BRITISH CRUISER DRAKE MAKES 24 KNOTS

New York, Sept. 25.—A cable to the Sun from London says: The British first-class armored cruiser Drake, 14,100 tons, returned to Portsmouth this evening after undergoing her engine trials, which proved that she is the fastest war vessel in the world out of side of torpedo boat destroyers. She made 24.10 knots, which is high speed for a vessel of her type. The contract provided she should attain a speed of 23 knots. The Drake is 500 feet in length, with 71 feet beam and draws 26 feet. She can store coal for 12,500 miles at the rate of 14 knots. Her thickest armor is six inches and her largest guns 9.2 inch.

PRINCE CUPID ARRIVES HOME

After a Successful Political Tour of Island of Hawaii.

WHERE HE WAS VERY FAVORABLY RECEIVED

JUDGE MAHAULU CERTAIN THAT REPUBLICANS WILL CARRY BIG ISLAND--A WAIPIO INCIDENT.

Among the passengers from Hawaii this forenoon in the Claudine were Prince Jonah Kahanaloale and party who returned from their political tour around the Big Island. This trip was crowned with much success. Judge Mahaulu, who accompanied the Prince on the whole tour, said this noon: "We are quite sure of carrying Hawaii. In nearly all the districts we have a majority of the votes, while in the others, such as Hilo and the Kohalas, the votes seem to be about even."

Prince Cupid was asked to give an account of the prospects in the various districts and, in answer, spoke as follows: "Hilo and the two Kohalas appear to be about evenly divided between Wilcox and myself. Concerning the Kau district, the final outcome is hard to prophesy. I believe that the last man to be there before election will carry that district."

"If I get there last, I am sure of carrying the district, but if Wilcox goes there after me, he may have a good chance of winning out."

"The two Konas, the most important districts, are Republican, and we are sure of the majority of votes there. Hamakua district is also ours, with the exception of Waipio which is a hotbed of the Home Rulers."

"We were somewhat foiled about the meeting we were to have held there. We had given notice that we would hold this meeting in the evening when some one telephoned down saying that we were not coming. A large crowd had gathered but, on learning this, they naturally dispersed so that when we went down, there were only a few people around."

"By sending to the various houses, we got a good sized audience together and had a very good meeting. We were kept answering questions for over two hours and when we had finished, many of the people said that now their eyes had been opened. Still I believe that the Home Rulers will probably have the majority in Waipio."

"In Puna, Kalapana is another hotbed of the Home Rulers but the votes in the rest of the district are about evenly divided. In Hilo and in Kohala I believe the votes are about even for both sides."

"On the whole, the trip was exceedingly successful and reassuring for our party. There are probably more Republican votes in Hawaii now than ever before. The people also displayed a great interest in the tour. All along the roads they would be lined up for hours laden with leis and waiting for us to pass along."

MONEY IN SIGHT

A special meeting of the Merchants' Association was held in the hall of the Chamber of Commerce, Hackfeld building, at 10:25 o'clock this forenoon, with F. W. Macfarlane in the chair. Those present were: F. W. Macfarlane, W. W. Harris, M. Phillips, P. R. Helm, F. W. Waldron, L. E. Plinkham, G. Rodiek, J. A. Gonsalves, A. Gertenberg, W. W. Hall, Geo. Angus, J. F. Soper, C. M. V. Forster, W. Lishman, R. W. Cathcart, J. G. Rothwell, D. Whitman and W. H. Hoogs. The meeting was called for 10 o'clock but the great majority of the members of the Association not having seen the announcement in the Advertiser this morning had to be notified by telephone by Secretary Harris.

Conference With Planters. After the usual preliminaries, Chairman Macfarlane plunged right into the business of the meeting, which was the report of the directors of the Merchants' Association on the recent meeting with the Planters' Association for the consideration of the tourist travel question which is now being taken up generally by the community at large.

Will Push Tourist Travel. Mr. Macfarlane stated that the directors had met with the Planters' Association on Thursday afternoon at their hall. The matter of tourist travel, which had been referred to the directors for action, was presented in this way. It was stated by the directors that this question had been before the community for the past six months or more, but only recently had determined action been taken upon it by the Merchants' Association, which body intended to see the proposition through or drop it. If it was a failure then that was all there was to it. If it was a success then the Association proposed to push it ahead for this was in it.

It was further stated by the directors to the Planters' Association that the merchants of the city had already paid in $19,000 by means of the payment of the 15-cent quarantine fee assessed on each ton of cargo.

It was understood by the Association that $600 a month was being appropriated to the Board of Health for the purpose of inspections. The appropriation of the Board had run out and as it was absolutely necessary for these inspections to be carried on, the amount mentioned was being devoted to that purpose. Further than that, $500 was being appropriated each month for the fumigation of the various wharves.

It was further stated to the planters that the directors understood a certain amount was being paid each month on the account of Castle & Cooke's claim in re the channel wharf. What this amount was had not been learned. Further, a certain amount was being paid monthly for the bulkheading of the wharves.

Information Was Correct. Mr. Macfarlane stated that he then asked if the information which the directors of the Merchants' Association had received were correct. J. P. Cooke and T. Clive Davies, the treasurers of the fund, were present at the meeting, and the former made answer, stating that the item of $600 for inspection by the Board of Health and that of $500 or thereabouts for fumigating wharves, were correct; also, a start had been made in the matter of paying Castle & Cooke a certain amount monthly. Money was needed for the construction of the bulkheads and Castle & Cooke stated that they would wait, thus allowing the money set aside for them to be used for the purpose indicated. Mr. Cooke stated further that he did not have with him the data as to the amount of money collected, but he would furnish the Association with the figures later on. However, he believed that $19,000 was about the correct figure.

First Proposition Unfavorable. This matter having been disposed of, the directors then made a suggestion to the Planters, which was to the effect that the Merchants' Association take the whole of the 15 cents collected as a quarantine fee on each ton of merchandise imported and use it for the purpose of promoting tourist travel to the islands.

There was considerable discussion by the planters on this proposition, which did not seem to meet with their ideas. It seemed to be their opinion that some of the money from the fund should go toward the promotion of tourist travel and that same should be held back until the other obligations had been all paid up.

Second Proposition Favorable. It was at this point that the directors changed their original proposition and substituted the following: That the $600 to the Board of Health and the $500 for wharf fumigating purposes be retained and that the balance be used for the purpose of promoting tourist travel to the islands.

There was considerable discussion on this proposition, but the planters finally asked the directors of the Merchants' Association to put it in the shape of a communication which they would consider at a meeting where there was a fuller representation of the members. The president and a number of the most prominent members were absent.

Further Time Needed. Chairman Macfarlane went on to say that at the present rate the fund from the 15-cent quarantine fee, would amount to $25,000 a year. This was how the whole matter stood and the directors had called a meeting for the purpose of asking the Association for further time.

Could Have Ten Cents. Continuing, Chairman Macfarlane stated that he had seen J. P. Cooke after the meeting with the planters. Mr. Cooke had said he was not quite clear on the matter but he was of the opinion the bulkheads and the Castle & Cooke claim were very largely liquidated, and that the finances were in such a shape that 10 cents of the fee could be paid to the Merchants' Association every month. This, then, was the proposition which the directors were working on now. The matter was well in hand and the directors wanted ten days more.

Questions and Answers. Referring again to the meeting with the planters, Chairman Macfarlane stated that a question had been asked the directors of the Association as to the progress that had been made, the plan of conducting the work, and what money had been secured. The directors had made answer that the plans would be made according to the means. It was the intention to first learn what was available.

The directors were then asked if the Merchants' Association had any idea as to the general plan of the work and the directors had made answer that the members of the Association had their ideas but that the subject had not been freely discussed and there had been no free exchange of these ideas. The members were waiting to see what was available.

Cause a Worthy One. The planters expressed the opinion that the cause was a worthy one and that they felt they could entertain the last proposition (that of taking all that was left when the $600 to the Board of Health for inspections and $500 for the fumigation of wharves had been paid), which the directors had presented.

Street Talk. Chairman Macfarlane said that a great deal had been said on the streets since the meeting on Thursday and expressions as to how the plan should be conducted had been freely made. The public should know all the details since the matter was one in which all were interested. He believed it to be the proper thing when the directors could report satisfactory results as to the raising of funds to call a large meeting for expressions from the community at large.

Hotels, Railroads, Streetcars. Once more reverting to the meeting with the planters, Chairman Macfarlane stated that a question had been asked as to where the hotels, railroads and street car companies would get off in the general plan, for they were not importers of merchandise.

The directors made answer that after it was found out the fund could be raised on bills of lading, then the matter of the assessments on the bills of lading could be taken up and special assessments could be made on the hotels, railroads and street car companies.

This completed the report of the directors and, on motion of Mr. Hoogs, an extension of ten days was granted them.

Band to 'Frisco. Mr. Hoogs brought up the matter of J. C. Cohen and his proposition of taking the band to the Coast. As the communication of Mr. Cohen was addressed to the board of directors, the Association took no action, but the sense of the meeting was that the association should not move in the matter.

ONLY FOUR MORE DAYS IN WHICH TO REGISTER.

CLAIMS TO HAVE CURED A LEPER

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 25.—
Dong Kong, a Chinese leper patient at the St. Louis quarantine hospital, is recommended for discharge as cured by Dr. M. C. Woodruff, superintendent of the hospital. In a letter to Health Commissioner Starkloff, received Thursday morning, Dr. Woodruff writes: "The condition of Dong Kong, the patient sent to this institution November 6, 1901, with leprosy, has progressed so favorably that I would suggest that some steps be taken to have him discharged. I would advise that the physician who made the diagnosis, together with those who confirmed it, be invited to inspect and examine him, with a view to his discharge as cured."

WEEDON REPORTS HIS OPERATIONS

He Has Gone to Deliver Lectures In Southern California.

COMPLETED SUCCESSFUL SEASON AT OAKLAND

LOOK A RUN TO LAKE TAHOE. INDUCED TOURISTS TO STOP OVER HERE FROM S. S. CHINA.

Walter C. Weedon, agent and lecturer for the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association, writes to Secretary James G. Spencer of the former body under date of San Francisco, September 26.

He had completed his engagements at Oakland, where he had interesting and satisfactory audiences. Between that time and the date of giving a lecture at Twelfth street, San Francisco, he ran up to Lake Tahoe. There being no gas there for his lantern, he gave a parlor talk, several of those present becoming much interested in Hawaii, some of whom may visit the islands next year.

Mr. Weedon bewails the lack of advertising literature relating to the islands and gives a list of people to whom he would like such reading matter sent.

The night of the day he wrote he was going to Los Angeles, at which place and San Diego he would deliver a series of lectures.

Mr. Weedon induced several tourists going in the steamer China to stop over at Honolulu.

LONG'S NEW OFFICE.

New York, Sept. 25.—John D. Long, ex-Secretary of the Navy, has been chosen president of the board of overseers of Harvard University, says a Boston dispatch to the Times. Deans were elected, as follows: Harvard College, Byron Satterlee; graduate school, John Henry Wright; Lawrence Scientific School, Nathaniel S. Shaler; dental school, Eugene H. Smith.

Admiral Beckley reports the following sugar left at Hawaii ports ready for shipment: Oahu, 1200; Waialae, 8000; Hawaii Mill, none; Waialeale, 10,800; Onomea, none; Pepeekeo, none; Hanalei, none; Hanalei, none; Lanipahoehoe, none; Okaia, none; Kukui, 500; Hamakua, none; Paauhau, none; Honokaa, 50; Kukuiahae, 100; Punaluu, none; Honaunoo, 4600.

CUPID WILL WIN

(Hilo Tribune.)
A gentleman competent to judge of public opinion on this island returned last Saturday from a trip through Hamakua. He gives it as his belief that Prince Cupid will carry this island by a safe majority. He finds on inquiry among the Hamakua wallans that they are more than willing to drop Wilcox for Prince Cupid. In notorious Home Rule strongholds the sentiment in favor of Wilcox is noticeably on the decline. The bets on this island are in the Prince's favor.

WILCOX NOT APPLICANT

Charles Wilcox was asked this morning regarding his endorsement by the Home Rule executive committee for the position of chief clerk. He said: "I appreciate the confidence and esteem which my fellow countrymen express towards myself. Their action in the premises was without solicitation on my part as I am not an applicant for the position of Chief Clerk in the Public Works Department."

FIGHT BELL TELEPHONE.

Wilmington, Del. Sept. 25.—A deed of trust for $100,000,000 was filed here today for the International Telephone Company, which proposes to fight the Bell company. It was recently incorporated in the State, with $1,000,000 nominal capital, and application will probably be made in a few days for an increase of capital to $200,000,000. The deed of trust is signed to cover a bond issue. The company, which is now operating in Louisiana, claims to have plants and patents which will enable it to operate systems at one-fifth the present cost, and proposes to do business on a basis of 2 cents per call.

BRITISH EMBASSADOR HERBERT.

New York, Sept. 27.—Sir Michael Herbert, the newly appointed British Ambassador to the United States, will leave here today for Washington.

Vote for Camara, Independent candidate for the Fourth District.

Actress Claimant

1. CHARGED With Conspiracy

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 26.—If Laura Biggar, the former actress, can be found tomorrow she will be arrested, charged with conspiracy to divert the $2,000,000 estate of the late Henry M. Bennett to herself. A warrant for her arrest was issued today on the application of Peter J. McNulty, who was private secretary to the Pittsburgh millionaire and is a beneficiary under the will.

At the same time he swore out warrants for Dr. C. C. Hendrick of Bayonne, N. J., who has been both physician and lawyer for Miss Biggar, and for former Justice of the Peace Samuel Stanton, who recently made oath that he married Bennett and Miss Biggar on January 2, 1898.

These two, with Miss Biggar, are accused of entering into a plot, about July 1, to secure to the latter the whole of Bennett's estate by seeking to establish a marriage between Bennett and Miss Biggar and the birth of a posthumous child, which, under the laws of the State where Bennett lived, would invalidate the will, giving the whole fortune to the child and its mother, and by the death of the supposititious child, fifteen days after its birth, convey the whole to Miss Biggar. In Bennett's will Miss Biggar got $500,000.

The fight of the former actress for the millions of Henry M. Bennett came to a sudden and dramatic ending when she, through counsel, abandoned the suit and announced that she would be satisfied with the 60 per cent of the estate given her by the will.

Hardly had this been done when counsel for the heirs opposing the Biggar claim showed that they had been more than prepared for this step, and warrants charging conspiracy were served on Samuel Stanton, the former Justice of the Peace of Hudson county, who testified that he had performed the marriage ceremony, and Dr. C. C. Hendrick, at whose sanitarium in Bayonne it was alleged that Miss Biggar's child was born.

The steamers Niihau and Kauai sailed for Kauai and Maui ports, respectively, today each with about 40 Japanese laborers for the plantations there.

