PACIFIC FLEET OF CRUISERS WILL ARRIVE THIS AFTERNOON

Admiral Sebree's Fighting Ships
Due at This Port From the Orient.

A WELCOME AWAITING THEM

Vessels Will Be in Port for Week
—Entertainments Planned for the Crews.

Late this afternoon the vanguard of the Pacific fleet will be off the harbor and the flagship Tennessee and the California may be the first to enter and anchor alongside the naval wharves. They will coal and then shift over to the Alaska wharf. The cruiser Maryland will go to the quarantine wharf where she will repair her engines and do some necessary overhauling before taking on coal.

The West Virginia will lay outside until the steamship Alameda leaves for San Francisco on Wednesday morning, and will then come inside and coal at the Oceanic wharf. The remaining four vessels will come in to coal in turn as the other vessels get out of the way.

The cruisers Denver and Galveston finished coaling in about seven hours, the Denver taking on 500 tons and the Galveston over Galveston over 700. The coaling was rapid and the warships are almost in readiness to leave for the Coast. They are scheduled to leave for Mare Island on Thursday. They will convey the United States stationing troops to the Mare Island navy yard. The troops will be in command of Esq. James of the Denver, the local officers having been detached to remain on duty at the naval station.

Paymaster Hornberger and his aid, Paymaster Clerk Dunn, expect to see the Pacific fleet coaled in record time. They have most of the coal out on the wharves, measured and in readiness to be transferred to the cruisers. The paymaster's office was complimented on the manner in which they coaled the Pacific fleet last fall.

Entertainments for Fleet.

Many entertainments have been planned for the admirals, officers and men of the fleet during the week of their stay in Honolulu. On Saturday evening a dance will be given for the enlisted men at the Moana and Seaside hotels, at which function many prominent society women will assist. The merchants' association plans to give two balls, one on Tuesday evening at the Young and another at the Moana on Friday. The schedule is as follows: Tuesday—Ball for officers at the Moana.

Wednesday—Ball for warrant and chief petty officers at the Young, invitation.

Thursday—Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Cas. the reception and dance for officers of the cruisers.

Friday—Ball given by the Pacific and University clubs in honor of the admirals and officers of the fleet.

Saturday—Ball for bluejackets at the Moana and Seaside hotels.

CAVALRY POST OWL

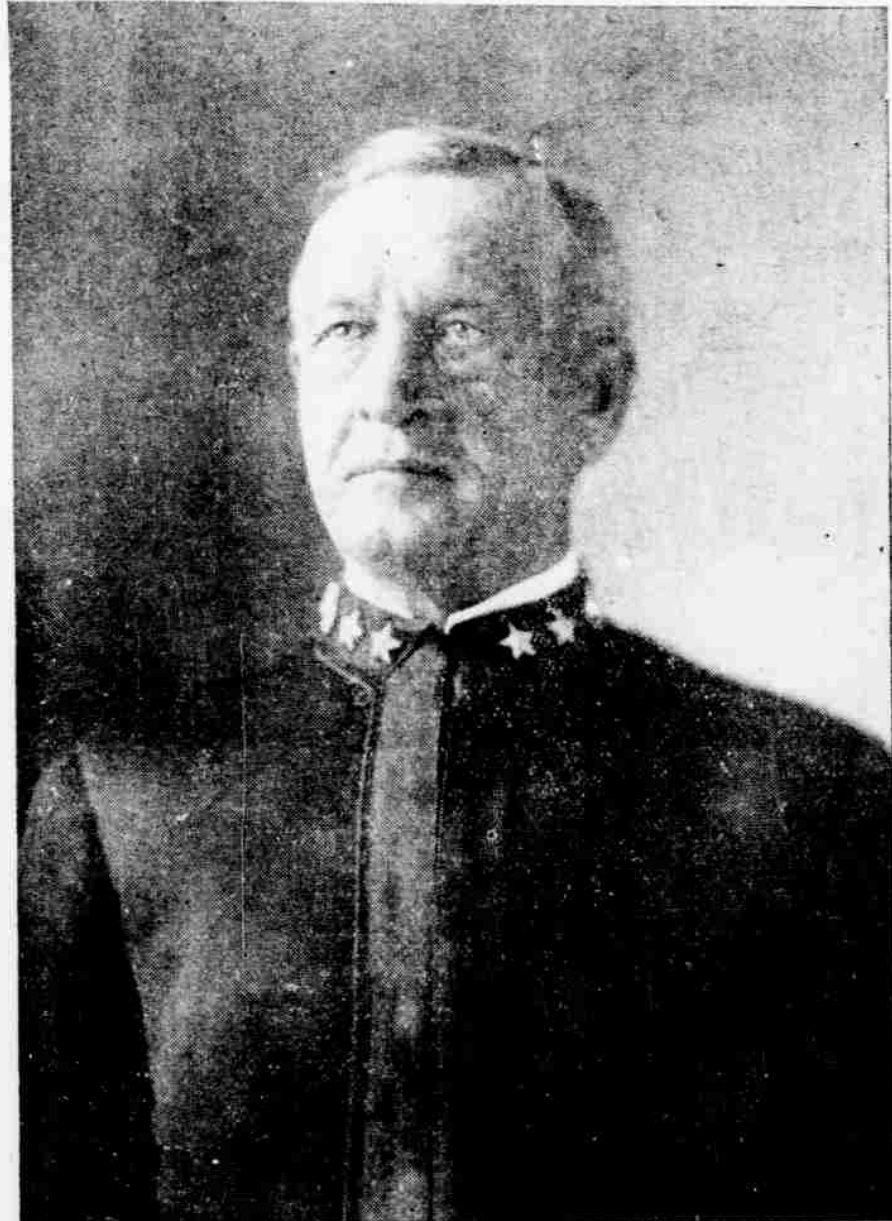

TRAIN SERVICE IS ON

The new train schedule of the Oahu Railway and Land Company goes into effect today between town and Schofield Barracks, including Wahiawa. The cavalry post gets two additional trains per day, one leaving the barracks for Honolulu at 12:15 p. m. daily, except Sundays, and an O.R. train leaving Honolulu every evening at 11:45 p. m., which will make connection at Wahiawa for Lohia. The new schedule will give officers and troops of the cavalry post a better opportunity to visit Honolulu as they can come in on the noon train, remain here the afternoon and evening and leave for the barracks at 11:45 p. m. or at night, after the theatre, reception, entertainment and such are about over.

The O. R. & L. have issued circulars containing which give much interesting information regarding train schedules, rates of fare, etc. The circulars are addressed with a cut of a cavalry post of color showing the soldiers' life around the island.

BLUEJACKET RIDES HORSE
ALMOST TO ITS DEATH

A saddle horse, ridden by a bluejacket, dropped on the track on King street near the intersection of the main highway and the main highway, last evening about eight o'clock. The bluejacket immediately went to the Club Stables, where he was found to be badly injured. He was taken to the hospital and attended by Doctor Brown. The horse was found to be badly injured and was taken to the hospital. The horse was found to be badly injured and was taken to the hospital. SCRAPPING OVER POPULÉ PEOPLE

Police and the Insane Asylum
Management Are at Odds
With Each Other.

An incontinent war is on between Dr. Charles A. Peterson, superintendent of the Oahu Insane Asylum and the police department. The present heat of contention is Tom Gussman, who the police claim, is insane, and of whom they wish Doctor Peterson to take care.

Peterson asks them politely for the papers of commitment and upon their failure to deliver any gently turned away the supposed insane man and the guardians of the law.

