RP news report maligns mayor

But Inos denies all allegations and charges of sexual misconduct

By Rafael I. Santos

A LEADING newspaper in the Philippines, quoting a written complaint, recently published a news story detailing how Rota Mayor Joseph Inos allegedly made sexual advances to a Filipina waitress last February.

The Philippine Daily Inquirer, a respected news daily in the Philippines, reported in its October 1 story that Inos "forced himself" on a 23-year old waitress employed at Bistro restaurant in Songsong. The restaurant is owned by Dora and Romulo Gangcuangco, said the story that served as the first of a series of special reports on alleged abuses committed against Filipino workers.

The story vividly described how the woman was allegedly molested by the mayor inside the "VIP" room of a nearby bar known as Duwendes Club. The waitress and a co-worker were having drinks at the Duwendes Club when they were approached by Romulo Gangcuango, a Filipino, and told them to entertain Inos inside the bar's VIP room, the report said.

"The mayor locked the room and turned off the lights. Then he started doing things that I can't take," the alleged victim was quoted as saying. A February 9 complaint of the woman, both in English and Filipino, was obtained by the Variety. The complaint bears the signature of the waitress, who hails from the province of Laguna, an industrial area near Metro Manila.

Governor stresses on local labor preference

GOVERNOR Froilan C. Tenorio last Tuesday implemented a key section of Executive Order 94-3 in issuing a directive that aims at increasing efforts to encourage more private sector employment for Commonwealth residents.

In a directive he issued Tuesday to the secretaries of Commerce and Labor and Immigration, ordered the official transfer of the Divisions of Labor and of Employment Services under the Department of Commerce and Labor to the new Department of Labor and Immigration (DLI).

He also asked that a smooth transfer of functions be effected between the two offices, in accordance with Executive Order 94-3.

More seek treatment on alcohol, drug abuse

COMMONWEALTH Health Center Addiction Specialist Joseph Kevin Villagomez disclosed that the number of clients who sought treatment for alcohol and drug addiction continue to increase.

Villagomez noted the trend based on the number of patients who asked help from the Substance Abuse/Addiction Treatment Program during the months of August and September.

In his monthly report submitted to Department of Public Health Services Secretary Dr. Isamu J. Abraham, the addiction specialist also cited the increasing number of clients being referred to the treatment program from the courts.

The reason behind the growth in court referrals is mainly because of new probation officer who has been hired to catch up on the backlogged case load, Villagomez pointed out.

He said there were a total of eight patients (six males, two females) who were admitted to CHC for alcohol-related illness. Their physicians sought alcohol counseling from the treatment program.

All patients were asked to continue on an outpatient basis upon discharged from the hospital.

Meanwhile, of those court-referred clients, 12 (all males) were caught for DUI (second or more offense) while two others (all males) for other offenses like assault and battery.

US vows to continue buildup

By KARIN DAVIES

KUWAIT (AP) - Skeptical of Saddam Hussein's intentions, the United States and its allies have pursued their massive military buildup in the Gulf despite signs that Iraqi troops were pulling away from Kuwait.

Washington was assembling its biggest force since the 1991 Gulf War to face down the Iraqi leader: Tens of thousands of Americans were still ordered into the Gulf along with hundreds of the most potent U.S. aircraft and warships.

Five days after the crisis began, "there's fairly broad movement" away from combat positions by the 80,000 Iragis assembled at the Kuwaiti border, Gen. John Shalikashvili, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said at the Pentagon Tuesday.

But "considerable (Iraqi) units" remain in the area, he said.

The Iraqi deployment toward the Kuwaiti border "wasn't just some innocent exercise that they were on and we misread it," Shalikashvili said. "I'm not at all prepared to say the crisis is over in any way."

Baghdad claimed its forces began moving Monday night to a position north of Basra, 35 miles (56 kms) north of the Kuwaiti

was largely completed Tuesday. Only two brigades, about 8,000 men, were still near the border and would withdraw soon, Sahhaf

Another agency dispatch said the Foreign Ministry has asked the Russian and Chinese embassies to send their military attaches to verify the pullback.

Journalists on the road to Basra said troops and military equipment were moving in both directions, with heavy artillery heading south.

Baghdad had claimed the buildup was a routine rotation and training exercise. But the mobilization was alarmingly similar to the one that preceded Iraq's August 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

Kuwait's information minister, Sheik Saud al-Sabah, said Tuesday night "there is evidence that they are reinforcing, not withdrawing so therefore we should not in any instance take these statements as valid."

Earlier, he told The Associated Press, "We cannot tolerate this kind of cat-and-mouse game being played. Saddam has always been playing these games with us for the last two years."

The United States suggested imposing a wide off-limits zone on Saddam's ground forces near Kuwait's border.

