CONSULAR RESIGNATIONS.

The resignation of Mr. J. F. Hackfeld as Consul for Austria-Hungary, practically on account of his connection with large sugar plantations which employ alien labor, is an incident of such importance, in the conditions attaching to our labor system, as to merit attention and to be worthy of emulation and of following by other consuls similarly situated.

To a thorough gentleman with correct instincts the situation must be very anomalous and embarrassing. He is practically called upon to serve two masters whose interests are occasionally diametrically opposed to each other.

A judge is not permitted to participate in a decision of a case in which either he or his relatives or business associates are interested, and yet it has happened that a consul has been placed in the terribly trying position, nominally and indirectly perhaps, of being the employer of labor which labor finds cause to appeal to him, as the representative of his country, to remedy grave abuses perpetrated upon him by the plantation employees employed, nominally and indirectly perhaps, by the consul and his business associates.

It is not right nor just in principle. However upright, noble and highminded a man may be, however pure and honorable may be his intentions and conscience, and however high classed may be his integrity in public and private life, he cannot, as human nature has constructed us, perform these dual duties with perfect satisfaction to himself, his government, or those he has been selected to protect. We are all infallible, and it is very hard to sacrifice self interest for public duty, however conscientious we may be. Like a swimmer with incipient cramp it is difficult with our best and our most virile exertions to throw out of us that insidious feeling which, unless defeated, means loss of life and moral honor.

The high character which Mr. Hackfeld has hitherto enjoyed in this community will be doubly appreciated for the example he has set to the other gentlemen who aspire to discharge duties which practically conflict with each other.

To the theoretical part of the problem there may be a plausible answer, but to the practical one, only one—Resignation. In days of red tapeism consular influence with the home governments is far more potential than private complaints to which too frequently nail-biting, newspaper-reading clerks pay no attention and high officials seldom see.

OUR LAND LAWS.

We have never been able to understand how our Solons could ever pass an act dealing with the disposition of public lands in which the rule of "first come first served" is paramount. To dispose of public lands in the manner of tickets to a theatrical show is preposterous. Before a title to a homestead is given by the agent of the public lands or his deputies a searching enquiry into the intentions and circumstances of the applicant should be made. We are told that the land agents make such enquiries and that blanks are filled up in which answers are given as to the means, nationality and color of the teeth, of the person desiring the land.

As a matter of fact are these statements true and the pledges of the applicants carried out? Is the law complied with? Are there not people, say in Waimea, Hawaii, who have no intention of residing on the homesteads which were granted to them under certain conditions, and who yet hold the lands without improving them and without the slightest effort on behalf of the Government to enforce the contract under which the lands were granted under the idiotic rule of "first come, first served?"

A controversy has recently arisen between a land agent and a citizen. That the agent's story is true we fully believe and that the man who got left was not entitled to the land we are assured of because he never intended to fulfil the conditions imposed by the law or take up a residence on the premises.

The matter has created some feeling among officials and private people interested in public lands and we think it would be the better part of the government to cancel the deed given and put the land up at public auction. We think that all public lands should be sold at auction especially when applications are made which on the face of it are not bona fide. It is true that at an auction sale the capitalist has a great advantage over the man of moderate means, but even at an auction sale property can be sold under certain restrictions and conditions which would virtually bar the capitalist, who was simply speculating, from entering the field.

Fortunately the present laws will soon be a matter of historical interest only and be embalmed with the other traditions in the Bishop Museum.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

We call the attention of our readers, and more especially of such as belong to the learned profession of the law, to an article taken from the New York Herald, in reference to a proposed prosecution for contempt of court. The lay reader may, after reading it, come to some conclusion between the debateable question of electing or appointing judges; which is the wiser.

The new hotel which will be erected on the Peacock premises at Waikiki will be a monument to the fact that we are advancing with giant steps. No better location could be found for a modern hostelry and the name of Mr. Clough, formerly manager of the Del Monte Hotel, who will have charge of the new concern is a guarantee that everything will be up-to-date, even the prices. The plans for the new building have been made by leading architects and the dining room, to be built as a circular lanai, will be a feature full of beauty, romance and—guests.

We trust that the great officials who will visit the Settlement on Molokai to-morrow will make a close investigation in regard to the "poi" trouble which apparently is a permanent source of annoyance to the unfortunate inmates. Listen to the side of the story which may be presented by the men who want to raise taro on the lands belonging to the Settlement, and who now are running up against some arbitrary rule of some petty officials, and by all means let them see that the staple food of the Hawaiians is furnished regularly and in abundance to the people who have been segregated under our laws wise or otherwise, just or unjust.

Tramways Rights.