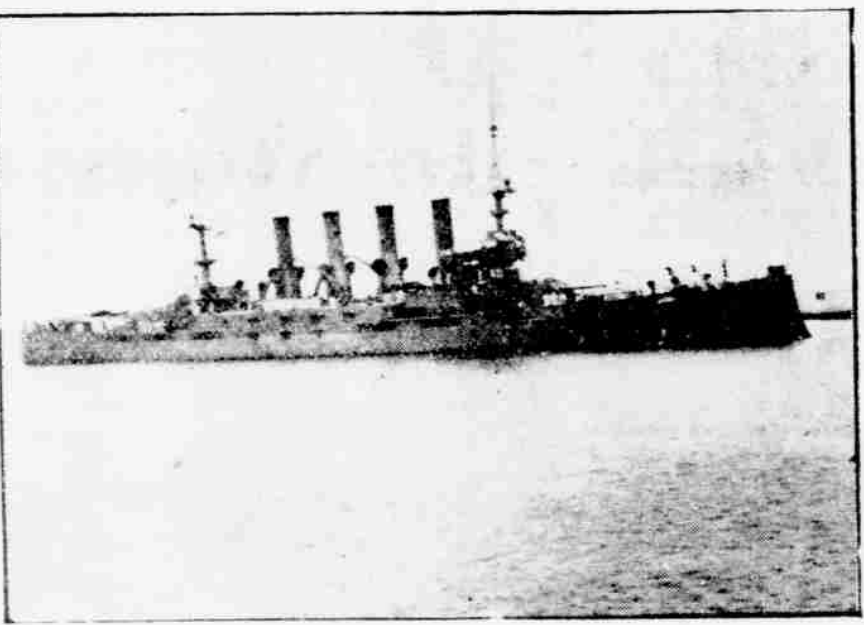

"We're full up," said the police, "So am I," said Peterson, and Gussman still resides in the city hotel.

Gussman is the gentleman who he came incarcerated in the Sunrise Saloon and who was taken into custody in consequence. He developed symptoms of what is vulgarly known as "fits in the lottery," and the police decided that this relieved them of the responsibility of his safekeeping. Doctor Peterson needs the lunatics for him and this one in his collection; the man had been there before and would feel at home there. But lacking the proper papers of commitment the police, much to their surprise, found themselves turned down.

This has made the police mad. Why should they associate with lunatics? This point to the management of the insane asylum, showing that two persons escaped in two days as extra proof that the refusal to accept Gussman was only a pique of the general overboredness.

Doctor Peterson, on his part, points to the lunatics he has in the asylum in which the insane people are kept and says that statistics show how people are being cured by the asylum. This support rendered the insane asylum, since the idea that there are no more insane people outside as there are in the asylum. The idea that there are no more insane people outside as there are in the asylum. The idea that there are no more insane people outside as there are in the asylum.

The police, especially, says that a man, who is committed to the insane asylum, has been committed for an order to be committed to the insane asylum. The police, especially, says that a man, who is committed to the insane asylum, has been committed for an order to be committed to the insane asylum. IS THERE LIFE AFTER DEATH?

Dr. Scudder Discusses Subject—
Exceptionally Powerful
Address.

Dr. Scudder took up the seventh of the series of Young America's religious questions at Central Union church last night. The question was "Life After Death?" and in his treatment of the subject, the speaker covered every possible view of the question in a clear and intensely interesting manner.

Dr. Scudder alluded to the subject of a seven sessions. He prefaced the introduction of these by reading as a text, "If a man die, shall he live again?" John 11:14. He said, "The great religious question is, because Jesus lives, I shall live because he rose again. I shall live, but there is a real difficulty in the difference between the resurrection of Jesus and that of man, expressed in the question."

The first subject of his sermon was, "What became of the body of Jesus at his resurrection?" He answered this by saying that the body of Jesus was resurrected. (Continued on Page Seven.)

LOCAL FOLK IN PARIS ARE SAFE

Dr. J. W. Walker has been in the most anxious mood in the city during the past few days, owing to the flood reports from Paris. His family being there at the present time, living in a garret with the one room of the basement, he is posted on the situation by the news. This morning he said that the situation at Paris is not so bad as it was last night, but a message came from "All safe and sound." The fact that a few people had been taken to a safe place in and out, shows the state of affairs that exist in the French capital.

ACCREDITED WITH ANOTHER MURDER

Gallows Rise in Rear of Negro
Indicted for Murder of Puu-loa Watchman.

CRIME EIGHT YEARS OLD.

Mysterious Case. Unknown to the Present Police Officials.
Charged to Grace.

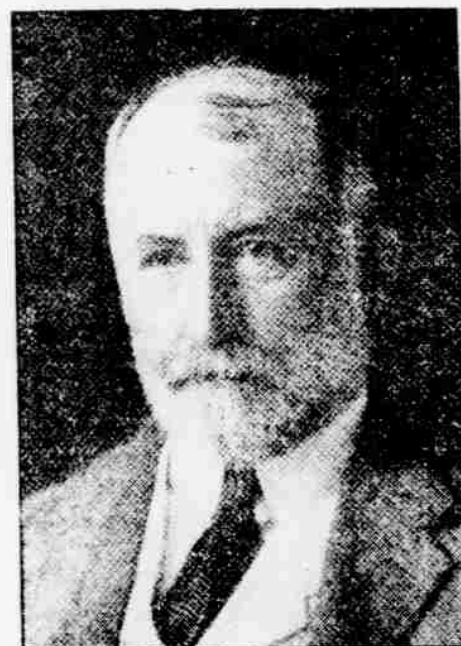

Is Anderson Grace, under indictment by the federal grand jury for the murder of Watchman Mahu at Puuloa, to be found guilty of a similar crime, committed eight years ago? Since his arrest several days ago by Chief McDuffie and the federal authorities, incidents have come to the attention of the police that have led them to believe that the negro can be connected with a murder now almost forgotten, and, in fact, unknown to any of the present police officials.

The prominence given to Grace's name by his supposed complicity in the death of Mahu has started certain tongues wagging, with the result that McDuffie has obtained a hint that will lead to this second investigation.

McDuffie overheard two men, one of them a workman either in Fort Ruger or else on some construction work near Diamond Head, and the other a workman at Puuloa, discussing Grace's arrest, and one mentioned the fact that Grace was the man who killed a certain Chinaman eight years ago.

GOUGHAM TO SPEND ENORMOUS AMOUNT

New Subway System Planned to Cost Nearly Quarter of a Billion Dollars.

NEW YORK, January 31.—Plans for twenty-six miles of new subways have been prepared and are now before the board of estimates for approval and adoption. The new work is estimated to cost the municipality two hundred and forty million dollars.

The new subway scheme is one strongly favored by Mayor Gaynor, who is expected to use his influence to have the plan and estimates adopted and passed. To build the new subway will entail the floating of bonds.

COMMERCE DESTROYER DRIVES ASHORE

TANGIER, January 31.—The French cruiser Chateau-Renaud ran aground on the Moroccan coast yesterday, near Arzila. It is feared that the vessel will be a total loss.

In Jane's Fighting Ships of the World, the Chateau-Renaud is described as a warship designed for commerce destruction and to be mistaken by her victims as an Atlantic liner. There is, however, no liner to which she bears any particular resemblance. The fore-castle gun is generally very obvious. The funnels are characteristic and the absence of promenade decks noticeable. She can, however, be mistaken for a "liner unknown" at about six miles off. She was built in 1898 and has a displacement of 8018 tons and carries a complement of 600 men. She has a speed of about 21 knots, but burns a good deal of coal to accomplish this rate. She cost about $3,000,000.

