CALIFORNIA AND HAWAII.

In 1849 Hawaii was a nursing mother to the adventurous community then pouring into the Golden State. The Islands supplied flour, there being then two grist mills at Wailuku, and potatoes and other perquisites for the bold adventurers on the Sacramento River and elsewhere throughout the State. Among the items of supply from these Islands for California was poi, hard poi in barrels, which Mr. Samuel Brannan sold at Sacramento for the very remunerative price of $150 per barrel. It is to be presumed that this supply of the staple article of food of native Hawaii was to feed numerous adventurous Kanakas, who, leaving the Islands through proffered opportunity, flocked to the New Eldorado, where they met the hardy pioneers who had crossed the continent with slow teams under extraordinary privations and dangers. After three decades, and after a phenomenal national growth, owing to the great stimulus for immigration, the State of California has grown to Imperial proportions, and has far outstripped her early nursing friend, Hawaii, but in the reciprocity of intercourse maintained between this small insular Kingdom and her great continental State neighbor, Hawaii is still able to furnish a valuable quota of products for the convenience and advantage of her near friend, and we are glad at this time to welcome so many representative men from California of her noble agriculturists, professionals and general business men. Many will have an opportunity to study our archipelago, and to observe that though we fall behind them in national proportions, yet our industrial enterprise, our measure of productions, and our general attitude are deserving of the warmest consideration from our Californian visitors. We know we have their friendly consideration, and it should be the aim of every Hawaiian resident, native or foreign, to make every endeavor to impress upon this large body of enlightened visitors that Hawaii is determined, at least by courtesy and assiduous attention, to maintain pleasant relations with the Coast.

THE BOYCOTT IN HAWAII.

The term "boycott" originated recently in Ireland, but the spirit of the thing was in vogue some time ago in these Islands. When Mr. Gibson purchased the P. C. ADVERTISER in 1880, a combination of political opponents, who were influential in business circles, called upon every business man in town and threatened each one with withdrawal of business relations and social ostracism if any patronage was given to the paper under the new proprietorship. The result was that the P. C. ADVERTISER lost in one day twenty-one of its twenty-nine columns of advertisements, and a large number of its subscribers. But new patrons were found and the journal became successful under a new management. The paper has changed hands more than once since that time, and again Mr. Gibson is supposed to be its proprietor; but this is a mistake, as he holds no direct interest whatever, and the indirect interest held by a member of his family is the same that has been held for a number of years. But the Honolulu boycotter of the past has animated the boycotter of to-day to secretly attack Mr. Gibson, and has sent a written circular all over town, calling upon business men to "boycott the old humbug." Now, times have changed since 1880. Business men are now somewhat more independent, and we are desirous of believing somewhat more indignant with any partisan attempt to boycott or ostracize, and the paper this time has not suffered any loss. The spirit of Honolulu is often seen to be most liberal and generous, and disclaims the secret work of the boycotter and social assassin, and the manly portion of the opposition looks with scorn upon the recent attempt to boycott this journal.

THE SAMOANS.
An Interesting Sketch of the People and Their Every-day Life.

