MARAUDER HAD DEADLY KNIFE

Vicious Weapon Is Found Under Bed Where Burglar Was Caught.

An open-bladed knife rested in the hand of Tony Belaska when he was discovered under a bed in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Faxon Bishop Saturday night. The knife was found under the bed yesterday morning and turned over to the police.

The knife is a metal-handled, one-bladed affair of the "XCLNT" brand. It is comparatively new, and the point is needle-pointed. The fact that it was open when found indicates clearly that the burglar had determined either to defend himself if caught unawares, or to make a desperate attempt to escape if opportunity afforded, using the knife to clear the way.

Mrs. Bishop's own part in the affair did much toward preventing the burglar from making an attempt to wriggle out from under the bed, for she called to her husband that an intruder was in the house. Mr. Bishop's quick response to the call with a rifle decided Belaska's chance to use the knife, and when the man did emerge from under the bed, he was knifeless, but the loot which he had secured while rifling a bureau was in his pockets. While Mrs. Bishop telephoned to the police station, Mr. Bishop stood guard over the prisoner.

WAIANAE CRUISE GRAND SUCCESS

Youngsters Have the Time of Their Lives on Board the Hawaii.

The yacht cruise to Waianae was one grand success. Everybody who went on the trip came back with a thick coat of sunburn in different shades, varying from light red to deepest brown. The wilder idea of taking the youngsters out proved even more of a success than was predicted and the future owners of racing machines all had the time of their lives.

There was a great breeze on Saturday afternoon and the Hawaii ran down to Waianae in jig time. She dropped anchor before 6 o'clock and was joined by the Glads an hour later. The Charlotte C. came along about 9 o'clock and the Kaun blew in just before midnight.

There were sixteen amateurs aboard the Hawaii and the cabins would have been crowded if the kids had not elected to sleep on deck. The awning was up and there was a plentiful supply of mattresses and blankets so the younger members of the crew turned in above decks and kept the halliards twanging with their nautical talk and arguments, until the small hours.

The sun had scarcely boomed over the horizon when the youngsters were up and doing. They took the dinghy ashore and began to bathe. Then they came back aboard and made a noise like being hungry. Steward Hamilton was kept busy slinging out large consignments of bacon and hot cakes and then everybody either lolled on deck or went out fishing from the rocks. Before getting under way there were visits of ceremony from one yacht to another and everything was gone through in true nautical style.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the order was signaled to hoist sail and all four yachts started on the beat back to Honolulu. The two sloops and the yawl kept in shore and found a favoring breeze. The Hawaii kept out to sea and struck light airs. Those who kept in shore reached Honolulu well before dark but the Hawaii was almost becalmed and so Commodore Wilder decided to put in to Pearl Harbor.

There was a good breeze for the schooner all the way up the harbor and she dropped anchor off the yacht (Continued on Page Five.)

GAMBLERS NOW ARE LYING LOW

Advertiser's Expose Drives Hui to Cover for the Time Being.

George Kaea's bunch of gamblers lay low yesterday. The expose of their Beretania avenue haunt in yesterday morning's Advertiser warned them that they can not carry on their nefarious games with impunity, and they have evidently subsided, believing that when the present trouble has blown over, they will be allowed to resume their old practices.

Though Chinese gamblers, pursuing their play among themselves, are readily detected and arrested by the police, the big professional games seem to have baffled Leal's men, and just prior to the Advertiser's descent upon the Beretania avenue joint, the statement was made that no professional games were running, as far as the authorities knew.

As a matter of fact, there is every indication that other games are running. The strikebreakers, returning nightly from the plantations, have proved profitable victims for the human beasts of prey who conduct the gambling games, and it is known that a goodly portion of the money which the plantations paid out for labor has gone into the pockets of the swindling hui.

Loaded dice, stacked cards and like contrivances have played a prominent part in the fleecing of the unsophisticated workmen, and the man who entered one of the underground gambling dens had just about as much chance as a lamb among wolves.

FLYING SPARKS START FIRE IN CANEFIELDS

Flying sparks from a passing train set fire to the canefield on Waipahu plantation in five different places yesterday. The cane was just dry enough to burn readily, and before anyone realized what was happening a serious blaze was threatened.

The alarm was hastily turned in and the entire force turned out to combat the flames. It was hot work for a few minutes, but the blazes were extinguished before much damage had been done. Manager Bull stated last night that the loss is but nominal.

News of the fire was telephoned into this city to the police, and a rumor was started to the effect that all of the Waipahu canefields were on fire. Several telephone calls were received at the Advertiser office during the afternoon from persons anxious to secure particulars regarding the conflagration.

COUSIN OF THE LATE QUEEN EMMA MARRIED

Mrs. Stella Keomailani Cockett and John Kea were married on Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Smithies, Makiki Heights, in the presence of a small assemblage of friends who included Prince and Princess Kalaniana'ole.

The bride is a High Chiefess of Hawaii, first cousin of the late Queen Emma of the Kamehameha dynasty. She was reared by Fanny Young, an aunt of Queen Emma. Her father was Kinai, a brother of Kamakea, the first husband of Kapiolani, afterward consort of King Kalakaua.

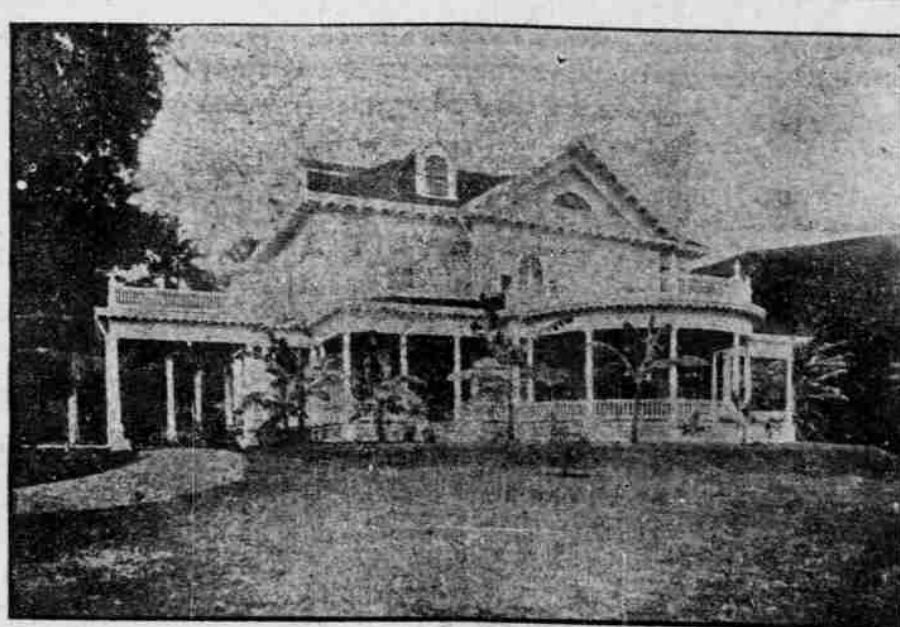

Mrs. Kea and the late Prince Albert Kuniakoe were among the principal beneficiaries under the will of Queen Emma.

NUANU-STREET RESIDENCE OF E. FAXON BISHOP, WHERE A DARING ATTEMPT AT BURGLARY WAS MADE SATURDAY NIGHT.

BELASKA TELLS BIZARRE YARN

Says Stranger Invited Him to Remove His Shoes and Enter House.

Belaska, the Chilean caught under a bed in the house of E. Faxon Bishop Saturday, gives an explanation of his unauthorized presence in the home of the financier which is unique to say the least. He says that he met a Porto Rican down town. They talked and the stranger invited him to take a car ride. They rode to the end of the Nuanu line and on leaving it, walked up the street some distance. The stranger finally came to a gate and told Belaska to come in as it was his house, or a friend's. They entered and came across a Japanese with whom they talked, so Belaska says. When they came to the house, the stranger told Belaska to wait, and the former disappeared into the house, coming back later on and inviting Belaska to go in. He asked Belaska to remove his shoes.

"Why should I take my shoes off," asked Belaska. "You didn't," said the stranger. "Oh, my shoes are clean," said the stranger. Belaska finally took off his shoes and went in. The stranger wore white shoes with rubber soles. They went upstairs and entered a bedroom. While they were there they heard people coming in, whereupon the stranger, so Belaska says, turned upon him with a knife and said if he called out or said anything at all he would be killed. The stranger finally ordered Belaska under the bed, and the stranger disappeared, according to the weird tale which the prisoner tells.

Belaska denies having had a knife, saying he never carried one. He was not told that an open knife had been found under the bed. Belaska says he came there on the oil tank steamer W. S. Porter, and decided to remain here when the vessel returned to the Coast last week.

HUMANE SOCIETY DOES GOOD WORK

Crippled Horses and Mules No Longer Are Made to Work.

In a quiet way, the work of the Humane Society is being made effectual through a systematic oversight of all the sixty-four stables in town where hundreds of horses and mules are housed. The Humane Society, since its reorganization last year, has been keeping close tab on animals, and there are few suffering dumb brutes to be seen on the streets.

Miss Davison not only has her special agent's badge from the Humane Society, but she is provided with a Board of Health agent's badge and a special police commission from the Attorney General's Department. She has visited all the stables. In many she found horses and mules laid up, undergoing treatment. When she began her work on the streets, many more were added to the animal hospital rolls.

It is only amongst the ignorant owners of horses and mules that suffering brutes are to be found, but these are gradually learning that weak, crippled, sick and decrepit mules and horses must not be worked.

The big firms, draying concerns, etc., which use scores of high-priced horses and mules, regard them as an asset to be well looked after. Some stables are visited regularly every Sunday by veterinarians and if any animals show signs of having been used too hard during the week, they are singled out for treatment.

One difficulty with the poor owners of horses, and these are largely Japanese and Chinese, is the fact that owing (Continued on Page Five.)

The Story of the Maui Tournament

By Edwin S. Gee.

Honolulu defeated Maui by a score of 79 games to 70 in the annual "Harvest Home" tournament on Saturday, but it was only after four hours of hard-up hill play, and necessitated the presence of every first-class tennis player in the city with the exception of Will Roth.

Six representative teams of doubles were selected and were forced to extend themselves at all stages of the game to hand it to the plucky and capable aggregation of stars who represented Maui.

Just as the whistle of the good ship Claudine blew for the last time, after we had given up all hopes of the arrival of the gallant captain and manager of the Honolulu team, the well-known siren of "Pop Harrub's" Buick rent the atmosphere and almost immediately "Pop's" khaki trousers loomed up in the distance, closely followed by the bland and smiling countenance of the missing member of the team, with a linen duster on his arm and a wreath of pink lilies about his neck. A sigh of relief went up from each and every member of the party and a few moments later we were blowing our way out past Waikiki.

The stateroom assigned to John Waterhouse was immediately seized as the only place of sufficient size by a party of bridge fiends and long before we had passed Diamond Head a classy game was in progress. On a certain no trump declaration, Judge Ballou had twice held on to the King of Diamonds against a foxy finesse by one of his opponents, but was finally forced to disgorge and with some reluctance laid the monarch on the table. Steere remarked "You coughed that up with some reluctance I take it Judge," to which his Honor replied "Yes, and I sincerely trust that it is the only thing that I cough up on this trip," but more of that anon.

