OLD SPAIN AND THE MISSIONARY WORK.

Letter From Wm. H. Gulick to Mrs. Coan of Honolulu.

READ TO HONOLULU M. C. SOCIETY

Regrets at Decrease of Appropriations
From American Board—The Feeling Against the United States—Good Results From Two Young Students.

The following letter from W. H. Gulick, a missionary residing in Spain, was read at the last meeting of the Hawaiian Mission Children's Society, and is of interest to the old residents
on the Islands:

SAN SEBASTIAN, April 30, 1896.
Mrs. L. B. Coan, Corresponding Secretary, M. C. Society, Honolulu:

My Dear Mrs. Coan—I think that I may truly say that never before in my life have I been so pressed with work and cares as I have been the four months of this year. The reduction on the appropriations for our missionary work has been so great that much time and strength have been spent in seeking funds outside of the constituency of the American Board, so as to be able to retain the work that we now have in hand. In this, however, we have been only partially successful, though having received two or three very generous gifts. One of these was from the Hawaiian Islands. We have, in the main, held the work intact, but it has been at the cost of personal sacrifices that we could ill afford to make, and by assuming obligations that have yet to be met—but how we do not yet know.

And then, this embroilment with the United States has brought its peculiar trials and cares. Without attempting to decide as to the merits of the case, we may say that until the controversy respecting the recognition of the belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents was precipitated by the discussions in the Congress at Washington, it was a decided advantage to us to be able to hail from the United States. But since this question has been under discussion —commencing the first of February—it has been the part of wisdom for us to keep as much as possible in retirement.

The explosion of feeling throughout Spain was something wonderful. Instantly the floodgates of wrath were opened, and such a torrent of abuse was poured out upon the Yankees as for a fortnight or more made it seem probable that before it stopped it would sweep us across the frontier into France. In no other place in Spain are Americans at all "in evidence" as we are here—our school being known throughout the country as El Colegio Norte Americano.

But, while for a month the tension was very great, it was evident that only a little more and there would be a catastrophe, by exercising great prudence the crisis was averted, and we are now sailing on more quiet waters.

And just here I must say that, personally, no one of us has suffered any harm, nor hardly an insult. In this family of some fifty young Spanish women and girls—than which a more patriotic group could nowhere be found —the self-restraint and the consideration for the feelings of the unfortunate "Americans" in their midst has been something very beautiful and noteworthy. No better proof could be given of the genuine love and respect that they have for those whom they gratefully recognize as unselfishly giving their lives to bring the benefits of the Gospel to Spain.

And the same must be said of the pastors and evangelists and other employees of the mission. Not a word has been said or written by any one of them but in the kindest and most grateful spirit.

In view of all this we most deeply regret that the reduction of remittances from the American Board should come just now, for in spite of our best efforts all the laborers have suffered for lack of funds the last two months, and notwithstanding our assurances to the contrary, we know that they cannot help thinking that probably the feeling in the United States against Spain is, in part at least, the cause of their suffering. Never could there be a more in-opportune time to cut down our work in Spain; and, God helping us, we will not do it!

In the whole range of this work we were never more encouraged than we are now. I will not take space in this letter to recount cases in one and another and still another of our congregations that prove the deep and genuine work of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of many who have accepted the Gospel at our hands. I must, however, tell of the success of

OUR TWO UNIVERSITY GIRLS
at Madrid. Two of our students who,
in 1894, had taken the degree of Bachelor of Arts in San Sebastian, continued their studies for the University degree of "Licenciado en Filosofia y Letras," which corresponds to that of Master of Arts.

Mrs. Gulick made special inquiries of the professors of the University of Madrid as to what would be necessary for our pupils to do, as students not under official instruction. In some of the studies she was able to secure a "programme" prepared by the professor, indicating the line of work to be followed during the year in his classes. In others this was impossible, as the professors would lecture on different subjects, and the students under official instruction would be examined on the subject matter of the lectures. It so happened that the very studies for which there was no official "programme" were those that belong to Mrs. Gulick's department of instruction in our school, and this threw upon her, therefore, the difficult task of preparing the girls for examination in General Literature, Philosophy, Metaphysics and Spanish Literature, with no idea of the methods of teaching of the professors or of the character and extent of the examinations required.

Mrs. Gulick writes about this: "The year has been one of no little anxiety.
We were risking much. Failure would be serious, for the growing reputation of the school would suffer."

"In May of the present year, 1895, Miss Webb and I went again to Madrid to matriculate the two girls, Esther Alonso and Juliana Campo, in the University. We were not able to stay to the examinations, and so the girls telegraphed us the result of each as it took place. Our emotion can be imagined when we received the first telegram: 'Two sobresalientes,' which means 'leaping over everything.' The final record was sobresaliente in all, namely, in General Literature, Greek, Universal History, Philosophy and Metaphysics—ten examinations, and the highest marks that the University can give in all of them!

"Esther Alonso writes: 'After congratulating us, the professors asked with whom we had studied. We told them that our professors were women.
How surprised they were. 'Women!'
Then they asked us where we had studied, and we told them with professors from the United States. When they asked us who the lady was who accompanied us at first, and we told them she was our director, who had taught us the study in which we had just been examined—Metaphysics. They said such flattering things to us that we are ashamed to repeat them, but you can imagine them.

"After our examination in Universal History we were waiting in the office of the Secretary to know the result, when the professor himself came in and told us that the other two members of the tribunal had insisted on giving us
"sobresaliente." He added, laughing:
"I did not intend to give you such a good mark, for you are enemies of my Catholic God."

"Sr. Salmeron said that we and the young lady who had been studying in the University are the three notabili-ties this year. The professors also asked many questions about the school—the number of teachers, languages taught, manner of living, and finally the address of our school in San Sebastian."

So, step by step, the Lord is leading us onward, we hardly know to what goal, but we are sure that it is to a position of greater and still greater influence for the good of women in Spain.
My prayer and my heart's desire is that you shall be sustained and guided and blessed in them all.

And I am, as always, very sincerely, your cousin, WM. H. GULICK.

OAHU OFFERS GOOD THINGS FOR COFFEE

Land in Waianae Range of Mountains Quite Suitable.

AHRENS' PLANTATION AT WAIANAE

B. F. Dillingham Grows Enthusiastic.
Samples of the Berries—Sixty Acres of Trees—Opportunities for Laborers—Development of Oahu must come

B. F. Dillingham came into the Advertiser office Tuesday noon bearing triumphantly two magnificent coffee branches laden with two or three hundred good healthy looking coffee berries and wanted to know what was the matter with the coffee plantations of the island of Oahu.

