DID KEPOIKAI KEEP HEIRS FROM THEIR MONEY AND USE PART FOR HIMSELF?

Startling Charges Made to Governor by Maui Men.

After hearing the statement of a committee from Maui, Governor Frear has ordered an investigation of charges against Circuit Judge Kepoikai and sent Deputy Attorney General Larnach to Maui to make it.

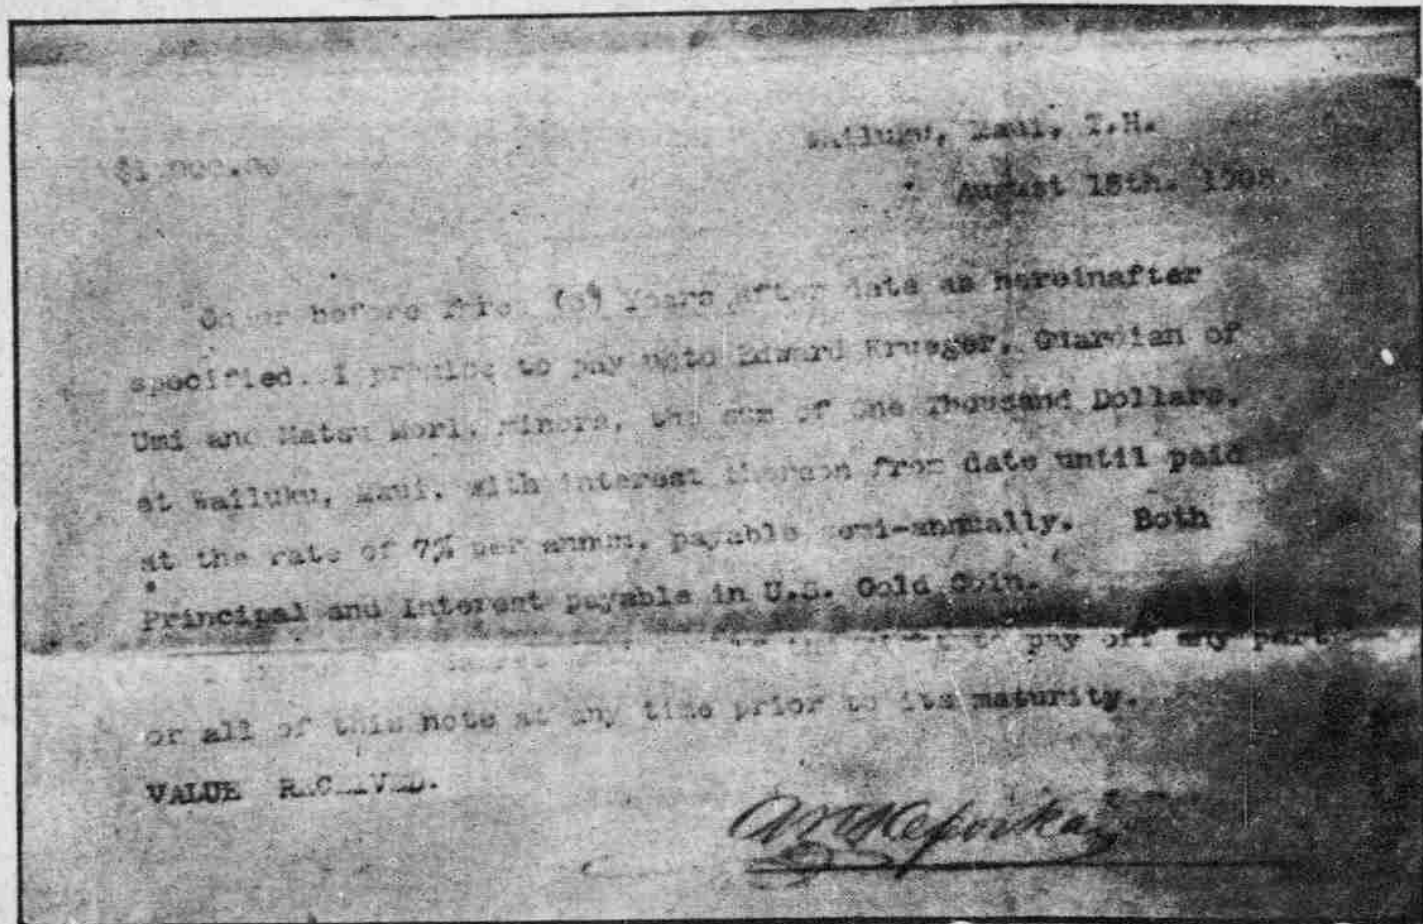

The charges are that Judge Kepoikai, in a matter involving about $2700 due the minor heirs of one T. Mori, denied a petition making a responsible man guardian of the heirs and administrator of the estate, appointing in his stead an illiterate laborer named Krueger; and that, by various transfers of the money it came under the direct control of Judge Kepoikai's court, whereupon, in September, 1905, the Judge personally borrowed $1000 of the $2700, giving his note and paying, up to the present time but $50 on account; and that, meanwhile, the minor heirs of the late T. Mori, to whom the money belongs, have been and are living upon the charity of relatives. These facts are set forth as sufficient ground for Kepoikai's impeachment.

Governor Frear did not wish to go into particulars yesterday when a reporter called upon him, saying that he should await the report of Mr. Larnach, who left on the steamer last night for Maui and would not return until next week.

THE CHARGES IN DETAIL.

Following is an abstract of the charges laid before the Governor:

In 1901, T. Mori, a Japanese merchant of Kohala, died, leaving a fire claim which was later paid by the government, to the amount of $2700. An administrator was appointed by Judge Kalua. Later Hon. Miki Saito, the Japanese Consul General, employed Atkinson, Judd and Mott-Smith to represent the children, minors, of T. Mori, and at a later period, E. A. Mott-Smith was given power of attorney to represent the duly authorized guardian of the children. The power of attorney was sworn to by the U. S. Consul at Yokohama and also by Consul General Saito, and a petition filed in the Circuit Court, over which Judge A. N. Kepoikai presided, asking that Attorney D. H. Case be appointed guardian of the children and administrator of the estate, provided that the Judge held that such a course was necessary. The petition was denied and E. Krueger was appointed guardian of the children and administrator of the estate. Krueger filed his final accounts with the court on January 17, 1905.

On July 7, 1905, the money belonging to the estate, amounting to about $2500, was paid into the court by check, made payable to E. H. Hart, clerk. On the same date, the account was changed in the First National Bank of Wailuku, from E. H. Hart, clerk, to the Second Circuit Court, as trustee and on the same date, again, the account was transferred in the National Bank, from the Second Circuit Court as trustee, to the general fund of the Second Circuit Court.

There the money lay until August 15th, when Judge Kepoikai borrowed $1000 of it, giving his note without endorsement or other security, in the following terms:

KEPOIKAI'S NOTE.

Wailuku, Maui, T. H., August 15, 1905.
On or before three years after date as hereinbefore specified, I promise to pay unto Edward Krueger, guardian of Umi and Matsui Mori, minors, the sum of One Thousand Dollars at Wailuku, Maui, with interest thereon from date until paid at the rate of 7% per annum, payable semi-annually. Both principal and interest payable in U. S. Gold coin.
I hereby reserve unto myself the right to pay off any part or all of this (Continued on Page Four.)

ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE HEARS KILTIES BAND

A delighted audience enjoyed the rare musical treat given by the Kilties band at the Opera House last night, every number on the program being enthusiastically applauded and as many encores insisted on as was possible. The house was crowded, from boxes to gallery, and every section appeared to be, judging from the applause, equally satisfied with the Canadian musicians and dancers.

The music rendered by the Kilties was thoroughly enjoyable, being familiar airs beautifully given, "Annie Laurie," "Sing Me to Sleep," "The Holy City," and other airs with which everyone is familiar, taking on a new beauty as played by the kilted band of artists, while the marches, quick-steps and medleys set the whole house to marking time and worked all who listened into a pitch of enthusiasm. The bandmen won applause when playing the patriotic airs of their own land, "Soldiers of the Queen," "Rule Britannia" and "Johnny Canuck," but this applause swelled into a tumult when the band swung into "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle," playing these in a way such as Honolulu has never heard before. One of the selections, announced by the leader as "I'm Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," made a big hit. It proved to be a medley with the most unexpected curves and the mistakes made at the right time, a musical comedy which brought down the house.

With the Kilties is a superb cornetist and a flute player who weaves a string of harmony through whatever his comrades are leading with, while the player of the big bass drum succeeds in getting more music out of that instrument than most persons deemed possible. Altogether, from the two seven-footers who lead in the parades and stand majestically at the door, down to the nimble-footed little lassies who tripped it through the intricacies of the Scotch Reel, the Kilties are a well-balanced lot of entertainers worthy of the world praise which they have received.

What attracted perhaps the most attention last night was the Scotch piper who strutted through a strathspey and a couple of reels, droning in the most approved manner and stirring the blood of those present who still regard Old Scotia as home, although it was apparent that the majority at the Opera House heard more to wonder at than admire.

There was some very pretty dancing, a reel being performed by four most clever dancers; a sword dance, by a bra' laddie in red kilts, and a sailor's hornpipe, by two girls. All the dancing was neat and done with a proper appreciation of what was correct in steps.

The Kilties will reach Australia in time to greet the American battleship fleet there.

CAPTAIN HARRIS REPLIES TO THE STAR'S CRITICISMS

Honolulu, July 24, 1908. Editor Advertiser: In view of the remarks that came out in the Star on July 22nd, concerning me and the yacht Hawaii, I feel, in justice to myself, I should make a few statements about this race.

I was well aware of the fact when I accepted the honor and responsibility of commanding the yacht Hawaii, that I was up against a hard proposition. I knew if I won the race there would be nothing in Honolulu too good for me; I knew, too, that if I lost, I would be 'down east.' In a word, sir, I felt that I stood to either gain or lose more than any other man interested in the great race. The Star stated that I refused to listen to anyone in regard (Continued on Page Two.)

AWARDED A BIG ARMY CONTRACT

SEATTLE (Wash.), July 11.—The fight waged for months between Frank Waterhouse & Co. and Jebson & Ostrander for the control of flour shipments to the Orient suddenly took a turn in favor of the former concern this morning, when the Waterhouse people were advised by telegraph from the office of the Secretary of War that its bid for carrying Quartermaster supplies to the Philippines from Seattle had been accepted. In some respects

Waterhouse was the high bidder. As a result of the award Waterhouse & Co. obtained a contract involving a quarter of a million dollars or more per year and which involves handling at least 50,000 tons of freight.

Among the shipping houses the belief prevails that Waterhouse was given the preference in the bidding because of the fact that some of the vessels to be used are American bottoms and can readily be pressed into the transport service in the event of war, whereas Jebson & Ostrander arranged to charter a fleet of British bottoms.