The Attorney-General has filed opinions with the Cabinet that the Hawaiian Tramways Company has a right to double track its lines, and that the Rapid Transit Company may lay its railway on a section of King street, petitioned for. This will be a great public inconvenience.

The Great Kahuna.

A Fine Drill.

The monthly parade of the police force took place this morning, and was witnessed by Attorney-General Cooper and Marshal Brown.

The foot police was under the command of Captain Parker who is the best drill master in the country, and Captain Spillner directed the movements of the mounted patrol.

When the drill was finished the Attorney-General inspected the cells and office and expressed himself highly satisfied with the condition of the bureau under his supervision. Then he hired a hack at the expense of the taxpayers and took a ride with the marshal.

THE BADGER ARRIVES.

Hon. Bartlett Tripp and Baron Von Sternburg, Samoan Commissioners, on Board.

The U. S. Badger, flying the German as well as the American flag, entered port yesterday afternoon. She has on board the returning members of the special Samoan Commission, Hon. Judge Bartlett Tripp of the United States and Baron von Sternburg of Germany. The third member, Hon. C. N. E. Elliott, the British Commissioner, left Apia for England via New Zealand prior to the sailing of the Badger.

Commissioner Tripp reports that matters are peaceable at Samoa and that no further trouble may be anticipated, as more than 450 of the chiefs have given their adherence to the new form of government. The U. S. Consul Osborn, H. B. M.'s Consul Hunter, and Mr. Gunow, the German representative, can readily control affairs.

It is believed that the Badger will sail for San Francisco on Saturday, as she has only about 200 tons of coal to take on board.

The Badger's officers are as follows: Commander James M. Miller; lieutenant commander, J. B. Milton; lieutenant, T. D. Griffin; surgeon, O. D. Norton; P. A. engineer, W. C. Herbert; captain, N. H. Hall, U. S. M. C.; ensigne, R. R. Belknap, J. R. Y. Blakeley and Yates Stirling; naval cadet, F. Morrison; assistant paymaster, H. P. Ash; pay clerk, W. A. Hopkins; boatswain, W. A. Cooper; carpenter, J. A. O'Connor; mate, C. Larson.

An Excellent Picture

In the Art Gallery of J. J. Williams is a very fine picture in colors, recently finished, of Colonel W. H. Cornwell. Mr. Cornwell, who is one of our most popular kamaainas, is represented in his uniform as an officer of the royal staff and wearing his decorations and in full regalia.

The photograph from which the picture was taken was by Mr. J. J. Williams in the trying days of 1893, when Mr. Cornwell was Minister of Finance and stood boldly up in defense of the Monarchy to the last moment, when foolish advice and treason prevailed, and the Queen, against the wish of Colonel Cornwell, surrendered her crown.

The picture of Colonel Cornwell is a work of art which reflects great credit on Mr. J. J. Williams.

Of course it is necessary for us to criticize it, and we admit that those who see the picture and don't know the Colonel would estimate his age at about 22 and credit the expression of his eyes to a sale in Kihel after the "fall" or to a failure in negotiating with a Kula Chinaman.

We who know him find the likeness excellent and the Colonel as handsome as ever.

At the Orpheum.

Another full house greeted the performance at the Orpheum last night. An excellent program was rendered and everybody had a jolly time. The Orpheum is every day becoming more and more popular and Jim Post, the manager, is entitled to all the praise which is showered on him for securing such excellent talent. Mr. Desky's flute is as breezy as the Pacific Heights.

Consul Hackfeld Resigns.

Mr. J. F. Hackfeld has resigned the Consulship for Austria-Hungary, owing to his connection with sugar plantations employing contract laborers. Mr. F. A. Schaefer, Dean of the Consular corps, temporarily takes charge of the Consulate affairs.

"Gran'pop," he began, turning the leaves of his book, "did your history use to say that the Spaniards settled this country?"

"I believe it did, my boy," "Well, the new ones won't say that." "What will they say, Ostend?" "This country settled the Spaniards." Then grandpop gave him a dime.—Brooklyn Life.

KAISER WILHELM ON YACHT- ING.

Says He Hopes the Sport of Sailing
Will Strengthen Interest in German Enterprise Abroad

LUBECK, Saturday.—Emperor William, in celebrating the week's end at the yacht club
luncheon here today, said:

"I hope the founding of the Lubeck Yacht Club is a token of the tendency of the nation to seek its future more and more upon the water. The lead in this was naturally taken by the Hansa towns, especially by Lubeck, where every inch of ground relates historic volumes. I hope the blossoming sport of sailing will continue to strengthen the interest in German enterprise abroad and promote the training of sailors. I hope that the flag of my grandfather, like that of Nelson, will not only be tied, but be nailed to the mast, and may it only be lowered again when God pleases, and then with honor."