WHERE TREASURE IS. THERE HEART IS

CITY OF MEXICO, January 31.—Zelaya, the exiled president of Nicaragua, has given up any hope he may have had of returning to his own country and has decided to sail for Europe on Friday. He will make his home in Belgium, where much of his wealth is banked.

CHINESE CAN HAVE NO PARLIAMENT

BEIJING, January 31.—An imperial order was issued yesterday by the Emperor, declaring the project of a parliament for China an unpatriotic act and calling for its suppression. The order is to the effect that such a step on the part of the government can not be contemplated for the present.

MANCHURIA ARRIVED

According to the Marine Exchange cable received last night the Pacific Mail steamer Manchuria arrived in San Francisco yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, but the Honolulu Times says it will arrive at eight o'clock. The Manchuria was a registered ship of the United States.

MADE A GOOD HAUL.

Like a hunt on the coast, a lot of fish were brought up by the Pacific Mail steamer Manchuria yesterday evening in the Hong Kong waters. The haul, including twenty-two of the most valuable species of fish, was a good one. The haul, which was taken in a three-hour haul, is said to be an old established one, where the fish are taken and will be up for trial today, if they come up at all.

STARVING REFUGEES SAVED

Relief Work All in Hands of the Military—No Estimate of Damages.

PARIS, January 31.—Although the most imminent peril of the past few days of horror is thought to be past, the conditions prevailing throughout the submerged districts continue most grave and the officials in charge of the troops and sailors engaged in the relief work are still besieged by thousands of applicants, praying for help in rescuing and locating lost relatives.

The waters are steadily falling and the turbulence of the flood has quieted down, making it possible for small boats and launches to penetrate the flooded districts in rescue work. Many hundreds of starving people have been already rescued from the house-tops, where they had been forced to take refuge by the rising waters. These refugees are being taken to the relief camps and the hospitals out of reach of any further flood.

The entire submerged districts have been turned over to the military authorities, who are directing all the relief work. Hundreds of buildings, undermined by the waters, have collapsed and the debris is choking the streets. Thousands are believed to have lost their lives through drowning or being killed in the falling buildings.

The relief fund has now reached a quarter of a million dollars and more money is pouring in.

It will be impossible to reach any exclusive estimate of the damage until the waters have receded and the effect of the flood on the streets and buildings more definitely learned.

MINERS DEMAND A LIVING WAGE

INDIANAPOLIS, January 31.—The leaders of the miners' groups, assembled here for a conference, which began its sessions this morning, stated last night that a general strike of the underground men is probable unless the operators will grant an increase of wages. The demand for more pay is to be based on the increased cost of living.

TAFT'S BREACH OF ETIQUETTE

Called on Justice Lurton Instead

WASHINGTON SET A-TALKING

Supreme Court Has Now Four
Civil War Veterans — Two
Yanks and Two Rebs.

By Ernest G. Walker.
Mail Special to The Advertiser.

WASHINGTON, January 31.—The White House has certainly been leading off in interest at the threshold of the New Year. President Taft, not congress, has been winning the daily headlines. The lawmakers have attracted attention chiefly, as they journeyed to the big, square, white walled building adjoining the President's residence and as they pushed inside the big oval of the "talk" in over.

For the President has been making things hum all through the holidays and even into the period when congress began again to deliberate. It has become a trite saying that the ponderous wheels of legislation move slowly at the start. Their movement was almost imperceptible for quite a time in early December. There is hardly more momentum now but all that will change with so many people on the ground, with plans prepared for a winter of work. Those ever recurring appropriation bills, calling for a billion dollars of the country's money every year, alone suffice to give every regular session of congress a good round task.

Accordingly it has been well that President Taft has filled the public mind with a few ideas about the current necessities of government, that he has been calling in the senators and representatives, railroad presidents, captains of industry and the like and discussing programs. The days of blizzards and severe weather run into mild days, with the slush and the snow upon the asphalt and the President was still grinding away at the conferences, which began in November after the western return, and at those special messages, one upon corporations and another upon conservation. No golf at Chevy Chase with three inches of snow upon the slushy suburban roads, but plenty of tramping on foot. The President has not been at a loss for relaxation from the cares of office. He was up early, drilled away at business and many an afternoon when the sun was getting low in the west he put on his old clothes and started out for a tramp that would have done credit even to the athletic Roosevelt.

Is a Walker.

Indeed during the holidays and early January, President Taft has established his reputation as a pedestrian. It is notable how a few presidential stunts of that kind set people to talking and even overtop in general interest the graver things of state. Roosevelt was a great walker, but he preferred to walk in Rock Creek Park or in Maryland or Virginia. He almost invariably rode in a carriage out to the city limits and then began his tramping in the open country. He did not care much about walking in the town. He would walk to church on an occasional Sunday, but a stroll down Pennsylvania avenue, the most important thoroughfare in town, or along F street through the heart of the shopping district, did not especially appeal to him. President Taft, on the other hand, likes to walk in town. The provided thoroughfare appeals to him. He has been more on Pennsylvania avenue, F street and other of the principal thoroughfares of the city during the last month than all of his predecessors since Grant's time. He has not only walked the streets just as any private citizen would, going where he pleased, but he has walked into stores to shop for articles that he wanted and the latest was a visit to the New Willard Hotel to meet an old friend, Horace H. Lurton, whom he has just elevated to the Supreme Bench.

Is Left Alone.

It has long been recognized at the White House that a President can safely go almost anywhere in Washington, provided his going has not been advertised. Washington people are not so curious as many others, who see less of addition. To be sure they crane their necks when they note the President on the sidewalk, but they will not form a crowd around him when he passes or admire something in a show window. It is a great city of cranks but there is almost no danger of the President encountering them, when he makes up his mind about four o'clock in the afternoon that in a few minutes he will go out for a walk. If any forward persons were disposed to annoy the President and appeal to him for anything, he would be politely shunted aside by Captain Pratt, the army aid, who always walks with the President.

An Awful Precedent.

Many tongues have been wagging because the President went to a hotel to call upon the new associate justice. That was a violation of all the precedents and the conventionalities. The President is supposed to make no calls like that. Men come to him, he does not go to them. But after all it was only a call upon an old friend with whom he served upon the United States supreme court bench for seven years.

The New Justice.

The coming of Justice Lurton has been much advertised, more so than that of any of his colleagues from the Supreme Bench in recent years. The junior justice next to Lurton, Associate Justice Moody, was nominated while he was serving as attorney general and was therefore the transfer from one place to another of an official with whom Washington was already used to. Lurton, Justice William R. Day, of Ohio, was transferred from the circuit court, like Justice Lurton, but he had been in Washington as secretary of state, and therefore was no stranger. Justice Lurton, while he had been in Washington before his nomination, was practically a stranger here, for all of his official service has been in the sixth judicial circuit, comprising Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee. Then the voluminous discussion about him in the newspapers, extending over a period of several months, in itself made him something of a celebrity. Few men have ever come to the Supreme Court under such circumstances. He was almost nominated for the Supreme Court by President Roosevelt, on the recommendation of Mr. Taft, then secretary of war. He was a Confederate soldier, who fell into the hands of the Union army, was sent to prison and released by President Lincoln on the personal appeal of his mother, who came to Washington and found a way, in spite of great obstacles, to reach the President. Accordingly, Justice Lurton has figured in the affairs of four administrations, for it was President Cleveland who made him a circuit judge.

of the United States Supreme Court

Civil War Veterans.