HAWAIIAN THUG TO BE EXECUTED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—Governor Gillett refused yesterday to commute to life imprisonment the death sentence of Louis Dabner, who, with his companion in crime, John Siemsen, will be executed at San Quentin on July 31st for the murder of M. Murakata, a Japanese banker of this city. The pair were guilty of several other murders and robberies, but the murder of Murakata was the crime for which they were convicted and sentenced.

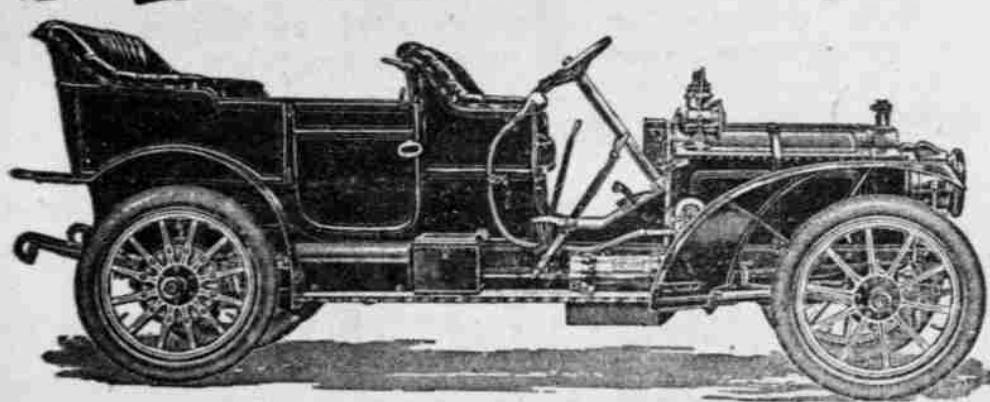

Siemsen is a native of these Islands, a part Hawaiian, but has not lived here for about ten years. He has relatives here.

The China, which is due here from Yokohama July 31, has accommodations for about a hundred passengers. She brings 350 tons of cargo for this port.

FIJI COLLECTION WON BY AMERICA

Museum of Natural History
Secures Two Thousand
South Sea Curios.

NEW YORK, July 11.—British opposition to the removal from the Fiji islands of the great Waters collection was checkmated effectually at the critical moment by the authorities of the American Museum of Natural History, through availing themselves of the difference in time between here and the Antipodes.

This Waters collection is the last great assemblage in existence of objects illustrating the Polynesian life. It was gathered for forty years and consists of 2000 rare specimens. Waters, who assembled the collection, had given a special study to the chronological development of the Fijian arts and crafts, and the collection was, therefore, especially adapted for educational purposes.

Negotiations were opened with him several months ago and the agent of the American museum paid him a deposit, and thereby gained an option, which was to have expired on June 30th. Meanwhile the fact that the sale has been so nearly made came to the notice of the British Governor of the island and to the Consul. A new law was drafted providing that no such collections should in future be sent out of the islands without the consent of the authorities, and Waters was notified that in the event of the American museum failing to respond with the purchase price on June 30th he was expected to turn over the collection to the British authorities at the same figure. The dispatch providing for the balance of the purchase money was sent on last Tuesday week, and, owing to the ten hours' advantage in time, arrived within the stipulated time.

The collection will be shipped from Suva, on Viti Levu Island, to Australia, and from there to London, where it will be transferred to a vessel bound for this country.

CAPT. HARRIS MAKES REPLY

to taking out ballast in San Pedro. I would like to state, that on the trip up, when we were making two hundred and twenty-five (225) miles a day, everybody on board was perfectly satisfied that she had none too much ballast, and it is a well-known fact, that at present, she has got much less ballast in her now than what she was designed for.

I would ask: If so much was known about her ballast, why was not the mistake rectified before I was given charge of her on such short notice—as she had been out on a number of occasions? I myself, took out in Honolulu, nearly a ton of ballast, and sent all the heavy sails ashore in San Pedro. I noted, very carefully, her behavior in the strong winds and heavy seas on the trip up, and, reasonably expecting strong nor'west winds and big seas on the run off the California coast, I consider, and still consider as a practical man under these circumstances, and being unable to replace ballast while at sea, if it were found to be necessary, that the best course was followed. Doubtless she would do better in a light wind if she had less ballast; this fact has been demonstrated. At the same time, as I have already pointed out, she carries none too much for strong winds and big seas. The question is, to decide the medium; this cannot be done in two or three short trips.

As for taking her out in San Pedro, it would not be a very courteous thing for the captain of a visiting yacht to do, when the yacht was crowded from morning till night with enthusiastic visitors. I feel sure that none of our visiting yachtsmen would be guilty of any such discourtesy to the people of Hawaii under the same circumstances.

I was criticized by the Star for not allowing the crew to sail the yacht for me. Now, sir, while always willing to take a practical suggestion, I also know the wisdom of acting on knowledge gained by years of experience such as I have had in this class of vessel. Therefore I preferred to use my own judgment in the highest interests of the race. If I had not had confidence in my own experience and ability, I would not have accepted the position. With regards to winds and currents, I must state definitely, that the question was not discussed between Captain Sinclair and myself.

I am willing to accept all blame for losing the race if it were my fault,

HILLO LOCOMOTIVE TAKES A BIG-TUMBLE

Hilo Tribune.—The rolling stock of the Hilo Railroad on Saturday made its second attempt to connect with the Hilo-Kohala line, but as the latter still exists only on paper the attempt was not altogether a success.

The exact circumstances surrounding the accident are as usual represented by rumor in many different ways. Mr. Leonard, however, when asked by a Tribune representative to state the exact cause, said that it was due to the breaking of the reversing lever so that the engineer lost control of the locomotive, and that the brakes also could not be worked.

Whatever may have been the trouble, No. 39 with its tender went off the end of the track at the Waihanu street station, and into the water below, or rather on the rocks, and is proving a by no means easy task to bring back to the straight and narrow path which she is supposed to follow. Yesterday employees of the road were busily engaged in recovering the tender, and raising the engine by means of jacks and blocks.

A good enterprise like a good man cannot be kept down, and probably the locomotives of the Hilo Railroad will continue to try and make connections with Kohala until Mr. Dillingham and his associates build the road which has been so long planned and which with the breakwater when completed will make Hilo the first city in the Territory.

LADY FORTUNE AND SECOND THOUGHTS AGAIN TONIGHT

Whatever the Art League gives it does well. Its affairs glide on and were it an institution of fifty years' standing with a handsome endowment fund for running expenses and magnificent quarters in which to receive and entertain members and guests and at times the public, its present activities could not be better.

Surely this is true of the Dramatic circle which produced for the first time in Honolulu "Second Thoughts" and "Lady Fortune," at the Opera House on Thursday.

Through several unfortunate circumstances, which could not be avoided, the date came near after the departure of the fleet. For that reason this evening's performance promises to be the better evening as regards audience, although in the initial performance the house was very well covered. The appreciation and applause from those present made up for any vacancies here and there.

"Second Thoughts" is on the first part of the evening. For this a very attractive stage setting to represent a conservatory in a London mansion during the progress of a ball is carried out in palms, flowers and lanterns.

Miss Bruce as Mrs. MacSharon is very good, her acting bringing out all the cleverness in the part. Applause greeted her comical speeches and at the end of this part of the program all were in a very happy mood.

Miss de Lartigue and Mr. Arnold did splendid work. Miss de Lartigue looking particularly pretty in her blue ball gown.

In yesterday's paper was given at length a description of "Lady Fortune." Mrs. Humphris makes a very dainty picture and does some splendid acting.

Mr. Harvey of New York not only acts his own part well, but gives confidence to the rest of the cast.

Mrs. Waterhouse does especially well in her pathetic lines. She has the requisites of a fine artist and Honolulu hopes to see her oftener.

Mr. Wilder is always good. In "Lady Fortune" he is so naturally an artist that he does not seem to be on a stage.

Dr. Humphris is both finished and enjoyable. His acting met with much applause.

Miss E. Wight in a small part to be sure is excellent. It is hoped she will be given a longer part next time.

Miss Bruce is the chairman and Mr. W. D. Adams deserves much praise for his able stage management of the two plays. Prof. Berger is supplying special music.

StraightLEAGUE TRUSTEES
UPHOLD UMPIREKeios Lose Sunday's Game, but Diamond Heads Agree to Play Again.

The trustees of the Honolulu Baseball League handed down their decision in regard to the disputed game between the Keios and Diamond Heads yesterday morning. Their official verdict was in accordance with the fundamental rule of all sport, that there is no appeal from the decision of the umpire. The protest of the Keios was not allowed. But the apparent severity of the official decision was tempered by a resolution, which was unanimously passed by the trustees, requesting the Diamond Head team to voluntarily play the visitors again. The manager of the latter team acquiesced, and now everything is lively and there is not the slightest reason for the visitors to imagine for a moment that the worst end is being handed to them.

The point in dispute arose over an attempted "squeeze" play by the Keios last Sunday when they had a man on third base. The signal was given to get home, and the man ran as soon as the ball left the pitcher's hand. The batter fanned at the ball and apparently missed. The catcher took hold and stayed put for the arrival of the runner. After he had touched his man out it was claimed that the batter had touched the ball and that the resultant foul ball entitled the man from third base to return there and wait for another chance. Bower, the umpire, gave it a strike and the man was called out. The Japanese players grew greatly peeved at the decision and lost heart for the balance of the game. At the time that the dispute arose the game stood 4 to 0 in favor of the Diamond Heads.

Fernandez and Petrie of the Diamond Heads brought up a fine point when they referred to the Isenberg Cup, which is to be presented to the team with the best aggregation of averages at the end of the series. They stated, very plausibly, that the averages of their men in a 10 to 0 game would show up well when the list was made out, and they claimed that the individual scores of their players in the game should stay on record and be counted in the averages. This was allowed by the visitors, who showed themselves ready to meet any compromise half way.

L. A. Thurston, secretary of the board of trustees, paid a tribute to Mr. Bower's work by stating that he had witnessed a great many big league games in the States and that his experience led him to think that Mr. Bower's work as umpire had been as good as he had ever seen.

The meeting was held in Mr. Thurston's office at 8:30 yesterday morning. There were present D. P. R. Isenberg (in the chair), H. M. Whitney, C. F. Chillingworth and L. A. Thurston of the board of trustees, Frank Thompson, president of the league; Captain Takahama and Manager Washizawa of the Keios, Eddie Fernandez and L. Petrie, representing the Diamond Heads; Umpire Bert Bower and Messrs. Falk, McCriston, Fred Makino and Abe, the latter being interpreter for the Keios. The protest of the Keio team read as follows:

"Hon. P. Isenberg, President Honolulu Baseball League.
"Dear Sir: I hereby protest the game played on July 19, 1908, between the Keio and Diamond Head teams, under Section 2, Rule 55, Spalding's Rules, 1908.

