Lands His Battalion This Morning for Shore Drill.

A battalion, consisting of marines and sailors from the Philadelphia, was landed this morning and went out to Makiki for the usual drill. Hereafter, these will occur only monthly owing to the warm weather. The men are anxious to have moonlight drills but this does not meet with the approval of the officers presumably for the reason that it might interfere with social engagements.

A BULLETIN reporter was on hand as usual when the battalion embarked after drill this morning and noticed the celerity with which it was done. Within one minute after the orders were given every man was in his particular boat and in his right place too, which means a good deal. A few seconds after, the small steam launch coupled on to two of the boats containing about forty-five men each and started for the flagship.

Half a minute afterwards the big launch started to tow 160 more men in three launches, but unfortunately the rear boat could not cross a wire rope attached from the Helen Brewer to the boat landing. A crossing was effected, however, at short notice. An order was given forthwith for all the men in the boat to go to the bow, which they did, with the result that the boat dipped and in so doing jumped the rope, and the launch and its tow proceeded merrily on its way.

HONOLULU ARTISTS.

Admirable Work in Painting, Sculpture, and Carving by Members of the Art League First View To,night.

The Kilohana Art League will present a very elegant assortment of paintings, carvings, etc., to private view of the members this evening. Since the league was started a year ago the members have been ter of selection of subjects, technique and general execution of their respective themes, and the result is shown in this exhibition. That the league has done much toward bringing out a considerable amount of latent talent in the islands, the present exhibition will testify. If there is any pride to be felt by the people here in the work shown by the members a major part of the credit is due D. Howard Hitchcock for the interest he has shown in art matters and the success which has attended his efforts in bringing to the surface what might have remained, for an indefinite period, hidden under a bushel.

For this exhibition much attention has been paid to the arrangement of the decoration of the hall and studio but only to an extent that it adds to, rather than detracts from, the work exhibited.

While the walls of the present art association are not as attractively fitted up as they will be hereafter, a Bulletin reporter wandered around them this morning and incidentally noted several striking portraits in oil of various people well known to Honolulu society. In addition there are a number of still-life studies in oil, representing Hawaiian scenes, which are more or less interesting, and a number of plaster casts. The rooms are nicely fitted up, and even a stage has been added. To the question of the reporter as to what the stage was needed for, a gentleman connected with the association said: "We intend to give theatrical and other performances at stated intervals for the benefit of the Association, but please don't say anything about it at present."

There are some nice pictures on the walls, but at the personal request of the director, we refrain from making mention of them.

Squadron Drills at Sea.

The smooth clean hulls of the new cruisers, their glistening steel weapons, their speed and power, the evidences of strength, both offensive and defensive, which they display, their numerous mechanical and scientific appliances, all mark them as fully abreast of the development of this age of steel, and as worthy to maintain the honor of the flag under its new and altered conditions. Once the Navy of the United States seems equal to any demands that might be made upon it, to be a sure reliance in time of national emergency, a defense in the event of national peril.

These ships weigh from 4000 to 10,000 tons each. They would be moving at a speed of fifteen knots or more. Their formation must be compact and regular, for at such a speed a mere touch of one to another might be a disabling blow, and if the squadron is scattered by ships losing distance, an alert enemy may find his opportunity. Then Admiral's signals must be looked to. If the vessels change direction they should change as one. If the Admiral desires to change his formation or his front it must be done without confusion. A captain of a ship in a fleet action has therefore a double duty-first, to employ his own weapons to the best advantage and to endeavor to avoid those of the enemy; second, vying with each other in the mat- to maneuver his ship with her consorts, obeying and supporting his Admiral; and the latter he must do amidst the terrible din, confusion and destruction of the former. Quick maneuvering must therefore become to him a second naturesomething to be done almost unconsciously as a matter of habit, and this habit can be acquired only by long and constant practice. - The highest school of naval war in time of peace, that work which solves its problems, and is the best guarantee of future success, is maneuvering vessels in company with others-in professional language, fleet or squadron tactics. Proficiency in this art has always accompanied naval supremacy. It was so in the galley period, and, much later, during that long period when vessels were propelled by sails alone. The victories of St. Vincent and Nelson were the joint product of their genius and of fleets of unusual mobility and tactical training. With modern vessels of great speed and power, independent of the wind, and armed with weapons of variety and precision, this kind of training and drill is still more valuable—is, in fact, essential. Naval writers of all countries dwell upon its importance, and continually urge that increasing attention be given to it during those times of peace which afford the only real opportunity of preparing for the sharp and decisive wars of modern times.—Harper's Weekly.

