

GOV. G. R. CARTER IS MUCH WORSE

DISCOURAGING REPORTS OF HIS CONDITION OF HEALTH SINCE THE EARTHQUAKE SHOCK—WOULD HAVE BEEN BROUGHT BACK AT ONCE HAD THERE BEEN A STEAMER COMING—NOT LIKELY TO RESUME OFFICE.

Mail reports were received by the Alameda to the effect that Governor Carter has had quite a relapse, and is in a much more serious condition than he was a couple of weeks ago. The date of his resuming the executive office is believed to be considerably further off, if not off altogether.

The excitement and hardship attendant upon the great earthquake are the cause of the set-back, according to letters received. The Governor was in Monterey when the shock came, and though he had considerably improved and might have been able to return here in a month or two, he was still an invalid. The terrible shock, followed by days of excitement and confusion, had a disastrous effect.

The whole purpose of Carter's trip and stay at Monterey was to secure rest, and the earthquake of course ended all vacation features of his stay. After the quake, plans were discussed to leave at once for Honolulu, but there was no transportation available.

The Governor is less likely than ever, it is said, to resume his official position. In fact it will take a long rest to work a cure in his case.

SHOT LOCK OFF OF SPRECKEL'S HOUSE

A MEMBER OF THE CADETS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA WRITES ABOUT HIS EXPERIENCE WHILE ON DUTY IN SAN FRANCISCO—SHOT THE LOCK OFF THE SPRECKELS HOME IN ORDER TO ENTER.

A letter was received in this city by the Alameda from W. R. Volkmar who is a second lieutenant in the cadets of the University of California who were ordered to San Francisco to assist in the work of keeping order. The letter was in part as follows:

"We were ordered to assemble on the campus at 11 o'clock on the morning of the earthquake in heavy marching order. We were to provide ourselves with one hundred rounds of ammunition and rations for two days.

"As soon as we had gathered we were started for the ferry on the double quick. We reached there and were taken to the city. We arrived in time to see the Palace and the Call buildings go. We were taken to General Funston who gave us our orders. He addressed us and stated that he realized we were but young yet but he had no doubt but that we would do our duty. We were ordered to shoot to kill if the occasion should arise. We were instructed as regards looting and passing of lines. Most of the boys were stationed about the city to preserve order.

"When it was necessary to destroy the residence of Mrs. Spreckels by blowing it up I was told to take 10 of my men and clear the house of its occupants. We approached the front door and Mrs. Spreckels came to the door but as soon as she saw who we were she slammed and locked the door in our faces. Well that didn't stop us very long for after warning her, we shot the lock off and went in. After we had cleared the house of the servants the magnificent structure was blown to pieces. This may sound like wanton destruction but I tell you it had to be done or the city would have been burning yet.

"We got back to the campus on the 24th. We are now patrolling our own campus while the girls are feeding the refugees. Daggoes are here enough and to spare. A large number of the students have left for home.

"Nearly all of the boys have a queer adventure to tell. One boasts that he shot the lamp off of the Mayor's automobile before the Mayor would slow down while going through the city. Say is you don't believe it has been a strenuous life you should see our pretty uniforms. They look like they had been through a fire alright."

SHOCK WAS FELT ON THE BAY

T. M. KELLEY WRITES TO HIS BROTHER OF HOW THE SHOCK FELT ON THE BAY.

J. W. Kelley, who is stopping in this city on his way to the Orient, received a letter from his brother T. M. Kelley, who was on a ferry boat crossing to Oakland when the earthquake came damaged the city. Mr. Kelley tells the story as follows:

"I was crossing to Oakland after my night's work when the shock came. I could not imagine what the trouble was for suddenly the boat began to rock violently and then to pitch as if in a heavy sea. I rushed to the side of the boat and was amazed to see the waters boiling up as if they were heated. They seemed to writhe and to shake the boat with their fury. There were no high waves however. I asked an officer standing near me what was the trouble and he said: 'I do not know unless it is an earthquake.' The captain of the boat ordered all steam crowded on so that he might reach the Oakland ship. He said afterwards that he was afraid that a tidal wave would follow and swamp the boat. The ferries continued their run however after we landed.

"Another noticeable thing was the noise. From the city it sounded as if a battery had broken out in an engagement. Every now and then there was some loud report. It was not long before one could see columns of smoke arising which told of the coming of the fire which was to prove so disastrous."

CAPT. SAUNDERS LOST EVERYTHING

MASTER OF MANCHURIA RECEIVED NEWS FROM HIS FAMILY TELLING OF THEIR ESCAPE.

Captain Saunders of the S. S. Manchuria received details today on his arrival from the Orient of the devastation done by the fire in San Francisco. Captain Saunders says that everything he and his family possessed was destroyed. All of his wife's medical instruments and medical library were destroyed.

