KIMURA BELIEVES YANAGI IS HIDING ON OAHU

Kimura, the Japanese who stabbed his fellow countryman at Waiola last Sunday, and who is at present locked up at the police station, was seen this afternoon by a Bulletin reporter. Through an interpreter Kimura gave the following statement regarding how last June he gave shelter to Yanagi, the fugitive Ewa murderer.

"Yanagi killed a man and a woman at Ewa and escaped. He has since that time evaded all attempts on the part of the police to apprehend him and is still at large. Kimura's statement was in substance as follows:

"One day during the latter part of last June Yanagi came to my house in Camp No. 5 of Waipahu plantation. I was working as a ditch man. Yanagi and I have been friends for a long time. I had not heard of the murder when Yanagi came to me. During the day I went to Waipahu. There I heard that Yanagi had killed a man and a woman at Ewa. When I returned to my house I asked Yanagi if what I had heard was true. He said it was. I then told him he would have to leave my house as I was afraid I might get into trouble in case he was arrested. In my place, I advised him either to give himself up to the authorities or to go somewhere and hide. Yanagi told me he would go to Kahuku to hide. He left my house the next morning. He had only very little money. I do not know if he was armed. In my opinion he is still on Oahu. He has several friends here. Among them is a man called Fuji, who lives at Ewa.

and another man at Aiea. I have a brother at Makaha who knows Yanagi. I have not seen Yanagi since he left my house."

CARTER RESENTS ADVERTISER TALK ON LEGISLATURE

"The Advertiser intimates that Mr. F. M. Hatch goes to Washington in the matter of the ratification of the County law with a side explanation that the Legislature is so irresponsible and corrupt that the Governor thinks it unwise to call it in extra session to attempt to remedy its acknowledged failure," said Governor Carter this afternoon, quoting from an editorial in the morning paper.

"I must say I fail to see the Advertiser's attitude in the matter. This statement of my possibly deeming it unwise to call an extra session is most uncalled for and irresponsible. I fail to understand it. There is absolutely nothing upon which to base such an idea.

"I would not hesitate a moment to call an extra session were such action made necessary."

KILLED MAHELONA

Man Chong, alleged to have killed Policeman John Mahelona only a few days ago was arraigned today.

As the Chinese interpreter read the indictment to him the prisoner in a low voice protested to the reader, as certain paragraphs were reached, that the allegations were not true.

Man Chong said he had no counsel. He wanted a chance to secure a lawyer. He wanted, he said, to see a certain Chinese merchant and also High Sheriff Brown's yard boy. He wanted to communicate with his wife, too, on Liliha street, to learn if she was able to arrange for defending counsel. Time was allowed for the defendant for engaging counsel and plea was therefore reserved.

David Nuuanu was arraigned on an indictment alleging manslaughter. He is the man who, at Ewa, recently, in a drunken row, it is said, choked another Hawaiian, Kaahue, to death. Henry Hogan represents the alleged stranger and asked for time in which to plead. Monday was set.

Lieut. Commander W. P. White has been ordered from the East with a draft of men to take the position of executive officer of the Solace vice Lieutenant Commander E. G. Rogers.

Senator L. L. McCandless entertained Gen. MacArthur and his associate officers at his Waikane country home last evening.

High Sheriff Brown went to Waianae today to install Chris Holt as deputy sheriff of that district.

Carter and County Law

"Never again can it be said with truth that the Advertiser is the mouthpiece of this administration," said Governor Carter this morning as he glanced over the editorial page of the paper referred to. "If I am ever confronted with such an assertion I have but to produce a copy of the Advertiser of today to prove the statement false."

The above remarks were the result of a question as to the numerous probable contents over the County Act.

The Governor, referring again to the morning paper, remarked that many of the statements therein, touching on the proposition of asking Congress to ratify the County law and on the Governor's attitude in the matter, were unwarranted. Mr. Carter suggested that he might have been approached on the subject, for information, before such faulty assertions were made.

The Governor appeared to be at a loss as to what was the Advertiser's real attitude on the County proposition.

Speaking of the soundness of the idea to get Congress to ratify the County Act, the Governor said:

"But recently I realized that this possibility of various parties successfully contesting the validity of certain sections of the County Act was one of the most serious affairs confronting the administration. The Legislature has provided for County government and, in doing so, cuts off the Territorial Government altogether from exercising any authority along lines left for the counties to travel.

"Now, there are all manner of questions arising as to the county act being good law. This and that section is liable to be contested. Here is an attorney who says he will refuse to pay any taxes to the county; there is someone else who will fight another matter under the same act.

