DEADLOCK IN THE SENATE.

The Upper House no Nearer a Solution of the Silver Question.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.-The deadock continues. All the members of the Senate are beginning to feel that the present strain cannot last a great while longer, and a desperate effort will be made to find relief in some direction. The silver men court an adjournment, and appear confident that the result will be favorable to them. Senator Aldrich, a member of the Committee on Rules, said this afternoon that the time was not yet ripe for action on the rules, though he thought a change might be undertaken before a great while.

It is stated that the Russian permanent squadron for the Mediterranean, shortly to be constituted, will consist of the vessels which recently visited America, and are now on their way home under the command of Admiral Kasnakoff. They are the Emperor Nicholas I, ironclad battleship, 8500 tons, 750 men; the Admiral Nakhimoff, rmored cruiser, 7800 tons, 500 men; the Dimitri Donskoi, armored cruiser, 7000 tons, 350 men, and the Rynda, a steel-protected cruiser, 3000 tons, 320

Of these four vessels each one is making for a different port- Lisbon, Gibraltar, the Azores and Cadiz respetively; it is not yet known where they will assemble. The latest advices from Russia, however, state that they will go to Toulon in order to repay the celebrated Cronstadt visit of two years ago, On the fleet being definitely constituted will be placed under the command of Admiral Avellan, who is already organizing his staff, but who will, in all robability, not remain in command for more than a year. Admiral Kasnakoff will be placed in an important post at Cronstadt.—Paris Correspondent.

The restoration of the Queen to the throne Mr. Blount never contemplated by anything he said in would not favor such a course, even if he did .- New York Herald.

DAYBREAK FOR FREE HAWAII.

The importance of the Hawaiian statement made at President Dole's reception yesterday by Land Commismissioner Chambers, the new Samoan appointee, is very great. Mr. Chambers is a relative by marriage of ex-United States Minister Blount. He is also close, in a business way, to the the run of the Federal departments for some months past. Hence the sources of his information about the attitude of the American Government towards the reform cause in these Islands could hardly be improved upon without hav. hardly be improved upon without having the President himself as a personal confidant. Clearly the utmost weight attaches to Mr. Chambers' statement that the restoration of the native dy nasty is not a purpose of the United States, and that the only question which the Provisional Government may be is annexation, pure and simple, with journal has come to rely wholly upon opment of wealth and strength we are brothers of the late General Sherman, is recommended to bring to a voting test people of an income of $1000 or more its private news bureau for Hawaiian to be exempt from the inevitable in Chairman of the Independent Citizens' to do the balloting.

It will not escape notice here that Mr. Chambers' statement accords with much that has come of late from both friendly and unfriendly sources. The Perkins proposal is recent in the public mind. The other day the STAR printed the results of Professor Alexander's canvass of Senators, Congressmen and department chiefs in which the common verdict was that restoration is "unthinkable." Later we published -and repeat to-day-the remarkable confession of the New York Democratic and once unfriendly Brook have put the proper interpretation upon such events is fairly shown by the among the crowds at the World's Fair by the clang of welcome which the liberty bell gave to the coming Territory of Hawaii.

Quietly, safely and surely the Hawaiian bark is nearing a calm haven under the protecting headlands of the great republic.

SOURCE OF ROYALIST "NEWS."

We note the jubilant publication, in the Bulletin and Holomua, of an unofficial, unconfirmed, unauthorized and altogether silly press dispatch, which we reprint as follows:

The navy of the United States has never yet been used to place kings or queens on their thrones, yet, unless the administration Democrats are ill-advised, it is the purpose of President Cleveland that the marines of the United States shall be ordered in certain contingencies to place Queen Liliuokalani upon the throne of the Hawaiian Islands. "Paramount Blount" of Georgia is said to have made the recommendation that the question of restora-tion shall be submitted to the suffrages of the kanakas, coolies and all the rest, and those who are familiar with Hawaiian matters say

By those who have noticed that this "straw" comes from the office of the United Press, and who are familiar with the extremities to which that feeble concern has been driven by the refusal of the Associated Press to continue selling it news, the "disclosures" about Mr. Cleveland's Hawaiian policy will be read with a smile and commented on with a jest. It is now two months since the relations of the great news association with the small one were sundered and in that time the United Press has been repeatedly caught in sensational inventions. By no other method, with its limited correspondence and wire facilities, has it been able to the American Government would make the British profited by the occasion to the Port Physician, and remain at such anchormake a show of journalistic enterprise. GEN. TOUSSAINT L'OUVERTURE, HAY-TI'S WARRIOR-SLAVE AND LEADER.

The Negro Uprising Contemporaneous With the Revolution In France Found Him In a Cabin-Genius and Character Made Him Master of Santo Domingo.

[Copyright, 1803, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

OUSSAINT, "The Man of the Hour,"
"The Chief of Banditti;" Napoleon. "The Chief of Ban-ditti," "The Man of the Hour." mies of both culogized or cursed them with the same expressions. Toussaint was prince of the born outside the divinity that upheaval brought each in his own sphere and time to the front; the confronted both-to still the mad passions of the excited people and bring social order out of anarchy. Yet Napoleon, prince of the whites, murdered Toussaint, prince of the blacks.