Dinner was partaken of rather sparingly and all hands returned on deck, where with loud talk and alleged jokes we tried to insinuate that we were feeling fine. In most instances, however, it was a vain effort, for the Claudine commenced to roll soon after leaving Diamond Head in the distance and one by one the jokers deserted until at 8:30 the gallant captain of Marinas, Low, was in undisputed possession of the deck. Meantime Sonny Cunha had secured a fine collection of pillows and cushions and snugly tucked in amidstships resembled, in pink pajamas and lavender hose, nothing so much as a cozy corner.

A Real Maui Reception. Just as we seemed to be dozing off we were routed out of our berths and informed that we had arrived. The tug Leslie Baldwin and two lighters were on hand and a few moments later we were on the wharf being greeted by the reception committee.

The Maui reception committee never does things by halves and we were informed that three large automobiles were at our disposal at any and all times throughout the day. At the invitation of Mr. Frank Baldwin we rode for about three miles to his spacious winter residence where after cold shower we sat down to breakfast—such a breakfast—broiled chicken—huge platters of fried ham, baked potatoes, hot biscuit, buttered toast, coffee like the nectar of the Gods and real cream, while the genial countenance of our host beamed upon us, fairly radiating hospitality throughout the entire meal.

After breakfast we were taken im-

Up to date the death toll has reached thirty, but many more will doubtless be found to have lost their lives when the debris has been cleared away. Eighty-two persons were seriously injured.

CONCRETE BRIDGES DECIDED ON FOR THE HILO EXTENSION

Almost a Straight Road out of Rainy City—Breakwater, in Storm, Withstands the Waves.

L. A. Thurston returned yesterday on the Mauna Kea from a three weeks' trip to Hilo where he went on business connected with the extension of the new railroad from Hilo. He devoted his time principally to the securing of rights of way along the coast, northerly from Hilo. The extension begins at the foot of Waiananue street, near the old postoffice, and crosses the Wailuku river in a direct line. The span is about 600 feet and this will be crossed by a bridge on concrete piers, a rock fill extending out 200 feet from each shore.

The line runs through Paueo, the northerly suburb of Hilo, for a distance of 1500 feet, when it strikes in to the open country.

While Mr. Thurston was in Hilo, W. G. Irwin, who is largely interested in the new company, and Manager Scott, were on the ground and arrangements were made with them by which the grading of the railroad will go ahead immediately, the question of compensation for right of way to be settled later by the board of directors. The securing of rights of way involves a thorough examination of titles, as there are a lot of small native holdings to cross. There are nearly fifty separate kuleana titles in the first two and a half miles.

The company has had the benefit of the surveys made by the Wilder Railroad Company, the Kohala-Hilo Railroad Company, and those for Philip Peck, in addition to those made by the company's own engineers, Messrs. Kluegel and Sisson. As a result of the combined information, a much better line than any heretofore projected has been secured. The main feature of the line, finally adopted, is that instead of going up into the many gulches on one side and coming out on the graded line on the other, nearly a straight line across the country has been taken.

Another radical change from any previously projected line is that instead of the gulches being crossed by steel bridges, the projected line will cross on reinforced concrete culverts with dirt fills. The Peck survey called, for instance, for sixteen steel bridges between Hilo and Hakalau, a distance of about fifteen miles.

The construction adopted by the Hilo Railroad Company calls for only three steel bridges, the remainder of the fills being crossed by reinforced concrete. The plantations along the line have manifested the most friendly disposition about the construction of the road.

Both the Onomea and Hilo sugar companies will finish grading next week and have agreed to allow the railroad company to use the water in their flume systems for washing out the cuts, some of which are 40 feet deep. After filling the gulches, the same water will be used to sluice dirt in the manner that the Nuananu dam is now being built.

The construction work is in charge of A. A. Wilson, who was recently been building the Oahu Railway & Land extension in Wahiawa. The gang which he had working at Wahiawa has been transferred to Hilo where some 150 men are at work. The first work being done is the construction of a bridge across Wailuku river, and concrete culverts in the gulches beyond. The culverts in these fills are already in course of construction. Several rock crushing plants are running and a pile driver has been erected on one back of the Wailuku river with which to drive foundation holes in the bedrock, into which coffer-dams will be driven, to be later filled with reinforced concrete piers.

The Hilo Breakwater. The government breakwater at Hilo is advancing at a good rate. It is out (Continued on Page Four.)

GOOD WORK BEING DONE BY ALEXANDER HUME FORD

Indefatigable Work for Hawaii Brings Results---
Bermuda and These Islands---The Transportation Problem.

At first my friends who edit magazines suspected me of being an agent of some publicity movement with headquarters in Hawaii, so glowing were my accounts, but many of them have caught the fever and actually ask for something about Hawaii; some of them are even coming out to see if it is all true, and I haven't told them half the wonders of our little islands yet. It is safe to say that there will be at least one Hawaiian article a month in the magazines from now until December and I am to send back others from Honolulu, as I expect to make a stop both ways on my coming trip around the Pacific.

It is hotter here in June than I ever felt it in Hawaii. Last July I walked around Oahu without a hat. I don't care to walk around a block here, even at night, with or without a hat. The heat is stifling; you people in Hawaii don't realize what a summer resort you have. Some of the cruises to the Caribbean Islands were discontinued even in winter, because the atmosphere there is too humid.

I think everything is going toward Hawaii. The Herald had a page article last Sunday on the wonderful westward trend of travel, a hundred per cent, more eastern visitors crossing the Mississippi than ever before. The trouble is people don't know about Hawaii here—they even ask if Bermuda is in the West Indies.

I have just come back from a run to Bermuda, it is perhaps as large as Lanai, but its highest hillock is but 260 feet. A new steamship company broke in on the old monopoly last season and reduced the fares from fifty to fifteen dollars for the round trip; result, the new company carried down 8000 persons to the usual 2000 annual tourists carried by the old line, and moreover it has paid all expenses and declared a dividend of three hundred and fifty per cent, to the stockholders. More money was spent in Bermuda than ever before and it seems probable that four steamship companies will compete for traffic next year, so great has been the awakening caused by a little competition.

Busses run about the island charging two cents a mile and seem to make money, just as the Chinese and Japanese coin gold on the trip between Honolulu and Kahala, only the Bermudians do not give up to the dark man—it is a white man's business. I have two men with several thousand to invest in bus runs in Hawaii; they are confident that they can compete with any Oriental—using motor busses—and I believe they can. I am urging them to come and have a try and will report back. I traveled back to New York with H. L. Brooks, a young man who went down to Bermuda, secured an option on the entire onion crop, the staple of Bermuda, then engaged all the cargo space on the new line, established agencies throughout the New England and Middle States, to which he wires the day before an arrival of onions, asking how many cases each can handle and at what price. In this way he keeps a steady market-going and I am glad to say is coining money—he deserves to. I talked to Brooks. He is establishing a refrigerator line from Oregon, to bring apples to New York in seven days. I talked Hawaii, her fresh pines, matchless alligator pears, bananas, papayas, etc., and if I report favorably after investigation, he will come on to Hawaii to arrange for a once a week shipment to either Frisco or Puget Sound, so that if the shipment is small it can go in with his apples, or if large in special refrigerator cars. In other words he would have Hawaiian fruits on sale in the eastern markets two weeks after they were picked. I have discussed prices and demand for alligator pears with the leading dealers here, and at prices they offer, Brooks sees good money in it for all concerned.

A friend from Porto Rico who plants pines tells me that the Hawaiian ads have doubled the demands for his fresh fruit in New York City. He informed me that Hawaiian pines are the best for canning in the world, but are not so good for eating fresh as the Porto Rican. This is not true, and if Brooks will bring them on, Hicks, the big Broadway fancy fruit dealer will keep a pyramid of big Hawaiian pines in his window and push their sale.

I am interesting others in the possibility of interisland traffic at rates that will enable the small farmer to locate anywhere in Hawaii and get his wares at low rates to a central shipping point, and those desirous of locating to visit among the islands back and forth at fares that will encourage all to do so. In everything I write or say I keep to the front the possibilities of fortunes yet to be made in Hawaii in systematizing small farming and fair and equitable transportation facilities on and between the islands; some thinking people of means are beginning to take my campaign seriously.

The big tourist bureau on 30th street and Fifth avenue has agreed to hang in its window a large transparency in colors of Hawaiian surf-board riding, with lettering beneath stating exact cost of round trip from New York to Hawaii with rates at both the big and home hotels. I am arranging for other such displays in the transcontinental railway offices on upper Broadway. G. Fred Bush promises that he will see to it that some of these are supplied.

It would astonish Hawaiians to know how the advertisements of Hawaiian pines in the magazines, and the fact that the wares made good, has set people talking of Hawaii. Hawaiian pines are on everyone's lips, in the stores they actually brag of having them in stock. Never was money more wisely expended in advertising Hawaii—I hate to admit it—for I, of course, have talked surf-boarding.

But to return to Bermuda for a moment. There is and can be no surfing in Bermuda. Surf too inconsequential, but the Bermudians have some things to suggest to us. Everyone decried the possibility of lowering transportation rates to and from Bermuda. A young man without capital, started an agitation, found backers, the thing was done, a daily line—to replace the once every ten-day service—is in sight, and even with two steamers a week prosperity has come to all. Bermuda makes the best of her attractions. Her coral reefs she makes support a fair-sized steamer, and the coral gardens of Bermuda do not compare with those of Catalina Island, which in turn, Geo. Freeth tells me, do not compare with certain coral gardens he knows of near Diamond Head. The most attractive spot in Bermuda is the so-called Devil's Hole, a well in the coral where hundreds of bright colored fish are kept and actually tamed. The Bermudian coral is porous, and the salt water percolates, but why could not something of the sort be done in Hawaii? I spoke to the superintendent of the Castle Garden aquarium, New York, about the possibility of introducing some of the brilliant Caribbean fish into Hawaiian waters, but he informs me that the fish of Hawaii far surpass those of Caribbean sea and that the expense of taking fish across the isthmus and on to Hawaii would be great. The Bermudians turn their beautiful fish to account in the manufacture of enamel pins and buttons, which are becoming quite common even in New York, for the coloring is certainly exquisite, the angel fish serving as the usual model, although he is no prettier than many of our Hawaiian fish. Bermuda has awakened with a start, Hawaii is always awake, but with proper transportation facilities, she should, and I believe will be the home of the individual white farmer. My friend Wm. E. Smythe, father of irrigation in the United States, is in every day preaching an acre enough for every man and his colony is making good there. I am urging him to visit Hawaii.

At present I am urging my railway friends to aid in securing a through transcontinental and steamship excursion rate to Hawaii with hotel coupons attached for either the big or medium hotels. The tourist agencies here have all promised to push the sale of these and there is a chance of securing a special low summer excursion rate annually, and I am still firmly convinced that Hawaii is to be a great summer resort for Americans and the Australians.

The magazines are beginning to take up and exploit the New Zealand government tourist bureau system, and to demand fair treatment to the public in our big national parks. I am glad to see that you are trying to establish an observatory at Kilauea. I go further in some of my articles and urge the parking of Kilauea, Haleakala and the Kauai canons and always mention the trails of Hawaii when I speak of the New Zealand system. We are perfecting a well organized National Travel Club with several magazines behind the movement and it, too, will take up some of these questions. I preach the fact that all Hawaii is one great natural park, and that with the New Zealand system applied there, to make little tours of every kind easy to all, the world would contain no finer recreation spot. You should see the advertising the Swiss government is doing here, and Switzerland has not a little of what has Hawaii to offer to the visitor, and some day the world will wake up to this fact.