"If the County Act is successfully contested in the local courts, in sections, soon there is likely to be no county act; the whole act will have been declared invalid. Then what is to be done?"

"Before a session of the Legislature can be called there must be a proclamation and a certain necessary delay. Then, when the Legislature meets to provide for the administration of government shattered by the annulment of the county act, there must be further time for the preparation of the work in hand and for the work itself.

"Therefore, if the County Act were knocked out, between the time of its death and the going into effect of the new provisions of the Legislature there would be a period to a large extent without law. What could be done?"

"The Territorial government, cut off by the Legislature from the power to meet the emergency, would be helpless. Why, what would we do for the first great necessity of local government, the police? The police are to do with the county, not the Territory and if the County Act were killed there would be but one thing to do under the circumstances existing between its death and the action of the Legislature specially called and that would be to call out the National Guard and declare the Territory under martial law.

"I don't want to appear in any way as exciting alarm in this matter, but it is a very serious proposition and one that would greatly affect the Territory for anything but good if the questions which confront us are not carefully considered and met early and in the right way.

"Calling the Legislature is an expensive matter and we cannot afford to do this unnecessarily. We can avoid it and it is to avoid all trouble and expense that steps have been taken toward having Congress ratify our County Act.

"Why, I would very much like to call the Senate together now to ratify my appointments, but do not consider that we can at present afford the five thousand dollars or so it would cost.

"A few Republicans who had the interests of the Territory at heart consulted with representative business people on the advisability of asking Congress to ratify the County Act and the result is that Mr. F. M. Hatch, who was going to Washington anyway, was asked to bring the matter before Congress.

"If Congress will ratify the County Act and leave it to the next Legislature to amend we will have found the simplest, quickest and cheapest means of safeguarding the Territory against such possibilities as I have spoken of as following the knocking out of the County Act in the courts. It seems to me that this is a matter demanding immediate attention."

PANAMA HAS SIGNED

PANAMA, Dec. 2.—The Hay-Varela canal treaty was today signed and accepted without amendment by the proper authority of the Panama Republic.

Under this treaty the United States guarantees the independence of Panama, which cedes to the United States five miles on each side of the canal, three marine leagues at each terminal and all other lands necessary to construction and maintenance. The United States has authority over these lands "as if it were sovereign" and to the exclusion of Panama. The United States undertakes to construct modern systems of sewers and waterworks for the cities of Panama and Colon, and has the right to collect tolls for the period of fifty years in order to repay the cost of construction, with interest. At the end of fifty years the sewers and waterworks become the property of Panama and Colon.

Damages to private land owners for lands taken for the canal are to be determined by a joint commission of five. The United States has free entry to all ports of material used for the canal and all people employed on the canal are exempt from military duty under the Panama Republic. The canal when completed shall be neutral in perpetuity, the United States to have the right to defend the canal should occasion require. No treaties may be made by Panama without consent of the United States.

OUT ON BOND AND BIRBE HELD THE BOND

Chairman of Election Inspectors of the Seventh Precinct of the Fifth District Henry C. Birbe was arraigned before Judge Gear this morning on indictment returned by the Territorial grand jury alleging profanity.

Birbe entered the courtroom as Judge Gear was making inquiries as to his whereabouts, also other whereabouts of his bond. It appeared that the judge had waited yesterday evening to approve a bond in the sum of $100 but his waiting had been for naught and the bond remained unapproved.

The supposition was that Mr. Birbe had spent the night therefore in durance ville.

"Where is the bond?" asked the court.

"I have it here," said Birbe and

EDWIN EWELL'S DEATH

The Associated Press cable of yesterday afternoon giving just the bare statement of the death of Edwin C. Ewell in San Mateo by being thrown from his horse, has been explained.

Mr. Ewell was a brother of Mrs. Lyon, of this city, wife of A. J. Lyon, the dealer in books and stationery. He was but 35 years of age and was the youngest in the Ewell family. He was a prominent stock broker of San Francisco and was quite wealthy, owning among other places, a pretty country place in San Mateo, where he was wont to go for a rest. He owned a very fine horse valued at $1000 and it is supposed that this is the animal from which he was thrown.

McBRYDE NOW HAS NEW WATER SUPPLY

The McBryde Plantation has just completed a deal by which it has leased from Gay & Robinson and the Makawell plantation the surplus water from the Makawell ditch. This water supply it is believed will enable the McBryde plantation to increase its output from 3000 to 4000 tons per year.

The new Makawell ditch just completed and in the benefits of which McBryde now shares is one of the biggest irrigation propositions in the islands. The advantage to McBryde will be nearly as great as to Makawell and it is believed McBryde will show a marked improvement as one of the popular sugar stocks.