The revolution in France extended in all the revolution in France extended in all its flerceness to the French colony in Santo Domingo. The white planters gross against the king and preached the liberty of man. The mulattoes imitated them, and the black slaves demanded admittance to the brotherhood of equality. Toussaint was a black slave 50 years old, living in a cabin with a wife and children, a confidential family servant. He could read, and spent his leisure studying the lives of great command sure studying the lives of great commanders and political leaders.

When the mulattoes and blacks organized in 1790 to enforce their interpretation of the great dictrine of equality. Toussaint held aloof, conning his Bible, Cæsar's "Commentaries" and the military memoirs of Europe. The blacks arose in 1791 and turned the island into a roaring furnace paved with the charred bones of their former masters. Toussaint secreted the family of his master until the holocaust was ended, then conveved them with a cargo of ended, then conveyed them with a cargo of riches to safety beyond the sea. The chains of slavery having of themselves dropped from his black limbs, he hearkened at last to the oft ignored cry of his people and marched to their camps.

The humanity of Toussaint in the care of his master was not exceptional. It was his nature, and it placed him under the suspicion of the three chiefs who headed the ne-groes—Biassou, Francois and Jeannot, who gross—Biassou, Francois and Jeannot, who were equally unscrupulous and cruel in their war on the whites. The black populace, however, appreciated Toussaint's abilities and character. Though the chiefs at first humbled him by a subordinate appointment (caring for the wounded) his personal popularity soon made him a brigadier general, one of three in the negro army. Napoleon was at that time coquetting with Republicans, Royalists and Moderates in Paris, waiting for his star to turn. It turned the day he opened the guns of the direced the day he opened the guns of the direc-tory upon the Paris mob. Toussaint's turn-ed the day he struck the daggers of a mob of blacks from the breasts of a hundred whites doomed to massacre.

The directory sent commissioners to Santo Domingo to regulate its affairs. Word reached the blacks that the commissioners were peaceable, and they sent negro cut his way out and once more returned to emissaries to the council to talk about his mountains. Under his training the emissaries to the council to talk about peace. They were spurned as emissaries of "revolted negroes," "guilty men and unrepentant," to whom "justice would be meted out," and were ordered to withdraw from the assembly. The bearers of the olive branch returned to the negro camp where all the army and the civilians hopefully awaited the response to their appeal. Their news was brief. The sigh for peace was in suddle for battle.

In 1795 the Spanish ceded their claims to news was brief. The sigh for peace was framed and abandoned the island. Their news was brief. The sigh for peace was changed to blasting breath of war. The same mulatto adherents, joined with other malold cry, "Death to the whites!" rang from the lips of the mob, and Biassou, the flery and vindictive black who ruled the army, ordered 100 white prisoners slaughtered in the inclosure of the camp. But there were a cool head and a strong heart in that throng of outraged and ferocious savages. Toussaint pressed his way to his chief, spoke a few calm, firm words, and the fiendish order was recalled.

That deed, with others which followed. bore the name of the black hero to French ears. Throughout all the bloody era of uprisings and insurrections the negroes had kept their loyalty to the king. To disarm that devotion the revolutionary assen bly of France made the negroes the polit-ical equals of the whites, at which the white colonists rebelled, and the mulattoes

TOUSSAINT L'OUVERTURE. joined them as against the blacks. To crown all, Louis XVI was beheaded, and the insurgent slaves went over to the side of Spain, which had a footing on the island. Toussaint had passed his apprenticeship in war. He had earned a general's spurs on the field. The Spaniards re-enforced his band by a division of soldiers, and with the combined force he invaded French territory.

In his first campaign Toussaint laid an ambush and drew into it the opposing commander, General Brandicourt, in person. "Write," said the black Spartacus, handing a pen to Brandicourt, who was brought before him in bonds, "write, and command your forces to yield." The captive general wrote, leaving it to the discretion of his second in command. Pacet, to fight or yield. ond in command, Pacot, to fight or yield. "No, no!" roared Toussaint, tearing up the paper. "I must have from you an express order to Pacot to lay down his arms." The order was sent, and the blacks entered the French stronghold of Dondon victors. Other posts fell as the reward of Toussaint's strategy, and finally Marmelade, the key to the French section, was carried after a day's

These military achievements, which were really remarkable in a man reared as a slave until middle life, were crowned by an act of self sacrificing loyalty and patriotism. Spain was growing in power on one hand, England appeared with armed ships and battallons and seized Port au Prince, the mulattoes and negroes together dominated the richer portion where French power had been reduced to a strip of the Puck.

horthern cape, and all were contending for supremacy. France was the weaker, cling-ing by only a thread, a general with a handful of Europeans pent up in the for-tress of Port a Paix, living on six ounces of bread daily and without ammunition or clothing.

Toussaint was a king in the domain he had conquered. The blacks loved and obeyed him, the mulattoes feared him, and obeyed him, the mulattoes feared him, and the French and English respected him. The Spaniards, who were his allies, knew him best and respected him most of all. The French as a last resort had proclaimed universal liberty on the island. Spain and England sought conquests only to reen-slave, and the prior right of France was strengthened by her new passion for free-dom. Though he distrusted republicans, Toussaint would look to manifest destiny Toussaint would look to manifest destiny. French domination might mean the complete emancipation of the blacks; Spanish or English promised nothing. His family was secretly conveyed to a safe retreat on in order, his military lines strengthened, and one day without warning he pro-claimed universal liberty and ran up the ciained universal liberty and ran up the French flag above the Spanish wherever his arm held sway.