His nomination to the court means that four of the nine justices are men of Civil War records. Two of them were Union soldiers, Justice Harlan raised the Tenth Kentucky Infantry regiment, which he commanded. He served in Gen. George H. Thomas' division, but resigned from the army in the spring of 1863, owing to the death of his father, although his name at that time was before the senate for confirmation as a brigadier-general. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes went to the front as a lieutenant in the Twentieth Massachusetts Infantry, when a young Harvard graduate, was shot through the breast at Ball's Bluff in March, 1862; was soon commissioned captain, was wounded in the neck at Antietam and in the heel at Mary's Heights. The latter portion of his military service was aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. H. G. Wright. He gained the brevets of major, lieutenant colonel, and colonel.

The other Confederate soldier of the Supreme Court is Mr. Justice White, who in all his biographies from the time that he entered the United States senate has contented himself with the simple assertion that he "served in the Confederate army."

Forces Even.

With the Civil War forces of the Supreme Bench now evenly matched as to numbers, it is conceivable that the tedious labors of the conference room will be enlivened on occasion by numerous interesting sallies from behind the ramparts of leather-bound volumes. Nearly all the justices are good story tellers and love a brisk anecdote. Colonel Harlan is one of the best at that sort of a feat. Colonel Holmes is more reserved, but he, on occasion, can tell a story well. They can keep up the side of the commissioned officers, while High Private White and High Private Lurton, both of whom have the southern gift of being entertaining conversationalists, can enrich the information of the court with experiences in the trenches and on the wearisome marches about.

"ST. VALENTINE'S VILLAGE" BUILDING

The young people of the Hawaiian congregation of St. Andrew's Cathedral are planning to give a unique entertainment next Saturday evening. It will be known as "St. Valentine's Village," and will be held in the Dwyer Memorial Hall, which will be arranged to represent an oldtime English village. There will be an inn, postoffice, bank and shops for the sale of valentines, candies, and other goods and goodies. The entertainment centers around the sending of valentines.

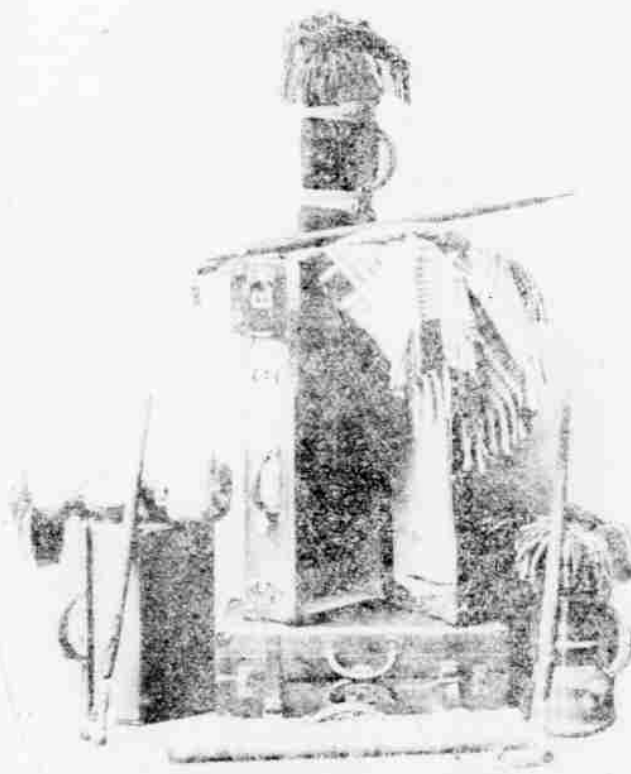

The entrance to the village will be by the door on Emma street and visitors will find themselves almost immediately at the desk of the inn, where "guests" will register. They will proceed along the main street to the bank where one can obtain the currency of the village. Then at one of the shops one buys a valentine for best beloved or friend, and mails it at the postoffice. Every half-hour there will be a mail delivery, so that after mailing the valentine the sender will not have to wait long before seeing the pleased smile of one's friend as he, or she, receives the token of remembrance. Other things besides valentines may be sent through the postoffice, or by special delivery messenger.

There will also be some entertaining side shows which will be in the nature of surprises. If one becomes hungry, supper can be had in the dining room of the "Dwyer House" and if thirsty the village well will provide beverage.

The workers in the village will be in costume. All members of both congregations of St. Andrew's cathedral and the friends, are cordially invited to partake of the fun at "St. Valentine's Village" Saturday night next.

TRADE BOARD MAY SELECT PRINCESS

Hilo Tribune.—It appears from the Honolulu papers that the Hilo board of trade will be asked by those in charge of the preparations for the Floral Parade on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, to select a local beauty to represent this island as its "Princess." Last year a young Honolulu lady was selected to represent the Big Island on a similar occasion, but the board of trade paid the bill incidentally thereto. While so far the board has received no notification in regard to the matter, it appears certain that the time will come shortly when the business men will be called upon to select the beauties of the island and to select therefrom the one who pleases them most.

WELCOME THE FLEET'S RETURN.

Honolulu today is ready to welcome back to port the admiral, officers, and men of the fleet, ready to welcome the officers and the crews for their own sake as well as for the fact that they represent our common government and flag.

It is the desire of all Honoluluans that the men of Uncle Sam's navy may know that whatever Honolulu can offer in the way of hospitality and welcome, is theirs; that however frequently they may drop in on us, the welcome stands, growing stronger with each succeeding visit. The men of the Pacific fleet have every reason to look upon this city as a home port, in the same way that Honoluluans are now accustomed to regard the cruisers of the fleet as our own ships, certain to turn this way at frequent intervals.

There is some measure of regret associated with this visit of the cruisers, however, that being in the fact that Rear-Admiral Schrege, the bluff commander, is calling to say farewell. Next month he will hand down his flag and retire from active service, a service that has brought him many times to Honolulu. Here he has a host of friends, not one of whom but will regret the day his flag ceases to fly over one of the ships of war of our navy.

Rear-Admiral Schrege is the type of naval officer one most admires; frank and hearty, a thorough seagoing, a man whose very presence should inspire confidence, one whose appearance betokens the tried warrior. His type is fast passing away, and with it is departing the experience gained under fire in the days when wooden frigates faced the first ironclads and the new navies of the world were born, for, although Admiral Schrege entered the navy after the Civil War, he served with veterans through his formative years and carried their examples through his various services around the world.

NOTRE DAME.

The world will mourn with Paris if the floods of the past few days have destroyed what the centuries have seen built up, the historic buildings that rise above the Parisian horizon. Many of those stately structures belong to the world. The majority of them are familiar, through illustrated and printed description, to the many millions who never have and never will see them in their actuality. Principal among these is the Cathedral of Notre Dame, over eight hundred years old, built by the Duke of Burgundy in expiation for the sin of murdering the Duke of Orleans.

There are many descriptions available of this grand, historic old pile, but Mark Twain, who painted the glories of Hawaii in telling phrases, has, in a few short words, given a word picture of his impressions of Notre Dame that convey better what that old edifice means to the world than many a more poetic description.

"We went to see the Cathedral of Notre Dame," he says, in his "Innocents Abroad." "We recognized the brown old Gothic pile in a moment; it was like the pictures. We stood at a little distance and changed from one point of observation to another, and gazed long at its lofty square tower and its rich front, clustered thick with stony, mutilated saints, who had been looking calmly down from their perches for ages. The Patriarch of Jerusalem stood under them in the old days of chivalry and romance, and preached the crusade, more than six hundred years ago; and since that day they have stood there and looked quietly down upon the most thrilling scenes, the grandest pageants, the most extraordinary spectacles that have grieved or delighted Paris. These battered and broken-down fellows saw many a cavalcade of mail-clad knights come marching home from the Holy Land; they heard the bells above them toll the signal for the St. Bartholomew's massacre, and they saw the slaughter that followed; later, they saw the Reign of Terror, the carnage of the Revolution, the overthrow of a king, the coronation of two Napoleons, the christening of the young prince that lords it over a regiment of servants in the Tuilleries today (1867), and they may possibly stand there until they see the Napoleon dynasty swept away and the banners of a great republic floating above its ruins. They saw a pagan temple stood where Notre Dame now stands, in the old Roman days, eighteen or twenty centuries ago, and that a Christian church took its place about A. D. 30; another took the place of that in A. D. 500; and that the foundation of the present cathedral was laid in A. D. 1160."

