Robertson and Officeholders

Chairman Robertson Does Not Favor Officials In Executive

Governor Carter yesterday received from A. G. M. Robertson, chairman of the Republican Territorial Committee, a letter giving in detail his views with regard to the advisability of Government officials acting as members of the various committees of the Republican party. Robertson's letter reads as follows:

Honolulu, T. H., Dec. 26, 1904.

Sir:—Your letter of the 24th inst. stating your views concerning the much-discussed question of the advisability of Government officials acting as members of the various working committees of the Republican party came only to hand.

I beg leave to take this opportunity to make some comment on the subject.

First, let me say that I fully agree with you that the stability of the party requires an open and free expression of the party voters in directing the policies of the party and in the selection of its candidates; that honest elections are absolutely essential to a government by the people; and that those in control of the party machinery must not allow their authority to be used by any individual or clique, nor must they fail to have the party show appreciation of meritorious service.

It is to be regretted that in discussing the subject so many seem to view it as largely a personal matter and apparently think that it involves principally the keeping in or removing from the party councils particular Government officials. The good-standing and integrity of those who have recently brought this subject to the fore entitles it to careful and impartial consideration on broad and liberal lines, with only the best interests of the party in view. And as any rule that might be adopted would, no doubt, not operate retroactively but would leave the present committees intact ought to render the discussion wholly impersonal.

Probably there would never be objection to Government officials serving in the conventions and on the committees if it were distinctly recognized and understood by all that each such member was free to vote and act according to the dictates of his own will, but when, through the timidity (Continued on Page 4.)

'Frisco Asks Congress To Better Our Harbor

San Francisco business interests are working with Hawaii for Honolulu harbor improvements.

Resolutions have recently been passed by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce recommending to Congress that sufficient funds be appropriated for the required betterment of conditions in the main port of these islands.

The Honolulu Chamber of Commerce has received a communication from the San Francisco body to the effect that at a recent meeting the question of Honolulu harbor improvements was considered and discussed, with the result that resolutions were passed favoring the improvements and urging Congress to devote its favorable attention to the petition from Hawaii.

Secretary Spencer of the Chamber of Commerce in this city has replied to the notification, forwarding by the last mail the Chamber's word of appreciation of the support of the Coast business interests.

The support of such a body as the San Francisco Chamber should materially strengthen the cause of the Territory in obtaining at the hands of Congress the concessions desired in the way of Honolulu harbor improvements.

Its membership includes representatives of the large steamship companies, great wholesale houses and big shipping and commercial establishments.

San Francisco's interests are to a certain extent identical with those of the Hawaiian Islands, having to do with the shipping business between the two ports, a business which is becoming greater as time advances.

It is understood that the Merchants' Association of San Francisco also favors Hawaii's move for betterment of harbor conditions at this port and that the general business sentiment of the Pacific coast metropolis is for giving to Hawaii everything in the way of better harbor facilities which she may need.

Improved harbor conditions here will mean quicker dispatch in the handling of large cargoes, less time in the shifting of big vessels, greater convenience, extended accommodations and the entry into the harbor of the largest boats that sail the Pacific ocean.

Honolulu business men do not fail to appreciate the support of their San Francisco brethren in this matter and the talk this morning was indicative of a general belief in the favorable action of Congress.

With the recommendations of Governor Carter and the commercial bodies of Honolulu, the representations of the Delegate at Washington, the urging of Secretary Atkinson at the Capital and the support of the business interests of the Pacific coast, Hawaii is making her needs known to the national law makers in no weak voice.

Election Inspector Willis Finds He Must Defend Himself

Lihue, Kauai, Dec. 26.—The Garden Island publishes the following:

Honolulu, December 14, 1904.

H. H. Willis, Esq., Honolulu, Kauai.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 7th of December duly received together with copy of complaint, which I return. I regret to say we are not able to act for you in this matter as the Attorney General's office can only proceed in criminal matters and such civil matters as directly appertain to the Territory's interest, or where persons are acting under direct orders from this office; otherwise you see the Attorney General's time would be continually taken up in defending the civil suits of the various employees of the Territory.

Yours very truly,

LORRIN ANDREWS,

Attorney General.

Mr. Willis feels that the Government is in duty bound to act for him in this matter, as he was acting for the Government, under the laws and instructions governing elections at the time he did the act complained of by the plaintiff, S. Kanewalu. Had he refrained from performing his duty as the regulations of elections require, the machinery of government would have been interfered with, and now for him to have to dig down in his own pocket and defend himself in a lawsuit, brought against him because he performed his duty, seems a little hard. It is suggested that if Government employees in such positions as election inspectors are not to be protected by the Government itself in the performance of their duties, it will be only a short time until citizens will refuse to serve in such positions.

