PAUL'S PROCLAMATION.

That Mr. Paul Neumann should write a letter to the Provisional government for a political purpose is not at all strange, but that he should expect his little political dodge to have any weight with the public is altogether strange—stranger than truth and fiction—have been ever yet in the annals of Hawaiian politics. Personally Mr. Neumann is a popular citizen, as far as transient social popularity goes. He is a hail fellow, well met with many people; but when it comes to politics—after Mr. Neumann's Hawaiian record—his letter to the Provisional government gives the intelligent public that "terrible tired feeling," for which there is no medical remedy in the royalist pharmacopoeia.

It is not our purpose to discuss at present the substance of Mr. Neumann's political plea for a rehearing of the ex-queen's case before a popular native jury further than to say that the propositions made by him in his letter cannot possibly come up until the question of annexation, raised through the Provisional government, is settled either one way or the other by the action of the United States. The question which Mr. Neumann asks with owl-like absurdity, as to whether President Dole, his colleagues and partisans, "believe that a government established under the circumstances under which this government was created * * * can be permanently maintained," is sufficiently and fully answered by referring the learned lawyer and political fee-taker to the adjective "provisional," which, from its organization, has qualified the present government.

That a large portion of the special plea of the ex-queen's late political counsel is made up of assertions, not borne out by the facts of the last six months of Hawaiian history, is not unexpected. The fact is that, without a large number of unsubstantiated assertions, the royalist cause cannot be sufficiently bolstered to make it presentable to the public gaze. It is quite plain that Mr. Neumann has taken the present occasion to set forth all the royalist arguments, he used so unsuccessfully at Washington, under the guise of advice to the Provisional government as to how they shall proceed in obtaining good government in Hawaii, which the ex-queen, Mr. Neumann and his political friends signally failed to give the people of these islands. Nay, more; if they had the power they would break down the present political reforms and turn Hawaii over again to the tender mercies of the ex-queen, the political boodlers and the lottery swindlers.

The point raised by the eloquent fee-taker that the annexation cause is based upon false reports forwarded to the Harrison administration, seems to be somewhat of an afterthought, when viewed in the light of that ex-royal power of attorney which Mr. Neumann carried to Washington in his pocket, and denied to the press of the United States that he had. When Mr. Neumann assumes to speak for the American people he places himself in a position quite as false and untenable as when he uses the plural "we" to represent the Hawaiian people in making demands of the Provisional government. Mr. Neumann simply represents himself and his political and royalist clients, but nobody else. As far as the political future of Hawaii is concerned, neither Mr. Neumann nor his friends will be in it in any event, until they get out of bad political company. The people are fully determined that hereafter good government of some form shall prevail here.

PROF. E. CHARLIER'S VIEWS ON HAWAII AND CALIFORNIA.

[The following are extracts from a private letter from Prof. Charlier, who spent six months in traveling around this group. They contain some well-expressed sentiments on local affairs, and as expressing the views of a gentleman of wide experience and liberal sentiments, will be read with interest.—EDITOR.]

As I expected before leaving Honolulu, your political situation remains as it was then. President Cleveland is bound to wait for the re-assembling of congress, and Mr. Blount is in no hurry to come to a conclusion. All that was in the order of human events. Unless the United States government has lost common sense it is bound to accept the Hawaiian islands under one form or another, and in the meantime I do not see that you are any worse off than you were before. Your only great industry is sugar, and everything connected with it goes on as usual. I do not pity much the planters if they make only 10 per cent. instead of 25 per cent. They will have time to consider the labor question and adjust it to new circumstances. Of course when profits were enormous expenses were lavish, and a credit boom was created. Everybody felt rich, and now everybody feels poor, as the millionaire who loses half his millions, and declares that he is ruined.

Even if the United States does not accept the Hawaiian islands, the Provisional government is perfectly able to remain master of the situation. If pushed to the wall, the ex-queen may be put on a steamer and sent abroad with a few of her most ardent supporters. Let the first practical agitator be tried and shot, the others will not move. But I would allow full free speech and free press. It is better to let people evaporate their ideas than to confine them in holes. It is better to know what our adversaries are doing than to have to discover their plans.

And, finally, if the United States refuses absolutely the Hawaiian republic, England is ready to take hold of it, and under its rule, the labor question would present no difficulty. Peace and stability would exist. I have seen its rule in India, and especially in Ceylon, with inferior races, and I consider the English as the best rulers of Eastern nations.

So, altogether, I feel little or no anxiety about the future of your Hawaiian islands, and if I live, I may decide to go and end my days under your glorious climate, in spite of your mosquitoes, south winds and other drawbacks. By that time cable may have been laid between Hawaii and the coast, and, if so, it would remove my greatest objection to living in the center of the Pacific ocean.

