TESTED.

Besides testing our Wheels by fast and hard riding, our riders yesterday conducted a very succesful test on King street, which has fully satisfied us (and the riders) that the high grade wheels we handle have the proper stuff in them, and plenty of it.

Our riders selected King street opposite Mr. S. Parker's residence as the best place to make the test. We had four Wheels out, and they were coming along at a "clip" that would have heated the bearings of many so called high grade cycles. At the proper time the Little Chap tied the combination up, and the test begun. There were Wheels in the air, Wheels in the middle and on both sides of the road, and riders going towards town as if they were late for dinner. After picking themselves up, and the Wheels, it was found that, as was to be expected, there was not a piece of metal broken in any of the four Wheels. The only damage done to the metal parts was a bending of a part here and there, which Dr. Wooten straightened out in a few moments this morning. Our riders say they won't conduct any more of these tests for us, and we thought they would not want to, so we had the four Wheels tested at once, and now we are satisfied that what the makers say about the Wheels is true, and we back up their guarantee fully.

When you want a first class Wheel, one that won't go to pieces under you if you happen to ride off a sidewalk, call at the headquarters for high grade Wheels in Honolulu, and you will get what you want.

We have sold every RAMBLER and COLUMBIA WE had in stock, but will have a big lot on the Australia when she returns.

appeared to be a closed sea ahead of him. He had kept in sight of shore during his entire expedition, and seeing nothing ahead but had probably thought it was endless. When Return red was reached, bu turned back, and that is the last known of him. "We could have made the trip from the Pacific to the Atlantic last year if we had so desired, but our business was whaling, not exploring. Natives at the cape, whom I questioned, told me that the ocean was fairly open three years out of four, and that there was a 'great big sea' one year in five. Last year was what they termed 'great big sea,' and they said that the same conditions prevailed in 1880. A large vessel could not pass through a fairly open sea, as the chances of reaching Greenland through the Arctic sea are one in five. From this I am inclined to the belief that both Franklin and Collinson entered the ocean when it was 'open.'"

When Captain McGregor was asked about his experience as a whaler, he said. "Once in awhile we encounter some dangers, such as being caught in the ice, but such accidents are not frequent. A vessel will some times be 'stuck' for three or four weeks be fore it can be freed from the ice, and occasionally it is damaged by collision with gigantic flores or by being caught between them. Planks are sometimes stove in, but as there is no danger of sinking on account Order. Particular attention paid to Ship Blacksmithing. Job work executed at Short of the vessel's being thoroughly saturated with oil very little attention is paid to such accidents.

"After working through the ice, which is generally about June 1, the vessels try to get into Behring strait ahead of the whales. The strait is the narrowest point, and the object of the whalers is to get there first and take the whales as they come through on their way to the Arctic. The vessels cruise there until July I, when the tender arrives from San Francisco with coal, workers and Then the whalers strike for the Arctic and finish the season there. They have communication with the natives all the time and exchange some of their supplies for reinders meat, fish, ducks and pitarnigan. When the season is ended, some of the vessels put in at Port Clarence, the rendezvous for the fleet."

Captain McGregor and the Eskimos have made no advances to civilization. "An aged native told me that there is a tradition handed down from father to son that the boats and wespons of the hunt and chose are the same today as they were 50 years ago. The firearms and traps, tobacco and calcowere all introduced by white men. The Eskimo is satisfied with everything as he finds it and makes no effort to effect any improvements. The native population is rapidly diminishing. They cannot withstand the march of civilization, mused as they are to its inxuries and vices.

"Four schools have been established for them in Alaska, and they are being taught to read and write, but it would be better for them if they were left alone. In their original state they got along well, but education is their moral ruin. When he learns to read and write, the native thinks he is the superior of his fellows and the equal of the white man's habits, whether moral or immoral. He wants to learn to read, write and talk that he may trade with the whites and be regarded as one of them. It cannot be said that the money expended on theschools has been ill spent or misappropriated, only that the Eskimo is mulke the Indian, and the same method of training cannot be applied to both.

The arctic is a cold region, but the friging lity of the atmosphere cannot be felt through the furs that serve us as clothes. The mean temperature is 44 degrees below zero, but during the 67 days that the sun is sight the merenry rises to 80 degrees or 80 degrees."—Portland Oregonian.

William's Little Plan.

William's Little Pian.

"I don't want to injure no man's bust ness," said Wandering William as he entered the harroom and leaned gracefully against the rail, "but I do think that there ought to be an investigation as to the true sharacter of the ingredients used in making alcoholic liquors. I fear that there's adulterants being used. If that is so, some one should let the public know to protect them in the one case or to render them free from fear of harm in the other. Now," he continued, pulling a flat flask out of his pocket, "for these reasons I shall be willing to accept from you a small sample of your best goods for the purpose of subjecting it to analysis and"—

"They's ashes on the doorstep," said tos bartender kindly as he finished the ejection, "but look out that you don't slip on the walk."—Chicano Record.

Among the curiosities of taste the Parisian passion for self exhibition at the morgue must hold a conspicuous place. The principal keeper at the morgue is said to have had many applications from persons eager to figure as corpses on the slabs of the deathouse. They were deserred by the official announcement that the temperature of the bodies was kept some degrees below zero. If this discomfort could have been endured for 1s hours, and if the authorities could have been persuaded to lend themselves to such a fraud, what materials for a coup in journalism would have been afforded to some enterprising genius.