The natives of the Samoan group are quite a century behind those of the Sandwich Islands in the matter of civilization. Several boatloads of the merry, irresponsible creatures were grinning up at the quarter-deck as we hove to, and remained gamboling in the sea, slapping each other on the back, drenching each other with water, crying for money and offering shells, berries and fruit for sale until the moment of our departure. For lack of a better term these gentle people must be called "savages," and it is a point in favor of the route home via "Frisco" that this is almost the only place on a mail steamer track where human beings may still be seen in a childlike state of naked simplicity. It is true that some strange races are seen at Aden, at Port Said, off the Javan coast, at Colombo or at Batavia. But none of them are in any sense savage in their customs, but make as keen a bargain as any of their white visitors. The Samoan Islanders, on the contrary, scarcely know the difference between a shilling and a dollar. Their climate yields them the necessities of life without laborious cultivation, and they are as unconcernedly happy as the day is long. So far as I could see, they are far from keeping up with the times in the matter of clothing. Indeed, the half-hundred who paddled round the Mariposa dispensed with some of the articles of attire which their ancestors wore when Captain Cook saw them a century ago. In those days the men wore a mao, a covering for the loins and waist made of tappa, or cloth of bark, and the kiele, or mantle, about 6 feet square. This last is "tied in a knot over one shoulder, passed under the opposite arm, so as to leave it bare, and falling in graceful folds before and behind the knee, so as to bear some resemblance to a Roman toga." The female dress consisted of the pau, a petticoat of tappa reaching to the knees, and the kiele or mantle aforesaid. As this was the national costume of a century back, my lady readers will easily imagine how the fashions have changed with the hundred seasons and their accompanying trains of "new spring clothing" brought by sailing ship or steamer. The changes have been only short of revolutionary. To-day the men wear the mao round the waist without the mantle, and the women wear the pau, or petticoat, without the mantle. These natives are determined not to go ahead too fast in the way of Paris fashions, even if Yankee mail steamers do bring them the European newspapers once a month. A great discussion arose on board as to whether the protection of clothing was really necessary to the well-being of the European races, or whether, in the pursuit of comfort, civilization has in effect destroyed the power of resistance to the weather which Nature had intended for our heritage—a kind of property in "not wanting" of which the most adverse fortune would fail to deprive us. As often happens at sea, and indeed elsewhere for that matter, we had no authorities accessible, but upon settling down once more in Sydney I referred to Montaigne, who expatiates with much ingenious wit upon this very subject. After pointing out that there have been many nations situated in cold climates who have had no knowledge of clothing, he continues: "And, besides, our most tender parts are always exposed to the air, as the eyes, nose, mouth and ears; and our country fellows, like our ancestors, go with their breasts open. Had we been born with a necessity upon us of wearing petticoats and breeches, there is no doubt but Nature would have fortified those parts she intended should be exposed to the fury of the seasons with a thicker skin, as she has done the fingers' ends and the soles of the feet. And why should this seem hard to believe? I observe much greater distance between my mode of dress" (De Montaigne was writing this about the year 1575, and the translation from the French here quoted is by Wm. Hazlitt) "and that of one of our country peasants than betwixt this and a man that has no other covering but his skin. How many men, especially in Turkey, go naked merely upon account of devotion? Somebody, I forget who, asked a beggar whom he saw in his shirt in the depth of winter as brisk and frolicsome as he who goes muffled up to the ears in furs how he was able to endure to go so? 'Sir,' said the fellow, 'you go with your face bare; I am all face.'"

Without following Montaigne any further, because to do so when he begins telling anecdotes would be to go to the furthest ends of the earth with Herodotus, and to take notice of every battle fought between the Persians and Egyptians, the Romans and the Goths, in which clothing or the want of it had concerned, we may notice that our blue-jackets of to-day wear nought but trousers and shirt, and this last so open that both throat and chest are exposed to the cruelty of every storm that blows. Yet these men do not suffer more from diseases of the lungs on that account, as I am assured by an eminent physician, and their tenure of life is as secure as our own. In the same way, these Samoans do not suffer by their exposure to the wind. Indeed, their physique is exceptionally fine. They are a tall, handsome, well-formed people, with fine eyes and white teeth. The men are broad-shouldered, the women are graceful; and the latter will be considered especially pleasing by those who, like the Fairy Queen in "Iolanthe"—"—see no objection to stoutness—in moderation." These merry creatures bared their shells, necklaces of crimson berries, even even the flowers in their hair, for coin of the realm. We verily believe that they would have parted with their mao and pau for a consideration, and we fear we should have had to do all the blushing for both parties to the transaction. After an hour's trafficking the syren blew the departure, and a young gentleman on board, who was more or less proficient on the key bugle, sounded "Horse and Boot" several times with much deliberation. As the visitors hadn't got a horse or a boot to them, and didn't understand the call, the performance was unanimously voted a great success. Far from resembling the "sidi" boys of Aden, who plunge from any height with cheerful slattery, the natives showed a manifest preference for rope-ladders and ropes. Mischievous Quarter-masters would accordingly give them a rope's end, upon which, after cautious trials, the darbies trusted themselves. Then the rope would be cast loose and the luckless wight, if I may so speak of a

"whitey-brown," fell head over heels into the sea, where he was picked up by his laughing companions to the delight of all beholders.