I have secured from the Oceanic S. S. Co. special rates for any of Clark's cruisers who wish to stop over in Honolulu, and I believe many will do so. The Southern Railway Co. with offices at 28th Street and Broadway will place a Hawaiian surf-boarding transparency in its front window, and urge people to go Hawaiiward via Southern railway of course. Thomas Cook & Son have their extensive desk room in the rear of this office, so that the transparency will serve a double purpose. The Raymond Whitecomb Tourist Bureau, 26th St. and Fifth avenue, will make a similar display; their manager states that through tickets to Hawaii, and the New Zealand system of travel among the islands would quadruple tourist business there, but would hurt commissions, yet nevertheless they would help such a movement along, as they think it is bound to come anyway. They are sending parties to New Zealand right along, via Tahiti. I can't understand why Hawaii will not take up the offer of the Oceanic S. S. Co. to have the Mariposa stop at Honolulu. The Transcontinental Railways and Tourist Bureaus here are reaching out a helping hand and I hope soon to have a talk with you and my other friends in Hawaii looking to their, at their expense, doing much to exploit the islands. I know they are willing, and I am for making easy the way of the white man to populate our tropical islands.

With best regards believe me sincerely yours.

AMUSEMENTS

Sherlock Holmes.

As a part of the new bill to be given at the Orpheum tonight there will be shown among other moving pictures one depicting the adventures of the celebrated Sherlock Holmes.

The entire bill will be changed and the comedy sketch will be equally as funny as the Man from Klondyke.

The shows at the Orpheum are certainly drawing the people and deservedly so for with two hours of good clean entertainment at the prices charged this popular playhouse is supplying a long-felt want in the amusement line.

Order your seats in advance and get good ones for the house is usually sold out by 8 o'clock.

The Return of Ulysses.

This will be the feature film at the popular open air Park theater tonight. It is a particularly interesting subject full of character and well presented. It is one of the latest of the Pathe films and has created a furore wherever shown on the mainland. By special request "Cohen at Coney Island" will be shown again and there will be renewed shouts of laughter. This film shows all of the mirth provoking contrivances at this famous resort, machines and what not that were pictured in a recent number of one of the popular magazines. It was shown Saturday night and brought more applause than has been heard at this theater for a long time. Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Milne will do new songs and monologues and the Melotte sisters will appear.

Art Theater.

Ever hear of vampires? O yes, you mean spectral beings, still possessing a human body, which, according to a superstition, leaves the grave during night and maintain a semblance of life by sucking the warm blood of living men and women while they are asleep? Or the vampires of commerce, who prey upon their fellows by means of extortion or usury? No, in the "Vampires of the Coast," the subject of the feature film at the Art today, none of these are meant, but human ghosts who make their nefarious living by luring ships from their course to be dashed to pieces on the rockbound coast. The pirates gather up the rich merchandise and having imprisoned the survivors in a cave, proceed to broach the wine casks and commence a drunken saturnalia, during the progress of which a young wrecker succeeds in saving and carrying off to her home, one of the passengers, the beautiful daughter of a family of wealth and quality. Meanwhile Dan Cupid becomes busy and gets in some of his fine work, and the denouement of the drama is all that lovers of romance and poetic justice could demand.

Come early and enjoy the comedy films, illustrated songs, and fine music.

Standing room was at a premium at the Gem on Saturday night, and Manager Kube can be proud of having captured the music-loving section of the theater patrons of Honolulu. Indeed, those who attended the Gem had a treat seldom met with on any island, and were amply repaid for any inconvenience they may have had to put up with. The program consisted of The Tyrolean Yodel Quartet, Boys and Girls and Postcards, two of London's latest song hits sung by Billy Williams; a scene from Kienzl's famous opera,

Two more brilliant and exciting games of baseball at the Athletic Park yesterday. With appetites whetted by the great ballfest of the previous Sunday the fans crowded every corner of the grounds and they certainly were treated to as fine a feast of snappy ball as would satisfy the hunger of the craziest of them.

The Oahu league is keeping up its reputation for providing good ball and the park management is sure of a good attraction every Sunday as long as the present series lasts.

The feature of the day, apart from the wonderful pitching of George Clark, was the excellent work of Lemm at second base for the Boers and the good ball played by all the players who took part in the big league ball the day before.

Flores did quite a little stunt for the Japs; he caught three men napping on first with a terribly swift throw that he has recently developed. This is a very deadly piece of business, almost like smiling Bill Burn's great throw to first which had the local players guessing when Mike Fisher's aggregation was here.

Henry Walker made his first appearance at the Athletic Park and, when he stepped up to the plate for the Japs, he was accorded a tremendous ovation from the fans. This made that big Henry feel a trifle disconcerted and he really looked almost sheepish, but he played none the worse for that and handed out a steady and reliable brand of ball all the game through.

Francis was another new face in the Jap lineup. He was at second base and played a star and errorless game. He is a pillar of strength for the Japs in that important position and is more of an acquisition than he, perhaps, appreciated.

Apan and Gibson Shine.

Apan twirled a peachy game for the Dragonlets but he had none the better of Gibson. The sturdy Marine really pitched a winning game and, had it not been for poor fielding in the seventh inning the Dragonlets would not have tied the score.

Lucky Zerbe, the man who can always be depended on for a single or on getting to first without anybody going out, made a sad record for himself. Twice he fanned with men on bases and only one down. But this did not rattle the unlucky one and he kept smiling all through the game.

Knight, the Marine first-baseman, repeated his star game of the Sunday previous on the initial sack. He played an errorless game and handled some hard ones that he might well have been excused for fumbling.

Fast Base-Running.

The weather was ideal for baseball, no rain, and enough breeze to keep things from getting too hot. The diamond is in excellent condition, and the base-running was very speedy all the way through.

It is interesting to note how each Sunday more and more prominent local people may be seen in the grandstand at the park. Marshal Hendry is one enthusiast who takes in all the games and he certainly does enjoy them. A large delegation from Ewa comes in every Sunday to see the games, and Leslie West, the manager of the victorious Ewa team, is always there to help root.

The First Game.

The Boers had a large whitewash tub with them, and Oom Paul and his command took that tub and doused it all over the Japs. In the first inning the Boers made two. Rice sent a hot high one to third base which was doctored by Ross. Lemm switched the cars off at the second crossing from a large consignment of swatting to leftfield along third-base line.

Then Shephard, he of Leilehua and the fat smile, was safe at the primary on some hanging by Yamashiro. This induced Lemm to wander thirdward, and, of course, the fourlegs took second without difficulty.

This made two men on bases and one down. Bates, he swatted the stuff you breathe, but Butler, another four-legged, hoisted the sphere to left field for a nifty bingle and Shephard and Lemm both romped. Then Kaipo put a hole in the air. Two runs.

The only other score was made in the eighth inning. This is how it was done. McCall landed at first on Yamashiro's strange thought that the ball was too hot to hold. Then Jack Flores tried one of his sideward whizzing-doozies to first, but McHenry called it a balk, and McCall toddled once. Rice sacrificed McCall to third. Lemm cut a curve in the air to Walker at center-field. Two men down with McCall on third. Brito grew sassy; he thought he could catch McCall asleep, but he threw wild and McCall romped. Shephard binged, but Bates fanned, and the scoring for the game was pau.

The ninth inning was a hot one. It looked like a score for the Japs, but McHenry made a lapsus fungus and the Japs sat down in the whitewash. Walker made a terrific drive to centerfield for a sack and stole another one. Joe

Ross hit to Jack Flores, who, in throwing to first, hit the runner, and Walker tried to come home on the play. He nearly made it, but was caught between Shephard and McCall and died. While this was happening Ross naturally went to second, and he bargled the next stopping place very cleverly. Francoise shot to short, and there were two down with one on third. Brito grounded between pitcher and first and, of course, Joe Ross ran like wildfire. The ball went to Shephard, who so it seemed, failed to touch the runner, but McHenry called him out. Then the Japs on the bleachers made a noise like being disgruntled.

The Second Game.

The Dragonlets started well by scoring in the first inning. Akana was safe on third-baseman's error and stole second. Sing Chong was also insured by Coll and Akana hooped it all the way to the plate. Sing Chong stole second and tried to repeat the dose, but it must have been an overdose, for he died. Then John Lo punctured the oxygen and Cheebie skied to second. One run.

The Marines made their first in the third. Williams had a free ticket and took another one on his own. Knight split the air and Thompson sent Williams to third while he was attending his own funeral. Hayes hit to Apan, who threw wild to first, so that Williams scored. Then Gaw skied to short. One run each.

The Marines took the lead in the fourth. Coll skied to second, Davis ditto. Two men out and none on bases. Gibson was safe on an overthrow from third and went to second on the play. Slorp then singled and scored Gibson. Then Williams skied. Two to one for the Half-wets.

The Dragonlets tied the score again in the second half of the inning. Sing Chong hooped and Stole, John Lo then walloped a faldersolderle to rightfield fence that took him to second and Sing Chong home. Cheebie popped foul to catcher and Apan fanned. En Sang binged, but Lo, who was on third, by this time, did not think he could make it and froze to the bag. Then En Sang stole second. Great excitement, but Ah Toon died. Two runs each.

The winning run was scored in the seventh inning. Ah Toon fanned. Chin Yet was safe because the catcher dropped third strike. Apan sacrificed Chin Yet to second. Two men down. Akana binged Chin Yet in and thus won the game. Akana stole once, but Sing Chong skied.

ALL-HILO BEATS THE MAUI TEAM

By E. S. Gee.

Having lost the tennis series, Maui rooters centered their hopes on winning the ball game from Hilo. The teams were evenly matched and the game was close and exciting from start to finish and until Bal ended the agony by flying out to Desha in the ninth the result was in doubt.

Honolulu visitors attended in a body in automobiles, which were furnished particularly for the occasion, and rooted vigorously for Maui, but without avail.

The game settled down to a pitcher's battle between Kealoa of Hilo and Upton of Maui, the former having a shade the best of the contest. The game abounded in sharp hits, spectacular fielding, and good base-running. The following is the game by innings:

First inning—Lyman was the first Hilo man to face Upton. The latter was somewhat nervous and hit the batsman on the second ball pitched. G. Desha hit a hot one to Ayau, who made a pretty stop and threw to second, forcing Lyman. Myers caught G. Desha trying to steal second, nailing him by several feet by a beautiful throw. W. Desha struck out. No runs. Bailey out, short to first; Ayau walked, Myers did not appear to be a Texas leaguer over first, but which Todd nailed after a long run. No runs.

Second inning—Kealoa out, second to first; Makaanui popped up an easy one which Bal took care of; Teves walked and Todd struck out. No runs. Espinda and Bal struck out, English waited for four bad ones; Clements also got free passage to first, and Upton hit a hard one to third, filling the bases, and English stole home while Teves was juggling the ball. One run.

Third inning—Brown died on an easy one to short; A. Desha flew out to second; Lyman hit a high one which Garcia just managed to get under in time. No runs. Ayau struck out, Myers flew out to short, and Garcia was out on A. Desha's magnificent stop and throw of his apparently safe hit over second. No runs.