TRUST COMPANY'S OFFER IS ILLEGAL

"Can you not assist us in holding deposit?" Dillon & Hubbard, New York, think it probable that it is legal.

Governor Carter received the above cable yesterday from the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co., of New York, who who recently cabled the Treasurer suggesting that he proceeds of the sale of the Territorial improvement bonds be deposited with them at three per cent and drawn upon as occasion demanded.

The Governor, referring to the cable, said it was a matter he had nothing to do with, coming as it did within the jurisdiction of the Treasurer, who could act as he thought best.

Treasurer Kepoikai stated this morning that he had already informed the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co. that he had drawn on them by sight drafts through local banks for the entire bond proceeds, having already arranged for the disposition of the million dollars which the Trust Co. is so anxious to retain on deposit at three per cent interest.

While keeping the money on deposit with the Trust Co. would mean a considerable saving to the Territory, said Kepoikai, it would not be a legal proposition. The cash is expected here about the first of the year. Kepoikai cabled the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co. as soon as he arranged with the local banks bringing the money here and has since written particulars, sending a letter in the last mail.

At present the million dollars is drawing no interest and the bankers are to be paid for bringing to Hawaii the cash.

EWA MAY HAVE WHARF

It is stated on good authority that the Ewa Plantation Company intends to construct a large wharf at Pearl Harbor. It is to be located in the West loch on the makai-Ewa side of Kekaha Point. The natural facilities offered for a wharf at this place are very great, the water being very deep and the shore very abrupt, so that large vessels could go almost up to the shore. The construction of a wharf would therefore be a comparatively easy and inexpensive matter.

MAY BE COMPELLED TO PURCHASE COFFEE ON COAST

From the present outlook, Honolulu may have to purchase its Kona coffee in San Francisco for the big crop of Hawaii for the present season is being sent to the Coast to secure the better prices offered there.

Messrs. Wallace & Bruner, of Kona, will handle pretty nearly the whole crop of that district of the Big Island. Mr. Bruner personally, already controls two-thirds of the entire crop, he having bought up nearly all of the small holders.

Last year, it was the same thing. Mr. Bruner cornered the coffee of the district and sent it to the Coast. There was a shortage in the local market and one of the largest houses had to send to the Coast for a supply.

The price of Kona coffee last year averaged about 10 cents a pound. This year the price will average from 2 to 3 cents higher and with the great increase in the crop, there is very good money in it for those who have succeeded in buying up the small holders.

NEW CHE FA SCHEME.

The police are at present making it very uncomfortable for the che fa players. Yesterday two Chinese were arrested by Special Officer Mokeha and a little later Captain Kanee arrested five

Chinese for having che fa tickets in their possession. Four Chinese appeared in the police court yesterday morning charged with having tickets in their possession. Two were discharged and two had their cases postponed.

The wily Chinese have inaugurated a system of tickets which makes the conviction of the possessor a very difficult matter. Instead of having the ticket marked with the well known thirty-six words, the tickets merely marked with thirty-six squares. The squares represent che fa words running in a certain given rotation. Thus the first square is always "centipede," the second "pukapuka" or "pockmarked," and so forth. The player merely marks the square denoting the word he wishes to play, with the amount he wishes to play on it. As the ticket does not bear the tell-tale words it is a difficult thing to prove the character of the ticket.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 2, 1903.

The secret of the morning paper's howl on legislative printing is the fact that the morning print shop was a poor third in the amount of business done for both the Senate and the House.

The Duke of Roxburgh arriving in London with his new American wife, says he doesn't like the way Americans treated him. He does not suggest that he feels so badly he will refuse to spend the good American money he has married.

Certainly the morning paper cannot object to the employment of Birbe by the Legislature as an expert on Rapid Transit. It was after the legislative session that Birbe was taken into partnership in the noted Birbe-morning press-diffusion movement.

Governor Carter must have been erroneously quoted by the morning paper, which credits him with the statement that the Palolo road appropriation is from current funds. The loan appropriation provides $10,000 for the Palolo road and $75,000 for the new Insane Asylum. Should the Palolo site be accepted for the Asylum, there will be no necessity or possibility of squeezing the already depleted current funds to secure the necessary approach.

COUNTY LAW PRESERVATION.

When contemplating the discussion of the County Act by the morning paper it is well for the thoughtful reader to bear constantly in mind the following editorial utterance published in the same paper November 15:

"Now that part of the County Act has been decreed invalid perhaps good government would be served—especially in the other outer counties of the group—by an attack upon the legality of the whole thing."

The additional information required in connection with the County Act and the consequent mission of Mr. Hatch is, more complete detail of what threatens the law as it now stands. Wherein is it vulnerable from the legal standpoint and is it a foregone conclusion that the law will be annulled by the courts if it is attacked?