Mrs. Coquard, a sister of Mrs. Hitchcock leaves in the Doris this afternoon to continue her tour of the world after a number of weeks visit in Honolulu.

J. C. Axtell has removed his safe, monument and iron fence business from Beretania and Miller streets to 1044 Alakea, between King and Hotel.

There will be a game of polo at Kapiolani park at the usual time this afternoon.

Judge Estee holds court this afternoon for naturalizing aliens.

A new session of the Supreme Court will open on Monday.

ELECTRIC CARS FOR WAIKIKI

Working cars are now running over the extension across McCut-ly tract of the Waikiki electric railway line. Secretary J. H. Fisher of the Rapid Transit and Land Company with others rode over the extension yesterday. It is expected that the line will be opened for passengers next Wednesday to a point near the junction of Waikiki and Kalia roads. From thence it is but a five minutes' walk to the nearest sea-bathing resorts.

ROOSEVELT IMPROVING

Washington, Sept. 26.—The condition of President Roosevelt's injured leg shows steady and satisfactory progress toward improvement. There is only a slight perceptible change in the healing process, as it is naturally slow and tedious.

The President spent the day very quietly, his principal visitor being Secretary Moody, who had some Navy Department matters to bring to his attention. Dr. Rixey called for a short visit about 4 o'clock, and Dr. Lung, the President's regular physician, was with him for a short time.

This morning the President sat up on a lounge in his room, read the papers and attended to some executive business. None of the members of the Cabinet called before noon, and no visitors were admitted to his room. The President is obeying strictly the instructions of the physicians for absolute rest and quiet, although the activity is exceedingly irksome to him.

Dreary, rainy weather outside yesterday and today has in nowise affected the President's spirits, and he is as cheerful as possible in his enforced confinement.

Vote for J. M. Camara, the people's candidate for the Legislature.

KALIHU PROPERTY SOLD.

L. L. McCandless today noon bought at auction the house and lot of Olaf Bergstrom at Kaluopalea, Kalihui, for $2200. The lot is 21,594 square feet in dimensions and contains a dwelling and other buildings. Will E. Fisher conducted the sale at the Judiciary building, it being made under a foreclosure of mortgage to Cecil Brown, trustee.

The steamer Lehua arrived from Maui, Lanai and Molokai ports a little before noon today. She brought 149 head of sheep from Kaunakakai, 4 cords wood, 6 hogs and 22 packages sundries. Purser Knell reports that five weather was enjoyed throughout the trip.

The Summer trial was given a rest over today.

EVANS AFTER BOXERS

Washington, Sept. 27.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, second in command on the Asiatic station, and shortly to assume supreme command of the United States naval forces in the East, has been sent up the Yang Tse river to investigate and report on the conditions in the provinces of China, which, according to reports from Minister Conger are about to become the scenes of another Boxer uprising.

The Navy Department received a cablegram from Admiral Evans today stating that he had transferred his flag from the battleship Kentucky to the gunboat Helena and sailed from Woo Sung aboard the latter vessel for Ichang, which is the highest point in the great Yang Tse river to which a vessel of the Helena's draught can go. Ichang lays about 800 miles from the mouth of the Yang Tse and is in the province of Hupeh. About 100 miles to the west is the eastern border of Sze Chuan province, in which the massacre of native Christians and the destruction of the chapels erected by the missionaries occurred.

DANCING TONIGHT ON PACIFIC HEIGHTS

C. S. Desky is always introducing new and delightful features upon Pacific Heights, these, together with the unparalleled atmosphere of the place, making it most popular to all classes of people.

His latest attraction consists in a dancing pavilion 30 x 40, at the top of the Heights, on the hotel side and near to the tea house. The pavilion is a splendid affair and Mr. Desky has arranged to have public dances up there on Tuesday and Saturday nights. Men will be charged a nominal admission fee of twenty-five cents and women will be admitted free.

The first dance will take place tonight and the public is cordially invited to attend. There will be three cars running, so that the people will be well provided for in the matter of transportation. After the dance, the three cars will be at the upper terminus so that there may be no delay in the return of all the people to the city.

A fine quintet club will furnish music for the occasion. There is no question whatever that the event will be a most pleasurable one.

Mr. Desky states that these public dances will be the regular thing and that on all evenings except Tuesdays and Saturdays, the pavilion may be secured by private parties.

Franz Wilczek, the famous violinist now visiting Honolulu, will make an appearance in the city. This will be at the opera house on the night of October 14 and all those who thirst after the best music should not miss the chance of hearing this artist who is more than favorably known in both American and Europe.

STRONG AND YOHE

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 25.—It is believed that the marriage of Putnam Bradlee Strong and May Yohe, who arrived here Sept. 4th, will take place next Saturday.

ROSEHILL'S CLAIM

Washington, Sept. 26.—A news letter received here from Honolulu, where Captain Rosehill, the claimant of Marcus Island, arrived some weeks ago, says that Rosehill and his guano company proposes to ask Japan for an indemnity of $4,000,000 for her action in ousting him from the island and also in compensation for her seizure of the island. Rosehill's attorney is about to prepare the papers to be forwarded to the State Department to make out Mr. Rosehill's case.

Rosehill did not arrive at Marcus Island until after the departure of the Japanese cruiser, which was sent there with advice to Mr. Rosehill from the State Department to make no trouble about the possession, but to leave it to diplomatic negotiations.

MONTANO VS. CASTLE

TENTATIVE DECISION BY COMMISSIONER NAKUINA

JOHN K. SUMNER LUCIDLY ANSWERS QUESTIONS OF PEOPLE TRYING TO PROVE HIM INSANE.

A bill in equity for accounting has been brought by Mary J. Montano against W. R. Castle, who sold Manoa valley property of hers to W. C. Achil for $25,000 on December 30, 1899. Part payment was a promissory note for $6,000 for three years at 7 per cent secured by a purported mortgage on certain dairy property. Thereafter plaintiff received $700 on account of the note. She complains that the dairy mortgage was not a good and sufficient evidence of the property, as its description was faulty, it provided no lien on increase of live stock, and was improperly and carelessly drafted, etc. Plain. It asks for an order to defendant to pay to her all moneys belonging to her now in his possession.

Mrs. E. M. Nakuina, Commissioner of Private Ways and Water Rights, has rendered a skeleton decision on the Pakolo water controversy, which she will amplify if the parties agree to the awards. In the event of objections she will hold herself free to render a strict construction of the law of the matter. The hearing of the case occupied several weeks. Mrs. Nakuina announces her intended resignation on account of advancing years.

John K. Sumner was called as a witness on behalf of the petition to put him under guardianship and occupied the stand throughout the afternoon session. Witness testified that he was 82 years of age on September 13 last. He said that he came to Honolulu from Tahiti on the last occasion, August 20th of this year. In response to questioning by Mr. Magoon witness said that upon his arrival here Mrs. Buffandeau took him to her house. He stated that he had no money at that time, but that was not the reason he went with his niece, as he could have obtained money from the Bishop. His relatives are a sister, Mrs. Davis, and her son, and three other nephews and nieces, the children of his brother's daughter, Mary Sumner Ellis. He said he had been married to a Tahitian princess, Ninito by name. He admitted having deeded all of his property to Wilcox and Theresa but said that it had been afterward deeded back to his wife, and this had been done because of a dispute with R. W. Davis over the land, and was for the benefit of Mrs. Sumner. He was unable to state what sort of a paper the deed was which was shown to him, saying it might be a note, or deed of trust, or something else, but explaining that he fully understood its contents. At this point he asked Magoon to talk to him in Hawaiian, to which the attorney replied that he was willing, but opposing counsel would object. The remainder of the examination was conducted partly in English and partly in Hawaiian. Witness testified that there had been further transactions in connection with the same property, one of which was with W. R. Castle, when he sought to raise money by mortgage, in order to buy Waikiki land from a Chinaman. The witness was questioned at length in regard to his visits to Honolulu, and stated the exact date of a former visit as January 7, 1897, saying he had returned to Tahiti in 1901, five years later.

All the witnesses in the case have been excused subject to summons as required. This was made necessary by the length of time consumed by the two witnesses already on the stand, Judge De Bolt not deeming it necessary that business men and others should be compelled to remain in constant attendance upon the court.

BASEBALL GAME TODAY.

There will be another game of baseball on the Makiki grounds this afternoon, the competing teams to be the Brunswicks and Makikis. The personnel of the two teams will be as follows:

Makiki: Geo. Bruns, c.; H. Honan and O'Sullivan, p.; H. Bruns, 1b.; M. Simpson, 2b.; J. Williams, 3b.; C. En Gue, ss.; J. Hanaman, lf.; J. Aylett, cf.; T. Honan, rf.; substitutes: King, Wm. James, F. Freitas, Akoni.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

There will be a special music service by the choir in St. Andrew's Cathedral at the evening service. The following numbers from Mendelssohn's Elijah will be given:

Quartet—Cast My Burden

Choir.

Tenor Solo—If With All Your Hearts

A. C. Wall.

Alto Solo—O Rest in the Lord

Roumanian Jews Are Not Benefitted

Berlin, Sept. 25. — The Tageblatt today prints a letter from Bucharest, capital of Roumania, dated Sept. 23, as follows: "The Washington note came like a ray of sunshine from a storm cloud for the Jewish population, and especially the laboring classes, who conceived the hope that a favorable turn must result from the interference of mighty America. But their jubilation has been of short duration. The only effect that the American note has had so far is an order, according to the Roumanian newspapers, that no more emigrant passports be issued without the usual tax. It is even reported that no emigration passports will be granted. The spirit of the Government is, 'We are masters here.' Nevertheless, it is disposed to be polite and considerate toward the United States. It intends to show this by preventing emigration to the United States."

"There is much talk here about 'Yankee arrogance,' but they laughed in their sleeves so long as the American note was without European support. But the news that England had followed with a similar step caused great vexation. If the Continental powers act jointly it is possible that the Roumanian Jewish question may become acute. But the Government has had much experience in meeting protests in behalf of the Jews."

ALGER FOR SENATOR

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 25. — After a long and laborious session, in which more partisan strife was in evidence than has been seen in conferences of the Republican party in this State for many years, the Republican State Convention today endorsed the Senatorial candidacy of General William L. Carpenter of Detroit for Justice of the Supreme Court.

General Alger's friends won a great victory over the supporters of Dexter M. Ferry of Detroit, the test of strength having been made on a motion to adopt the minority report of the committee on resolutions to the effect that an expression of sentiment on the Senatorial candidacy of any one be taken. The test vote by a roll call of counties rejected the minority report by a vote of 588 notes to 427 ayes. The majority report which endorsed General Alger was then adopted without an opposition vote amid loud applause from the Alger supporters.

PATTERSON BUYS DENVER TIMES.

Denver, Col., Sept. 25. — The announcement was made today that the Denver Evening Times was sold to United States Senator Thomas M. Patterson and R. C. Campbell for $100,000, the change of management to occur October 1. Senator Patterson is the principal owner of the Rocky Mountain News, and Campbell, who is Mr. Patterson's son-in-law, is business manager of the News. It is said that the Times will be issued from the News office, but will be an entirely separate publication. It will be changed from a Republican to a Democratic paper.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1902.

The ragged edge of the great Wall street stock boom is coming into sight when the New York banks begin to shut down on loans. Even Wall street can't learn by experience.

The San Francisco Chronicle's response to Hawaii's plea for limited Chinese labor indicates that a good deal of missionary work needs to be done to convince Californians of our local industrial necessities.

The great saving made by the Southern Pacific through the use of oil fuel is a clear demonstration that a good dividend is in sight for the Hawaiian plantations that contemplate the establishment of oil plants for pumping stations.

Mr. Weedon's statement that he struck a town not supplied with gas, so he gave a talk, might give rise to adverse comment if Mr. Weedon were not engaged in a work of marked benefit to Hawaii.

Honolulu registration is rolling up very satisfactory figures for the Republicans. There are a few hundred, however, who have yet to fulfill their obligation to themselves and the community. These voters must register if they hope to pull the Territory out of the sloughs of depression.

Funston has been talking again. This time it is criticism of Congressional abolition of the army cadet. It is very doubtful whether President Roosevelt will call him to account on this occasion, as the truths stated by Funston are brought home to every army officer and every resident in close proximity to an army post.

The chief illustrative features of this issue present snapshots among the officers of the Federal courts. There is no department in the islands, either Territorial or Federal, whose officials are accorded more universal respect than the working force of the United States District Court. Unfailing courtesy and strict attention to duty is the atmosphere of the court over which Judge Estee presides.

Prince Cupid returns from his Hawaii trip with the Republican majority of that island in his pocket. The Republican candidate has shown himself such a capable, earnest worker in the political field as to inspire even a greater degree of confidence in his ability to cope with the duties that will devolve on him as Territorial Delegate.

The tourist travel program of the Merchants' Association appears to be working out in a way that will prove very practical and wholly satisfactory, although somewhat at variance with the scheme first proposed. It all goes to show that it pays to get out of the rut, and that the business men of Honolulu are determined to move forward on progressive lines. The aggressive business unity that is being brought about by the mercantile organization is certain to have its good effect upon the community in all semi-public movements that promote civic progress.

CURIOUS CRINKLES

Cable ships are the attending angels of development.

The cable will be a disappointment if it fail to flash an occasional rise in sugar.

Wonder is frequently heard expressed that Treasurer Wright did not take the whole of the Chinese fund once he broached it. The fact should indicate merely that he never intended to keep what he did take. It is the general rule of embezzlements. Monkeying with trusts, public or private, is like fooling with guns not known to be loaded.

The Democrats are trying to get into the circus under the tent flaps.

Young Teddy Roosevelt objects to being the hero of adventures that never occurred. He knows that Dad's rise was not that of a hot air balloon.

It has remained for a Honolulu philosopher to represent broken fortune as prima facie evidence of untrustworthiness.

What a lot of little hammers are there rusting now that the Senatorial Commission is gone!

Home rule is all right when it is of the people. When it means domination by demagogues the name is a lie.

The community is now so abundantly supplied with political platforms that it would seem one or two plans might be spared to lay across Fort and King on rainy days.

St. Louis has an exhibition this year—eighteen city fathers of the upper municipal house in jail.

Wilcoxiana will not be exhausted of resources until an electric subway connecting all the islands is promised.

Extension of the national land laws to Hawaii would put it in the power of corporations to acquire the entire domain of the Territory, judging by the failure of those laws to prevent the crowding out of small farmers throughout the entire West now in too rapid periods.

Periodicals are debating whether women possess the sense of humor. Men who have any doubt on the subject must be those who need to ask their wives, upon an explosion of mirth in a sedate assembly, what the laugh is about.