Navigator Islands are 2,274 miles from Honolulu, and Auckland is yet another 1,496 miles further on. With light winds and a calm sea we quickly passed over this distance, and even, as if to show our contempt for landmen's customs, indulged in a week of only six days.—[Sydney Telegraph.]

One of the leading banking firms of that city has sustained a loss claimed to be as great as $300,000. The officers of the institution on coming to the bank one morning found the doors of the vault wide open and all the cash had been carried off with the exception of some bags of silver.

The Yacht Sunbeam.

Lord and Lady Brassey are again upon a voyage round the world in their yacht, the Sunbeam, which arrived at Albany, Western Australia, on May 9th from Mascassar, en route to Adelaide, Melbourne and Sydney. There are not a few among the residents of these Islands, from the Royal Household downwards, who have many a pleasing reminiscence of the Sunbeam's visit nearly a decade ago and who would hail with pleasure the news that they were once more to meet her genial owner and his accomplished wife. We are not as yet aware, however, whether it is their intention to extend their cruise to these waters.

The Mauritius Sugar Crop.

Advices from Port Louis, under date of April 29th, state that as the cyclone season is considered to have passed, it may reasonably be calculated that there will be a good crop to manufacture into sugar during the coming season, provided the abundant rainfalls which have lately obtained throughout the island continue for about two months more. From August 1, 1886, to April 26th of the present year the exports amount to 13,498 tons, or 1,000 kilos, a falling off of 4,871 tons over the same period of 1885-6.

A Former Honolulu Clergyman.

The Rev. W. A. Swan, formerly of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Honolulu, but the past two years rector of St. Paul's Church, Naracorte, South Australia, is meeting with much success. The annual meeting of the church was held April 18th, and a notice of it appears in the South Australian "Chronicle" of April 12th. The following is an abstract: "The number of communicants has very much increased during the past year, the finances are in a satisfactory condition, and there has been a steady growth of the congregation. The wardens thanked Mr. Swan for the great energy shown by him in the discharge of his duties."

"Anglican Church Chronicle."

The "Anglican Church Chronicle" for June makes its appearance on time. It states that the Cathedral building fund is still increasing, the fund in the hands of the Treasurer having reached the sum of $1,400. The editor hopes that an effort will be made to continue the nave to the end of the third bay. The local and foreign church news is very complete. "Our Pilgrimage" is continued. The June number is a very readable one.

Kauai Notes.

WAIKOA, Kauai, June 4th.

Our little harbor here has been well patronized with shipping this week. The arrivals and departures were as follows: Arrivals—Schooners Luka, Emma, Kaulilua, Mary and Caterina and steamer Mikahala. Departures—Steamer Mikahala, schooners Emma, Luka and Mary. Dry weather at present. The Koloa saloon is opened with an assortment of liquors. Our wharf here is sadly in need of repairs.

THE VOLCANO.
The Crater of Kilauea Active—Two Excursions Arranged.

As announced in our issue of yesterday the steamship Kinau arrived from the Volcano with a number of the Masonic excursion party, who were obliged to leave by the Australia. The Kinau was specially chartered, and left here Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, arriving at the Keahou landing at half-past 5 o'clock Sunday morning. After breakfast the party landed, and were soon on their way to the Volcano House. It was reached about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. After a refreshing meal the party descended in the crater and staid there until nearly 8 o'clock in the evening. The New Lake was wonderfully active, and they witnessed a grand sight, one which they all said they never expected to see again. The excellent food they got at the Volcano House was something that surprised them all.