The change of fealty took place in May, 1704. In the February previous the French assembly had decreed Hayti an integral part of France and proclaimed freedom to the negroes. It depended on Toussaint to the negroes. If depended on Toussaint to give force to the decree. Then it was that he added to his name the word Ouverture, the "opening." With savage impetus he cut an opening in the ranks of his enemies and made a way for his people. With his accession the cause of France looked up. The mulattoes stormed and carried an English fortifled, post, making boots, 6 20 200. lish fortifled post, making booty of 20,000 pounds of powder. Laveaux hadn't a grain in his fortress at Port a Paix and received 8,000 pounds of the capture. Toussaint fell upon his old comrades, the Spaniards, and the English. Several towns succumbed to him, and he laid seige to St. Marc, the Eng ish stronghold. During the siege he was disabled, and treachery in his own camp compelled him to retire. In the mountain fastnesses of the center of the island he gathered his forces and waited for his wound to heal. Then at the head of 5,000 men he carried the English port of San Miguel by storm. Those victories set free the French army under Laveaux, and the mulattoes, blacks and Europeans joined hands. In the suc-cesses that followed Toussaint L'Ouverture was the inspiring head.

He left his stronghold Dec. 31 and in four days captured 28 English positions. One precipitous height defended with small arms and three cannon was carried by sheer force of physical daring. Unfor-tunately his enemies outnumbered him, and venturing too far he was surrounded by the mulatto adherents of Spain. He cut his way out and once more returned to contents, revolted against Laveaux and put him in prison. With 10,000 blacks Toussaint rushed down the mountains, sup-pressed the revolt and liberated the French commander. Laveaux called his deliverer "The Black Spartacus" and said that the commander. Laveaux called his deliverer

"The Black Spartacus" and said that the French colors were kept flying in Santo Domingo by "an old negro who seemed to bear a commission from heaven." He appointed Toussaint his lieutenant and second in command, and soon afterward the directory created him deputy governor general and commander in chief. He raised new armies, drove the English from the island, rebuilt towns, fostered agriculture and manufactures, and when Napoleon returned from his eastern campaigns to become first consul Toussaint styled himself the "Napoleon of Santo Domingo."

Napoleon sent him a new commission of commander in chief and for four years encouraged his absolute reign. But in 1803, in order to rid his armies of troops devoted to his rival Moreau, Napoleon sent General Le Clerc with a force to subdue Santo Domingo. Toussaint looked upon the step as a blow to re-enslave the negroes, and for a long time refused to submit. Meantime blacks and mulattoes arose and slaughtered the white colonists and the French. Toussaint refused to treat with Le Clerc until the French re-embarked, but his colleagues were less heroic, and at last his two chief commanders laid down their arms. Even then Le Clerc feared the old negro.

Toussaint agreed to an interview, and they met on neutral ground. Le Clerc was surrounded by a bodyguard of 400 horsemen with drawn subers. Toussaint entered the square alone. During a peace talk, in which Toussaint declared that he was powerful enough to burn and ravage and could sell his life dearly, Le Clerc looked upon the strange character before him in amazement. "Where would you have got arms to carry on the war!" he inquired after an understanding was reached. "I would have taken yours," was the reply.

Le Clerc afterward abducted Toussaint, who had reached the age of 60, and sent him to France in irons. He was imprisoned in a castle in the Jura mountains by Napoleon's orders, where he died mysteriously in April, 1803. The negroes in revenge

NEWSPAPER IS A NECESSITY to every person in the community - man, woman or child-who is able to read and who desires to keep in touch with the spirit of this progressive age and wishes to be posted as to events of interest which are continually happening at home and abroad, on land and sea."

The STAR is a new paper and has introduced Californian methods of journalism into Hawaii, where, before its advent, the Massachusetts newspaper traditions of 1824 held sway. It has three prime objects:

To support the cause of Annexation of Hawaii to the United States and assist all other movements, political, social or religious, which are of benefit to these Islands and their people.

To print all the news of its parish without fear or favor, telling what goes on with freshness and accuracy, suppressing nothing which the public has the right to know.

To make itself indispensable to the family circle by a wise selection of miscellaneous reading matter.

As a commentator the STAR has never been accused of unworthy motives.

As a reporter the STAR has left no field of local interest ungleaned.

- As a friend of good government the STAR has been instant in service and quick to reach results.

As an advertising medium the STAR, from the week of its birth, has been able to reach the best classes of people on all the Islands.

Gordan was a fine fellow, young, daring and enthusiastic, with a promising future before him, and the uncertainty of his fate preyed upon my mind.

"I had often heard weird stories of the man killing tree of Ceylon, but I did not believe there was the least foundation for them. To my mind the story was a myth, for I had found a man might rest in security beneath the so called deadly upas, and yet the story of the upas was never so improbable as that of the fiendish tree said improbable as that of the fiendish tree said the wall's bighest point. I felt some skepticism to a certain extent, and yet he was inclined to search for the demon tree in dark depths of the wildest jungles. He had a during and dangerous way of ram-bling far into the forests, his only com-panious being a native guide and his dark skinned servant. More than once I told him he would provide a square meal for a tiger or some other wild animal, but he only laughed at my fears.