Mr. Dillingham is nothing if not an active advocate of the development of this island, and the tribute which he brought the Advertiser was indeed good evidence that Oahu is not to be entirely shut out of the coffee industry.
Mr. Dillingham was fresh from a trip to the coffee plantation conducted by manager Ahrens of the Waianae sugar plantation. The section Mr. Ahrens has under cultivation is in one of the many gulches that run mauka from the sugar fields. The land is rocky and to all appearance not adapted to any kind of cultivation—except coffee.
The land rises to a height of about 1700 feet and the coffee fields are protected from the strong trade winds by an almost perpendicular ridge some 2500 feet high that runs along the head of the gulch. It is in this unpromising valley that Mr. Ahrens has put in sixty acres of coffee and has 3500 trees in various stages of development. The trees from which Mr. Dillingham plucked his exhibition branches are three years old and according to Robert Rycroft, the Puna coffee grower, are among the best looking trees in the whole country. It is anticipated that fully six tons of coffee can be taken off the trees this year. On one of the primaries which Mr. Dillingham gave his special attention he counted 174 berries and he estimates that six pounds of coffee will be gathered from the three old trees.

"Now that just shows you," remarked the railway manager, "what Oahu can do. There is any quantity of just such land as Mr. Ahrens is cultivating on this island and what I want is for these local coffee lands to be developed. Just look about you for a little.
There is Lowe's coffee ranch further along the Waianae range; there is coffee growing in Waialua and around in Kahuku. Coffee will grow in Manoa valley and plenty of other places on the island.

"I tell you there's no reason in the wide world why this island should not produce 100,000 tons of coffee annually.
Then here's another point. Look at the women and children in Honolulu that the coffee grower has to draw upon for labor. They could take the train out of Honolulu in the morning, work during the day and return at night. Why it would be fun for more than one thousand Portuguese families to say nothing of the money they would add to the family till.

"I've got nothing against the development of the other islands. I want to see the whole country go ahead, but I don't see why these coffee growers here at home are letting opportunities slip through their fingers that are right under their very noses. Land is cheap and we want here just what they have on the other islands, a few progressive men to go ahead and make the business go. Look at the money locked up in this town. Just ponder awhile over the personal incomes that will reach and go beyond the hundred thousand dollar mark this year, and then look around you and contemplate how much land there is on this island that is practically going to waste. I tell you what it is the people here want to look about them a little and take run up a few of these coffee lands on the island of Oahu."

Under Two Flags.

There was a flattering audience present at the second performance of "Under Two Flags" given by Company B at the drill shed last night. The best of the front seats to the number of nearly 300 were occupied by the best of Honolulu people.

The performance was excellent, except by far the first performance. The parts were well taken and there was an absence to a great extent of that species of stage fright.

VENEZUELA BOUNDARY.

Classifying Information Received by the Commission.

Libraries Throughout the United States Searched for Information.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—During the past month the work of the Venezuela Boundary Commission has entered on a new stage. Heretofore the efforts of the Commissioners have been directed mainly to securing the evidence upon which the final report is to be based.
The work from now on will largely consist of classifying the information already obtained.

The British Government, it is presumed, has put into its two voluminous Blue Books all the information upon which it relies in support of its claims.
The Venezuelan Government has done the same thing in its three volumes of transcripts from the Spanish archives.
Independently of this, the Commission has been searching on its own account.
The Congressional Library in Washington and many public and private libraries in various parts of the country have been ransacked for historical and cartographical information. The archives at The Hague have been gone through with a thoroughness that not even the zeal of Great Britain or Venezuela has heretofore attempted, and as a result important documents which the world thought lost or destroyed have been unearthed. The work, although not yet terminated, is nearing completion.

For some months past Sir Clements
R. Markham, president of the Royal Geographical Society, has been in correspondence with the secretary of the Commission and has furnished valuable information on the subject of the Schomburgh line, accompanying it with copies of maps on file in the Colonial Office, some of which have never been published. While information is looked for from Rome, from The Hague, and possibly from other places, the bulk of the evidence is in, and the question now is to determine what that evidence establishes.

In order to solve this problem, a number of preliminary reports are being prepared. Among these may be mentioned special reports from the geographical and physical characteristics of the region in dispute; reports upon the evidence presented by the 300 or more maps which have been published; reports upon the facts of occupancy and settlement, as given by the historians, and separate reports upon the same facts as developed by the documents from Dutch and Spanish archives; critiques upon the arguments of the British and Venezuelan governments as these appear in the British Blue Book and in the Venezuelan briefs. These reports are being prepared by the Commissioners, for the most part, at their respective summer homes.

President Brewer spent several days this week at the office of the Commission in Washington. He was joined on Thursday by Mr. Mallet-Prevost, the secretary, and the two spent the day in consultation. President Brewer has gone on to his home in Vermont, and the secretary will remain for some days in Washington.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Political Pot Bubbles.

HOT SHOT FOR POPULISTS.

Populism is falsely founded as regards the principles of government, and it is not likely to be successful. Even those who have solicited and procured legislation in the interest of capital see the danger of government interference magnified in this new attempt to apply it, and if they become more thoughtful and less immediately selfish, this will be a warning to them against the course they have been following. The lesson they have taught the Populists may logically return to plague the inventor. The safety, as regards the success of Populism now, is in the extravagant claims it makes for Government aid. Its more enlightened members are seeing this already, and we understand their counsel has prevailed so far that the scheme for a sub-treasury from which it was proposed that the Government should lend money to the people at a low rate of interest, is abandoned.—Boston Herald.

KENTUCKY POLITICAL STRAWS.

Here is a political straw that is quite out of the ordinary. The day the Louisville Courier Journal sent its reporters among the Democratic business men of that city to find out how they feel in respect to the platform and ticket of the Chicago convention. None but Democrats were interviewed, all politicians and professional men being ignored. Of the 225 questioned, 155 declared themselves squarely against the ticket and said they would not support it. Of the remaining 70 Democrats 40 were non-committal, while only 30 less than one-seventh, declared that they would support Bryan.—Boston Evening Record.

TRUST THE PEOPLE.

Let us trust the people. Let us reason with them and teach them. There remain over a hundred days before the election. Newspapers and orators have all that time in which to expose the delusion that has led these men astray. In the meantime, let us remember that they are not anarchists, but American fellow citizens, most of them honest and sincere and patriotic in their intentions, though mistaken and imposed upon by twenty years of false teaching. The Republic is safe. Nobody has fired upon the flag or is getting his gun to do so. Some of our fellow Americans have adopted a dangerous policy. That is all. Their defeat at the polls will end their delusion, and their defeat will be much more easily and surely accomplished by discussion than it could be by the use of unjust and excited epithets. Trust the people!—New York World.