"In the third inning Ohashi was on third base and Sasaki at the bat. Sasaki made a foul tip, while Ohashi was running from third towards the home base. He was touched by the ball between third and home base and declared out by the umpire. According to Rule 55, Section 2, the base-runner shall return to his base without liability to be put out, if the umpire observe a foul strike.

"In justice to the Keio team I hereby ask that the game so played be declared off and be played at some future date. Yours faithfully,

"T. TAKAHAMA,
"Captain, Keio Team."

The reply of the Diamond Head representatives was that they objected to the allowance of the protest on the following grounds:

First—That the rule only permitted the base-runner to return to his base without liability to be put out "if the umpire declare a foul strike."

Second—The ruling of the umpire declaring the Keio runner, the subject of this protest, out, did not affect the result of this game, as the Diamond Heads were at that time four runs ahead of the Keios and won the game by such a large score that the ruling in this case could not have affected the result.

President Isenberg asked the Keio men if they wished to make a statement. Manager Washizawa then made a little talk in which he said that they recognized at the time that the decision of the umpire was final and that they must abide by it, and therefore finished the game. But that, while the strict interpretation of the rules made the umpire right, they were so certain that they had heard the ball strike the bat and that the umpire was mistaken, that they determined to appeal to the authorities controlling the league to see if they could not obtain a reversal.

When Umpire Bower was asked for a statement, he said that he heard no foul tip and therefore gave his decision for a strike. When the Keios protested, he inquired of several bystanders as to whether the ball had been a foul tip or a strike, but, as there was no unanimity of opinion, he stood by his first decision and called it a strike. He also quoted the rules for his justification referring especially to the one which states that there shall be no appeal from any decision of the umpire on the ground that he was not correct in his conclusion as to whether a ball was fair or foul, or any other play involving accuracy of judgment.

The opinions of the members of the board of trustees present and others not directly interested was then given, and the consensus was that, while some of them had heard the foul tip and believed that the umpire would have been right to so decide, there was no appeal from his decision in this case.

Mr. Thurston went into the matter at some length and explained that the board of trustees was a court of appeal and that they were bound to interpret the rules as impartially as the Supreme Court of the United States interprets the laws and Constitution. The question, he said, simmered down to whether the board of trustees had the power to overrule the decision of the umpire in this case, that the trustees had no such authority, and that, in his opinion, the protest must be disallowed. But he thought that the trustees should recommend to the Diamond Heads that they volunteer to play the game over again.

Mr. Chillingworth then offered two resolutions that were unanimously adopted. That the protest be disallowed and that the best interests of baseball and good sport would be subserved if the Diamond Head team would agree to play the game again.

Mr. Petrie then brought up the matter of the Isenberg Cup and the averages. This matter was satisfactorily settled by the Keios agreeing that the individual scores of last Sunday's game should count in the averages. This was brought before a meeting of the league later in the day and the average question was settled in that way.

After the meeting Mr. Thurston sent the following letter to the captain of the Keios:

"To T. Takahama, Captain of Keio Baseball Club.

"Dear Sir: On behalf of the Honolulu Baseball League trustees I hereby acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 19th inst., protesting the game played on said date between the Keio and Diamond Head teams.

"He said protest was duly considered by the trustees of the Honolulu Baseball League this day and the said protest disallowed, on the grounds that under the Spalding Rules for 1908, which govern the game in question, the umpire having ruled that the play in question was a strike and not a foul tip, and having refused upon protest of your team to reverse said ruling, under Section 61 of said rules there is no power in the baseball trustees to reverse said decision of the umpire.

"I have to inform you further that, irrespective of the judgment of the umpire and the above decision, the trustees believe that there is a great doubt as to whether or not said play was a foul or a strike, although convinced that the umpire's ruling was in accordance with his observation and belief. Under these circumstances the trustees have adopted a resolution recommending the Diamond Head Baseball Club to voluntarily offer to play the said game over again. This action of the trustees is not binding upon the Diamond Head club, and any action which they may take in connection therewith will be purely voluntary on their part.

"The trustees desire to express to you, upon this occasion, their extreme gratification that you have come to Hawaii to play this series of games, and their appreciation of your gentlemanly conduct and clean, conscientious baseball playing. We regret exceedingly that this unfortunate incident should have occurred, and, notwithstanding the fact that, under the rules, the trustees have felt obliged to disallow your protest in this matter, the trustees and the baseball fraternity of Hawaii generally are anxious that you should not only receive justice, but generous treatment at the hands of all interested in the game in Hawaii.

For your information I enclose herewith a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the trustees held to consider your protest above mentioned.

"I have the honor to remain, your obedient servant,

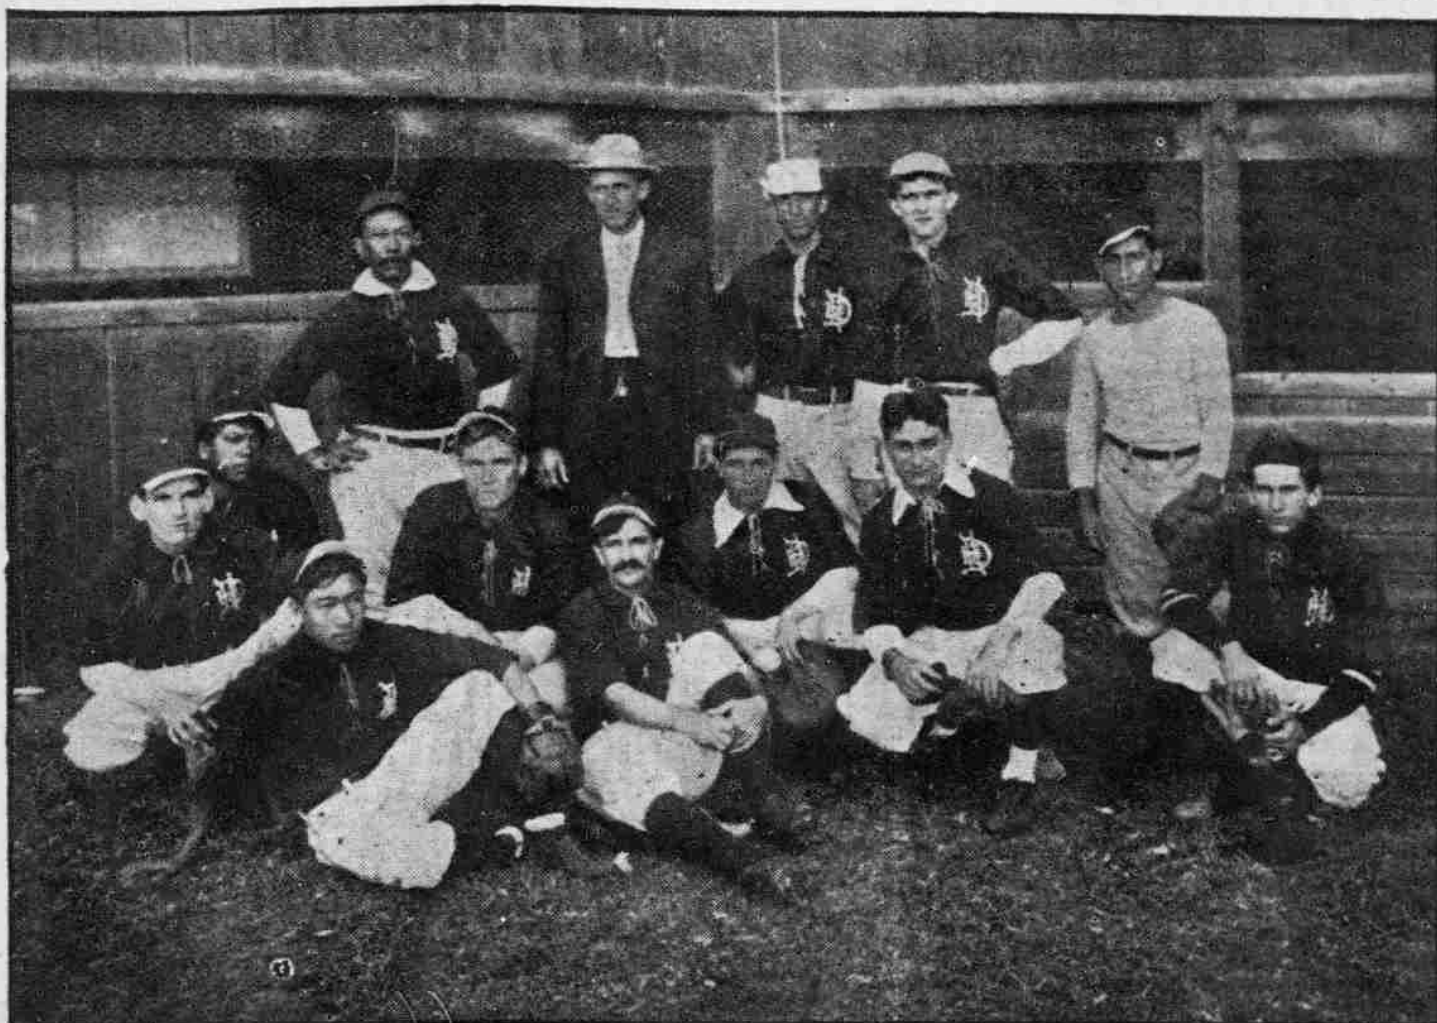

"L. A. THURSTON,
"Secretary, Trustees of the Honolulu Baseball League."

MIQUE FISHER
WRITES OF TRIP

The following letter was received yesterday by Mr. Chas. Chillingworth from Mique Fisher, the well-known San Francisco baseball manager and promoter of the All-American team that will soon make another trip to the Hawaiian Islands and the Orient.

"Friend Charlie: It's better late than never, so I'm doing what I should have done on my return home. No doubt you know we are going to make a good long trip this time, to the Orient. Mr. Baggerly will be one of the party again. I will have all the star ball-players of the country; every one with a national reputation.

"No doubt you saw Jess Woods when he passed through, and learned all the particulars from him.

"Everything is very dull here and will, I suppose, remain so until after election.

"All the boys that made the trip before are anxious to repeat it, but I expect to take only three or four of the same ones. 'Red Dog' will be our captain again. Let me hear from you soon. With best wishes, sincerely yours,

M. A. FISHER."

WHERE HAWAII LOST
DISTANCE IN RACE

A comparison of the course as charted by the four yachts in the trans-Pacific race, shows that notwithstanding the poor start the Hawaii got, by July 8 it was practically even with the other three. In fact all four yachts were very close together at noon July 8. The Hawaii continued to keep her relative position, though far to the north of the other yachts, until noon of July 10. Then she began to fall behind, and on July 16 was no farther west than the Lurline was on the 15th and was a great deal farther north.

