Nomination paper Thank you

United States Senate

Your signing of my nomination paper for the office of United States Senator is deeply appreciated. I am very much warmed and inspired by this demonstration of your trust and confidence in my service to the people of Hawaii.

I am certain we have similar hopes and aspirations: a better Hawaii, a better America, and a better world -- for us, our children and our children's children. Although this goal of peace and plenty for all seems distressingly elusive, we should and must continue on this quest. With your help, I want very much to continue my service to Hawaii and our nation.

Mahalo and Aloha,

DANIEL K. INOUE
United States Senator

SPEECH BY SENATOR DANIEL K. INOUE, National Lawyers Wives
Annual Installation Breakfast Meeting, Kaimana Beach Hotel, Honolulu

August 13, 1974 10:00 a. m.

Our country will soon celebrate its 200th birthday -- our bicentennial. On July 4, 1976, 210 million Americans will take the time to count the gifts that we as a nation possess.

A birthday is a celebration and so it should be. A birthday is a ritual of life -- that wondrous gift that only God bestows.

Yet, the birthday celebration of a nation goes beyond blowing out candles on a cake. For the birthday of America marks not so much a biological event as a spiritual one. Our nation was born when 56 courageous men met in Philadelphia to declare our independence from the rule of Britain. That declaration was also a call to war. The signers did not know how long such a war would last, whether the resources of arms and men existed to assure victory or whether such a victory could be won under any circumstances.

These dark days were full of foreboding for a young country. Yet, the signers of that historic document had a given determination to succeed and a spirit of resolve that has marked America since that time. The spirit of America is not doomed to die as is the body of we mortals. Just as we believe that indefinable essence, the soul, will live on, so does this country's soul live on. It is passed from one generation to the next.

Some would assert that the political events of the last few years have assured the descent of the American soul into the fire of hell. Water-gate was a mortal sin they say, and our country has sunk so low that neither man nor God can raise it again.

Others see in these political events some conspiracy against the American people. They claim that a vocal minority, especially those of the press, are tearing this country apart by bringing out every skeleton from every closet. We have all heard the slogans: My Country Right Or Wrong; America Love It Or Leave It. These people believe that we should close our eyes to our imperfections-- that an objective view of ourselves is akin to treason. I think we should have the courage to withstand such scrutiny and view the results.

If one man, if one hundred men, if one thousand men are charged and convicted of crimes against our country, it still doesn't convince me that this country is doomed. Or that new men of strength will not replace those who have fallen, that new patriots will not take the reins of leadership.

We tend to be somewhat embarrassed in our patriotism. Somehow we fear it connotes blind faith. But in the truest sense of the word, a patriot is not blind. He does not believe his country is perfect. A patriot has the courage to keep his eyes open even when the most painful events occur in his midst. He may cry out in distress -- but if he closes his eyes to injustice, he is not a patriot -- he is a coward.

We learn by our mistakes. A wise man is a man of action, he makes mistakes. He is not afraid of them. But he learns through them to temper his actions by his experience.

Man draws on his experience to compose moral codes. Now, no one claims that these codes are perfect. For various reasons, we take exception to them when we are convinced that it is necessary. When a group of men, especially those in power, violate the codes for selfish reasons, corruption is the result.

The basic codes of the lives of most of us are the Ten Commandments and the Constitution. The Constitution seeks to fulfill what the Commandments command -- that we should love our neighbor as we love ourselves. We express our love for our neighbor through our love of country -- and we should love our country enough to bear with its mistakes and change it for the better.

My country right or wrong -- no. My country right when it is right, wrong when it is wrong.

Forgive, but with justice. Forget, but also remember. Laugh, but don't be afraid to cry.

When I cry for my country, I cry because I care. It is time we told our country -- individually and collectively -- how much we love her. If we don't love our country, we are in effect hating ourselves. And if we hate ourselves, this bright, hopeful world will pass us by. Our chance to grasp it, mold it, change it will be lost forever.

We each have our limitations. We have weaknesses as well as strengths. But please stop telling me that you and I -- that our nation -- is doomed to eternal damnation. That the malaise which has been with us this past year is proof of our limitations. If it is proof of our limitations, our willingness and ability to do something about it is no less proof of our vital strength as a free people.

If America can regain faith in herself, we can embark on our third century tempered by our mistakes, but enthusiastic about our future. For every tear we shed for America today, we shall one day shout for joy in the America of tomorrow.

Our Constitution ~~lives on~~. Watergate has brought our nation to the confessional. America may have been scarred but properly healed she will be stronger. We may have been ignorant, but we will be wiser. And if we all believe this is true, it will be so.

The spirit of our country lives on -- but only if we are patriots with eyes open -- whose errand it is to keep our eyes open to wrong -- and to love our country enough to change those things which are wrong. If we are true to this mission, then our bicentennial will not so much mark the end of 200 years as a nation but as the beginning of our third century as a free people in a free nation with a proud past but an even greater future.

Our 200th birthday can indeed be what it should be -- a celebration.

Dear :

I was very happy to have had the opportunity to visit with you during the recent luncheon. I wish to express to you my personal appreciation for your taking the time to join me and your interest and participation in my 1974 campaign for the United States Senate.

Despite the alleged lack of serious opposition to my incumbency, I have assiduously attempted to reveal my political philosophy and social and economic programs to the voters of Hawaii for their reappraisal and reactions. I believe that this is the only honest way a political candidate can demonstrate the sincerity of his beliefs and aspirations to those he seeks to represent. This is the best way to maintain dialogue and rapport with his constituents.