"The fact that the grandfather of Candidate Arthur Sewall, Sam Smith, was the Judge before whom some of the Salem witches were tried and convicted, may have no bearing upon affairs of the present, but it is history just the same," remarked a politician at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York the other day. Any one who wants to get at the root of his family tree can do so by securing a nomination.

To our mind the most dangerous feature of the Chicago platform is the sixteenth paragraph, which directly assaults at once the judiciary and the national executive for their efforts at the suppression of anarchy in the time of the Chicago strike riots of 1894. Every man, no matter what his station or calling, who is not ready to surrender government to the whim of the mob, must utterly condemn the infamous plank in a weak and bad platform.—Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times.

Bicycles will cut a great big figure in political demonstrations this fall. An attachment has been invented which will safely carry an ordinary kerosene torchlight. It is probable, however, that lanterns will have the call over tin lamps, because the effect is prettier and the unpleasant odor of burning oil is done away with. Already these attachments are being manufactured in large quantities here. Whether the campaign managers will purchase wheels for the shouters is a horse of another color.

MRS. HOBART'S TELEGRAM.

When Hon. Garret A. Hobart was nominated at St. Louis for vice president, one of the first messages of congratulation he received was from Mrs. Hobart in Paterson. She telegraphed her husband in this pretty fashion:

"Ruth I, 16.
The formula employed by Mrs. Hobart has no relation to the ratio of 1 to 16, or 16 to 1. It simply indicates the well-known text in the Bible wherein Ruth says:
"Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge."—New York Sun.

BELIEVES IN WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

There is no limitation to the influence that may be exerted by woman in the United States, and no adequate tribute can be spoken of her services to mankind throughout its long and eventful history. In the distant period of settlement, in the day of revolution, in the trials of western pioneer life, during the more recent but dread days of our civil war, and indeed in every step of our progress as a nation, the devotion and sacrifices of woman were constantly apparent and often conspicuous.—Gov. McKinley in Speech to Cleveland Women.

THAT POLITICAL UNREST.

We are not among those who believe that every disturbance of the business of the nation is to be laid at the door of the government. If men would give their attention more to the correction of their individual mistakes, and would inform themselves more carefully as regards the laws of business, and study more attentively the condition of business in the world about them, they would find that there is a great deal in business depression that government has neither cause nor can cure. But the currency is an exception here. This nation has prospered under high and under low tariffs, and it is hardly in the power of any tariff to impede materially its own march in this direction. With the currency it is different. The currency is the life-blood of business, and it is in the power of the government to poison it. The people are suffering now from the fear that it may be poisoned. The main purpose of those who are striving for sound principles in this campaign is to avert that calamity, and to remove apprehension that it may be visited upon the nation. It is this which is breaking up parties today, and which must cause men who have not acted together before to present a united front in the coming election.

THE ARIZONA KICKER

SOME OF THE EDITOR'S ADVENTURES DESCRIBED BY M. QUAD.

John Hope, an Editor Without Sand—Clay Hill Was Against a Railroad—A Shooting Scrape That Was a Disgraceful Fiasco and an Injury to Town.

Two months ago Mr. John Hope came out here from Indiana and established the Blue Hill Record. We suspected what sort of a man he was from the looks of his paper and the care he took not to tread on anybody's corns, but we did not have the pleasure of meeting him until last Tuesday. Then, being in Blue Hill on business, we dropped into The Record office. We found Mr. Hope to be a fat man, with side whiskers and about as much sand as a cucumber.

During the hour we were in the office a man came in and slapped his jaws, two men came in and booted him around the shop, and a fourth took him by the SHOOK A DOLLAR OUT OF HIS CLOTHES. side whiskers and shook a dollar out of his clothes to get drunk on. When we asked Mr. Hope why he didn't shoot, he sat down and cried like a girl. He may possibly bring out two more issues of his paper, but his going is only a question of days, and when he goes it will be on foot and with his hair on end. The great west is a good newspaper field, but lambs and angels who come out here to run a paper make a great mistake.

No Railroad Wanted.

By invitation of the mayor, aldermen and most of the eminent citizens of Clay Hill, we went over to that town Thursday evening to deliver a railroad speech. Clay Hill wants a railroad as bad as a jack rabbit wants hind legs, and we had it all figured out to a cent as to the benefits she would receive. We have made a good many good speeches, but that was to be the speech of our life. We were introduced by the mayor in a few glowing remarks which tickled our vanity, and we never felt more like skimming the cream off the milk of oratory than when we pulled down our vests and stepped forward with a "Fellow citizens."

We haven't been able to find out what ailed the audience of 200 men, but we hadn't spoken ten words when it became evident that something was wrong. The first missile struck us on the lower vest button, and the second in the neck. After that they became so thick that we didn't keep track of where they landed. Three minutes from the time we made our bow we were out of the back door and on our cayuse, and we didn't tarry to guess any conundrums. That's where we differ from most orators. We know when to cut off short and go home. The mayor has forwarded his apologies, but he need not have troubled himself. The Clay Hillers don't want a railroad and don't want us, and that's all there is to it, and they can go hang themselves.

A Good Deal of Smoke.

In attempting to shoot the end off a cigar between the teeth of Sam Clay at the postoffice last Wednesday afternoon old Jim Hewson made a slight error in his calculations and carried away the tip of Jim's nose. It is a nose wrinkled with age and reddened with whiskey and not worth 15 cents as noses go, but old Jim was foolish enough to get mad about it and open fire. As soon as the fun began Major Hope, Colonel White, Tom Jackson and several others joined in, and for five minutes there was a constant pop, pop, pop of revolvers. When the smoke cleared away, Bob Shingle's yaller dog lay dead in the road—the only thing touched by the dozens of bullets fired. Things have indeed come to a pretty pass in this town, and our individual advice to every man of that crowd is to go hang himself. Another such fiasco as that and real estate won't sell for a dollar an acre.

Not as a Jim Dandy.

A young man in Rhode Island writes us that he is going to take in the great west this summer and that this town is on his list, providing we think it safe for him to show up here in a plug hat, red necktie and russet shoes. If that is the rig he intends to don when he visits us, he'd better not come. This is a growing town—a healthy town—a town which is bound to boom and become a second Chicago, but it is no place for Jim Dandies—not yet. Fifty years hence a man can put on link cuff buttons and yaller kid gloves and stalk up and down and swing a goldheaded cane, but such a thing now—well! Pass our town by, young man. Don't come within 50 miles of it!

It Didn't Work.