DOUBLE HEADERS
TODAY AND SUNDAY

There will be two baseball games at the league park this afternoon. The Keios will try conclusions with the Punahou first, and then the Santa Claras will see what they can do with the Kamehamehas.

Dick Reuter will be in the box for the Kams, while Jones wears the mask for the same team. Hampton is slated to pitch for the Punahou team and Lyman will catch.

Owing to the unpleasantness of last Sunday it has been decided to have two heads working on the decision end of the game, and Steere and Albright will share the umpire's honors.

There will be two games also on Sunday. The disputed game will be played off between the Keio and Diamond Head teams, and the sailors from the Milwaukee will play an All-Hawaii team. The following have been picked to play on the latter team: Fernandez, J. Vannatta, 2b.; Bushnell, 3b.; Burns, ss.; Bruns, lf.; En Sue, cf.; Hart, rf.; Joy, c.; Hampton, p.

Manager Jessup of the Milwaukee team speaks well of his players and a very classy exhibition of the game may be expected when the sailors line up against the locals.

HARD HITTING AND MANY RUNS

The U. S. Marine Corps nine scored a one-sided victory over the team from the Arethusas yesterday, at Atkinson Park, by 25 to 12. The Marines made five runs in the first inning and eight in the second. Their opponents did some great hitting, but were unable to catch up on such a lead, even though they scored a valiant six in the last inning.

Each one of the eighteen players scored at least one run, and three of the Marines chalked up four. Trowbridge pitched for the winners and Krekowski twirled for the Arethusas.

KEWALOS TO PLAY.

The Kewalo and Kakaako baseball nines will play a game at Atkinson Park Sunday morning. There is quite a little rivalry between these two and there will be a crowd of adherents to witness the game, which will certainly be of the fast and snappy variety.

SIX ENTRIES
FOR HILO RACEGladys and Kamehameha to Start With Transpacific
Racers Tuesday.

As soon as it was decided, at the luau given to the yachtsmen on Thursday night, to have a race for the trans-Pacific racers from Honolulu to Hilo, the local yachtsmen entered into the matter with vim and most of the arrangements were completed yesterday. There will be six starters for certain with a possibility of seven or eight.

The race will start from the bell buoy at the harbor mouth at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning and will finish at the whistling buoy off Hilo. There are no time-allowances and no time limit. The first yacht across the finishing line wins the race whether it be within twenty-four or a hundred and twenty-four hours after the start.

The entries received so far are the Lurline, Hawaii, Gwendolyn II and Lady Maud which sailed in the trans-Pacific race and the Kamehameha and Gladys of the local yacht club. There is a possibility that the Helene will enter if the owners can get ready in time for the start. Clarence Macfarlane states that he cannot possibly have La Paloma in readiness by that time, so the speedy little schooner that raced so valiantly for the cup two years ago will not be on the line when the starting gun fires.

A stake boat will be moored inshore from the bell buoy and the yachts will cross between these two leaving the bell buoy to starboard. Thence the course leads between Molokai and Oahu and down the weather side of Molokai and Maui to Hilo. The finishing line is between the whistling buoy off Hilo and the Wainaku Mill. The entire distance is about 250 miles.

Should the regular trade winds be blowing, and there is nothing to lead the weather experts to think differently, the first part of the course, as far as Point Halawa, will be practically a thrash to windward all the way. After that the yachts will be able to slack sheets a trifle and run on a close reach to Hilo.

It is expected that the Hawaii will make a much better showing in her own waters with a heavy breeze and high sea than she did in the run before the wind from San Pedro. She will be in charge of H. E. Cooper, who will select his own crew and bear all the expenses of the trip. Most of the sailors aboard will be local amateur yachtsmen with, probably, two of the paid hands who sailed on her in the race. Al Lundquist, the mate who is now acting as caretaker of the yacht, will be one and the other man will be decided on today.

Those of Mr. Cooper's friends who have already accepted invitations to sail with him are Prince Kuhio, Sam Lyle and L. A. Thurston. These men are all very enthusiastic yachtsmen and may be depended on to haul on a sheet or bowse a ballard home with the best of them.

Advantage is being taken of the lessons learned in the recent race. The Hawaii has been put on the ways and is undergoing a careful tuning up. It is thought that she carried too much ballast when she left San Pedro as she is down below the specified waterline. The ballast will be shortened and distributed until the yacht lies in the water just as her designers specified and will then be given a good trying-out under the new conditions. Mr. Cooper will take her out this afternoon and expects to do so again on Sunday and Monday if it be possible.

In case the yachts arrive at night time, a code of signals has been arranged so that the judges at the other end may know which yacht is finishing. The Gwendolyn's signal is one blue light, the Lurline's two blue lights, the Lady Maud's one red flare and the Hawaii's red, white and blue lights. This was decided at a meeting of the navigators of the yachts held after the Commercial Club lunch yesterday. The signals for the Kamehameha and the Gladys have not yet been decided on as their captains were not present at the meeting.

There are many local experts who concede a good chance of victory to the swift sloop Kamehameha. They claim that a sloop has the advantage over a schooner or yawl in a beat to windward. Captain Scott will have with him as crew Messrs. O'Brien, Lewis, Baker, Ngely and August. They are very enthusiastic over the race and are determined to show the visitors that they can sail their little sloop past the big yachts in a beat against the wind. She will go on the ways this morning and everything possible in the short time between now and the race will be done to put her in the fittest condition for the race.

The Gladys is expected to make a good showing too and there are many friends of Tom King who would not be surprised to hear that he passed the Hilo whistling buoy in the lead.

The visiting yachts will stay long enough at Hilo for those on board to visit the volcano and then they will turn their bows homewards. The good little Gwendolyn will have the hardest trip of all as she will be bound for Puget Sound and must make a thousand miles more nothing than the others. She is a good one on the wind and the members of her crew do not look for a hard time as they expect to take it easy and reef down when the wind increases above the comfortable mark.

The steamer Mauna Kea will leave this port for Hilo the morning of the start of the race and will carry a letter from Mr. Wilder notifying the people of that town to appoint judges and have them on the lookout for the yachts when they arrive. With a good wind the distance of 250 miles should be covered in about thirty-five hours so the winner will be sighted from Hilo before sundown Wednesday evening. The finish, however, is almost certain to take place after dark, hence the precaution of having night signals arranged.

RIVERSIDES

VISIT MAUI

Willie Espinda, pitcher, and Joe Clement, catcher, of the Palama team of the Riverside League, left for Maui on the steamer Claudine last night. These two players will be missed by the team while they are away, as it is largely due to their clever work that the Palamas are now at the head of the Riverside League.

THE KEPOIKAI SCANDAL.

It is a matter of regret that Judge Kepoikai should find himself in trouble over a charge of fiduciary delinquency; but the charge has been made by responsible people, and if it is true, the Judge can hardly expect, at the very least, to continue on the bench.

The whole matter is laid out in the columns of the Advertiser this morning. Deputy Attorney-General Larouch has gone to Maui as a representative of the Governor to report. One of the compromising documents, Judge Kepoikai's note, appears in this paper today in facsimile. A succinct account of it is incorporated in the Advertiser's story.

The better element of Maui Republicanism is much disturbed over conditions there, and it is likely that, if the charge against Kepoikai stands, something of a local political revolution will follow.

SPECULATING IN SHIPS.

It is no particular mystery, as a San Francisco paper seems to think, why Brazil is building great ships of war. She is simply putting them up to sell. Other South American States have made money in this line of business, and why not Brazil? Indeed, that country itself, in passing over the cruisers New Orleans and Albany to the United States, when the Spanish war broke out, turned a pretty penny. It is even rumored now that her three newly-completed Dreadnoughts have been bought by Great Britain. If so, the Englishmen had to pay a stiff price.

These South American countries argue that, by letting a contract to foreign shipbuilders for $5,000,000, they can produce a vessel that some great power will snap up for $6,000,000. So long as the race for naval supremacy goes on there will be customers in the market for every modern fighting ship. Even under the increased cost of American shipbuilding, a private concern like the Cramps, could safely speculate in these values. In fact, if the Cramps had a Dreadnought ready, Congress at its next session would probably provide the money to buy it of them. If not, Great Britain, France, Germany or Japan would take the ship.

One of the reasons to regret the course of the labor unions, by which, as Admiral Melville pointed out the other day, the United States lost the $50,000,000 Brazilian contract, lies in the fact this country can find no vessels of war in her own private yards which she has not contracted for herself. She could buy such ships in an emergency, if any existed; without calling on Congress for special enactments; and by that token might now have a chance to purchase a squadron of Dreadnoughts. But no foreign government will construct vessels here, where labor compels an extra cost of twenty-five per cent.; and the law does not encourage our government to purchase such ships in a foreign market.

BAD POLITICAL STRATEGY.

Mr. Taft has made a serious tactical mistake in going to Oyster Bay with his letter of acceptance and submitting it to the review of the President before giving it to the party.

The most telling charge against him is that he is a legatee candidate, that he is not his own man, that he is the mouthpiece of the President. The simplest dictates of prudence were that Mr. Taft should show himself otherwise. It was his role to be Taft, not an understudy for Roosevelt; and to hoe his own row and raise his own crop. Otherwise he could not hope for the respect and confidence of the people.

At first, it seemed as if things might run that way. The President gave out that he meant to hold aloof from the campaign, and the story was denied with some heat that Mr. Taft was to take a cottage at Oyster Bay. The party, which was uneasy on the subject, looked at this move as good politics and settled down to watch Taft grow. What must its consternation have been, therefore, when the candidate, after writing his letter of acceptance, started to Oyster Bay with it, and when the President, after reviewing it, expressed his pleasure at its contents. The Democratic shout of derision after that episode must have been unpleasant to hear.

Suppose the President had wished to change the language of the letter, would the change have been made? Suppose he had wanted Taft to say something essentially different in principle, would Taft have said it? If so, how could the declarations of the letter be accepted as those of the man whom the people are trying to measure by the presidential yardstick—the man they want to understand? The Republican party is not looking for a candidate whose aim is to please Roosevelt, but one that can get along without Roosevelt and administer the government with dignity and power on his own account. It is disappointed that it cannot have a letter of acceptance written by the hand of Jacob unprompted by the voice of Esau.

Whatever Mr. Taft's letter of acceptance may say, the public memory of the luckless Oyster Bay visit will impair its value as a statement of the candidate's own views.