Municipal incorporation must not be expected to be a success in a day. "Rome," you know. But being the basis of self-government throughout the English-speaking world, we must make a beginning with it some time—shaping experience with as few painful features as we may. Now is as good a time as later, when the few men supposed capable of running the country are all dead.

LAUGHTER AS A STOMACH CURE.

[London Family Doctor.]

Worry is but one of the many forms of fear, so that worry tends to the production of indigestion. Indigestion tends to put the body of the subject in a condition that favors worry. There is thus established a vicious circle which tends to perpetuate itself, each element augmenting the other. It is necessary to secure a cheerful, wholesome atmosphere for the dyspeptic. He should eat his meals at a table where there is good fellowship and where funny stories are told. He should himself make a great effort to contribute his share of this at the table, even if he is nervous, as it was in one case under my care, for him to solemnly and seriously collect funny paragraphs from the press, and at first interject them spasmodically during lulls in the conversation at the table. The very efforts and determination of the man to correct his own silent habits at table, to correct his feelings of discouragement and worry, were in themselves a promise of success. The effort made was adequate to the obstacles to be overcome. He succeeded and the spectacle of that man trying to be funny at table when he felt thoroughly discouraged and blue is one we shall never forget.

Laughing is in itself also a useful exercise from the standpoint of digestion. It stirs up all the abdominal organs, it increases the circulation of the blood, it increases peristalsis, it increases the secretion of gastric juices. Five minutes' deliberate laughing after each meal would be an excellent prescription for some people.

WHENCE COMES SCORCHER?

[London Chronicle.]

Whence does the "Scorchers" derive his dishonored name. A recently published Platonic dialogue on bicycles suggests a resemblance to the squirrel with its rapid motion and the clutch of its forepaws—and the Greek squirrel called himself "skioros." Hence "squirrelers" or "scorchers." You need not take this very seriously, for neither the average scorcher nor the policeman who tried to arrest him is familiar with Greek. Webster in the latest supplement notices the word, but shirks the origin. To "scorch" is to "ride very rapidly, especially on a bicycle." After all it is probable only an extension of the common phrase, "the pace was hot."

By order of the city authorities, the practice of employing women to sift refuse at the corporation's depot, Letts Wharf, Lambeth, London, is to be gradually discontinued.

L. L. Hawes, of Fort Worth, Tex., was the chair on which Jesse James stood when shot by Bob Ford.

NEILL GOT DECISION

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—At the end of the twentieth round of their battle at Woodward's Pavilion last night both Al Neill and Young Peter Jackson were on their feet, fighting furiously, and Referee Eddie Graney awarded the decision to the white boy on a shade that was so slight as to make the verdict appear doubtful. It was a grueling mill from start to finish, but one in which Jackson did not show to advantage. An easy victory was lost for him when the articles were signed, for a clause was inserted which said that hitting in clinches was prohibited and that the men must break clean at the order of the referee. For fear of fouling Neill, Peter overplayed the part. He not only waged a clean battle all the way, but he was so cautious in the matter of hitting after the referee ordered them to break that the overlooked innumerable chances to land crushing blows. Infighting in his style, he dropped his hands every time they came together and waited for Neill to steady himself and assume a defensive attitude before he renewed hostilities.

In no way can the affair rebound to the California's credit unless it be in his nerve in taking on such a hard proposition as Jackson. At the end he was the more tired of the pair, and he had a badly battered face. During the fight his cleverness seemed to depart entirely at times, and in two rounds he was so much at sea that his seconds grew frantic in their efforts to give him instructions. In at least half a dozen other rounds he appeared lucky to finish at all because he was plainly in distress. At no time was this true of Jackson, but Al jabbed time and again when the black man pressed him close, and upon that basis—the one of leading and landing the greater number of blows, no matter what the effect—he received the decision.

ONLY FOUR MORE DAYS IN WHICH TO REGISTER.

DEADLY TORNADO.

London, Sept. 26.—A dispatch from Rome today announces that a severe cyclone has swept over Catania, a city on the eastern coast of Sicily. Catania is flooded and many houses, including the Villa Bellini, are damaged. The roads have suffered seriously. The cyclone also wrought havoc at Modica, a town of Sicily, where several persons were killed. Mount Aetna shows further signs of activity and the volcano of Stromboli is still active.

A dispatch from Syracuse, Sicily, says that the stream flowing through Modica, swollen by the recent terrific storm, suddenly overflowed, inundating the town and that several houses collapsed and a number of families perished. The country in the vicinity of Modica is flooded and the Prefect, with a large force of troops, has started for that place in order to render assistance to the sufferers.

This season's salmon pack on the Columbia river amounted to about 113,000 cases. The total catch is estimated equal to 150,000 cases.

A WARM YARN FROM THE WEST.

[Washington Star.]

That famous old story which describes the intensity of the heat at Yuma, Arizona, is in danger of losing its prestige as the ultimate strain upon credulity. Here comes a yarn from San Francisco about weather in the great Colorado Desert which puts a premium upon further inventions to picture the heat of the southwestern climate. Some settlers discovered that the soil of the desert was so rich that they ventured to dig a well in the midst of it and to irrigate the land. They were successful, and last season raised a great crop of melons on sixty acres. This year they went in for bigger results and planted 900 acres with a resulting yield which promised to return no less than $360,000 when marketed. The melons were all but ready for picking when a sand storm arose and lasted for three days. During that time the lowest temperature in the shade was 126 degrees and when the end came the farmers found that every melon on the vines had been literally cooked. Big things, and better things than cooked melons, will come out of the Colorado Desert yet.

HINT TO THE ENGAGED.

[New York Sun.]

Engaged men ought to be more careful. A rich man's daughter in Union Hill took two ounces of carbolic acid the other day because her fiancé made an evening call on her which was "not as long as usual." We mention her father's wealth, because many prudent youths have no objection to a forehanded father-in-law. If they are lucky enough to become engaged, they must look to their steps and hours. The case craves wary walking. If the young man stays too long, Elly Jane may yawn in his face, or papa growl and yell the time of night. If he goes away too soon, the light of his eyes may try to snuff herself out. A Congress of the Engaged should prescribe the minimum, the average and the maximum length of a call on the beloved one.

THE HALFWAY PACIFIC ISLANDS.

[New York Sun.]

The Marcus Island incident—if it can be called an incident—was terminated promptly and justly by the refusal of the Department of State to support the claim of an American citizen to the proprietorship of that island under the Act of August 18, 1856. Such title as Captain Rosehill might have acquired by discovery and occupation had lapsed years ago through his failure to comply with the plain provisions of the law. The rightful possession of Marcus by its present Japanese occupants, or the sovereignty of Japan thereover, is not disputed at Washington.

At Plougenastel, a small town in Brittany, all the weddings of the year are celebrated on one day. In February last 34 couples were married simultaneously.

In South Australia there exists a language test for intending immigrants. Unless a man can speak or write English he is not permitted to land.

Chasing Corruption Of St. Louis Politics

St. Louis, Sept. 26.—Developments in the "bottle" investigations were rather sensational today, subpoenas deo tunc having been issued at the instance of Circuit Attorney Folk, commanding Broker James Campbell and William Reed, his cashier, to appear in court and bring two checks aggregating $47,500, dated November 27, 1899, and payable to Ed. Butler, a prominent local politician, and explain the purpose for which the checks were drawn.
It was found on investigation by the Grand Jury that both checks had been cashed and returned to Broker Campbell. The date of the checks was November 28, 1899, the day on which the ten-year lighting bill passed the House of Delegates for which nineteen members are said to have received $2500 for their votes.
Up to a late hour deputy sheriffs were unable to serve the subpoenas. At Broker Campbell's office it was stated that Reed had not been there since yesterday and that his employer was somewhere in the East.
Another session of the Grand Jury was held today, several witnesses being examined. Tomorrow the last session before the final meeting and report on Monday will be held.
John K. Murrell stated on his return from Mexico that at Delegate Julius Lehman's birthday party $47,500 had been distributed by Charles F. Kelly to the House combine, numbering nineteen members, each receiving $2500. On this information Kelly and several other colleagues of Murrell were indicted. All are now charged with bribery both in this case and in the Suburban bill safe deposit case.
The checks were traced by Folk after a thorough canvass of St. Louis banks. This canvass was recently made by a committee of the Grand Jury to save the banks the inconvenience of taking all their books before the Grand Jury. The checks were found to have been duly drawn, paid and returned to Campbell.

The lighting bill was passed in the City Council October 27, 1899, and in the House of Delegates on November 28 following. Shortly after the passage of the bill by the House came Lehman's "birthday party."

The eighteen members of the House of Delegates who changed their votes on the bill after its defeat at first, together with Robertson, who was absent when it was defeated, but who voted for its passage, are the same men who are now indicted on the charge of accepting the $47,500.

CHINESE PIRATES.
Peking, Sept. 27.—Complaints are made by American shippers that piracy is increasing on the Shan-Tung coast and it is said there is a prospect of great losses in junk cargoes being sustained. United States Minister Conger will ask the authorities to use the Chinese war ships now idle at Chee Foo in the Shan-Tung province, to clear the coast of pirates, as this is not done, Minister Conger says the loss of $250,000 worth of oil is imminent.

PROGRESS OF THE CABLE

San Francisco, Sept. 26.—Although the route to Honolulu usually followed by steamers is 2100 miles, the length of the submarine cable that will connect the United States with Hawaii will be 2413 miles, and it will be 10,000 tons in weight, with strands from one to three inches in thickness. This information comes from London, where much of the cable that is to extend from here to Manila and China is being manufactured. The huge steamer Silverton, specially adapted for laying the cable, was scheduled to leave London last Saturday for this port with the 2413 miles of wire that will reach from San Francisco to Hawaii across the bed of the Pacific. She is expected to arrive in November, or early in December at the latest, and by the first of the year messages will have been received at both ends of the cable.

In London, according to the officials of the Commercial Cable Company, the section of cable to connect Honolulu with Manila is being manufactured at the rate of fifty miles a day. It will be sent out to the Pacific and laid across the great depths of the Pacific which have been found between Honolulu and Asiatic waters by the steamers Angelia and Columbia, and the Commercial Cable Company fully expects to have the entire line in operation by July 4, 1903. The laying of the cable will proceed rapidly after the steamers, upon which it is coiled in great lengths, arrive at the starting point.

Much of the preliminary work for the San Francisco end of the cable is already nearing completion, the conduct to connect the headquarters office on Market street with the station on the Cliff House, being far advanced.

STROMBOLI ERUPTION

London, Sept. 27.—A special dispatch from Rome after confirming the reports that Stromboli has been in full eruption for some time, says:

"The night scene was grand but terrifying. Lava streamed down the mountain sides seaward, while huge boulders were hurled from the crater to a great height, falling into the sea fully two and a half miles from the shore.

"The director of the observatory at Mount Aetna says there has been no eruption in Sicily but that probably that there has been a submarine eruption between Stromboli and Sicily.

"One hundred and fifty corpses have been recovered at Modica.

"Hundreds of victims were drowned in the open country."

Paris, Sept. 25.—A dispatch to the Figaro from Rome says the volcano on Stromboli Island, off the north coast of Sicily, has been active for several days. A large conical mass has appeared on the edge of one of the craters and a fissure at the base of this crater is pouring out lava and jets of flame to a height of 400 yards.

A dispatch from Rome dated September 9th stated the Stromboli volcano was then in full eruption.

EX-QUEEN NATALIE, WHO IS TO ENTER A CONVENT.

King Milan's famous partner, Natalie, is to enter a convent. The former queen is by birth a Russian. She married the disolute monarch at Belgrade in 1875, being at that time only sixteen. Queen Natalie is the mother of Alexander, the present king of Serbia, who came to the throne in consequence of his father's abdication.

GRAND WORK OF THE KINDERGARTENS

[Communicated.]

On a bright and beautiful morning, after rain, the Association met for its annual conference. Different committees reported, and much business was disposed of in due order. But there was a shadow over it in remembrance of one whose heart has ever been hospitable to any endeavor for the good of fellow-man, one who especially loved the little children and young people. Miss Johnson reported upon the Castle Home. She now shares her cares and duties with a sister, much to the ease with which the domestic machinery goes on. These little ones go to play at Waikiki and ride on the trolley, and are complimented by Herr Berger's band, like others. They also do housework, some go to sing at the jails for the prisoners, and they study an hour of an evening.

The chairman of the committee on the Castle Home gave the interesting program of an entertainment largely devised by the children themselves. There were songs, recitations, religious and humorous, and witty dialogues between little girls dressed as boys. Two babies sang a song of "Jesus Loves Me."

We were struck with the importance of the kindergarten as an institution. The Japanese predominance, after them the Chinese and Portuguese. The language has first to be taught, as "pidgin" English.

At the last, a fine paper was read upon the relations of natural law to the physical and spiritual, so far as the children are concerned with it. It was urged that we do not too early or too strenuously enforce learning by letter by the book, but let the child study nature unbiassed, with respect and love, then will he draw the truth, the moral, for himself, in a manner best suited to his own constitution, only give him honest nature to study, that fit for purity of soul.

Birdsall Will Run In Henderson's Place

Hampton, Ia., Sept. 25.—Judge B. P. Birdsall of Clarion, Ia., was today nominated for Congress by the Third District Republican Convention. The nomination was made on the second ballot by a vote of 88 to 26 for C. A. Ransler of Buchanan. The Third District is at present represented by Speaker David B. Henderson, who recently declined a renomination.

The platform says: "We, the representatives of the Republicans of the Third Congressional District of Iowa, heartily endorse the platform of principles adopted by the late Republican State Convention at Des Moines. We deny that the Dingley tariff breeds and shelters trusts. We interpret the tariff plank in the Des Moines platform of 1902 to be nearly a reiteration of and to mean no more than the St. Louis plank of 1896, which recited: 'We are not pledged to any particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical question, to be governed by the conditions of the times and of production. The ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and development of American labor and industry.'"

Judge Birdsall is about 45 years of age. The only office he has ever held is the Judgeship of the District Court, which he resigned a year ago to resume the practice of law in Clarion.

The wireless telegraph service is now open for business to Mahukona and all points on Hawaii and Main. Telegrams will be received at the Inter-Island Telegraph Company's office, lower Fort street.

DORIC IS CARRYING TREASURE TO ORIENT

CAPT. PILLSBURY A PASSENGER

ON THE LINER—GOES TO TAKE CHARGE OF PEKING.

The steamship Doric arrived off port early this morning and was docked at the Pacific Mail wharf at about 7:30 o'clock. The Doric struck rough weather immediately after leaving San Francisco and, although no damage was done, the two days during which the storm lasted were very disagreeable.

The rest of the voyage was pleasant. The Doric carries a large list of through passengers for various points in the Orient. Among them is an unusually large percentage of missionaries.