The pay is merely nominal, and one suit of the nature of the one Mr. Willis is subjected to, however unfounded, would cost the person concerned many times the salary of the position.

The case presented is a hard one, and while the Attorney General may be right, from a certain standpoint, it is felt by those most concerned that such a policy is short-sighted and against good public policy.

HILO WILL CERTAINLY HAVE NO FEDERAL JURIES

That Hilo will not enjoy the presence of the Federal Grand and trial juries at the coming term of Judge Dole's court in that city, is now settled. Some time ago when Judge Dole was going to draw the Hilo juries, District Attorney Breckons stated that there would probably be no necessity for such juries since there were no cases pending in which the defendants resided on Hawaii. While there were a number of defendants awaiting trial, these all hailed from Oahu. They would probably prefer to have their cases go over for the term and endure the resulting delay of a couple of months, to having a speedy trial in Hilo, as this would necessitate a great many additional expenses by bringing witnesses to Hilo, and for living expenses in that city. Breckons promised to question all the defendants and if their wish was to have the cases continued there would be no necessity of drawing the juries. Judge Dole agreed with Breckons and the matter was held over until Breckons could find out the required facts.

Breckons stated this morning that he had interviewed all those awaiting trial by the Federal Court. He had found that they all preferred to have their cases continued until the following term to having them tried in Hilo. This settled the fact that Hilo would have no Federal juries this term.

Improved harbor conditions here will mean quicker dispatch in the handling of large cargoes, less time in the shifting of big vessels, greater convenience, extended accommodations and the entry into the harbor of the largest boats that sail the Pacific ocean.

Honolulu business men do not fail to appreciate the support of their San Francisco brethren in this matter and the talk this morning was indicative of a general belief in the favorable action of Congress.

With the recommendations of Governor Carter and the commercial bodies of Honolulu, the representations of the Delegate at Washington, the urging of Secretary Atkinson at the Capital and the support of the business interests of the Pacific coast, Hawaii is making her needs known to the national law makers in no weak voice.

MAUI MERCHANTS MEET AT LAHAINA

Will Discuss Independent Steamship Line Plan

LOCAL ORIGINATORS SEND OUT PROSPECTUS

ORIENTAL MERCHANTS OF MAUI WILL DECIDE IF THEY WILL JOIN IN FREIGHT WAR.

The organization of Chinese and Japanese merchants of this city who are endeavoring to form an association by means of which they will reduce their expenses incurred on the shipping of freight between the islands of the group, expects soon to find out whether the merchants of Maui will take up the plan. The purpose of the organization is, as was exclusively reported in the Bulletin a short time ago, to have the Oriental merchants of the various islands agree to ship all their freight on certain boats which will be chartered or bought for this purpose, the idea being that in this manner their freight will be carried at much cheaper rates than are charged by the steamship companies now in existence.

The original organization, which includes most of the prominent Oriental firms of Honolulu, decided to try to win the merchants of Maui for the scheme first. If they should agree to the plan, it would be a great step towards the success of the plan. They consequently sent a representative to Maui to exploit the field. This man returned from Maui a few days ago. He reports that he traveled over the part of Maui in the vicinity of Lahaina and Kaunapali and saw the merchants there personally. With many others who lived in other parts of the island, he had conversations on the matter over the telephone.

The Maui merchants took kindly to the proposed scheme but would not commit themselves to it singly. They decided it best to hold a great meeting at which they could discuss the matter together. It was consequently decided to hold such a meeting at Lahaina. It will take place tonight, A. P. 8:30, at the residence of Mr. Breckons. Merchants from all parts of Maui, with the exception of Hana district, which is too far distant, will come together at the meeting place. In the mean time the originators of the plan in Honolulu have been busy during the past week sending literature giving all the details of the scheme, broadcast to all the Maui merchants who are wanted to join the combine.

STOCK MARKET DULL

The stock market is dull today and is likely to remain so for the remainder of the week. Men in touch with the market, however, express the opinion that after the first of the year, after the holiday season has worn away, things will be lively again and some big deals will be recorded.

Today the only sale reported between boards was that of 50 shares of O. R. & L. Co. at $69 1/2.

MORGAN'S MISSION

"There is no doubt that Jas. F. Morgan's trip to the Coast is in connection with M. B. yde plantation bonds," said a leading business man yesterday afternoon. "At least that is one of the matters he will take up while away. If $500,000 worth of the bonds are taken on the Coast $100,000 will be readily taken up here. The bond is a good security and there is a steady demand for such. The minute the bonds are floated McBryde stock will go to par."

Jury Finds Death Came Naturally

A coroner's jury inquired today into the cause of death of Sara Davila, a Porto Rican. This man expired and died at a house in the McCully tract and under circumstances as to cause his neighbors to suspect foul play.