Mrs. Saunders and daughter were fortunate enough in meeting with Col. Sanborn of the Burlington route who took them to Elmhurst away from San Francisco where they escaped being exposed during the first night following the disaster. Mrs. Saunders is a physician and surgeon and she is now doing effective work in caring for the injured.

Acting under the decisions of the United States Supreme Court, Attorney General Peters this morning withdrew the exceptions in seventeen fishery rights cases. SUPERVISORS' POWER AFFIRMED

SUPREME COURT HOLDS THAT THAT THE BOARD MAY PROCEED WITH THE IMPEACHMENT OF KEKAUOHA—THE WRIT OF PROHIBITION IS DISSOLVED AND THE CASE WILL PROCEED BEFORE THE COUNTY BOARD.

The Board of Supervisors have a right to impeach a district deputy sheriff. This was settled by the Supreme Court this morning, after argument on the petition for a writ to prohibit the Board from hearing the Kekaouha case. A temporary writ was secured last week by Achil, counsel for Kekaouha, but this morning County Attorney Douthitt made a motion to have it dissolved and after argument the motion was granted.

Achil's petition turned upon two points, first that a district deputy sheriff is not a "county officer" and therefore cannot be impeached under the provision authorizing impeachment, which refers to county officers, and second that the petition asking for the impeachment and removal of Kekaouha did not bear the names of 25 voters of his district, as required by law.

Douthitt made a return to the writ in behalf of himself and the members of the Board. After hearing argument the court ruled without leaving the bench. It denied the petition for a permanent writ and dissolved the temporary writ, thus leaving the way clear for the supervisors to go ahead with their impeachment case, and settling the fact that the Board has powers of impeachment over the district sheriffs.

The supervisors are to meet tomorrow evening and will probably take up the Kekaouha matter then.

HOW THE CHINA RECEIVED NEWS

PILOT CARRIED THE NEWS OF THE BURNING CITY TO THE S. S. CHINA.

The following is from a San Francisco paper dated April 21 and speaks of how the news was received aboard of the S. S. China:

Captain Daniel E. Friele, master of the Pacific Mail steamer China, which is now discharging at Long Wharf, tells of the feeling of horror that was experienced by himself and his passengers when on Friday night they drew near to the Farallones and saw the terrible glow of the flames shooting up over the hills of the Presidio. Even before sundown of Friday the ship's passengers had noticed the pall of smoke that drifted fully a hundred miles out to sea and speculation was rife as to the cause of the phenomenon.

Then when the pilot boarded the boat near the jagged rocks of the Farallones the news spread through the ship like wildfire: "San Francisco is burning. The city is destroyed."

Many of the China's passengers were San Francisco people who had been looking forward to the morning when their friends would welcome them at the Pacific Mail dock. These unfortunate knowing not the extent of the disaster and having the red glow in the east to lead them on to the worst of fears, spent the night in pacing the deck and wringing their hands.

At two o'clock the ship slipped through the Golden Gate and she seemed to be riding on waves of sparkling Burgandy, so dyed was the water by the reflection of the leaping flames. It was not until Lime Point was rounded that the full scope of the scene burst upon them. Then from the deck of the steamer they saw the red tide that swept up through the spine of the hill along Pacific street and the North beach district. They saw the flames leap hundreds of feet from the spires of doomed churches and the roofs of the palatial homes in the aristocratic quarter of town. It seemed as if the roof of the pit had been removed and that the ocean voyagers were looking at the fiery rim of hell itself.

One passenger whose home was on Van Ness avenue where the flames seemed to be raging the fiercest, became hysterical and tried to throw herself into the water, as if to swim ashore and fly to the loved ones whom she knew to be in danger of their lives. Two of the women passengers had to be locked in their cabins to prevent them from doing themselves harm while in the fit of dementia induced by the terror of the scene.

LAST CONFERENCE WITH STACKABLE BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE AFTER IMMIGRANTS.

The Board of Immigration held an executive meeting this afternoon, with Collector Stackable, who leaves on the Manchuria this afternoon for San Francisco, en route to Europe after immigrants. The vessel was only a short one, and was devoted to a final discussion of the collector's plans. He expects to be away about six months. Stackable goes first to Washington and New York where he will make some investigations before starting for Europe and will secure credentials which will be of use to him. He will confer with President Roosevelt and Commissioner Sargent and others.

MANY SHOT

There are some black pages to the story of the San Francisco disaster. Many of them will never be told. Others will. The prompt and effective measures of the authorities in having all looters killed, at once, effectively prevented any wholesale attempts on the part of the thugs of San Francisco.

But there is still even a blacker page to tell. Private letters from San Francisco tell of shameful attempts on the part of human monsters to assault helpless and defenceless women. On one night alone in Jefferson Square no less than seven men were shot down for attempted rape of homeless women in the park. The daughter of one of the men went insane when she saw her father shot down.