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

Today, the German steamship Cleveland will land six hundred and fifty passengers at the American port of San Francisco, and will pay for the privilege the same amount as was paid by the Japanese liner Tenyo Maru when she landed five American passengers at that port some months ago. In both instances the coastwise shipping law is broken, but the Cleveland brought her six hundred odd passengers from the American port of New York, and the Tenyo Maru brought hers from the American port of Honolulu.

Where is the justice to Honolulu in this? Why are passengers from the American port of New York given a preference by the American government officials over the passengers from the American port of Honolulu?

We are being told day in and day out that Hawaii should ask for no special privileges from congress. Are we, however, to be content to remain silent when special privileges are given to other ports to our disadvantage?

As a matter of fact, does not congress give special privileges to many sections of the country? On what other basis is the tariff constructed?

We believe that under the circumstances the Cleveland should be allowed to land her passengers at San Francisco without any penalty whatever attached, but we object to being so plainly discriminated against in the matter to the benefit of San Francisco. That port is acting selfishly in its opposition to the temporary suspension of the coastwise law. It would inconvenience Honolulu and hamper our growth simply because a portion of Honolulu's business might, under suspension of the law, follow the trade that would arise between this port and those of the Sound through the tourist traffic created by the use of the Canadian-bound liners.

San Francisco now gets all the passenger trade from Honolulu. That city gets the great bulk of the Hawaiian foreign business. Yet, her people and her press oppose what can not injure them and would immensely benefit us.

Our sailor guests should profit by the little lesson of yesterday, when one of them rode a horse to the point of exhaustion, with the result that the beast which carried him so faithfully had to be shot. It is not intentional cruelty that prompts the sailors to ride their horses, but, in the opinion of most, sheer forgetfulness of the fact that a horse will run until it falls dead in its tracks. Sailors are kind to those animals they know, but they are unkind to livery horses, through their apparent ignorance of the fact that a horse is not a machine and can not be made to go at full speed indefinitely. If the boys would hear this in mind, it would save the suffering of the hundred or so horses they use every day while ashore, while they will enjoy their ride the better for knowing that the faithful ponies are not being overtaxed.

The Territory of Hawaii has no law making the slaughter of sea birds an offense. Pigeons, birds are protected and Hawaiian geese are taken for the summer, but all sea birds appear to be left to the tender mercy of the world. Captain Niblock was only able to "warn" the poachers he found a few years ago on Makai, because there was no federal reservation there at the time. If there be bird hunters on Johnston Island, a warning will be about the limit they will venture, if caught.

A report was published in Kibohani a Hilo Democratic paper, to the effect that the Rev. Stephen Deane nearly came to blows with a Honolulu Republican regarding the matter of the appointment of an assistant secretary for the central committee. Needless to say, the Kibohani announced that the report was a "twisted lie" concocted from Honolulu. The services are credited with some funny things at times. There is not a word of truth in the report.

With a little more notice at this stage of the campaign, the Republican party will come under going into the final fight armed than it has been for some years, and with better chances of a sweeping victory.

While the Honolulu newspapers are heading over their proposed building contracts, the prominent builders are busy erecting walls.

For the past three days there has not been a sensation in Honolulu's governmental circles. This is almost a record.

SUGAR MARKET GOSSIP.

The following chat regarding the New York sugar market is from a letter dated January 13, received by the last mail, from the metropolis by a local sugar man.

"The American is buying today at 4.17c, and willing to take January, February or March. They have only been able to get about 70,000 bags. Unless something entirely unlooked for occurs, there will be an advance in the price for refined in the near future. Arbutle has bought no Cuban sugar yet. It looks very much as if Arbutle is in a hole. The other refiners who have pretty fair supplies are pulling the market up on him while he is waiting. Today Arbutle can not get anything under 4.24c. This price has already been paid for March-April shipments by European speculators.

"Cuba is very firm. Operators can not buy sugars in Havana under the equivalent of 4.24c. Another advance in the price of refined would result in large speculative buying by jobbers. This would positively force Arbutle's hand and make him come into the market for raws.

"When Arbutle's wants are supplied, one of the big props of this market will be removed. Any great activity in refined might be followed by a period of dullness; and then there is the month of February ahead of us, with its tremendous production in Cuba. If beets remain where they are, there is likely to be no very great reversion in prices, but with weakness in Europe, our market would decline materially.

"Ten thousand bags of Cuban sugars have been sent to the St. Lawrence refinery at Montreal. This is the first time that Cuban sugars have been sold to Canada since the reciprocity treaty went into effect. The fact that the American refiners have a competitor in the Canadian refinery has a good deal to do with the strength of our market."

CLEW'S WEEKLY REPORT.

New York, January 15, 1910.

Continued liquidation has further unsettled the stock market. Firm rates for money, President Taft's railroad and corporation bills, fears of unfavorable decisions by the Supreme Court in the Tobacco and Standard Oil cases, and the break in cotton appear to have been the chief unfavorable influences. As for high money, that appears to be a settled tendency, and it is now generally acknowledged that 1910 will be a period of dearer money than 1909. This, of course, implies a general readjustment of security values. As usual the high priced stocks are the first to feel the effects of a fundamental change like a permanent rise in interest rates. Security holders can easily find better employment for their funds than in securities which bring only 4 to 4½ per cent. A good many stocks have been firmly held during the past six months but insiders who were aware of an impending increase in dividends. Upon the announcement of those dividends such holders quietly sold for the reasons just stated, and in this way stocks have been passing from strong into weaker hands for several weeks past. The public have been the chief buyers, encouraged by the generally satisfactory condition of business and the reasonable prospects for its continuance.

Wall Street, however, is in the habit of anticipating events, and Stock Exchange values consequently often follow a course in direct opposition to popular expectation. It thus happens that security prices are declining in spite of the favorable outlook for the current year. Another reason for the selling of stocks has been the publication of the two proposed bills giving President Taft's ideas of railroad regulation and industrial corporations. Neither of these measures were favorably received. The railroad bill was much criticized for the undue power which it gave to the interstate commerce commission a body which is constantly seeking to impose a higher degree of paternalism upon our railroad systems. As for the bill for national corporations, that measure is still more open to criticism, since it contains the highly objectionable feature of holding companies, which have frequently proved so lucrative and which the government has been attempting to dissolve. Both of these bills show a tendency towards the centralization and growth of federal power which seriously need to be checked. A national corporation law would deprive the States of much of the power which they now exert over corporations, and would tend to the development of a series of big corporations or trusts such as would surely warrant revival of popular clamor against monopolies. Fortunately there is no prospect of either bill passing this session of congress, and the discussion which they are likely to provoke should reveal their grave imperfections and bring them to an early grave.