Captain Pillsbury of the Peru goes to Kobe in order to take the command of the steamship City of Peking and bring her back to San Francisco as soon as her repairs have been completed.

Among the passengers for Yokohama are Senator and Senora A. C. Espejo. Senora Espejo is the Chilean Government's Consul at Kobe. Dr. A. T. Keckeler, the famous scientist, is also among the passengers. He will stay over in this city for a short while and will then proceed to the Orient. Although the Doctor is a noted traveler, this will be his first visit to Japan and China.

The passengers leaving this port are Mrs. S. H. Cobb, Miss L. F. Hargreave, Miss C. Shatto, Miss Kara G. Smart, Mrs. A. Tichenor, Mrs. J. A. Reeve and Miss N. Webster.

The Doric carries $500,000 in gold and silver treasure for the Orient. She has a cargo of 3500 tons, including 1900 tons of flour, 2200 bales of sheeting and 1000 bales of cotton.

The steamer is scheduled to sail at 6 o'clock this evening.

White after casting on Q side, immediately initiates a strong attack on K side, on move 20, allowing Black to capture his Kt, so as to obtain a clear file for his Rook. Pressing the attack, White further allows Black to win the exchange, his 24th move forcing Teligorin to give up Q for R to avoid the threatened mate in two by R to R8 ch. Black has a lost game after the 27th move.

Charles W. Gates, son of the steel magnate, is proving himself a chip of the old block. Not only is he quite as fond of sporting recreations as is his father, but he has recently figured in several big speculative deals on his own hook. He is a good sized young man, as you may see in this picture, which is made from a snapshot taken recently at Saratoga. One of the ladies in the group is his wife.

DORIC MEN SORE

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—The next time the steamship Doric meets the American ship Susquehanna at sea the White Star liner will pass the Yankee clipper in dignified silence. Their first and last meeting occurred between here and Honolulu on the Doric's last voyage from this port, and the steamship's officers are still ranking from the discourtesy that they claim was shown them by Captain Bailey of the windjammer. The Doric sighted the Susquehanna, which was a long time out from Baltimore and still a good many days' sailing from San Francisco, and Captain Smith ordered a supply of papers to be got ready. Files of the San Francisco papers, copies of most of the current illustrated papers and magazines were wrapped up and placed in a large box. The Doric's course was changed, and steaming close to the Susquehanna. Captain Smith asked Captain Bailey if he wanted some papers.

"Yes," said Bailey. "Here you are," said Smith, and overboard from the Doric went the box full of reading matter. And here is where the Doric grievance comes in. Although the papers were thrown over the side in full view of the Susquehanna's people and at their request, in spite of the fact that the Doric had gone out of her course to do the favor and that there was little wind and a calm sea, Captain Bailey, the Doric's officers say, "Thank you," but never even took the trouble to pick up the carefully packed box, to the contents of which all hands and the passengers had contributed.

THOMAS MAKING READY.

San Francisco, Sept. 27.—This transport the art of a new General Nelson A. Miles to take possession of Manila, is the hands of an army of painters and cleaners and will be in first-class condition when she leaves port at noon Wednesday. A room formerly used as an armory has been fitted up as a storeroom for General Miles. It is more than twice the size of the ordinary storeroom and is situated almost under the bridge and adjoins the quarters of Quartermaster Captain Jesse Baker. Chief Steward W. Hebert, one of the best and most popular chefs of the transport service, has been selected to have charge of the culinary arrangements on the Thomas during the voyage. He was formerly on the Grant and Kilpatrick.

TWO STORIES OF THE CIVIL WAR.

Two interesting wartime stories were told yesterday by Senator Bacon of Georgia. One of them concerned Senator Pettus of Alabama, who, as everybody knows, was a gallant officer in the Confederate Army.

In one of the battles before Vicksburg Senator Pettus, then a Colonel, was captured and carried as a prisoner before General Grant.

"Colonel," said Grant when the prisoner was brought before him, "what are those troops out in front of me?"

"General," replied Pettus, "I must decline to answer that question."

General Grant looked him in the eye for a moment. "You are right, Colonel," he said. Then turning to an officer nearby, Grant said: "Take this gentleman to the rear and treat him kindly."

Senator Pettus has never forgotten that interview with General Grant. The other story illustrates the same nobility of feeling in General Robert E. Lee, the commander of the Confederate forces.

It was at the close of the battle of Gettysburg. As General Lee rode from the field he came upon a young Union soldier, a mere boy, lying on the grass wounded. The boy, though painfully hurt and unable to rise, had a spirit not to be quenched. As he recognized the Confederate uniform he raised himself upon his elbow. "Hurrah for the Union," he cried defiantly, though with feeble voice.

General Lee got down from his horse, went over to the boy and laid his hand tenderly on his head. "I hope, my son," he said, "that you are not much hurt and that you will soon be well."—Washington Post.

SAVING IN OIL FUEL

SOUTHERN PACIFIC WILL EQUIP ALL ITS ENGINES

COAL TO BE PRACTICALLY ABANDONED—OIL HAS PROVED A MONEY-SAVER IN EVERY WAY.

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 27.—Oil as a fuel has proved such a success on all the lines of the Southern Pacific that general orders have been issued for the conversion of all the engines into oil-burners as soon as possible. Coal will be abandoned absolutely. Within a year the Southern Pacific will be on an oil basis solely. The order will affect all the divisions of the company. The local division generally known as the Western, is in the lead in the number of oil-burning engines. The Sacramento division comes next and the Los Angeles division third. All of the divisions are using oil for about one-third of the traffic.

The local division now has sixty-three oil burning engines. There remain eighty-three yet to be converted. It is estimated that within eight months all of the engines will have been converted and the use of coal on the Western division permanently abandoned. During the month just passed the oil-burners on the local division traveled a distance of approximately 200,000 miles. The coal-burning engines passed over 306,752 miles of track. The grand total traveled by all engines is 506,752 miles.

These figures do not include the Sacramento and Los Angeles divisions. During a corresponding month last year the mileage was a little over 450,000. The gain of this year over last is something over 50,000 miles per month, which is a fairly accurate index to the increase in business. It requires on an average 1000 gallons or about twenty-four barrels of oil for every 100 miles as compared to five tons of coal. The saving on every hundred miles by using oil ranges from $16 to $20. The total saving for the 200,000 miles traveled by oil-burning engines represents from $32,000 to $40,000 per month.

The company has expended upwards of $5,000,000 for oil. The investment is a good one, however, the saving effected will have paid for the enormous expenditure long before all the engines have been converted into oil-burners. On the Western division alone the saving per month when all the engines have been converted will approximate $75,000. When the other coast divisions use oil exclusively the total sum saved will be upwards of $100,000 per month.

The company's profit on oil is lessened by the fact that when oil was first introduced as a fuel the company entered into a number of contracts at twenty-five and fifty cents a barrel. Since the contracts were signed, oil has fallen to as low as twenty and twenty-five cents a barrel. Thus on much of the oil used the company is paying from twenty-five to fifty cents more per barrel than the market price. Notwithstanding this fact, the enormous saving arising from the use of oil is sufficient almost at the present time to provide a million in dividends annually.

To the saving effected by the use of oil in locomotives must be added the saving arising from the oil burning

A Colorado woman has patented an invention for furnishing distilled water for household use.

The apparatus is intended for use in connection with a common teakettle and tin pail, and is not, therefore, in itself every expensive, comprising only a section of tubing, with connecting devices at either end to fit the kettle and pail. The collar on one end of the pipe is provided with clamps to engage the edges of the opening in the kettle, and the opposite end has a flat collar, which rests on the edge of the receiving vessel. There is also a plug to fit in the spout of the kettle, thus affording but one exit for the steam, namely, through the pipe, and into the pail. It is obvious that in passing through this pipe the steam will condense and form in drops on the inner surface of the pipe and pail, falling thence to the bottom of the latter. To disengage the condenser from the kettle it is only necessary to turn the clamps and detach the connecting rod, but the inventor states that the connection between the vessels is rigid enough to permit water to be poured from the kettle without interfering with the receiver.

GUARDIANS OF THE FEDERAL LAW IN HAWAII

YOUNG WOMAN AT 50

A scientific contemporary has been discussing a very delicate subject. It has been considering why women, as they advance in years, grow plainer than men, and why marriage so frequently destroys their good looks.

With this very question Max O'Reil deals in his latest book, and it encourages the hope that a woman may retain her youthful appearance longer, and thus gain another point giving her further equality with man, to find that both the scientific and the philosophical writers agree on the point that careful attention to the personal appearance and the temper may do much to preserve youth and beauty.

Max O'Reil puts the matter rather more encouragingly, perhaps, or at least less primly. He bluntly says that discreet and judicious coquetry will keep a woman absolutely beautiful and young until 50. After that we must mercifully draw the veil. Our scientific mentor soberly advises plenty of open-air exercise, careful attention to the toilet and diet, and the cultivation of amiability, which, as Mr. Kipling says, is altogether "another story."

A sense of humor largely helps the retention of youth, and might have saved Faust a lot of trouble had he possessed it. But, unhappily, amiability and a sense of humor are alike difficult to cultivate; indeed, they are wholly beyond the reach of a large majority; on the whole, therefore, it is safer to rely on attention to the personal appearance.

Nowadays it is made so easy for women to make themselves attractive that there is no excuse for looking older, if, indeed, as old as one's age. The astute French philosopher counsels woman to be careful about her hair; our grave scientific contemporary suggests that a lady's toilet should never be hurried. And to this sage advice may be added a third counsel, which is to cultivate a distinct style of dress.

MARSHAL HENDRY.

Eugene R. Hendry, United States Marshal for the Territory of Hawaii, was born in the State of Vermont. He came to the Hawaiian Islands in 1876. Successively he held positions in the Customs House and Board of Health office, after which he took employment with the Pacific Hardware Company. Mr. Hendry as manager started the business of the Hawaiian Hardware Company and after retiring from that concern again took a position under the Board of Health. On August 4, 1900, he was appointed chief office deputy marshal of the United States for Hawaii and on September 17, 1901, Marshal. Mr. Hendry is a typical fraternalist, being a veteran office-holder in different orders. Having fine business talent in respect of calculation, method and precision, his services in the societies have always been highly valued, as on similar account he is well recognized in the community as a business man of ability. He is a member of Aloha Temple of the Mystic Shrine, which is sufficient evidence of his high rank in Masonry; a Knight of Pythias, an Odd Fellow and on the charter roll of the Elks. Marshal Hendry is a man of taste with regard to surroundings, so that no public office quarters may be found surpassing his for being invariably in apple-pie order.

When the late David McKinley, brother of the late President, became Hawaiian Consul General in San Francisco, Mr. Hendry was sent there directly after him to place the office in working shape. From memory he prepared a statement of the Hawaiian tariff as affected by reciprocity, which proved to require but a single correction and was printed as a guide to Coast shippers. Mr. Hendry was secretary of the first Republican Territorial Convention and Central Committee, being re-elected by the latter for a second term, but having to resign on taking Federal office.

Ethnology of Kissing

The kiss was unknown, I think, among the aboriginal tribes of America and of Central Africa. From the most ancient times, however, it has been familiar to the Asiatic and European races. The Latins divided it into three forms—the osculum, the basium and the suavius; the first being the kiss of friendship and respect, the second of ceremony and the third of love. The Semites always knew the kiss, and Job speaks of it as part of the sacred rites, as it is today in the Roman Church.

The Mongolian kiss, however, is not the same as that which prevails with us. In it the lips do not touch the surface of the person kissed. The nose is brought into light contact with the cheek, forehead or hand; the breath is drawn slowly through the nostrils, and the act ends with a slight smack of the lips. The Chinese consider our mode of kissing full of coarse suggestiveness, and our writers regard their method with equal disdain.

Darwin and other naturalists have attempted to trace back the kiss to the act of the lower animals who seize their prey with their teeth, etc. An interesting recent study of the subject is by M. Paul d'Enjoy in the Bulletin of the Paris Anthropological Society, vol. viii, No. 2.—Dr. Daniel G. Brinton in Science.

IT BEAT THE DEVIL.

John W. Mackay was fond of relating this story:

Shortly after St. Patrick's Cathedral was completed, a faithful devotee on his way to mass met a lukewarm Orangeman and persuaded him to enter the cathedral to admire its beauties and listen to the wonderful music. In the crowded attendance they obtained seats two or three rows apart. The visitor was so overwhelmed with the splendor of the interior that he turned and in quite an audible tone said:

"Say, Mickey, that beats the devil." "Yis," replied Mickey, "that's the intuition." — New York Times.

CLERK MALING.

W. B. Maling, clerk of the United States District Court, is a New Englander, having been born in the city of Portland, Maine, in 1870. Receiving his education there, he spent ten years in mercantile houses of Boston and New York. He received his present appointment in time to accompany Judge Estee to Honolulu in 1900. Mrs. Maling and two children came here with him. Although without previous experience in legal matters, Mr. Maling, from his native intelligence and business training, quickly obtained a complete grasp of the duties of his office. Attentiveness to work and courtesy are the characteristics of his management, these qualities being delightfully evident with the members of his staff, Mr. Hatch and Miss Osborne, as well as himself. They form a trio of exceptionally bright young people.

FEDERAL JUDGE STEE.

Morris M. Estee was born in 1836, in the little township of Freehold, Warren county, Pennsylvania. His parents moved when he was a mere child to Erie county, in the same State, where his early life was that of the children of farmers of that period. He attended the public schools, went to a so-called select school, and finally went to Waterford Academy, leaving that Academy and coming to California in 1853 when he was in his eighteenth year. He pursued schooling for several years, but had higher ambitions, and finally began the study of the law in the office of Judge F. M. Paulding, a fellow Pennsylvanian. In 1857 he went to Sacramento, and in 1859 was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court, and continued to practice law in Sacramento till he left there for the city of San Francisco in 1866.

His first advent in politics was made in 1865 when he was sent to the Assembly from Sacramento county, and this was the beginning of a long and honored career in the representative called new constitution for California, which made his name a household word from Siskiyou to San Diego. After removing to San Francisco, Mr. Estee built up a large practice and soon established his reputation as one of the leading lawyers of the State. In 1875, Mr. Estee was sent to the State Assembly from San Francisco, and was chosen Speaker with little or no opposition. In 1878 he was a member of the Constitutional Convention which framed the so-called new constitution for California.

In 1882, he was nominated for the Governorship, but owing to the antagonism of the Central Pacific Railroad Company he was defeated, the Democratic candidate being elected.

Notwithstanding his warm interest in public affairs, Mr. Estee found time for much private legal work, including the preparation of three volumes of a work on pleading, practice and forms, which is in its third edition and is used in all the States where a code system prevails.

Mr. Estee was one of the Presidential electors when Rutherford B. Hayes was elected President and while a delegate to the National Republican Convention of 1888, which nominated President Harrison, he had the unusual honor of being elected permanent chairman thereof.