ITALIAN FAMILIES FOR HONOLULU

DR. NOBLE ARRIVED IN SAN FRANCISCO AND ANNOUNCED THAT 100 SUCH WERE WANTED.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Three days before that of the earthquake Dr. E. Noble of Honolulu arrived in San Francisco in search of 100 Italian families which he wanted to send to Honolulu to work on the plantations about the city. He consulted with the Italian Commissioner of Immigration, E. Martin, at 628 Montgomery street, on the Monday preceding the disaster.

The fire destroyed all Dr. Noble's baggage and the personal effects which he brought with him, and he is now a refugee, located at 324 Telegraph avenue, Oakland. But Dr. Noble's mission has yet to be accomplished and he asks that Commissioner Martin communicate with him at the address given, that the Italian families may be rounded up and shipped off to the islands of the Pacific. It is hardly likely that the physician will have much trouble securing volunteers for the work from what used to be San Francisco's Italian colony.

PAUL ISENBERG ARRIVED.

The German bark Paul Isenberg arrived yesterday morning 281 days from London by way of Port Stanley, Falkland Island. She ran into a bad gale on October 22. Two lower topsails, foremast sail, mizzen staysail, and fore topgallant sail were slashed into ribbons. The seas swept over the vessel for days. The deck seams opened the tarpolins over the hatches were washed away and the water made its way below. There was damage done to the wheel gear. The upper topsail yards were broken as well as a mainstay. Rings on the hatches were torn out. The vessel was put about October 27 for Port Stanley where she remained until February 19, about three months and a half repairing. She has a general cargo for Hackfeld & Co. She has consignments of grain.

HE GAVE HIM A STONE.

A practical joker of New York City tells this story upon himself and declares that the experience cured him of his bad habit.

On my arrival at San Francisco, as a joke I sent to a friend of mine at home, well known for his aversion to spending money, a telegram, with charges to collect, reading, "I am perfectly well."

The information evidently was gratifying to him, for about a week after sending the telegram an express package was delivered at my room, on which I paid $4 for charges. Upon opening the package I found a large New York street paving block, on which was pasted a card which read, "This is the weight your recent telegram lifted from my heart."

HIS REASON.

Mary Twain at a dinner in New York was attacking Christian Science in his whimsical way.

"I only know of one convert to Christian Science," he said, "with whom I can feel any sympathy at all. I despise this man, but at the same time I can understand him."

"He came to me one day and told me that he had become a Christian Scientist."

"What? No more doctors?" said I.

"No more doctors. No more medicine."

PERCY HENSHALL TELLS OF THE DAYS OF TERROR

BROTHER OF GEORGE F. HENSHALL, WRITES A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE EARTHQUAKE AND THE FIRE AND TERROR WHICH FOLLOWED—POINTS OUT THAT PRACTICALLY ALL COURT RECORDS ARE LOST—THE DIFFICULTIES OF GETTING ABOUT.

The following are portions of a letter received by G. F. Henshall from his brother a San Francisco attorney:

April 22, 1906.

Dear George:—This will let you know that I am alive, but that is all. The office is burned to the ground, and the house in which I lived utterly destroyed. I moved nothing but the clothes I have on. I cannot speak positively about Alice, Elsie or Vera, but I am confident all are safe. Elsie is in Oakland, but exactly where I can not say; but I think I can find her today. She is, of course, safe.

I would have written before this, but couldn't do it; if you had seen what I saw, your pen would refuse to write. It seemed to create a sort of paralysis of the brain,—had forgotten the numbers on the streets, where my friends lived, even; but I am feeling fairly well today.

Perhaps you would like a slight description of the earthquake and fire, from an eye-witness, for I saw the whole thing from Wednesday morning until Thursday night, including all of Wednesday night. At 5:13 on Wednesday morning I was awakened from a deep sleep by a fearful detonation, accompanied by a rocking motion of the room, of an indescribable character—you could not stand on the floor, when you stepped on it, it wasn't there. I did not have time to get out of my room until it was all over; and then I stayed and dressed. There were two shocks; and the second one was a "punch."

When I got on the street, people were about, and in the district where I was, things were fairly in good order. The buildings had not suffered much damage apparently. But when I got down to the city, what a sight I saw. The City Hall dome had shifted about ten feet to the right, and seemed to stand on stilts; bricks were everywhere, stones and dirt covered the streets, buildings were half-down, and generally a ruinous scene presented itself. All this, however, was not so bad; the city had stood the shock; buildings were there, and while the loss of life and damage was very great, it was not half so great as might have been expected. It was bad enough, but it was a trifle to what followed.