Early Sunday morning the party mounted their horses and rode back to the landing and again boarded the Kinau. The vessel stopped at Kealahou Bay Monday morning, and the party landed and inspected Cook's monument. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning the Kinau was at her dock, after an absence of exactly three days. The party were loud in their praise of the manner in which they were treated by the Captain and officers of the Kinau.

Next Monday, the 13th, the Kinau will leave for the Volcano with others of the excursion party, returning on the 19th. She will on this occasion make a complete tour of the island of Hawaii, and the trip will include a ride of twenty miles on the railroad through the Kohala sugar district.

On the 14th another party will leave for Maui by the Likie. They will visit Spreckelsville, Haleakala and the Iao Valley. Crossing over to Maalea Bay they will board the Kinau on the 20th, and proceed to the Volcano, returning on the 26th. The enterprise of the Wilder's Steamship Company in arranging these trips to suit the visitors is to be highly commended.

The driver of No. 23 express, while under the influence of liquor yesterday, nearly drove into another carriage containing three ladies. It happened at the corner of Fort and Merchant streets, and was a narrow escape from a collision.

In order to avoid the crush usual on race days at the Park, tickets for admission to the grand stand and for general admission will be sold to-day and to-morrow at the office of J. E. Brown & Co., Merchant street. Tickets will be sold for admission to both days' races.

The Otago, N. Z., "Witness" of May 3d has the following: "A Press Association message records the death at Auckland on the 28th instant of an old colonist named Captain Kell, who came to New Zealand in 1839. The deceased was the first white boy to land at Hawaii, where Captain Cook was murdered."

The S. F. "Alta" of May 24th says: "It is reliably stated that the Santa Fe Company will put on a line of steamers between this port and Honolulu soon. The City of Topeka will be one of the line. An effort that promises success is also being made to induce the Spreckels steamers to touch at this port and discharge mails for overland carriage by way of Santa Fe."

ECLIPSE

CHAMPAGNE!

EXTRA DRY.

WE ARE NOW PLACING ON THE market the ECLIPSE CUVEES of 1879 and 1880, which for dryness and bouquet are unsurpassed, and are pleased to inform you that our efforts in producing a Champagne competing with the best Foreign Wines, have been appreciated, dispelling, in a great measure, the prejudice against pure native wines. The ECLIPSE will not only be found in every city in the Union, but has also found a market in the Republic of Mexico and on the Continent of Europe, where it is much appreciated by connoisseurs for its purity, lightness of alcoholic strength and exquisite bouquet and flavor.

WE GUARANTEE OUR

SPARKLING WINES

As absolutely pure, and they are par excellence the SPARKLING JUICE OF THE GRAPE. They are produced precisely as the high-grade French Champagnes, by fermentation in the bottle, REQUIRING TWO YEARS' CURE AND RACKING TO PERFECT, but differing from their foreign competitors in being neither strengthened with spirit nor flavored in any manner. We claim, and can substantiate our claim, that our Champagnes are the purest Sparkling Wines in the world, and quote from the report to a comparative analysis made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: "Of 200 samples of wines analyzed, nothing has been found on this continent equal to the ECLIPSE. Containing only the normal percentage of alcoholic strength in dry wines 10 1/2 per cent., and only 6.51 of Saccharine, and no fictitious flavorings." As a stimulant the ECLIPSE bears the highest recommendation of the leading faculty of the United States, and wherever exhibited for competition with any other Champagnes, either foreign or native, its merits are attested by the highest awards.

We caution you against the impositions of parties East and on the Coast, who are foisting on the market a "gas" or charged wine, under the name of California Champagne. Remember, none are genuine except those bearing our name and brand, on both cork and label, and which are sold with the guarantee of absolute purity.

HONOLULU, May 7, 1887.

HAMILTON JOHNSON, Honolulu:

Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of the sample of Haraszthy "Eclipse" Champagne taken by me from your store, and find that this wine contains no adulteration whatever, the acid present being the natural acid of the grape, while the "bouquet" and gas present are such as would result from the natural fermentation of the wines. Yours very truly,

GEO. W. SMITH,