Last Tuesday a party arrived in town and set up a side show in which the Kentucky fat boy was the principal attraction, although a three legged kangaroo was supposed to hold him a close second. It was soon discovered that the kangaroo was a stuffed Japanese dog, and that that fat boy, who was advertised to weigh 880 pounds, was padded out with hay or some other substance. Some of the audience wanted to feel of him to make sure that all was above board, but this the showman would not permit. Soon after his refusal the ball opened.

Soon after the ball opened the air was thick with the flying fur of the kangaroo, the fat boy was dusting down the river road, and the showman was disappearing into the woods to the east. Somebody set fire to the tent, which was totally consumed, and then the joyful crowd enthusiastically dispersed. We are a backwoods town and a primitive people, but three legged dogs and stuffed boys can't pull the wool over Uncle Joshua's eyes at 15 cents admission. A spotted cow might be worked off on us for a rhinoceros from South Africa, but even then the showman ought to have the Lord's Prayer ready at hand.

Not the Whisky.

The coroner's jury in the case of Bill Wilcox, who dropped dead Thursday evening after taking a drink at the Last Chance saloon, decided that it was not the whisky which brought about the sad end. Bill had been drinking the same brand for 14 years, and although the vitriol in it would eat up a hairpin in ten minutes the coating of his stomach was supposed to be proof against any action of any sort of acid. He probably had some heart trouble. We think it must be so, because he asked for a drink to be "chalked down," and to his great amazement it was handed out. The surprise must have brought about a fatal shock to the nervous system. The deceased was a harmless critter, who never even kicked about the weather, and we hope he's brought up in a temperate climate.

M. QUAD.

Providing Against Emergencies.

"Say," said the cashier, who was firmly bound to the chair, "would you mind tying me a little tighter?"

"Whaffur?" was the suspicious rejoinder from the thief, who was about to make off with his booty.

"And, say, just shoot me through the arm or in the leg or somewhere before you go, will you?"

"N't. I ain't goin to make no noise here."

"Well, then just knock me silly with a sandbag."

"What's the matter? Don't get fresh with me, or I'll strangle you."

"That might do just as well. You see, the paying teller was found sewed up like this two years ago with $8,000 gone, and they found that he could have got loose any time he tried, so they gave him ten years for doing the job."—Detroit News.

In No Danger.

Mrs. Minks (severely)—George, there is an account in the paper about a business man leaving his wife and running off with a pretty typewriter girl.

Mr. Minks—Indeed!

"Yes, and it's the third account of the kind I've seen this week."

"That doesn't interest me."

"It does me. You have a pretty typewriter girl in your office."

"No, we haven't. My partner eloped with her last week."—New York Weekly.

Not Laying Down His Arms.

"Bolt, sir?" said the statesman, turning and glancing at the interviewer.

"Did I understand you to ask me whether I intend to bolt?"

"That was the question. I thought perhaps you might feel that you had not been well treated."

"However that may be, I shall not bolt. I shall stay inside the party, where I can make trouble."—Washington Star.

The Urchin and the Admiral.

[A fable.]

A little prickly urchin swam gaily on the tide. As it puffed itself with pride, And smiled to see it stab the ball So very vengeancefully, "Oh, I'm of greater consequence Than any in the sea," Sang the little prickly urchin. "They can't Touch Me!"

The urchin loved to dig his spines In every fish that passed, To prick the tender seaweed Till it dropped and died at last. "The one who dares presume to cross My pathway in the sea," Sang the little prickly urchin. "Better not Touch Me!"

One day a gallant admiral Went sailing o'er the tide. He saw the prickly urchin As it puffed itself with pride, And smiled to see it stab the ball So very vengeancefully, As though in puny warning— "Better not Touch Me!"

The ship went sailing to its port Upon its ocean way, And the admiral forgot about The little passing play. But the little prickly urchin Sang, proud as proud could be: "I'll show him who he's crossing! Better not Touch Me!"

—New York Press.

PUZZLE NO. 2.

Mr. Armstrong Smith, the well known teacher, submits the above for solution. The idea is to make two straight cuts and have the pieces form a perfect square. Answers will be received up to Friday.

Almost a Tragedy.

The car stopped at Hillside avenue to allow a big, pompous looking man to get on. There was but one seat in the car that was not occupied by a passenger, and that was filled by an enormous bundle, beside which sat a little quiet looking man reading a copy of The Windmill.

"I want that seat," remarked the big man abruptly.

"All right," responded the little one. "Why don't you take it?"

"Well, take that bundle out of it," growled the other.

"Guess not," sentimentally remarked the man in the seat.

Whereupon the seeker for a seat called the conductor, who informed the little man that if he did not at once remove the bundle he would be thrown out into the street.

"All right," said he. "Fire away!"

The big man and the conductor seized him and were about to push him through the door when a man sitting opposite, just awakening to the situation, looked up and said:

"Oh, I beg pardon, that's my bundle. Did you want it removed?"

Then the little one wondered how much he would have recovered in a damage suit if he had been thrown off the car, and the big man sat down while his collar wilted and turned over half way around his neck. —West Medford Windmill.

The Town's Crooked Dividing Line.

"There is a reason for most everything," said a Cumberland county man when he was asked how in the world they came to have such a crooked line between two towns in his county.

"There's a reason for this crooked line. You see, some of our towns established in pioneer times, when land was abundant and people were few, had a big territory, which was afterward sliced off to make new towns. It was so in the case you mention, and when the cut off was made people along the line of division were of different minds as to which town they wanted to be in. So the legislature drew a straight line between the two parts and then provided that persons dwelling on lands adjoining either side of this line might be in one town or the other, as they should decide within 90 days after passing the act. Some went one way and some the other, and the line was all skewed up to accommodate them." —Lewistown Journal.

The Luminous Sea Crab.

One of the marine curiosities recently fished from the bottom of the Indian ocean by a dredging vessel in the employ of the Calcutta Society of Natural History was a mammoth sea crab which continually emitted a bright white light similar to that seen in the sporadic flashes of phosphorescent luminosity kindled by our common fireflies. The oddity was captured in daytime and placed in a large tank, nothing peculiar except its immense size being noticeable in the broad glare of the tropical sun. At night, however, when all was in pitchy darkness, the crab surprised the naturalists by lighting up the tank so that all the other sea creatures, great and small, occupying the same tank could be plainly seen. When the luminous crustacean was prodded with a pole, he emitted flashes of lights which enabled the experimenters to read small print, even though otherwise they were in total darkness. —St. Louis Republic.

Out of the Public.