We spent two weeks in the Yosemite valley and its surroundings. It is a long, fatiguing, rough, dusty journey. The valley itself is geologically remarkable. A massive granite mountain was thousands of millions of years ago split by an earthquake; the result is a hole six miles long, two miles wide, surrounded by rocky walls 3000 feet high. The Merced torrent, which in old times came down from the highest summits (Mounts Whitney, Lyell, etc.) of the Sierra Nevada, by a succession of rapids and small falls, now tumbles down the valley by two big falls of 700 and 350 feet. Once at the bottom of the valley it is a peaceful, insignificant stream which receives a number of torrents that tumble down on all sides and form falls of great height. In May, when the snow melts, the streams are full and the waterfalls more attractive, especially at sunset, when the rays of the sun strike almost horizontally the spray, and the finest rainbows which I have yet seen out of the sky.

The highest or longest of those falls is the Yosemite (Grizzly Bear) which tumbles down 1500 feet in its upper part, 2500 feet in all, before reaching the Merced; but the impression made on the mind is not great and does not compare with the grandeur of Niagara.

Of course, we bring back many pleasant memories from that trip. On the summits I found the wonderful snow plant (sarcodes sanguinea) which comes out of the snow like a huge red asparagus, and develops a number of small flowers like those of a hyacinth, surrounded by most delicate leaves tinted with white. The bloody red color of the whole is its most remarkable feature.

The big trees of Mariposa (sequoia gigantea) are another feature of that region. They are ugly, and surrounded by other very tall trees, do not surprise the eye by their heights, but the crymptogams, the redwoods in Japan. It is necessary to study them, and we spent many hours amongst them. The "Grizzly Bear" is 200 feet high, over 90 feet in circumference. The "Wawona" big tree is 27 feet in diameter. A passage 10 by 10 has been cut through it for a road. The photographs usually represent it with a carriage in it. A volume could be written on those trees, their history, etc.

A company of United States cavalry was camping in the Yosemite reservation to protect it against camp fires and destroying humans. On the top of Signal Peak (used for survey) we found two officers trying to kill eagles. They were gentlemen, West Pointers, and knew the country, we divided with them our lunch, I invited them to dine and we were mutually satisfied with each other.

On our way up, we had the mishap to meet a party of Raymond tourists. Individually each one may be an angel; collectively they are like the Egyptian grasshoppers, an untold nuisance. The result was that we had to drive in an open wagon, with a snow storm in the afternoon, which lasted two hours. Luckily the road superintendent, with a buggy, came along and relieved us from a very unpleasant predicament. Altogether the Kilauea trip is easy in comparison with the Yosemite trip, and the lake of fire is a hundred times more interesting and novel than the split rocks of the Sierra Nevada.

San Jose is a prosperous city of 25,000 inhabitants, located in the fertile

Santa Clara valley, mostly planted with fruit trees. We revelled in a cherry orchard, plucking the fruit from the branches and admiring the skillful way it is packed, boxed for the market.

Santa Cruz has a fine beach which is its only attraction. Monterey would be nothing but for the hotel and grounds built and prepared by the Southern Pacific railroad company in the middle of a barren country. It is an oasis in a desert, and the hotel is the best in California, perhaps in the United States. With the California usual exaggeration (more or less imitated on the Hawaiian islands), it is necessary to reduce at least one-half of the extravagant praises bestowed on everything. Monterey Dalmoneto Hotel is the only spot which has come up to our expectations. Yet it is of it, as of the "Paradise of the Pacific," which is described in Whitney's excellent Guide Book without the slightest mention of mosquitoes and their sanguinary love for new comers—especially tender ladies and children, whom they prefer to dried-up old invalids. Outside of Monterey hotel grounds, there is very little of interest.

Even now San Francisco is cool, and we are obliged to dress warmly. I am no admirer of its climate, such as it has been during the last two months. I am not at all surprised at the Herald's position. It is customary of such deeds; it adopts an opinion and sticks to it in spite of all evidence. But I am surprised to see Mr. Nordhoff becoming its tool; I considered him above such a third-class business as he has been in. He used to be a writer independent in his own judgment. Tempora mutantur. He is no more himself.

E. C.

The Hawaiian Situation.

The exposure of a royalist plot to restore Liliuokalani under British auspices, and the occupation of the palace by the Provisional government as an executive building and barracks, are two nails in the coffin of the old order of things in Hawaii. The conspiracy will solidify business and public opinion in favor of annexation or a protectorate, which will put an end to all such plotting. The occupation of the palace will work upon the natives through their superstition. It breaks the tabu laid upon the building by the native kahunas, and shows the people how they have been humbugged by these survivals of ancient heathenism. The Christianity of the natives is mostly skin deep, so far as any enlightened idea of the relations of nature and the supernatural is concerned; but they can understand patent facts when they see that tabu is powerless against the methods of civilization. As they have little of that spirit which fights against odds as a matter of principle, they will wisely conclude that since tabu is no good they may as well accept the new order of things in their proverbial easy fashion, and not bother themselves as long as poi is plenty.—S. July 10, 1893.

There is a season in the year when most dealers are out of certain lines of stock; we get out occasionally, but we fill up as quickly as most people. For instance we've had to dis-appoint some customers for table cutlery, but now we have all that is required, and of the very best quality. We have also filled up short lines of the celebrated "2196" Haviland, an article that never grows old.