"One night he did not return. The guide and the servant came back, both frightened nearly to death, and they told a story that aroused our party to a high pitch of excitement. They declared Lieutenant when they came to the mouth of a deep and dark valley, into which the venturesome young man insisted on penetrating. At the mouth of the valley the natives for a grant was a supple, sinewy fellow, with a restless eye and a hand that could move with the swiftness of a flash. He had picked up a certain amount of broken English, and he was very proud of his accomplishment. the mouth of the valley the natives found a small stone idol, before which were scattered human skulls and bones. This served to warn them against entering the forbid-ding place, and they refused to accompany ding place, and they refused to accompany the lieutenant.

"Gordan was not daunted, and he bade them await his return, after which he boldly went down into the gloom of the place, leaving the natives mumbling and pros trating themselves before the idol.

"In about 20 minutes the guide and the servant heard a terrible shrick of fear and agony that came up from the mysterious and dismal valley. The cry was that of a human being in the greatest agony, and so human being in the greatest agony, and so frightened were the natives that they in-stantly took to their heels and fled from the

and all of us believed Gordan had been attacked by a wild animal or a screent. We even entertained hope that he might put in an appearance, but the night passed and sighted the swimmer, and we morning came without any sign of him. Then nearly the entire party set out to find the dismal valley and solve the mystery of "The guide was very reluctant about leading us, but we forced him to do so. For hours we tramped about in the jungle without finding the valley, and the guide for he began to splash and flounder about finally declared he did not know how to in the most awkward manner. The shark lead us to it. This made us very angry, and we nearly scared the fellow to death, asserting we would flay him alive if he did not take us to the place. He started on again, and we followed, but night found us it, but he seemed to dive down into the waunrewarded for our pains. In returning to the camp, both the guide and Gordan's great height. servant slipped away and disappeared in the forest, and neither was seen afterward.

"This mysterious affair threw a damper on our spirits, and the hunt was far from a success. The most of the party were inclined to believe the lieutenant had been murdered by the two natives, and I thought it not improbable.

During the five years that elapsed bemyself once more in the vicinity of our having swum under water from the former adventures, I resolved to search for the fatal valley. Captain Starbuck, a loyal friend and a man with plenty of courage, agreed to accompany me, poor fellow! I was glad to have a white man as a companion, although I protested against taking him from his elephant shooting, but he professed some faith in the story of the man eating tree and expressed a desire to look upon the monster of the vegetable

"Taking our servants along, we made a party of four, although we knew we could not depend on the blackskins in case of emergency. It was near midday of our first and final search that we came to the mouth of a valley that seemed to me like the one described by the native guide and Gordan's servant. All at once both our dusky aids flung themselves face down ward on the ground and began chanting something in the most doleful tones, and then we saw they were bowed before a hidsous stone image, around which were scat tered bones and human skulls! "We have found the fatal valley!"

"It was useless to attempt to persuade the blackskins to accompany us into the gloom of the place, and they entreated us not to go there, saying we would never come forth if we ventured. Telling them to await our return and looking to make sure our weapons were ready for instant use, we entered the valley.

"A deep gloom hung over the place, which was disturbed by no sound save our foot-falls, and they did not seem to make an echo. As we moved slowly onward a feel-ing of horror gradually and surely crept over me, although I tried to throw it off. It seemed that there was something uncanny about the valley—something weird and deadly. I looked at the captain and saw his face was pale, although his jaws were set and determination was written on his features.

"In vain we looked about for sign of living creature in that dismal vale. No bird nor animal greeted our vision, not even a snake squirmed across our path. For all of the gloom, the vegetation was luxurious and rank, but the air seemed laden with perfumes that were sweet to the point of nauseation.

"In a short time we came to a wall of barren stone. A cry broke from my lips, and stooping I picked up a rusty rifle that lay at the foot of the wall. After a minute examination I asserted:

"'This was Lieutenant Gordan's gun. His initials are carved on the stock.'
"My voice sounded hollow and strange. I looked up at the rugged wall and made a motion to ascend. Captain Starbuck nodded, and we were soon climbing side by side.

"As we mounted upward a singular sound came to our ears. It was a sort of swishing or hissing, like the sound of a strong wind in rank reeds, and yet unlike it. This grew more distinct as we neared the top of the wall, and there was something blood chilling in the sound.

"The top was soon reached, and we looked over into a circular basin, in the very cen-ter of which rose a tree that was of a vividly green hue from its roots to its highest point. And such a tree! There were no leaves upon it, and its bare branches were round and supple, like so many serpents.

From its body to its upper limit the tree was in motion. The slender limbs were whipping and cutting through the air like things of life, making the hissing sound we companion. My horrified eyes beheld a hundred twining, twisting things encircle him and snatch him from view in a twinkling. For a moment others played and squirmed over the wall as if feeling for me, and then they vanished.

"A short time I clung there, paralyzed with such horror as never possessed me before, and then I drew myself up to the top of the wall again. I can never forget the horrible sight that greeted my eyes. Captain Starbuck was in the grasp of that tain Starbuck was in the grasp of that demon tree, the limbs of which were twined about him like serpents. Some had twisted themselves about his neck, and I saw he was already dead, having been strangled. And over the body the snaky arms of the accursed tree fought and squirmed.