Within ten minutes after the shock had passed, and while each was congratulating himself on his escape, fires broke out in over twenty-five different places. The water supply had practically stopped, and, of course, the fire department and all other departments struck together were inadequate to cope with such a situation. Not since the fire-age, nor since Dante dreamed his hell, did anyone see such a fire, as that one. It swept forward and onward, backward and around, through brick and stone, iron and steel burning, crushing, eating, leaping across streets, jumping over buildings, exploding oil tanks—it seemed to be commanded by a general superhuman sagacity. Very soon the city was under martial law, and you found it difficult to get around. Back fires were commenced, and parts of the city were dynamited by those who little knew their work. The effect of these explosions was to wreck buildings and distribute the fire to other parts. The work, if done right, as I later saw it, caused simply a collapse, and that two of several structures at once. I saw a back fire started in a house that must have cost $50,000 to $100,000. Very soon all of south of Market street was gone, the Palace Hotel simply crumbled away, the Winchester disappeared like magic, and the Call building, the supposed fire-proof structure, caught fire at the cafe, and burned down.

There is no use to describe anything further. You know the city, and you will understand the extent of devastation when I tell you, that it made a clean sweep from the water front south of Market to 12th street, cleaned out the entire water front, and that there is hardly one single building left in the business section of the city. Van Ness avenue on the east side marks the general west boundary and the entire section to the ocean is gone. The enclosed map which I send you will give you the general idea. It is only substantially correct, however; more should be enclosed, while the fire did not extend as far as Fillmore; it was stopped at Van Ness, though it included at the base an immense tract west, and in others it made dreadful incursions as far as Franklin. You will understand it is very hard to give the exact boundary, as the destruction was so complete, that you can hardly tell the districts. There is no use to describe further, you will receive the newspapers.

What I saw has horrified me, and jarred my nerves to a breaking point. Let me give you one or two of the things happening. In an iron foundry an explosion took place, a piece of white paper (supposed) was seen to fly up and come down. It was in fact a piece of white steel, and it struck a man on the head, and cut it in twain. A desperado was seen looting bodies, he was tied up to a post and shot, his body left on the street with a sign on it, as a warning to others. There were others.

I must admit, however, that some humorous incidents occurred. That in an attempt to save property, one person should lug a sewing machine, another take a ladies hat box, and another a bird cage, struck me as funny. How a piano was carried to the park was a source of amusement to those who saw it there, but you will recognize the wisdom of carrying a box of cigars. That a thin, tall flower glass could stand erect on its stand, whilst nearly everything else was wrecked, and that single crockery dish-covers could fly out of the shelf into a lower apartment, describing a half circle, leaving all others in their places, seems little short of miraculous. That a man could lie in bed, and the roof and one side cave in on him, and still get out unhurt, and that whilst one building was destroyed utterly, an adjoining one remained apparently undisturbed, so much so that on ascending to the sixth floor, a lawyer found that the only thing out of order in his office was the telephone, seems hardly other than a fairy tale.

The tragic part looms up however over everything, and the tragedy is on now. Rain set in last night, and it is raining now. What must be the condition of the thousands in the park, on the hill sides, in tents. There will be no famine, the food supply is ample and the authorities in handling the situation have exceeded the most sanguine expectations. The people behaved splendidly, and the police and soldiers admirably. Altogether the situation has been handled to a nicety. There is no praise too great for those who had charge of affairs.

I will leave you to understand this problem confronting attorneys when I tell you that every record and paper was destroyed. There are many others.

I succeeded on Thursday night in getting over to Oakland, after hauling with another gentleman, two trunks up Van Ness avenue for two ladies. How I ever did it, I don't know, but necessity seems to be the mother of strength as well as invention.

Poor Frisco! We've outdone all other catastrophes.

Let me hear from you. From your down and out but still in the ring Brother,

PERCY.

The New York assembly has passed a bill against the docking of the tails of horses. Since 1895 docking in Connecticut has been a crime, punishable by a maximum penalty of a year in jail or a fine of $300, but we suspect that on occasion this humane law is violated.—Hartford Times.

There is no lack of men whose nomination for Governor would be acceptable to the rank and file of the Republican party and who would command the confidence of the public. None but a man of that sort can hope to be elected. The situation will soon demand earnest consideration.—Utica Press (Ind.).

Fortunate indeed that the chicanery that was being practiced to beguile the public mind over the building of the battleship Connecticut, at the New York Navy Yard, has been lifted. And now that it is clearly shown that ships can be built in government yards, at least as cheaply as in those of private corporations—please, Mr. Congress, take notice.—American Marine Engineer.

The Rev. Dr. Slicer's opposition to the bill to banish betting from the New York race tracks appears to have called down upon his head very much the same sort of criticism as that which Bishop Potter met with when he undertook to establish a decent saloon. The idea in each case was to mitigate a recognized evil instead of undertaking the impossible task of crushing it out altogether. The Potter experiment failed, and the Slicer scheme seems likely to follow suit.—Boston Herald.