When I was a very little boy, writes Sir William Gregory in his autobiography, my grandfather, who was then under secretary for Ireland, took me to the chief secretary's room in Dublin castle and formally introduced me to Lord Melbourne.

After I had been with him for some little time he said, "Now, my boy, is there anything here you would like?"

"Yes," I answered, pointing to a very large stick of sealing wax.

"That's right," said Lord Melbourne, pressing on me a bundle of pens, "begin life early. All these things belong to the public, and your business must always be to get out of the public as much as you can." —Pearson's Weekly.

WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26,

President Cleveland, in his latest proclamation warning the citizens of the United States against violation of the neutrality laws, says that any combination of persons organized in the United States for the purpose of proceeding to and making war against a foreign country with which the United States is at peace, and provided with arms to be used for such purpose, constitutes a "military expedition or enterprise" within the meaning of the neutrality laws, and that the providing or preparing of the means for such "military expedition or enterprise," which is expressly prohibited by said laws, includes furnishing or aiding in transportation for such "military expedition or enterprise." We are pleased to note the flat-footed manner in which President Cleveland declares himself, but it is strange that he failed to discover this interpretation of the law some twelve or fourteen months after the Wahlberg affair.

INSPECTION OF SCHOOLS.

The hue and cry that has been raised against the health regulation that requires the school children and teachers to obtain a health certificate seems entirely unnecessary, and in fact not in keeping with the best interests of the community at large. The health conditions are such in many districts that it is quite necessary to keep a careful watch upon the children attending the schools, where they are thrown into close contact with each other in their play and also in the school room, where books and slates are exchanged promiscuously. Some people may maintain that they can see no element of danger in these facts, but at the same time there are still others who have quite as good a right to be heard who do see a possible danger arising from the mingling together of children of different nationalities and from homes where the sanitary precautions are not up to the usual standard of the more advanced Anglo-Saxon. This may be classed as the sentimental side of the proposition, but nevertheless the guardians of public health are positive of the necessity of protecting the school children, and their opinion is by no means based on sentiment.

Furthermore, the regulation of the Board is not necessarily irksome, since a certificate signed by any licensed physician is accepted. Those employing private physicians need have no fear of the interference of the Government officials. The Government physicians examine those who are unable to employ private physicians; and indeed the Government has gone so far as to employ a lady physician to assist in the school inspection, in order to allay objections that might be raised in many families.

Taken all in all, objection to the school inspection seems to be only the result of misguided judgment on the one hand and on the other the natural born tendency to endeavor to throw the light of misrepresentation upon any act of any department of the Government. The inspection is necessitated by the peculiar conditions that exist in the country, and those who object to the liberal interpretation of the rule made by the Board of Health are simply lending their voices to bring about a state of affairs that will react to their own detriment.

ROAD WORK.

A feature of the New Zealand department of labor which was not noted in our previous review in the department report, is the "Cooperative Works." In opening up new roadways the Government gives employment to such men as are desirous of obtaining land holdings in the immediate district. The commissioner remarks that "it appears to be a fact that not only is the work as cheaply done, but as perfectly done as by the tender system. More work in superintendence is required from the Government officers, but the cost of the extra time spent by the staff in doing this is more than made up by the elimination of the middle-man's profit. The moral effect upon the workman should not be lost sight of; it is a pleasure to watch men working straightforwardly for themselves, and not with a continual glance over the shoulder at a master." While it might not be easy to incorporate in this country the New Zealand plan of taking up lands, there is a suggestion in the foregoing that may be noted with profit in allotting the construction of the new roads in outside districts. Wherever it is possible preference should be given the men giving their time and money to the development of lands along the roadway. Contract labor and prison labor serves its purpose in sections where the lands on either side have yet to be reclaimed, but in many districts there are small owners who regard as a streak of good fortune an opportunity to "earn wages" by labor on the roads. It is certainly good business proposition for the Government to aid these men as much as possible. Such a course puts money into the hands of a class of people who need it and as is remarked by the New Zealand commissioner saves the Government the middle-man's profit.

DEVELOPMENT OF OAHU.

Mr. Dillingham speaks a timely word in the interest of the Island of Oahu, as he can always be depended upon to do. There are those who will form the opinion that he paints the picture in too brilliant colors, but it is the men of ultra-enthusiastic ideas who have headed progressive movements in every country. There is no reason why the business men of Honolulu should hold to the idea that Oahu has reached its limit so far as its power of production is concerned, and there is every reason why they should favor the development of new agricultural industries here. Honolulu today is relying altogether too much upon the business gained from the other Islands. Its business men seem to forget oftentimes that the day is coming when in their trade relations the other Islands will become less dependent upon this port. But leaving this question aside, why should good, arable land, suited to the cultivation of sugar and coffee, to say nothing of canaigre and other products which the active mind of Commissioner Marsden may demonstrate the value of, be left for the cattle or lantana to roam over, when by the application of a little money and brains the land can be made to produce a good return? Oahu has the principal port of entry; it is in closer touch with the trans-Pacific trade than any other Island; it has a railroad that will some day tap every coffee gulch and sugar field on the Island, and the cost of handling produce will be much less than in any other district in the country. Why is it, then, that in opening up new districts the pioneer should fail to give this section of the country careful attention? Probably the answer is found in the general disposition of the Anglo-Saxon to seek out the larger fields in which to cut a dash, rather than center attention on matters in the close vicinity. It is for the interest of the Honolulu merchant to favor local development, as by so doing they are in the center of trade that cannot be diverted to other channels. They are now the center of the inter-Island circle, but if they create an Oahu industrial circle, new strength is added to their position.

The reason given that birds do not fall off their perch is because they cannot open the foot when the leg is bent. Look at a hen walking, and you will see it closes its toes as it raises the foot, and opens them as it touches the ground.

Queen Victoria has actually seen the rise and fall of some fifteen governments.

John Cassidy Believes They Will be in General Use Here.

John Cassidy, superintendent of the Government electric lights, is one of the Honoluluites who waxes enthusiastic on the subject of horseless vehicles. In a conversation the other day he remarked that "of all cities he had ever visited none could excel Honolulu for that character of carriages. The streets and roads are adapted to them and believed it was a question of but a short time when they will be in general use here."

"The mill have a beneficial effect in many ways," he said, "and the public will not be slow to recognize it. Rents of residences in the city proper will come down, because with the aid of one of these carriages a man can live with his family on the outskirts of the city and not be under the expense in keeping a horse. As an inducement for people to live in town property owners who lease their houses will have to reduce the rents."