"There's a no-fly zone now (in southern Iraq) but we are looking at ways to kind of move them back and make sure that they stay

Judge threatens to reject evidence in Simpson case because of delays

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The O.J. Simpson trial judge threatened Tuesday to throw out many pieces of evidence in the football star's sensational double-murder case, including a bloody glove, saying it may have been submitted too late to a laboratory for testing.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said the defense made a strong case that it was unfairly burdened by the delay, and he would rule in the matter Friday.

Simpson, 47, has pleaded innocent to murdering his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend. Ronald Goldman outside Ms. Simpson's condominium on June 12. Jury selection is proceeding; opening arguments aren't expected until November.

Simpson first gained fame as a college and professional football player and was named to the game's hall of fame. He has remained in the limelight as a sports announcer and actor. His trial has generated extraordinary public interest in the United States.

Since no eyewitnesses to the killings have come forward, the results of DNA tests on blood found at the crime scene and in Simpson's house are seen as crucial to the prosecution.

Under intense questioning by the judge, Deputy District Attorney Lisa Kahn was unable to explain adequately why two batches of forensic evidence weren't sent out until early September to the state Department of Justice laboratory, about three months after the June 12 crime.

Defense attorney Barry Scheck said that among the items sent out late was the bloody glove found behind a guesthouse at Simpson's

Kahn said some evidence had to be retested, and constraints placed on the prosecution by the court - such as a requirement to give the defense notice before each test - slowed the process.

But the judge said those explanations would account for weeks. not months. If there is a "purposeful delay in testing these items, then there ought to be a sanction for that, and the sanction probably will be a denial of the admissibility of that evidence," Ito said.

During Tuesday's hearing, the defense accused prosecutors of delaying the critical DNA data so they can ambush the defense at the last minute.

"The problem that I have is that we have asked for this so long ago and they have done absolutely nothing to respond," said Scheck.

Kahn accused the defense of making frivolous and desperate requests for the information to run up taxpayers' bill and to mislead the judge.

"This is the only weapon, the only tactic that they have left, because the science is there, the science is reliable," she said.

The prosecution has tested numerous blood samples from the murder scene and Simpson's house and car. Final results of some drops at the crime scene suggest a link to Simpson's blood, sources have said.

Simpson's lawyers also wanted to spend time Tuesday delving into the source of news leaks in the sensational case, but the judge delayed that issue until Friday.

No choice but to sue —Speaker the recent lawsuit filed by the found that particular Common-House of Representatives against Governor Froilan Tenorio, Speaker Diego T. Benavente explained in a news release.

"We thought this matter through and through. Each time we examined the issues involved, our conscience kept telling us that what the Governor did was wrong. Expenditure without legislative approval violates the separation of powers, a fundamental doctrine upon which the CNMI was established," said House Speaker wealth laws were violated and were left with no choice but to take him to court and seek appropriate relief measures," he added.

The House Leadership of the Ninth Northern Marianas Commonwealth Legislature last Friday filed the civil suit in the Supcrior Court against the Tenorio administration charging that the payment of $6.24 million to Mitsubishi Corporation was unlawful. The complaint states that the Rios appointed to fill up CUC Board vacancy

GOVERNOR Froilan C. Tenorio has named Jose S. Rios to be member of the Board of Directors for Commonwealth Utilities Corp. to to fill up one of the vacancies resulting from the latest spate of board resignations.

Rios, who was a former Saipan Mayor, was appointed by the governor Tuesday to serve the remainder of boardmember Joseph Torres' termup to May 24, 1997.

The new appointment requires the advice and consent of the Sen-

Torres, who was vice chairman of the CUC Board, resigned a day after Board Chairman Tony Muna announced he was quitting from the helm of the corporation's policy making body.

Muna resigned effective October 3. citing differences with the management style of the governor as major reason.

His resignation came September 29th after staging a walkout during negotiations with the Department of Interior over a partnership agreement between CUC,

The walkout came about after Muna disagreed on how Tenorio consultant David Cahn was handling the negotiations in behalf of the CNMI government.

He allegedly resented Cahn's apparent committal stance adopted by the governor's negotiator for the privatization for Immediately after Muna resigned. Torres became acting chairman only to resign a day later. He said he was resigning to devote more time to his business.

Torres is president and proprietor of Torres Refrigeration, a refrigeration and air conditioning shop in along Airport Road in San Vicente.

Muna and Torres' resignations are only the most recent in the spate of resignations that have prevented the CUC Board from achieving complete membership.

Earlier during the start of the Tenorio Administration, former Boardmembers Lecia Eason, Xavier Castro and Jeanette Sablan also resigned citing various rea-

THERE is a sense of duty behind Diego T. Benavente. "We also Mitsubishi payment was illegal because it was made without legislative authorization.

> Named as defendants are Governor Tenorio, the Secretary of Finance Maria Cabrera, Commonwealth Development Authority (CDA) Chairman Juan S. Tenorio, and CDA Executive Director James Ripple.

The House Leadership is seeking a declaration that the Governor and the named officials violated Commonwealth law as well as an injunction to prohibit the administration from making future unauthorized expenditures.