No Need For Hysteria

Among the first thoughts in thousands of minds in San Francisco and elsewhere, on the day of the great earthquake, must have been "I wonder how Honolulu fared?" It was quite inevitable that everyone who thought of the islands at all, must have conceived a mental picture of disaster,—perhaps the "disappearance" of the islands, the possibility of which the late lamented John J. Ingalls once urged as an argument against annexation. Other suggestions were of a tidal wave sweeping across the Pacific. In Honolulu itself, after the news of the quake was flashed here under the ocean bed, faster even than tidal waves travel, the idea that a few hours later would see such a result of the California quake entered many minds and it was perfectly natural. All over the world, with variations according to the density of the ignorance about Hawaii and her distance from San Francisco, there must have been speculation regarding Honolulu's fate.

Such thoughts and fears inevitably find expression in rumors. These start in a thousand different ways and there is absolutely no preventing them. In a time of such excitement as the country recently passed through they travel like wildfire, with gathering detail and added force of assertion. It will be remembered that in Honolulu the report was persistent that the "made" land of San Francisco had slipped into the sea,—it is traceable principally, perhaps, to a cable error, but in its most elaborate and most acceptable form, it was the Advertiser's carefully described theoretical account, with diagrams.

It is not likely that Honolulu has been injured by the publications made. Some of the yarns spread about the mainland were very sensational, but they did not deceive many newspapers of importance and did not deceive these for long,—a city which was cabling offers of aid and sympathy at the very time of these publications could hardly be thought by intelligent men to be sinking into the sea. The more attention the sensations attracted, the more strongly would be brought home the final news that there was nothing wrong here,—everyone who read that Honolulu was slipping into the sea would search his next paper for details of such a horror and thus receive information that there was no disaster at all here. The Associated Press account, which in the natural course of events went to practically all the big newspapers of the world, effectually disposed of any sensational errors or fakes. It let everybody know that the shock was a scientific fact, and no more, in Hawaii. As a matter of fact, Hawaii got a good "Ad" out of the whole business.

Incidentally, it may be remarked that the mainland press, as far as received here yet, is full of discussions of the fact that the shock affected the entire continent of America, and with discussions of the possibility of other shocks. The Washington Star, for example, has a long scientific article in which some learned savant undertakes to flout Promotion Committee by predicting that Washington will one day have a big earthquake. The San Francisco earthquake affected the earth's crust in such widely separated places as London, New York, Manila, Tokio and Honolulu, as is already known. Perhaps it will be found that the whole round globe "felt" it and then all Promotion Committees will be in the same boat and can devote themselves to more intelligent matters than becoming hysterical over wild rumors that are published in the newspapers, as they are spread from mouth to mouth.

Honesty The Best Policy

The suggestion has been made in this community, that the reason more is said in the San Francisco newspapers about the fire that followed the earthquake, in San Francisco, than about the earthquake itself, is due to a "don't hurt the town" conspiracy. The thought in the suggestion is that "any town is liable to have a big fire, but it will hurt the place if it gets an earthquake reputation."

An unbiased consideration of the circumstances, however, ought to convince, first that the pre-eminence given the fire over the earthquake is so natural as not to require the sinister suggestion to account for it, and second, that any policy of repression of the truth or of the details, or extent of the disaster, would be fatal to the purpose prompting it.

As to the first proposition, that it is perfectly natural that pre-eminence should be given to the fire, let it be remembered that the earthquake came at a time when most people were in bed. Practically every individual in the city was awakened by it, experienced the dread and terror of it in their waking moments, and by the time they came to a fully realizing sense of what it meant, its awfulness and its possibilities, it was over. Beyond the individual experience, and what each individual could see immediately around him, he had no way of knowing what damage was done. But so far as each individual was concerned, except as to the undoubtedly very few who were killed by the earthquake, he was safe, he did not realize that he had suffered any great loss. Going outside the building where he happened to be, all other buildings as far as he could see, were still standing. Other people were undoubtedly safe, for there they were coming out on to the street. If the earthquake had been the only catastrophe, infinite details of its effects on individuals and property would soon have begun to be collected and accounts of them put in circulation by newspapers, letters, and word of mouth, and the volume of it would have been stupendous.

But before this could be done the fire began. Before people had opportunity to learn or realize the loss and damage of the earthquake, fires had started in various parts of the city. Within a few hours the extent of and danger from the fire had entirely overshadowed in every mind, the terrors and damage of the earthquake. For three or four days the whole city was in the throes of a conflagration. They saw their places of business and of occupation, or their homes, burn before their eyes or blown up to stay the spread of the flames. It was the fire that drove men, women and children into the streets, and out toward the outskirts of the city, homeless, penniless, without food and without clothing. It was because of the sweep of the fire that hundreds of thousands went shelterless and hungry. It was the fire that separated children from parents and parents from children. It was during the fire that children were born, and that death came. Whatever sensations of alarm or terror the earthquake had given rise to, were forgotten in the agonizing hours, long drawn out, of the fire, and the destruction wrought by the earthquake was covered up and hidden by the damage done by the fire.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that it is of the days of the fire and not of the minutes of the earthquake that people talk, and write, and think?