R. A. Duncan, who had examined the contents of the stomach, reported that there was no indication of poison. Dr. Pratt gave the cause of death as valvular disease of the heart. The jury, which returned a verdict of death from natural causes, consisted of the following: John C. Cloney, J. H. Black, Joe Paiko, Sr., J. K. Kamealoha, Joe Kanoha and Leialoha Opeka.

ASYLUM CALLERS.

Among the persons who called on Governor Carter today were several who figure very prominently in the famous Asylum contract matter. Architect Beardslee who made the disputed specifications for the contract called on Superintendent of Public Works C. S. Holloway and asked him to call with him on Governor Carter. Holloway and Beardslee accordingly called and also Dr. Sloggett, the Superintendent of the Asylum.

GRAND JURY FINISHING.

The Grand Jury met this morning but adjourned until tomorrow at 10 a. m., after a short session. The jury is getting ready to report, probably at the end of this week, when a large bunch of indictments, though probably no very sensational ones, will be filed. Part of the final report has already been prepared.

Government band played the Kinau off at noon today, using the new instruments. It was more noticeable over the water that the new instruments are much softer and sweeter than the old ones.

DEFAULT IS ASKED IN DREDGING CASE

The mandamus proceedings instituted by the Hawaiian Dredging Company against Superintendent of Public Works Holloway occupied the greater part of the session of Judge Robinson's court this forenoon. Attorney Henry E. Cooper appeared for the petitioner while John W. Cathcart represented Holloway. After the petition for the writ of mandamus a demurrer to it was filed by Holloway. This was followed by the issuance of an alternative writ of mandamus directed against Superintendent of Public Works C. S. Holloway, and applied for by the Dredging Company. In this the petitioner shows that it made a bid for the dredging of section 3 of Honolulu harbor, for which bids were called by Henry E. Cooper, duly accompanied by a certified check as demanded, and being the lowest bidder the petitioner got the contract for the work from Holloway. A contract was drawn up on December 2, 1904, at which it was agreed that the work should be done at a rate of 32 cents per cubic yard.

DEFENDANT AFTER KOOLAU OFFICIALS

When the aftermath of the Watson divorce case, in the shape of an order for Watson to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt in that he has not paid the alimony ordered by the court to his ex-wife, was heard before Judge Robinson this morning some interesting facts were alleged by the defendant, implicating a couple of prominent officials in Koolau. Senator Achi represented the defendant while Deputy Attorney General Peters appeared for Mrs. Watson.

Peters showing that Watson had not paid his wife the alimony ordered by the court and necessary for her maintenance (Continued on Page 4.)

The Board of Health has asked Attorney General Andrews for an opinion on a question which has arisen from the granting of the contract to supply lumber to the Settlement to Peter High of the Enterprise Mill Co.
High was given the contract as he was the lowest bidder, but later on the Board found out that High employs Orientals at his mill. As there is a statute providing that no lumber can be used at the Settlement which has been handled by non-citizen labor the Board wants to know if it must notify High that the lumber he is to deliver under the contract can not be handled by his Oriental employees.

SIDE BET ON THE FIGHT

Jack McFadden and George Modlin today placed $200 in the hands of Woods & Sheldon, the sporting goods house. Same to be a side bet on the outcome of Monday night's contest at the Orpheum. The winner will take the coin.

A large crowd of interested spectators watched McFadden work out in the gymnasium of the Honolulu Athletic Club yesterday and they all left the club with a better idea of the little champion's ability as a scrapper. He made his trainer, O'Mara, quit in three fast rounds. McFadden has a larger variety of punches than any man that has ever appeared in a local ring.

Modlin went through his stunts at Long Branch. After six fast rounds of sparring he took a dip in the ocean. He says he will have but little trouble in making the weight.

Huihui and Ryan are both working hard for their contest and it is hard to tell in which fight the most interest is centered. Huihui has a hard contract on his hands and the chances are that Ryan will enter the ring this

ARE OBSOLETE LAWS REPEALED?

Code Commission Has
Knotty Problem
To Solve

JUDGE WEAVER'S IDEA
IN ADVERSE CLAIMS

EJECTMENT CASES TODAY PRE-SENT SOME QUEER PROPOS-ITIONS—TWO MEN PAY
DUPLICATE TAXES.

Compilers of the statute law, the code commission, do not find their tedious work entirely free from snags. They are up against one that may occasion them considerable bother, it is said. At the extra session of the Legislature of 1963, the Governor was authorized to appoint and he did appoint three men, Chief Justice Frear, A. F. Judd and A. A. Wilder, to compile the Hawaiian statutes. The first volume of this work will probably be ready for submission to the Legislature in February next.

In compiling the laws all laws supposed to have been repealed are to be left out.