ABOUT DOGS.

What a Bulletin Reporter Saw at Daylight.

The ubiquitous reporter of the EVENING BULLETIN was around this morning as usual and along about 6 o'clock met W. M. Cunningham with four dogs trailing behind him. These canines were going out for their usual morning bath and they got it in the presence of the said BULLETIN reporter, probably for the first time in their lives.

The four dogs were worth somewhere about $500, and it is seldom one can see such an aggregation of canine wealth in four animals.

Although the animals are not, strictly speaking, water dogs their performances this morning would equal the best of any spaniels. They will fetch and carry, dive, swim anywhere on order, and do anything they are told to by their owner's order. In fact, these animals possess almost human intelligence and if anyone does not believe it let them accompany them on their morning excursions.

The best of them is Ranger, a pointer, who takes the water like a fish. His owner values him at $200. Then comes Queen, an Irish setter, valued at $100; Belle, a pointer, of equal value, all of whom have a lawful and recognised pedigree.

Last but not least by any means in the quarto is "Daisy," a Gordon Setter. It is sufficient to say that while Daisy has no pedigree she does what the other aristocratic dogs do.

Plenty Smoke, No Fire.

Two Chinamen very much excited ran up against a BULLETIN reporter last night and shouted something that might have been fire! murder! or pakapio! but which was learned to be "Please, kind gentleman, we are under the impression that a fire exists in the premises occupied by one of our numerous cousins known as Sam Yee Hop, who deals in luscious fruit on King street near Fort. You, who have had experience, kindly notify the chief of the fire department that his presence is needed in order that we may have his advice as to the means we shall adopt to save what we believe to be a burning building." That is what it meant in long hand, but before the notes could be written out, smoke was seen issuing from the chimney and a telephone alarm sent into the fire department. In less than three minutes the engines were on hand and before steam could be got up a hose was attached to one of the street hydrants and sufficient force of water obtained, without the services of the engines. to send a stream over the building. The chemical engine, however, was all that was required as there was nothing but smoke caused by the chimney having for a time been elogged up so that it could not escape until by great pressure the obstruction was removed and the smoke burst out, all in a heap.

The only damage done was through the bursting of a hose attached to the chemical engine. The fluid used in the apparatus scattered over some curious spectatorsto the injury of their clothing.

Sam Yee Hop is grateful to the department and his friends for their prompt action and congratulates himself upon the fact that he did not lose even a peanut.

While in Stockton, Cal., some time ago, Thos. F. Langan, of Los Banos, that state, was taken very severely with cramps and and diarrhoea. He chanced to meet Mr. C. M. Carter, who was similarly afflicted. He says: "I told him of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and we went to the Holden Drug Store and procured a bottle of it. It gave Mr. Carter prompt relief and I can vouch for its having cured me." For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for the Hawaiian Isl-

Japan-China Peace Treaty.

Commenting upon the action of the Powers in the settlement of the Japan-Chinese the Yokohama Herald-Mail says editorially:

In spite of anything which Li Hung Chang may have said to the contrary at the conferences that were held whilst he was here, it is a fact which admits of no dispute, that China since the outbreak of the war with Japan, has from first to last importuned foreign Powers to intercede, or actually to intervene on its behalf, but with the exception of Great Britain they, from various motives, chose not-until Japan had its several successes by sea and land, which have sufficed to surprise the world, and had formulted its demands upon China, -to come forward to dictate a limitation of the terms on which Japan would consent to be bought off, and consent to peace.