General trade shows some slackening, as is usual at this season of the year. The situation has also been somewhat affected by the revival of labor and tariff agitation, as well as by the increasing cost of doing business. A good deal of discontent is developing from the increased cost of living, out of which more or less radical capital is sure to be made. All meat and animal products are now selling at abnormally high prices, with little relief in sight until next season, when an increase in the supply of both cattle and hogs is promised. Groceries generally are selling at lower prices than a year ago, although retailers are not always giving their customers the benefit of lower prices. Clothing is high owing to the tariff and increased costs of manufacture; the result being that the average man is obliged to accept an inferior suit for the price he is accustomed to pay. Shoes are advancing. Rents are high and there is little prospect of their declining until the cost of building is reduced or the supply of houses increased. Nevertheless, a great deal more is frequently made of the increased cost of living than is justified, especially when it affords a plausible reason for an advance of wages. The cost of living is a matter largely within the discretion of each individual. Cheaper and equity efficient foods can be had, and many individuals have become accustomed to luxurious standards of living which they can easily moderate without detriment. Extravagance has more to do with the increased cost of living than many are willing to admit. A little economy and patience will in due season mitigate the situation and encourage corrective influences.

For the time being the drift of security prices promises to be downward. A considerable decline has already taken place in many of the better class stocks, and occasional rallies are to be anticipated. It has all along, however, been urged that the market had been upon too high a level, and its gradual descent will prove a healthy feature. Until the readjustment to higher interest rates is accomplished, until the legislative outlook improves, and until the decline has reached a point which makes our leading railroad and industrial shares more attractive to investors there is little prospect of any permanent recovery. There is a goodly amount of new issues impending, the financing of which cause a better demand for money, and the marketing of which is delayed until buyers show a better appetite. The situation abroad is generally satisfactory and the local undertone is good. There is no reason for taking a discouraging view of the future; and so far as the stock market is concerned it is only necessary to recognize that a long deferred adjustment of values is now taking place. There is also considerable anxiety as to the outcome of the anti-trust Tobacco and Standard Oil suits now before the Supreme Court, and on which a decision is soon expected.

COMET'S EVIL PORTENT.

LONDON, January 15.—Lord Crawford, ex-president of the Astronomical Society, who has widely traveled in Africa and India, fears a general native uprising and massacre of Christians by fanatical Mohammedans when Halley's comet appears in the sky in the coming spring.

Agitators, he says, will seize the opportunity to stir the uneducated, superstitious natives, using the comet as a fiery sign of Allah to drive out Christians.

He has recommended the government to issue placards with pictures explaining the phenomenon throughout North Africa, and especially in Egypt and India.

YOUNG KING MAY WED NEXT MAY

PARIS, January 16.—A special dispatch received here from Lisbon, mentioning an authorized source, affirms that the marriage of King Manuel of Portugal and Princess Victoria Patricia, youngest daughter of the Duke of Connaught, will be solemnized in May next, and that an announcement to this effect will be communicated officially to the foreign courts soon.

When King Manuel visited England in November last it was rumored throughout Europe that he was in search of a consort, but at that time it was reported that he was to marry the Princess Alexandra of Eife. This reported engagement was denied, however, and nothing more was heard of it after the King of Portugal left England.

During his stay in England King Manuel made many friends and was declared to be one of the most democratic monarchs who ever were the guests of Great Britain. He is a great favorite with King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

At frequent intervals since King Manuel ascended the throne of Portugal two years ago, after the assassination of his father, King Carlos, and the Crown Prince, there have been rumors of his betrothal. Besides the reported engagement to Princess Alexandra, he was also declared to be engaged to Princess Victoria Louise, of Germany, and to Princess Maria del Pilar, of Bavaria.

Princess Patricia is the second daughter of the Duke of Connaught, brother of King Edward.

SCRAPPING OVER PUPULE PEOPLE

dumped in the grounds at three o'clock in the morning by the police. She had been sent over from Molokai but the proper papers had not been made out, and Doctor Peterson had to draw them up for the judge and send them over to be signed. It was a week before they came back during which time he was forced to hold the woman at a personal risk as the police refused to have anything to do with her. He warned the police that he would turn her loose on the road if they did not come after her, but they merely said that he had better not and made no attempt to take her. If Peterson had turned her loose on the community as he had a right to do and as he should have done, according to the law, the police might have had a commotion on their hands.

Three or four of the buildings in the enclosure, including one of the wards, the kitchen and the laundry, have been built by the inmates themselves, as the legislature has refused to appropriate money enough to build them. Buildings that were condemned some time ago as unfit to live in are still standing, as the legislature did not provide for a new one and some shelter is needed. Doctor Peterson has fixed it up as well as he could.

The police have lately turned over to him, Fong Fook, the insane Chinaman who murdered Ah Sing, making three insane murderers he has in custody without any facilities for keeping the criminally insane. In this case the requirements of the law have been satisfied, but the law should have sent them to the prison, he says.

Another bone of contention between the insane asylum management and the police are the few who have escaped from the asylum. The police, says Peterson, have been harping on this while at the same time refusing to comply with the law by keeping the prisoners until the proper papers have been made out.

Doctor Peterson points to his lack of guards and the other handicaps he has, and then at the rear that a certain afternoon paper made over the matter without taking the trouble to investigate the conditions it was writing about. The Korean who "escaped" Saturday and who got on the nerves of the afternoon paper mentioned walked out of the building during the night and was recaptured eight hours later. He was sleeping in a ward with forty-six men and there was but one guard to watch them. He had to leave the room and did so with the guard's permission. As the latter still had forty-five men to watch he could not follow the one, who was a trusty, and the man climbed over the fence. All the others in the same ward are trusties also, and it is only these that have the slightest opportunities to escape. They are perfectly harmless and have been declared so by medical men. The escape of a native woman the day before was under different circumstances and the guard who permitted it will lose his position today.

Meanwhile, Doctor Peterson claims, the police practically refuse to hunt for those who do escape, preferring to sit around the police station and talk about it to the discredit of the insane asylum. All of which betokens war between the police force and Doctor Peterson.

What Police Say.

"We have no fight and want none with Doctor Peterson," said Deputy Sheriff Charles Rose last night. "The arrangement by which he has been taking care of the suspected insane before examination was made during the previous administration. It is merely an agreement made between Hauken and Peterson, and as far as I know he has never refused to accept any that we sent up there until he refused Gussman. I don't know what caused him to do that or what has made him break with us unless it is the incense of the woman from Molokai."

"We had nothing to do with that. The woman arrived on the steamer from Molokai early in the morning and the officer sent down with her telephoned from the wharf for the police patrol which went down and took her to the insane asylum. That was our only share in the matter."

"As far as not assisting him in finding his escaped inmates I can say that he never notifies us. As a matter of fact we found the Korean on the street and as he was acting queerly we arrested him and sent for him to see if it was one of his escaped inmates, which he turned out to be."

"His taking care of these people for us is merely a matter of accommodation. When we arrest them Saturday afternoon we have to keep them here over Sunday until they can be examined and committed. We have no facilities for them and don't know how to take care of them. We have only six cells and these are always crowded over Saturday and Sunday. If it was a week day we wouldn't care."

through the past history of the man who is already facing the gallows if the charge now against him is proven, and should the evidence in the Mahu case prove insufficient, he has still this second and mysterious suspicion pointing at him, barring his way backward, so to speak, from the gallows toward which the evidence that has been secured in the later case has led him.

Since arrest he has made no admissions in any manner that the authorities may use against him. As yet the evidence in the Mahu case is purely circumstantial, although strong, and United States District Attorney Breckenridge, who is prosecuting him, is confident he can convict him.

KOREAN SIDE OF THE FAR EASTERN SITUATION

Reply to Exposition of Japans' Attitude Toward the Hermit Kingdom as Written by Editor Sheba.