"The power of the purse originates with the House of Representatives. The constitution specifically requires that all revenue and appropriation measures be introduced in the House. The Governor encroached on our constitutional prerogative by paying Mitsubishi without our approval," Benavente stated.

In a related matter Benavente also expressed his disappointment with Attorney General Richard Weil's response to House Resolution 9-65 requesting him to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the Mitsubishi payment. "The United States Attorney General appointed a special prosecutor to investigate the President of the United States, the most important chief executive in the world. Attorney General Reno also pursued investigations into alleged wrongdoing by various members of the Clinton cabinet, her own colleagues. To investigate a Governor or any other public official is not an extraordinary circumstance. Why does our Attorney General, the people's attorney general, hide his head in the sand and pretend that all is well?" asked Benavente.

"I read the Attorney General's letter and was not convinced by his reasoning for refusing our request. The Planning and Budgeting Act sets forth a specific procedure for the appointment of a special prosecutor. In my view the Attorney General did not even follow that procedure in determining whether the appointment of a special prosecutor is warranted, said Benavente.

Under the Planning and Budgeting Act the special prosecutor is given the responsibility of investigating and prosecuting alleged violations of the act. Any person who willfully and knowingly violates any provision of 1 CMC Section 7701 is guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both.

The complaint filed by the House Leadership traces in detail the Mitsubishi payment to the bond interest proceeds trust account with the Bank of Guam. The account receives left over money from the bond issues for the second segment of seven-year Covenant funding. According to the complaint, no bond proceeds, whether principal or interest, have ever been expended by the CNMI government without legislative approval. Section 10506 of Title 4 of the Commonwealth Code further requires CDA to inform the Legislature that there is a remaining balance on the bond issues available for capital improvement project appropria-

The complaint states that CDA never informed the Legislature about the availability of those funds, which were deposited into the Bank of Guam during the month of June 1994. On September 7, 1994, CDA transferred $6.24 million from its savings account with the Bank of Guam into the CNMI General Fund, also with the Bank of Guam. On the say day, the Secretary of Finance issued a check of $6.24 million from the general fund account payable to Mitsubishi The complaint concludes that these transfers were unlawful in

THE DUE process rights of former youth services administration Maggie Olopai-Taitano and former community and cultural affairs director Eleanor Cruz.

This is according to eight jurors in the discrimination lawsuit filed by Taitano last year.

The jurors, in a special verdict form, indicated that the CNMI government was required to provide plaintiff with notice and a hearing and be given opportunity to contest the allegations against her prior to her termination.

However they found that Taitano was not given such notice and opportunity to be heard, violating her due process rights as guaranteed by the 14th amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Despite the violation, Taitano was not awarded any damages. leaving the defense with questions as to what penalties should be imposed on persons who deprive other people their right to due process.

This violation was only among the numerous allegations made were violated by the government by Taitano in her lawsuit which stemmed from her demotion and subsequent termination from the

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

How drug-makers bilk health-care system

WASHINGTON — A "Special Fraud Alert" being distributed this week by govemment investigators exposes some of the pioneering ways prescription drug-makers and suppliers are bilking the health-care system in apparent violation of federal antikickback statutes.

Federal law has long prohibited healthcare providers from accepting kickbacks. Although the special fraud alert applies specifically to cases that involve government money -- such as Medicare and Medicaid—one HHS official told us these problems are ever more pervasive in the private

"Many prescription drug marketing activities go far beyond traditional advertising and educational contacts," notes the Special Fraud Alert from the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services. "Physicians, suppliers and, increasingly, patients, are being offered valuable, non-medical benefits in exchange for selecting specific prescription drug brands.

HHS's inspector general is probing these new forms of profiteering:

-"Frequent-flier" campaigns. Drug companies grant frequent-flier miles to doctors for their help in studying the effects of a drug. Airplane miles were parceled out through a point system each time a doctor completed a questionnaire for new patients placed on certain drugs. Although the postcard-size questionnaire required minimal effort, some doctors have won free roundtrip airline tickets just by favoring a particu-

—"Research grant" Programs. Doctors "were given substantial payments for de minimus record-keeping tasks." A doctor who administered certain drugs to his patient was asked to make brief notes, "sometimes a single word, about the treatment outcome." After finishing a limited number of these so-called studies, the doctor was rewarded handsomely by the manufacturer.

-"Product conversion" programs. "In this scenario, for instance, Drug Company A offered a cash reward to pharmacies for each time a drug prescription was changed from Drug Company B's product to Drug Company A's product." Pharmacists, lured by the promise of easy money, thus began calling doctors, lobbying them to change their patients' prescriptions. Doctors, meanwhile, were generally unaware of the pharmacies' hidden financial stake in the pre-

Far from innocent dupes, however, doctors are also the perpetrators. "Doctors control the referral stream," says one HHS official. "The fundamental problem is that (some) doctors are shaking (pharmaceutical makers) down."