"Sick and fainting with terror, I slid down to the foot of the wall and ran from down to the foot of the wait and ran from that infernal spot as fast as my legs could carry me. I did not stop when I reached the mouth of the deadly valley, and the two natives, reading the truth on my face,

"We spent three days searching for that valley, and, singular as it may seem, it could not be found again. I do not know that it has been found to this day. But were I able to go direct to it," concluded Major Carter, "the wealth of England would not tempt me into its horrid confines." fines!"

A Shark's Mistake.

We had on board the brig Emma Luce a full blooded native of the South Sea islands whom we called Kailua, which is the name of the place where he belonged. Kailua was on his way back home after a visit to civilization, and he was very happy. He was a supple, sinewy fellow, with a restless

For some days a huge shark had been fol-lowing us, and the superstitious sailors declared it was an omen of evil. They reiter-ated time after time that some calamity was bound to befall us. Land Commissioner Chambers, a Relative of Blount, on Our Affairs.

In an interview at President Dole's house yesterday afternoon, U. S. Land Commissioner Chambers, who is on his way to Samoa, said emphatically that there was no truth in the published reports from Washington that Mr Blount had recommended, or that Mr-Cleveland contemplated any action in Hawaii which would tend to the res toration of the political ascendency o the native race in any form whatever It was the intention to promote American interests and to maintain American ascendency in Hawaii. The Provisional Government would probably be recommended to take a vote on perhaps the question of annexation. But the property qualification for the voters would be placed very high, not less than $1000 income.

Mr. Chambers disclaimed the possesbert of the Navy his former partner, Mrs. Chambers also being a niece of Mrs. Blount. He was well acquainted however with the opinions on the subject prevailing in the departments in Washington, as well as in Congress.

A less extended conversation with Chief Justice Ide, as far as it went, fully corroborated the opinions expressed by Mr. Chambers. In its opinion the Court says:

The publication in question is ambiguous. Read in their literal sense the nor are they of a libellous nature. Certain intrinsic facts are averred to show that the words refer to Claus Spreckels, and there is a colloquium concerning Claus Spreckels, but there is no colloquium that they were published of and concerning the intrinsic share of comment. facts set forth in the averments, nor are there any averments of intrinsic facts, or colloquia to show that the words are used in a libellous sense. Inuendoes alone are not sufficient; they may explain what already appears upon the record as a ground for the explanation but they cannot add to or alter the sense of the expressions as usually understood. The publication in question is allegorical or ambiguous as to other matters, for instance, as to the country and the political parties or situation in the country of which, as well as to the person of whom, it is the side prepared for work. There should be averments language. If the indictment contained ably bring a lot of wrecking gear for proper averments and colloquia to Captain Metcalfe. show that the meaning set forth in the their first visit to the States, and they inuendos might reasonably be put upon the words of the publication, it would she is to load coal for Honolulu.

The effect of the decision will be to throw the case back into the Circuit Court, where the presiding judge will latest financial reports and produce have to decide whether an amendment to the indictment can be allowed at this stage of the proceedings. If not, the present indictment must be dismissed.

Miss Krout's Good Work.

A letter from Professor Alexander says that faithful and meritorious work for annexation is being done by Miss Mary Krout, who was here last winter as a correspondent. As president of the Woman's League of Press Clubs she has enlisted a great many useful pens for the cause. Several women's organizations at the World's Fair have been influenced to favor annexation by Miss Krout, and she has done effective work among public men at Washington

SUGAR IN HAWAII.

It is not considered certain that the ariff bill to be reported by the Com

nittee on Ways and Means will place an import duty of r cent or 136 cents on sugar. This is a solution of the question that both parties would agree When the Republicans took the duty off there was a surplus revenue now there is a deficiency. If wool i out on the free list it will be almost a necessity to derive some revenues from sugar. Besides, the Louisiana caneugar growers are determined to have protection in one form or another. As hey cannot get a bounty out of Democratic Congress they will make a ight for as high a duty as they can get Republicans will fall the more readily nto the plan as the sugar-beet industry of the North is of sufficient magnitude o demand protection. In this State he industry is rapidly increasing, and with a bounty or with duties on foreign ugar it will be profitable and per manent. A duty of one cent a pound if there could be assurance that it would be maintained a long period of years, would direct the attention of men with small capital to the production of sugar beets. The masses of the people will not be pleased at the prospect of having to pay a cent a pound more for sugar than at present, but as a majority o voters voted to overthrow the adminisration that gave them free sugar the only way the people can logically express disapprobation of a reimposition of sugar duties would be to overthrow the administration that restores the tax. But that is a matter that especially con cerns Democrats. To the Hawaiian Islands sugar-planter the proposition to impose duties on sugar has an especial interest. He does not share the protection afforded by the bounty, but gets nearly the full benefit of protection SAN FRANCISCO from the tariff as long as the reciprocity reaty remains in force. The Hawaiian planter would feel safer with the islands part of the United States, as in no ase can he as a foreigner share the ounty on sugar, and is in danger of eing cut off from the benefits of a tariff by a failure to renew the reciprocity reary .- Call.