So many people here like hashed meat that we have imported a new style and very good meat cutter that must win the admiration of the celestial who acts as manager of the culinary department of your house. And when you are thinking of something for the kitchen, think again and get a tin of Putz polish that will brighten up every kind of metal. The water taps, that usually get dirty with age can be polished with Putz liquid so they will be as bright as gold.

Individuals who need something to sharpen their wits or their razors can find nothing better for the purpose than one of Emerson's Razor Stropps. They are the best in use and sell very cheap.

We neglected to mention in our notice of Haviland China that our stock now contains an assortment of chocolate pots such as are used in every house where people like to drink chocolate.

If any of our readers are admirers of works of art, their attention is called to a very excellent water color sketch by the late R. C. Barnfield in our makai window. It is an island view and has been pronounced by judges to be one of the late artist's best.

ANDERSON-YOUNG.

CENTRAL UNION CHURCH WAS CROWDED LAST NIGHT.

The Ceremony is Witnessed by Many of the Wealth and Beauty of the City.

Large as is the seating capacity of Central Union church, it was taxed to the utmost last night on the occasion of the nuptials of Miss Susan Alice Young and Dr. R. W. Anderson. The church had been handsomely decorated with flowers and wreaths, while the chancel was literally imbedded with palms of different kinds. The organ was also beautifully dressed with wreaths, etc. Much of the beauty of the decorations was lost, however, from the fact that the main chandelier could not be lighted, owing to insufficient power at the electric light works.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the bridal party entered from the Beretania street side, the three bridesmaids, Miss Bertha Young, Miss Nellie Young, sisters of the bride, and Miss Lita Vida, leading the way down the left hand aisle, followed by the bride leaning on the arm of her father, Hon. Alex. Young, who gave her away. Down the other aisle came the two groomsmen, Prof. J. Q. Wood of Oahu college and Mr. E. Benner, followed by the groom leaning on the arm of his best man, W. Porter Boyd, United States Vice Consul-General. Both parties met in the central space in front of the church, where Rev. Dr. E. G. Beckwith was awaiting them, and the marriage ceremony at once commenced, and a few short minutes sufficed to join two loving hearts in one. After the ceremony the newly-wedded retired into the vestry, where they received the congratulations of a number of friends, and the audience dispersed to the joyful sounds of Lohengrin's wedding march, Mr. F. M. Wakefield presiding at the organ.

The bride was dressed in pure white silk with white veil and orange blossoms, Misses Vida and Nellie Young in pink silk and Miss Bertha young in white silk.

Among those present at the church and at the reception afterwards were: President and Mrs. Dole, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Magoon, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lowrey, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hopper, Mr. C. J. and Miss Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Lewers, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. and Miss Hall, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. and Miss Jones, Dr. and Mrs. Jno. S. McGrew and Mr. McGrew, Jr., Judge J. M. Davidson, Rev. Sereno E. Bishop, Miss Kinney, Dr. and Mrs. Lundy, Prof. and Mrs. Alexander, Dr. N. B. Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Hoting, Prof. and Mrs. F. A. Hosmer, Louis Kenake, Mark P. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Warner, Ed. Mossman and sister, Mrs. Afong and the Misses Afong, Mrs. Lieut. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Dimond, Misses Parker, Justice W. F. Frear, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dillingham, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Luning, Mrs. S. M. Damon and Miss Damon, W. E. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wall, Mrs. J. B. Atherton, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. McStocker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waterhouse, Mr. T. F. Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Peterson, Mrs. Alex. Young, son and daughter, Mr. Wells Peterson, Mr. C. C. Glade, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Wichman, Mr. W. M. Templeton, Mr. Fred Oat, Mr. and Mrs. Mort Oat, Mr. M. McInerney, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Parmelee, Mr. W. L. Hopper, Mr. and Mrs. Capt. Godfrey, Miss Carter, Miss Ada Jones.

Later in the evening a reception was held at the family residence on King street. The house was brightly illuminated with electricity, and a large electric light was placed in the yard for the use of the band, which played during the evening. The yard was also gaily decorated with Japanese and Chinese lanterns. Refreshments were served to the numerous guests during the evening. The presents were numerous, and presented a fine appearance in one of the side rooms. The newly-married couple received the congratulations of those present in the parlor underneath festoons of maile and ferns.

The Coming Duke.

The Duke of Newcastle, in his tour of the world, arrived in Denver the other day with nineteen trunks and a long box, the contents of which excited the curiosity of the reporters. They discovered that it contained a large squirrel of unusual breed, a racoon and another animal which they could not identify. The duke declined to discuss his menagerie.—New York World.

A MORNING BURGLARY.

Shots Exchanged by C. B. Wilson and the Thief.

Mr. C. B. Wilson's residence on Kinau street, below the baseball grounds, was visited by a burglar on Tuesday morning. Mr. Wilson was awakened from his slumber by hearing a strange noise in the house. He got up, and securing his rifle, proceeded to investigate. The intruder, doubtless hearing him moving, became alarmed and decamped. Mr. Wilson ran out of the house and ordered the burglar, who was making a rapid retreat, to stop or he would shoot. His only reply was a shot. Mr. Wilson then fired at the fellow but did not succeed in hitting him and he quickly disappeared from sight. Mr. Wilson returned to the house and upon examination discovered that his gold watch, a gift valued at $250, $6 in silver coin and a $50 bill were missing articles.

