U. S. FOREIGN POLICY.

There is published in San Francisco a free lance weekly paper called Arthur M. Eason's Letter. The man who thus relies upon an established individuality is perhaps the best general writer on the Coast. His comments on passing events are always logical and forceful, usually caustic and accepted by thousands as able and honest. Mr. McEwen has been treating the new and peculiar foreign policy that has for some time caused wonderment to radiate from Washington, D. C., U. S. A. Here are some of his remarks:

"The prevailing tone in this country toward the Republic of Hawaii is disgraceful because it is swaggering and cowardly. The Government of the United States has officially recognized the Government of Hawaii, and the latter is therefore entitled to all the immunities and privileges of any other sovereign power with which we have relations. We have no more right to interfere with Hawaii's internal affairs than with those of Germany, England or Russia. But Hawaii is small and weak and therefore it is safe to insult and bully her. * * * We have refused to annex the Hawaiian Islands. We exercise no protectorate over them. We have officially determined to let the little new Republic work out its own salvation. This may or may not be good policy; but such as it is, it is the policy adopted by the Cleveland government. The Dole government owes nothing to us. * * *

"We have a neighbor in the west who is possibly reserved by fate to give us a lesson or two in the utility, as well as the beauty, of modesty. I refer to Japan. About 20,000 of her people are in the Hawaiian Islands, and are debarrred from the suffrage because of the educational and property qualifications required by the Republic's constitution. Should Japan demand that they be given a voice in the government, and we should inject ourselves into the controversy—as we doubtless would, for we choose to assume a guardianship over Hawaii, minus the acknowledged responsibilities of guardianship—our obtruded nose would get a tweaking. It is our habit to look down with contempt upon Asiatics, and if Japanese laborers begin to come hither in considerable numbers, it is certain that we will set out to give them the same treatment as the Chinese have been subjected to. Japan—modern, victorious Japan—won't stand that."

"THE STAR is pleased to say it has the assurance that Honolulu will not be many months without an opera house."

"It seems a crying shame that a community like this should be deprived of mail for twenty-two days. This is the longest wait of the year, but there are others of eighteen and nineteen days."

"A LIKENESS of President Dole executed in the half-tone process will be the frontispiece of THE STAR's war book. The half-tone was made in Honolulu by Frank Clifford and is equal to foreign work."

"COFFEE is a standard product. In Hawaii the business of its culture is particularly inviting. The agreeable coffee of Kona already has a name and a fame abroad. The industry is now receiving the attention of skill and capital and is rapidly assuming the proportions of a great commercial feature."

"THE good roads of any country are its chief glory. Hawaii has them on most of Oahu. The thoroughfares in and about Honolulu are the pride of the place and the delight of visitors. In some of the districts on other islands considerable progress in this direction has been made. It is the purpose of the Government to make a special effort in thus encouraging and assisting the development of the country."

Timely Topics.

March 4, 1895.

The season for house painting has arrived and we are ready to supply you with the material for making old dwellings look like new. Our Ready Mixed Paints (Hendry's) are acknowledged to be the best ever used in this, or any other country. They have greater spreading facilities, retain their gloss longer and have better pigments than are in other mixed paints. There is more pure zinc and japan in ours and for that reason they make a better appearance on your house and retain the original colors longer than even paints mixed here. What has been the experience of others in using Hendry's Ready Mixed Paints should be yours. If they have satisfied your neighbor they should please you.

The C. D. Bryant arrived on the 4th with goods we have been waiting for. Stoves, Agate Ware, etc., that are in use by every one every day in the year. Our Stoves have given satisfaction and today they are to be found in two-thirds of the houses on the Islands. Wherever you find a stove bought at our store you find a happy family entirely free from dyspepsia and all its ensuing from bad cooking. We doubt if you can get a stove anywhere that will give the same satisfaction that one of our $5 "Pansy" or "Harj" will.

Wrought iron Hanging Lamps retain their new appearance longer and with less care than any other. Except in a room where everything is white the black will harmonize with any colored wall paper or any character of decorations. We have various styles at various prices. They have the celebrated B. & H. Burners, the sort that gives the best light and lasts a lifetime. The non-shrinkable tank sold by us will save you bother and money. It has certain advantages not found in ordinary tanks that must be recognized by everyone who has to store water for either irrigation or household use. The leading merit in a non-shrinkable tank is in the fact that in the drought season there is no possible chance for the tank to shrink and allow the hoops to drop off. They are made of selected seasoned redwood, grooved so as to retain water all the year round. The price of this tank is no higher than an ordinary tank and we keep all sizes.