Act 18, 1961, repeals "certain obsolete laws." It is entitled "an act to repeal certain obsolete laws." Such laws as were made to foster steam railroading, inter-island steam navigation, electric communication, etc., are included in the list of obsolete laws given in this act. But Section 15 of the Organic Act provides that "each law shall embrace but one subject which shall be expressed in the title."

Now the question is: "Is the title of the act supposed to repeal obsolete laws such as can be considered as embracing but one subject and expressing that one subject in the title?"

Is the term "obsolete laws" one subject? There are those who say not, and they also say that therefore, under section 15 of the Organic Act, the obsolete laws relating to the encouragement of steam railroading, etc., laws which are no longer necessary, must be left on the statute books; that Act 18, by its title, is ineffective, not in force, and the large number of obsolete laws still stand and will continue to stand unless the Legislature at the next session takes the matter up and remedies the error of the extra session of 1963 in the matter of the title of Act 18.

As a matter of fact most of these laws are useless by reason of the lapse of time, limited in the statutes themselves. An act relating to the transmission of intelligence by electricity which became law in 1874, if it be law today, regulates the use of public highways for telegraph wires, etc. Therefore, if it be law today, this statute enables the Superintendent of Public Works to condemn lands for needful uses in operating telegraph lines.

Judge Weaver of the Land Registration Court has suggestions to make in the matter of the reform of the law in reference to the payment of taxes in cases of ejectment. He has consulted with Tax Assessor Holt on the question and has learned much that goes to show the need of reform.

Weaver's suggestion is that in suits for ejectment, where adverse possession is set up as a defense, that the defendant in order to support his case be required to prove that he has paid his taxes on the property from which he is sought to be ejected for a period of ten years or more.

This is not now required and the result is, in matters of disputed titles to unoccupied property, that often neither party pays the taxes, or that a plaintiff seeking to recover land himself pays taxes on it without knowing that defendant claims adversely. As it is now a plaintiff may recover land, although he has not paid taxes for the ten-year period. If the defendant were required to pay taxes in order to prove his adverse possession the Tax Assessor would be thus informed that there were two claimants to the land and, incidentally, the owner of the land would become aware of the fact that there was another claimant, provided, of course, that the owner was paying taxes on his land.

Judge Weaver suggests that the form of the California statute be adopted. This statute provides that "In no case shall adverse possession be considered established * * * unless it shall be shown that the land has been occupied and claimed for" (the stated period) "continuously and that the party, etc., has paid all the taxes which have been levied and assessed upon said land."

"This amendment to the law," says Judge Weaver, "if adopted, would not be retroactive and would stimulate payment of taxes by parties now waiting for their titles to ripen under the rule of adverse possession."

Building Submarine To Cross The Ocean

Newport News (Va.), December 4.—The keel has been laid at the shipyard here for a new and larger Lake submarine boat, in which the inventor, Simon Lake, expects to make a trip across the Atlantic, under her own power, in an effort to demonstrate her seaworthiness. The new vessel will be eighty-three feet long, and proportionately large in every way. She will carry four torpedo tubes, ten torpedoes, and, without assistance, will have a cruising radius of 1,000 miles.

"This will be the first submarine boat of any class to attempt a trip across the ocean," said Lake. "There is no reason, however, why she should not cross the ocean in safety. Ordinary torpedo boats have made the voyage without inconvenience, and the craft we are now having built will be more seaworthy than any torpedo boat ever built."

ROBERTSON AND REVISION.

National Committee Chairman Robertson's letter on the question of office-holders is a clear statement of the situation, which cannot fail to inspire respect for the method of handling the subject whether one agrees with the conclusion or not.

To state that the office-holders have not attempted to dominate party councils or change the rules is attempting to discredit individual workers would be to commit an error peculiar to small men. Chairman Robertson is not of this character. He goes to the subject in common sense, broad gauge, manifesting, eliminates none of the facts of political history and makes no false charges.

In his conclusion Mr. Robertson has struck upon a solution that can be put down as a happy compromise between the forces seeking to put all office-holders out and those anxious to force all office-holders in. He puts the general question up to the people who have a clear field in the primaries for determining who shall represent them in the party conventions. The office-holder is barred only from the executive bodies of the organization that pass on recommendations for office.

There is nothing in Chairman Robertson's outline of policy which those opposed to office-holders' domination need refuse to accept. If it does not satisfy the office-holders, their position before the people must become one of attempting arbitrary domination which should be guarded against whatever its source, if the Republican party is to be kept free from factional dissension.

RESPECTABILITY NOT HONESTY.

"Yellow journals" have scored one or two special points in recent months on the "holier than thou" papers that are worth more than passing notice. "Staid and respectable" sheets that in their own estimation have upheld the honor of the fraternity so long and come to seed doing it, are coming to the front in a light that shows them worthy to be classed with the extraordinary respectability of captains of industry and frenzied financiers—horribly respectable but lacking in the common principles of honesty.