Editor Advertiser:—When I read the article which contained the Japanese political outline in Korea, which was written by Mr. Sheba, it makes me feel a desire to repeat the position of the Koreans a little more fully.

He states that the Korean nation never enjoyed independence in its true sense; that China obtained Korea from 1896 to 1897 as an integral part of the Chinese Empire, but the Koreans did not realize it. Why was so? Because China did not disturb the slumber of the Koreans by interfering in the government, by murdering, by robbing the poor natives and destroying towns and villages with fire, like Japan does in Korea today.

The Koreans have been sleeping for centuries. But suddenly they were awakened by the terrible booming of the guns of the Russo-Japanese war.

In this war Korea had sympathized with Japan in many ways, for Korea placed faith in Japan's adherence to the promise to maintain the integrity and independence of Korea, which was made by the Emperor of Japan at the beginning of the war, embodied in a treaty between Korea and Japan.

After this war the Koreans heard that it was coming to Korea and they were glad as they believed his mission was to increase the friendship between the two countries and they united in extending a hearty welcome.

But, oh, how difficult it is to anticipate affairs in this world. Without warning, a proposal containing five clauses was laid before the Emperor of Korea as follows:

1. To maintain eastern power and to increase the friendship between Korea and Japan.
2. To abolish the foreign offices and place Korean diplomatic affairs in the hands of Japan.
3. To alter the function of the Japanese minister to Korea to those of supreme administration.
4. To alter the functions of the Japanese consuls to those of superintendents.
5. To guarantee the peace of the imperial house.

The Koreans then saw how mistaken they had been about the object of Marquis Ito's visit.

On November 15, 1905, Ito had the Korean palace surrounded with his military force and compelled the Emperor to sign the said treaty. However, the Emperor firmly refused to have anything to do with this proposal and also some of the ministers refused to sign it preferring to die in the cause of independence, but a few of the ministers of our government, who are worse than pigs or dogs, coveting honors and advantages for themselves, and frightened by empty threats were trembling in every limb, were willing to become traitors to their country and betray to Japan the integrity of a nation which stood for 4000 years, the foundation and honor of a dynasty 5000 years old, and the rights and freedom of twenty million people.

When the spirit of an old nation like Korea has perished in a single night and her people have become the slaves of others, is it worth while for anyone of her subjects to live any longer?

An autograph letter which Marquis Ito brought from the Mikado to the Emperor of Korea, stated that the special envoy had been sent with the object of maintaining the peace of the Far East and it was therefore hoped that the Emperor of Korea would obey his direction and come to an agreement with him. The letter concluded by saying that Japan most strengthen the defenses of Korea and guarantee the peace of the Korean Empire.

What is promised? Should it be called peace when the blood of innocent people is running like water? Should it be called peace when the blue sky is red with the flames of the hopeless towns and villages? Should it be called peace when millions of people are weeping for the loss of their properties?

Mr. Sheba stated that the Korean national resources are increasing by various works of improvement and exploitation. But I can not say that this success is for the Koreans. Japan has constructed railroads without permission under the pretense that they are for military purposes. Their railways take the length and breadth of the empire and have involved the destruction of a large number of houses, crops, graves and forests.

The Japanese have also established settlements along the railways. Japan has staked out about eight miles in width on either side of the Seoul Wiju Railway.

Japan took the Korean department of communications, which had been established in connection with the International Postal Union after many years' labor and expense. No compensation was paid nor is there any probability that the Korean government will ever receive anything from what will presently be a very profitable department. Japanese check all the Korean newspapers from abroad, allowing no Korean to read them.

For the purposes of fighting, railway construction and military transport, the Japanese have forced Korean laborers into their service without proper payment. The Korean soldiers have been ill-treated and many of them have died from their injuries.

Japan is emigrating thousands of her people to colonize Korea and has compelled the government to sign a contract which she had drawn up containing upon Japan the right of annexation of crops and forests. She also has converted the unappropriated lands, mines and fisheries.

Mr. Sheba also stated something about the currency reforms, but to Korea is satisfied with it. The Japanese financial advisor forced a loan of 50,000,000 yen upon the government and has flooded the country and meddled with exchange upon public and private interests. This was called "adjusting the finances of Korea."

About education, Japanese established a few schools for the Koreans with the approval of the Korean government. In these schools the Japanese teach nothing but the Japanese language, Japanese history and Japanese geography, drawing all salaries from the Korean government. With this the Koreans bear the eyes of the world. Whenever American or European travelers come to Korea, the Japanese take them around these schools, telling them that they are doing fine work for the Koreans. Japanese burned up all the Korean books which contained patriotic thoughts.

Japan keeps a jealous eye on the American and European missionaries who are enthusiastically helping the Koreans by pouring the knowledge of Christ into their brain, and at the same time teach them the meaning of freedom which God has given to every man on earth.

Japan compelled Korea to employ the Japanese and Korean traitors in the government who are working solely in Japanese interest.

Japan usurped the judicial power in order to better carry out the nefarious project.

If any patriotic Koreans realizing the dangerous position of their country organize societies to speak to the public or petition the government or Emperor, Japanese gendarmes arrest and imprison them, thereby gagging all opposition, while the same gendarmes are sent to protect the Chinese societies, which are a pro-Japanese organization, and recruited from the rank of Korean political offenders, traitors and robbers.

Japanese subjects are everywhere in Korea cheating or bullying the natives out of their houses and lands, murdering them and violating their wives and daughters. For this Koreans can obtain no redress.

What is Korea's need today? Does she not need the sympathy of the Christian nation? But that will be hard to get.

Alas! we, the Koreans, can do nothing but to die at once so that the Japanese will be satisfied. C. H. YONG.

Letters From The People

LET DEAD PAST BURY DEAD.

Editor Advertiser:—I had my attention called to the use of my name in connection with a purported incident in the life of the late Captain John Ross, which appeared in this morning's issue of the P. C. Advertiser, in a short biography of the departed veteran.

Joggling my memory during the day has failed to bring to mind any action of the kind, attempted or otherwise, to which I was a party. I happen to have had business dealings with the late Captain Ross over a long period of years and I am pleased to testify that the longer these relations continued the more pleasant they grew.

It was not pretence to these personal matters, however, that prompted me to take time enough to write these lines; I wish for my part to emphatically protest against the periodic opening of our closet and trotting out the skeleton of our jingo parade for annexation. I think it about time that all connected therewith, in any way, lay away the physical evidences of those days with which they have surrounded themselves, and then undertake a little mental house-cleaning which shall forever consign to oblivion any possible further reminiscence of the days of the Old P. C. Guard. Yours in the future, JOHN EMMELUTH.

MILLS TAKES HIS PEN IN HAND.

Editor Advertiser:—In an article, appearing in your paper of Saturday entitled "Mills Actually Loses a Collection," there are a number of misstatements, which, in justice to laymen as well as the writer, need correction. In paragraph two (2) it is stated that a citizen has no right to represent himself in court—at least this is a fair inference from the words used—this, in Hawaii, is the usual erige talk of those who don't know, and don't wish to know, their rights; as a matter of fact and of law a person has the full right not only to represent himself but, practically, "his sisters, cousins and aunts" (see Sec. 1794, Rev. Laws of Hawaii). That your reporter commented too freely on a case which is still sub judice, I think, an abuse of his new-gathering vocation, for the matter of "Mills vs. Marlowes" is now properly on the way to be heard in a law court, and before a judge, and where a fuller understanding of the law in the case is to be hoped for—the district court being merely a court of first instance. As to my right to have a claim sold to me, I wish to observe, that your statement is as involved as it is untrue. * * *

Lawyers, of the barred and the other kind, have to live, and in part their living is made by forcing collections, and if Mills is engaged in the gentle art and pursuit of dead, and the other kind of, beats, that is his own affair; my limitations are not of my own seeking, and whether creditors pursue debtors by means of the landing-net of a hired lawyer, by the ancient process of honeyed demand, or the more-or-less successful efforts of myself, is a matter of individual choice; results count. Yours, still in the ring, HARRY T. MILLS.