The Avery Plantation Implements are undoubtedly the best things for sugar land cultivation ever brought to this country. Up on Hawaii they are used on nearly all the plantations and are giving perfect satisfaction as the following letters show:

OSOMEA SUGAR CO.,
PAIAIKOU, Feb. 25th, 1895.
MR. JOHN SOPER,
Honolulu, Hawaii.

DEAR SIR:—The Osomea Sugar Co. has now in use three of the Subble Diggers.

"I think these machines are indispensable for the proper cultivation of nations. We have never had an implement that would so thoroughly loosen the earth around the stools and put the soil in such condition that the air, moisture and fertilizer would so readily and so to the fine roots of the cane and the roots around them."

"I am glad to testify to the merits of these tools. The sugar land Disc Cultivators arrived too late for much use in the cultivation of the last young plant and ratoon, but I believe they will prove to be very useful and labor saving implements in Districts where cane is raised without irrigation."

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. W. GOODALE,
Manager Osomea Sugar Company.

The following from Mr. Geo. Ross, Manager of Hakalau Plantation, dated February 16, 1895, expresses the general opinion:

"MR. E. R. HENDRY, President and Manager Hawaiian Hardware Co., we use the Avery Subble Digger, Fertilizer Distributor and Cane Cultivator. They save labor and do all the work claimed for them. The Subble Digger I consider a particularly good implement."

We keep all of these implements and will be pleased to mail photographs to any person interested.

Phony.
Shortly before General B— of Ohio left to represent his country abroad he sold off most of his household belongings. Among them was a piano. A local music dealer went to see him about it.
"What kind of a piano is it, general?"
"Oh, it's a pretty fair piano."
"How many octaves has it?"

In the case of Clarissa E. Cummins vs. Mrs. Laukea and Mrs. Emma Nakulua, petition to have lease declared effective and valid for five years only, last named defendant has answered at length each allegation of complainant's and furthermore petitions a release from the suit.

In the case of John T. Waterhouse, et al., vs. Mary Rice, et al., W. W. Diamond filed today a demurrer to plaintiff's cause for suit. He alleges that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and that the complaint is ambiguous, vague and uncertain. He denies that there is reason to need the instruction of the Court, and that such instructions are needed by the complainants in any action now contemplated by them, and that no instruction as set up by the complaint is made necessary under the will. The demurrer was overruled, and Diamond then demurred to the ruling of the Court.

EXPORTERS OF KONA.

THE MAGNITUDE OF HACKFELD & CO.'S COFFEE BUSINESS.

How the Firm Fosters an Industry—An Expert—Storage—Choice Bag for Friends in Europe.

In visiting the great importing and wholesale house of Hackfeld & Company, a few days ago, a reporter for THE STAR found Wm. Walters, manager of the purchasing department, in the coffee storehouse. Hackfeld & Company are the coffee exporters. During the season they receive from Kona by every trip of the W. G. Hall steamer, several hundred bags of berries. With all the ramifications of their island trade, Hackfeld & Company have become identified with every industrial interest. For years the firm has been a sugar factor, next it became a heavy handler of rice. Now the house is known at home and abroad as the exporter of Kona coffee.

Mr. Walters was in the coffee trade in Europe before coming to Hawaii, and though he modestly disclaims it, is known here and elsewhere as a coffee expert. He said that Kona coffee, with the season just closed, was quoted higher in San Francisco. This is simply on account of the demand for a choice and superior article. All the coffee that reaches Hackfeld & Co. from Kona is carefully classified for the market. Frequently a bag is sorted. This task is at present accomplished by hand. In time it will be done by machinery. Many of the natives, Chinese and Japanese who pick berries aim only at quantity. Their absence of business acumen must be corrected by the exporters. It is here that the experience and judgment of the expert prove their value. The producers are deplorably lacking in foresight in the matter.

Kona coffee is excellent at the age of one year. At three years it is at its best. The age must be put on the green berries. Storage roasted coffee gradually loses both strength and flavor. By their ability to hold berries until maturity Hackfeld & Company establish for Kona a place as the peer of any coffee.

A picked bag to be sent to members and friends of the firm in Hamburg was shown to the reporter. The berries were as regular in size and as smooth as if manufactured. This bag has been in storage almost three years, and it will tickle most pleasantly the palates of the favored epicures of Hamburg.