The Bulletin is after the Promotion Committee because that body has not squandered money in buying one thousand copies of its special edition. That edition, which has been given away in blocks of hundreds in return for perfunctory letters of thanks from navy captains, was made up of second-hand reading matter and third-hand cuts, was dimly printed, and edited with even more incompetence than is habitually shown in the editing of the regular paper. If the committee had paid out two dollars for that kind of "literature," it would have suffered public rebuke. As neither the people of Honolulu nor its sailor guests were willing to buy the "special," and as the Promotion Committee has no use for it, the edition had better take the usual course to the fishmarket. It would be at least useful in wrapping up lobsters and veal.

President Castro has expelled the Dutch minister in his cheerful, off-hand way. It was not because Holland is a small country, for Castro would have turned out the German, English or American envoy with as little compunction. The fact simply is that Castro, who calls himself the hero of the Andes, believes that he could exterminate any invading force that might enter his mountain passes, just as Menelik slaughtered the Italians. And he is more than willing to try. That his defensive powers, aided as they are by nature, are not to be despised, is shown by the long-suffering attitude toward him of at least three of the great powers.

War with clubs and fists at the portal of the Greek church in San Francisco will rouse the perturbed spirit of the late Dimetrius Camarinos, if anything can. Fighting on the steps of the Greek sanctuary was Camarinos' long suit, and many a fistful record he made there. Honolulu knew him as the soul of good nature, but it never saw him with an ikon on one hand and a missal in the other, decimating the ranks of the ungodly.

The fact that supplies are to be bought here for the Pacific fleet, if the bids are right, naturally pleases the merchants of Honolulu; and if they do their part they may, in the naval days coming, vastly increase their business. We suppose that the bids are also being advertised in San Francisco, so the man with the most favorable terms may expect to win.

Thanks to the Kilties and the Besses o' the Barn on the world-circuit, Honolulu gets some band music now and then that makes it curl up with enjoyment and purr.

The Guffeyites, who figure in the cablegrams, are Pennsylvania Democrats, opposed until recently to Bryan, whom the Nebraskan denounced as agents of plutocrats.

Governor Hughes is willing to run again for Governor of New York. The chances are good, if he is elected, that he will succeed Platt or Depew in the Senate.

About the worst blow the Democracy has had yet is the accession of Burton. It's a pity that Mitchell did not live long enough to go too.

Now let Hilo rejoice! She's going to be the farther end of the Honolulu yacht race.

DID KEPOIKAI KEEP HEIRS FROM MONEY?

note at any time prior to its maturity. Value received.

A. N. KEPOIKAI.

Here was an unsecured note to run for three years at a low rate of interest, against money which should have been promptly devoted to the relief of the destitute heirs, the children of T. Mori. Upon that note, two payments of $25 each were made in 1905, since when not a cent of principal or interest has been credited on that instrument.

EFFORTS TO RECOVER.

E. A. Mott-Smith, attorney in fact for the children as petitioned, has written repeatedly, urging the court to hurry the settlement of the estate, as the children were practically destitute, but up to the present time, not one cent has been sent to the children and the money that is left lies idle in the First National Bank at Wailuku, available for another Judicial loan.

The children, to whom the money belongs, are wretchedly poor and are fed and clothed by poor relatives. Twenty-five hundred dollars with accumulated interest, would be a competency to them in Japan.

If the charges are substantiated proceedings to impeach Judge Kepoikai will begin at once.

KILTIES SEE AND ARE SEEN

than even the splendid parade of 2400 fine specimens of American manhood in Uncle Sam's naval uniforms. This giant wore the kilts and picturesque costume of a Highlander and he marched at the head of the famous Kilties' band from the S. S. Marama through the principal streets. There was another giant in kilts, sporrans and busby, but he was only seven feet two inches and hardly entitled to unusual consideration.

The small boy was not the only one who looked with mingled awe and admiration at these two giants. The grown-ups, and nearly every one in Honolulu seemed to have gone down to take a look, let their dinner hour pass by while cooks became impatient, just to get a glimpse of these more than ordinary men. Prince Pu Lun of China, Prince Fushimi of Japan, famous men from all parts of the world have been welcomed to Honolulu by great crowds, but no demonstration seemed greater than that accorded the Kilties and their giant drum majors.

When the steamship Marama swung in from the channel toward the Bishop slip the wharves were crowded. The bathhouses were loaded down with curious humanity and the steamships in port were crowded at the rails. The Hawaiian band which was on the Bishop wharf to play a welcome to the Kilties almost lost its identity in the jam of humans. And every neck was craned to see the scarlet and gold uniforms of the Scottish bandsmen. They searched along the rail until they caught a glimpse of Drum-major McConnell, seven feet three inches and Drum-major McKenzie, seven feet two inches. Then every one else aboard was forgotten, that is all but Albert Johnson, the most famous bagpiper in all Scotland.

When the two drum-majors came down the gangway and strode through the crowd, head and shoulders above the tallest man, a great shout went up. In the street there was a jam of humanity as great as on the wharves. Carriages, cars, autos were blocked in the street and it took the combined efforts of Lieut. Lane and Officer Lishman, mounted, to clear a passage way for the Kilties.

When the band got into motion everybody moved along. But disappointment was in store for the crowds, for the band did not play. The drummers drummed, then the bagpipers bagged and then the bagpipers bagged, but the sweet music of the band which the people longed to hear failed to come. That was reserved for the concert hall. But there was one consolation. The giants exhibited themselves. When the parade broke up the giants had a small army of boys at their heels wherever they walked. And every half block the boys gave three rousing cheers.

When the Kilties marched past the cruiser Milwaukee, the bluejackets aboard manifested great enthusiasm, and called in vain for music.

THE IAUKEA CASE.

The lender in the Iaukea case was a prominent representative of the business interests of Honolulu's tenderloin, although Iaukea does not seem to have known it, and probably did not. The whole transaction on his side was too ingenious to arouse suspicion in any except those who are interested in the preservation of the said tenderloin, and they are many, including numerous landlords of great personal respectability.

It is hoped that the crusade against vice in Honolulu, may not prove to be greatly handicapped by this occurrence, but the latter will undoubtedly be taken advantage of to the full extent. There are few cities in which abstract sermons against evil are better received, and concrete attacks on it more discouraged than in Honolulu. The greatest evil there seems to be any law, or the enforcement thereof which "hurts business."—Tribune.

OAHU SUGAR CO. SINKING FUND

Controversy as to Its Investment Submitted to the Supreme Court.

The Oahu Sugar Company and the Bishop Trust Company have submitted for arbitration to the Supreme Court a controversy as to the investment of the sinking fund provided for the redemption of an issue of Oahu Sugar Company bonds of date of April 2, 1906. The sinking fund is to consist of not less than ten per cent. of the gross proceeds of the Oahu Sugar Company's business for each year after certain deductions have been made.

The Bishop Trust Company is the trustee for the bondholders, and one of the questions in controversy is whether the trustee may invest the money in the sinking fund in the bonds of the Oahu Sugar Company, the payment of which is secured by the trust deed.

Another question is, can the trustee advertise for proposals from holders of these bonds for sale thereof to the Oahu Sugar Company, paying for them out of the sinking fund?

Another question is, if the trustee may advertise for proposals to sell bonds, what is the highest price it may pay for them?

The last question is, if under the trust deed the Trust Company may not invest the sinking fund in these bonds nor buy them in, may it independently of the trust deed invest the sinking fund in these bonds?

CERTIFICATES OF HAWAIIAN BIRTH

No More Chinese Applications Are to Be Received for the Present.

Secretary Mott-Smith will not receive any more applications from Chinese, for the present at least, for certificates of Hawaiian birth. Immigration Inspector R. C. Brown is now engaged in receiving applications for and issuing certificates of American citizenship to Hawaiian born Chinese, and the Secretary sees no reason why the work should be, in effect, duplicated.

The certificates issued by Inspector Brown will be accepted by all immigration officials of the United States as evidence that the person described in the certificate is an American citizen. The certificates issued by the Secretary of the Territory are prima facie evidence to be accepted by election and other Territorial officials that the person described is an American citizen.

Secretary Mott-Smith will continue to hear the applications already filed with him. One application lately heard included eleven children in one family. In another case application was made for certificates of Hawaiian birth for two boys in a family. In the course of the hearing it developed that there were five girls in the family but the parents had apparently not thought it worth while to apply for certificates of Hawaiian birth for them.

ADMINISTRATOR WANTS TO CONTINUE SALOON

There will be a meeting of the Board of License Commissioners at 9 o'clock this morning to consider the application of the temporary administrator of the estate of Pedro A. Dias, for permission to continue the saloon of the deceased at Waipahu. Dias has conducted a saloon there for several years, and his license was renewed by the board July 1. He died a few days ago and in his will directed that his widow, if possible, should continue the business.

Mrs. Klemme has also asked for the Sunday privilege in connection with her restaurant in Kakaako. This will also be considered by the board.

A SHEEP SHEARER'S TRIALS.

"I have followed the shearing season through New Zealand and all over Australia," says Mr. R. L. McBean of Dunroon, N. Z., "and the changes of water and tucker always bring an attack of diarrhoea. The only relief I can obtain is from Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Every shed now has some shearer who use this wonderful medicine and always carry a bottle with them." SENTENCE DAY IN DOLE'S COURT

Three Who Pleaded Guilty Receive Sentence From H. m.

Judge Dole yesterday morning imposed sentences on three defendants in the United States District Court. These sentences were all on pleas of guilty entered on Wednesday.

T. Kinoshita, who pleaded guilty to illicit distilling, was fined $600 and costs and given seven months' imprisonment. Kinoshita's still was up in the mountains of Kona, and his capture was quite an exciting event.

Miteyasu pleaded guilty to forging a name to a postoffice money order and he was sentenced to two years at hard labor and to pay the costs of prosecution.

Kim Moon Sung, who personated a United States Deputy Marshal and thereby secured $53 from Sung Yung Paik, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500 and the costs of the prosecution.

Sansui, a Japanese woman charged with illicit distilling, was arraigned, and, having no counsel, Clem K. Quinn was assigned to defend her. The case was continued until July 27, when she will plead.

William Reed and Mary Haldeson, charged with violating the Edmunds Act, were arraigned. J. Lightfoot appeared for the woman and was assigned to defend the man. The case was continued until August 31, for plea.

Tomita and Yuki Koge were before the court for arraignment on a charge of violating the Edmunds Act. They were represented by J. W. Cathcart. The case was continued until Monday.

MANDAMUS TO ISSUE.

An order was entered by Judge Dole yesterday allowing a writ of mandamus against Charles H. Merriam, as Registrar of Conveyances, at the suit of the United States of America, requiring him to receive and record certain maps and plats of property in this Territory in which the United States of America is interested. This is in accordance with the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco lately rendered.

NEW TRIAL DENIED.