The thief has not been caught, but Mr. Wilson believes him to be a stranger and a white man.

Meeting Postponed.

The regular meeting of the board of health, to take place this afternoon, has been postponed owing to the absence of the president, W. O. Smith, at Kalalau. Provided Mr. Smith returns tomorrow by the Iwalani the meeting will likely be called for Friday. A number of important matters will be brought before the board at the meeting.

Mrs. Mary E. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 75 lbs., and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once improved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla."

THE WORLD'S FAIR

A DISSERTATION ON DAILY EXPENSES.

Details For Personal Comfort.

Novel Plan of Caring for Visitors' Children.

[SPECIAL TO THE ADVERTISER.]

CHICAGO, June 27.—The World's Fair being the most interesting topic of the day in the United States is being commented upon in every conceivable style. The impression incautiously given out by some of the leading journals, that extortionate charges are the cause of dissatisfaction, is misleading to say the least.

The great cities of America can afford most anything to be desired, and if one comes to Chicago, or in fact, visits anywhere in the United States with the expectation of being robbed he need not be disappointed. Barnum says the Americans "like to be humbugged," and it will prove true of anyone who meets with more than a reasonable expense in a trip to the World's Fair.

The railroad companies have done the least towards facilitating and encouraging in the important question of how can people of limited means afford to see this wonderful exhibition. The cut rates now being made will somewhat lessen that difficulty. Hotels within a few minutes' walk of the grounds offer rates from $2.50 upwards per day on the American plan, and from $1 to $3 per day on the European plan. Lodgings can be obtained in frame houses for 50 and 75 cents per night and you may camp out under a tent for 25 cents.

Board can be had at the same rates as before a fair was thought of, the best places, however, being sometimes thronged with impatient fair goers the service will hardly bear praise.

The hotels in Chicago proper, simply maintain rates which are consistent with the accommodations required and during the Fair season will make no concessions in transient rates. There is little time lost in going to and from Van Buren street to the Fair grounds, fare ten cents each way, on the Illinois Central railroad direct express. Many ways of transportation to and from the Fair grounds are provided, and some may prefer taking up quarters in the main portion of the city. Meals in all styles, and at any desired cost, are furnished within the grounds and refreshments of every sort are within reach of the most careful.

Wheeled chairs can be obtained with a guide for 75 cents per hour, or should you be fortunate enough to have some friend to push your little carriage along, you will need to pay but forty cents per hour.

Light but strong portable chairs are rented from numerous stands for ten cents per day, proving a most valuable convenience to the footsore and weary.

The admission being fifty cents, there is no further cost excepting through the interesting scenes of the Midway Plaisance. Admission prices from ten to fifty cents are charged by the various enterprises, which summed up amount to about $8.00.

The intermar railway system is a great convenience in going to and from extreme points of the grounds: fare ten cents, or all the way around for twenty cents.

Packages will be cared for at the many offices for that purpose, the charge being ten cents a day for each package. A novel feature is the care of children, who may be left with nurses in the children's building, and will be cared for and amused in a most satisfactory manner. Every toy that could be thought of is provided; each child being labeled, and a tag held by the owner, which is a receipt for the precious little package until reclaimed.

Suffice to say there has been every provision possible for the accommodation of the expected immense attendance which has not yet reached the estimated 250,000 a day.

The first thought that strikes the average person might, if expressed, be "what a feast for eyes." Where to commence needs only to be answered by your most intense interest. The names of the buildings will lead you to gratify your ambition, or taking you far beyond will excite an interest in progress that fascinates, and is an education to be gained in no other way in the same length of time.

Scarcely anyone who has enough money saved up to take them to this most wonderful display of enterprise and genius, brought vividly into contrast with earlier days, can afford to miss this chance of a lifetime.

It is to the writer's mind worth double, or as much more as may be made of the advantage, what it may cost to see the World's Fair of 1893.

To say it will pay one is not doing the intelligence of our readers justice; to see is but to realize the force of such a statement.

The ambulance system is not to be overlooked. No matter how slight an accident may be the cause, or a sudden illness render immediate care necessary, but to give a signal will call in a few moments a conveyance, and at the hospital or building for public comfort the sufferer will be cared for by trained nurses and receive treatment that can not be too highly praised.

Columbian guards are at every turn, whose principal duties are to preserve order and contribute directions to the inquirer. A more courteous corps could not be employed, nor is there hardly a question with regard to the fair that can be asked without a satisfactory answer being the result.

The post office is in the United States government building, but letters may be mailed at any of the many boxes for the purpose.

The Western Union and Postal telegraph systems have several stations, and the public telephone is at the service of visitors of this nicknamed "White City."

A well-planned fire system provides an almost absolute guarantee against any serious results from an outbreak.

Provision is made for every possible contingency that may arise, and the affairs in connection are carried on in a business-like way with evident discipline.

HAWAIIAN TOURIST.

FALSE RUMOR

That More Men Had Been Killed at Kalalau.