Fourth inning—G. Desha walked and went to second on W. Desha's sacrifice; Kealoa drove the ball to deep center for two sacks, scoring G. Desha. Makaanui hit what appeared to be a homer, but Espinda made a long run and leaped into the air just as the ball was passing, succeeding in securing it in his right hand, a beautiful play. Teves singled, advancing Kealoa to third, but both men were left as Todd swung at three wild ones. One run. Espinda was out on a foul fly back of third; Bal hit a screamer which Lyman pulled down. English singled, but was left, as Clements struck out. No runs.

Fifth inning—Brown hit to right, just inside the foul line, for three bases. A. Desha struck out; Lyman hit a liner to left which Clements dropped and Brown scored. G. Desha flew out to right. One run. Upton was an easy out to Kealoa; Bailey out, second to first; Ayau struck out. No runs.

Sixth inning—W. Desha struck out; Kealoa walked but was out on a beautiful double play, Bailey to Garcia, the latter relaying the ball to first in time to retire the side. Myers out, short to first; Garcia flew out to short, and Espinda was out on a long fly to center. Seventh inning—Teves out, short to first; Todd walked, and Brown struck out; A. Desha hit an easy one to Upton and went out at first. Bal singled to center; English flew out to A. Desha, who slammed the ball to first in time to catch Bal napping and complete a double play; Clements hit a Texas leaguer to left, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch, but was left, as Upton was an easy out on a short fly to third.

Eighth inning—Lyman singled to center and came all the way home on G. Desha's terrific drive to right-center for three bases. W. Desha was safe at first when Bal dropped Ayau's pretty throw; Kealoa walked, filling the bases; Makaanui singled, scoring G. Desha, but Teves and Todd both struck out with the bases still full. Two runs.

Upton flew out to Kealoa; Bailey singled to left, went to second on Ayau's sacrifice, and scored on Myers' single to left; Myers was caught in an attempt to purloin second. One run. Ninth inning—Brown out, short to first; A. Desha singled to left, but was forced on Lyman's hard hit to short, and G. Desha struck out. Garcia was out, short to first; Espinda struck out, and Bal flew out to leftfield.

BOWEN'S BATTERS WIN ANOTHER ONE

Fort Shafter Now in Second Place—Aalas Still Head the List.

Riverside League Standing.

Aalas	6	5	.833

Palamas	7	1	.142

Yesterday's Results.

Aalas, 6; Kewalos, 3.
Fort Shafter, 3; Palamas, 1.

The last year's champions of the Riverside league came very near to getting some of that "Tiser stuff" over them from Lieutenant Bowen's sturdy roadpounders yesterday afternoon at Aala Park. The Fort Shafter boys put up a rattling good game of ball and showed even more of an improvement in their team work than ever.

The roadpounders victory was the second game at Aala and both McCall and Lemm had already played in two games. Yet they kept their end up wonderfully and both played a steady game all the way through.

Where the Fort Shafter team has a buge over every other team in Honolulu is in the coaching that Lieutenant Bowen gives them. Before they go on the field and sometimes between innings, he calls the players together and gives them explicit instructions. He runs over the signals, explains how any individual weakness may be corrected and sends his team out on the field knowing just exactly what they have to do and when to do it.

Both the soldiers and sailors who attended the games at Aala Park yesterday afternoon, handed out a lesson in patriotism that many local citizens should take notice of. When the band played the "Star Spangled Banner," all the men in the service stood at attention until the band had finished. It was unfortunate to see that most of the civilians present took absolutely no notice of the national air.

The First Game.

The Aalas kept their place at the top of the league by beating it to the Kewalos by 6 to 3. The winners made one run each in the second and third innings. Bob Chillingworth scored first on a walk, two steals and an error by Souza at third.

In the third inning Limahema was safe on a wild throw by Freitas at short and went to second on the play. Henry Chillingworth sacrificed him to third then Kaimi wet the ball and Limahema romped.

Seven runs were made in the sixth inning. The Aalas made four in the first half and the Kewalos came through with their three in the second half of the period.

Deponte was pitching for the Kewalos but he was taken out of the box after that and Freitas took his place. Hardee, Medcraft, Bob Chillingworth, Hardee, Medcraft, Bob Chillingworth, Hardee, Medcraft, Bob Chillingworth. This was done on three bingles, a passed ball and a general balloon ascension.

Souza, Joseph and Joseph scored for the Kewalos. They did it on two bingles, two walks and a fielder's choice that put the batter out at first and allowed the runner to advance one.

A MORNING PAPER.

WALTER G. SMITH EDITOR
MONDAY : : : : : AUGUST 16

THE FICKLE GODDESS.

Tempting fortune with dice and cards has been a popular form of amusement since the days of Belshazzar. To stamp out gambling is admittedly a difficult task, but gambling in open defiance of stringent laws passed by Federal, State or Territorial legislatures suggests a complaisant police department which may fail in protecting the citizens of the community from other and grosser crimes.

Gambling in Honolulu is and has been carried to extremes. This is true of those in the higher stations of life, who play poker and bridge for large stakes, as well as those whose small wages are jeopardized as the dice are thrown in concealed cellars, where the professional crook strips the victim of his wages and leaves him without rent or food funds, or support for family.

Few people know of the fearful appeals, of mothers and wives, to the heads of the police department, begging them to put a stop to gambling, that the weekly wages may be used to supply the family with food and clothing and the general necessities of life. Little the public knows of the sad stories told by the women who depend upon the weekly wages of the wagon-driver, the foundry-worker, or other wage-earners, among whom, on pay-day, appear the professional gamblers, whose tricks enable them to annex the hard-earned money which should be taken home.

Why molest the gambler? Because the gambler makes it his business to fleece anyone who has cash. Persons playing cards for money in clubs lack the vampire designs of the professional gambler, whose only aim is to decoy humble workers into his concealed and guarded den, heavy with tobacco and lamp smoke, reeking with perspiring bodies, where blocked dice are used with an expert skill which baffles detection.

These gamblers enter into the business in cold blood, intent upon depriving their victims of cash which belongs to mothers, wives, and children. The police department archives are filled with the stories of young men who have "gone wrong," and the cause of their blasted careers is found to be the professional gambler.

Until the che-ba banks were demolished less than two years ago, thousands of Hawaiians were so enslaved to the desire to win something for nothing that their poi bills, fish bills and rent went unpaid that the passion for gambling might be satisfied.

There is an undoubted sentiment among many that police effort to suppress small gambling games among the Orientals and Hawaiians is misapplied, while there are others who can not even see the necessity for suppressing the larger percentage games. Those who think or argue this way do so in ignorance of true conditions. Gambling is simply the introduction to graver crime. The police statistics in this city will show during the past three years where an active anti-gambling crusade on the part of the police has been followed by an almost entire absence of burglaries, hold-ups, sneak thievery, and deadly assaults. There is a direct relation between gambling and these crimes, and the suppression of the former invariably leads to a diminution of the latter.

It is not the Chinaman who loses half a dollar at paikau whom the police are after, or should be, but the same Chinaman who will steal to get that half dollar to gamble with.

FARMING AS A PROFESSION.

In no field of industry are the fruits of modern scientific research more apparent than in agriculture. Fifty years ago, the tilling of the soil, however honorable it may have been considered as a calling, was hardly classed among the learned professions. Agriculture meant plowing, sowing, reaping, with, perhaps, the occasional use of a few simple fertilizers, applied by rule of thumb rather than with any idea of remedying specific troubles.

When a farm ceased to produce, it was believed to be hopelessly exhausted, and in America, where the great stretches of land made men prodigal, it was very likely deserted. In crowded Europe, such cavalierly action was out of the question, and, through force of necessity, the peasant tried, in a crude way, to restore the exhausted vitality. But at the best his efforts were but the blind groping of the man handicapped by lack of basic knowledge of the problem facing him.

Then came the era of scientific research in the field of agriculture. The chemist, with his test tube and retort, sought to ascertain what component of the soil was being removed through long-continued cultivation. Once that problem had been solved, the searcher turned his attention toward the search for some agent which would restore, through artificial means, the vitality of the soil.

When the scientist had taught the farmer how to revivify the exhausted earth, the first great economic problem of the agriculturist was solved. Another problem presented itself. The farmer had long since discovered that trees, plants, or grains would thrive better in one class of soil than in another. How to make all soils equally productive, or nearly so, was the next question. What could be done toward turning bad soil into good?

Again the man with the retort was called into service. First he ascertained, through analysis, just what components, by their presence or absence, affected the fertility of the soil. A specimen of earth, having a known productiveness, was analyzed. Then a specimen of unproductive earth was put through the same process. Perchance an excess of some one chemical was vitiating the soil. Mayhap the absence of some essential was responsible for the sterility of the specimen under consideration. In either case, artificial methods were resorted to, and the productiveness of the soil was greatly increased thereby.

Not only was the chemist advancing the interests of the farmer through his investigations, but other men of science turned their attention toward the soil. Budding, grafting, drainage, and a hundred other problems, understood by the practical farmer in only the crudest way, furnished ample field for research. The secrets of nature attracted the man of erudition, and soon the scientific horticulturist was evolved.

Then the colleges awoke to the fact that a great field was open to them, in teaching the farmer how to till his farm to the best advantage. Courses in scientific agriculture were established. The farmer saw that farms, worked scientifically, were producing more than those managed in a hit-or-miss fashion. The college, which the farmer had looked upon as an establishment founded in the interests of the wealthy, took on a new aspect. The son was sent to an institution of higher learning when he finished the primary schools, instead of being put into the field. Farming to him, with his increased knowledge, became a vocation and not drudgery. The farmer of the younger generation became as much a specialist as the physician or the lawyer. Rule of thumb no longer sufficed.

Farming is one of the oldest callings in the world; there is certainly none more honorable. The tilling of the soil is an occupation without one debasing influence. The farmer is essentially a producer, a builder-up. Political jobbery, success at the expense of another's failure, the deceptions of the world, have no place in the agricultural calling. No person can watch the wonders of nature, as demonstrated by the growing tree, without becoming a better man or woman. The world must eat. Upon the farmer depends the food supply of the world. Every crop harvested means so much accomplished for mankind. With the development of scientific farming, a new field is opened to the ambitious young man. Scientific farming is as much a profession as law, medicine, or engineering, and the time is not far distant when the farmer without scientific training will find himself at a hopeless disadvantage.

The field is wide; the doors of the agricultural colleges welcome the ambitious student. That welcome should not be extended in vain.

SAM JOHNSON AND RUSSIAN LABOR.

The suggestion made that Sam Johnson be the one sent to Manchuria to investigate the labor market outlook for the Board of Immigration is a good one. Mr. Johnson is peculiarly well fitted for the work that the Immigration Board desires done. No one in the Territory is so well fitted, indeed. Not only is he thoroughly acquainted with the people of Little Russia, from among whom Mr. Perelstous proposes to select his emigrants for Hawaii, and able to meet these people with a common language, but he is at the same time thoroughly acquainted with the local situation. He knows what is here required of laborers, having for the past many years been the superintendent and overseer where laborers by the hundreds have been employed. Not only has he been an employer, but he has been a successful employer, a large part of his success being due to his ability to pick men.

It is settled, and properly so, that the Board of Immigration is to make an effort to secure white laborers from Manchuria. The first lot will be here within ninety days. Mr. Perelstous has assured the authorities here that he is in a position to bring two thousand families a year if they are wanted, the proposed colonists and laborers being peasant agriculturists. If the field is so promising, it is worth cultivating and worth a proper investigation, and of all men in the Territory today none is so well fitted to make such an investigation as Mr. Johnson. The fact that a short time ago he was offered the position of Vice Consul in Honolulu for Russia shows that whatever disagreement he may have had with his own government has been forgiven and that he is persona grata.