As between Governor Carter and the Advertiser, the public knows very well that Carter worked for the County law and the Advertiser fought the county proposal as vigorously as it was able, withdrawing from the contest only when it had to. The Carter-Hatch movement will be in a better position to discuss intelligently when it is known whether the plan is to have Congress reenact the present county law as a Federal statute or broaden the Organic Act so that the relation of the counties to the Territory may be more clearly established. The Territory of Hawaii wants the county law preserved, and although the Bulletin does not support an appeal to Congress to reenact every law the Legislature puts on the statute book, the prospecting tour of Mr. Hatch will be of great value if his exact purposes and exact findings are given to the public. The public has no occasion to place confidence in the morning paper's protestation of good faith when dealing with the County law.

WANT CONTRACT MATERIAL BOUGHT AT HOME

A committee from the Builders and Traders' Exchange called on Governor Carter this afternoon at 2 o'clock to discuss the question of contracts and provisions that will assist in securing purchases of material to Honolulu houses. The position of the Exchange is outlined in the following letter:

Hon. G. R. Carter,
Governor, Territory of Hawaii,
Honolulu, T. H.

Sir:—At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Builders and Traders' Exchange of this City, a communication was received, signed by the large mercantile houses, calling attention to certain matters in regard to government contracts, and we quote from that communication, as follows:

"Again, we understand, although we may be wrong in this, that it is the policy of the Government to send away and get bids on work to be done here. This, if so, we consider to be entirely wrong. While such a course might possibly be taken by individuals, for the Government to do it, would be a step on its part to destroy the interests of the community. The persons engaged in the supply of labor and materials for the erection of buildings, compose a large class of heavy taxpayers, and the Government is certainly interested in the welfare of its constituents and supporters. This is shown by forbidding all except citizen labor on contracts. Why not as well limit the bidding on contracts to bona fide citizens of the Territory?"

And in view of this the undersigned committee was appointed to address you on the matter and present their view as it was considered very important that such matter be immediately taken up owing to the large amount of work under the Loan Act.

We would call attention first, to the fact that the Government is supported by the tax payers of the Territory, and in letting all contracts for the Government, either for public works, or supplies for the different Departments, it shall be borne in mind that, as such tax payers, our proportion of expenditures is borne whether it be large or small, and such being the case where a fair valuation is asked or bid for supplies, or work, a preference shall be given to local bidders.

In case of such preference being shown to the local bidders, the Government, while perhaps paying a little more for its supplies or work, insures a more satisfactory distribution of its funds and indirectly aids to its strength and revenue by the increase of stocks of merchandise on which taxes are paid and the support of all those directly and even indirectly benefited by such action. The Government is formed for the protection of the people whom it governs, and it is not protection to them when bids for supplies or work is asked from those who do not support it by taxes or otherwise.

In the matter of the Government for its own protection being forced to ask for bids from the Mainland or elsewhere, to prevent its being controlled by such preference to local bidders, and from the standpoint of economy, it is safe to say that the Government at the present time purchases in the open market from the local houses at the lowest market rates. And on contracts for public work where plans and specifications are drawn, the departments putting such work out for public tender, know from the estimates of the Engineer or Superintendent who designed such work, the approximate cost of the work, and know when a bid or tender is excessive. It is only natural to presume that the merchants or contractors here must bid at an advanced price over non local bidders, because in the usual course of business, a profit must be made on such goods handled or work done, or they must go out of business. The Government does not necessarily pay for all the difference in the advanced prices, for on all profits so made, the Government is a direct beneficiary in the taxes paid by all parties on their incomes, or in the case of corporations on their net profits, which is not the case when the Government awards its contracts to non-local bidders, who make their profit and do not pay a dollar in taxes.

In the matter of the Breeding of the harbor, we are informed that bids are being asked for in San Francisco on this work solely with the idea that the Government must be protected from any combination which may be formed here to control prices. While admitting that such is a good move in that respect, yet cannot competent men who have planned such work estimate what would be a fair price and if the local bids exceeded such price to the extent that the community interests would suffer, then it would be right and proper to protect those interests by accepting other bids, but if the bids received from local parties are fair, consideration should be had of the fact that the local bidders have their plants which cannot be used outside the Territory and which represent a certain large amount of capital invested, and on which they pay taxes, and on all profits which may accrue, they will pay their tax to the Government, while the non local bidder has no plant here, and imports it here only, for this purpose, and when the work is completed returns with it and his profits from whence he came benefitting none. This is cited only as an instance in which, perhaps, the Government might be justified in awarding contracts to non local bidders, under certain conditions.