The Government here naturally had a prescient dread of the probable opposition of one, at least, of the Powers,-Russia,- and it was therefore deemed politic to acquaint them with the terms which Japan meant exact from her fallen foe, so that before they could become publicly divulged, if there were any objections to be offered, they might be urged at once, in order that this Government might not eventually find itself in the awkward position of either having to abate its pretensions, or failing that, to assume the responsibility of defying any Power that might insist on its will being obeyed.

But the Government has been disappointed, since this plan has resulted in failure. The Powers have chosen to remain silent until such time as it appeared to be imminent that China, in its hour of weakness and consternation, was about to sign and ratify a treaty of peace embracing the terms which had been dictated by the victorious Power. Then it was considered that the time for action had arrived, so Russia, France and Germany intimated their objections to any part of the mainland of China becoming permanently possessed by

This delay in declaring their opposition to what Japan had determined to add to its territory, is now described by the semi-official eournal, as an unfriendly reticence on the part of the above mentioned States, but as to England, to the negligence of its future interests, which are distinctly menaced, as it will one day learn to its cost, it has declared that it will now do nothing at all, though at the commencement of the war it actively bestirred itself, but without avail, to unite in a league with the other Powers, to check the farther progress of hostil-

Will Japan withdraw, call a conference of the European Powers or bid her enemies defiance? If she withdraws she must forever renounce her hopes of denominating Corea or Manchuria. It is now or never. And withdrawal might be followed by very awkward consequences in Japan itself. As to a conference of the European Powers, that might be a wise step, or it might end fruitlessly. To throw down the gaunlet would be to declare that she was bent on fighting for existence. Much probably must depend on the decision of England, but more on the views held by Japan's owff statesmen. The departure of Count Tamagata for Manchuria can be read in two ways-first, that Japan has thought it advisable to yield, or secondly, that she feels she has no option but to fight. Japan thus early in her career, early so far as her entry into the comity of nations is concerned, is placed in a predicament few nations have been called upon to face. She has our sympathies. In England's history, she once found herself an island situated like Japan on the fringe of a contiment, and faced by a tremendous combination. Thanks to the wisdom of her statesmen, the indomitable courage of her sailors and the patriotism of her people, she survived the peril. That Japan in her hour of trial may find statesmen equal to the emergency all her friends will devoutly trust.-Japan Gazette.

J. T. STACKER, EDITOR.

TUESDAY, MAY 21, 1895.

The EVENING BULLETIN fails to see where selfish motives are to be attributed to people who advocate an independent republic for the islands, for the present at least, instead of jumping pell mell into a scheme which cannot benefit the masses, while the present conditions exist.

The BULLETIN contends that with but really one industry, the people should maintain a form of government whose laws will not weaken that industry. It has not yet been shown to any great extent, that the production of sugar can be carried on satisfactorily without contract labor, and, until it is practically demonstrated, why should the people insist upon an alliance with a government whose laws forbid the species of semi-slavery which exists here. Once make the labor free and before sunrise the next day, every gang of Japanese on a plantation would be an organized labor union. Nor would this state of affairs be confined to that nationality. In every civilized country on the globe there is a constant struggle between capital and labor. It is not limited to the English speaking people, but extends to every class; it is like an epidemic, reaching from one country to another, and which, at times, needs the services of an armed force to keep down.

Are the islands in a position today to combat the various changes that would confront the people here in the event of immediate annexation to the United States, assuming that that government would be in accord with the scheme? Sugar and rice are the industries from which the people here derive the greatest percentage of their revenue; they are the fountain head because they employ the greatest number of people, and through them the merchants on the other islands live, and so on to the end of the list. Kill those industries and what have we?