The New York Evening Post, so respectable that it has difficulty in seeing clear of its chin, led off. While the Presidential campaign was at one of its warmest periods, if the last campaign can be said to have been warm at any period, the Post published a letter purporting to be a letter President Roosevelt might write on the labor question. It was immediately accepted as a letter President Roosevelt did write and a personal statement by the President was necessary to block the damaging influence of the fiction set on foot by the Post. The newspaper resorted to its reputation for "respectability" as proof that the fiction was not sent out with the idea of its being taken as truth. The people draw their own conclusions from experience that there is nothing more detestable than the methods that can be, and often are, resorted to by such exponents of virtue when trying to avert the catastrophe of the people breaking away from hidebound conservative teachings.

A later and equally exciting incident has arisen in connection with the also respectable and Mugwump Boston Herald. This paper published a yellow story about the alleged treatment, by the Roosevelt children, of a Thanksgiving turkey sent to the White House. The pith of the story was that the children practically plucked the turkey alive and killed it after putting it through the most exquisite torture. President Roosevelt ordered that the Washington representatives of the Herald should be refused the courtesies of the department as a punishment for the publication of the yarn.

This order inconveniences the Herald a little in getting its news and accomplishes nothing more than giving general publicity to the President's disfavor. There are those who claim that the President has an old grudge to pay against the Herald on account of the unpleasant things it has said since he deserted the tariff ideas of the Mugwumps and went before the people on a high tariff platform.

The one fact of these incidents, immediately apparent, is that the leading preachers of newspaper respectability in New York and Boston have shown their capacity and unquestioned readiness to drop to a level lower than has ever been reached by the "yellow journal," as exemplified by the two great exponents, the New York World and the Herald papers. It all goes back to the very frequently demonstrated truism that the howl against the "yellow journal" is primarily an attack from those who don't get the news and try to cover lack of common honesty with a veneer of respectability.

DEFAULT IS ASKED.

or a total cost of $58,585, the work to be finished before March 31, 1905.

The petitioners got expensive machinery ready, but on December 11 they received a letter from Holloway ordering that the work should be kept within $10,000 until further notice. This restriction made it impossible for petitioners to go ahead with the work.

On October, 1904, petitioners again received a letter from respondent requesting that the work should proceed in the way in which it should proceed. Acting under these instructions the petitioners went ahead and completed the portion designated on about November 26. Immediately after that the petitioners informed the respondent of this by letter and said further that it was prepared to continue the dredging in accordance with the original contract, and would do so on November 28. Petitioner accordingly did so and performed part of the remaining dredging, removing about 2500 cubic yards, whereupon it became entitled to $400, less 20 per cent to be retained until the whole work had been completed.

The petitioner then requested respondent that he make a survey of the work performed in order that payment might be received. On the day when the contract was signed the respondent had at his disposal sufficient appropriations to pay for all the dredging. He was, according to the contract, bound to furnish a survey and give 80 per cent payment for the work done. On December 2, 1904, the petitioner received a letter from Holloway saying that he had not authorized the work and did not understand the request for a survey and estimate. The respondent refused to grant this request.

Judge Robinson accordingly signed a writ commanding respondent to make such a survey and estimate as asked by petitioner or to show cause why he should not do so.

The demurrer to the petition filed by Holloway alleged that the court had no jurisdiction in the case, or power to issue a peremptory writ of mandamus therein; that it does not appear from the petition that the petitioner has no other remedy at law; that he has such a remedy; and that the petition does not state sufficient facts.

This forenoon Cooper held that after the alternative writ of mandamus had issued and had been served on Holloway, an answer to it should have been made by him. The only paper filed by the respondent was a demurrer to the petition which was not sufficient to constitute a proper answer. There had been absolutely no response made to the court's alternative writ of mandamus, and he made a motion to set aside the writ and enter a default and that the petitioner was entitled to a default and that such be entered. He also moved that the demurrer be stricken out.

Cathcart strenuously objected to these motions and asked the court's permission to amend his demurrer so as to read as an answer to the writ by changing the words "petition" into "alternative writ."

Judge Robinson denied both of Cooper's motions and exceptions were made and noted. Cathcart's request was granted and the demurrer changed. The rest of the session was occupied by argument.

DEFENDANT AFTER KOOLAUF OF.

tenance, was met by an affidavit by Watson in which he stated that he was a poor man, who had neither personal estate or real property, and that he could therefore not pay the required sums.