In the appropriations, under the Loan Bill, as passed by the last Legislature, there is a total of $2,397,370.00, of which amount there is a great many items for buildings, steel bridges, machinery, cast iron pipe, sewerage, and etc., and which would be all subject to non-local bidders who would import their material for the construction of this work, and the local merchants and supply houses be left out. Such a condition would force the material man into a position of self-defense, and while he might not be forced out of business, he would have to decrease his stock of goods on hand, to such an extent that he eventually would pay about half the taxes that he is now. If today, he is carrying stock on hand to the extent of three or four hundred thousand dollars, as no doubt many of our large houses are doing, to be able at all times to meet the local demand, he will be compelled by such conditions, as stated before, to cut down his large stock to the bare necessities of trade purposes, and thus the Government would lose thousands of dollars in taxes each year and destroy to a certain extent trade conditions, which have always made it necessary for the merchants to carry large stocks to supply the demand throughout the Territory, on account of distance from the source of supply.

In conclusion, we respectfully request that should our views meet with your approval, that you take such action as may be by you, deemed wise, and for the benefit of all concerned, for the Government as well as for its constituents and supporters.

THE GRIP OF HONOR, a stirring story of the sea, begins tomorrow.

A Beautiful Canadian Girl Saved From Catarrh of the Lungs by Pe-ru-na.

MISS FLORENCE KENAH.

Miss Florence E. Kenah, 434 Maria street, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "A few months ago I caught a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and remained there so persistently that I became alarmed. I took medicine without benefit, until my digestive organs became upset, and my head and back began to ache severely and frequently. I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had little faith, I felt so sick that I was ready to try anything. It brought me blessed relief at once, and I felt that I had the right medicine at last. Within three weeks I was completely restored and have enjoyed perfect health since."

"I now have the greatest faith in Peruna." F. E. KENAH.

WOMEN should beware of contracting catarrh. The cold wind and rain, sleet and mud of winter are especially conducive to catarrhal derangements. Few women escape.

Upon the first symptoms of catching cold Peruna should be taken. It fortifies the system against colds and catarrh.

The following letter gives one young woman's experience with Peruna: Miss Rose Gerbing is a popular society woman of Crown Point, Ind., and she writes the following:

"Recently I took a long drive in the country, and being too thinly clad I caught a bad cold which settled on my lungs, and which I could not seem to shake off. I had heard a great deal of Peruna for colds and catarrh and I bought a bottle to try. I am pleased that I did, for it brought speedy relief. It only took about two bottles, and I considered this money well spent."

"You have a firm friend in me, and I not only advise its use to my friends, but have purchased several bottles to give to those without the means to buy, and have noticed without exception that it has brought about a speedy cure where ever it has been used."—Miss Rose Gerbing.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address: Dr. Hartman, President of The Harnman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

For special directions everyone should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Peruna is for sale by all chemists and druggists at one dollar per bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

Those wishing direct correspondence with Dr. Hartman and can wait the necessary delay in receiving a reply should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, U. S. A.

The Weekly Edition of the Evening Bulletin gives a complete summary of the news of the day.

SHORT STORY FOR EVENING HOURS

LOVE IN A GARRET

Since he had obtained his degree in science and an appointment, Stephen Portway had determined to leave his poor lodgings in Soho; but he still delayed. At first, he was not frank even to himself. But at length he had to confess to the dark of a sleepless night that a woman held him—a woman to whom he had never spoken except with the commonplace greetings of the day.

She was French, she called herself Mademoiselle Lemoine, was, perhaps, 24 years of age, and she lived alone in a room on the opposite side of the landing before his door. She appeared to be very poor, very proud and very solitary. The landlord, a little Swiss watchmaker, would shake his head to Stephen's guarded inquiries as to show she lived. He only knew that she gave French lessons at one or two schools in the suburbs.

Without thinking, Stephen had got to wait for her going out in the morning, so that he could greet her when passing. In the evening, too, when he heard the light footsteps coming up the stairs, he would carelessly begin descending, so as to look into the tired, quiet eyes and hear the soft voice answer his salutation. But at last he became aware that his comings-in and goings-out were but shadowings of her movements, and in shame he put restraint upon himself. For some miserable days, therefore, he still listened for her footsteps, but forbore to encounter her. But when, at the end of that time, he found he had not seen her face for a week, he threw self-control to the winds and watched to meet her.