ELKS ARE ON A WILD RAMPAGE

Young Hotel Auto Stand to Be Removed to Give Them Extra Room.

Brother Sam Walker. One of the aggressive promoters of the Elks' Carnival plans.

Devastating is the rush of the herd of Elks who are preparing for the big carnival to be held on the nights of the 21st and 22nd of next month. Any little thing that has got in their way to hinder their plans for turning Bishop Park and Bishop street into a side show fringed circus has to go in the wake of the dear departed things and agitators of 1909.

The latest thing to get in the way of autoed ones is the Young Hotel Automobile Stand. Consequently the Young Hotel Automobile Stand is going the way of the rest. By an agreement reached yesterday between the Elks and the Young Hotel people, the stand will be removed. John Lucas will remove it and the herd will line up and gleefully watch it go. Lucas agreed yesterday to move it off its present site to a vacant lot which will be entirely charitable for old times' sake besides other things, and he will move it back when the last echo of the last howl from the Elks' Trail has gone floating down the corridors of history.

What will be erected on the spot sanctified by the presence of Mayor Quinn, goodness only knows; that is, if the Elks have taken goodness into their confidence. Among their other rumored plans, they contemplate the removal of the Young Hotel back fourteen feet, as it at present intersects with the line that has been drawn for the tent pegs. The specifications have been drawn up and the tenders will be called for today. All contractors requested to bid.

Some genius with the regulation capacity for detail has discovered the original hula dancers. In consequence this innovation will be instituted into the carnival and the chairman of the hula committee is hunting wildly for a man with an automobile to put on the committee as the hula experts are reported to reside at Alca, that home of art and poetry. The show is guaranteed to be clean, of the original Emersonian brand, to be presented as it was in the original, the sacred dance of the Hail wailers.

Meanwhile, during the time spent by the side show committees, in preparing plans for the removal of the hotel, the Mardi Gras committees are preparing plans to raise the roof. Everybody is wanted there to help.

QUEEN AND PARTY SEEN IN NEW YORK

New York Herald.—A woman and three men, all four of a race visibly alien to ours, sat and dined last Thursday night inconspicuously in the main dining room of the Hotel Knickerbocker. The woman was seventy years old, but seemed much younger. She had sat upon a throne, and it had been taken from her. The righteousness or unrighteousness of her cause had at that time shaken the senate of her own country and of the United States. Seventeen years ago she was one of the most conspicuous women in the world. The woman who sat dining in a New York hotel was Queen Liliuokalani, who was deposed from the throne of Hawaii in 1893, and it is perhaps typical of New York today that her presence in the dining room of the Knickerbocker excited only a moderate interest, and that interest languid.

In stature Queen Liliuokalani is of middle height. She speaks several languages and is highly educated. She is a woman of only moderate wealth as wealth is reckoned in these days, but her income is sufficient to enable her to travel widely, which she does incessantly, and to maintain three residences in Hawaii and a villa outside of Paris. Her strained relations with the people of Hawaii were adjusted some years since, and she now lives in Honolulu a great part of her time and mingles in society there. She has visited the United States four times.

When she visited the Hotel Knickerbocker last Thursday she arrived in a taxicab and went away in a taxicab. Three of her own men were with her, and it was said after they left that they had gone to a theater.

WILL PUT UP A NEW GARAGE

of their King street store, upon which they desire to build an addition. If this house is put through, the Wall, Nichols' stock will probably be moved here from Fort street and the first and second floors of the building used, as soon as the Yokohama Specie Bank moves into its new premises on Bethel street.

The school, Church of the Good Shepherd at Waimanalo, in which the Rev. George B. Williams preached the first English sermon on Maui, in January, 1890, is being pulled down to make way for a new building.

Many flower beauties of the Volcano Road appear in Hilo that the world is proud to call at his mountain home, just now. The other day the flower beauties went down to the thirty-seven degree mark.

A number of well-known names, including those of L. L. Metcalfe, W. A. Ash, G. E. Adams, Son W. Aluli and J. Alfred Magnus, appear in the Hawaii Herald of last week. They are under the delinquent tax list.

The Hawaii Herald suggests that a trip to Honolulu by members of the Hilo Dramatic Company, to present "The Private Secretary," as it was performed there would probably net several hundred dollars to Hilo's charity fund.

The Kahului Railroad Company will build the wharf decided upon by the company for Kahului, and work will begin immediately after receiving the necessary material. The piles and heavy lumber has already been ordered and will be here soon. The wharf when completed will cost not to exceed $32,000.

The princess for Maui, to ride in the Floral Parade, has not been definitely decided. Miss Cornwell consented to ride providing no suitable Hawaiian girl could be found. The offer was made to several well-known ladies of Maui, but all had to decline, and Miss Cornwell then consented to ride, but offered to drop out should a Hawaiian girl be found.

WHAT PRESS AGENTS SAY.

The Park Theater.

The pictures shown at this theater Saturday night were excellent and interesting. It will be remembered that the one of Doctor Cook, fake North Pole explorer, that was shown at the opera-house a few weeks ago was not well presented owing to failure of the lights. By special request Mr. Congdon will put it on at the Park tonight and it will no doubt be enjoyed. As an added attraction Wallace and Way will go on in an entirely new act. These are the people who made such a hit at the opera-house two weeks since. There will be some comique pictures shown tonight and one really good dramatic production. The Vienna orchestra, which does so much to enliven the Park, will continue.

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of the late John D. Padua wish to offer their heartfelt thanks to the many friends for sympathy and kind remembrances during their late bereavement.

JUDGE HANAIKE OF LIHUE DEAD

LIHUE, Kauai, January 29.—Judge J. B. Hanaike, second district magistrate of Lihue and deputy tax assessor for this district, died at ten o'clock Tuesday morning, after remaining unconscious since five o'clock Monday evening, since which time he had not spoken a word.

He was one of the most prominent of the Hawaiian residents of the district, where he has dwelt since 1879, and was universally respected and beloved, having a spirit of rare kindness and steadfast devotion to his duties. He was never very robust, and of late has suffered considerably from a complication of several ailments, which ended in the paralysis of one side of his body, the day before his death.

He was born in Hilo district, Island of Hawaii, at Kihuna, on May 21, 1846, so was sixty-three years and eight months of age at the time of his death. The funeral services were held at Lihue last Wednesday at 2 p. m., before a large and representative congregation of the people of Lihue, who came to pay their last respects to the memory of the deceased, who was honored and respected by all who knew him, for whom his departure leaves a void that will be hard to fill.

The funeral sermon, preached by Rev. William Kamali, was on the text "A mighty man in Israel has fallen."

BABY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AND KILLED

WAILUKU, Maui, January 29.—A two-year-old son of John Kalo, sugar boiler for the Kilauea Sugar Company at Hana, was instantly killed by a revolver shot through the head last Sunday morning.

The revolver was a Smith & Wesson, hammerless, and the manner in which the gun went off appears very curious. The gun was upon a shelf and it is believed the child pulled it down, discharging the contents into one eye, killing him instantly.

The child's mother was in an adjoining room and upon hearing the report of the gun ran in only to find her son dead.