Peters argued that the affidavit was inadequate. What Watson called "poor" might be termed affluence by others. Furthermore, Watson ought to have money since he had been working for the Koolauoko Road Board during the past as well as the present month. This last statement brought forth a statement from Senator Achi in which it was set forth that while Watson worked on the roads the pay for his labor did not go to him but fell into the capacious pockets of the Government officials of the district, to wit: Tax Collector Henry Cobb, Adams and Deputy Sheriff Frank Pahlia, the former also holding the position of chairman of the Road Board. Peters questioned both Achi and Watson closely regarding these allegations and Watson corroborated the statements of his counsel with detailed facts.

It seems from Watson's story that the workers on the Koolau roads are paid in cash and not in Treasury warrants. The cash which Watson had worked so hard for never reached his pockets, however, since his taxes and other such debts were collected out of the money due him, leaving a balance of nothing for Watson himself.

Peters contended that Watson had been in the employ of the road board long enough to know his rights, and that he, if the facts were really as alleged, must be either a fool or a knave. He wanted the case to go right on, but Judge Robinson continued the matter until Friday in order that Pahlia and Adams could be summoned to appear before the court and explain matters.

CHAIRMAN ROBERTSON DOES NOT FAVOR OFFICIALS IN EXECUTIVE.

of some and the dominance of others all are brought into a solid family compact it is apt to be discouraging to those non-office holders who have the habit of doing their own thinking and who expect their colleagues in convention and committee to manifest a like independence. It is not in accord with common human nature that a superior official who is working for the nomination of a favorite to view with equanimity his subordinates trying to defeat his candidate through the election of an opponent. The subordinate is likely to be muzzled and deprived of his free agency through fear that a show of independence on his part will soon be followed by condemnation and retribution.

The present discussion seems to be the outgrowth of complaints which were made in connection with the party conventions held during the year just closing. At the convention held last April for the election of delegates to the National Convention at Chicago one of the "slates" in the field was designated and known as the "administration ticket" and office-holders both in and out of the convention worked strenuously for the election of those whose names appeared on that ticket and against the other candidates. It was generally understood at the time that that slate was the result of a caucus held in the Executive building and that all office-holders in the convention were expected to support it. One office-holder who did not support it was severely censured for his independence. This was the subject of much complaint at the time and I frankly admit that I participated in it myself. As a candidate before that convention whose name did not appear on the "administration" ticket, I learned what it means to "go up against" the influence of office and the vote of office-holders.

When Mr. E. R. Adams was defeated in the Fifth District caucus for a Senatorial nomination his friends were loud and open in their denunciation of office-holding influence to which they attributed their defeat, and Mr. Cecil Brown assigned as the reason for his recent bolt that he was beaten in convention by the pernicious activity of office-holders. I do not know of my own knowledge how much, if any, foundation in fact there was for those complaints though they appear to have been made in full belief of their truth. Our political opponents endeavored to make capital out of them during the last campaign.

But, notwithstanding these several complaints, and although there is nothing in any proposed rule that has come to my attention to prevent Government officials from doing all the political work they desire on the stump, on auxiliary committees or otherwise than in the regular standing party machinery, I do not favor the plan proposed by the subcommittee on the revision of the rules to bar all salaried officials from membership in our conventions and all standing committees.

The voters, the conservative rank and file, are able to control the membership of the conventions and district committees through the primaries. I have faith in their judgment. If the majority of the voters in any particular precinct are opposed to the election of office-holders they should see to it that none are elected. On the other hand, if the people of another precinct desire to be represented by a Government official, should they not be free to vote for and elect him? If the mass of the people become so indifferent to the public welfare that they will take no part in the primary elections the community will be in a bad way politically, but the mere enactment of a party rule will not create or maintain a healthy political condition. I am opposed to hard and fast

CATARRH THE MOST DANGEROUS OF ALL CHRONIC DISEASES.

"Pe-ru-na is a Blessing to Those Troubled With Catarrh," Says United States Senator Corbin.

Ex-U.S. Senator
D.Y. Corbin.

Could Not Promptly Cured Are Sure to Cause Catarrh.

Catarrh Improperly Treated is Sure to Make Life Short and Miserable.

Many Wonderful Cures Are Made by Pe-ru-na.

CATARRH spares no organ or function of the body. It is capable of destroying sight, taste, smell, hearing, digestion, secretion, assimilation and excretion. It pervades every part of the human body. It is the cause of all chronic diseases, and consumption in the first stages with untiring certainty.

Hon. D. Y. Corbin, ex-United States Senator and cousin of Adjutant General Corbin of the United States Army. Judge Corbin is one of the best known lawyers in Chicago and stands high professionally and socially. The above endorsement coming from such a man

For special directions everyone should read "The Ills of Life," a copy of which surrounds each bottle. Pe-ru-na is for sale by all chemists and druggists at one dollar per bottle or six bottles for five dollars. cannot help but add weight and importance to the thousands of testimonials from the humblest walks of life.