These are among the reasons why healthcare fraud is thriving. Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, estimates that 10 cents of each dollar in the health-care system is lost to fraud, a total of $100 billion per year. The federal government employs a total of only 450 full-time investigators at the FBI and HHS to fight health-care fraud and abuse.

According to Cohen, this means the "two predominant health-care anti-fraud enforcement agencies have only one full-time employee per approximately 8,890,000 claims." This kind of enforcement mismatch means an open door for those who want to pad their

CLINTON DEBUGGING —Members of the White House's official delegation to South Africa last May were startled to see just how seriously the administration is still working to get the bugs out.

After asking the passengers of the first lady's military airplane-including Hillary Clinton, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Colin Powell, Rev. Jessie Jackson, poet Maya Angelou and several members of Congress—to cover their faces with hot towels, the plane's crew sprayed potentially harmful pesticides in the air to delouse the cabin.

They were apparently following a requirement for all flights landing in the Cape Verde Islands, a common refueling point for flights coming from South Africa. Cape Verde is one of 25 countries which require the spraying of pesticides on all in-coming flights - something the Clinton administration is pressuring them to stop.

The label of one pesticide commonly used on military flights warns: "Hazardous to Humans.... Harmful if swallowed or absorbed through the skin."The Assistant Surgeon General determined in 1983 that "the U.S. cannot support the use of insecticides in aircraft areas with passengers present.... the safety issue precludes a U.S. requirement for disinsection.'

"Congresswoman (Maxine) Waters (D-Calif.) and I were very upset about (the pesticide spraying)," Rep. Elizabeth Furse, D-Ore., and member of the delegation, told us. "I thought it was horrible and I was very concerned.... Ms. Waters and I tried to sort of scrunch down with this thing over our faces, but it's very

Court agrees to release Ishibashi

By Rafael I. Santos

THE SUPERIOR Court has agreed to release a Japanese businessman implicated in a drug and weapons case to a third party custodian on condition that he post $1.5 million property bond.

Earlier defease attorney Autonio Atalig failed to secure the release of Kojo Ishibashi following the court's refusal to accept a prospective custodian.

On Tuesday, the court agreed that the defendant can get out of the Department of Public Safety's pre-trial detention on condition that he post the needed bond.

Ishibashi, who is facing multiple gun charges, has been in custodysince mid-August for violating his curfew. The court revoked his third-party release after he committed the violation.

Because of the violation, the government moved for the forfeiture a $1.5 million property bond which was posted by businessman John T. Sablan to secure Ishibashi's release because of the violation.

Judge Marty Taylor however chose to set a bail with the same amount instead of forfeiting the Atty. Atalig then asked the court to release his client to Arnold Palacios, president of Sun Splash, a company said to be partly owned by the defendant. But the court refused to accept Palacios as thirdparty custodian. Ishibashi was under his custody when the curfew violation was committed by the defendant. Ishibashi was arrested in April during after police executed a search warrant at his Garapan office. During the search, law enforcers seized two handguns, one high-powered rifle and 138 rounds of assorted ammunitions.

A 12-count information, charging him with illegal possession of firearms and ammunitions, and drugs was later filed in court.

Evangelista claims intimidation

By Rafael I. Santos

FORMER Revenue and Taxation chief Juan L. Evangelista yesterday said he was forced into making a confession regarding the alleged misappropriation of tax rebates last year due to an intimi-

Evangelista told the Superior Court he was pressured by Curtis Hibdon, a prober from the investigation unit of the attorney general's office, to "cooperate" with them or he (the defendant) would end up in federal prison.

The former revenue boss indicated he was unwilling to talk about the checks in question without an attorney present, but that he consented later into answering written questions provided by Hibdon because he wanted the matter to be finished.

"I had enough...so I decided to give what he wished to hear," Evangelista said in yesterday's hearing on a motion to suppress.

According to him, he was "groggy" when he was interviewed by Hibdon on November 18, 1993 because he was undergoing medication. He told the court that among the medicines he was taking include valium, a downer prescribed to him to "calm me down because I was hyper.'

Evangelista related that when he was questioned about the checks deposited at the Union

Bank, he was not emotionally and physically well because of numerous problems. He told the court he was having problems with his business partners, his JAC Development, Inc. was experiencing financial trouble and he was worried about his workers who were not receiving their sala-

At the same time, he said, the stress was aggravated by the pressure as a result of his duties and responsibilities as chief of the revenue and taxation division. Because he was already overburdened, he said he cooperated only to be brought to jail later.

Yesterday's hearing proceeded in the presence of the media.

Earlier, defense lawyer Dan Del Priore asked the court to close a portion of the pre-trial proceedings for fear that his client would not get a fair trial. Testimonies in court including that of Evangelista's would be the subiect of "sensational media coverage" if the hearing is not closed to

New system to assess student performance

A CONSULTANT is visiting three Saipan schools this week to demonstrate the use of a new test.