He was surprised and stirred at the change he saw in her face. Once there had seemed to be the possibility of archness and coquetry, but now it was pale and gaunt, and in her eyes were fever and a great trouble. He could not be deceived; whatever was her mental anguish, he knew there was a maner, a grimmer despair beneath it all—she lacked food. All the evening and long into the night he asked himself what he could do to approach her. Once he would fiercely resolve to go to her tomorrow and bluntnly offer her help and friendliness; next moment, he would engage against the suspicious conventions that were reared about them.

Next day was Saturday. She did not appear in the morning, and he went listlessly to his work. Reaching home quickly in the afternoon, he sat in his room, near the door, and listened for her. Some time elapsed; he was in great disquiet, wondering what might have happened to her. Suddenly the quiet steps sounded on the stairs below, and, seizing his hat, he stroiled, whistling out of the room. She was coming up the stairs with a basket on her arm, and at the sight of the weariness in her face and the frailty of her figure, he felt impelled to speak to her tenderly. As she looked at him with shining, feverish eyes, he thought that for a moment she seemed shaken before his gaze, and she hesitated in her reply to his greeting; then she responded, and passed on by her usual distant bearing. As she went by, he glanced at the basket. A cloth was over something within it, and, for the moment, he was glad and then half-sorry with the thought that she was not in such dire straits as he had imagined. As she placed her foot on the stair, he saw the cloth was pulled aside at one place and a piece of charcoal jutted up. He descended, feeling pleased to think she was going to cook something over her stove.

In another ten minutes he came bounding into the house and up the stairs. Half-way toward the Museum a terrible suspicion had entered his mind; perhaps she meant to destroy herself! He stood on the landing and looked at her door. It was closed. He listened, but no noise came from the room. He tried to think of an excuse for knocking and speaking; then, happening to cast his eye to the top of the door, he caught sight of a piece of blanket jammed between it and the frame.

Quickly he bent; no light came through the keyhole, and at the bottom of the door flannel was thrust. He knocked with restrained force, the blood beating thickly at his heart. A slight movement came from within the room, but no reply. He knocked again and called, "Mademoiselle!"

Then her voice answered, in sleepy tones, "Who is it?"
"It is I," he replied. "What are you doing with the door blocked up?"
"Go away," said the girl, drowsily. "I am all right now. . . . I thank you."

He pushed wildly at the door, all his fears realized, but the lock held. "Mademoiselle!" he cried, angrily. "Get up and open the door, or I will burst it in!" He reflected for a moment, and then added: "Think—the whole house will know!"

He heard a movement as of some one slowly rising, and groans, "My head! my head!" Then a heavy fall to the floor. At that, exerting all his strength, he struck the lock with his foot, the door flew open, and thick, white smoke, as from a wood-fire, curled out toward him. A stove stood in the middle of the floor, from which the vapor rose, wreathing and twisting. From the clearness of some part of the room he believed the fire had not been long burning. Quickly lifting the girl from beside the bed, he bore her into his own room, where, placing her on a couch near the open window, he doused her head and throat with water. Anxiously he watched for signs of returning consciousness, and was on the point of running for help, when her bosom fluttered, the lips twitched, and the eyelids slowly opened. She gazed into his tender eyes for a moment as if she did not recognize him; then, turning she burst into passionate tears.

As her hands leaped to cover her face he noticed a wedding ring upon her finger. It had never been there before.

He rose from bending beside the couch and began preparing a meal. He would not look toward her as he went about the room, but was conscious of the restraint she put upon her weeping. In a little while she was asleep and slowly rose from the couch. He was instantly beside her. She murmured that she wished to change her dress, which was wet. She was trembling, and seemed very weak. When he had helped her into her room, which was now cleared of smoke he said a little bravely:

"Mademoiselle, you will promise to do nothing rash again?"
"I will promise you, yes," she said, almost humbly, her eyes dropping before his.

"Whatever may be troubling you," he went on, "you can always depend upon me to help you."
"Thank you," she replied, with so quick an emotion in her voice, that he was startled and moved.

As they sat at tea, he tried by cheerful talk to bring her mind away from brooding, and after the meal she was brought into some brightness on seeing him wash up the tea things, and wished, against his laughing protestations, to do it for him. Suddenly, in the midst of their almost gay talk, she became silent, the face clouded, and shining drops started from her eyes.

"I never dreamed you were so kind," she said, looking at him, the tears falling down her face. "I always thought you were so stern and cold. I called you in my mind the man with the hard eyes."

"Oh, but you mustn't trust to appearances," he replied, cheerfully. "I've often thought you were in trouble and—hadn't many friends, perhaps."