It will be observed that in the letters written to friends here the writers dwell on the fire rather than the earthquake, though as to these writers and these letters, there can be no suggestion that Promotion Committees and "don't hurt the town" repression had any in-

Buence. The San Francisco papers devote more space to the fire than to the earthquake because it was the fire that immediately and directly created the conditions which give the catastrophe its appalling character.

The utter folly of any attempt on the part of the San Francisco newspapers to distort, or suppress the truth about the catastrophe is instantly apparent if it is recognized that almost everyone of the 40,000 transients in the city and the 400,000 residents of the city has become the author of accounts and descriptions of some sort, of the great catastrophe. Every one of them has friends and relatives elsewhere to whom accounts will be sent. Local papers in every community of the United States and the world, for that matter, are now, as here, publishing letters from the stricken city. Suppression is impossible. More than that, any policy on the part of the San Francisco papers which might legitimately give rise to suspicion of an effort to distort or suppress, would immediately give an authenticity it would not otherwise have, to every letter, or written account sent out through other than newspaper channels, no matter how crude, inaccurate or distorted such letters or accounts might be. It would give the stamp of truth to every oral account of the great catastrophe, that might be put in circulation, and to many minds the truth of these reports would be all the more certain in proportion as they differed and exceeded the newspaper accounts.

In the business of "promotion" as in other things, honesty is the best policy.

In fairness Coney Island ought to be given at least three months to get up a spectacle of "The Destruction of San Francisco."

Although the official reports give only one or two shot for looting, the unofficial reports give a good many more than that. The inference is that there were more shot than were reported.

If the sensational reports about Honolulu in connection with the San Francisco disaster, have brought Honolulu and Hawaii to the knowledge and notice of people who never gave us thought before, they will have done us

ORDERS ISSUED BY FUNSTON

INSTRUCTS SENTRY'S NOT TO INTERFERE WITH PEOPLE ATTENDING TO THEIR BUSINESS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—General orders, No. 27, headquarters, Department of California, Fort Mason, California, April 26, 1906.

Special attention of all commanding officers is called to the instructions contained in general orders No. 12, current series, Pacific Division, with reference to the duties of the regular troops. The conditions are believed to be such in San Francisco that the greatest latitude can be given to the movements of the people.

Sentries must be especially instructed not to interfere with people in their business transactions. They are to aid the civil authorities in the suppression of the unlawful acts, but not in any way to prevent authorized persons from reaching their place of business or parties whom the owners may authorize to be there. It must be made plain that the conditions now existing must approximate as closely as possible those that existed before the recent catastrophe in the city of San Francisco.

In case unlawful acts have been committed, such as robbery, looting or acts of that kind, the parties should be detained and turned over to the police who have authority to arrest and prefer charges against them under the civil law.

The impressing of any transaction of any person whatsoever or interfering with personal liberty are positively prohibited, and if discovered by any officer to have been done by any member of the regular troops that member will be brought to just punishment as violating the thirty-second article of war. By command of Brigadier-General Funston, S. W. Dunning, Military Secretary.

FRISCO BANKS ARE CONFIDENT.

The Bank of Hawaii received in the mail Saturday a letter from the Wells Fargo Nevada National Bank of San Francisco. The letter states that the vaults of all the banks seemed to be uninjured, but would not be opened for some days. The letter indicated the utmost feeling of confidence and said: "This calamity seems to have come at a time when our city is best able to bear it, business being in a sound condition and the prospects satisfactory. Wells Fargo Nevada National Bank is in an exceedingly strong position, having large cash resources on hand and especially heavy balances with correspondents east and abroad. The business men of our community are in buoyant spirits, filled with energy and with the determination in rebuilding our city, to make it stronger and more beautiful than ever."

THE AUTOMOBILE.

The Part it Played in The Late Disaster.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—That the automobile played an all but indispensable part in the saving of the western part of San Francisco, and at the same time has proved invaluable in the serious business of governing the city through its greatest stress is conceded by every man who has had his eyes open during the ten days or so that have elapsed since the earthquake. Old men in the broad lines, who had previously occupied much of their time in super-table denunciation of the whizz-wagons, now have nothing but praise for them. Men high in official service, who know best of all just how efficient has been the service of the gasoline and steam machines, go even further and say that but for the auto it would not have been possible to save even a portion of the city or to take care of the sick or to preserve a semblance of law and order.

"The auto has been the salvation of San Francisco," said a business man yesterday—a business man whose business is not the sale of automobiles.

RELIEF FUND

Contributions to the San Francisco relief fund in the Waialua district were as follows: Waialua, Wahee and Waikapu $718.75; Kihel $304.45; Puunene $291; Kahului $249.50; Total $1,463.70.