Soon after the departure of the steamer Claudine yesterday afternoon, a report was circulated on Merchant street that the schooner Liholiho had arrived from Kaula, bringing the news that two more of the soldiers at Kalalau had been shot by Koolau. It was not long before everybody down town had heard of the story.

A native hackman came up Fort street telling everybody of the alleged killing. Hack Inspector Sam Macy was one of those who heard the story and he mounted his horse and galloped hastily to the station house to inform Police Captain R. W. Parker of the rumored fatality.

Captain Parker was greatly surprised at the news, but in order to satisfy himself, he went at once to the office of the I. I. S. N. Co. at the wharf, where he learned that the schooner had not yet arrived.

Captain H. H. Berry, of the Liholiho, who has been laid up with the gripe during the past three weeks, heard the story, and hastened to the wharf to see his schooner, but was disappointed. Captain Berry expects the Liholiho in from Makaweli with a cargo of sugar this morning.

District Court.

TUESDAY, July 11.

Ah Kin, assault and battery on Annie Kaaukai. Defendant pleaded guilty; fined $9 and $1 costs.

Kahahana, larceny of vest, valued at $4.50, property of Wing Sang Chan. Defendant was found guilty and sentenced to be imprisoned at hard labor for ten days, and to pay $1 costs.

Daniel Mendoza, vagrancy in Honolulu during three months last past, remanded till Wednesday.

One drunk was fined $2 and costs $1. Six cases were remanded.

Scarcity of Water.

It was learned yesterday that the present long dry spell is threatening the water supply of Honolulu. Inquiry at the proper department confirmed the report. Minister King and Mr. Andrew Brown of the water works both stated that unless great care was exercised by those irrigating yards, gardens, etc., the water supply now on hand would soon run short. The officers in charge call attention to the necessity of obeying the regulations and hours for irrigating from this time on.

Government Land Sale.

Chief Clerk Hassinger held a land sale yesterday at noon at the executive building. The sale comprised three pieces of government land, viz.: 1. Aleamai, containing 79.7 acres, upset price $150; 2. Aleamai, containing 18.8 acres, upset price $94; 3. Alakahi and Mokuoniki, containing 511 acres, upset price $500. The three pieces were knocked down to the Hilo Sugar Company at the upset prices.

Not Related.

Lieut. G. W. R. King, in command of the military expedition at Kalalau, is not related to Corporal T. King, who left on Monday afternoon with ten more soldiers by the steamer Iwalani.

A POLITICIAN'S PLEA.

ROYALIST NEUMANN GIVES THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT ADVICE.

He is Evidently Tired of Not Being In It.

The following article appeared in Tuesday's Bulletin:

HON. S. B. DOLE, DEAR SIR:—The situation in the Hawaiian Islands is unsatisfactory and complaints are loud on all sides. To the present uncertainty are attributed hard times, languishing trade, and the wearing strain upon the mind and patience of the people. Anyhow, it is thought that removing the existing uncertainty of our condition will abolish those evils.

The people of the islands have remained in conservative expectancy. Even those who are not widely enthusiastic in favor of annexation willingly credit to the party at whose head you stand an honest purpose to benefit all the people of this country by their policy. Why, however, this delay in positive action?

This letter is addressed to you, firstly, because you have assumed all responsibility for assuming the leadership of your party; secondly, because a number of people, though not content with the state of affairs, yet give a tacit support to the Provisional government because they have confidence in your character, disposition, integrity and ability.

But their faith in your strength and in your courage to do what is just and right is wavering.

Leaving aside certain objectionable acts of your party—objectionable because they were certainly unnecessary and presumably impolitic—such as the childish interference with the land, the absurd military bill and others—the people acquiesced in your leadership and in the direction of public business by your colleagues and by the advisory council. Because of people's confidence in your honesty nothing has been done to impede your course of action or to thwart your policy. Is, however, the present condition to continue indefinitely?

Do you, do your colleagues, does the council, and do your partisans believe that a government established under the circumstances under which this government was created—a government existing without, I will not say against, the consent of the Hawaiian people, can be permanently maintained? This, you know, is not probable, it is not possible; an attempt to shape an action to accord with such a belief may be fraught with very serious, perhaps, dangerous results.

It is not necessary to advance the proposition that annexation is entirely impossible; it is undeniably impossible without an expression of the will of the Hawaiian people. The United States would not, without such an expression, annex this country in any form or under any circumstances. It is obvious that neither the previous "elan" which inspired the annexationists last February, nor the propaganda which a small portion of the American press and the United States government have been propagating since, will induce the American people to garrote the Hawaiians and steal the islands.

It is strange that men of such intelligence and political experience as some members and partisans of the Provisional government are, could not foresee the fact that the American nation are not flustered, and that instead of attempting to gain annexation by legitimate efforts in the islands, you tried by foreign and unlawful assistance to knock Mr. Stevens' ripe pear off the Hawaiian tree. It was blundered into the United States did not spread the bag to receive the pear; it is hanging there yet and nobody was struck, unless our respected friend Mr. Stevens, as one may fairly judge from the groans of pain which he emitted in San Francisco before the chamber of commerce. In the end not even the resolutions of the San Francisco chamber of commerce will help to annex the islands.