Catarrh is the cause of at least one-half of the ills to which the human family is subject. Is there no way to escape from it? There is.

Pe-ru-na never fails to cure a cold. Pe-ru-na never fails to cure catarrh in the first stage. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh in the second stage, nine cases out of ten. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh in its last and worst stages in the majority of cases, and never fails to benefit every case, however bad.

"My Life Hung by a Mere Thread. Pe-ru-na Cured Me."

Mrs. Sarah Smart, 276 Hayward St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I can't tell in words how low I was. My life hung by a mere thread. I was waiting for months to die."

"My trouble was consumption or bronchitis. I suffered so much when I was low, but coughing and breathing kept saying what little strength I had. I could not eat, sleep or even lean back on a chair. I was a mere skeleton. I said to my husband, 'I can't last much longer.' My neighbors say they do not know how I ever recovered. It was almost a miracle."

"I took your medicine but three months, when I could do my housework and washing, and have been doing it ever since. Now I am able to do anything. You would never think I had been troubled with such a serious illness. I shall always keep your medicine in my house."—Mrs. Sarah Smart.

Despaired of Recovery.

Mrs. R. L. Aulick, Vice President American Association, 664 11th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I know whereof I speak when I say that Pe-ru-na is a wonderful remedy for colds and catarrhal troubles. Last fall I was very much debilitated from the effect of a cold contracted early in the summer and which I neglected. I knew that my system was in need of medicine and rest, but to find the right thing was the problem. Happily I came across a trial first and have no reason to complain of the results. Within a month I had entirely recovered my strength and good health and really felt better and stronger than before."—Mrs. R. L. Aulick.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

'TRISCO DIFFERENTIAL

An error in the Bulletin of Tuesday credited Mr. Hackfeld, in discussing the contract of the local planters with the Sugar Trust, with saying that the contract was unlikely that this three-eighths differential between San Francisco and New York would be done away with."

Mr. Hackfeld states that he did not make this remark and would not think of making such a remark. His statement was misunderstood by the reporter.

From an entirely independent source it was learned this morning that one of the concessions made by the Trust in drawing the New York contract is to allow a larger proportion of the Hawaiian crop to go to San Francisco. As this means a saving of nearly five dollars a ton on something like 50,000 tons it will be a marked advantage.

It is anticipated that the contract to be signed for handling the sugars landed at San Francisco will be very favorable to the planters.

SHORT STORY FOR EVENING HOURS

SOPHIE DANE, GOVERNESS

At the age of eighteen I had been persuaded by my family to engage myself to Magnus Bradshaw. He was a nephew to my Aunt Peabody's husband, who intended making him his heir; and as in addition to this he already possessed a handsome property, he was considered a desirable parti.

He was good looking and gentlemanly, but sickly, dull and, to my idea, wholly uninteresting. Still, I had not at this early age strength of mind sufficient to resist the united persuasions of my family; and the marriage was arranged to take place in about two years, during which time Magnus would be completing his education on the Continent, where his mother accompanied him.

Unfortunately for my own happiness, I, in this time became acquainted with Philip Waring, whom I soon learned to look up to and admire as the perfection of all manly excellence.

And now the two years of Magnus' absence were completed, and he wrote that he was about returning to England to claim his bride. But, he added, his physician having recommended his spending the winter in Italy, he proposed to take me thither immediately after the marriage. He hoped there would be no unnecessary delay in the preparation, and would prefer having the wedding as private as possible.

The last clause was a great disappointment to my mother's sister, Aunt Forrester, who had arranged to have the wedding from her own handsome residence in London.

However, I should at least have a stylish trousseau; and so she took the trouble of coming all the way to our little country town and taking me home with her, in order to make the necessary preparations.

As, on our arrival at my aunt's residence, we entered the hall, her two little daughters came joyfully rushing to meet us. "Here, Christine," she said, turning to me—"here are my darlings. Have they not grown? And this is their governess, Miss Dane."

I turned and saw the girl standing

She was so exceedingly pretty, with her delicate, regular features, golden hair and exquisite complexion, that I was quite taken by surprise. I could see through her quiet manner that she was aware of this effect upon me, and that she enjoyed it.

"What a remarkably pretty governess you have, Aunt Lottie," I observed, when, an hour after, I stood at her dressing room window looking into the garden, where the children were at play, while Miss Dane, with a bit of needlework in her hands, walked slowly up and down; "and how graceful and ladylike she is."

"Yes," my aunt replied, with a smile; "and do you know, Christine, we think her wonderfully like yourself? Not only has she the same colored hair and eyes, but her features and something in her ways and expression reminds us of you. You might easily pass for sisters—she a little taller and older, perhaps."

Occupied in my bridal preparations, I at first saw but little of Sophie Dane. But one day, when a dress had come from the modiste which did not exactly please us, the governess happened to be present, and on being half-carelessly appealed to, she at once pointed out the defect and how to remedy it.