DR. TALMAGE DISCOURSES ON THE GARDENS OF THE SEA.

The Marvels of the Deep Afford Further Proof of God's Infinite Power and Wisdom-Jonah's Submarine Discoveries -- A New Field For Investigation.

BROOKLYN, Oct. I.—In his sermon this forenoon in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, as in many other discourses, Rev. T. De Witt Telmage took his hearers and readers through an untried region of thought and found a subject for most practical gospeli-zation in "The Garden of the Sea." The text selected was Jonah ii, 5, "The weeds were wrapped about my head."

"The Botany of the Bible; or, God among the Flowers" is a fascinating subject. I hold in my head a book which I brought from Palestine, bound in oil we wood, and within it are neveral forces, which have not only it are pressed flowers, which have not only retained their color, but their aroma. Flowers from Bethiehem, flowers from Jerusalem, flowers from Gethsemane, flowers from Mount of Olives, flowers from Bethany, flowers from Siloam, flowers from the valley of Jehoshaphat, red anemones and wild mignonette, buttercups, dai-sies, cyclamous, camomile, biaebells, ferns, mosses, grasses and a wealth of flora that keeps me farmated by the hour, and every time I open it it is a new revelation. It is the New Testament of the fields. But my text leads us into another realm of the

Having spoken to you in a course of ser-mons about God everywhere—on "The As-tronomy of the Bible; or, God Among the Stars;" 'The Ornithology of the Bible, or, God Among the Birds;" 'The Ichthyology of the Bible; or, God Among the Fishes;" "The Mineralogy of the Bible; or, God Among the Amethysts;" 'The Conchology of the Bible; or, God Among the Shella;" of the Bible; or, God Among the Shells,"
"The Chronology of the Bible; or, God Among the Centuries"—I speak now to you about "The Botany of the Bible; or, God

In the Gardens of the Sea."
BOTANY OF THE BUILE, Although I purposely take this morning for consideration the least observed and least appreciated of all the botanical products of the world, we shall find the contemplation very absorbing. In all our theological seminaries where we make ministers there ought to be professors to give lessons in natural history. Physical science ought to be taught side by side with revelation. It is the same God who inspires the page of the natural world as the page of the Scrip-

What a freshening up it would be to our sermons to press into them even a frag-ment of Mediterranean scaweed: Weshould have fewer sermons awfully dry if we imitated our blessed Lord, and in our dis-courses, like him, we would let a lily bloom, or a crow fly, or a hen brood her chickens, or a crystal of salt flash out the preservative qualities of religion. The trou-ble is that in many of our theological semble is that in many of our theological seminaries men who are so dry themselves they never could get people to come and them them preach are now trying to teach is a poem all whose cantos are rung by

That was an awful plunge that the recreant prophet Jonah made when, dropped over the gunwales of the Mediterranean ship, he sank many fathems down into a tempestuous sea. Both before and after the monster of the deep swallowed him, he was entangled in scawced. The jungles They are waifs. They are street arabs. of the deep threw their cordage of vegeta-tion around him. Some of this seawed was anchored to the bottom of the watery abysm, and some of it was affoat and swalabysm, and some of it was affont and swallowed by the great sea monster, so that while the prophet was at the bottom of the

he could exclaim and did exclaim in the words of my text, "The weeds were wrapped about my head."

or red or intershot of many colors, are most fascinating. They are distributed all over the depths and from Arctic to Autarctic. That God thinks well of them I conclude from the fact that he has made 6,000 species of them. Sometimes these water plants there and don't get back till 12 o'clock at are 400 or 700 feet long, and they cable the night. If it wasn't for her earnin a shillin sea. One specimen has a growth of 1,500 feet.

On the northwest shore of our country is amid which the sea otter makes his home. resting himself on the buoyancy of the leaf and stem. The thickest jungles of the tropics are not more full of vegetation than the depths of the sea. There are forests down there, and vast prairies all abloom, and God walks there as he walked in the garden of Eden "in the cool of the day." Oh, what entrancement, this sub-aqueous world! Oh, the God given wonders of the seaweed! Its birthplace is a palace of crystal. The cradle that rocks it is the storm. Its grave is a sarcophagus of beryl and sapphire. There is no night down there.

There are creatures of God on the bottom of the sea so constructed that strewn all along they make a firmament besprent with stars, constellations and galaxies of impos ing luster. The sea feather is a lamplight er. The gymnotus is an electrician, and he is surcharged with electricity and makes the deep bright with the lightning of the sea. The gorgonia flashes like jewels. There are sea anemones ablaze with light. There are the starfish and moonfish, these called because they so powerfully suggest stellar and lunar illumination

Oh, these midnight lanterns of the ocean caverns: these processions of flame over the white floor of the deep; these illuminations three miles down under the sea, these gorgeously uphoistered castles of the Almighty in the underworld! The author of the text felt the pull of the hidden vegetation of the Mediterranean, whether or not he appreciated its beauty, as he cried out, "The weeds were wrapped about my head."

THE SUPULCHER OF THE SEA.