The local teams are all practicing hard and each manager and captain are telling their friends that they have a clutch. They all are passing out the kind of talk and only those who are on the inside know that they are sweating and losing their night's sleep wondering how long their aggregation will be anywhere near the lead. There are those who think they have figured out where the teams stand after watching the game of progressive ball played last Saturday. Some of these are due to receive a surprise.

For instance there were many players who have signed up with the different teams who have not put in an appearance at all. And there you are. Again did you realize that the different teams had nothing to win by winning last Saturday's game? There are other points which also might be added.

The coming season will be interesting from start to finish. Every game should be a surprise of some kind. The Punahou and Ohia will open the season next Saturday as they did the season of 1905. Get in line and watch the boys shake 'em up.

DAN MILLER'S GRIT WAS NOT FOR SALE

EDGAR MIZNER TELLS HOW MILLER SAVED THE WESTERN ADDITION AND NEARLY MADE $5.

"Have you heard how Danny Miller kept the fire from jumping into the Western Addition and almost made five dollars," said Edgar Mizner yesterday, at the Athenian Club in Oakland, as he slipped into a stout chair and pulled up to a table round which were gathered half a dozen millionaire refugees from the Pacific Union Club.

Nobody had heard the story, but everybody knew Danny Miller the quicktrigger man, the fellow whose finger lift was good for a thousand dollar bet with any bookmaker at Emeryville—before Miller turned sedentary and went into the sand blast business. The idea of Danny Miller falling so low as even "almost" to make a beggarly five was suggestive of humor.

The crowd agreed that it would listen to anything but a hard-luck story; it wanted Greater San Francisco or relaxation.

"I'll give you relaxation and a hero," said Mizner and he was permitted to proceed.

"I was doing patrol duty on Van Ness about eleven o'clock the night following the day we dynamited the East side of the avenue to save the great residence district known as the Western Addition. I had been up a few days and a few nights, and I was a bit tired. As I reached the corner of Van Ness and Clay I saw fire on the roof of the Gordon Blanding house—on the north side of Clay, three doors from Van Ness—and more fire on the roof of the cottage that adjoins the Blandings' on one side and the home of J. B. Stetson on the other. The flames were tiny—barely visible in the night; but I knew that if they ever got a start it meant that the whole waterless Western Addition was gone. Oh, for a ladder and an extinguisher and about a hundred pounds loss of tired flesh! I was all alone.

"But a second later up looms Danny Miller with a brisk 'What's doing?'

"I told him.

"Tell me what to do and I'll do it," says he.

"If that fire isn't put out the whole Western Addition will go," I said. "If we can get hold of some blankets or—"

"Before I had a chance to finish, Danny was breaking into the kitchen door of the Blandings and in a jiffy he was out on the roof armed with a couple of big sofa cushions. With these he smothered and scraped away the fire.

"Meanwhile the cottage was showing more red along the roof line, and I smashed into the rear of the Claus Spreckles residence and grabbed a couple of large flower pots full of water. Danny was now in the street again.

"Just the thing, he said, and soused the sofa cushions in the water-soaked 'em as you soak sponges. Then he got into the cottage and climbed out on that roof, and in ten minutes the fire was out and the Western Addition saved.

"Meanwhile J. B. Stetson and a couple of soldiers had joined me in the street. When Danny came down, Stetson could hardly speak of gratitude. "You've saved my house," he said as he wrung Danny's hand. "I can never forget it. I want your name and address."

"Danny said that his address had been burned, but that his name still stood.

"Mr. Stetson said: 'Mr. Miller, I want you to come to my house, here at ten o'clock tomorrow morning. You've done so much for me, and I want to do something for a few days. I want to give you five dollars.'

"And Danny said: 'I wouldn't rob even a rich man in times like this. I wouldn't take a thousand of your dollars. If you've got a took-pick or an old nail about your person, I'll accept it as a souvenir, but I'm not putting out fires tonight for money, thank you just the same.'

"That's all," said Wilson's brother, "except that—well, here's to Danny Miller the quick trigger man."

FRASER WRITES OF RELIEF WORK

HIS REPORT TO ATKINSON BEFORE TURNING MATTERS OVER TO MORGAN.

Acting Governor Atkinson has received a letter from E. A. Fraser, giving the latter's final account of his work as head of the relief bureau at San Francisco. The letter is as follows:

San Francisco, April 29, 1906.
Acting Governor A. L. C. Atkinson, Honolulu, T. H.
My Dear Sir: I include herewith my account of all money spent in connection with our work of the past ten days, bringing the same down to, and including, tomorrow, when Mr. Morgan may be expected to arrive and take over the responsibility. I will, of course, turn everything over to him, and will assist him in any manner that lies in my power.