"It would not surprise me at all," he added, "to see the prices of these new ideal means of locomotion be so reduced that almost any family could own one, nor would it surprise me to see them manufactured in Honolulu. No. Electricity need not be the motive power, coal oil and gasoline are cheaper, and perhaps safer. In Chicago, recently, during a race by horseless carriages one propelled by one of these won against those by electricity. Their cost, too, is much less."

"I have great faith in the scheme," he said in conclusion, "and as soon as they are proven a perfect success in other cities they will be used here. The people in Honolulu are reasonably progressive once they see an article that has merit. History shows that during the past decade they have not turned their backs on innovations."

THE OLD GREEKS

Had an eye for the beautiful. The Greek word Kosmos, taken in one sense, means ornamental; while Kosmetikos translated means skilled in decoration; and Kosmeo means order. For this reason the name has been given to a line of pure Aluminum goods that we handle comprising,

COSMEON WARE

Hair Brushes, Combs,
Hand Mirrors,
Trays for the Toilet Table,
And innumerable small articles usually made in silver at higher prices. The entire surface of these articles is unchangeable, and never tarnishes, even should it come in contact with water. The articles have the appearance of frosted silver, and are as light as a feather. All these qualities taken together give the ware that delicate grace that lovers of the beautiful admire so much. The engraved part is all hand work by skilled artisans. The filigree ornamentation, in point of style, is unique and classed with high art.

COSMEON WARE is just as wonderful as the aluminum it is made out of, and the world is never done talking of the wonderful qualities that valuable metal possesses. We have a large assortment on hand, tastefully laid out for inspection. Just the thing for presents to sweethearts and wives.

ANY WIFE TO ANY HUSBAND.

Today, if I were dead and could not feel Your kisses or your tears upon my face, If all the world could give of love or wealth, Could find within my heart no resting place, You would not think of any bitter past, You would not chide me for a careless word, You could not be so cruel at the last, As to condemn me, unconfessed, unheard, If I were lying wrapt about in white, With flowers all around me, on my breast And in my hands, and on my face the light That angels shed upon their dead at rest— If I were lying thus, and one should say Such bitter things as you have said to me, With sternest anger you would drive away That one and swear 'twere all base calumny. I'll not rebuke you, though my heart be full, I dare not chide. I, too, may be astray, Experience yet may teach—a bitter school— Me what to do and what, perchance, to say, And yet I ask you, humbly, tenderly, If I should answer nevermore your call, Would you not grieve of all most bitterly For words and deeds that are beyond recall? —Pearson's Weekly.

THE CLIFF RUINS OF COLORADO.

A Region of Especial Interest to Students of the Prehistoric.

The cliff ruins of the San Juan and the Mancos have been the center of attraction, have been viewed from all sides, and their wonders have been told and retold to the world time and time again. Scientific men have visited the region, have penetrated southwestern Colorado and have considered that section a place of especial interest, because the cliff and cave dwellings are probably the oldest in this strange land, being the first built in that mysterious journey southward of a great but unknown people. For 20 years the prospector has followed the San Juan river and gazed with careless unconcern on the rough and broken walls, so full of interest to the archaeologist.

But the mind of the prospector has no room for curios, and he has no time for archaeological investigation. He sees only the glitter of the gold in the sand, and thinks only of the time when he shall have made his stake. In November of 1892 hundreds of gold hunters rushed madly into the canyon north of the Navajo mountain, traveled 300 miles over bleak, desert tablelands, suffering terribly from the cold, hunger and the long, wearisome journey. In a few days they had staked off all the available land for 50 miles up and down the river and then returned home without having obtained so much as a color of gold, and today have nothing to show for it but the stakes.

It is one of the most wildly picturesque and beautiful regions in the world. The bleak old Navajo mountain rises abruptly and towers like a grim sentinel over the surrounding mesas, while in a canyon gorge more than 3,000 feet below its base the Rio San Juan appears like a silver thread. The canyon is several miles wide, and a descent can be made to the river only by a precipitous trail, but as the river approaches the great Colorado the canyon becomes more narrow and the walls more perpendicular, and when it merges into the Grand canyon it is scarcely more than a deep, dark channel.

A few miles from the Colorado river, where the canyon is not more than 800 or 1,000 feet from wall to wall, and where the walls are perpendicular and smooth, on the right wall are the pictures of seven warriors with bows drawn to the last notch, while across the river on the opposite side are the pictures of seven antelope, apparently in full run to escape the hunters. These pictures are well executed and are in the most inaccessible places. Evidently the artist had to be lowered from a ledge hundreds of feet above the picture and held suspended while he performed his tedious task. There are many places in the mystic southwest where such paintings are to be found. —Denver Field and Farm.

A Preparation For Padding.

Very many persons would like to know how to pad sheets of paper so as to make tablets, but do not understand the proper composition for putting on the edges. The following recipe is vouched for by competent authority: Glue, 4 pounds; glycerin, 2 pounds; linseed oil, one-half pound; sugar, one-quarter pound; aniline dyes in sufficient quantity to color. The glue is softened by soaking it in a little cold water, then dissolved, together with the sugar, in the glycerin by aid of heat over a water bath. To this the dyes are added, after which the oil is well stirred. It is used hot. Another composition of a somewhat similar nature is prepared as follows: Glue, a pound; glycerin, 4 ounces; glucose sirup, about 2 tablespoonsful; tannin, one-tenth ounce. Give the compositions an hour or more in which to dry or set before cutting or handling the pads. —New York Ledger.

A Trick of the Profession.

As two eminent physicians were strolling arm in arm along the boulevard one of them bowed to a lady who crossed their path. "A patient, eh?" "Oh, not a serious case. I attended her lately for a pimple—a mere speck on her nose." "What did you prescribe?" "Prescribe? Nothing at all, though I absolutely forbade her to play the piano." "The piano? For a pimple on the nose? I don't see that." "Ah! I ought to tell you, perhaps, that my rooms are just below hers." —La Libre Parole.

Easy.

"Is it hard to learn to write shorthand?" "No. Anybody can learn it. And after you have got so you can write it, why, all you have to do is to go to work and learn to read what you have written." —Chicago Tribune.

There are said to be over a thousand women in New York who, in one way or another, make their living by their pens.

Leeuwenhoek and Humboldt both say that a single pound of the finest spider webs would reach around the world.

SKATING STORIES.

They Were Good Enough to Tell, but Their Truth Was Doubtful.

The group were talking about skating. "I don't pretend to be much of a skater," said the man with his feet on the mantelpiece. "The last time I indulged in the pastime, though, I had the good luck to slip into an airhole."