It would take ten years for the people to figure out a means of providing for a surplus population and a cash deficit in the coffers of the merchant. Does anyone forget the anxiety felt by the people here while waiting news of the passage or defeat of the McKinley Bill? It seemed then, that the fate of the country depended upon that one act of Congress; it was not because it had any provisions which directly affected the shoeing of horses or the building of houses, it hit sugar, and everyone in the islands felt the blow. Annex the islands to the United States and every man here will ask his neighbor, "Where am I at?" The Bulletin does not wish to imply in this article that the country will never be ripe for annexation; it simply does not believe that this is the time for it. Other industries than rice and sugar must be made articles of exportation, and the production of staples be a part of the business of the people. So long as sugar is king just so long must the Asiatics rule in the matter of labor; increase the coffee production by creating laws that will enable people to cultivate the thousands of acres of land available for coffee, and we will have a different class of people, we will have diversified industries, on no one of which must the people depend for subsist- ASK YOUR GROCER ence, and we will have less danger to fear from the effects of strikes, and one of these, when the time came to harvest cane, would mean a tremendous loss. Annexation will come but not this year, let it be hoped in the interests of every one. A republican form of government with popular and able men in the departments, and we will be better off for the next ten years than if we were made part and parcel of the United States at this

The action of Col. McLean in ordering the removal of the cannons from the verandas of the Executive building will meet with the approval of everyone. For the past two years they have stood there as a menace to visitors and to people who have had business to transact with the departments.

There is only one sensible way to run a newspaper against a thousand ways, more or less, not to run it; and there is none so poor and lowly who does not believe that he has exclusive knowledge of that one sensible way.

It is asserted that the people of Bismarck, finding themselves short of musical talent for an entertainment, got the officials of the United States Court in that city to summon musicians from Fargo and Grand Forks as a special venire of jurymen, and having in this way obtained the talent of the State went on merrily with their entertainment, regardless of the fact that Fargo was left without a single musician to play at an ordinary

The Road Supervisor does not propose to allow people to neglect sidewalks in front of their houses. If they are not put in good shape within ten days the government will do the work and present the bill to the owner of the property.

Any one who has ever had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism will rejoice with Mr. J. A. Stumm, 220 Boyle Heights, Los Angeles, over his fortunate escape from a siege of that distressing ailment. Mr. Stumm is foreman of Merriam's confectionery establishment. Some months ago, on leaving the heated work room to run across the street on an errand, he was caught out in the rain. The result was that when ready to go home that night he was unable to walk, owing to inflamma-tory rheumatism. He was taken home, and on arrival was placed in front of a good fire and thoroughly rubbed with Chamberlaiu's Pain Balm. During the evening and night he was repeatedly bathed with this liniment, and by morning was re-lieved of all rheumatic pains. He now takes especial pleasure in praising Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. For sale by all dealers, Bensou, Smith & Co., agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

Havana Flats

is the latest novelty in cigara. This is a perfectly flat cigar. The filler is Havana of a very high grade and laid in, like the sheets of a book, in the same way as cigars that cost $150.00 per thousand. The outside appearance of the cigar conforms to the filler, and is perfectly flat. Those of our cigar customers who have sampled them pronounce the Havana Flats of excellent quality and of unique and attractive shape.

If it had not been for the excellent quality of coffee produced in Kona, it is not likely that foreigners would have been induced to invest their capital in lands in that district nor would the building of a telephone line, such as the new company proposes to construct, have had an existence even on paper. It's the fact that the locality produced in a small way and in the most primitive manner an article which caught the fancy of "canoozers" in the matter of coffee; they wanted more and they were willing to pay a good price, but there were no means of getting it. Investigation demonstrated that the land would produce an unlimited quantity, but the people in the vicinity had not given the proper attention to the cultivation, you all know the result, foreign capital came in and is coming every day, and before another decade the production of coffee will be a leading industry of the islands and the machinery used in pulping, cleaning and putting it through the various processes necessary to make it marketable will come through us. And why? Because we are interested in the coffee business; we know what is wanted and we secure the very latest improvements in coffee machinery. What is good enough for one man may not be good enough for another, but our stock of implements for the coffee business is good enough for all. The industry is still in its infancy and the growers do not know themselves just what they require, but if they will communicate with us, we can give them the necessary information.