Judge De Bolt yesterday denied the motion of the County of Oahu for a new trial in the suit of Mary Costa against it. The plaintiff in this case sued the county for damages to her property by reason of the flying rocks thrown by the blasts in the nearby quarry. Judge De Bolt gave her a judgment for $250. The county will take an appeal to the Supreme Court.

CARMEN IS TO BE FOLLOWED BY COMEDY

"Carmen" was played to a fair house at the Orpheum last night, despite the big counter attraction, the performance making more than good. The scenic and costume effects were beautiful and effective. The play of "Carmen," with its passionate love-making, could easily be made coarse in the hands of a less capable company, but the Lumley people handled the play with delicacy and understanding. Miss Keane, in the role of Carmen, took away from it all suggestiveness, showing a rare refinement and restraint in the scenes with Don Jose. Frank E. Montgomery's conception of this difficult role was pleasing, and, together with good stage presence and a taking personality, he won the audience from the start. Richard Bulher looked and acted the gay bull-fighter to perfection. The remainder of the company proved themselves capable. The performance on the whole was a credit in every way to the management and should play to large houses at the marquee and tonight, the two remaining performances. Starting Monday, the Broadhurst comedy, "What Happened to Jones," will be rendered.

"SMART" ENGLISH.

The speech of the smart man and woman sufficiently betrays the modern attitude. To speak good English is middle class. Not only in such obvious forms as "ain't" and the clipping of the final "g" is this evident, but also in the choice of words and phrases. The modern vocabulary is very small, and the greater part of it is composed of slang.—Mrs. Humphrey in Black and White.

PUBLICITY.

NO USE FOR BEDS IN BAGDAD.

About sixty per cent. of Bagdad's population possess no beds. These poor people rest on blankets spread on the floors of their houses in the winter and on the roofs in the summer. Owing to the excessive heat of these regions sleep is made impossible elsewhere than on a roof or in the open gardens. It is an interesting sight to see how the women at sunset emerge from their houses to prepare the evening meal on the roof, and spread the bedding for the night. Inasmuch as the climate is very dry, there is little to fear from exposure to the night air. While a considerable number of the roofs are surrounded by lattice work to insure a certain amount of privacy, by far the larger number are quite exposed to the gaze of curious and inquisitive neighbors.

TRADE TO FOLLOW THE YACHTS

Los Angeles, Seattle,
San Pedro and San Diego Men So State.

The commercial side of the recent transpacific contest among the yachts of the Coast and Hawaii was dealt with yesterday by various speakers at the luncheon given to the visiting yachtsmen by the members of the Commercial Club, at which were present the owners, officers and crews of the four racing crafts, the officers of the Hawaii Yacht Club and a number of citizens, who were seated at the large central dining table. The club dining room was decorated with signal flags, while a miniature yacht "No Excuse," with all sails set, and red, white and blue asters formed the table decorations.

Following the luncheon, Commodore Sinclair, representing the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, spoke of the benefits to accrue to both Honolulu and his own city as a result of the friendly relations brought about by the two transpacific races, delivering a message to the commercial bodies of Hawaii from the commercial bodies of Los Angeles.

George W. Smith, president of the Commercial Club, presided at the luncheon, with him at the head table being Commodore Sinclair, Commodore Wilder, W. H. McInerney, Judge Sanford B. Dole and Captain Lew B. Harris and Mr. Poole, the latter a representative of the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce. After a short welcoming address, Chairman Smith called upon Commodore Sinclair, the winner of the race and the representative of Los Angeles.

Mr. Sinclair stated in beginning that the transpacific races, begun purely as a sporting event, had been made possible by the aid of the commercial bodies of Los Angeles and would have as an effect the bringing of the communities closer together in a trade sense. The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce insisted on a Los Angeles entry in the race to show the people of Hawaii that their efforts were appreciated.

The Los Angeles Chamber, he said, sent through him its warmest greetings to the commercial bodies of Honolulu, with the desire that the two cities might establish closer relations one with the other. For years Honolulu had been very close to San Francisco and recently trade relations had been formed with Seattle, both of whom had great advantages now over Los Angeles. That city had but recently budded into cityhood and was now reaching out for trade, having united herself with San Pedro and securing a harbor. Now with her harbor she wanted ships and business and Hawaii offers the biggest block of any place in sight. His city did not expect to supplant San Francisco, but it wanted some share of the Hawaiian trade and had something to offer in exchange.

This was the tourist traffic. Los Angeles was recognized as the tourist center and a steamship line running from San Pedro to Honolulu would tap the artery of this trade at its best point. Tourists brought each year to Southern California between thirteen and fourteen million dollars and supplied at the same time a constant stream of the very best class of settlers. Hawaii would get a share of these benefits if a line of modern steamships could be put on to accommodate the business. Honolulu had already good hotels, which were absolutely necessary if tourists are to be attracted.

SEATTLE'S SPOKESMAN.

"Making a noise like a Puget Sound," as the speaker himself described it, Captain Lloyd B. Johnson, of the Gwendolyn II., regretted that he was not able to talk much concerning Seattle's claims for Hawaiian trade. He thanked the people of Hawaii for their "amazing hospitality," however, and promised on behalf of his city an adequate return whenever Hawaiian yachtsmen would come there.

SAN DIEGO'S SUBURB.

Captain Harris, of the Lady Maud, on behalf of San Diego and the San Diegoan yacht, thanked Honolulu for the welcome given. He endorsed all that Commodore Sinclair had said of the trade of Los Angeles, which was San Diego's most flourishing suburb.

SAN PEDRO IN LINE.

J. H. Poole, a member of the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce, referred to the fact that the long-standing friction between his city and Los Angeles was gradually breaking down, especially during the last three months, largely as a result of the race just finished. Mr. Poole drew attention to the fact that San Pedro had one of the best deep-water harbors of the Pacific, a harbor in which eight of the battleships of the Pacific fleet could lie alongside the docks at one time, and which the largest sailing vessels of the world could enter. He invited the members of the Commercial Club to visit San Pedro, where they would find the glad hand always out.

TO MAINTAIN THE YACHT.

Colonel Sam Parker, who stated that the yachtsmen would find him in Hilo ready to welcome them and entertain them, won applause when he stated that he was not in any syndicate to purchase the Hawaii, but stood ready to subscribe for funds to maintain the yacht and have her ready to enter the next race two years from now.

This was a subject which had not been touched on by any previous speaker since the finish of the race.

Following the luncheon the yachtsmen got together to discuss the details for the Tuesday run to Hilo.

The list of the guests at the luncheon is:

Lorline—H. H. Sinclair, Messrs. Pyle, Savage, V. B. Stewart, J. H. Poole.

Lady Maud—Wilbur Kyle, Lew B. Harris, Ed. Schwartz, Jas. Jessop, Geo. Lane, Herbert Bone, William Simpson, C. D. Ledger, Herbert Bowles, John Kyle.

Gwendolyn II.—Walter Brunnick, Mr. Thornton, Lloyd Johnston, Dan Johnston, W. B. Jack, Henry Henke, J. E. Russell, J. Redfern.

Hawaii—S. J. Harris, Ray Reitow, W. H. Stroud, J. N. Densham.

Hawaii Yacht Club—H. E. Cooper, Chas. Wilder, Paul Isenberg, L. A. Thurston, Sam Parker, S. B. Dole, Henry Roth.

LOOKING FOR NEWS OF MISSING FATHER

An echo of the San Francisco fire and earthquake comes in a letter received yesterday by Sheriff Laukea from Joseph Doyle, who writes in an effort to locate his father, Edward C. Doyle, whom he has not seen since the big shake-up on the Coast and who cannot know, either, the present address of his son. The missing Doyle is seventy-three years old, but looks younger, and is a plumber by trade. At one time he worked in Hawaii for the Spreckels and before his disappearance often expressed a desire to return to the Islands. This leads his son to suppose that possibly he is here now. The address of the son is 4171 A, 20th street, San Francisco.

AUTO DRIVERS OBEY THE CALL

How the San Francisco Police Stop the Time Killers.

When the police department purchased a motorcycle for use in trailing down auto scorchers, letters were addressed by the department to various police departments on the mainland for information as to the manner of securing evidence against speeders. Former Chief Taylor received a personal letter yesterday from Chief Biggy of the San Francisco police department relative to the subject, which follows:

"Under our State law all proprietors of automobiles must procure a State license, consisting of a plate with large numbers thereon. In addition to this, each chauffeur must also procure a State license containing a number, both to be placed in such position that they may be seen plainly by people on the street. The machine license, as you know, is attached to the rear of the machine in plain view.

"Our motorcycleists are equipped with the best machines that can be procured in the market, and provided with a split-second stop-watch. With this paraphernalia they frequent places where automobiles are suspected of exceeding the speed limit, and, being pretty well versed as to time, have little trouble in spotting a driver violating the law, take after him, timing him for a few blocks, then hail him to halt which, if he refuses to do, and they are unable to overhaul him on the machine, get the number of the license on the machine, procure a John Doe warrant, and from the license book issued by the Secretary of State, ascertain the residence of the owner of the machine, and thus apprehend the driver.

"By the foregoing method the police have the subject pretty well under control, and drivers have come to understand that when called on to halt the best thing to be done is to comply.

"If there is any further information you desire on this subject, suggest it, and we will be pleased to furnish the same."

THIEVES COMMIT ACTS OF RANK VANDALISM

The men who entered and robbed the residence of R. I. Lillie in Manoa on Thursday combined vandalism with thievery. The house is the one usually occupied by Dr. Norris and his wife, who, when they left for Europe two months ago, rented it furnished, to Mr. Lillie. While the latter and his wife are in Hilo his clerk, Mr. Burnett has been sleeping there.

He returned home on the eight o'clock car Thursday night and arriving at the door found it open. He attempted to light the hall light but it failed to light, so he returned to the veranda and lighted one there. The open door showed a table at the entrance with two chairs and four copies of a New York publication which the robbers had evidently been reading. He decided that there had been visitors during his absence and he notified Ralph Lyon, his nearest neighbor. Together they went back to the Lillie house and found everything in disorder.

Trunks had been opened by smashing the lids with an axe. A hat had the crown cut out and leather portmanteaus were slashed with a knife and the contents scattered around the house. Mr. Burnett had cigars in a supposedly safe quarter but the box was removed with the contents, three of them being found on the top of a pile of the Norris clothing.

Nothing that could be damaged was overlooked; handkerchiefs were used and thrown aside. The silk cover on an umbrella was cut into shreds and a draft for twenty-five dollars and a ten dollar gold piece belonging to Mr. Burnett were taken, but as payment on the draft was stopped there was no loss there. The police were notified and Kalakieff and an assistant visited the scene at 10 o'clock last night.