In view of the assurance that Mr. Johnson would accept the commission of the Board if it be offered, the matter is worth the serious consideration of that body.

PRINCESS RINK WILL OPEN SATURDAY NEXT

The work at the new Princess Skating Rink has progressed rapidly and now there only remains a couple of days' work before everything will be ready for the grand opening which will take place no later than next Saturday evening.

To those who will visit the rink for the first time a great surprise is in store, for they will see an up-to-date skating rink with every possible convenience.

Five hundred pairs of brand-new skates of the latest and best make have been received, and placed in the racks. The floor is of polished cement, 80x150 feet, large enough to accommodate over 600 skaters, while the seating capacity for spectators is over 1000.

There are skate rooms, dressing and retiring rooms for both ladies and gentlemen, while the bandstand is a fine shell affair large enough to accommodate over one hundred musicians.

Professional skaters have been engaged to take charge of the rink and give exhibitions nightly, while great care will be taken in the proper conduct of the rink.

The Princess represents an investment of $10,000 and will no doubt prove to be one of the most popular places of amusement in Honolulu.

There was a heavy northerly swell about a week ago, causing breakers along the entire length of the reef about as heavy as has been seen at Hilo during the last year, but the breakwater was not injured or broken, and the breakers did not arrest the work.

Pahoa Tie Mill.

The tie mill at Pahoa is doing fine work. It turned out last week the fifth cargo of ties, for the Santa Fe railway, since June 1. The schooner W. H. Marston finished loading on Thursday last, having taken in 22,000 ties in ten days. The ties were all loaded at the Hilo wharf.

The tie mill of Messrs. Camp and Bolte, which is being set up in lower Puna, seven miles beyond the terminus of the Hilo railroad, will be in operation during the next month. They are still debating the question of whether to ship the ties via Hilo or by the cable landing over the bluff in Kona. There is a strong, hopeful spirit manifested by everyone in and about Hilo, such as has not been shown since the days of the boom in 1900.

GILMORE WILL START ON LECTURE TOUR

President Gilmore is planning to make a lecture tour of the different islands in the interest of the College of Hawaii. Dr. Gilmore is having made a very fine collection of lantern slides, for the purpose of illustrating his lecture. Arrangements have already been made for a series of lectures at Hilo.

AMONG THE MASTS

Captain C. E. Olsen, first mate of the cable schooner Florence, Ward which returned from Midway Island last week, died suddenly yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock of heart failure. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the undertaking parlors of M. E. Silva.

During the return voyage Captain Olsen complained of pains in his stomach. On reaching Honolulu he resided at the Queen Hotel, Nuuanu avenue, and had complained of feeling unwell during the last three or four days. He was urged to go to the Queen's Hospital, and he agreed to do so as soon as he received certain money due him. He was seized with illness yesterday and expired in a few minutes.

Captain Olsen was a kamaaina well known in shipping circles. He was a member of Honolulu Harbor 54, A. A. of M. M. & P. He had no relatives in Honolulu.

Passengers from Tacoma.

Tacoma.—Beginning early this winter, the Matson Navigation Company will inaugurate a passenger service between Puget Sound and the Hawaiian Islands, according to a report brought from the Sound by the steamer Hyades, which arrived in port yesterday morning to load for the islands. The report is that the company will place its fast steamer Lurline, now operating between San Francisco and the islands, on the Puget Sound triangular service. The company has a new steamer under construction for the California route and it is likely that with the advent of the new steamer the Lurline will be shifted to the Puget Sound-Honolulu trade.

The Lurline has accommodations for 160 first-class passengers and 60 second class. She will carry 8000 tons dead weight. Up to the present time there has been no passenger service between Puget Sound and the Hawaiian Islands. The merchants of the islands have for some time past been clamoring for a direct service between the islands and Puget Sound, but as yet none has been established. It was reported some time ago, however, that it was the intention of the Matson company ultimately to establish such a service, and the order for a new steamer which followed this announcement was regarded by many as an indication that the desired service would be forthcoming before another year passed.

The Hyades is loading general freight for the islands. On arrival in port yesterday morning she berthed at the Alala-Pacific dock.

Barkentine Archer to Have Engine.

The barkentine Archer, once famous in the sugar trade but for several years engaged in carrying lime from Roche Harbor to this port, is to be equipped with auxiliary power. Either during the present stay in port or when the vessel returns there will be installed a 300 horsepower producer gas engine. This is a new type of gas engine, which is said to be in successful operation in England and Germany.—Call.

Arizonan's Cargo.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—The American-Hawaiian company's steamer Arizonan, which is bringing to this port from Norfolk a cargo of navy coal, put into Punta Arenas yesterday with the coal in No. 2 hold heated. A survey was held and the too warm coal will be cooled by shifting before the steamer proceeds.

First Clipper Leaves.

PHILADELPHIA, August 2.—Few more striking illustrations of the present extraordinary revival of business at this port could be found than the sailing last week of the William P. Frye, the pioneer vessel of the recently organized clipper line between this city, New York and San Francisco. It will be a pleasing reminder of the days when the riverfront was crowded with vessels of the same type from all parts of the world.

The vessel is named in honor of William P. Frye, father of the ship subsidy bill. She is square rigged and is built of steel. The ship is now being loaded with iron and steel products of this city and State at the Port Richmond piers, to which point most of the freight was transported over the Philadelphia and Reading Railway. She is being loaded under cover, most sailing vessels at other ports being compelled to load from open piers. No permanent berths for the vessels of the new line have yet been secured here, but it is reported that they will dock at the new Reading pier when it is completed.

The Clipper Line is made up of eight sailing vessels. The second vessel of the fleet, the Manga Reva, is here awaiting her cargo. More than 7000 tons of freight, all of which is entirely new business, will be carried away from this port by the two ships. Two other vessels of the fleet are now on their way here from San Francisco. The local agents of the line are Peter Wright & Sons.

Schwern's Wireless Boat.

Call.—The Pacific Mail liner Pennsylvania, the only ship of the line equipped with wireless, was 1100 miles south of San Francisco at 8 p. m. August 3, with all well on board and experiencing fine weather. The wireless on the Pennsylvania was not installed by the Pacific Mail company, but was thrown in with the ship, which was bought second-hand in Seattle to take the place of the lost Indiana. The Pennsylvania is due Sunday and may bring some details of the earthquake at Acapulco. The liner left the Mexican port the day of the catastrophe.

Saunders Commands Newport.

Call, Aug. 3.—The Pacific Mail liner Newport cleared yesterday for Panama and way ports and will sail today for the isthmus, commanded by Captain J. W. Saunders, formerly master of the liner Manchuria. Captain Saunders was relieved of the command of the Manchuria some months ago after an exchange of blows with the ship's surgeon. The medico was placed indefinitely and without pay on what is known in Pacific Mail circles as waiting orders. Captain Saunders, who excused his attempt to put the doctor over the rail with the plea of nervous breakdown, was placed on sick leave. By way of cheering him up in his convalescence he was appointed caretaker of the Algoa a few weeks ago. This effected a complete cure and today Saunders will don his double breasted frock coat again and take the Newport to sea. The Newport was Saunders' ship for a number of years, both in the Panama run and during the Spanish war, when the Newport was chartered as an army transport and was used by General Otis as a flagship.

New Rules for Inspector.

The department of commerce and labor at Washington, D. C., informed the office of the surveyor of the port here yesterday that all vessels in this port measuring over 15 tons, be the fraction ever so small, must in the future be inspected and come under the inspection rules of the steamboat inspector service.

Heretofore boats at this port were not considered in this class if they did not reach 16 tons.

All fractions over 15 tons were dropped, and for many years the owners and builders of boats have been taking advantage of this fact.—Call.

Aboard the Sheridan.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—The army transport Sheridan, Captain Healey, will sail at noon today for Manila with 128 first-class passengers and 58 in the second cabin. On board the troopship there will be also the One Hundred and Fifth and One Hundred and Ninth companies of artillery for Honolulu, and the One Hundred and Forty-Six for Manila. The passengers will include 200 United States marines for the Asiatic station, 10 marines and 10 bluejackets for Honolulu and 7 marines for Guam. The troopship will take to the Philippines 321,000 silver pesos for circulation in the islands.

The ranking officer among the passengers will be Colonel J. L. Chamberlain, inspector general of the army. Colonel Lee Febiger, commanding the Third Infantry, will be in charge of the troops on board.

The passengers will include two colonels and two lieutenant-colonels. Lieutenant Colonel Evans is the senior of the lower rank and next to him comes Lieutenant Colonel Bellinger, recently relieved as superintendent of the transport service and ordered to the Philippines to act as disbursing officer, in connection with work being done by the engineer corps on Corregidor island.

Shipping Notes.

The cargo of the Likilike from Kiholo included 6460 bags of H. S. sugar, 60 head cattle, 3 calves.

Included in the Mikahala's cargo were 24 hogs, 13 crates chickens.

PLAN TO REFUND HONDURAS DEBT

Washington.—Secretary of State Knox proposes to have American bankers refund the public debt of Honduras.

At present, the bonds of the country are selling about 95 per cent. below par and most of them are held by English investors. Great Britain has been prevented only by regard for the Monroe doctrine from jumping in and making Honduras pay. It is believed that it would be a good thing for American bankers if the American government, through the state department, stands back of them and sees that Honduras keeps up her payments.

SUPERVISOR ANTONIO FERNANDEZ RESIGNS

Hilo Tribune.—Supervisor Fernandez has resigned. The resignation was sprung on the board on the second day of its meeting, and there was much reluctance in accepting it.

"I wish to state that I am not in good health," said Fernandez, in explaining the reason for his action. "I get angry very quickly during the discussions in these meetings, and it causes me to cough; also, when I go home, I worry over mistakes which I may have made. I think I have done my duty toward the public. I am willing to wait until my successor has been appointed. I have my resignation ready for the Governor, though, of course, if the board wishes to accept my resignation now, it can do so."

WANTS EIGHTY FEET FOR HILLO STREET

Hilo Tribune.—The matter of the widening of Front street, in accordance with the agreement with C. A. Brown by which the County was given a twenty foot strip of the Brown property in exchange for the building of a sidewalk and retaining wall and for moving the buildings on the land back, occupied a great deal of the time at the recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors. Desha filed a report showing that it was estimated that the work would cost $2897. According to his plans the road would be sixty feet wide.

Magistrate.—Are you a friend of the prisoner? Buxton Witness.—No, I'm his mother-in-law.—New York World.

AMBITION.

There are two kinds of ambition—the noble and the ignoble. The ignoble sort seeks to prevail by sheer triumph of might over weakness, of wealth over poverty, of shrewdness over simplicity, of audacity over timidity. It never stops to ask what ruin is left behind in its path; it is like a heartless, conscienceless automobilist. It does not turn the head to inquire; it does not expend any mental or sentimental energy in sympathizing. What ever it may have overridden or under-trodden, it goes right on obliviously. A ruthless destroyer, impervious to pity or to any softer emotion, its way is paved with the bones and skulls of all that died to provide a pathway for its triumphant progress.