Let my subject cheer all those who had friends who have been buried at sea or in our great American lakes. Which of us brought up on the Atlantic coast has not brought up on the Atlantic coast has not had kindred or friend thus sepulchered? We had the useless horror of thinking that they were denied proper restingplace. We said: "Oh, if they had lived to come ashore and had then expired! What an alleviation of our trouble it would have been to put them in some beautiful family plot, where we could have planted flowers and trees over them." Why, God did better for them than we could have done for them. They were let down into beautiful gardens. Before they had reached the bottom they had garlands about their brow. In more elaborate and adorned place than tom they had garlands about their brow. of our cities wrote to another saying: "I in more elaborate and adorned place than have heard you are studying for the miniswe could have afforded them they were try. So am I."

They were swamped in lifeboats, or they struck on Goodwin sands or Deal beach or the Skerries, and were never heard of, or disappeared with the City of Boston, or the Ville de Havre, or the Cymbria, or were run down in a fishing smack that put out from Newfoundland. But dismiss your previous gloom about the horrors of ocean entombment.

Indiana, where he had been sent to a good home, to a New York newsboys' lodging house: "Boys, we should show ourselves that we are no fools; that we can become as respectable as any of the countrymen, for Franklin and Webster and Clay were poor boys once, and even George Law and Vanderbilt and Astor. And now, boys, stand up and let them see you have got the real stuff in you. Come out here and make respectable and honorable men, so they can

When Sevastopol was besieged in the Anglo-French war. Prince Mentebikof, commanding the Russian navy, saw that the only way to keep the English out of the harbor was to sink all of the Russian ships of war in the roadstead, and so 100 vessels same. When after the vessels are the contract of the second vessels sank. When, after the war was over, our American engineer, Gowan, descended to the depths in a diving bell, it was an impressive spectacle.

SUBLIME BURIAL. One hundred buried ships! But it is that way nearly all across the Atlantic ocean. Ships sunk not by command of admirals, but by the command of cyclones. But they but by the command of cyclones. But they all had sublime burial, and the surroundings amid which they sleep the last sleep are more imposing than the Taj Mahal, the mausoleum with walls incrusted with precious stones and built by the great mogul of India over his empress. Your departed ones were buried in the gardens of the sea, fenced off by hedges of coralline.

The greatest obsequies ever known on the land were those of Moses, where no one but God was present. The sublime report of that entombment is in the book of Deuteronomy, which says that the Lord buried teronomy, which says that the Lord buried him, and of those who have gone down to slumber in the deep the same may be said—"The Lord buried them." As Christ was buried in a garden, so your shipwrecked friends and those who could not survive till they reached port were put down amid iridescence. In the midst of the garden there was a sepulcher.'

It has always been a mystery what was the particular mode by which George G. Cookman, the pulpit orator of the Methodist church and the chaplain of the American congress, left this life after embarking for England on the steamship President March 11, 1841. That ship never arrived in port. No one ever signaled her, and on both sides of the ocean it has for 50 years been questioned what became of her. But this I know about Cookman-that whether it was leeberg or conflagration midsea or collision he had more garlands on his ocean tomb than if, expiring on land, each of his million friends had put a bouquet on his casket. In the midst of the garden was his JONAH'S MISTAKES. But that brings me to notice the misnomer in this Jouahitic expression of the text. The prophet not only made a mistake by trying to go to Tarshish when God told him to go to Nineveh, but he made a mistake when he styled as weeds these growths that enwrapped him on the day he sank. A weed is something that is useless. It is something you throw out from the garden. It is something that chokes the wheat. It is something that chokes the wheat. It is something to be grabbed out from among the cotton. It is something unsightly to the eye. It is an invader of the vegetable or floral world. But this growth which sprang up from the depth of the Mediterranean or floated on its surface was among the most beautiful things that ford over makes.

that God ever makes. It was a water plant known as the red colored alga, and no weed at all. It comes from the loom of infinite beauty. It is planted by heavenly love. It is the star of a reach are now trying to teach young men how to preach, and the student is put between two great presses of dogmatic theology and squeezed until there is no life left in him. Give the poor victim at least one lesson on the botany of the policy of the sea. We call those where we wanted that is the trouble on the land as on the sea. We call those where we wanted that is the trouble of the policy of the polic weeds that are flowers.

Another one of those poor women, found by a reformatory association, recited her story of want and woe and looked up and said, "I felt so hard to lose the children when they died, but now I'm glad they're gone." Ask any one of a thousand such children on the streets, "Where do you live?" and they will answer, "I don't live nowhere." They will sleep tonight in ash barrels, or under outdoor stairs, or on the wharf, kicked and bruised and hungry. Who cares for them? Once in awhile a city missionary or a tract distributer or a teacher of ragged schools will rescue one of

Yet Jonah did not more completely misrepresent the red sign about his head in the Mediterranean than most people mis-judge these poor and forlors and dying children of the street. They are not weeds. They are immortal flowers—down in the deep sea of wor, but flowers. When society and the church of God come to appre-

Hear it, O, we philanthropic and Christian and merciful souls—not weeds, but flowers. My hearers, join the Christian philanthropists who are changing organ grinders and bootblacks and newsboys and street arabs and cigar girls into those who shall be kings and queens unto God forever. It is high time that Jonah finds out that that which Is about him is not weeds, but flowers.

A WONDERFUL GOD.