"You don't call that good luck, do you?" asked the man who had been trying to break into the conversation and tell a story himself. "Well, under ordinary circumstances I wouldn't call it good luck," replied the man with his feet on the mantel, "but in this instance it led to my catching the largest fish ever found in this section of the country. It happened this way: I was skating around the airhole, and at last ran plump into it. The lower part of my body went under the ice, but I was able to hold myself up by the arms. At last a man came to help me out, but one of my skates seemed to have become entangled in something below the surface, and he had to call for assistance. Several persons responded, and by their united efforts pulled me and a four pound rock bass through the airhole. The jaws of the fish were held apart by one of my skate blades. I suppose," he added by way of explanation, "that I must have struck my foot in his mouth when I first went down."

It was the unuttered consensus of opinion that the speaker was a liar. There was a short pause, and the man who had been waiting for a chance to tell of an adventure on Lake Superior. He said that while skating there one evening, far from shore, he was pursued by a monstrous gray wolf. "The wolf chased me about considerably," he said, "but I wasn't afraid, because I always was a good skater and could beat any wolf that was ever created when it came to getting around on the ice. After I had a little fun with the animal, making 'figure eights' and things like that around him, I thought I would put him to some use. So I made a dash around to his rear and caught hold of his tail with one hand. I had a shiny stick in the other and beat him across the back with it. Well, gentlemen, that beast was so shocked and surprised that he didn't know what to do. He jumped around just like a colt that was being broken in. I held on tight, though, and he finally came to the conclusion that he wanted to go home, and lit out for shore."

"Gentlemen, I know you will believe me when I say that that was the supreme moment of my life. There I was—holding to the wolf's tail with one hand, beating him with the shiny stick which I held in the other, and flying over the glassy surface at the rate of about 40 miles an hour. As we neared the shore he slowed up some, and on reaching the land lay down and died from exhaustion."

"I have his hide at home now," concluded the narrator, "and you can see it if you want to."

This seemed satisfactory proof of the truth of the tale. At least no one questioned it, and the meeting adjourned. —Washington Star.

Told Army Secrets.

During the war Father Sherman was a camp follower, going in when about 3 years old and remaining with his father, General William T. Sherman, until the close of the struggle. At Black River, on the march from Atlanta to the sea, a Confederate was sent under a flag of truce to Sherman's headquarters. Arriving, he found the general absent, but young Thomas was there and inclined to be communicative when taken upon the knee of the Confederate.

Drawn into conversation, he bluntly remarked, "Why, father can whip you fellows every time." On being interrogated as to how and why he could whip them, the boy proceeded to give detailed information. "Father has 50,000 men and so many cannons, just so many feet and so many horse soldiers. He has just exactly so many men, foot and horse, and so many cannon at another place." The boy did not neglect to state that the northern troops were well off for provisions and how and where they could get them when they wanted them.

General Sherman after the Confederate's departure learned of the conversation. "Why," said he, "you young traitor! There is nothing for it but that you must be court martialed, and you will probably be shot." The boy was not shot, but he was told of the rules and usages of armed forces when at war. —Chicago Inter Ocean.

Work Done by Earthworms.

In 1890 Alvan Millson, an employee of the British colonial government at Lagos, west Africa, made some remarkable observations on the work of earthworms. "For scores of miles around Lagos," he says, "the earth is literally covered with cylindrical casts of earth brought to the surface by the worms. In some places the earth is covered to the depth of several inches with these little cylinders, which have been caked hard by the sun. Having removed these casts from a space of but two square feet, I weighed them carefully and found that the weight was 10½ pounds. Estimating 5 pounds to the square foot as the amount of earth which those creatures bring to the surface annually, I find that they bring up an average of not less than 62,233 long tons of subsoil to each acre of farm land in this vicinity." —St. Louis Republic.

Pride and Prejudice.

"I'd be ashamed to go around begging," said the prosperous citizen. "Pride's a funny thing, ain't it?" answered Mr. Everett West. "Here you are, too proud to beg, and here I am, too proud to work. Takes all sorts to make a world, I guess." —Indianapolis Journal.

W. W. DIMOND.

Do you remember when you ate white bait in New York or London what slices of brown bread cut very thin were served with the fish? It was buttered too. When you were eating the delicious bit you wondered how the chef managed to cut the bread so thin, without going through to the other side. It was a secret then; not now. He used a "Christy," an improvement on the "Claus" bread knife in many ways. Finely finished wooden handle, saw edge as keen as a razor and a good thing all 'round. We sell them for a half.

Pride of the Kitchen is justly named, because the cook who takes pride in keeping his kitchen clean uses it. Better than Sapolio, because it will not scratch—it cleans without defacing.

Escalloped oysters or fish is as dainty a dish as a king would care to sit down to, if properly prepared and served. The correct way to put either fish or oysters, cooked in this way, is in shells. We have the genuine article grown expressly and which we sell at a dollar a dozen.

What Is King Bros., PURIFINE?

It is the new disinfectant which has superseded all other disinfectants, being a scientific compound, having no odor, yet possessing the qualities of a powerful disinfectant.

The automatic distributor should be placed in every house in Honolulu where odors and germs of disease exist. They are placed free of charge, taken care of and kept working day and night for $1.00 per month. It's an innovation, but on scientific principles, and appeals to everyone of common sense. The idea is this: The distributor drops two drops a minute, day and night. Foul odors are killed, yet no disagreeable smell of carbolic acid or crude disinfectants takes its place. You don't know that a powerful disinfectant is being used if you judge by the lack of odor. But it's doing the duty—doing it well. Can we show you the "Ideal Automatic Distributor"? FITZ IN THE TOILS FOR TRAMWAY CASE

Alleged to Have Shot Detective While Searching for Spoils.

EVIDENCE FOUND IN HIS HOUSE.

Bos'n Ben Arrested for Complicity.
Nickels and Company Envelopes Galore—Burned and Buried—Both Deny All Knowledge of the Robbery.

The robbery of the Tramways Company's Palama office had its sequel in the arrest of Arthur Fitzgerald at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. Fitzgerald had been under suspicion ever since the case was reported to the police, and on August 21, the day after the robbery, Detective Kaapa procured a warrant to search Fitzgerald's residence, but no evidence of his being mixed up in the affair was found. The next chapter in the robbery was the finding of a bag of money in the Peterson stable, which is located in the adjoining lot to Fitzgerald's and about a hundred yards in the rear.

Suspicion then grew stronger that Fitzgerald was in the trick. Detective Kaapa detailed Ah Fat and William Huihui on the case and told them to take a position in the stable and watch for any one who might come around there at night. The stable building is a long one, the makai end being fitted with stalls and the mauka end a large room. A narrow hall divides these two apartments, and it was under this hall, just inside the door, that the money was found.