The point is, what can, what should be done, and what is your duty at this time? All possible propositions lead but to one conclusion, and a very cogent conclusion. A plebiscite must be held, until this necessity is pointed out by the American congress, to whom very probably the president will submit the Hawaiian question? Does anyone believe that the indecency heretofore attempted through false reports sent to Mr. Harrison and Mr. Foster can be repeated, and that the Hawaiian people will be robbed of their independence against their expressed wishes, and that the benefits of annexation conferred upon them without their expressed wish? Whoever believes that does not know the United States of America.

If the qualified voters of the Hawaiian Islands ratify the actions of the committee of safety and of the Provisional government, you will need no army to strike terror into the hearts of the malcontents. If they do not endorse you, what right have you to usurp the functions of government?

If the people ratify those acts and approve your political existence as rulers, very decent, intelligent and well-meaning resident, though no adherent of your party, will array himself upon your side and sustain your actions and your policy. Then the proper way for annexation is to act in such proper, clean and justifiable manner that our great and good friend across the sea can, with propriety, give heed to your request. Then he may help us; if not by annexation to his own detriment, yet by assisting us to maintain a stable and decent government.

If a majority of representatives elected by the qualified voters of the country declare for a change of our form of government, irrespective of the possibility of future annexation, they will be sustained by the taxpayers and reputable citizens of this country, and no one will be heard if the present government should be placed lawfully and constitutionally in power.

The people will not submit to Pretorianism or indefinite delay in settling the question.

Either of the two conditions means ruin. Both are grossly unjust and inconsistent with the principles which the annexationists must possess and profess if they are fit to become American citizens.

The step recommended, that is, the convening of a body of lawfully chosen representatives and carrying out their conclusions, means sustaining right and justice. The people have the right to demand that it be taken; you (meaning the Provisional government) have no right to refuse to take it or to impede or prevent it if you are honest.

But there is another and more urgent reason for such action. It should be compelled by gratitude to and consideration for our friend the United States. These islands, it is well known, have been befriended and in reality protected at all times by the great republic. It is claimed that our political change has been effected by representative of the United States in violation of justice, decency, comity, treaty obligations and international law.

That representative came near to casting an indelible stain upon the American nation. But why ask the United States to judge him? His future fate does not concern us. Let the Hawaiian people assemble by duly chosen representatives, let the people declare how and by whom we shall be governed, and ask the United States, if it should be necessary, to assist us in carrying out the conclusions of the people. Now we call upon you and the Provisional government, who profess an attachment for the United States so great that it impels you to surrender Hawaiian independence for American citizenship, to save our great friend and neighbor from a disagreeable task by taking the vote of the Hawaiian people and following their popular will. You will then show that you are fit to become American citizens, and do not wish to trample under foot every gift of liberty, every principle of representative government, every guarantee of justice and right.

Do now what is just and right not from fear or necessity, nor until it is demanded by the United States, but because you owe the fulfillment of that duty to the people who permit you to represent them and to those whose faith in your honest motives must be justified by your own conduct.

Put your house in order so that you may show to the American Congress when it assembles what is truly the wish of our people, in whom after all the sovereignty rests, and ask your great neighbor to help you if the wish expressed is reasonable and rests on proper grounds.

This course will not alone preserve the high estimate in which you, and many of those who are with you, are held at home, but will commend your cause, which will then be the cause of the people of Hawaii, to a respectful and advantageous consideration in Washington.

I am, with every assurance of my high esteem,

Yours sincerely,

PAUL NEUMANN.

"German Syrup"

Martinsville, N.J., Methodist Parsonage.

"My acquaintance with your remedy, Boschee's German Syrup, was made about fourteen years ago, when I contracted a Cold which resulted in a Hoarseness and a Cough which disabled me from filling my pulpit for a number of Sabbaths. After trying a Physician, without obtaining relief—I cannot say now what remedy he prescribed—I saw the advertisement of your remedy and obtained a bottle. I received such quick and permanent help from it that whenever we have had Throat or Bronchial troubles since in our family, Boschee's German Syrup has been our favorite remedy and always with favorable results. I have never hesitated to report my experience of its use to others when I have found them troubled in like manner." REV. W. H. HAGGARTY, of the Newark, New Jersey, M.E. Conference, April 25, '90.

H. F. WICHMAN,

FORT STREET.

Having now the much desired space for the proper display of my splendid stock of FINE GOODS, and late additions thereto, it is a pleasure to see you in and show the arrangement of the different times, as compared to my old and cramped quarters; it is simply paradise. My stock of staple and new Goods will from now on, be found complete, and any suggestion in the way of new fads will be eagerly attended to.

As a starter on new Goods, my very fine line of Leather Purses and Card Case combinations are well worth your attention.

Leathers in all the delicate colors of dress materials, mounted in fine sterling silver in intricate designs as well as the plain; they must be appreciated by those who have always been obliged to send away for these goods. Carrying in this line the products of the leading makers of fine Leathers in the United States, it is possible for me to offer you a choice assortment from the comparatively inexpensive to that which takes dollars to buy.