Hackfeld & Co. fearlessly put capital into coffee, and are genuine promoters of the business. They deal directly with and assist planters. At one time the firm had on hand here 2,300 bags of green coffee, representing a very large outlay to them, and the consequent beneficial distribution of coin into local trade channels.

PETTY CRIME IN TOWN.

INTERESTING DATA FROM RECORDS OF THE DISTRICT COURT.

Total Number of Cases Last Year—Range and Proportion of Crime—Three Good Judges.

The total number of cases tried in the District Court during the year 1894 was 3481. Out of this there were 1499 convictions, or less than half. The sum of $8563 was realized from fines within the twelve months.

Of the cases brought before the lower tribunal during the year gambling takes the lead with a total of 805. Drunkenness follows close behind with 743 cases. Assault was 341; violating tax laws 319; selling liquor without license 251; opium 209; larceny 118; malicious injury 57; violating Sabbath laws 41; and cruelty to animals 13. There was one contempt of Court case.

The District Court had three judges during the year 1894. A. G. M. Robertson presided until he was made Deputy Attorney-General. Antonio Perry succeeded him, and is still Judge in that department. During the year 1894, however, Judge Perry was taken ill. W. L. Wilcox was commissioned assistant and for two or three weeks dealt out justice. Wilcox is said to have been a good one. His striking appearance lent an air of grace to the bench in the District Court. With Judge Perry presiding the court will resume work Monday morning.

Antonio Perry is a young man to occupy so important a post in the Government. He has proven himself, well qualified for the exacting position, fully meeting all the requirements.

"Peter" Was Despondent.
P. G. Camarinos, the fruiterer, seemed despondent prior to the sailing of the Arawa Thursday. Before leaving he requested THE STAR to make the following statement for him this afternoon: He had always been favorable to the present Government; the Republic with its present list of officials were endorsed by him. For business reasons, however, he could never think it advisable to express these opinions openly. His leaving the country would not lessen his aloha for the Republic and its officers. Camarinos has business interests here that suffer greatly by his absence.

Six baths for $1 at Ashworth's model barber shop, No. 80 King street.

A and C.
Two Companies that Will Join With B Next Sunday.

Company A, N. G. H., had drill and a short business meeting Thursday evening. The turnout was very good. Company B's invitation to turn out for parade next Sunday afternoon was read and, on recommendation of Captain Smith, was accepted. About fifty men will participate. Some of the uniforms are in poor condition, but the best will be made of it.

Company C will meet tonight, and will also turn out Sunday afternoon. Lieut. Costa has already applied at Military headquarters for permission so to do, and the same has been granted. This command will turn out forty or fifty men.

In Company A the vote on parading with B Sunday was unanimous. In this command Sergeant Bamberger and Corporal Smith resided. Robert Parker, the carpenter, son of Police Captain Parker, was elected and sworn in as a member along with E. J. Munbey.

Major McLeod will command the battalion Sunday and the drum corps will turn out.

NEW STREETS.
Allen to be Extended—Revival of a Popular Project.

The survey has been made for the extension of Allen street to Punchbowl. Hundreds of people will appreciate this improvement.

A street change often suggested is to be undertaken in earnest by interested taxpayers. This is the plan to have a clear passage along the water front between Brewer's wharf and the Oceanic dock. The way lies through the Allen and Robinson lumber yard. A meeting was held at noon today and the required petition will be in circulation tomorrow. Everyone who has business on the water front would be more than pleased to see this scheme carried out.

Will Not Be Idle.
L. J. Levey and wife will go to the colonies by the steamer carrying the "Gaiety Girl" company. Mr. Levey may turn his attention to the theatrical business while visiting relatives and friends in Sidney. In any event, he will be able to renew play-house connections and to get pointers up to date. Mr. Levey has been assisting with plans for the new Honolulu theater.

NIGHT TROOP OF FORTY.

ORGANIZATION AND WORK OF THE MOUNTED PATROL.

How Honolulu is Covered by Watchmen—A Perfect System—Making the Rounds.

"I am not a broncho breaker," said Ben Freeman, with an injured air, to a stableman of the town one evening a fortnight ago. Ben had just finished his third experience of a week with a fractions island pony. "I am a mounted patrolman," continued Freeman. "I am one of Watson's big Indians, willing to go into blood to the bridle reins. I am a patrolman from Petrolmen, and I want a horse that is a mind reader and knows his business." Freeman is one of the forty mounted men in the night patrol. Until last week they challenged all way-farers, inspected passes, and did a whole lot of sharp work and hard riding. Now they patrol beats at easy speed looking for crowds, fires and disturbances that they rarely find. The town is closed up like a box at night. But if anything unusual develops it is attended to with neatness and dispatch by the forty excellent riders who faithfully keep watch over the sleeping city.