The Helen Brewer brought us what charcoal Irons will be needed during the next few months and the price is just what the condition of affairs here warrants. There was a time, not many years ago, where a single charcoal iron cost $5.00. In those days it was a luxury to own one, now it is a necessity and the low price we charge for them enables every one to have one.

We've never done much in the way of Refrigerators because the town seemed to be well supplied, but the prospects for a reduction in the price of ice warrant our carrying a few to accommodate people who want a really superior article—something they may depend upon to keep their meats and vegetables in during the day and over night with-out spoiling. It took an East-ern man to devise something a little better than any other inventor could produce-and we sell them.

For people who live out of town and wish to maintain their own telephone lines we wish to recommend our Long Distance Telephone and Chicago Magneto bells. With these instruments a conversation may be carried on between parties at almost an unlimited distance from each other. We have all the necessary articles used in the construction of private and public lines of telephones and can supply them at the lowest rates.

Among the articles received by the Helen Brewer are Brass Pipe Fittings-Galvanized Pipe and fittings—and Genuine New Bedford Cordage. If you are interested in galvanized pipe get a quotation from us.

AA. T CORNER FORT AND KING STREETS,

Tourist's Notes on Mahukona, Hawaii.

As we approached Mahukona on the steamer Kinau from Kawaihae last Wednesday, the 15th inst., the coast between the latter port and the one we were nearing was very marked. We had left a preliminary foretaste of sheol, and on rounding the lighthouse point at Mahukona were most cordially welcomed by the refreshing trade breeze; it (the breeze) put new life into us, and prepared us to enjoy and appreciate the various sights presented to our view: one ship at the moorings discharging cargo, another laying off and on, several small island schooners gracefully sailing about, and as our steamer dropped anchor she added one more charm to the already pretty scene. We looked ashore, and to our astonishment, our eyes were greeted with the sight of a fine growing forest of algeroba, the hills were well covered with grass, cattle and horses grazing, and the place seemed to be quite livelysteam engines moving, trains evidently ready, flags flying afloat and ashore. On inquiring of an old resident we were informed that the buildings in view of us consisted of the warehouses, etc., of the Hawaiian Railroad Co., store and office of S. G. Wilder & Co., the post office, the custom house, the pilot office, and many other buildings pertaining to a well ordered and thriving seaport. On the advice of our friend, the old resident, we took a run ashore which was soon effected by attaching our boat to an endless surf line, worked by a steam donkey ashore, and reminded us more of a steam launch. On landing on the wharf and walking about we were much pleased with everything we saw. Everyone was busy and, from all appearances, jolly and happy, we shall judge that the location is very healthy, as we were informed that the birthrate is steadily on the increase, and no deaths. Take it all in all there certainly are in my traveled wanderings many less desirable places in the world than Mahukona. From here we go on to Liquid Sunshine, as we are informed this is the latest name for a place com-monly known as Hilo. More anon.

SANDOW'S MUSCLE.

It Is Beaten in a Tussel With a Cork.

Apropos of Sandow, says the Detroit Free Press, a good story is told of an unrehearsed exhibition of muscle in an English railway car. When Sandow "smiles" it is usually a whisky and soda; and on this occasion, after the train had covered some thirty or forty miles he produced from the recesses of his grip a flask, a couple of glasses and a bottle of soda. Then depositing the correct quantity of whisky in the glasses, he stuck a corkscrew into the stopper of the sodawater and pulled. The cork didn't budge, so he took a fresh grip and pulled again-pulled good and hard. Still the cork didn't budge, and a smothered imprecation made the other occupants of the car look up and watch the performance. Once more the strong man braced him self for an effort. His phenomenal muscles stood out till the seams of his coat threatened to crack, and big beads of perspiration stood on his forehead. Still the cork didn't move. Then Sandow got down to business and gave a heave that should have yanked the cork out of sight; but it didn't-and with a blush he resigned it to his friend, a slim-built young fellow of 20, who put the bottle between his knees and easily jerked out the obstreperous cork. Sandow's face was a study, when the other fellows, taking in the humor of the situation, burst out laughing; but the horse was on him and the flask went around.