As I examine this red alga which was about the recreant prophet down in the Mediterranean depths when in the words have been pouring into our Reasonable -:- Prices. of my text he cried out, "The weeds were wrapped about my head," and I am led thereby to further examine this subma-rine world, I am compelled to exclaim, What a wonderful God we have! I am glad that by diving bell, and "Brooks' deep sea sounding apparatus," and ever improv the floor of the ocean and report the won-ders wrought by the great God.

Study these gardens of the sea, Easier and easier shall the profounds of the ocean become to us, and more and more its opu-ience of color and plant unroll, especially as "Villeroy's submarine boat" has been constructed making it possible to navigate under the sea almost as well as on the surface of the sea, and unless God in his mercy ships be used for laying open the wonders of God's workings in the great deep and is very large, and we claim it is results. never for human devastation! Oh, the marthem can be spared from the economy of nature. Valleys and mountains and plants stand, all sunken, and now covered with the growths of the sea, as it once was covered with the growths of the land. England and Ireland once all one piece of

to make a channel, and Ireland has become an island. The islands for the most part are only the foreheads of sunken conti-nents. The sea conquering the land all along the coasts and crumbling the hemis-pheres, wider and wider become the subneous dominions. Thank God that skilled hydrographers have made us maps and charts of the rivers and lakes and seas and shown us something of the work of the eternal God in the water worlds,

Thank God that the great Virginian, Lieutenant Maury, lived to give us "The Physical Geography of the Sea," and that men of genius have gone forth to study the so called weeds that wrapped about Jonah's head and have found them to be coronals of beauty, and when the tide receded these scientists have waded down and picked up divinely pictured leaves of the ocean, the naturalists Pike and Hooper and Walters gathering them from the beach of Long Island sound, and Dr. Blodgett preserving them from the shores of Key West, and Professors Emerson and Gray finding them along Boston harbor, and Professor Gibbs

Why confine ourselves to the old and hackneyed illustrations of the wonder work-ings of God when there are at least five and color and movement and habit of oce-anic vegetation crying out: "God! God! He made us. He clothed us. He adorned us. He was the God of our ancestors clear back to the first sea growth, when God divided the waters which were above the firmament from the waters which were under the firmament, and shall be the God of our descendants clear down to the day when the sea shall give up its dead. We have heard his command, and we have obeyed, 'Praise the Lord, dragons and all conclude he will feed us, and if he suits the algo to the animal life of the deep he will provide the food for our physical and spiritual needs. And if he clothes the flowers of the deep with richness of robe that looks bright as fallen rainbows by day and at night makes the underworld look as though the sea were on fire, surely or two in them places, I should starve. On, I wish they was out of the city. Yes, it is the truth. I would rather have all my children dead than on the street, but I can't help it."

SAVED BY DEATH

SAVED B be yours and mine, to help, to cheer, to par-don, to save, to imparadise. What matters who in earth or hell is against us if he is for us? Omnipotence to defend us, omdipresence to companion us and infinite ve to infold and uplift and enrapture us. And when God does small things so well. seemingly taking as much care with the coil of a seaweed as the outbranching of a Lebanon cedar, and with the color of a vegetable growth which is hidden fathoms out of sight as he does with the solferino and purple of a summer sunset, we will be determined to do well all we are called to do, though no one see or appreciate us. Mighty God! Roll in upon our admiration and holy appreciation more of the wonders of this submarine world!

REVELATIONS AFTER DEATH. My joy is that after we are quit of all earthly hindrances we may come back to this world and explore what we cannot now fully investigate. If we shall have power to soar into the atmospheric without faclate their eternal value, there will be more tigue, I think we shall have power to dive into the aqueous without peril, and that the pictured and tessellated sea floor will be as accessible as now is to the traveler the floor of the Alhambra, and all the gar dens of the deep will then swing open to us their gates as now to the tourist Chats worth opens on public days its cascades and statuary and conservatories for our entrance. "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." You cannot make me believe that God hath spread out all that garniture of the deep merely for the polyps and crus tacea to look at.

And if the unintelligent creatures of the Mediterranean and the Atlantic ocean he surrounds with such beautiful grasses of the deep, what a heaven we may expect for our uplifted and rausomed souls when we are unchained of the flesh and rise to realms beatific. Of the flora of that "sea of glass mingled with fire" I have no power to speak, but I shall always be glad that when the prophet of the text, flung over the gunwales of the Mediterranean ship, de-scended into the boiling sea, that which he supposed to be weeds weatherd about his scended into the boiling sea, that which he supposed to be weeds wrapped about his head were not weeds, but flowers.

And am I not right in this glance at the botany of the Bible in adding to Luke's mint anise and cumin and Matthew's tares, and John's vine, and Solomon's cluster of camphire, and Jeremiah's balm, and John hatternand Loreniah's balm, and Job's bulrush, and Isaiah's terebinth, and Hosea's thistle, and Ezekiel's cedar. and "the byssop that springeth out of the wall," and the "rose of Sharon and the lily of the valley," and the frankincense and myrrh and cassla which the astrol-ogers brought to the manger at least one stalk of the alga of the Mediterranean And now I make the marine doxology of David my peroration, for it was written about 40 or 50 miles from the place where the scene of the text was enacted. "The sca is his, and he made it, and his hands formed the dry land. Oh, come, let us worship and bow down. Let us kneel before the Lord our Maker, for he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture.