This patrol is under the capable and discreet command of Captain R. L. Watson. There are four details, with Jim Sheehan, John Wright, Earnest Rankin and O'Connor "No 1" as sergeants. The town and environs are covered from Diamond Head to Moanalua and from the beach to the valley entrances. This is a big area when you come to think of it. So well are the patrols laid out in the four districts that every moving part of the company is a check on the other. If one man is a minute late in being at a certain point an inquiry results. Nothing can escape this system of watching. Nothing can approach or leave the beach without being observed. Parts of several beats are under water at high tide. In the Kakaako neighborhood Marshal Hitchcock has a detail of four footmen in addition to the mounted patrol.

Captain Watson invited a STAR representative to "make the rounds" last night. Cadet Upham, of the Philadelphia completed a trio. The news hunter turned in at 1:30 this morning with about half of "the rounds" yet to be traversed. Capt. Watson and Cadet Upham are probably going yet.

The start was made about 10 o'clock. It was a soft, warm night, with a bright moon, and the outing was delightful until the chill of the morning began to be felt. Everywhere the patrolmen were found to be on the alert. Several experiments to test the efficiency of the department resulted to the entire satisfaction of Capt. Watson.

The patrolmen are a jolly lot. Some of them join the force as much for the novelty and fun of the thing as anything else. They take the bright and dark, the warm and cold, the dry or damp nights as they come, reporting at 8:30 in the evening and being dismissed at 6 in the morning.

One of the details is milk-fed. Woodlawn Dairy gives the fluid without price and the feast of last night was an exceptionally damaging one to the stock in trade.

ALL LEAVE.
Batch of "On Condition" Travelers Leave the Land Quietly.

The Arawa sailed for San Francisco shortly after 6 p.m. yesterday. Captain Davies, C. W. Ashford, P. G. Camarinos, Harry Juen, "Pat Rooney," Carl Klemme, and Henry Von Werthern were aboard as political exiles. All were covered with leis except Rooney and Davies. Ashford was loaded with flowers; Carl Klemme was nearly covered up in the riches of the flower yard; all were in fine spirits. Mr. W. A. Kinney was also aboard, accompanied by Charles Warren and George Townsend. Both of the latter took heavy clothing to protect them in a colder climate. They calculate that San Diego will be their destination.

Representatives of the police department were on the dock, and a couple of officers went out on the steamer and returned in the pilot boat. None of the men leaving the country "on condition" hesitated in the least.

The ecclesiastical council called to advise in the instance of Rev. D. P. Birnie's resignation, met in the Allston Congregational church, with the pastors or representatives of only four churches absent, says a Boston paper. These were Dr. Gordon, Dr. Dickinson, Dr. Her-rick, and Dr. Clark, all of Boston. Rev. Dr. C. Calkins was moderator, and Rev. Noyes, of West New-ton, was scribe. Other clergymen of the Suffolk west conference, to which the Allston church belongs, were present as follows: Rev. Mr. Noyes, Somerville; Rev. Dr. Cut-ler, Auburn; Rev. F. H. Page, assistant pastor of the Union Con-gregational church, Roxbury; Rev. Mr. Campbell, pastor of the High-land church, Roxbury; Rev. Mr. Mendall, Boylston church; Rev. Dr. Thomas, Brookline; Rev. Dr. A. A. Burleigh, Brighton; Rev. Mr. Dutton, Newton.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Quint, the former pastor of the church, and Dr. Twombly were present, by request, although not representing any church. Ex-Senator G. D. Gilman, the Hawaiian consul, was also present, as the delegate of Eliot church of Newton.

The council advised the acceptance by the church of Mr. Birnie's resignation, and formally dis-missed him. Resolutions were drawn up, in which Mr. Birnie's past services were recognized in the highest terms of praise, and the best wishes of his brother pastors and laymen in the conference were expressed, with a commendation to the churches of Honolulu, particularly the one to which he was going.