Even so Napoleon, for all the pomp and fanfare of military glory, must leave behind many a smoking ruin where once there was a home; must banish laughter and install lamentation; must leave prostrate in chilling rain what only a little while ago was upstanding in the sunlight. To such a conqueror there must have come sometimes a sense of the cost, in blood and tears, of such dominion; pangs and terrors must inevitably have struck into his soul, like shooting pains, when he thought forward to the time after death when, men have supposed, even a conqueror must make an accounting and receive his just reward or his deserved retribution.

The reason why Oliver Cromwell or any other man is urged to fling away ambition is that so few can be led to mediately to the clubhouse, where we found our fighting clothes for a few moments practice and an effort to become accustomed to the grass courts. It would be unfair to intimate that the turf courts handicapped us, as, in but one or two instances, each and every one played up to his best form.

THE MAUI TOURNAMENT

First Match Called.

Promptly at 9:30 a. m. the first match was called. Every available seat in the grandstand was taken, pretty girls handsomely gowned, predominating, while extra seats had to be placed around the inside of the enclosure to accommodate the overflow.

The opening scramble was between Judge Ballou and Page, of Honolulu, and Frank Baldwin and Thompson, of Maui. Thompson had the service, and as he posed for his delivery a hush of expectancy preceded his serve, every one on the qui vive as to who would score first. Straight and true the ball passed the net and hit in the right-hand corner of Ballou's court.

The Judge made a gallant effort but slightly misjudged the bounce and his return struck about an inch from the top of the net. A howl from the Maui rooters accompanied the scoring of first blood. The Honolulu team played at top speed, Ballou lobbing excellently and Page scoring many points on his service, but Maui gained steadily throughout, winning the entire series, the final score standing Maui 18, Honolulu 3.

Steere and Hemenway Win.

In the meantime the visitors were imploring Steere and Hemenway on court No. 2 to play for all they were worth to cut down the commanding lead, and they responded nobly. Their opponents, Walsh and Lougher put up an excellent game but the Oahu team was out for blood and won the first two sets 6-2 and 6-2. The third was the most hotly contested of the match, the Honolulu team appearing to tire somewhat and Maui finally pulled it out 6-3. Total score, Honolulu 15 Maui 10.

With the score 28 to 18 in favor of Maui, Warren and Cunha came on court No. 1 to meet Myers and Nowell. This was by far the most interesting and closest match of the day. It was give and take from start to finish and at no time was there a difference of more than a few points separating the two teams. The Honolulu men started out with a rush and soon had the score 5 games to 1, and let up slightly in their play. It was a fatal error and by steady and plucky effort and excellent judgment Myers and Nowell tied the score at 5 all, and then won the eleventh and deciding game, giving them a lead of one game on the first set. Cunha and Warren took no chances in the second set, Warren smashing well at the net and "Sonny" repeatedly calling forth applause from the gallery by his beautiful placing and passes. Honolulu won this set 6-3.

The third and deciding set was a hummer. For each game that Honolulu would win, Maui would take another, until the set was tied at 4 games all. The ninth game was long drawn out, going from deuce to vantage and back again twelve times. On three occasions Nowell had an easy chance to win the game by a smash at the net but was unequal to the occasion. Cunha and Warren were steadier at the crucial stage of the game and won the last two games and the set at 6-4. Score: Warren and Cunha, 17; Nowell and Myers, 13.

Maui Still Six Ahead.

The total score now stood Maui 41, Oahu 35 and Cooke and Gee, who had drawn Foster and Collins, were urged to go in and tie the score, and they came to the scratch in great shape, taking the first set in a gallop, 6 games to 1. The Maui team braced for a short time in the second period, but the Honolulu men were too steady and won again by the same score. Cooke and Gee were evidently out for a record, and they started in with a rush taking four straight games with the loss of but three points. There was a short rally in the fifth game but it finally also fell to the lot of the Honolulu players as did also the sixth straight game. This was the highest score of the day, the Honolulu team scoring 18 points to their opponent's 2 and putting the visiting team well in the lead.

A short intermission was now declared, tables were spread in the enclosure and an elegant buffet lunch was served—the festive board fairly groaning under the weight of good things—fried chicken, sandwiches, salads, cake, iced punch and cold dishes galore were served by a corps of competent waiters. Arrangements had been made to accommodate seven hundred guests and at least this many were present. It was a most delightful interlude, the Maui band playing appropriate selections throughout.

Honolulu in the Lead.

Promptly at 1:00 p. m., play was resumed, Honolulu now leading by 53 to 43. On court No. 2 Bockus and Waterhouse met Miller and Rosecrans. The Maui rooters besought their champions to do or die and they went after the Honolulu representatives with both feet, taking the first two sets 6-3 and 6-2. Bockus is always at his best in tournament play but the turf court seemed to take the steam out of his strokes yesterday while Waterhouse did not appear to get started, being out of condition from lack of practice. The Maui team had determined to tie the score and soon had the third period by a score of 5 games to 1. Here Waterhouse and Bockus put up a last despairing effort and by really clever work won two consecutive games, bringing the score to 5-3. It was their last chance, however, the Maui team taking the ninth game and the match by a total score of 18 to 8.

As can be seen this would have tied the score, but in the meantime Captain Low and Anderson were playing the game of their lives against Lindsay and Turner. Low's service was seldom returned and Anderson's net play was of the spectacular order. This being the deciding and final match it was apparent that all men were a trifle nervous but it did not affect the play of the Honolulu team in the least and game after game they struggled to overcome the lead that Maui was gaining in court No. 2. Lindsay for Maui put up an excellent game from the base line and Turner killed everything he could reach at the net, but it was the old story of steady, consistent work against brilliant and erratic strokes and Anderson and Low gradually forged ahead, taking the first set 6-2, the second 6-4 and the third 6-3.

Clean and Hard Tennis.

This finished the tournament play for the day and Honolulu was declared the winner by the narrow margin of nine points and the handsome silver trophy was presented to the Honolulu team for the season of 1909. The contests throughout were noticeable for good clean tennis and the result was always in doubt. The hopes of the adherents of either side would be alternately raised and dashed to the ground as their favorites would forge ahead or fall behind, the interest was at fever heat all through the match, the rooters for both sides vociferously applauding good plays and groaning at bad ones, but all in the best of good spirits and sportsmanship.

A delightful hop was given at the new clubhouse in honor of the visiting tennis players, commencing at 8 p. m. The ballroom was tastefully decorated with flowers and incandescent lights. Refreshments were served at 11 p. m., and the guests left at 11:30, in order to catch the train that left the gate of the grounds at this hour for the wharf.

In conclusion, the reputation that the good people of Maui have gained for open handed and unselfish hospitality is too well known to require special mention, yet it would be impossible not to refer in some slight manner to the elegant reception that was accorded, the many little courtesies that were extended to us, and the game struggle that the losers put up to retain the cup. Let us all toast our courteous hosts, plucky antagonists and congenial friends—the greatest proof of true sportsmanship and manhood is to be a good loser.

There was an unusually large congregation at the Christian Science services in Fraternity hall, Odd Fellows' building, yesterday morning. A solo by Mrs. Edna Kelley Scott added much to the service. The Territorial Medical Society held its postponed monthly meeting on Saturday evening at the office of Drs. Judd, Waterhouse and Baldwin. The principal feature of the meeting was the reading of a paper on the "Diagnosis of Leprosy" by Dr. Brinkerhoff, which was followed by a general discussion of the subject and physicians present reported on different cases in their practice. The business end of the meeting was brought to a close at 10 o'clock when refreshments were served.

Brother Matthias has been appointed by the Board of Agriculture and Forestry to establish a nursery in Hilo for trees. The Board sent him a trifle of money with which to secure a little lumber and wire for a fence, but all the work of turning up the soil, digging, trenching, planting and caring for the young stock has to be done by himself as he has not a dollar with which to pay labor. In a few years time, when the trees are grown, they are to be distributed free of charge in Puna, Hilo and Olaa.—Hawaii Herald.

THEODORE WORES, THE ARTIST, TO MARRY

He is famous for his fine Japanese pictures and has traveled a great deal in the Orient. Miss Bauer is the daughter of Mrs. Caroline Bauer and a sister of Chris Bauer and Captain George Bauer, naval militia. She has many friends here who will be interested in the approaching wedding, but the date for that event is not yet announced.

EXPERIMENT STATION COMES TO AID OF AGRICULTURISTProblems Facing Growers Are Being Solved by Federal Scientists--Pineapple Troubles
Diagnosed and Obviated.

Without blare of trumpets, quietly and unostentatiously, a work is being carried on at the United States Agricultural Experiment Station in Makiki that promises to accomplish wonders for Hawaii. The earnest band of scientists, brought together by the Federal government, is working steadily with test tube and retort, pick, shovel and cultivator, to find just how Hawaii's soil can be made the most productive, and the wealth and fame of the Territory thereby increased.

There is no problem too stubborn for the devoted party of scientists to tackle, and there is no letup in the work until the puzzles have been solved, and the knowledge blazoned forth to the world.

Located here in the middle of the vast Pacific Ocean, is a group of islands more fertile than any like area in the known world. Nature covered the islands with verdure fit for an Olympian garden. But modern civilization demands that the trees and shrubs shall be wealth-producing. When new territory is opened up, the first question is, "How can we raise the cereals, fruits and vegetables, demanded for the commerce of the world?" It is just this question that is being answered at the experiment station.

One of the important problems to which the scientists at the experiment station have turned their attention, is the production of the mango on a commercial basis. Though in tropical countries that luscious fruit has long been noted as one of the choicest gifts of nature, but little has been known concerning the best methods of propagation, and the tricks resorted to have been cumbersome and not always successful.

The successful growing of the mango from the seed alone was long ago demonstrated to be an impossibility. No matter how fine the fruit from the parent tree, the new growth from seeds taken from that tree is liable to be far from choice. Obviously some method of grafting or budding had to be resorted to.

In India for many years this difficulty has been overcome by the method known as inching. A potted tree, of known variety, is placed in close proximity to a thrifty seedling tree, the bark of the potted tree is abraded, an abrasion is made in the bark of the seedling, and the two wounds are bound together. Within a short time the two trees grow together. Then the choice tree is severed just below the place where it is joined to the seedling, and the seedling is cut off immediately above the joint. The result is, that the upper part of the seedling has all of the good points of the known tree.

Though highly successful as far as individual results are concerned, this method is entirely too clumsy to make it be commercially practicable, and obviously some other way of improving the mango fruit had to be discovered.

It was upon J. Edgar Higgins, horticulturist at the experiment station, that the task of working out the problem fell. The horticulturist tried several means of grafting, with greater or less success, until he concluded to attempt a modification of one of the oldest methods of budding known. A piece of "bud wood," cut from the limb of a mango tree of known variety, is secured. The seedling which is to be budded is prepared, a T-shaped opening is cut in the bark, a piece of bark containing a bud is cut from the budwood, inserted beneath the bark of the seedling, and the whole is bound together.

When the bud has become well established in its new home, the part of the seedling tree above the bud is cut away and soon the result is the same as that secured by the clumsier method.

Repeated experiments have demonstrated that this method of budding is eminently practicable, and through the efforts of the horticulturist, the mango tree can be made to produce known varieties of fruit with as great certainty as can the orange or other citrus trees.

Another branch of agriculture which the Experiment station has taken up, and one of even greater immediate importance to the Territory than the development of the mango, is the study of the pineapple.

