, the minutes were read. Mr. Baldwin gave an excellent prelude to Miss Sheeley's paper on the Tonic Solfa. Dr. Hyde followed with remarks on Industrial Schools for Hawaiian boys. He read the following resolution: "Resolved, that the maintenance of an Industrial School for boys should be a part of the educational system of the Hawaiian Islands, and that the pressing needs of this large and important element in the rising generation of Hawaiian youth present. A strong appeal to the enlightened Christian liberality of our wealthy citizens to equip and endow such an institution." A strong discussion followed, and Miss Norton made a few remarks on the education of Hawaiian girls.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Nettie Merrill will be hauled up after the Mokoli.

The James Makee brought 957 bags of sugar.

HONOLULU, Jan. 2, 1882.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Would you be so kind as to insert a notice in your paper, that it is not Archibald Sinclair the brick-layer, but Archibald Sinclair the mate of the bkne Klinkit, that was arrested for opium smuggling. You will oblige, A. SINCLAIR.

LOCAL & GENERAL ITEMS.

The streets ought to be scraped regularly.

Why are the streets not regularly graded for drainage?

"The Mokoli has been hauled up!" "What for?" says the other.

No policeman is to be found from Kawaiahae to Waikiki on King street.

Did you see the pond in Queen street opposite Macfarlane & Co.'s? It ought to be filled up.

Tuesday was Her Majesty the Queen Dowager's birthday. It was celebrated at Waialua.

There were 50 cases heard at the Police Court on Tuesday of which 44 were new and 6 remands, 40 of these arose out of drunkenness.

The steamer Lehua will take the Likeli's route next week; and the Mokoli will take the Lehua's route. The Likeli will be hauled up for repairs.

A PAR in the Sydney Bulletin says:—"It is positively dangerous to ask any member of the victorious Australian eleven if they know Dr. McGrew of Honolulu."

Mr. E. P. Adams will hold today one of the largest credit sales he has held for some time. Those who are in need of the things to be sold will find it to their advantage to attend.

A GENTLEMAN visiting Koolau on New Year's Day says that the road from the top of the Pali to Koolau was lined with drunken natives. Horses, saddles, packs, bundles, and no end of bottles were met with at intervals.

It would facilitate matters much if freight for the island steamers were delivered and taken throughout the week. It could then be stated exactly what hour and minute they would leave. It would also be good for the owners if all freight bills were paid at once instead of waiting for the end of the quarter.

STABLES on King street, opposite the Soap Works, are now being put up for expresses and horses to be hired during the Coronation. It is said that this is a private speculation of a high personage, who thus enters into competition with persons who have to contribute of their earnings to support him.

At the regular meeting held by the members of Pacific Hose Co. No. 1, at their rooms on Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the Company for the ensuing term: M. D. Monsarrat, Foreman; J. Asch, Asst. Foreman; E. A. Williams, Treasurer; J. E. Wiseman, Secretary.

MR. CRUZAN

I was struck the other evening on entering Fort Street Church to see such a large and attentive congregation. It is something unusual in these days of hurry and excitement to find a congregation, old and young alike of which, sit quiet and eager listeners through the whole of church time; but so it was on this and all other occasions on which I visited this church. The secret I thought must be with the preacher, and so it proved. Quiet and unassuming of manner, plain and homely of speech his power to hold attention lies wholly in his earnestness. For a young man his face is thoughtful and serious even stern. A stranger involuntarily wonders if he can ever cast aside the responsibility of his great task, and be gay and merry hearted like other men. His voice capable of good modulation, is yet somewhat monotonous in tone, and on an English ear peculiarities of pronunciation and expression are apt to grate somewhat harshly; but in his moments of impassioned fervor, as he grows eloquent with the subject in hand, these trivial matters of detail are lost sight-of—you forget to criticize, you allow yourself to be swayed under the power of an eloquence, born as true eloquence ever is of truth and earnest feeling. A habit this gentleman has of "addressing the floor," "if I may so express it" must always mar the beauty of his discourse. The preacher at all times is placed at a disadvantage to the general speaker, in that he has to bend over and speak down to his audience, in doing this the vocal chords become depressed and the voice weak and indistinct, more especially is this noticeable when the speaker half turns from his audience and in metaphors seems to address that part of the floor lying nearest his feet at such times, it would appear that he more soliloquizes with himself, than speaks to his hearers, and much of the impressiveness of the language is lost in the endeavour to catch the words and their meaning. No one on Sunday evening, could listen to that powerful and thoroughly manly address without feeling, not only the solemnity of the subject, but being aroused by the preachers simple yet touching earnestness. I have heard many lectures and sermons on that particular subject, but I never yet heard it dealt with in such telling language, nor the fearful effects of the demon drink painted with such terrible truth. All honor to the man who is not afraid to speak out for conscience sake, who fears not to speak his mind in language plain, and stern, and clear, who sets himself a noble task and sees ever before him a high and Christ-like mission nor turns aside, nor for praises, nor place. Personally, Mr. Cruzan is unknown to me. As a visitor to your beautiful city, I have felt great interest in listening to his address the few times I have been privileged to hear him, and believing him to be an earnest and upright worker in his cause, this tribute of gratitude may not be amiss although coming from A STRANGER.

TWO OFFICES TO LET, on the second floor of the building occupied by J. W. Robertson & Co. 139

A Card to the Public.

A CERTAIN statement emanating from Chas. J. Fishel, in his advertisement in one of our native papers, has appeared in several issues of late, wherein he basely uses my name, setting forth to the public that he can undersell me, and soliciting patronage in this cunning, scheming way. I desire to warn the public of his baseness and to convince all that my goods are always marked down to bed rock prices, and I cannot be undersold by said Fishel, besides my goods are always fresh and new.

Respectfully,
A. M. MELLIS, Proprietor,

THURSDAY, JAN. 4, 1883.

The Coon, and the Clam and the Hare.

A Clam, who was taking a ramble over the meadows one day, met a Hare, and after remarking that winter would soon be here, he added:

"Oh, by the way, I wanted to say that I don't believe in Christianity."

"You don't?"

"No, nor in the Bible."

"Is it possible?"

"And I may as well add that I have become an infidel."

"Dear, dear me!" gasped the Hare, and with tears in her eyes she argued and coaxed and pleaded and reasoned with the Clam to change his views. She was still wasting her breath when along came the Coon and called out:

"Good-day to both. Why these tears, Mrs. Hare?"

The Hare explained, and the Coon turned to the Clam and inquired:
"Is it true that you do not believe in a God or a hereafter?"

"Strictly true," was the reply.

"And what if you don't?" continued the Coon. "You are simply one Clam out of billions. What you believe or don't believe won't affect even one blade of grass nor disturb one grain of sand. Please shoulder your opinions and move out of the path."—Detroit Free Press.

THE EVILS OF PAINTING

And their Remedy.

"It has been said with much truth, too, that house painting might, with study and acquirement of taste, resume its rank as a liberal art."—Painters' Manual.

Believing the above to be true, A. B.
KERR has now re-organized his system of working the business in Honolulu.
In the first place he has secured the services of that celebrated artist, Mr. MAX KONN, formerly of San Francisco, whose work in the line of plain and decorative paper-hanging, frescoing, &c., is up to the present time unsurpassed, and on these Islands has never been equalled.
For house painting jobs first-class mechanics only will be employed. In future patrons can depend upon my filling every order on the most scientific basis known to the trade.

The Sign Painting and Lettering department will be permanently presided over by Mr. GEO. STRATMEYER, (further comment unnecessary.)

P.S.—Send for designs of frescoes for ceiling and cornices. Something new;
and if you want any glass put in call at