Integrated Assessment System tests, which are performancebased, are part of the Board of Education's plans to improve the Public School System's methods of assessing student performance and achievement.

Commissioner of Education William S. Torres said that these tests are quite new for most teachers since they require students to demonstrate their knowledge, through writing rather than by multiple choice.

During the sessions, Dr. Donald MacCuish of Psychological Corp. (a subsidiary of the Hardcourt Brace Company) is conducting simulations so that teachers can learn how to administer the tests.

Particular emphasis is being placed on helping teachers to become familiar with the math, science and language arts tests for grades 1-9.

Torres said that the PSS will be reserving some of these tests at the district level and that the rest will be available to the schools to use as they like. The IAS tests use similar procedures and formats for all subject areas and grade levels.

There are three separate workshops being offered, with each workshop concentrating on a different subject area/test.

Each school has been invited to send two or three representatives to the workshops, and interested parents are also invited to attend.

Haitians begin massive clean-up

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) - As workers began tidying up Haiti's haggard capital in anticipation of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide's return, U.S. troops wielded the biggest broom at the National Palace.

Five hundred American soldiers took over the palace on Tuesday, escorting employees of the departing military government out the door. Aristide's Cabinet ministers were expected to move into their offices Wednesday.

"We can now roll up our sleeves and begin to rebuild democracy in the spirit of reconciliation," Aristide's commerce minister, Louis Dejoie II, said afterward.

As night descended Tuesday on Port-au-Prince, the streets of the capital were still alive in a way not seen in the past three years, except during the annual Carnival holiday.

The government of Robert Malval, Aristide's prime minister, had announced earlier in the day that it would take over the government ministry offices, and the American soldiers arrived in the afternoon to help.

The takeover occurred one year to the day that a U.S. warship retreated from Haitian waters rather than encounter several dozen pro-army demonstrators. The retreat killed a U.N. attempt to return Aristide in October 1993.

"We said then (that) may be they won this hand but they didn't win the game," recalled U.S. charge d'affaires Vicki Huddleston, whose car was kicked by the dockside demonstrators.

Haiti's Catholic Bishops Conference, which before the U.S. intervention had condemned the prospect of a U.S. invasion, issued a new pastoral message calling for reconciliation in the country but questioning the need for the military occupation.

"Is it the best way out of the crisis? One force has replaced another. ... In brief, will not one suffering replace another suffering?" the bishops asked.

In calling for reconciliation, the bishops cited Christ's cry from the cross: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." The statement appeared to add a new voice to the debate over the extent of an amnesty for crimes committed by the departing mili tary government.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)-The United Nations opposes a NATO proposal to change the mandate in Bosnia and allow air strikes and raids without warning, U.N. officials said Tuesday.

NATO sent a letter to U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali last week calling for more aggressive raids. It said the alliance should be given four targets to strike when air raids are called and said no advance warning should be given.

A high-level NATO delegation is expected to visit the United Nations later this week to discuss the request.

The United Nations "would consider an increase in targets if they were directly related to the offense which led to the strike," a U.N. official said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

But the official added: "Surprise is a principle of war and not of peacekeeping."

The official, who has worked closely with the 38,000-member peacekeeping force in Bosnia, said Bosnian Serbs were given a 15-minute warning on Sept. 22 before NATO jets bombed and destroyed a Bosnian Serb T-55 tank.

The warning was given to avoid civilian casualties, the official said. NATO also wants to expand the range of targets to include back-up facilities such as fuel or ammunition

Shuttle lands after 11 days of mission

By JANE E. ALLEN

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif.(AP)-Space shuttle Endeavour and its six astronauts glided to a landing in the Mojave Desert after 11 days spent mapping the Earth in 3-D with the most powerful civilian radar ever Duringtheenvironmentalresearch mission, the radar - which can penetrate vegetation, sand and fog - was used to study mountains, volcanoes, oceans, deserts and forests.

Thick clouds at Cape Canaveral, Fla., forced Endeavour to take a detour across the country for Tuesday's landing.

Commander Michael Bakerpiloted the orbiter to a landing in clear blue skies and a slight breeze, ending a 4.7 million-mile (7.5 million-kilometer)

NASA prefers to land shuttles at Cape Canaveral to save the $1 million it costs to fly the spacecraft back to Florida atop a jumbo jet.

As Endeavour's flight came to a close, the last target for its $366 million radar system was an Indonesian volcano.

The spacecraft orbited at an unusually low altitude - as low as 127 miles (204 kms) - as it took a path stretching from the Aleutian Islands in the north to near the Antarctic Circle.

Duringitssweeps, scientists learned that the radar is sensitive enough to distinguish between oil spills and algae sheen in the North Sea. Oceanographers deliberately spilled oil and algae off Denmark to find out.

The radar was also used to penetrate the mist-shrouded forests in war-torn Rwanda and study the terrain to help wildlife researchers trying to save Africa's 650 endangered mountain gorillas.