The Gentleman's full dress Card Case, seems to be the correct thing from the way they caught on—just large enough to fit the proper pocket. Another little thing on which sales are rapidly increasing, the dainty little individual Butter Spreader in sterling silver and plate, probably the best and most useful little conceit ever thought of in connection with the table service. Remaining on the table throughout the meal, they entirely take the place of the desert knife for spreading butter, certainly more dainty and giving the other instrument a chance to be used for what it was intended. To those of refined tastes and a sense of the fitting, very little need be said in their favor. It will not be long before every table in Honolulu will be supplied with these very necessary little articles.

INTERRUPTED.

At about 9 in the evening a man turned the corner of Madison avenue and Sixty-third street, walked slowly along the block, then pausing glanced at a row of handsome houses which stood in their sameness, dark and stately, selected the third, mounted the high steps and authoritatively rang the bell.

It was early spring, the air was soft, the night still, and the sharp clang echoed for a moment before the door was opened by a trim waiting maid. The moonlight revealed to this maid a boyish looking fellow, who held carefully in both hands a flowerpot containing a most beautiful azalea in the full bloom of its pink blossoms. The maid involuntarily smiled as she saw the lovely flower, and the smile was answered by an engaging one from the young man.

"Is Mrs. Courtland at home?"
"No, sir."
"Mr. Courtland?"
"No, sir. They are at the theater."

An expression of disappointment crossed the youth's face, and he hesitated as if puzzled.
"Won't you step in?"

After an instant's pause the man did so, threw a comprehensive glance about him and said, "I promised to deliver this plant to Mrs. Courtland herself, but it's a long way up, and I believe I'll leave it."

He had one of those pathetic voices in which there is an unconscious appeal, and this, together with his frank blue eye and pleasant manner, created sympathy for his disappointment in the maid's heart. So she received the plant carefully from him and was about to place it on a hall chair when the man gently interposed, "Excuse me; I'd rather you'd put it in a safer place."

"Surely," and as the plant was heavy the maid went slowly down the long hall, turning her back completely. The man dropped a card on the chair, pushed the door to with a loud slam, and with astonishing agility and lightness sprang up the staircase, disappearing before her return.

"Well, he might have waited," she muttered, throwing the card into the silver salver, and the man, who paused in the hall above, heard her descend into the basement.

He smiled, listened, stepped into the dimly lighted library, passed through two dressing rooms into the bedroom beyond, turned up the gas slightly, and with a lightning glance took in the apartment and its appointments. As he had calculated, the room was prepared for the night, so he ran little chance of being disturbed.

He touched nothing until he caught sight of a gray coat thrown carelessly over a chair. This he seized, thrust his hand into the inside pocket and drew forth with evident satisfaction a letter, which, hastily examining, he kept. He then replaced the coat with precision, lowered the light, listened intently and prepared to descend, when the click of a night key was heard in the lock.

The owners of the house had returned. A pause. Footsteps on the stairs. Double portieres draped the doors. He slipped between them.

Mrs. Courtland entered, turned up the light and with negligent grace threw off a long opera wrap, revealing that she was a beautiful woman in full evening dress, tall, slight, blond. For a full minute she gazed at herself reflected in the cheval glass, then discontentedly sat down before it and commenced unclasping the ornaments from dress and hair and arms.

A well built man with a plain face and fine carriage entered and stood silently regarding her.

"Tired, Gertrude?" Mr. Courtland asked kindly.

"No."
"Sick?"
"No."
"What then?"
"Bored; so bored."

"Why not have gone to the opera?"
"I have heard 'Lohengrin' until I hate it."

"Gertrude," tenderly, "you are not unhappy? You love me?"

"Yes," indifferently.
"Then what troubles you?"

"Nothing. Everything is so tedious. I am weary of people, weary of clothes, weary of myself."

"And weary of me?"
His wife did not answer, perhaps did not hear.

Mr. Courtland pondered intently, looking at her curiously as she unwound a long scarf from her throat. Suddenly he crossed the room, and taking up the gray coat put his hand into one of the pockets.

"Where is that letter?"
"What letter?" asked his wife, startled by the sharp tone of his voice.

"The letter I left in the pocket of this coat."
The man behind the portieres started.

"I saw no letter," replied Mrs. Courtland, rising.

"You have stolen it!" his voice increasing in harshness as with mechanical courtesy he handed her the scarf she let fall.

"Richard!"
"Stolen it, I say!"

He was a powerful man. His brow grew heavy, his dark eyes glowed, his hands trembled, he looked brutal, and as he strode up to his wife the woman shrank.

"Richard, what is it? Why are you so strange?"
The man concealed became intensely interested.

Mr. Courtland, seizing his wife's arms, forced her down before him.

"Give it up," he spoke thickly.
"Richard, I swear I do not understand you."

"Give it up," he reiterated.
"Heaven help me! He will kill me!"—for her husband suddenly made a menacing movement, as though to seize her throat.

"Stop!" And with excitement the man burst out from behind the portieres. The three attentively in amazed silence.