In the large room there were two chairs, a rocker and a small cane seated one. Ah Fat was sitting in the rocker and Huihui was dozing in the other chair about four feet away. Just about 3 o'clock yesterday morning Ah Fat heard a noise in the narrow hallway and saw through an opening in the partition a man on his hands and knees. He stretched his leg in order to touch Huihui and arouse him, but in doing so made a slight noise, which the intruder evidently heard. A second later there was a shot fired and Ah Fat received the bullet in the fleshy part of his thigh.

The man who fired the shot ran toward Fitzgerald's cottage. Huihui saw him and grabbed Ah Fat's pistol and fired twice without effect, and the runner disappeared. Ah Fat fell over on to the floor and Huihui believed he was badly wounded. Instead of running after the assailant, he went to the nearest telephone and sent a message to the police station for the wagon to remove the wounded man.

Captain Parker and a posse went out and took the officer to the hospital, where his wound, which was merely a flesh one, was dressed.

As the indications pointed to Fitzgerald as the culprit, Detective Kaapa started for his house at 5 o'clock to arrest him, but met him on King street, near Asylum road, driving his hack. He was barefooted and the officer placed him under arrest, against Arthur's protest. He said he had just returned from driving a load to Waikiki and knew nothing about the shooting. He was taken to the station house, and on looking at the soles of his feet one was found to have a fresh cut made by a sharp stone or thorn. He was locked up pending an investigation. Later officers went to the house to search for evidence.

It is a three-room affair of one story, located some distance up Asylum road, and is in rather a dilapidated condition. It is occupied jointly by Arthur Fitzgerald and James Bennet, otherwise "Bos'n Ben," the latter occupying the room to the left of the entrance, and Arthur a smaller one to the right. The back room runs clear across the house and is evidently used as a kitchen, dining room and pantry by the couple. There were a half dozen packages of Chinese tea, a loaf of bread and some butter in the room, but no other edibles. The dining table was a small affair with a drawer in it. In this was found several engraved visiting cards of Mrs. W. W. Hall and one of A. D. Friemann. These may have been with plunder that has some time been taken into the house. Standing in the yard, at a corner in the rear of the house, was a stove improvised from an oil drum. Lying near Captain Parker saw a Tramway money envelope, partly burned. A further search revealed several 5-cent pieces and a lump of nickel supposed to be the remains of some of the 5-cent pieces left in the envelopes and thrown into the fire to be destroyed. A search around the yard revealed about $1.25 buried just under the surface in two places. In the garden was also found a pair of hammock spreaders, and about fifty yards further back a hammock was found by Captain Parker, buried under some bushes. These are supposed to have been stolen August 7 from Mrs. McLain's on Alakea street, near King.

ker, buried under some bushes. These are supposed to have been stolen August 7 from Mrs. McLain's on Alakea street, near King.

Returning to the house, Captain Parker found in a corner of the room occupied by Bos'n Ben a torn Tramways packet and a dime lying on the floor. Raising the matting, he found a piece of the floor recently cut, forming a trap door. In Fitzgerald's room, or the one alleged to have been occupied by him, was a pair of overalls showing fresh earth on the knees, as though the wearer had crept for a long distance. On the mauka side of the house about thirty torn Tramways coin envelopes were found.

On this evidence being found, Ben was also placed under arrest, and such articles as may be needed in court were removed to the station house. Attorney Creighton has been retained by Fitzgerald and the case will probably be called this morning.

NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS.

A Slightly Place Where the Old Wash House Stood.

The extensiveness in the improvements down along the vicinity of where the old wash houses used to stand can not be imagined until a visit is paid to the place. The addition of land by means of the dredger pipes, the new wall along the Nuuanu stream, confining the water to a certain limit, and the whole appearance of the place goes to show that some good work has been done by Superintendent of Public Works W. E. Ravell and his assistants.

The wall is not yet completed, but will be in a little while. Hotel street used to run into a marsh and a small wooden building where Chinamen used to clean the bones of their relatives preparatory to sending them back to China for interment. Now there is a complete change. It runs directly into King street, and at this point is very nicely curved. All the old buildings have been removed and now none but the very best are given place. Standing at the foot of Hotel street and looking up, the Arlington Hotel can be plainly seen. There is a clean sweep for the cooling breezes that are so scarce now, and the disagreeable smells from the marshes that used to exist are a thing of the past.

The most convenient part of this addition to Hotel street is the fact that now there is a straight run to King without having to turn off on some side street.

Just now men are busy at work moving the houses to the rear, and about the chemical engine house, so as to provide for the cutting through of Pauahi street clear to the stream. After the wall in that vicinity is completed the dredger will be set to work filling in.

It will not be long before men will be set to work digging the new bed which will join the present stream several hundred feet above St. Louis College, doing away with Smith's bridge and making the course straight. The stream will run along in front of St. Louis College. There will be a twenty-foot driveway between the bank and the College fence.

SLIGHT ACCIDENT.

Gun is Accidentally Discharged in a Shooting Gallery.

Accidents will happen, even in the very best regulated shooting galleries, such as the one at the corner of Hotel and Bethel streets.

It was just about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a Japanese woman was passing over from the corner occupied by Ordway & Porter, to Horn's bakery. When she reached the middle of the street there was a report from the direction of the shooting gallery, and the woman uttered a cry of pain as she threw up her right hand and found that a bullet had passed through the fleshy part of the index finger.

It seems that there was quite a crowd in the gallery watching two men shooting. One of the 22-calibre rifles had been discharged and the white attendant was putting another cartridge in the place of the spent one. Through some accident the gun was discharged, and passing through the door the bullet hit the Japanese woman in the street.

She was taken up in a hack to a physician's, where her injury was attended to.

It is a fortunate thing that none of the people in the gallery were injured.

Police Court Notes.

In the case of Kaanaana and Kamaka in the police court yesterday defendants changed their plea of not guilty to the charge of adultery and pleaded guilty. Kamaka's sentence was suspended until moved on by the prosecution and Kaanaana was sentenced to pay a fine of $30 and costs.

Kamauloli was found guilty of selling spirituous liquor without a license and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

Other cases were postponed until August 28th.

The Ruling Fad

Fac similes of your signature accurately engraved, no matter how badly or how well you write. No matter how many flourishes you affect, we'll portray it exactly as you write it.

The "Four Hundred" are using this style, which for the time being is superseding the plain script; yet for all that it must not be inferred that it is the only correct thing; as even a plain block letter has made its appearance.

Tastes and a leaning to "Fads" have much to do with ruling styles.

We stand ready to cater to your taste.

Our suggestion might help you some also; for you know we keep posted on correct things in that line.