Shuttle manager Loren Shriver said that as the information is analyzed in the next few weeks, "we'll see some even more striking results than we have already."

Astronaut Thomas Jones said the mission gathered "new facts about the geology of the Earth" and tested a newtechnique offering "potentially a way to map the 60 percent of the Earth's surface that's really not well surveyed at all."

Researchers said all objectives for the flight were accomplished, despite trouble with a steering jet that stalled radar observations last week and the failure of a radar-data recorder over the weekend.

NASA's next shuttle flight is set for Nov. 3. Atlantis, which last flew in 1992, will conduct atmospheric research after undergoing a year of modifications for next year's docking with the Russian spacecraft Mir.

About two hours after landing. NASA's oldest shuttle, Columbia, passed low through the skies above Endeavour, the youngest shuttle. Columbia was being ferried to near by Palmdale for six months of servicing.

Cannibal cleared of murder

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) - A killer who ate the heart and drank the blood of his victim has been found not guilty of murder because he was insane, it was reported Wednesday.

Judge Faiza Thamby Chik Tuesday ordered Mardi Kassim, 34, to be sent to the Tampoi Mental Hospital for psychiatric treatment, the Star national daily reported from Serèmban, 70 kilometers (42 miles) south of Kuala Lumpur.

Faiza issued the order after a jury, by a vote of six to one, decided that Mardi was mentally unsound when he committed the crime at a rubber dealership Sept. 19, 1992.

Government psychiatrist Dr. S. Jeyarajah told the court Mardi admittedkilling Chien Shu Tiam, eating his heartanddrinkinghis blood. Jeyarajah said Mardi claimed he heard a voice ordering him to commit the murder. Jeyarajah said Mardi suffered from schizophrenia.

US hit for 'lack' of toughness

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) -South Korea's ruling party has said the United States is so preoccupied with reaching a compromise in talks on North Korea's nuclear program that it may abandon South Korea's interests.

It was the second time in a week that South Korea's leadership rebuked the U.S. negotiators and indicated a growing strain between two countries who have been allies since the Korean War.

The Democratic Liberal Party on Tuesday said the United States should be taking a tougher stand to reach a compromise before congressional elections in November.

"We have a sense that the U.S. administration is hastening to achieve a diplomatic success" before the elections, said party spokesman Park Bum-jin.

A U.S. team, led by Robert L. Gallucci, is negotiating in Geneva to open all of North Korea's nuclear facilities to international inspection and to replace its reactors, which produce weaponsgrade plutonium, with reactors less suitable for nuclear weapons.

President Kim Young-sam

tiating stance last week, telling The New York Times that "ahalfbaked compromise ... would bring more danger and peril."

But Kim, whose comments triggered fears of a schism in U.S.-South Korean relations, sounded a conciliatory note Monday.

In an interview with The Wall Street Journal published Tuesday, Kim hailed the close contact between Washingtin and Seoul as U.S. negotiators in Geneva try to craft an agreement with North Korea to resolve concerns over Pyongyang's nuclear ambitions. The South Korean president that the United States was moving too fast in negotiations and would strike an accord that undercut the South.

"We think the Republic of Korea is the most important, faithful ally of the U.S.," Kim said in the Wall Street Journal interview. "But what is most pleasing to North Korea is the impression that (South) Korea and the U.S. aren't on good terms with each other. That is what North Korea wants most."

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher rejected last week's criticism, saying there was "the prospect of reaching a very positive solution" at the Geneva talks.

North Korea says its nuclear program is peaceful, but U.S. analysts say it already has produced one or two bombs and could turn out several more by the end of the year if the program is not curbed.

News Network Tuesday, Kim was asked if he thinks the North Koreans have any nuclear weapons.

"There are some research organizations which argue that North Korea already possesses nuclear weapons. But my overall assessment, based on availbale information regarding this issue, is that North Korea does not have nuclear weapons yet."

Asked if he was prepared to sit down with North Korean leaders at a summit soon, Kim said, "Well, it seems that the new regime in North Korea has not completely settled down yet. Therefore, I don't think it is very appropriate to hold an inter-Korean summit meeting now.

"But ... the principle that both sides should hold an inter-Korean summit meeting - the idea of the summit meeting - is still

Syria, Israel moving toward peace says US Death and funeral announcement

By BARRY SCHWEID

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) - Bent on burying 46 years of animosity, Israel and Syria are close to forging "a comprehensive peace," a hopeful U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher says.

"Gaps do remain but I feel that they are moving in the right direction," he said Tuesday in Damascus after meeting for nearly four hours with Syrian President Hafez Assad. He then flew here to see King Hussein of Jordan.