In 1891, Mr. Estee was again the candidate of the Republican party for Governor, and received the endorsement of a large majority of the voters outside of the city of San Francisco, but in that city enough votes were counted for his opponent (it is claimed fraudulently) to defeat him.

Mr. Estee was a member of the Pan-American Congress of 1890, and left the impress of his ability on the deliberations of that body.

He was married in 1863 to Miss Frances Divine, a daughter of Judge Divine of San Jose, California, and has one daughter surviving that marriage. His wife is with him in Honolulu at the present time.

In June, 1900, Mr. Estee received his commission from President McKinley as United States District Judge for the Territory of Hawaii. He was sworn into office by Justice Morrow, Circuit Judge of the Ninth Circuit, of which Hawaii is a part, and reached the Islands on August 1, 1900, where he immediately commenced to perform the duties of his office on August 4, 1900.

Judge Estee has from the day he became a member of this insular community been universally recognized as a brilliant and valuable acquisition to the local element of civilization. As an orator he has been in frequent demand but never refused sacrificing comfort as well as time in contributing his presence and voice to benevolent and patriotic occasions. His public utterance is easy and unconstrained, yet piquant, humorous and scholarly. For hitting the nail on the head, to use a homely proverb, Judge Estee has few rivals. If evidence were needed of his capacity as a jurist, it is to be found in a record as yet unbroken of having his decisions affirmed both by the Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco and the Supreme Court in Washington. Since first opening court here Judge Estee has done most of the naturalizing of aliens in Honolulu. Those whom he thus ushers into the pale of American institutions are not likely ever to forget his earnest admonitions for impressing them with the responsibilities of citizenship.

DEPUTY CLERK HATCH.

Frank L. Hatch, deputy clerk of the Federal Court, is a young Californian, the worthy son of a worthy sire. His father is Jackson Hatch, one of the leading lawyers of California. He attended the University of California previous to coming here, besides having had some experience in the clerk's office of the Superior Court of Santa Clara county. Mr. Hatch takes an active interest in athletics.

DEPUTY MARSHAL HANDY.

F. C. Handy, chief office deputy of the United States Marshal for Hawaii, is a "Native Son" of California. He was born in 1865 and educated at San Jose, his home for the best part of his past life. Mr. Handy held positions in the offices for the county clerk, the assessor and the collector, and for a long time before coming here had been under sheriff in Mendocino county. Over nine years ago he was secretary to one of the State Insane asylums. His first position in Honolulu was deputy clerk of the Federal Court. On the death of Marshal Ray and the promotion of Mr. Hendry to the marshalship, Mr. Handy was selected for his present office. Besides the public offices he held in California, for a time he filled an editorial chair.

NO OIL.

Senator Daniel of Virginia was at one time counsel for a small southern railroad. At a point on the line where it crossed a prominent highway they had an old negro watchman, whose duties consisted in warning travelers of the approach of trains. One night a farmer's wagon was struck, causing a bad accident. The railroad company was, of course, sued for damages, and at the trial the old darky was the chief witness for his employers, says the New York Times. He answered the questions put to him in a clear, direct manner. Among them was the query as to whether he surely swung his lantern across the road when he saw the train coming, to which he replied:

" 'Deed I did, sah."

The railroad company won the suit and Mr. Daniel took occasion later to compliment his witness on his excellent testimony. The old fellow was profuse in thanks, but before they parted bluntly said:

" 'Lordy, Marse John, I sho' was akeered when dat lawyer 'gin to ax me 'bout de lantern. I was afeared he was goin' to ax if it was lit or not, 'cause de oil in it done give out some time before de axent."

News By Trolley Car

The distribution of news by means of the now ubiquitous trolley cars has already been attempted in various ways, and chiefly in the line of advertising, outside the car as well as inside. In some cases, enterprising stores have mounted their notices on the trolley poles, like sails or pennants. The idea has also been successfully carried out by putting little flags or signs on cars when the circus is in town or when the ice will bear in the parks. In some places the cars in bad winter weather have carried signals notifying public school children as to whether school will be open or not. Of somewhat the same nature is the plan now being carried out on the Akron, Bedford and Cleveland suburban trolley line of displaying weather signals, says The Electrical Engineer. The plan is for the local weather bureau to notify the road of the successive and prospective meteorological changes, and for the cars as they go out to mount the appropriate signal in the shape of a tin flag symbol. Steam railroads have already tried this useful plan, and it is evident that the trolley cars can be even more efficient as distributors of such news quickly over large local areas. Cars running out into rural districts will be specially serviceable in this way.

Found it a hard question.

Tommy had been worrying papa with the usual number of unanswerable questions and had been threatened with condign punishment, if he did not keep quiet. He digested about in silence for some time, but at length broke out:

"Pa, they say the rain falls alike upon the just and unjust, doesn't it?" "Yes, yes. Don't ask silly questions."

"And it isn't just to steal another man's umbrella, is it?" "Certainly not. If you ask any more—"

"But, pa, the rain doesn't fall upon the man that steals the umbrella, and it does on the man that had his stolen. Funny, ain't it, pa?"

Orders have been given for the removal of the wire fence encircling Johannesburg.

WON VOTES BY SONG

Fred. Cook, the present Mayor of Ottawa, Canada, enjoys the rare distinction of having sung himself into office. For many years Mr. Cook has been the Canadian correspondent of the London (England) Times. In 1901 he entered the race for Mayor of Ottawa and was defeated for the nomination. The successful candidate was in office but a short time when he offended against the laws of the Dominion by buying a drink after the legal closing hour, and the Common Council of Ottawa elected an Alderman to fill the balance of the term.

Again this year Mr. Cook entered the field and tried poetry as a campaign argument. The experiment proved a great success. He sent to each voter in the city a very handsomely decorated card, having on one side his picture, a picture of the Mayor's chair, the British flag and Canadian emblems, and on the reverse side his little poem, printed in both French and English. He was elected by a surprising majority.

In responding to the congratulatory speeches of his friends after election, Mayor Cook declared it was the picture card that elected him.

"My verses did it," he said. "The Canadian people like originality, and no candidate has ever before appealed to them through the Muse. Last year I spent $2,000 in the old-fashioned way to be defeated, and this year fifty cents' worth of poetry cards to be elected. But, my friends, you have my pledge that I'll never write any more poetry."

Mr. Cook is making an excellent Mayor, and is getting after the bad corporations and other evils of the capital with the vim of a Roosevelt.

There are only 800,000 white people in British South Africa, and at the beginning of the war there was a deficiency of women amounting to 70,000.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY BRECKONS.

Robert W. Breckons, United States District Attorney for the Territory of Hawaii, was born in Illinois in 1866, removing with his parents to Pennsylvania in 1868. He worked as a printer from 1882 to 1886, and then went to Cheyenne, Wyoming. There he followed his craft until the spring of 1888, when he took a position in the Dead Letter Office at Washington, D.C., under a civil service examination. In the fall of that year he entered the Georgetown Law School at Washington, graduating there in 1890. He at once resigned his Government position and returned to Cheyenne, where he entered upon the practice of law, continuing it there until being appointed to his present position.

Mr. Breckons was prosecuting attorney of his county in 1897 and 1898, and a member of the Legislature of Wyoming in 1901, serving as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. He was appointed by President Roosevelt for the District of Hawaii on December 12, 1901, and confirmed on January 13, 1902. Arriving in Honolulu on February 26, he has since that time constantly performed the duties of his office, winning the unalloyed respect of Bench and Bar, as well as the public, for his acumen, assiduity, ability as a pleader and unfailing courtesy.

Mr. Breckons was married in Cheyenne in 1893. His wife and two-year-old daughter accompanied him to Honolulu.

THE LASSO.

The lasso is of great antiquity. It is said to be depicted in the ruins of Nineveh. An early Persian manuscript, preserved in the Escorial, shows a sportsman (whom I suppose royal by his Olympian expression and careless seat) in the act of catching a wild ass with a nicely plaited lasso. The monarch bestrides a rather "stocky" looking, dark colored horse, with four white feet and a white face. A bow, quivers and a saber are hung from his saddle and a sort of housings half covers the horse. How the wild ass is to be restrained, even by the hand of a monarch, is not at first sight evident, for the lasso is neither fixed to the saddle after the fashion of the gauchos, nor is a half turn taken around the pommel. In the style adopted by vaqueros in Mexico and Texas. Apart from this detail, all is as realistically set forth as it would be today in a photograph. The horse bears away from the beast lassoed, and the king sits a little to one side, exactly as a Texan cowboy or an Argentine gaucho sits under similar circumstances. Trises and Narcis spring up under the horse's feet, and an applauding group of angels peep out of a cloud, while in the middle distance another Persian gaucho shoots an antelope with an arrow while galloping at full speed.

The Laplanders are said to lasso their reindeer, and the Tartars and modern Australians use a rudimentary lasso fixed to a long pole in order to catch wild, or refractory horses. The Poles, Croats and Wallachians, with the Hungarians, seem to have used the lasso till about the beginning of the present century. A picture by the German artist Richter shows Polish remounts for the German cavalry being lassoed in the Zwinger, at Dresden. The horses look as wild as a Texan "broncho" or an Argentine "gauchal," and the attitude of men and animals are identical with those adopted in Spanish America today. The lasso appears to run through a ring in the pommel of the saddle. It is, however, in Spanish America where the art has been most developed. This is on account of the open country and the vast numbers of wild and semi-wild horses which, up to the middle of the present century, overspread its plains.—Baltimore Magazine.

WHICH?

Secretary Wilson has gained the name of the "David Harum of the Cabinet," not only through the stories which he keeps on tap appropriate to all occasions, but also because of the ready wit with which he meets all conversational attacks, according to the Man of the Street of the New York Times. Not long ago he was one of the guests at the board of the Clover Club in Philadelphia, an organization which has acquired a reputation as being a most difficult body to address. The members seem to take a fiendish pride in rattling a speaker by their interruptions. Mr. Wilson had just risen. His first sentence had contained a reference to the fable of the lion and the ass. "Which are you?" called a voice from down the table. "The lion," answered the secretary, "without an instant's hesitation. 'Which are you?'"

IF YOU are a WOMAN

If you have female troubles you must cure them with direct treatment

There is no female trouble without inflammation. To cure this inflammation you must treat it directly. You must apply to the inflamed organs the healing antiseptic agent. When you cut your finger do you take medicine for it? If you chop your arm or your foot so that it is raw, do you take a dose of physic? No, you apply directly to the inflamed surface the soothing, healing, cooling elements. Nature does the rest. It is the same with female troubles, womb diseases, painful menses, and ovarian disorders. There is inflammation which must be cured and which medicine taken through the stomach cannot reach. The real cure for these troubles is which is applied directly to the parts and heals promptly and for good. Prairie Plant is the acknowledged and the common sense cure for the troubles which wreck women's lives. It acts gently and quickly, and its tonic properties are wonderful.

Open your eyes to the truth! Don't waste your life, and throw away youth, beauty, and strength, by trying to do the impossible. Use Prairie Plant for your deranged organs and you will be grateful always.

At all Druggists, or we will send a full three-months' treatment for $1.00, securely sealed in a plain package. To prove our confidence in it we will send a sample absolutely free.

DON'T GIVE OR ACCEPT PERSONAL SURETY

California Insurance companies have the virtue of solidity. A virtue which appeals to the insurer. Instance, The Pacific Surety Company of California. This company was chartered under the laws of California which exact "that each stockholder of a corporation or joint stock association shall be individually and personally liable for such proportion of all its debts and liabilities contracted or incurred during the time he was a stockholder, as the amount of stock or shares owned by him bears to the whole of the subscribed capital stock of the corporation or association." It has a paid-up capital of $250,000 and a reserve of $108,853, and a net surplus of $62,231. Therefore the extent of security furnished is placed beyond a doubt. It was the first surety company to occupy the Pacific Coast field. It was incorporated in 1885 with a capital of $100,000 in gold. The growth and progress of the company is best shown by the record it has made. Capital in 1885 $100,000 (it commenced business in August of that year). In 1898 its capital was increased to $250,000; and its total assets in its half yearly statement in 1902 show the magnificent total of $365,000.

Its directors are the Hon. Geo. C. Perkins, United States Senator and of Goodall, Perkins & Co.; H. S. Crocker, of H. S. Crocker Co.; John Bermingham, president California Powder Works and Hercules Powder Works; Wm. H. Crocker, president Crocker-Woolworth National Bank; V. J. A. Roy, of Britton & Roy; Jas. Moffitt, president Blake, Moffitt & Towne and vice president First National Bank; B. L. Davis, president California Title Insurance and Trust Co.; Wallace Everston, president A. P. Redding, secretary. More millions and millions than can be found on the ordinary directorate of most insurance companies. Aside from capital the Pacific Surety Company has managerial ability. Its secretary A. P. Redding, is well known in financial and conservative circles. Its president, Wallace Everston, is such an able, old time insurance man that comment on his standing or ability would be superfluous. The Pacific Surety Company is the Surety company of the Coast and fully fills the field and while it is well known at home it is equally well known abroad. If ability of management and solidity of capitalization will make a company, then indeed the Pacific Surety Company fills the requirements. It transacts the regular business of a surety company. Its guarantee bonds are issued to guarantee the faithful performance of duties of managers, secretaries and agents of public companies, cashiers, bookkeepers and clerks of banks and other corporations, and all others holding positions of trust. Its court bonds are accepted by the courts as sole and sufficient surety for administrators, executors, guardians, trustees, assignees, and on attachment and appeal bonds. The bonds of this company are accepted in all of the United States courts.

When a surety company's bond is accepted by the United States courts enough has been said. A surety company's bond that is good enough for the United States is good enough for the ordinary folk, and such a bond can always be procured from a California and San Francisco home company.—The Pacific Underwriter.

A SPRIG OF ORANGE BLOSSOM

Looking upward, Letty's gaze was lost in a waving, gently murmuring wilderness of green leaves, nearly hiding the tree's wealth of large, thick-skinned oranges. Beyond, in flickering rays of light, she could see the deep, clear blue of Californian skies.

There was no sound in this sheltered corner of the old Court House garden, except the occasional trill of a bird, and the staccato notes of the insects in the grass. Letty, a reserved and sentimental English girl, was overwhelmed by the glamour of the hour and place, and the half-serious, half-playful, altogether irresistible charm of Luigi Duplay.

Duplay (Lewis Smith in the little town in Illinois where his folk "resided") had met Letty and her parents—especially Letty—in the best hotel in Sacramento. They were traveling for pleasure in Western America. Luigi was a "trick cyclist." His portraits and posters were scattered over the town. He was short, young, and lithe, with a pale, shrewd, clearly cut face, and smooth, fair hair.