A Notable Residence.
Washington Place was at one time the finest residence in Honolulu. It was built by Captain Dominis in the 'forties. It took him several years to put the finishing touches on it. He was a sea captain and brought paving stones, etc., from China in his own vessel. His wife was ambitious and wanted a fine house. Washington Place is said to have filled the bill. The premises were inherited by the son, John O. Dominis, who became the husband of Liliohalani. The house, though all of fifty years old, is very substantial.

A MIDNIGHT SIEGE.

A PAIR OF RATTLES TAKE POSSESSION OF TWO BEDROOMS.

It Was Not an Easy Job to Dispose of Them—A Man Who Knew When It Was Time to Wake Up—A Traveler Tells a Story of Terror to His Eastern Friends.

Well, it was not in northern Texas that I came up with an old schoolmate who has a wheat farm near the Palo Verde canyon. He was glad to see me, I suppose, because I was something from the East, and he invited me to spend a week with him. I accepted the invitation, but was one day called to the nearest town on business and did not get back to the farmhouse till late. Every light was out, and all the inmates had evidently retired, so I determined to gain my room without arousing them, if possible. Fortunately I found my window open, and without lighting a lamp I undressed and crawled into bed. But I could not get to sleep, and finally I concluded to try again as a soothing tonic, so got up and began to walk over to where I had left my clothes for my coat, in which I had put my finger case.

I had taken only a few steps when I heard the sharp whistle of a rattle snake. The sound is unmistakable, and I was aware that these creatures often creep into houses in that region, and sometimes show fight when an attempt is made to drive them out. I did not wait to investigate the snake's whereabouts, but I gained my bed without touching the floor at all, I believe. I must have awakened my hostess by my movements in coming in, in spite of my caution, for I now heard her sing out to her husband—her husband was next to mine with only a thin partition between—“Oh, John, there's a rattlesnake in Mr. Richardson's room. I heard him!”

I failed to arouse him, she called to him, and he came to see what it was. I thought that I did not. The lamp was a yard or two from me, and I had had to go without a light, for then I would not believe that I would have set my bare foot to the floor to have got one. But I did not say this, however, to the lady. There's never any in coming out of a room, and I would find it out soon enough. She wanted to know then why I did not get up and kill him. “Oh,” I said, “I do not object to his being here. She began to scream, and to try again to awaken her husband, but while I am firmly convinced he was wide awake, I am not sure that the rattlesnake would not come out of him.”

I then began to get mad. The sacred law of hospitality demanded that John should arise and face his guest's avenger of all horrors except snakes, as he himself introduced them from good spirits, and I said so. Mrs. John did not, however, view the matter in this light, and flatly refused to allow John to run this risk. John still taking no part in the argument, but, like Dr. or Butler, bent on saying nothing and “laying low.” In the meanwhile the snake had again composed himself for slumber, leaving Mrs. John and me to settle the thing as we might, until a mouse must have run over him in the dark, and we heard him sound his alarm, and the next moment a shrill shriek of agony proclaimed that the mouse had been crushed. This set Mrs. John off again, and she insisted that the intruder must be killed. “With all my heart, immediate,” I said emphatically. “Will you do it?”

This seemed her for a time, when John's snoring grew to be something horrible, and I heard of such fainting. My indignation now commenced to grow, and I could picture that mottled demon of the plains crawling toward me in the dark, stealing suddenly up, the leg of the bed on to it and—but here Mrs. John asked, “Mr. Richardson, are you going to kill that snake?” I took in every part of the situation and replied yes, if she would hold the light. To my surprise she said she would. And in another moment I saw a gleam of light in the next room, and the communicating door was thrown open, and Mrs. John, with an extra adornment of a gaily colored patch quilt over her shoulder, hung over the foot of her bed with a lighted lamp in her hand. The rays were thrown into my room, and by them I saw a monster rattler coiled up within three feet of the bed.

I slipped my hand under my pillow and secured the revolver I had put into the suit during my stay in the part of the country of never allowing to be away from me for a moment, and drawing it out I cocked it.

Here Mrs. John gave a new and special sort of scream—a woman is more afraid of fire than of anything else on earth—and said, “Oh, Mr. Richardson, don't shoot. You might kill John.” “If I could do that, madam, I would feel that I had not lived in vain,” I asserted in a steady, cold, heavy voice, but she persisted, for Mrs. John nearly fell back into bed with the lamp and my hopes of holding my apartment of my roommate. But she recovered sufficiently to sit up once more and hold the light in a wobbly, hysterical sort of a way, and I fired. The snake, which I did not hit, as I only wanted to make him lift his head so that I could dispatch him with a single shot, now furiously threw himself into a coil and raised his ugly head, and I aiming as carefully as Mrs. John would let me, fired again and sent the snake down with a bullet through his brain.