The massing of Iraqi troops near the Kuwaiti border distracted Christopher's peacemaking ef-

On Wednesday, he will fly to Kuwait to meet with leaders of the Gulf countries, U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency analysts and British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd. Their aim is to weigh options for deterring future Iraqi moves on Kuwait, which was liberated in 1991 from Iraqi annexation by U.S. and allied troops. Two options Christopher is weighing are to propose the U.N. Security Council establish a zone on the Iraqi side of the border that Iraq troops would be forbidden to enter, and forcing Iraq to sell $1.6 billion worth of oil and use the proceeds to feed and otherwise assist the Iraqi people.

Christopher sought to enlist both Assad and King Hussein against Iraq.

Assad, who sent troops to fight alongside Americans in 1991, made it clear he was opposed to what the Iraqis were doing, said a senior U.S. official who accompanied Christopher to their meet-

King Hussein, who had tilted toward Iraq in the 1991 Gulf War, shifted gears even before Christopher came to Jordan. "We will be the side that will be the target of aggression," he said.

Hussein said he believed Jordan and Israel will be able to conclude a peace treaty in the very near future and "that is good news, not only for the people of the countries but for the world as a whole.'

Christopher, usually cautious in appraising prospects for a diplomatic triumph, was upbeat after seeing Assad."I am convinced, even more so now, that both parties are very serious. Gaps do remain, but I feel that they are moving in the right direction.

"I think both parties are committed toward trying to achieve a comprehensive peace, and that there is hope that they may do so,"

Christopher brought undisclosed new proposals from Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, for a peace with Syria that would provide dignity and security to both sides. And he took from Assad some Syrian proposals to carry to Jerusalem on Wednesday

"This is an incremental process that has to be understood as an incremental process," said a senior U.S. official, insisting on anonymity. "We don't get into the details of the discussions because we don't think it would be helpful.'

Still, the official tempered Christopher's buoyancy. "What is required is that we get agreement and we don't have agreement yet," he said. In fact, the official said, none of the key issues has been settled. These include the future of the Israeli-held Golan Heights, security arrangements on the border and the extent of peace terms Syria was willing to accept.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)-Morethan a year ago a young man left one of the city's most prestigious legal firms. Auomeys clashed in court Tuesday over whether he was forced out because he is HIV-positive or just not a very good lawyer.

The former employee of Kohn, NastandGrafP.C., identified in court papers as John Doe Esq., is suing the firm for discrimination, seeking unspecified damages. He is being called by his first name, Scott, in court.

His attorney, Alan Epstein, told iurors he will prove Scott was the victim of a "web of deceit spun by lawyers who are sworn to come to the court and uphold the law."

The firm's lawyers, Donald Sweeney and William O'Brien, said they can prove Scott was a promising lawyer who failed to live up to his potential.

Because the trial has striking parallels to the movie "Philadelphia," the law firm tried unsuccessfully to have it moved out of the city, arguing jurors might think the stories were one and the same. Work on "Philadelphia" had already begun when Scott left the firm.

In September 1991, Kohn Nast "hired what was believed to be a dedicated full-time lawyer," Sweeney said in his opening statement. "What they got was a part-time lawyer with major commitments elsewhere."

He also said Scott's supervisor, Steven Asher, violated his rights by obtaining a confidential letter sent to Scott by an AIDS specialist and that the company humiliated him by boxing up his belongings and demanding his keys to the build-

The firm's lawyers contend They say 80-year-old founding partner Harold Kohn asked for the weekends.

They also say Scott wasn't fired but was told in January 1993 that his contract would not be renewed, giving him 11 1-2 months to find a new job.

Opportunity Commission has joined the lawsuit, contending Kohn Nast violated the federal Americans With Disabilities Act. Sweeney told the jury Asher was Officer admits responsibility in friendly fire?

By PAUL QUEARY

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - An officer charged in the downing of two U.S. helicopters over Iraq earlier this year admitted responsibility for the disaster and waived his right to a military hearing.

"I'll never believe that any one action on my part caused this. But I'll always know in my heart that I had the power to stop it," Maj. Douglas Martin said in a statement Tuesday

"The bottom line is that it happened on my watch."

Late. Hesday, a second officer. 1st Lt. 36seph Halcli, waived his right to the hearing after the presiding officer denied a defense request to hold separate hearings for the charged men. The hearing is being held at Tinker Air Force Base, where four of the officers are based.

Halcli's attorney, Capt. Rita Teague, said Halcli withdrew from the hearing because it was unfair to have one officer hear all

Martin, Halcli, Maj, Lawrence Tracey, Capt. Jim Wang and 2nd Lt. Ricky Wilson face charges of dereliction of duty in the April 14 air disaster over northern Iraq that killed 26 people. The officers were on board an AWACS radar plane monitoring a finement up to three months.

Epstein said Kohn Nast told Scott to find employment elsewhere after learning in the fall of 1992 that he was infected with the AIDS vi-. rus. A company administrator told Scott his legal career would be destroyed if he sued, Epstein said, and Scott left in March 1993.

But he said elation soon turned to wonder after the new attorney began arriving for work late and leaving early.