He held Letty's hand closely in his. His eyes—bright, tender, flattering—now rested on her pretty, drooping lids, and then on her conscious, smiling lips. Letty forgot his doubtful grammar. Even his twang was melodious.

"If I wasn't booked at 'Frisco, Miss Letty, and there weren't hundreds of mean guys ready to copy my act, I'd follow you to Europe—say, like a dog!" protested Duplay, leaning against the orange tree.

There was silence for a while. Letty played with a bunch of violets in her belt. He watched her idle fingers. Then they both looked up. There seemed no necessity to speak. Letty tossed three of the violets towards him. He caught one and stooped for the other, and then, smiling a little, drew them across his lips and lifted his eyebrows.

"What will you give me for the violets?" asked Letty quickly.

"The earth, with a barbed wire fence around it and a blue Jay on the top!" said Duplay, still holding the violets against his lips. "Just you look at that orange over your head, Miss Letty—say, if it ain't enormous!"

There—see?"

Letty's grave eyes wandered among the clustering leaves, and his cheek was very near as he too looked up.

"What does a boy deserve who doesn't dare?" whispered Duplay.

"I don't know what you mean," answered Letty.

Reaching up, the trick cyclist pulled a sprig of leaves, with a few half-open blossoms, off the tree.

"Will you keep this—for my sake—(ill we meet again in the old country?" he begged.

"Orange blossom!" exclaimed Letty simply.

"Why not? We shall never forget today—never!"

"Never!" repeated Letty, softly.

Luigi Duplay was really handsome, and the perfume of the leaves and flowers in her hand made her sigh with his subtle sweetness.

"How much he loves me!" That was her one thought—painful, delightful, agitating—as she went away with the sprig of orange blossom.

"Duplay on the Wheel! Juggling Extraordinary! America's Unique Cyclist!"

These words, in the center of the program of the best variety theater in London, attracted the attention of Mr. Francis Vansittart, as he sat in the stalls with the happiness of having his fiancée on his right, her mother on his left, and her father in the seat beyond.

Mr. Vansittart was small, alert and dapper; 35 years of age, with kind, twinkling eyes behind gold eye-glasses and a perfectly unaffected, charming manner.

At the word "Duplay" Mr. Vansittart's fiancée bent forward and stretched out her hand for the program.

Four years had passed since Letty parted from the trick cyclist in the old Court House garden at Sacramento. Leaning back in her seat, with her rich, eligible fiancée beside her, the mere sound of his name altered her whole train of thought.

She longed for the glorious warmth and freshness of California. For a few dreamy moments—for the first time since she met him—Vansittart was forgotten. She seemed to see Luigi's eager face and to hear again his passionate farewell.

"How much he loved me!" she thought, and half expected to see a wretched, prematurely aged Luigi, with strands of gray in his hair, come sadly on to the stage.

As if matter of fact, Duplay, in his blue velvet suit, was exactly the Duplay of four years ago.

"Awfully clever!" said Mr. Vansittart, as Luigi stood on the seat of his bicycle and juggled with golden balls.

"They look like large oranges, don't they? Too long, though, much too long!"

His tone exasperated Letty. She watched every graceful, daring feat of the trick cyclist with a mingled feeling of disappointment, attraction, and curiosity.

It was her duty, so she said to herself, to check the hopes that had, no doubt, brought him to England. She glanced at Vansittart. Something in his perfectly trustful, confident manner aggravated her. He was very ordinary after all!

It was in this mood that Letty wrote, on the following day, a letter reminding Mr. Duplay of their friendship and casually hinting she would like to see him again.

The answer was a little surprising. Letty had never received a letter from Duplay before. He addressed her as "Dear friend," and subscribed himself "Very respectfully." It was certainly a shock to romance.

He was staying in a private hotel, and he entreated her to spare him five minutes on the following afternoon. As Letty had given him no invitation to renew his acquaintance with her people, she could not well be offended at this.

After some deliberation—still curious, half fascinated—she determined to go and see him. That he had loved her for four years, and that she no longer loved him was the incomprehensible excuse she made to herself.

The private hotel whither Letty directed her steps was a favorite haunt of American variety artists. The house was close and hot, dark and unattractive. A picture flashed into Letty's mind—herself, under different circumstances, arriving there with a professional husband, and calling it "home."

She was shown into a small, not ill-furnished sitting room. A great many posters of London and Continental music halls decorated the walls; a man in a green baize apron was polishing a plate at a little table in a corner of the room, and a couple of young men, lounging in rocking chairs with their hats tipped to the back of their heads, were looking through a pile of American newspapers.

In spite of Letty's amusement at these unusual surroundings, in spite of her thorough self-reliance, she trembled more and more as every minute brought her nearer to the meeting with Luigi Duplay. She pitied him so much. She dreaded that he would read her thoughts, and they all revolved about Francis Vansittart.

Suddenly she heard Luigi's step and he was in front of her chair, bending towards her, almost before she had time to rise. Their hands met. She was confused by the questioning little smile, more in the eyes than on the lips, so long forgotten, but so well remembered now.

"Say! I am glad. This is a real pleasure! I don't know as how I can thank you, Miss Letty," Luigi exclaimed.

He was a little thinner and a little more sallow than in the Sacramento days, but otherwise unchanged. Vansittart slipped into Luigi's mind, and she covered her confusion by quick, over-kind words.

"I felt very anxious to know whether you had prospered, Mr. Duplay. One should not forget old friends. I was so pleased with your performance on Monday evening."

He smiled again, leaning on the corner of the mantelpiece and looking eagerly down on her.

"Mr. Duplay," he said reproachfully. "User! I to get 'Luigi' in Sacramento?"

"We are not in Sacramento now," said Letty, hastily.

"That's so, Miss Letty; but I guess it wasn't exactly the location of the town which made those days kind of pleasant? Say, you haven't altered! Strange, Miss Letty, but I haven't seen a single pair of blue eyes for over four years! Not one pair! Yes, you're just the same, perhaps a little more fleshy, that's all."

Letty started, for the end of his sentence jarred. But she did not speak as his expression changed. "He is reliving the past!" she thought. "Poor fellow!"

"Say, Miss Letty, didn't you use me rather meanly 'way out there in Sacramento?" said Duplay. "I don't know as I deserved to be dropped at the first lamp post—excuse my slang—but did I? Shall I ever get even with you about that?"

"I think not," said Letty.

Vansittart was again the unseen third. There was silence. The girl began to suspect that he was not only heartbroken but injured. She determined to be kind once more before the final wrench.

"Do you remember the old Court House garden?" she began.

"Where the orange trees were in bloom?" he ended the sentence.

They looked straight into each other's eyes. It would be difficult to say which of them first smiled. Duplay, with his usually solemn eyes dancing, laid his hand over the girl's.

"You haven't forgotten, Miss Letty? Think of that! Those were sick times. Miss Letty..."

Her expression, full of kindness and pity, choked him. She opened a little bag hanging at her waist and took out a folded paper. Duplay drew a deeper closer. The secret of the folded paper was laid bare before him. He saw a few withered leaves and brown, discolored petals. A blank look came into his face, then he opened his lips to speak, but Letty stopped him.

"I must tell you the truth, Luigi, even if you think me cruel and hard. I have sometimes thought we might meet again, and I have kept this little sprig to show you without words that—"

She crumpled the paper and the dead leaves in her hand and tossed them both into the fire. Luigi's eyes followed them. Then he looked up.

"So you think my heart is broken, Miss Letty, and that's a kind way of letting me know—that's real consideration of you! You might have had that little conflagration at Sacramento four years ago, but perhaps it was kind of encouraging to think that you had me on the string."

Letty put out her hand. She had rather enjoyed herself so far, but his last words were puzzling.

"No, Luigi, no! But you've taken it beautifully! This is our very last good-bye."

She intended to give an impression of condescending, final magnanimity, and evidently succeeded. Luigi touched her hand and they went out of the room in silence.

As they passed through the gloomy hall together, a young lady, typically American from the point of her tiny shoes to the little curl on her forehead, ran down stairs toward them. She was smart, pretty and a trifle common. Letty was conscious of a whiff of scent, and she saw that the little American was wearing far too many diamonds.

"My! Loo, I began to think you'd never be through talkin'. I'm most happy to meet you."

She stretched out her hand to the surprised Letty, who looked to her companion for an explanation.

"Allow me to present my wife!" said Luigi Duplay.

As Letty went away, leaving the trick cyclist and Mrs. Duplay smiling and nodding on the doorstep, she determined not to confide her recent experiences to Mr. Vansittart. She had fully intended to give him a description of the burning of the orange blossom, but somehow—under the circumstances—she thought it would be better to keep it to herself.

HEALTH "DON'TS."

Don't neglect your house drains, nor the drainage about your house. The first condition of family health is a dry and sweet atmosphere. With dry walls, a dry cellar, and drains that carry off refuse without letting in foul gases, half the battle for good health is won.

Don't let your wells or springs be infected by drainage or from other causes. Pure drinking water is indispensable for health at home or anywhere.

Don't keep the sun out of your living and sleeping rooms. Sunlight is absolutely necessary for a right condition of the atmosphere that we breathe and for our bodily well-being.

Don't sleep in the same flannels that you wear during the day.

Don't wear thin socks or light-soled shoes in cold or wet weather.

SAD LIFE OF MRS. McKINLEY

MRS. WILLIAM McKINLEY

By those who live in Canton, the McKinley home, the late President's wife is said to be in better health than she has been for fifteen years. She takes a stroll twice a day around the porch which runs on two sides of the house, and is a familiar figure to the people of Canton. Every morning and again in the afternoon she drives to West Lawn Cemetery to the receiving vault, where the remains of Mr. McKinley still lie. Mrs. McKinley dresses in deep mourning and wears a heavy black veil over her face whenever she goes out. She drives in a large black carriage, drawn by two dark horses, an equipage of dignity and comfort, but totally lacking in display.

The casket of the late President is just inside the vault, in plain view of the public. It is always covered with an American flag, and the flowers which loving hands are ever bringing. Mrs. McKinley carries flowers to the tomb every day, and has made a contract with a prominent Canton florist to care for them as long as they last. It is estimated that the cost and care of the flowers averages Mrs. McKinley $5,000 a year.

Although she is said to be so much better than she was during the President's last years, Mrs. McKinley is not like the same woman she was then. She has grown thin and wan, and discourages any statement that she is getting better. Her one prayer, and the one which she utters over and over throughout her waking hours, is that she may die. She talks of nothing but Mr. McKinley, and will allow no one to converse on any other subject in her presence. She spends her time when not driving or walking slowly around the porch in wandering through the rooms which have been made dear to her by the years spent there with her husband, and wherever she goes a portrait of him greets her. Mrs. Barber, Mrs. McKinley's sister, lives with her now, and there is always a trained nurse in attendance. The house is never free of guests—people who were friends of the family long before Mr. McKinley became the Chief Executive. Many of those, too, who were associated with the President and his wife in Washington are frequent visitors at the McKinley home. Among these is Secretary Cortelyou, who was the late President's secretary and friend. Mrs. McKinley seems to derive so much pleasure and comfort from his visits that he spends as much time with her as his official duties will allow. Mrs. McKinley has never left Canton since she went there after the President's death.

The receiving vault in which the body of Mr. McKinley rests is an unpretentious little tomb resting against a hill in West Lawn Cemetery. A big maple tree towers above it, and the vines have been allowed to festoon themselves over it until it is quite picturesque.

A guard of United States Infantry is maintained there night and day. Two men are on duty at the door of the vault, and the barracks are back to the right. "One officer is detailed there and ninety men. It is said that the guard will be removed next spring, when the body of the President will be transferred to the tomb which will be its permanent resting place. This is on a gradual slope of overlooking the homes of Canton's residents—the people who knew and loved William McKinley as a neighbor, and revered and honored him as the Chief Executive of the United States.

THE TRUE MEANING OF A PRACTICAL EDUCATION

By JOHN L. SHROY, in the "Pennsylvania School Journal."

We hear so much talk about "practical education" these days that I am inclined to inquire what a practical education really is.

Generally considered, it is an education that gives a sufficient knowledge of reading, arithmetic, penmanship, history, geography, etc., to enable a youth to start, at once upon leaving a public school, into work that will bring him an immediate financial return.

But there is a great variety of employment for young people, and it is surprising to hear the definitions of practical education as voiced by men of different vocations. The bookmaker and accountant say penmanship and rapid addition are the essentials. The architect says drawing. The mechanic says manual training. The department store says gentlemanly conduct, tact, and alertness. The physician says psychology. The druggist says chemistry and botany. The artist says sketching and color work. And the literary man says composition.

But the teacher who would devote a large proportion of his time to any one of the many lines of work, and, in a short time, dovetail himself into the position he has chosen.

With this last idea the "practical" agitator brings his argument to a close—but is this all? Dr. McCaskey says that Mary, Martha and Lazarus, of Bethany, must have been pleasant people to live with. That is what a practical education should be also. It ought to teach how to make the most of life and how to enjoy life.

I want to know not only the regular round of daily toil, but also know about birds, about flowers, about trees, about bugs, about butterflies—so that wherever I am, I am never alone. I want to look up and see the stars and planets, know some of their names and recognize them as friends of the night. I want to see the crystals in the snowflakes, the diamonds in the morning dew, the radiant glory in the rising sun, and the gorgeous array of coloring upon the walls of the western sky at eventide. I want to love good music. I want to love books, good books, and feel a sweet companionship whenever I am in their presence.

I hear you say: "I have no money, no time, no opportunity for all these things." Can you read? Then all is open to you. No money? Books are cheap, and it will surprise you what a few dimes will buy in a second-hand book store. No time? You waste enough time in idle gossip to get a college education. No opportunity? The birds, flowers, sunrises, sunsets, stars, dew, crystals—all are yours. Who owns the landscape? You. Why do people plant beautiful roses in their front yards? For you to enjoy as you go by. Teach your soul to love good, true, beautiful things and you will be happy.

Ellis Burritt learned eighteen languages while earning his living as a blacksmith; Hugh Miller became a writer of remarkable fluency and vigor while pursuing his trade as a stone mason; Chancellor d'Aguassau translated the Greek Testament in the quarter hours he was waiting for his wife to dress for dinner.

If these have done much, can you not do at least a little and learn a few things in your waste moments that will relieve the strain of daily toil and brighten and cheer not only your own life, but the lives of all with whom you come in contact?

Is life worth living? Yes, if you have tuned your soul to respond to the harmonies of earth and sea and sky—to the minors of sorrow, to the majors of joy and triumph, and, best of all, to accord with the will of the Divine power that giveth wisdom, whose "ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace."

DELAYED.

A physician who cares for the ill of hotel guests tells a little story on himself that might bear repetition.