This is the third robbery the reported recently in this vicinity, the Effinger house having been entered twice and the Blackman house once. The amount of the loss in the Lillie robbery cannot be estimated until the Lillies are heard from.

Stole Valuable Articles From the Dorchester House.

LONDON, July 11.—Some beautiful odds and ends disappeared from Dorchester House the night of the royal ball. The fact has been as carefully guarded as a state secret, for the Whitelaw Reids are more sensitive to things of this nature being found out about their entertainments than even English people. Scent bottles, two snuff boxes, antique ash trays and even statuettes are the things which have disappeared. The majority of them belonged to Colonel Holford. As everything in the house is insured no one will suffer from a monetary point of view, though, artistically speaking, it would be impossible to replace the lost articles.

There is a story that one or two of Miss Reid's wedding presents which she brought down to show Princess Patricia of Connaught were also taken. The Reids did not adopt the precaution of hiring detectives to mix with the guests because the ball was really a comparatively small one and made up of the very elite of American and British society only.

MOTERING TO GET A GOWN.

That exceedingly smart society woman, the Marquise de Breteuil, who, before her marriage to the French nobleman, was a Miss Garner of New York, has had a modifying experience. She formed one of the King's house party at Windsor Castle for Ascot, and because of the non-arrival of some special gowns from Paris, she was almost compelled to wear a costume that had already adorned her person. To have appeared in the royal procession to the famous race course in any but a new "creation" would have been fatal to her reputation as a dresser. At the very last moment she jumped into an automobile, lent her by the King, motored to London, made imperative demands upon Kate Rilly and Paquin, and subsequently appeared in a frock that was the envy of many of her fellow guests.

Among the others invited to the Thames-side castle was Lady Gordon Cumming, the Marquise's sister, but, to everybody's surprise, she refused the "command." Gossips says quite openly that the reason for her refusal is the snub administered to her husband who was not included in the invitation. It will be remembered that the latter was connected with a card scandal some years ago and since then Lady Gordon Cumming has eschewed society. It is pretty generally felt that the King was guilty of a most unfortunate slip in inviting the second of the Garner heiresses.

ANGLO-AMERICAN DUCHESS OUT. Although American women are taking a leading part in the festivities of the London season it is generally remarked that the Anglo-American duchesses have retired into their shells. The Duchess of Marlborough, who before her separation from her husband was always a member of the King's party at Ascot, is now in Switzerland with her second son who is ill. She is not expected back at Sunderland House until the autumn has set in. It is said that even if she were in London and had not the excuse of a sick son and a deceased stepfather to keep her out of society she would find another excuse.

The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe were to form part of the Windsor house party, but did not turn up. The couple are now back in their barrack-like home, Floors Castle, where the Duke is always supremely happy. The dislike of society is growing on him so that now, like his countryman, the Duke of Buccleuch, he declares that he would as soon take a ticket to Hades as to London at the height of the season.

WHY SHE CHANGED HER DRESS.

A very good story concerning Mrs. Waldorf Astor Jr. is going the rounds. It appears that the young American matron ordered a beautiful dress of the very latest style from a Paquin Paris house and wore it to the Ascot races. Imagine her surprise upon arriving at the historic course to find Mrs. Langtry the center of an admiring group arrayed in a costume the exact duplicate of her own, even to the hat. Mrs. Astor retreated in confusion and indignation to her motor car and was immediately driven away to Cliveden. A change was effected and later in the day she appeared again on the course. To appear during one afternoon arrayed in two costumes is an innovation and attracted wide comment and led to the story leaking out.

The frocks which created all the trouble were in pale gray with double skirts over which were worn Directoire coats, finished with the innumerable buttons typical of the period. Big gray hats with enormous plumes of the same color and shade completed the costumes. One version of the story declares that Mrs. Langtry's was the original from which the American's had been modeled, while another credits the latter woman with the honor of being first in the field. It is safe to say that the modiste who supplied them will get no further orders from either leader of fashion.

MRS. PALMER'S SHREWDSNESS. Those who have been to Hampden House this season unite in declaring that Mrs. Potter Palmer's Mayfair mansion is more beautiful than ever. Quite recently she bought some magnificent bronzes at Christie's at bargain prices and she has set them up about the house. The Chicago society woman is one of the best bargainers in London and dealers have learned to be very careful in trading with her. She never purchases an article before first getting expert opinion as to the real value. Above all, she refuses to pay "Morgan prices." Whenever it comes to her ears that J. Pierpont Morgan is interested in an article she drops it like a hot coal.

This feeling against being "Morganized" by the art dealers is not confined to Mrs. Potter Palmer, but is now very general throughout London. The majority of those who attend Christie's auctions are well acquainted with the dealers who have the "purchasing ear" of the American millionaire and do not waste their time bidding against them above a reasonable price.

Ever have itching piles?
The constant itching sensation.
Hard to bear, harder to get relief.
Spoils your temper, nearly drives you crazy.

Isn't relief and cure a long-felt want? You can have relief and cure if you will follow this advice.

O. E. Collar, superintendent of the Altamaha lumber mills, Brunswick, Ga., says: "I can recommend Doan's Ointment very highly. I used it for itching piles from which I have been a great sufferer. A constant burning and itching existed which not only caused intense agony but was very annoying and mortifying, as I was scratching and digging almost unconsciously to get relief. I used many number of remedies but nothing had the slightest effect until I got a box of Doan's Ointment. The first application gave me relief and the burning and itching soon stopped. Doan's Ointment is all that it is claimed to be."

Doan's Ointment and Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all chemists and storekeepers at 50 cents per box (six boxes $2.50) or will be mailed on receipt of price by the Hollister Drug Co., Agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

THE NEW MARKET STREET IN BUSY SAN FRANCISCO

A Vista of Sky-Scrapers---The New Palace Hotel
---The Directoire Gown---Blacking Boots
by Electricity for a Nickel.

By Ernest N. Smith.

(Mail Special to the Advertiser.)

The new Market street, and therefore the new San Francisco. Visitors exclaim about it in wonderment and the newspapers speak of it with pardonable pride. The old Market street was so different. A few large modern buildings could be seen on the old street but never until now did it resemble the lower part of Broadway, that is the part from Second and Market up as far as Seventh; and best of all the street is coming into its own again, and before another year has passed San Franciscans can of an evening wind their way around the old path—up Market to Powell, to Geary, down to Kearny, and along Kearny, without having to step out into the street to escape building fences; and along that old route they will be able to look into brilliantly lighted show windows, something that could not be done since before the fire.

The lower part of Market street is still made up of small buildings, for the most part wooden, containing stores carrying ready-to-grab-on-the-run goods for the hurrying commuter. At Second and Market however the Sheldon building, the first of the Market street skyscrapers, looms up. On the block above is a similar building, the Metropolitan Trust and Savings Bank building, both looking so much alike that the bumbling commuter catching the last boat would consider himself a block further east if he were in sight of the Metropolitan building first. A little further up the street is the remodeled Crocker building, and across the street at the junction of Post, Montgomery and Market is the handsome First National Bank building, a great white and gray stone structure as imposing as any in the city.

Just across the street looms the great structure and network of steel which in two years will be the new Palace Hotel. It is an enormous building, and all day long crowds of people stand and watch the workers running about on the steel girders. The hotel covers the entire square, and all the steel work on the Market street side is in place. Already they are putting up some of the white stone. Across the alley, going up Market, is the Monastnock building, one of the first buildings finished after the fire. It is one of the largest office blocks and ranks well up with the modern structures. That entire block will contain fine buildings as soon as the Examiner completes its building on the corner. At present there is a large hole there filled with scrap iron, old engines, and presses which went through the fire. It is the most unsightly place along the entire length of the street. Across the street is the new Chronicle building, larger and finer than ever, but the old clock, the one which gave thousands the time in years gone by, was not replaced. It would hardly be worth while to put it up now. Once it could be seen in any direction, but any number of buildings in the vicinity now overtop it, even the new wing of the Chronicle building itself. The old familiar Call building jumps into the blue from the same old corner, and one could hardly believe now that it had been gutted by fire. Across from the Call is the Mutual Savings Bank building, smaller than the Call building, but a skyscraper nevertheless. The rest of the street on the side of the Mutual Savings Bank building to the next corner was composed of veritable shacks, flimsy and poorly constructed. A fire a few weeks ago swept most of these buildings away, and while some have been rebuilt it is understood that a company at which Hellman the bank-appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

er is at the head, will, in the near future, put up some slightly office buildings. Just above the Call building is the Bulletin building, small, but a modern building, and flanked on either side by buildings which are new and which would be a credit to almost any street except Market. Just above the Bulletin is the Humboldt Bank building rises. This is indeed a skyscraper and one of the most important office buildings in the city. It overtops everything about it except possibly the Call building. Across the street is the new Phelan building covering over half a block, and rivaling the Palace Hotel in size. The building is on a gore and much resembles the Flatiron building of New York. It is not belittling the other buildings to say that the Phelan building is possibly the most magnificent structure on Market street, though it cost a million or so less than the Flood building, a block above it. It can be seen from far down Market street, and as the small end is facing the Market street gore, by standing on Market one can see two sides of the building, and the longest sides too. The building is of steel with a cream colored facing, which increases the general appearance of its size. The building is in the course of construction but all the work is being done finishing up the inside, and it should be opened up before many more months.

On the opposite corner is located the Pacific building, the largest reinforced concrete building in the world. Of various colors, including cream, drab, and green, made by different colored tiles, the building makes a most striking appearance. It is built around a large covered court, so that every office in the big building is well lighted. In the basement of this building is San Francisco's finest and largest restaurant. It somewhat resembles Tait's old restaurant in the Flood building before the fire, but is larger and finer, with a "Beefsteak garret," and great wine or tap room, open for inspection. It is so large that coming down from one entrance you walk along a miniature street with lamp posts and can enter one of several small one-room cottages and have your meal served in your own home, figuratively speaking. This comes nearer to, and yet is an improvement on, the famous old San Francisco restaurants so popular before the fire.

Just above the Phelan building is the Westbank building, a fairly large building ordinarily, but dwarfed by the big structures around it. On the upper corner is the $5,000,000 Flood building, headquarters for the Southern Pacific in the West and home of the transcontinental railroad offices. Built before the fire, and rebuilt after the fire, it is almost one of the landmarks of Market street. Directly across the street is the remodeled Parrot building, the home of the Emporium. This building will be ready for occupancy in October, and the big department store, when it occupies its new home, should be one of the finest in the West, as well as one of the largest. It will possess some new features to be found in few stores in the United States, the most notable of which is a double set of show windows, one set behind the other. A passageway has been run the entire length of the front of the store about ten feet from the sidewalk, and three entrances will permit shoppers to walk into the passageway, go down behind the front windows, and at the same time look into another set of windows in the store proper. What is said to be the largest skylight dome in the United States has been already put in place, and this will serve to light two large floors.