Just one year ago, in response to inquiries from pineapple growers, the government decided to make some experiments along lines which the cultivation of the pineapple in the Territory had demonstrated to be necessary. W. P. Kelley, a chemist connected with the Department of Agriculture, was sent over to solve some of the problems then facing the growers.

Kelley started to work at once on a practical basis, securing a piece of land in the Wahiawa pineapple district for his tests. The first puzzle to be solved was why pineapple plants, grown in the black soil at Wahiawa, turned yellow. Then also it was necessary to ascertain what might be done to improve the yield of fruit in the red soil. The red earth, in its virgin state, produced perfect fruit in satisfactory quantities, but subsequent crops showed a decided falling off. Obviously, some treatment of the soil was necessary.

The prevailing impression among the growers was that the black soil was sour and that lime or some basic fertilizer was necessary. But both chemical and field tests failed to show that such was the case. But the chemical investigations did disclose the fact that the black soil contains a very high percentage of manganese, and that it is this substance which is largely responsible for the yellow color in the pineapple plants. Careful examinations were made, and it was ascertained that each sample tested contained from ten to fifty times as much manganese as did specimens of red soil.

Manganese has long been credited with being a plant stimulant, but the experiment work at Wahiawa has demonstrated that it may often over-stimulate a plant, by so increasing its normal activity that the chlorophyll of the plant becomes oxidized or bleached, hence the yellow color.

The application of an acidic fertilizer, which contains large amounts of readily available plant food, seems to overcome this. The experiment station is undertaking to ascertain the fundamental reasons why this takes place, what the influence of the manganese is on the other constituents of the soil, its nitrifying power, and so forth. While the work has not reached completion, it is safe to say that the black soil may be treated in such a way as to render it exceedingly fertile.

The black color of the soil is not caused by the humus which imparts this color to soils elsewhere, but the manganese. It may be safely stated that no such extensive areas of this soil, as are to be found in these islands, exists anywhere else on the face of the globe.

Fertilizers were applied last September.

GRAFTING BY APPROACH.

ber, but the results did not begin to become patent until the warm weather set in. Then the fruits of the experiments began to show themselves.

The chief characteristic of the fruit in the black, unfertilized soil, is the pinkish color, and the fact that it is sour and devoid of flavor. On a piece of this soil where fertilizer has been applied, the plants are yet somewhat yellow, but the fruit is normal and the production is estimated at about ten tons to the acre.

On the red soil each subsequent planting has resulted in a decreased harvest. Largely on this account the experiment was undertaken. Results indicate that the liberal application of high-grade fertilizer will materially increase the growth.

But the experiments now indicate that fertilizers will not serve as a panacea for every pineapple ill. The pineapple plant is notoriously sensitive to adverse physical conditions in the soil. The soils here contain large percentages of ferrie-hydrate, which, together with the clay in their composition, enormously increases their water-holding power.

In the times of heavy precipitation, which are frequent in the Wahiawa district, the soil becomes thoroughly saturated with water, and this water is

DOCTORS
FAILEDLydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said nothing would restore my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, Box 299, Willimantic, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

tenaciously held and prevents nitrification. This brings about a condition which pineapple plants can not endure.

In many of the fields which are made up of red soil, there are found plants which turn redish color and die. This is especially true of fields which have been cultivated for some years. Mr. Kelley has found that these plants are surrounded by water-saturated soil.

The continued cultivation of pineapples on this land has been found to hasten the oxidation of organic matter in the soil, and with the depletion of organic matter. The soils containing such high percentages of ferrie-hydrate are soon reduced to a state where drainage is greatly interfered with.

Moving water is not detrimental to pineapples, but stagnant water soon brings about the death of the plant.

A series of experiments is now being planned with the view to securing better drainage. That the growers have recognized the necessity for improving the drainage, is evidenced by the introduction of open ditches at short distances in the fields.

It is believed that the perfection of drainage systems, together with the introduction of more organic matter, will bring about a better condition in the soils.

Proof of these contentions has been secured in the experimental patches, for on the better drained portions, fertilizers which are proving of little value on the poorly drained stretches are showing fine results.

Experiments are soon to be commenced whereby leguminous crops will be introduced. These will be plowed under, and in this way the organic matter in the soil will be materially increased.

In many instances, pineapples have been planted in the soil for eight or ten years, and in the meantime no organic matter has been added. Furthermore, the old plants have been carefully drawn from the land and burned. Thus the soil soon degenerates into poor physical condition.

The station is also experimenting on the influence which various treatments of the soil may have on the flavor of pineapples.

In connection with these tests, a series of experiments is being carried on to ascertain what other crops will grow in this soil. It is the intention to make practical demonstration from which the grower can draw his own conclusions. It is the intention to rotate pineapples with corn and other crops, thus enabling the grower to produce his own fodder for his live stock, and at the same time improve the condition of his soil.

These are but a few of the experiments that are being carried on at the experiment station, and it is safe to say that, by the time the work is completed, the world's store of pineapple lore will have been greatly increased.

IMPROVEMENTS AT
M'GREGOR'S LIGHT

Maui News.—Lighthouse Engineer A. Richley arrived in Wailuku Monday evening with a corps of assistants and has been at work since at the lighthouse at McGregors. Mr. Richley was met at McGregors Wednesday by Lieutenant Houston, who came to McGregors on the U. S. L. H. tender Kukul.

The lighthouse will probably be removed to higher ground and out of the dust from the road that so much interferes with the light now being seen at a distance. Mr. Richley is having water tanks erected for the lightkeeper.

VIGOROUS OLD AGE

Even ruddy-cheeked youth is not more beautiful than the mature vigor of healthy old age. This, however, is not seen so often as it should be, partly because many persons mistakenly suppose that weakness and ill-health are inseparable from ripe maturity of years.

Yet in the majority of cases feeble old persons require nothing but the simple, natural treatment afforded by which acts by increasing the appetite, aiding digestion and putting more iron into the blood. It has neither the taste nor smell of cod liver oil, but is as pleasant to the taste as a superior table wine. It is as valuable to old persons as to young ones and many of its most remarkable effects have been achieved with the aged. Get it at your chemist's and be sure you get STEARNS'—the genuine.

San Francisco Inspectors Are Charged With Illegal Acts.

That the inspectors at San Francisco are acquiring undeserved wealth at the expense of Hawaiian pineapple planters, is the charge made by the Hawaii Herald. The August 12 issue of that paper prints the following account of the action of the San Francisco officials:

It has been supposed that fruit, fumigated in the Territory of Hawaii, is not subject to fumigation upon its arrival at San Francisco, but Hilo shippers have found that this is not the case.

When the Enterprise left here in June she took large consignments of fresh pineapples, all of which were carefully examined and fumigated in Hilo by Brother Matthias Newell, the official plant and fruit inspector at this port. After ample time had been given to ascertain the results of his work he found thousands of dead insects on the floor of the compartment on which they were fumigated and, being satisfied that all animal life was dead, he gave the necessary certificates to that effect.

It appears, however, that the certificates of the Hilo inspector were ignored by the San Francisco officials, the pineapples being again fumigated there at the expense of the Hilo shippers. This work is supposed to be done free of cost, but the Coast men at first declined to fumigate the pines at less than 25 cents a crate, finally reducing their charge to 15 cents when they found that the higher one would not be paid.

The net profit for the San Francisco inspectors amounted to more than seventy dollars, which may account for the fact that the local certificates were not accepted there. That it was a pure and simple piece of graft is evident from the fact that the charge first asked, 25 cents, was lowered to 15 cents, for had it been a regular official straight fee it could not have been lowered.

PRINCESS ALICE TO MAKE BALLOON ASCENT

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, daughter of former President Roosevelt, has become an enthusiast about aeronautics. Her attendance upon the trials of the Wrights' aeroplane is almost constant and now, it is said, she is determined to make a flight herself, not in the aeroplane, though it is said she even expressed her willingness for that, but in a balloon.

A. Holland Forbes, of New York, acting president of the Aero Club of America, who is now in the city, has promised Mrs. Longworth to take her up. Mr. Longworth is said to have accorded his permission, Mr. Forbes having made the promise contingent upon the husband's consent that she undergo the risk that balloon traveling involves.

CAPTURED COLORS TO BE RETURNED

PARIS, Aug. 6.—A striking account of how the captured colors of a well-known British regiment were discovered by a young Briton in a museum, purchased by him and restored to the country from which they had been missing almost a century is told in the "Mac."

The story is to the effect that the flag, which was the King's color of the Princess Charlotte of Wales' (Berkshire) regiment, was captured by the French troops under General Donzelott, Governor of Corfu, during an unsuccessful attack delivered by the British troops who were besieging that stronghold. Among four flags taken by the French was one bearing the regimental number of the Berkshire regiment, embroidered in gold on a red ground, and surrounded by a laurel wreath.

When the English arms finally prevailed and General Donzelott withdrew he took with him this and other trophies of his spirited resistance, and from heir to heir the Berkshire flag descended, until finally it came into the possession of M. de Ricard, a grandson of a former Governor of the Ionian isles. Some weeks ago, according to the "Mac," a young Englishman by the name of M. J. Jeffcock, son of an English officer, visited the chateau of Azay-le-Rideau, in the Touraine, which is now turned into a museum, and which was formerly under the curatorship of M. de Ricard, the same to whom the flag had descended. One of the first things which caught the eye of the visitor was a couple of flags with a ticket bearing the inscription "For sale." He recognized one of the flags as a King's color and inquired the price.

"Six hundred francs," was the reply, the attendant adding at once, "They were left here in pledge for that amount."

A bargain was struck at once on those terms, the other flag being a flag of the Netherlands, showing the red lion of Nassau on a yellow ground. The fact that the colors were permitted to leave France had occasioned some comment at the time, but an inquiry set on foot by General Picquart, minister of war, established the fact that M. de Ricard was within his rights in disposing of what was undoubtedly his own private property.

The King's color is to be restored to its regiment, an inestimable boon when it is taken into consideration the value which is placed upon a stand of colors in the British service. When a regiment loses its colors by capture another stand of colors is not issued to it, except under extraordinary circumstances, as a reward for some peculiarly distinguished service. As the chances of the original colors being restored are exceedingly small, an episode such as the one recorded by the "Mac" is a peculiarly welcome one.

DICKENS AND DIET.

Dickens is the novelist of the meal. No other writer, pile he up never such lists of delicacies fit for Lucullus, has the gusto in describing humble feasts which gives the very reader an appetite. Thackeray, for all his "Ballad of Bouillabaise," never touched the hem of his garments in the recording of meals. Who that has read them can ever forget, for instance, Mrs. Gamp's directions to the chambermaid for her nocturnal refection, or the tea which awaited Joe Willett and Dolly on their return to the locksmith's dwelling on the occasion of Miss Migg's final rout, or the unassuming meals recorded in "David Copperfield," or the more pretentious feasts in "Pickwick," not forgetting the leg o' mutton "swarry" to which Mr. Weller was invited by the elite of Bath footmen? And has not every reader of "Martin Chuzzlewit" allowed a tender smile to curl his lips over the evolution of that incomparable pudding, in the preparation and consumption of which such damage was done to John Westlock's affections? So go and read—and acquire your appetite.

Little Pat—Pa, th' pa-aper do be sayin'. "Among th' prizes of th' musee'm c'lection ar-re a number of un-iques." What's a un-ique, I dunno? Big Pat—A un-ique is an English baste, had cess to it, wid only wan horn. Ye'll not go to th' exhibishun!—Cleveland Leader.