Ha, but what was that? From the next room, under Mrs. John's own bed, there sounded a second rattle like a note of defiance. And simultaneously John awoke with suspicious suddenness. I lay back with the happy consciousness of duty performed and drained the sweet cup of vengeance with it. “Arise, John,” I said in calm tones, “and slay this monster that has invaded your home,” and, I blush to say, he again so forgot the laws of hospitality as to aid his guest to hold his tongue.

Mrs. John had collapsed and could utter indistinct moans. John now demanded of me that I should throw him every object in my reach, which I at first declined to do, feeling drowsy, but at last consented, and showered boots, spurs and riding whips on Mrs. John's prostrate form. John gathered these up and in turn showered them under the bed. At first the snake refused to be dislodged, and like all of us, had only kept its temper would have remained master of the situation.

But growing angry under this fusillade it coiled and recoiled, striking again and again, until at last it came from under the bed to thrust forth its head at a boot. John seized his chance and gave it the contents of his revolver, which tore it all to pieces.—Philadelphia Times.

Veranda Glazed For Winter.
When the veranda—a purely American institution—was developed out of the English and continental terrace and the Italian loggia, it was accepted as more exclusively a summer necessity than the country house to which it was attached.

Sometimes, with the approach of winter the pleasant lounging place is not only abandoned, but it is relegated in the minds of its owners to the somnolent limbo of tennis flannels, mosquito nettings and other tropical accompaniments of rural life. As a matter of fact, the hundreds of people who live in the country all the year round ought to realize what a peculiarly fine sitting room for the winter an inclosed veranda makes. A few have arrived at this conclusion. But it is seldom that one meets with such a perfect adaptation of the idea as exists in a certain New England valley.

An Encouraging Practice Trial.

“I am to understand, then, Miss Plunkett,” said the young man, outwardly calm, whatever may have been the least part of passion that agitated his interior, “that this avowed is an unwelcome surprise to you?”

“I have never dreamed, Mr. Plunkett,” she replied, with cold and almost theatrical grace, “of the possibility of such a thing, and I beg that you will never renew the subject.”

“It would be needless to reopen the discussion, would it?”

“You could never look upon me in any other light than that of a friend?”

“No,” he said, and then with a visible effort at unconcern he said: “I have not been looking at the question, Miss Plunkett, but was there anything unpleasant or repellent in my language or in my manner of expressing myself?”

“No, sir. Under the circumstances, Mr. Plunkett, I have no objection to saying that you expressed yourself admirably. Your words were well chosen, and your manner, apart from that little incident, which I need not say I do not share—was unobjectionable.”

“Had you been at all predisposed in my favor, then, you could have listened kindly to me—and might—might possibly—”

“I think I may say yes to that,” she said, putting his evident embarrassment. “Yet—yet it made no impression on your affections, did it?”

“And it will never be of any use for me to ask you again?”

“Once again, Mr. Plunkett,” said the young woman coldly, “and once for all, no.”

“Then you won't mind my telling you, Miss Plunkett,” he said, greatly relieved. “I was indulging in a little playful parody with your friend, the children, Laura Bildebach. I am going there now. Good evening, Miss Plunkett.”—Chicago Tribune.

The Newspaper Mind Sight.

One of the curious traits of humanity that occasionally come under the microscope is the individual who is superlatively apt at spelling and pronunciation, and who discovers typographical errors in the newspapers and writes immediate corrections, handing them to the printer. In the best possible sense of the word, this is a newspaper mind sight. In a great newspaper during the intricate process of handling news and other matter in the briefest possible space of time, it will occasionally occur that a letter will get in upside down, or having fallen out of the forms in the handling will get back somewhere in the wrong place, and it will sometimes happen that a foreign word will take on the wrong gender for the English text, or that even a common English word will slip the keen eye of the proofreader. It is a keen knowledge of a line or paragraph from one article has actually sneaked into the middle of another article on a wholly different subject. Human ingenuity, then, the extraordinary power of handling news and other matter in the briefest possible space of time, it will occasionally occur that a letter will get in upside down, or having fallen out of the forms in the handling will get back somewhere in the wrong place, and it will sometimes happen that a foreign word will take on the wrong gender for the English text, or that even a common English word will slip the keen eye of the proofreader.