He said Scott had not told anyone at the firm he was traveling to Washington several nights a week to pursue a master's degree at Georgetown University.

He kept quiet about the studies, Sweeney said, because the degree in comparative and international law would be of no use at Kohn Nast, which handles commercial litigation and consumer lawsuits.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By Stella Wilder

Born today, you are a bright, positive, charismatic individual, and you are always on the lookout for those who can benefit from your own special brand of optimism. Indeed, others seem to respond well to your very presence. Some may claim this is due to "star quality" or some other elusive, enigmatic characteristic, but the fact is that you are simply one of those rare individuals who graces any room or gathering simply by devoting your attention to the people around you. When asked for comment, Tayco told the Variety that the PABA tournament committee and Board of Directors will act and decide on the protest on or before Saturday.

"A decision must come out before weekend so we will know if we have to declare the FT-RB match as null and void. If RB's protest will be upheld, RB and FT/SNE have to play again." PABA P.R.O. Rudy Santos told the Variety.

"It also means that the 2-0 winloss slate of FT will be 1-0 and RB's 1-1 card will be 1 win and no loss. If so, the FT/SNE versus EC Gozum game on October 16 will have to be re-scheduled," Tayco explains.

A late breaker from Santos indicates that the PABA tournament committee will hear the RB protest today, 7 p.m., at Bario Fiesta restaurant.

One PABA insider said that PABA will likely uphold last Sunday's game. "There were so many PABA officials around the basketball court, it being a championship series game and there was nothing wrong in Castillo's calls," the insider said.

Becker, Bruguera fa

By DORIAN BENKOIL

TOKYO (AP) - Both Boris Becker and French Open Champion Sergi Bruguera fell in their first matches Wednesday at the $1 million Seiko Super Tennis tournament to players not even ranked in the top 100.

A lackluster Becker fell to New Zealander Brett Steven in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, and American Tommy Ho came back from 5-1 down in the final set to win in a tiebreak 6-7 (7-4), 6-2, 7-6 over Bruguera.

Becker complained about the "terrible" conditions, in which three courts are side by side separated by only about 15 meters (yards) and see-through eye-high mesh.

"You're just ready to serve a second serve and they clap or the announcer says 'this one' or 'that one' are going to play," said Becker, the world's no. 6 player, seeded fifth here.

Still, he admitted Steven, ranked 110, "played a great match" and deserved to win, using well-placed serves and volleys on the fast Supreme carpet surface.

Ho, ranked 145, said his first victory over a top 10 player "couldn't happen in a better place.'

"I play my best tennis here in Asia," said Ho, a Floridian whose parents are from Taiwan.

Bruguera, ranked fourth and seeded second, attributed the loss to jet-lag, tired legs and Ho's attacks of Bruguera's baseline play.

"At 6-5 (in the third set), he played three unbelievable points,"

Saipan YFL

Adviser says Central Division in top shape

THE CENTRAL Division of the CNMI Youth Football League is in excellent form and ready for the October 30 kickoff of the 1st Saipan Youth Football League.

This was the assessment of Central Division adviser and coach Joe Reyes on his team who is into rigid training at the Oleai Elementary School.

"Our tearn is already complete. Our training is almost everyday and the boys are eager to get into the field for actual games," Reyes said during a practice break.

Helping Reyes in preparing the Central Division is MCV sports newscaster Bob Coldeen, defense coach Harold Bennet, together with Al Taitano, Norbert Diaz, and assistant coach Dennis Camacho.

The kids from the Central are not only optimistic about their form. They have a strong belief of becoming the first champion.

Central Quarter back Rudy Sablan, of Garapan Elementary School has this to say," We will not only be on top of the situation. We will be the champion."

Team mate Tomas Aldan, from Mount Carmel agreed saying, "We will demolish any obstacles that comes our way. I'm no good at interviews. Just say there I joined (YFL) because I wanna try some rough contact games."

A word from Karl T. Reyes, adviser for the Eastern Division, said their Division line up is likewise complete. "We are just ironing out some details before we

RB electrical MarPac protests PABA defeat

THE RB Electrical MarPac camp protested their defeat in the hands of FT/SNE-Budweiser Sunday before the Philippine Amateur Basketball Association (PABA) Board over alleged "biased calls" in officiating in the 5th Annual Budweiser Filipino Reinforced League Monday.

RB-MarPac manager-coach Rollie Bigalbal filed the protest before PABA tournament committee Chairman Rick Q. Tayco.

Bigalbal is protesting alleged "monkey business and dirty tricks in officiating" of referee Alex Castillo during last Sunday's game with a final score of 81-75 in favor of the Budweisers.

In a letter to Tayco, Bigalbal claims Castillo erred twice in his

The first wrong call, Bigalbal alleged, was a foul call on RB center Larry Johnson (his third).

The foul call should have been slapped on Dong Cruz, an RB point guard, Bigalbal said.