What sympathy and liking I had for Miss Dane—and she was not one who appeared to care much for either—soon received a severe shock, the occasion of which was as follows:—

One evening a servant, in handing tea, awkwardly upset a cup of tea over my dress, and I went upstairs to change it.

Suddenly opening the door of my room, I was surprised to see the governess standing before the dressing table, absorbed in reading a letter. She started, flushed and hastily thrust it in her pocket, then said, with what appeared only a natural embarrassment:—

"Please excuse me, Miss Christine; but in passing your room I looked so quiet that I thought I might venture to slip in and read a letter from my mother."

I should not for a moment have doubted her but that in my hasty glance at the letter I had recognized it as one which I had received that evening from Magnus Bradshaw, and had carelessly left upon the dressing table. I said nothing at the time, and next morning the letter was discovered behind the table, where it appeared

Your Barber or Your Druggist?

If your hair is too long, go to your barber. If your hair is too short, go to your druggist. He has the remedy—a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Is a Hair Food.

It feeds the hair. The hair grows long and heavy because it gives to the hair just what it needs. If your hair is turning gray, it shows that it is lack of hair nourishment. Give your hair this hair-food and it will take on new life. Soon all the deep, rich color of youth will return to it.

We are sure you will be greatly pleased with Ayer's Hair Vigor as a hair-dressing. It makes the hair soft and smooth, and prevents splitting at the ends.

accidentally to have slipped.

"She is a snake in the grass," I said to my aunt, to whom I had related the incident.

But she, though equally shocked with myself, found Sophie's taste and talent in dress too useful to be dispensed with, and the matter was passed over.

"The Pythia will be in today, Christine," said my Uncle Forrester, cheerfully, one day at dinner, "so we may expect to see Mr. Bradshaw tomorrow."

The words struck coldly upon my heart. So long as Magnus was at a distance, my fate had not appeared to me so obvious; but now to think that I was so soon to be in his presence, so soon the wife of the man whom I knew I did not and could not love—sent a chill to my heart. And Philip—why was it, I asked myself, that Philip's image would constantly intrude whenever I thought of Magnus Bradshaw as my future husband?

On the following day the Pythia arrived in port, but instead of Mr. Bradshaw making his appearance, a letter was received which caused quite a commotion.

He was in Paris, in too feeble a state of health to risk the fatigue of an ocean voyage and return; and he and his mother proposed that I should proceed to Paris, in care of some friend, and there let the marriage take place. They would make all preparations for my arrival, and we could then proceed to Italy for the winter.

Of course, in considering this proposal, the first thing to be done was to discuss the matter with my family.

Accordingly my aunt and myself, accompanied by the children, whom she was now unwilling to leave in charge of Miss Dane, proceeded to my home in the country.

I remained at home for a week or so and then we proceeded to Paris.

We had no sooner arrived at our hotel than Uncle Peabody proceeded to inquire for his sister, Mrs. Bradshaw, and her son.

The polite waiter answered volubly: "Monsieur Bradshaw and madame, his mother, had honored their house. But it was now a week or more since they had left—when monsieur had married."

"Married!" we all cried simultaneously.

"Certainly. Monsieur has married a young English lady—Mademoiselle Fenwick—and has gone to Nice."

"Fenwick!" I exclaimed in surprise, for it was my own name.

The waiter was quite sure the name was Fenwick, and when Uncle Peabody indignantly denied that Mr. Bradshaw had married at all, he called another waiter, who had accompanied Monsieur Bradshaw's servant to the church and there seen the ceremony performed.

There has been some extraordinary mistake here," Uncle Peabody declared, turning very red; and a sudden conviction at once flashed upon me.

"Was the lady like me?" I inquired, stepping forward.

"The lady was, indeed, very like mademoiselle—like a portrait," the waiter said.

"Then it was Sophie Dane!" I exclaimed to the horror of the whole party.

Aunt Forrester turned faint with the shock of the conviction, and as to Uncle Peabody, his rage was speechless.

In a violent state of excitement he left us at the hotel and set off without delay for Nice, where it appeared the Bradshaws had proposed spending some time before proceeding to Rome.

He wrote to us in a few days—a half dozen lines—saying that it was, indeed, Sophie Dane who had presided herself to Mrs. Bradshaw and her son as Christine Fenwick, and under that name had married Magnus.

Uncle Peabody returned to us highly incensed against his nephew. He had insisted, as had Mrs. Bradshaw, who was almost insane with rage and mortification, upon the marriage being instantly annulled as a fraudulent one. But Magnus had become infatuated with his bride, and not only refused to listen to the proposal, but actually married Sophie Dane over again under her own proper name.

We decided to hush up the matter,