I appreciate your interest in my candidacy and hope that my message during this 1974 campaign has received your general approval.

Please feel free to call on me if I can be of any service to you.

Dear _____:

Congratulations upon your Primary Election victory. As one who knows that politics can be a most demanding--as well as satisfying--occupation, I fully appreciate both the thought and the effort that went into your campaign.

These are particularly challenging times, not only for our state of Hawaii, but for our nation and the world. The people of Hawaii both deserve and need the best possible leadership they can elect in 1974. I believe that the Democratic Party has nominated candidates who can provide that vital leadership.

It is my firm belief that we can work together to help to elect a Democratic team in this General Election.

Mrs. Saunders top vote-getter

Demos win all BOE seats; to be sworn in tomorrow

By TOM KASER
 Advertiser Education Writer

Democrats won all seven Oahu seats on the Board of Education yesterday, thus continuing the overwhelming Democratic dominance that has existed on the board since it became an elective body in 1964.

The seven Oahu victors, in order of how they finished, are Mrs. Marion Saunders, Dr. Richard Ando, Darrow Aiona, Hubert Minn, Noboru Yonamine, George Adachi and Howard Takenaka.

Joining them on the new board will be the two Neighbor Island members, Hiroshi Yamashita and Mrs. Ruth Tabrah, both incumbent Democrats from the Big Island, who won outright in the Primary Election because they had no Republican opponents.

Only one Republican — John Leopold — has ever been elected to the school board. That was in 1968, when there was a special election to fill the seat of a Honolulu board member who resigned.

(Leopold was subsequently elected to the State House of Representatives and was victorious last night in his bid to switch to the Senate.)

THE ONLY other non-Democrat who has gained a seat on the Board of Education was nonpartisan John Connell, when the first school board election was held in 1966.

In yesterday's balloting, retired

University of Hawaii administrator Marion Saunders led the Oahu field. In the Primary Election she had finished seventh.

Dr. Richard Ando, veteran board member who finished second had finished first in the Primary. The other Oahu incumbent, George Adachi, slipped from second in the Primary to sixth in yesterday's election.

Retired Dole Intermediate School principal Howard Takenaka edged out Republican Alf Pratte for the seventh Oahu seat.

THIS WAS Pratte's second unsuccessful bid for the board but this attempt was much closer than his first try in 1970.

All seven Oahu victors were endorsed by major labor unions. Mrs. Saunders, Aiona, and Yonamine were endorsed by seven major unions; Takenaka by six, Adachi by four; Minn by three and Ando by two. Pratte also had two major union endorsements.

Until now, the Board of Education has consisted of 11 members: two from the Big Island, one from Maui County, one from Kauai, one from Leeward Oahu, one from Central Oahu, one from Windward Oahu, one from Honolulu and three from Oahu at-large.

EARLY THIS YEAR, in keeping with the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man-one-vote principle, the board was reapportioned to nine members: two from the Neighbor Islands at-large and seven from Oahu at-large.

Thus board members will no longer represent specific districts within those boundaries.

The new Board of Education will differ from the old in two other ways:

• With four returning incumbents and five newcomers, this will be the newest school board in the history of the State. Never before have so few incumbents sought reelection and survived the Primary.

• This also will be the youngest Board of Education. Never before have so many board members — Aiona, Minn and Yonamine — been under 40.

The new board will have two women — Mrs. Tabrah and Mrs. Saunders — which is one fewer than the outgoing board but about average for the board through the years.

THE NEW BOARD members will take office tomorrow when they are sworn in at the Governor's Office at 10 a.m.

They will lunch together after that and attend an orientation session at 2:30 p.m. in the fourth-floor board room of the Queen Liliuokalani Building.

At that meeting, incumbent board chairman Hiroshi Yamashita will explain the board's role and by-laws. The public is invited to attend the session.

At 7:30 p.m. the board will meet for its first business meeting, also in the Liliuokalani Building board room.

THE ANNUAL election of the board's officers is scheduled to take place at the Nov. 21 board meeting but Yamashita indicated yesterday that he may ask the new board if it wants to elect temporary officers tomorrow.

"In fairness to the new board, which will be dominated by new members, I feel this should be offered," he said.

The Board of Education, which has no money-raising power, normally meets the first and third Thursdays of the month. Board members receive $50 a meeting plus any travel, meals and accommodations involved.

Board member serve four-year terms.

'Excited' poll official is cited for jaywalking

It was a case of unbounded campaign enthusiasm yesterday morning at Vineyard Boulevard and Queen Emma Street.

Fist off, a bunch of teen-agers, in their sign-holding zeal to plug their candidates, got too close to a polling place. Under election laws, there is to be no campaigning within 1,000 feet of a poll.

RESPONDING to a complaint, three uniformed police officers rushed to the scene on their motorcycles. Apparently one officer decided a lecture was not enough and wanted to pass out citations.

Just about this time, Mike Eisenstot, an official election observer, stopped at the intersection.

Eisenstot immediately parked his car and "because I was a little excited and exuberant, I went running over" to the scene to prevent anyone from being cited.

According to Eisenstot, one officer "wanted to write citations and do just about anything imaginable . . . because the guy said he was told to cite violators."

MEANTIME, the young campaigners were saying they would move but how would they know how far 1,000 feet was.

"The officer got mad and said, 'I'm going to give you a ticket for ignoring the red traffic signal,'" Eisenstot said.

It turned out that Eisenstot's ticket was for jaywalking.

For Eisenstot and the rest of the election observers in the Lieutenant Governor's Office, this was the biggest incident all yesterday long.