"I was sitting in my office Saturday morning," he said, "figuring up some accounts, when a young woman, whose name I had never heard, was announced. Before I could send word that I would have to keep her waiting in the anteroom for a few minutes she walked into my office. She said she would wait there until I had finished my figuring, but kept on talking about her ailments, and I heard her say something about aches in the elbows."

"Been taking electricity?" I asked, absently.

"Yes," she said. "Got struck by lightning three weeks ago. That's why I'm here."

"I prescribed for that young woman without delay,"—New York Daily News.

Good Water the Elixir of Life

The vast majority of us drink water simply because we are impelled to do by the sense of thirst, without considering the necessity in the maintenance of health. Yet all thoughtful medical men must agree with the well known dietitian, who says that "drinking not enough water is the greatest and most common of dietetic errors." To fully understand why the omission of a liberal amount of drinking water is so grave a crime against the laws of health, we must understand what water can do in the prevention of disease; and to realize this fully we must know the function of drinking water in health.

A most scientific and discriminating professor in physiology asked his advanced class the chief use of water to the body, and he was well satisfied with the simple and practical answer, "to wash the body out." The "internal bath" is far more essential to health than the "external bath," just as much more important as the internal organs are to it than the skin, and it must be obvious, for the cleansing of these organs, pure, clean water is essential.

There is a perpetual water famine in most human systems, a condition of things to which is accorded the responsibility of the sad fact, that the delicate flowers of human youth and beauty soon fade away. The most amateurish gardener needs no lessons on the value of water for the welfare of his plants, but few indeed are the keepers of the priceless blossoms of human life, who realize the necessity for the same delicious draughts of supporting vitality. Women in particular, who are the simple glass of water, sipping tea, cupful after cupful, doting upon their breakfast coffee, but of water quaffing not a drop for days, even in summer; preferring the sugary pleasures of the soda counter to offering their scorched throats a swallow of refreshing water.

The correct, adequate performance of every function of the body, depends upon the quantity and quality of water taken into the system daily, if the water is scanty or impure every organ is retarded, every function is disturbed, the free circulation of the blood through the microscopic capillary tubes, one of life's most important processes, is seriously interfered with, the depuration through various organs and channels of excretion and secretion impeded. Hence a slow, certain poisoning of the system ensues.

Water, while continually passing from the body, always carries with it more or less waste, worn out, poisonous matters, which constantly generate in the system, as well as injurious particles introduced from without. Every expelled breath is laden with watery vapor containing impurities. Insensible perspiration thrown off with countless particles passes out through the skin. The same is true of the kidneys and other channels of elimination, the vehicle for cleansing any part of the body being always water. The process is similar to that of cleansing a soiled sponge, the thoroughness being proportionate with the quantity and purity of the water, the rapidity also depending on the same factors.

As a nutritive factor water plays an equally important role in the system. The fact that it constitutes nearly three-fourths of the human body is alone proof positive of this statement. Blood contains 80 per cent of water, muscles 75 per cent, brain 80 per cent, gastric juice 97.1-2 per cent, saliva 99.1-2 per cent, bones 13 per cent, and even the teeth 10 per cent; insufficient water therefore means a lack everywhere in the constitution which water alone can furnish.

Pure water also makes most powerfully for long life in its character of a solvent, distilled water being unquestionably the greatest solvent known.

"A man is as old as his arteries," is the dictum of a renowned French physiologist. Now what is it that makes the arteries old? Blood vessels, young and healthy, are extensively elastic, permitting the blood to circulate through them freely. But in old age they become hard and unyielding with a diminished capacity and a smaller blood-stream flowing through with less swiftness. This change is effected by the deposits in the blood-vessels, with the walls of blood vessels, of fibrinous and gelatinous substances, lime and other earthly compounds contained in the food taken into the body. This through the microscopic capillary structures of the system, in the joints, in the tendons, in the muscles, in every organ and tissue of the body; in short, wherever the blood circulates, heart, lungs, digestive tract, organs of secretion and excretion, brain and nerves, everywhere clogging the vital machinery, imparting the action of one and all, and hastening the time when the human machine ceases to act. Nature provides a solvent for the plants and vegetable plant life with rainwater, the next greater solvent after distilled water. It percolates through the earth, and in its course dissolves and absorbs various organic and inorganic substances with which it comes in contact. In the same way water taken into the system as food and drink circulates into the minutest parts of the body, dissolves, absorbs and carries out with it the noxious and waste tissues, organic and mineral matters which poison and impede the action of the system. It purifies blood and tissues, washes away all the poisons which produce rheumatism, gout, congestion of the liver, kidneys and other organs.

So in a general way we may see that the ingestion of water is essential to life and essential to health, and it may be safely said that the health will improve in exact ratio to the amount of pure water taken in. Many cases of indigestion may be remedied by proper cleansing of the mouth and teeth. How much more important is the cleansing of those more important digestive organs—the stomach and the intestines?

The poisonous products of life accumulate rapidly, and unless these be eliminated produce a large class of "auto-intoxications." These toxins give rise to rheumatism, gout, sore throats, common colds, headaches, and a long train of maladies with which all are familiar. The faulty action of these eliminative organs is responsible for the piling up of poisons, lowering the resistance of the body to disease, destroying the so-called "natural immunity," and permitting freer action of the disease germs which may have gained access to the body in any way. Thus it may be seen that the simple mechanical action of pure water may prevent a long list of pathological conditions by wholly removing the cause.

BRITISH EMBASSY WILL BE REMODELED

Sir Michael Herbert, the new British Ambassador, will soon be in Washington to present his credentials. He will then return to England until early winter. When he and his family take possession of the Embassy building they will find an entirely changed establishment. Builders and decorators are now hard at work remodeling the palatial structure. It is now the most commodious Embassy at the capital and when completed will be the most elegant. Lady Herbert, who is very popular in Washington, expects to entertain lavishly.

THE ILLUSION.

During a sham fight an old general came unawares upon a soldier who, was lying fast asleep in a field among the corn.

"Is this your post?" exclaimed the general, rousing him with the full intention of making an example of him. The soldier, thus suddenly startled out of his slumber, rubbed his eyes. At Ploughnastel, a small town in Ireland, on recognizing the officer, sprang Britanny, all the weddings of the year to his feet, presented arms, and said: "are celebrated on one day. In February I beg your pardon, general, but weary last thirty-four couples were married going through a sham fight, and died simultaneously."

In order to make an illusion more complete I was just pretending to be dead."—New York Daily News.

Boris Rolled Too High

GRAND DUKE BORIS

Grand Duke Boris of Russia has left the United States. His visit to this country caused quite a stir in society. It is rumored, however, that his royal kinsman, the Czar of Russia, is somewhat displeased at the wild stories of the Grand Duke's sensational doings that have been in circulation for the past few weeks.

Changes In Football Rules

The new football rules for the season of 1902 are out, and for the first time it is possible to get a record of the changes made by the rules committee at its summer session. The most important alteration is a section providing for a change of goals after each touchdown. This change is for the purpose of equalizing the chances of the teams as far as wind and sun are concerned. The change also provides for a shift of goals after a goal from the field. A number of minor changes are made for the sake of clearness, and a rule which relates to the length of the game says the referee shall, when he thinks darkness is liable to cut short the game, arbitrarily shorten the time of the two halves, and that refusal to abide by such a decision shall mean forfeiture of the game.

Rule 16, section B, says: "In snapping the ball back, if the player doing so is off side, the ball must be snapped again. If this occurs more than once on the same down the opponents shall receive five yards, the number of the down and the point to be gained remaining unchanged." The penalty thus becomes a loss of five yards instead of loss of the ball and is less severe.

Rule 18, Section C, deals with the groupings of players and elucidates a point concerning which there has always been much misunderstanding. It says: "If five players, not including the quarter-back, are behind the line of scrimmage they must occupy one of the three following positions: First, all five of such players may be inside the positions occupied at the ends of the line of scrimmage, in which case two of the players must be at least five yards back of the line; or, second, if one of the said five players be outside of the line occupied by the players at the end of said line, then only one other of the players need be five yards back of the line; but, third, all five of these players may be nearer than five yards to the line of scrimmage if two of them are outside the positions occupied by the end of said line." In this rule "outside" means outside the extreme foot of the players of the opposing side at the end of the line.

In rule 27, section F, are additional points to still further prevent coaching from the side lines. "Only five men shall be allowed to walk up and down each side of the field." Violation of this rule is punishable by a loss of five yards.

Changes have been made in rule 28, which has to do with penalties. For holding, the set-backs penalty becomes five yards instead of ten. Also for the unlawful use of hands or arms, violations as to off-side play, tripping and tackling below the knees, the penalty is fixed at a five-yards assessment, unless the offending side has the ball, in which case the penalty is instant surrender of the ball. If the ball is in the air when the foul is committed, the ball goes to the non-offending side. The rule concludes with the following note: "Whenever a foul is committed which, in the opinion of the umpire, does not affect the play, the offending side may decline the penalty. In case of a run being made from this play, not more than twenty-five yards from the spot where the foul was committed shall be allowed."

WORLD'S FASTEST BOAT

Charles R. Flint, the American millionaire, is the possessor of the fastest boat the world has ever seen. It is the steam yacht Arrow, whose wonderful record is a mile in one minute 19.89 seconds. No machine fashioned by man has ever traveled on the water before at this rate. The nearest approach to this record was the British torpedo boat Viper, which made a record of 36.04 knots an hour three knots behind the Arrow's record.

A DIFFERENCE.

An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman, making a tour around Manchester some time since, were observed looking through a confectioner's window at a beautiful young woman serving in the shop.

"Oh!" exclaimed Mr. Patrick, "do let us be after spending half a crown with the dear craytur, that we may look at her conveniently and have a bit of a chat wid her."

"Ah, wait a wee," interposed Mr. McAndrew; "dinna ye ken it'll serve our purpose equally well just to ask the bonnie lassie to gie us two shillings for a shilling, and inquire where's Mr. Thompson's home, and sic like? We're no hungry, and may as well save the ailler."—Tid-Bits.

LIKELY.

Joseph Jefferson, on an occasion when he was to make an address to Yale students, was dining in the college grounds with a group of instructors and sophomores who manifested a keen interest in the old comedian's views on spiritualism. "One branch of believers in spiritualism, Mr. Jefferson," said a soph., "are of the opinion that we shall have the same character of work in the world to come as on earth. Now, do you expect to be an actor in heaven?"

"Well," replied Jefferson, "I have given the subject some consideration, and I'm afraid that, if I reach the gate, St. Peter will shake his head at me and say: 'For heaven's sake, Joe, change your roles!'"

AMERICANS SETTING THE PACE IN FASHIONS

PARIS HAS VERY LITTLE NEW TO OFFER THIS SEASON—DESIGNERS HAVE REACHED THEIR LIMIT.

Latest notes from the Parisian center of fashion herald no changes for the coming season that might be considered radical. In fact, skirts, sleeves and blouses are to continue on the same lines, and even trimmings display scarcely any novelty in either design or method of application.

The most casual observer is forced to conclude that designers have come to a standstill, and this quiescent state is bound to result in something unusual over the water, as well as in our own country; at least, in the dress-making field.

American the Arbiters of Fashion.

As a matter of fact, affairs have reached a most promising stage for the launching of a plan boldly conceived and now being carried out by an energetic young New York woman. Her idea is to make America the fashion center of the world, and in order to accomplish this end she has formed what is called the Dressmakers' Protective Association, having a capital stock of $25,000.

The president, Miss Elizabeth White, has gone abroad twice a year for several years, and each time has studied and selected carefully the Parisian dress models that she has chosen to bring back and offer as the most satisfactory exponents of artistic ideas. For the last two or three seasons, however, there has been a decided falling off in both the beauty and originality of the Parisian gowns, and she, as well as many other American dressmakers, has been struck with the notion that Parisian designers have ceased to originate, and have come to a standstill in their art. If this is the case, it is only following out the laws of the universe that when one nation ceases to reign supreme another will come forward and wield the scepter of power. This nation, according to Miss White, is America, and before four years have passed we shall see New York established as the fashion center of the world, and instead of the semi-annual trip across the water for ideas, our models will be sent over for all the European dressmakers to copy.

It must be admitted that many of the expensive Parisian models seen in New York possess few charms in either design or appearance, and yet, so clever and inventive is the American modiste that from one model having scarcely anything to recommend it, she will make half a dozen beautiful frocks, each different from another, and yet all of them owing their loveliness to this one unattractive creation. This is where the American power displays itself, and Miss White thinks that if American cleverness can make something worth having from so ordinary a model, why can't we rely upon ourselves to create instead of depending ever so little upon the foreign artists who are now, evidently, relying upon their past successes to carry them through the future. This idea that the Americans will accept and wear anything from Paris, has some truth in it, of course, for American women have a wholesome reverence for fashions that bear the stamp of great Parisian names, yet even now many of the smart set are beginning to realize that right in their own town they are able to secure the daintiest, loveliest and most artistic creations ever offered. Still, the creator is too modest, too lacking in self-confidence to think of placing herself in the same rank as the Parisian designers. Miss White intends to encourage the American dressmakers to enter the field and announce themselves as competitors of such famous houses as Callean, Felix, Redfern, Doucet and the many others well known in every quarter of the globe.

In the Enemy's Country.
The first move of the Dressmakers' Protective Association will be to open houses in Paris, Berlin and Vienna and establish American men and women in them, and then let them compete right on the ground with the native artists. The association hopes, in a short time, to gain a firm footing and to dispose of its American models to Europeans from every country as well as to the appreciative Americans. The newspapers have devoted considerable space to notices of the new association and the European journals have commented on the probable success of the enterprise as well as upon the effect such an association will have upon their own dressmaking houses. Some go so far as to assert that they have not the slightest fear that the Americans will succeed, unless the association is backed by Mr. Pierpont Morgan.

In reply to this remark, Miss White acknowledges that it would be of great benefit to have such a prominent name as Mr. Morgan's at the head of their association. However, she says, they are going ahead just the same without him and she is determined that in side of four years the association will have gained self-confidence and

SUN WORSHIPER IN HARD LUCK.

The following remarks were overheard on a Strand omnibus, says a contemporary. A leader sign was overheard, the rain poured down uncomplainingly, mud was underfoot. A red-capped Parsee who had been sitting near the dripping river got down as the conductor came up.

"What sort of chap is that?" asked the driver.

"Don't yer know that?" answered the conductor. "Why, that's one of them Indians what worships the sun."

"Worships the sun?" said the shivering driver. "I suppose 'e's over 'ere to 'ave a rest!"—London Express.

strength enough to have wrested from Parisians the position of fashion arbiters and will have established themselves, by right of worth, as leaders of the world in things feminine.

Parisians have been too uninterested and careless to originate new and attractive models for this autumn and winter, therefore we must content ourselves with rehashing the old worn-out styles. In some ways this is a satisfactory state of affairs, for certainly gowns have never been more becoming and easy to wear than during the past year. Women, however, chafe at being forced to put up with old ideas, and if we must continue wearing the same cut at least we should be offered something new in the way of ornamentation.