The present expenditure, $298.05, I have met from my own resources, together with a $50 loan which I negotiated with the cable company, and if my account is approved, and you are willing to Mr. Morgan I will ask you to kindly instruct him to pay that amount to me. Mr. Peck cabled to me that Mr. Alexander would advance me $500, but I have not approached him on the subject as I very much doubt his ability to meet such a draft. The banks, both here and Oakland, have not been opened since the fire, and the only money obtainable is that which happened to remain in individual pockets on the fatal morning. The great number of business houses, regardless of their size, are unable to pay off their own employees and many a wealthy man is borrowing a dollar here and there as he best can. Most fortunately, I had my Tuesday's cash receipts in my pocket, and I have pulled through to date. Credit has had no value; only the hard coin goes.

Samuel and Eva Bruckner go forward to you by today's S. S. Alameda, the company accepting my order on you for passage money amounting to $30 for two half-fare steerage accommodations. This is the only order or draft of whatever nature that I have put out. I enclose, herewith, clipped advertisements which I have run in all of the San Francisco and Oakland dailies, and the larger one in the Oakland and the one of interest to you and indicate the Francisco papers. Also a news clipping which has appeared in practically the same form in all papers. I have mailed 48 postal cards and written nearly fifty letters. I have received more than one hundred letters and postals, and have had more than two hundred callers. I include, herewith, fair samples of their lives. Mr. Morgan may value of your efforts. There has been practically no real suffering, supplies and shelter having been freely and promptly provided, there only remaining the discomfort attendant on a lack of ready money. Not less than a dozen of the native Hawaiian boys are being cared for at Idora Park, Oakland, having as they all maintain, the tenants $10 to be used in their behalf.

FRISCO SALVATIONISTS.

Adjutant Bamberg has received letters from Colonel French, in Oakland, saying that all the Salvation Army property in San Francisco has been burnt, but that all Salvationists are safe and well, although they lost all they had, even their clothes, in some cases. The Colonel says the Army has provided over 12,000 meals and 9,000 garments for the relief. Two women officers served out over 1500 gallons of milk. One day alone 1600 meals were served.

and it difficult to pry them away and ship them home. I gave one of the attendants $10 to be used in their behalf.

In explanation of the verbosity of my cablegrams I will say that a code has been out of the question. Mr. Peck cabled suggesting one, and a shipping man whom I interviewed on the subject promptly offered me $100 if I would allow him to use it when obtained. I doubt if one per cent of the codes remain. Even the contents of ordinary safes are in extremely doubtful condition, much being charred and worthless. My own safe, and it was a good one, too, was cooked to a turn, both in and out, and furthermore, the whole Statebaker Building fell over on top of it. Wouldn't that jar you?

I have never worked harder in my life; am eating like a truck-horse and growing fat.

With the kindest regards, and in hope that I may have the pleasure, for it is a pleasure of working with you again, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

E. A. FRASER.

MANY MEN WERE SHOT FOR LOOTING

DR. SMITH OF THE NAVAL STATION RELATES SOME INTERESTING THINGS ABOUT THE FIRE.

Dr. A. C. G. Smith, U. S. N., who arrived by the S. S. Alameda to relieve Dr. Rossier at the local Naval Station, was one of the first to reach San Francisco from the Mare Island Navy Yard and remained constantly on duty in that city until April 28, when the Alameda departed for Honolulu.

"I was in Mare Island," said Dr. Smith this morning, "at the time of the earthquake, but within a few hours was sent in a torpedo boat in charge of a relief party to the city. Subsequently Admiral McCalla dispatched all of the available men that he had at the navy yard to assist in the work at San Francisco. We received our information at Mare Island from the wireless station at Goat Island. The people at Goat Island could tell only what they could see from that place.

"The fire seemed to break out almost immediately following the earthquake. Had the authorities adopted heroic measures and blown up two or more blocks at first they would have saved most of the city, but this was not done. Only one building at a time would be blown up at first. For instance, a building next to a fire would be blown up in hope of saving the adjoining building, but the heat was so intense that it would leap to the building that remained.

"One brave act in particular occurred during the fire. I was on Van Ness avenue near Sacramento. A man was operating his automobile for the authorities. There was a quantity of dynamite in the automobile and the material was very valuable at that time, for it was being used to blow up buildings. His machine stopped close to a house that had been charged with dynamite and to which a fuse had already been fired. He turned the crank of the machine but the thing would not spark and the machine stood helpless. Unless the machine was gotten away from the proximity of the house the concussion from the explosion was certain to explode all of the dynamite in the auto.

He bravely remained at his machine until finally he succeeded in getting it to spark and then he rode away amid the cheers of the crowd that had stood breathless watching him. He got away from the building about half a minute before the structure collapsed with the discharge of the dynamite.

"A number of men were undoubtedly shot for looting. Orders were issued to shoot any caught looting. This stringent measure undoubtedly curbed the element that would have indulged in such work, for when it became known that any looters would be killed, such disreputable people took no chances. It will probably never be known how many were killed for looting. In my opinion the total of killed by earthquake and fire and those shot will not go over 700.

"The water front section was saved on two occasions by the powerful tugs which were in that section."