"I have no friends since my poor father died a year ago," she said, sadly, when she had wiped her eyes and could speak quietly. "He had a confession which he thought some rich men here would pay him for, but they took it and gave him worthless papers. When he died, disappointed, I tried to keep myself. All our friends seemed to have hidden themselves. I have suffered many things, but I cannot starve. It is no base. It is intolerable. Oh, Monsieur, I know you despise me for being a coward to-day, but—"

"Don't say that," replied Stephen. "None of us know how weak we may be when the time comes. But now, listen! You must begin again. You must let me lend you some money to go on with; and we must look about and see what work you can get. Will you do that?"

She shook her head, putting his offer from her with a quick upward gesture of her hands, which seemed to him both pretty and pitiable.

"That couldn't," he said, sternly. "You've got to do it. What else can you do? Remember, you've promised me to do nothing rash again."

He looked keenly into the distressed eyes which sought to escape his gaze. Pity and love moved him at sight of her pain.

"Oh, she said, with trembling voice. "I almost wish you had not—not found me to-day!" Then, with a sudden quickness in look and tone, she said, "Hox, Monsieur, did you come to suspect so soon what I was doing? I thought you had gone on!"

His face flushed before her searching eyes, and, for the moment, anger took him to think she was beyond all his dreams, which now were revealed to her. As she watched his face, her blue eyes suddenly shined and looked down.

"Never mind that now," he said.

He passed some gold to her across the table, and her face went proud and puffed as she murmured thanks. Then, hot at the thought of what might be in her mind, he tore a leaf from his notebook, made out an "L. O. U.", and handed it to her, with his pen. She signed the paper in silence. To him the flimsy page seemed a wall of ice between them that for his part, he swore to himself he would never break down.

Next evening she came to tell him of the efforts she had made that day to obtain work. Her manner was somewhat distant with, at the end of their talk, a checked flash of warmth. He noticed there was no ring upon her finger, and wondered what was her story. Perhaps, he thought bitterly, when she had gone, she was only one of the many possible intrigues of the French colony, with sordid experiences better left unknown. But instantly her womanliness appealed against his hardness.

Three weeks passed. He could not but confess the quiet perseverance with which she tramped London through and through in her efforts to get work. She had procured one or two pupils, but her ambition was to obtain some clerical berth. In this, however, her lack of business experience seemed to be the great hindrance, but several of her compatriots had promised to aid her.

As to Portway, he had soon cast away all doubt. For him she was sheer honesty, and daily, in their short evening talks, the question came to him—How long he could keep the barrier of mere friendliness before him? Every turn of her lips and eyes pulled him to her; every gesture was the dearest thing in life. Outwardly, his bearing was that of a friend who, though interested in all she did, was himself too greatly occupied to give any but the smallest time to talk.

One evening she met him on the stairs, her eyes eager, her manner agitated. She told him she had at length obtained a small berth in a commercial office. She was to work at the London branch for six months, and then be transferred to Paris. In spite of his quick cheerfulness, his brightness dulled at the sadness that came into his eyes as she told her news.

He knew what he must do; he must leave her at once. To feel the time shorten to the day when he should see her for the last time would gradually undermine resolution. By one strong action he could save himself from his own disesteem and, perhaps, her scorn. At the heart of him he did not know what to think of her. She did not fear him, yet she did not try to draw him. Her grace and gentleness hid so much that was brave and strong that doubt of her was impossible. Yet, who was she? What was she? Had that ring meant anything? Why had she removed it?

He had for some time been able to take a vacancy in a laboratory at Liverpool, and now made definite arrangements for the change. By the time these had been concluded, Mademoiselle had been ten days in her new position, and the restless mind had quickened grace and charm in every gesture. He realized that every day he stayed made it the harder to go from her.

On the evening that he had determined to tell her of his leaving London she stopped at his door, and, on her entering to his call, he had not the heart to look up, but returned her greeting with eyes bent on his book. After a little talk she seemed to think he was preoccupied, and as usual, in her sensible manner, that had always half-blinded and half-enlightened him, she rose soon as if to go away.

He looked up quickly.
"Don't go," he said; "I have something to tell you. I have got an appointment at Liverpool and shall be leaving London in a few days. I suppose you, too, will be getting new quarters soon?"

She went pale as she sat, and in her eyes came a look of terror.
"You are leaving London? I—I am very sorry."

"I, too, am sorry," said Portway, hurriedly; "very sorry; but I think it is best for—for my prospects as an analyst."

She nodded her head, looking at him with eyes of sadness. She rose and went to the door in silence, stopped came back to where he stood, and held out her hand.

"Monsieur Stephen," she said, in low, soft tones, "I can never thank you enough for your goodness. You have been more than a friend to me, but—"

She shook her head sorrowfully, and her eyes darkened as if with fear. She dropped his hand, and with a wan smile, shrugged her shoulders.