The block above Powell street is devoid of any large buildings until the upper corner is reached, where the new Mechanics' Savings Bank building is

WAILUKU THE FIRST TO HAVE A REAL TOWN HALL

Wailuku is to be the first town in the Territory to have a town hall.

Plans have already been made which will give the capital of Maui County a public hall suitable for gatherings and public assemblages of all kinds.

The Kaahumanu church, one of the oldest native churches in the Islands, has grounds covering nearly a block near the new Wailuku courthouse. For lack of funds the church is unable to keep these grounds in park-like appearance, and instead of being a beauty spot they are unkempt.

An arrangement has been made between the County of Maui and the church corporation by which the latter, for a nominal rental, will lease the larger portion of the church grounds to going up. On the opposite side of the street is the six-story buildings occupied by a music company and another department store firm. This marks the upper end of the new Market street as it is at present constituted. From an architectural standpoint the fire and earthquake were a blessing. It so far outclasses the old Market street that there can be little comparison between the two. What with twenty large buildings on Market street within a length of three-quarters of a mile, the buildings costing from $350,000 to $5,000,000 and over, the new Market street will not have its superior anywhere in the United States within a few years.

THE DIRECTOIRE GOWN.

The Directoire gown, about which the whole world of women is still talking excitedly, has appeared in San Francisco, and two short months after it appeared at the Paris racecourse worn by two suit models, who at that time seemingly fired the shot of fashion heard round the world. It first appeared on a wax figure in a large department store on Van Ness avenue, and women, yes, and men—but they were on the outskirts of the crowd—jammed the sidewalk in front of the store to get a view of the famous sheath gown. Before the town had finished talking about it another department store of Market street announced that they had a Directoire gown which would be shown on a living model. Horrors! The gown was enough of a sensation, and the idea of having a living model, while old in the East, was new in the West, and a combination of the two made people gasp. However, the model turned up, after the first model hired had fled after reading the announcements, and the first day some six hundred people viewed the gown. Sunday, the following day, the announcements appeared again, and on Monday the store was fairly swamped with struggling femininity. Four elevators running constantly carried the people to the floor where the model slowly paraded up and down and back and forth. In a period of five hours over five thousand people viewed the gown. The comments were varied, but it is safe to say that as a general rule the people were agreeably disappointed. The gown was startling in its conception, of course, but at the same time the method of wearing it depended solely upon the good sense of the wearer. The general consensus of opinion seemed to be that the gown would set the styles for the winter without any doubt, but there would be no more hesitation about wearing it than there would be about wearing a low-cut gown—the cut of the gown depending, as before said, upon the wearer. The day after the model appeared, however, some daring maid, under the chaperonage of her mother, or some elderly lady, paraded the length of the Rue de Fillmore in the sheath gown. As drawn by an irresistible magnet, Fillmore street, as the women passed by, turned en masse and followed, one block, two blocks, and then the crowd growing denser, and a hurry call having gone in for more police, the woman hastily got into a cross-town car and was whisked away.

SHOE-SHINE BY ELECTRICITY.
A crowd of men, and some women, standing in the hallway of one of Market street's office buildings, with their feet in boxes, attracted my attention the other evening, and I stopped to investigate. The crowd gazed with profound interest at the large boxes—which looked like weighing machines, but in which they had placed one foot. I watched. The lights on the machines suddenly went out. Everybody changed feet—or rather placed the other foot in a box. Another minute and the lights went out again, the second foot was withdrawn, a ducky whiskered a broom up and down the clothes, and the people walked out—with a new shine. It is San Francisco's latest novelty and invention, a shoe-shining box which gives a first-class shine for five cents.

It is an electric arrangement, and so successful has it been that already the Italian colony is up in arms, and planning a counter attack of some kind upon this enemy which bids fair to prevent their early return to the land of sunny "It" with the small change of the American population. It works to perfection. All you do is to put a foot in a foot-rest in a box, drop a nickel in the box, press a button, and then wait thirty seconds. It is uncanny, putting your foot into a dark hole, and then having it seized by some unseen hand. Circular brushes whisk over the foot, cleaning it off, another pair slides down from somewhere and rub some blacking on the shoe. A cloth slides down from another place and gives a few quick rubs, you don't know just how, but it does; the brushes whirl again, and the lights go out notifying you to change the foot. The shine is a good one. The machine doesn't waste any time, there are no spots missed on the side of the shoe, and the shine is as good as you would expect to get at any first-class stand. Blessed be the man who has freed us from the grasp of the Italian nation!

"AMERICAN HUSBAND WORST."

Stephen Lauzanne, the noted French journalist, said to an interviewer in New York:

"The American husband is, in my opinion, the worst, instead of the best, husband in the world. He neglects his wife; he regards all her tastes, her reading, her dress, her ideas, as childish and ludicrous; though a stupid dolt beside her, he deems himself immeasurably her superior. What a mistake!"

"In fact," concluded M. Lauzanne, "the American husband resembles the real husband, as Policeman X resembled a real hero."

"While bathing the other day a boy got beyond his depth. Policeman X watched him drowning from the pier. Another boy ran up, and the policeman said to him:

"Can you swim, my lad?"

"Yes, sir," said the boy.

"Then save that poor fellow," said the policeman, and, with great presence of mind, he tossed the newcomer far out into the water.

"The rescue being successful, the policeman, I believe, applied for one of your Carnegie medals."

INFANTILE CHOLERA.

Any unusual looseness of a child's bowels during the hot weather should be a warning to mothers. Infantile cholera may develop in a few hours, and prompt action should be taken to avoid it. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, followed by a dose of castor oil, will check the disease in its incipency, and all danger may be avoided. UNIQUE SOUVENIR FOR GARFIELD

A Pictorial History of His Visit Is Being Prepared.

Associate Justice Ballou and A. L. C. Atkinson are arranging a very interesting souvenir of his visit to these Islands for Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield. It is an album of photographs illustrating his arrival here, his tours of the Islands, and his departure.

It begins with photographs of the Maine and the Alabama composing the special service squadron, on which he arrived. There are pictures of his landing from Maine, and of his drives around the city in an auto. Then there begins the pictorial history of his tours. These include not only snapshots of the Secretary himself at various places and under various circumstances, but of the regions visited, of houses, bridges, sugar mills, cattle ranches, and coffee and pineapple plantations.

A large share of the picture were actually taken on the tours themselves, but in order to more fully represent the country and give a complete idea of its character, photographs have been secured from a number of sources. There are a considerable number of Mr. Garfield's photographs, and Mr. Francis Gay has contributed a considerable number of scenes from Kauai.

The top and the crater of Haleakala are presented in an excellent series of photographs. The Volcano of Kilauea is also well represented. The canyon of the Waimea River on Kauai and the Napali coast are excellently shown.

The concluding pictures show the St. Louis and the departure of Mr. Garfield. It is a unique souvenir and no doubt Mr. Garfield will appreciate it very highly.

SURPLUS IS SHOWN FOR FLEET FUNDS

While all the accounts are not yet in and a complete statement cannot be had, enough was learned from the various committee chairmen at the meeting of the executive fleet committee yesterday to show that a very tidy balance will be left on hand as a nucleus for an entertainment fund for the Pacific fleet sailors when they arrive in September. Chairman George R. Carter stated that the balance would amount probably to $2500. Of this amount the sports committee will hand back over $500, while the entertainment committee has realized $600 from the sale of the material in the Seaside dance floor, which brought the net cost of this to the committee to $350.

A full statement will be made at a meeting called for Wednesday afternoon next at half past one, when a balance will be struck and the committee probably disorganize. It is probable that it will be decided to leave the electrical fixtures in place.

THE STRICT ROTHSCHILDS.

A new Orleans man said the other day of the great house of the Rothschilds:

"The Rothschilds push their strictness to the point of eccentricity. They once had for agent here in New Orleans a fine fellow. They telegraphed to this agent at a certain season to sell their cotton holdings; but he knew the price would go higher, and therefore he didn't sell till four days later. In consequence he netted an extra profit of $40,000 for his firm."

"When he sent the Rothschilds the money and told them joyously what he had done they returned the whole amount, with a cold note that said:

"The $40,000 you made by disobeying our instructions is not ours, but yours. Take it. Mr. Blank, your successor, sails for New Orleans today."

TO SELL KAPAA PINEAPPLE LAND

To Be Divided Into Twenty Acre
Tracts and Advertised
Shortly.

Territorial Surveyor Wall will send a surveying party to Hilo on Tuesday to make a survey of the land of Kapaau, and divide it up into homesteads. There is also to be a reservation in front of the school there. The land adjoins Papiakou, and has until lately been under lease to a plantation.

The preparation of a map of the land of Omaopio on the Island of Maui will soon be completed. This is the government land which contains a considerable area of sugar land adjoining Kihel and Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company, which has been applied for by H. P. Baldwin, who offers to exchange some lands in Makawao for it, the Makawao lands, it being said, are suitable for pineapples and therefore for homesteads.

Mr. Harvey of the department has gone to Kauai to resubdivide the Kapaau lands which lie above the cane fields. These were originally divided into about forty-acre tracts. They are to be divided into about twenty-acre tracts. They are suitable for homesteads and are to be advertised very soon for sale under the special agreement drafted by Governor Frear.

HANA JAPANESE MAY HAVE BEEN MURDERER

Hana, Maui, has a mystery, Samura, a well-to-do Japanese planter, having disappeared, leading many of his friends to believe that he has been murdered and his body hidden away or thrown into the sea. It is three months since he was last seen and no trace of him has been found, after a long and diligent search.

Samura was planting cane under contract for the Hana Mill, and just before his disappearance had been paid, as his net profit on eleven acres of cane, $1071, on the receipt of which he gave a dinner to the Japanese of the camp and told them of his success as a planter. Two days afterwards, although he had fifty acres more in cane and no reason for leaving, he disappeared, a thousand dollars in gold disappearing with him. He was not in debt, on the contrary having out on loans between three and four hundred dollars.

No trace of him has been found nor any reason discovered why he should go and stay away of his own accord.

A HIGH-PRICED SERMON.

Four thousand nine hundred dollars for one sermon! It's enough to make even the most prosperous clergyman envious. That was the fee that the preacher at Elberfeld, in Prussia, received for his sermon on Whitsunday, which lasted only an hour. In 1690 Baron Favort, a wealthy Frenchman, provided in his will for an annual sermon to be preached in the Protestant church of the town. The day fixed is the first Sunday in June, and the qualification to obtain the prize is that the preacher shall hold one of the poorest parishes in the diocese and that he shall extol the virtues of the benefactor.