Army and Navy News

Should Fort Ruger ever be besieged, the garrison hemmed in and food supplies run short, there is opportunity so long as the water supply is not shut off, to raise many necessities of life within the great crater of Diamond Head on the northerly slope of which the splendid Battery Harlow, comprising eight mortars, is located. Within the crater is more than a hundred acres of land, where the soil is far richer than that of the surrounding country. For centuries the silt has worked down to the bottom of the crater, the floor of which is about on a level with the outside level land. This rich soil, if cleared, would be suitable for sugar cane, fruit trees, pineapples, vegetables, etc. All that is necessary is an ample supply of water. For years a Hawaiian lived within the crater, in a little shack which was built of small boards and oil cans, laboriously carried from the outer world over the lip of the crater and down into the bottom. A pond of water, formed by rainfalls, supplied him with the means to raise vegetables and bananas.

During the construction of Battery Harlow, the army engineers bored a tunnel through the crater from a point near Harlow, on a slightly up-grade, which now opens out into the crater. This is to be utilized for carrying the electric telegraph lines, over which are to flash the orders which will direct the firing of the mortars, the officer directing the fire being stationed on the apex of the crater lip, facing the sea. Through this tunnel, water is to be carried in pipes. Should necessity arise, that hundred acres of rich soil in the crater could be utilized for raising much garden truck.

Sixteen Pacific Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 2.—Realizing that the two ocean fleets of sixteen battleships is a thing of the distant future, the Navy Department has before it a tentative plan of sixteen first-class armored cruisers for the protection of the Pacific Coast.

The plan is the outgrowth of a desire of the Secretary of the Navy to whip the first-class cruisers into fleet formation along the lines adopted for the battleship fleet. Concentration of this cruiser force in the Pacific is considered possible of accomplishment by April or May of next year.

Rear Admiral Sebree, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, is ready to start for the Philippines about September 5. This fleet is expected to arrive back on the Pacific Coast late in March or early in April. This will bring in line eight big first-class armored cruisers, namely, the Tennessee, Washington, California, South Dakota, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Colorado.

In the meantime the armored cruisers North Carolina, Montana and New York, which are now due at Provincetown, Mass., from Mediterranean waters, will have had ample time to undergo any repairs they may have needed and be well under way for the Pacific. This brings the number up to eleven, with the problem of finding five more available ships. It is explained that four of these vessels probably will be the Brooklyn, St. Louis, Charleston and Milwaukee. The commander-in-chief of the fleet can select the most available of the remaining armored cruisers to complete his full fleet.

The fleet thus organized would not be homogeneous, it is admitted, but would in many respects be as homogeneous as was the Atlantic battleship fleet when it was first organized under Rear Admiral Evans. With the fleet of sixteen cruisers formed on the Pacific, war games, maneuvers, strategy and tactical problems could be worked out under a progressive and competent commander-in-chief, preferably one who had served on the battleship fleet and had gained all the information obtainable from the hard drill which this fleet has been put through.

This, at least, is the plan looking to the bringing of the armored cruisers to the same high point of efficiency as the battleships.

Of the sixteen cruisers, the North Carolina, Montana, Tennessee and Washington all have 10-inch guns, while the others are equipped with 8-inch rifles, except the Charleston, Milwaukee and St. Louis, which have 6-inch guns.

"Dishonorably Discharged."

Probably no condemnation strikes deeper in military and naval circles than the endorsement "Dishonorably Discharged" across the face of an enlisted man's papers. Six members of the Marine Corps at Camp Vero, having been courtmartialled for various offenses, have been dishonorably discharged from the service, and will be sent to San Francisco, where they will pass out of the corps. Four others have received prison sentences, three for eighteen months each and one for two years. One of these is La Valley, the marine who held up a small Portuguese boy on the public street one afternoon and forcibly took a $10 gold piece away from him. For this offense he was given a ninety days sentence by the civil authorities.

To Remast Colorado.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 29.—The cruisers Tennessee, Washington, Colorado and Pennsylvania will spend from six to eight months at the Puget Sound yard next year, during which time "haystacks" masts will be installed fore and aft on these vessels. According to officers here the contracts will call for six months, and it is likely that eight months will be consumed in making the change. The new style of mast consists of a high conning tower, constructed of a framework of steel tubings. On top of the mast is a platform for the officer who communicates with all parts of the ship by telephone. Every tube making up the mast contains a telephone wire, so that the mast would have to be entirely shot away before communication would be broken.

Sutton's Brother Hazed.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Five West Point cadets, four of whom are said to have been connected in the recent hazing of Cadet Sutton, a brother of the late Lieut. Sutton, will be sent to their homes this week, according to a special received here, to await final action by the President and secretary of war on the recommendation that they be dismissed.

Cadet Sutton was attacked by a number of third-class men robed white sheets, it is said, and when he captured two of them was set upon by a relief party armed with tent poles and so badly beaten that, with the exception of one day, he has not been out of the hospital since July 20. He is reported to have informed the board that he could recognize none of his assailants. The case has been the subject of a special investigation, a report of which was recently made to the superintendent.

Paul Jones Damaged.

SEATTLE, August 4.—A special cable to the Post-Intelligencer from Skagway, Alaska, says that the torpedo boat destroyer Paul Jones, which left Seattle July 26 with the flotilla of six destroyers for a cruise in Alaskan waters, was carried out of her course and onto a hidden reef by the tidal currents in Peril straits, 35 miles north of Sitka, early yesterday morning, and reached port today in a sinking condition.

The destroyer, which is in command of Lieut. M. S. Davis, was going at three-quarters speed when she hit the rocks. The boat ran high out of the water and nearly turned turtle. Men were thrown from their hammocks and several were badly bruised by their fall. Two holes were punched in the starboard bow of the boat and the propeller shaft was badly bent. The boat was hung up on the reef for a short time, but the rising tide lifted her off. The pumps were kept going constantly to keep her afloat, and by the use of collision mats she was able to limp into Skagway several hours behind her consort. After making temporary repairs the Paul Jones left here tonight with the other boats of the flotilla for Juneau.

A recent writer on cold baths directs attention to the fact that cold produces heat. The sudden application of cold to the skin, he says, stimulates the heat centers to greater activity and the tonic effect spreads to the whole nervous system. In certain physical conditions this is most beneficial, but not in the nerve exhaustions of hot weather, where the aim should be to soothe and not to stimulate. Those who take numerous cold baths in summer merely add to the draft of the furnace and produce more heat to bother and exhaust them.

SOCIETY

Chronicle.—The wedding of Miss Henrietta Walker and Lieutenant John Stuart Williams, United States Army, took place last evening in the chapel at the Presidio. The bride party included Mrs. Eugene B. Walker, as maid of honor, and Captain John Lacey, United States Army, as best man, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Morgan. The church ceremony was witnessed by a large number of the intimate friends of the bride and groom and the service people from the post, but at the reception which followed only the relatives of the two families were present. Lieutenant Williams and his bride sail on the Sheridan for Honolulu, where the young officer is to be stationed.

Chronicle.—Miss Wilhelmina Tenney of Honolulu has returned to town after a brief visit at Tahoe. Accompanied by her mother, she came up from the islands a few weeks ago, and since her advent in San Francisco has been having a thoroughly enjoyable time. She is an enthusiastic golfer and automobilist, and her sojourn at Tahoe has been replete with pleasure on the links and in the beautiful country surrounding the lake. The Tenneys brought their own machine, which Miss Tenney handles with great cleverness and dash. She is a girl of charming personality, and has the brilliant coloring and reddish gold hair which is irresistibly attractive. At the conclusion of her visit in San Francisco she will go on to Newport News, where she will christen the new Matson Navigation boat, which will be launched there next month.

S. F. Bulletin.—Several of the most prominent members of the smart set will sail on the Korea for Honolulu, on pleasure bent.

Among those who have answered the call of the tropics are Mr. and Mrs. Remi P. Schwerin, Mrs. Henry Foster Dutton, the Misses O'Connor, Mrs. Julius Kruttschnitt and Miss Rebecca Kruttschnitt.

The Kruttschnitts' stay in San Francisco has been all too short, and they have been forced to refuse invitation after invitation. It is to be hoped that they will remain in the city longer on their return from the islands. Dainty little Miss Kruttschnitt entertained a few friends informally at luncheon at the Fairmont hotel on Monday and was a picture in her smart gown of dark cloth and chic chapeau. She carries herself with the air of a true Parisienne and her costumes are always "chic" in the true sense of the word.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kruttschnitt Jr. are guests of the Fred Pickering's, but contemplate leaving in the near future for Mexico, where they will reside.

Examiner.—Miss Rebecca Kruttschnitt, who is at the Fairmont with her mother, Mrs. Julius Kruttschnitt, is being besieged by her friends owning beautiful country places out of town. Their stay in town is of short duration, for they are waiting the return of Mr. Kruttschnitt from Mexico. In the meantime, however, this charming girl is greatly perplexed over the endless invitations that have come to her since arriving a few days ago. Miss Kruttschnitt was hostess at a beautiful luncheon on Monday at the Fairmont.

Chronicle.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. Goar, their daughters Erna and Helen, and their guests, Miss Helen Macfarlane of Honolulu, Miss Edith Lowe, Miss Houghtaling and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith, made up an automobile party who spent the week-end at Aetna Springs.

Call.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. Goar, with Miss Erna and Miss Helen St. Goar, who are passing the summer at Ross, have been enjoying a series of motor trips this season. Those who have been guests at the St. Goar home during the past months have been delightedly entertained out of town. The St. Goars were at Aetna Springs recently on an automobile trip and were accompanied by Miss Alice Macfarlane of Honolulu, Miss Houghtaling, Miss Lowe and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith.

Examiner.—Mrs. Henry Foster Dutton elected the Burlington Club for her handsome luncheon of yesterday afternoon and extended her hospitality to Mesdames C. V. Berger, Remi P. Schwerin, William G. Hitchcock, Max Rothschild, the Misses Alice Macfarlane and Maud O'Connor.

Call.—Miss Constance Cummings, whose engagement to Ensign George H. Joerns, U. S. N., was recently announced, will be married in January. Her delicate blonde coloring is a decided contrast to her sister's brunette beauty, but she, too, shares the artistic temperament of M. Earl Cummings, the distinguished sculptor. Ensign Joerns is attached to the U. S. S. Colorado.

S. F. Bulletin.—Captain and Mrs. Pourie, U. S. A., have as their guests the Misses Sadie and Caroline Murray at their quarters at the Presidio. These charming visitors, daughters of General Murray, have many friends here and have been constantly entertained in an informal way.

BUILDING IS LIVELY IN HILO.

Hawaii Herald.—Bridge street is booming along in the building line. Captain Fitzgerald has plans prepared for a two-story building next to Lillie's warehouse and work will be commenced on it as soon as carpenters can be secured. Treasurer Lalaka is putting up a two-story building with stores next to the Fitzgerald property; J. U. Smith has nearly finished a large two-story building with six stores facing on Bridge street and three on Richardson street, with twenty-one rooms upstairs. Some of the stores have already been rented. The two-story building for the Haili church is nearly completed, and predictions made by many people that Bridge street will develop into a retail section of the town seem about to be verified.

M. S. Cambra and M. Gonsalves, the two picnickers charged with selling liquor at the Peninsula picnic without first securing a license, had their cases continued again. Wednesday they will be heard in court.