"What is it, Mademoiselle?" he said, his voice quick.
"I fear myself," she said. "I am a coward." Her face and figure seemed suddenly shadowed in gloom. "But, as

DRAMA WELL PLAYED

Walter Sanford's players presented "Not Guilty" at the Orpheum last night in a manner that gave the big audience great delight.

William Desmond and Laura Wall as Philip and Kate Meredith gave the required force to the strong emotional drama and Tommy Shearer and Adelaide Smith as Horatio Garlick Muggs, the man who once "played Hamlet" and Lohella Giles, the senility maid who is stage struck, were immense, particularly so.

Philip Walsh was seen to great advantage as Algernon. Graham the well inclined to a paucity of intellect. A. C. Anderson made a good Ralph Duwell the villain and Ethel Earle as Bella Graham played the part with her usual grace and appreciation of the part.

WANTS INHERITANCE.

In a petition asking immediate accounting from J. F. Colburn, James Hoare, creditor of the Antonio Rosa estate, says:

"That John F. Colburn was appointed sole executor of said estate by this honorable court on October 17, 1898; that the said John F. Colburn has filed no account as such executor, except the first inventory of the assets; that it appears from statements contained in the petition to sell real estate filed by the said John F. Colburn as executor on November 22, 1902, and in other papers filed in the above entitled proceeding, that large sums have been paid out to meet certain unspecified claims, and that there is great danger that your petitioner's claim will not be paid in full or even pro rata with other claims; and that your petitioner is unable to discover the present condition of the estate or to ascertain his rights because of the failure of the executor to account; that there are now pending in this court proceedings for the admeasurement of dower in the said estate, and that an accounting by the executor is necessary in connection with such proceedings and for the ascertainment of your petitioner's rights therein, especially in view of the fact that the petition for admeasurement states that over $11,000 has been paid out by the executor for mortgages, liens and other claims."

The Kiloheana Art League gave a fine musical last evening at its rooms in the Model block. D'Albort, violinist, Miss Castle, pianist, Mrs. McCracken, Miss Gertrude Hall and Miss Coolidge, as soloists, did particularly well. The last number, a trio, by Miss Blyington, Miss Whitney and Mrs. Damon, with violin accompaniment by Mrs. Lull, Mrs. Howard and Miss Kopke, was most excellent.

The Honolulu Engineering Association has sent out the following notice: "The secretary has on hand a number of copies of papers on 'Production of Sugar in Hawaii,' 'Manufacture of Sugar in Hawaii,' and 'Bagasse Burning Furnaces.' Any member desiring copies of these papers will be furnished with one on application by letter or in person." G. F. Bush is the secretary.

ELECTRIC POWER TO BE CHEAPER

A reduction in the price of electric power that will be favorably felt by many large consumers in Honolulu, is announced by Hawaiian Electric Co. On and after Dec. 1, 1903, the rate for power will be charged at sixteen cents per kilowatt hour for all power up to 100 kilowatt hours per month; thence on a sliding scale to ten cents per kilowatt hour for 1000 kilowatt hours per month; thence on a proportionate scale to six cents per kilowatt hour for 2700 kilowatt hours per month. All current above 2700 kilowatt hours per month will be six cents per kilowatt hour. A minimum charge of $1 per horse power per month will be made. The usual five per cent. discount will be allowed on all bills paid before or on or before the 10th of the succeeding month.

ELKS' MEMORIAL

On Sunday next Elks lodges throughout American territory will hold services in memory of those members who have passed to the great beyond during the year. This is mandatory on every lodge of Elks. The services of the local lodge will be held in the opera house and will be a great improvement over those of last year, as excellent as those were.

The brothers who died during the past year were George Hons, George Cooke and Captain Brokaw. The names of these men will appear on a marble tablet which, according to the laws of the Elks must be kept in the lodge room throughout the year for the purpose of inscribing thereon the names and the dates of birth and death of each departing brother.

The stage features this year will be beautiful. Instead of the closed stage as in the case of last year, there will be an open stage, decorated in becoming fashion.

The music under the direction of Mrs. Anna Montague-Turner, will be exceptionally fine. The Symphony Society, composed of the very best talent in the city, will render appropriate selections. Mrs. Turner, Mrs. F. E. Richardson, Hugo Herzer, H. F. Wichmann will be the vocalists. A feature of the program will be a vocal selection by a ladies' quintet composed of Miss Alice Campbell, Miss Stella Love, Miss Daisy Lishman, Miss Ada Rhodes and Mrs. Anna Montague-Turner.

Messrs. Isaac and Walter Dillingham, Clifford Kimball and John Sumner Ellis will sing behind the scenes during the ritualistic part of the service.