"Who are you?" asked Mr. Courtland.

The man hesitated, then answered simply, "Jonas Crane."
"Oh!" cried Mrs. Courtland, "take care. He may be armed."
The young man smiles. "I should think, ma'am," he said quietly, "you'd be more afraid of him than me, if I hadn't thought he'd hurt you, I'd never given myself away."

Mrs. Courtland looked bewildered. In her surprise she had forgotten her husband's anger.

"What are you doing here?" she asked.
"Well," he replied respectfully, "I'd as lief not say."

"Yes, but you must say. You are not a thief?"
"No'm."

"Well, then, what?" asked Mr. Courtland.

"I work for Boyton"—naming a swell tailor—"and before he sent your suit home he wore it courtin' his lady friend and left a letter in it. It was not the kind of a letter," looking down modestly, "for others to see, and I undertook to get it without lettin' you know he'd wore your clothes, but I got rattled when you seemed so mad. The letter wasn't any use to you, was it?"

"Yes, Richard, what made you so angry?"
"Gertrude," answered her husband, "I expected to find no letter. I was giving a lesson in realism. It was a pretense—a little bit of acting to cure my wife's ennui."

"Then you was actin', sir," said Jonas doubtfully. "I'm thinkin' it'll be for our mutual advantage to say nothin' of all this. Good evening, ma'am," and with a polite little bow Jonas Crane walked down stairs, and they heard him shut the front door softly behind him.

"Well, Gertrude," said Mr. Courtland hopefully, "was the end of your evening successful? If it pleases you, tomorrow I'll try something in the comic line—do a little dance, dally with the scenic or dip into melodrama."

His wife, rousing herself, gave a regretful sigh.
"It was very interesting, Richard, very, but"—looking up to him with a shadow in the lovely eyes—"I wish I had read that letter."—Anne Nettleton in New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bacteria in Tobacco.

There seems to be no end to the discoveries that await us concerning bacteria, and the relations of those microscopic organisms to the well being of man. Who would ever have thought that the peculiar flavors which characterize different kinds or brands of tobacco are due to the presence of bacteria?

Yet that is the conclusion to which investigations by a German botanist lead.

In curing tobacco, or preparing the raw, green leaf for use, a fermentative process called sweating is gone through with.

It has been supposed that the chemical changes induced by this process were the source of the peculiar qualities possessed by the cured tobacco. But, according to Suchland's experiments, it appears that micro-organisms may be the real cause of the changes.

He has examined tobacco from all parts of the world which had been cured and has found in it an abundance of micro-organisms, and upon cultivating the bacteria from a particular kind of tobacco and then inoculating another kind with this culture he has produced in it the taste and aroma of the original.

This discovery has led to the suggestion that the quality of tobacco grown in any country may be improved by simply inoculating it with bacteria from some finer flavored leaf growing elsewhere. Wines have already been improved by a similar process.—Youth's Companion.

Trouble With a Sword.

A Lewiston young man who was in Portland Saturday night found some antique Turkish swords in a window on Congress street, and having a love for art bought one for ornamental purposes and asked the clerk do it up in paper. Before he had gone half a block the paper came off. The young man was waiting for the Boston boat to start. He carried the sword about the streets till people began to comment upon it. Then he hid it under his niter and was standing on the corner talking when it slipped down, striking on his toe with the sharp point. He picked it up again and hid it under his coat.

When he got into the theater, he was about to be seated when he thought of the sword under his coat. He could not sit down until the sword came out, so unbuttoning the coat he held the sword in his lap all the evening. At midnight when he went on board the boat one of the officers saw the sword and said, "You may leave your valuables with the purser."—Bangor Commercial.

Undemocratic France.

As a matter of fact Frenchmen are about the least democratic people in the world in their social longings and ideals. France is politically a republic, but socially it keeps up most of the characteristics of an aristocracy. The difference between her and America in this respect is pronounced. In the United States it is impossible to find a man with a decoration; in France it is difficult to find anybody without one. In spite of the revolution titles are still maintained, and the highest ambition of every bourgeois would be satisfied if he could make his lineage put on a uniform of some kind, no matter what, has often been used as a reproach against our Gallic friends.—London Telegraph.

About the Spelling of Words.

The Springfield Republican has adopted the disagreeable trick of spelling certain familiar words ending in "gue" without their full complement of letters. In reviewing a new book a few days ago it says, for instance, "The author excels in bright and amusing dialog," etc. It always fatigues us to see such vulgar liberties taken with our native tongue, and we think it as much of a crime for a literary man to cut off the end of a word as for a rog to cut off the end of a pig's tail, for instance. Form is to all printed language what brog is to the speech of the Irishman, and a pig, we say, be on the man who would deprive either of its natural charms.—Charleston News and Courier.

A Novelist Turns.

D. Christie Murray, the English novelist, turns on his critics in a brief note to a London paper to demonstrate that truth is stranger than fiction. Of a reviewer's charge that an episode in one of his novels was "wholly incredible," Mr. Murray says: "I got that story on the spot and had full proof of its accuracy. In fact, I built the novel on that genuine bit of history which your reviewer thinks incredible."