The influence of the coronation will be seen in the lavish use of rich red, gold and silver, especially upon evening dresses, while lace will carry off the palm for elegance. Its use will be even more extravagant than heretofore, and upon the delicate meshes there will be all manner of appliques, even heavy velvet designs and bands of fur being seen.

Soft crepes and silks will be used for house and evening wear, and the popular colors are to be gray, blue and green, and red and black. The gray possesses a brownish tinge, called by some elephant gray, while the newest red has an indistinct coating of gray over the brilliant ground. It is quite the thing to choose a shaggy material for street costumes; in fact, all the most attractive novelties, in plaids and fancy weaves, show a surface covered with long, soft hairs. With the return of rich, deep-toned plaids we notice the appearance of kilts and skirts. These are a pretty variation from the stitched ones that have been in vogue for so long.

Unless your skirt is plaited it must have flounces upon the bottom, and the modish idea is to have several of these, one above the other, until over half the length of the skirt is formed of flounces.

The walking skirt, made to just escape the ground, is now such a matter of course in the consideration of the feminine wardrobe that one scarcely needs a discussion regarding its merit. However, in Paris they are again agitating the advantages of the mode, and test accounts were highly in favor of looting it altogether. It is so much more sensible to wear a skirt cut this length and to reserve long, graceful, trailing draperies for the house, theater and carriage wear.

There is a report, without much foundation, that the pretty sleeves having a fullness at the wrist are to be replaced by coat and leg-of-mutton styles, but the newest models are still displaying the former mode.

Hats are always one of the most interesting parts of the feminine wardrobe, and since the vogue of the long-plumed picture chapeau, we are loth to give it up for the trimmer tailor shape. Of course, it is only upon certain occasions that the side-drooping trimmed hat can be worn, but it has enjoyed such popularity recently at the gay Newport weddings that the chances are for its continuance upon dressy occasions.

For weddings it has no equal either in beauty or adaptability, and it goes with any kind of dress costume.

Feather boas, particularly those made of ostrich plumes, will be worn very much during the fall and winter, until their beauty will be forced to give way to the more comfortable neckpieces of fur. Lace and chiffon ruffs are now enjoying an inning, and the prettiest Parisian novelties in this line are made of dotted silk set in the shape of deep collars, that quite cover the shoulders and fasten in front with long, straight ends falling to the bottom of the gown. Sashes are to have a decided vogue, and even tailor frocks, that is the more elaborate ones, will be made with short sash effects of the goods at the back. Silk and crepe ones are prettier than ever, and some are quaintly bound all around with a contrasting shade, while others have the rounded or pointed ends, ornamented with trimming to match that used upon the blouse.

Croquette Ice Cream

Recipe for Ice Cream Croquettes.

Take any flavor ice cream that is desired (the harder frozen the better), and make into croquettes, using the hands. Better results and quicker work can be accomplished by their use. Roll the croquettes into macaron crumbs; serve with whipped cream, to which has been added a small dash of maraschino or kirsch. Cafe Parfait.

It is quite amusing to read the different recipes for this dainty ice, published from time to time in different newspaper articles under different names, such as cafe frappe, cafe ice, etc. The above is simply made, by taking three-quarters of any kind of ice cream and one-quarter of whipped cream. Mix well together, adding a dash of maraschino; mix for about one minute; put into tall glasses; garnish top with whipped cream and serve. In making the above any flavor of cream may be used. Chocolate becomes chocolate parfait; strawberry, strawberry parfait.

THEIR FAMILY DISTINCTION.

An uptown reader tells of the "break" made by a tot of the family who was one of a party of little girls at a recent strawberry festival in the vicinity of her home, says the Washington Star. She had been valiantly boasting of the manifold advantages of belonging to her family, and had managed to hold her own against the vainglorious and ingenuous discourses of her companions. They had gone from clothes to personal appearances, then to interior furnishings, then to the number of tons of coal consumed in the home of each during the past winter, and finally brought up at parental dignity. The minister's little girl boasted:

"An' every package that comes for my papa is marked 'M. D.'!" retorted the daughter of a physician of the neighborhood.

Then came a final snort of contempt from the heroine of this anecdote. "Huh!" she exclaimed, "every package that comes to our house is marked 'C. O. D.'! There, now!"

AN APOLOGY.

A gentleman in London called on the celebrated editor of a well known newspaper and said: "Sir, your paper has announced that I am dead." "If it is in your paper, it must be true," replied the editor. "But it is not true; for, as you see, I am alive." "Well, then, it cannot be helped." "But I expect you to correct the misstatement," said the gentleman. The editor answered: "I cannot do that, for we never recall what is in our paper. I will, however, do everything to bring you back to life. Tomorrow I will place your name in the list of births."

DINNER GOWN OF NET

This is a Doucet model gown of white dotted black net, over black tulle. The skirt has full flounce, with three rows graduated black velvet ribbon. Princess panels front of black lace and "spider web" stitched, together with pale blue silk embroidery, over dull blue silk. Girdle and elbow trimmings of pale blue lousine silk. Epaulets to match panel. Hat of black velvet with light-blue plumes.

WHY IS IT...

That the women who ought to wear little hats don big ones and those who should wear Gaietyboroughs choose tiny toques?

That the woman whose profile demands a low coiffure screws her hair on the top of her head?

That a dress covered with college pins of various kinds is supposed to be proof of popularity?

That the woman of generous proportions wears the gaudiest shirt-waist she can find?

That the short, fat woman insists upon having a lot of ruffles around her skirt?

That a silk drop skirt is supposed to buy pardon for a soiled, torn white one underneath?

That the older and more faded the woman, the gayer and more youthful her hat?

That, in fact, we do not use a little more plain common sense of our own manufacture in dress and daily living, instead of following blindly the lead of Dame Fashion or our neighbors?

That the girl with lace stockings thinks no one will notice her run-down heels?

That some girls fondly imagine the more combs and barrettes they put in their hair the prettier the effect?

That a haughty, insolent air is supposed to be an evidence of good breeding?

That more women do not think of their back when dressing, in stead of seeming to believe they are all front?

THE WONDER.

A lady from the States is now in Honolulu with a fine line of stylish millinery, the latest designs and correct fashions, direct from New York. She will open for business at 248 Bureta street. Will be called The Wonder Millinery Parlors. Watch for the Grand Opening next week, when all will be invited to call and see the display, whether you wish to purchase or not.

A Baltimore judge has decided that faith cure doctors are not entitled to remuneration for their services. He takes the ground that the faith cure physician renders no apparent service to the sick.

Correct Broadcloth Suit.

Fancy tailored costume in marine blue cloth. Stitched seams, pleats below the knee, strapped with black velvet and gun metal buttons. Double hem coat with fitted back and short tabs. Collar, cuffs, pocket and waistband of velvet. Lower part of collar shows rich colored embroidery, with edge of same, which also edges the cuffs.

Hints For Housewives

Carry a lighted match with the lighted end from you to keep it from going out.

To set the dye in cotton stockings put a good handful of common salt in the washing water.

Iron the silk fronts of embroidered stockings with a warm iron to make them bright and shiny.

To polish fretwork first rub it over with sandstone, then dip a cloth in linseed oil and rub the wood well with it. When ripping up the seams of an old skirt, if the ripping is started from the bottom, the goods are much less likely to tear the edges.

A little pipeclay dissolved in the water employed in washing clothes will vastly improve their color and will prove a great saving of time, trouble and soap.

To clean wood tables and shelves use this mixture: Half a pound each of soft soap and sand and a quarter of a pound of lime. Mix and apply with a scrubbing brush. Rinse with plenty of clean water and when dry the wood will be spotlessly white.

Nasturtium vinegar is in high esteem for salad dressings and for certain sauces in which vinegar is used. Fully blown flowers are best for the use. Put them into large glass bottles, and shake them well together. Put in each bottle a finely minced shallot and one-third of a clove of garlic, and fill with white or cider vinegar. Let this stand two months. Then strain through cheesecloth, stir in one-half ounce of cayenne pepper and one-half tablespoonful of salt; bottle and cork securely.

MUSINGS

You will reap what you sow rather than what you think you are buying at the seed counter.

Almost every woman believes she would be beautiful if only she had the right clothes.

They say love is blind, but a woman can see a thousand qualities in a man which he never possessed.

What would one's great-grandfather do if he knew his athletic great-granddaughter was using his nicest set of knee buckles for belt buckles?

Women will become champion walkers if the department stores get much larger. They have to sprint ten miles now to get a five-cent spoon of thread and a ten-cent duster.

Isn't it terrible when you are dying for an imported French dress, reduced, to have to spend the money for a refrigerator?

MARY MACLANE IS VERY MUCH LIKE OTHER YOUNG GIRLS

Are you at all interested in Mary MacLane—the Butte, Montana, Marie Hashkirtseff; the particular sensation just now, for lack of something more thrilling, of Manhattan's yellow journalism? About once in so often in this everlasting hunt for novelty, the lightning strikes, and some individuality is abnormally illuminated. It may be a Prince Henry, a Florence Durns, an Ellen Stone or a Baldwin-Ziegler; it may as easily be a murderer as an authoress; but the one thing fixed and certain is that the moment of notoriety, vivid while it lasts, is painfully brief.

I have not read "The Story of Mary MacLane, Told by Herself," but I have met herself. By a curious chance she came suddenly upon us very recently at Coney Island, whither she had been sent by a leading journal to gather that important thing to the impressionable—an impression. For of course you all know; if you know anything at all about this young woman, that she is busily engaged this month in a —and by the East I mean that goodly section of the United States which is east of Montana. In other words, Miss MacLane is enjoying one of the keenest pleasures that can come to an adventurous mind—her first journey; and it is being made more than ordinarily interesting to her through plenty of attention, variety and money; and the money is not less interesting that it comes largely through the craving of a saffron-tinted journalism for every stray fancy that records itself on the blank paper of her young and receptive mind.

When you understand all this, and are vaguely aware that the aforesaid "Story" by "Herself" is full of what the moderns are pleased to call "hot stuff," you are greatly surprised to find your vis-a-vis, over a dish of Vanderveer's clams, a young woman, distinctly ladylike in appearance, with not the slightest suggestion of anything bold, queer, improper or outrageous. Indeed, if one might venture a criticism, it would be that, barring a determined "ni admirari" attitude to characteristic shared with her by the Eskimo, "Miss Bill," aged 12, brought by the Pearys from the Polar regions), the young lady from Montana borders upon the commonplace. Or possibly it may be that, writing being her only stock in trade, she means to keep her ideas to herself, fearing appropriation by others. Greater writers than Miss MacLane have been known to do this very thing, and thus to wear more heavily on the spirits of their hosts than their readers.

To begin with her costume, it was not in the least "wild and woolly," but the usual black skirt, white shirt-waist and blue tie of a sensible girl, with a becoming shade hat showered with forget-me-nots. A scent bottle attached to a long chain, a wrist bag, waist stocked with silver (several pieces of which were tossed to an Italian organ-grinder, angling atrociously beneath the window, and too stupid at first either to see his share in the Montana mines or pick it up), Mary MacLane stood revealed as not without taste and in touch with the times. Under the forget-me-not hat were a pair of eyes to match, set in a face rather broad and full, surmounted by an abundance of really truly bronzy hair, duly frizzed and fluffed, according to the unfortunate but inexorable demand of the day. The face was comely enough, and indicated health, but the expression was decidedly odd. Her voice was low, refined and pleasing, but its timbre was as colorless as the immobile lips.

She ordered a "high ball," and then another to deepen the tint of the first, but the combination must have been to look at only, for any beverage stronger than water she scarcely tasted. As a "dinner woman" she was not a success, though it may be asking too much of any girl of twenty-one to eat and shine at the same time, even though it be with an innocuous quartet of old friends at the unconventional end of the island. Besides she evidently values her "impression," and it will take her a little time to learn that conversation is not necessarily dangerous, notwithstanding the fact that you have told a "Story" all along by yourself. She did declare, however, toward the end of the meal that she intended waiting all the way back to her hotel in New York—some twenty miles or so.

"Why shouldn't I?" she asked. "I walked five miles this morning, just for exercise. Twenty miles a day is nothing to me."

"But it is night now," we humbly suggested.

"What difference does that make?" In Montana I often walk at night. It is the most beautiful of all times, particularly out in the wilds. Afraid of what? There is nothing near but mountain lions, and they won't harm you. What is a mountain lion? It is like the other kind, only without a mane."

This was interesting, and suggested that the girl had her attractive moments, if she would only rid herself of that blasé air. She was of medium height, with the blandness of youth, irresponsible sense of humor, and it seemed as though she might be a walk well. Besides, she realized the joy there is in silence and solitude.

She did not care to go to the fire-promptly taken possession of the works—she did not interest her. In stranger from Butte, evidently hoping, so little interested her that if for a succession of Stories told by herself, told or untold, while with us—ah, me!—Helen Bartlett Bridgman in Brooklyn Standard Union.

"I smile on her lips, was before that crescent of bedizened, dancing, singing 'girls' in the 'Bowery,' who contribute to the gaiety of nations from 1 p. m. to 1 a. m., and go through their little stunts quite solemnly. There were all ages, from 15 to 50, one of the latter wearing glasses, looking at conscientious and circumspect as any mother of a family.

"They really take themselves seriously," murmured Miss MacLane, who can see others, if not herself. Then a genuine smile irradiated her usually impassive features, as she called our attention to the chromo over the squealing, kicking ballet. It was "Custer's Last Charge." What happiness to discover, even though kept up that blasé air. She was of medium height, with the blandness of youth, irresponsible sense of humor, and it seemed as though she might be a walk well. Besides, she realized the joy there is in silence and solitude.

She did not care to go to the fire-promptly taken possession of the works—she did not interest her. ing, go on such a reckless debauch of peanuts, the sure sign in "pillars of society" of a disordered mind. In the very center of a clean, well-regulated Flatbush avenue car shells and sentiments were scattered right and left.

"She's no talking machine," he announced bitterly.

"Then how did you get along—in a corner by yourselves?"

"I ate peanuts," he confessed shamelessly.

"What did she do?" My curiosity was on the qui vive.

"She ate peanuts, too."

And that was the end, the tame, harmless end of our evening with Mary MacLane. Nobody could be more quiet, more conventional, more innocent and "comme il faut." She is but little different from other inexperienced, unformed girls, not quite sure of themselves, therefore assuming that old, weary, sphinx-like pose. It is tireless, undoubtedly, even for the poseur, but with her there is always the sub-consciousness of a Story by herself, told or untold, while with us—ah, me!—Helen Bartlett Bridgman in Brooklyn Standard Union.
