Judge Gear yesterday rendered a written decision on the Wiley injunction. The demurrer is overruled and the motion to dissolve the injunction denied. Nine grounds for dismissing the bill were presented by the defendants and are taken up in their order by the court.

From a reading of the bill it is apparent that it states grounds of equitable relief. There is no doubt that a house is a nuisance, it being so declared by statute. Not only is the keeping of such a house a nuisance under our criminal law, but it is the same in the common law and "such a nuisance as will be enjoined in equity." Several authorities are quoted for this conclusion.

Defendants cited four cases, all from New Jersey, to support their contention that there was a "plain, adequate, speedy and complete remedy at law" to abate the alleged nuisance, and that therefore the plaintiffs cannot come into equity because equity will not grant an injunction where there is such a remedy. Judge Gear having examined these authorities concludes that they do not sustain the contentions of defendants. "They decide that in New Jersey an indictment is an efficacious remedy for the invasion of a public right and that courts of equity will in such a case entertain jurisdiction and grant a writ of injunction."

All of the New Jersey cases quoted referred to obstructions of public highways, which under the laws of that State are remediable by indictment against the person committing the offense. The law in New Jersey as to nuisances other than the obstruction of highways is the same as elsewhere. Out of the very same books from which defendants gathered their authorities, Judge Gear finds where an injunction was granted, equity, the court holding "that a business that causes annoyances that materially interfere with the ordinary physical comfort of human existence is a nuisance that should be restrained." Under this principle the permitting of blood and offal of animals to run or be deposited on the shores or in the waters of a bay, or on the premises, was enjoined by the court. Again it is held "that while there may be a remedy at law, as by recovery of damages, yet it cannot be adequately relieved by suits for damages, for the reason that it is continually recurring and will require continued and repeated suits and litigation, a preliminary injunction will be granted to restrain it."

Judge Gear says: "It will readily be seen that the cases cited by defendants do not in any way refer to such a case as the one at bar and are wholly inapplicable." He points out that the section of the penal laws quoted by defendants, to show a remedy at law, "applies only to such nuisances which can be abated by removal of the nuisance and it is clear that the Board of Health would not be authorized to remove or tear down the buildings herein involved merely because they had been inhabited by prostitutes."

The court quotes a New York decision on a case similar to this of Wiley, with the very same objection raised by defendant. There it was held that because the perpetrator of the nuisance was amenable to the provisions and the penalties of the criminal law was not an answer to an action against him by a private person to recover for injury sustained and for an injunction against the continued use of his premises in such a manner. "The principle has been long settled that the objection that the nuisance was a common one is not available, if it be shown that special damage was suffered." Several other authorities in the same line are quoted.

The objections that a legal cause of action for damages to property has been joined with an action in equity, and that defendants are entitled to a trial by jury on the question of damages, are considered together. Upon the principle quoted from the books, that the nature of an action, whether legal or equitable, is determinable from its main object, Judge Gear holds that in the Wiley case the main object is an injunction, an equitable proceeding. One of the authorities quoted by defendants is found to be directly against them, where in Minnesota the court expressly recognizes the right in an action in equity to join an equitable and a legal cause of action. To New York the court held that "damages may be regarded as merely incidental to a claim for equitable relief against the continuance of a nuisance." Another of the defendant's authorities from New York, is held in Romeroy's Equitable Jurisprudence to state a contrary doctrine to that laid down by the overwhelming weight of authority. It seems also to be overruled by implication in a later New York case.

Page after page is taken by the court to support its conclusion. It is shown that in New York the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment in an action similar to this, where the plaintiff sought to enjoin and restrain defendant from enjoying and retaining a nuisance and to recover damages.

But regardless of these authorities Judge Gear believes that the allegation of damages may be treated as merely one of the facts alleged by the petition to show how the plaintiffs were specially damaged. Plaintiffs, moreover, subsequently to the filing of demurrer had filed a withdrawal of claim for damages.

The objection that only twelve of the thirteen trustees of Kaunakapili church joined in the complaint is held to be without merit. A majority would have been sufficient.

The objection that the complaint was ambiguous, unintelligible and uncertain was not well taken and indeed was not argued by defendants.

The court treats the sixth and seventh objections as identical. They refer to the form of the complaint, particularly in its omission of a caption to show that it was an equitable action or one at chambers. The complaint is held to be sufficient, several authorities being cited for this ruling.

"The eighth point, that there is no nuisance which can at present be enjoined," Judge Gear says, "is absolutely without merit. The doctrine that because a nuisance had been enjoined and the defendants had obeyed the court, and that upon a return to the order it was said they were not violating it, that therefore the court would be deprived of power to make the injunction perpetual is as novel as it is absurd."

"The last contention, that the affidavit of A. B. is insufficient in form and substance upon which to grant or continue the injunction, seemed to the court at the time of the argument to be so devoid of merit as not to warrant even argument thereon." The court quotes at length from the affidavit and proceeds to say: "To contend that these statements do not show that the house is a bawdy house shows to what extreme lengths counsel has gone in attacking plaintiff's case, and how utterly without merit are some of the contentions in this case."

Judge Gear concludes thus: "Much time has been given the investigation remedy by injunction is a harsh remedy, and the court has looked into the question thoroughly. Upon such investigation the court is now convinced that it is bound under the rules of law and equity to overrule the demurrer of defendants and deny their motion to dissolve the temporary injunction heretofore issued herein, and said injunction will stand and continue in full force and effect until further order of the court. Demurrer overruled and motion to dissolve injunction denied."

Thomas Fitch for petitioners; Andrews, Peters & Andrade for respondents.

Other Court Matters.

Emily Alves has instituted divorce proceedings against Jose S. Alves, the Orpheum barber. In the petition the libellant alleges that the marriage with libellee took place March 21, 1901, in Honolulu. That libellee neglected and refused to provide suitable maintenance for said libellant, also the common necessities of life. It is also alleged that there are two children, one girl named Rose, aged four and a half years, and a boy named David, aged six years.

A petition has been filed with the clerk in re estate of Joseph Booth, deceased, in the matter of the widow's nomination for a trustee of the fund in court. The petition goes on to state that the widow of said Joseph Booth is entitled to a life estate in the hands of the clerk of the Judiciary Department amounting to $1837.50 principal, the same being part proceeds of land sold years ago belonging to her said husband. That $1800 of said sum came into the hands of the present clerk in the shape of government bonds handed over to him by his predecessor, the late William Foster. That the sum belongs to and is the distributive share of one Ida Booth, now the wife of George Patterson, residing in Honolulu, but petitioner alleges on information and belief that said share has been mortgaged to one Segelkin who has since left the Hawaiian Islands, and that petitioner believes F. A. Schaefer represents said Segelkin in the Hawaiian Islands. Petitioner prays a trustee be appointed and would nominate her son, Charles W. Booth, as a suitable and responsible person to be such trustee.

The ejectment suit of Kapiolani Estate, Ltd., vs. A. S. Cleggman has consumed one more day before Judge Gear and a jury. At the close of yesterday's sitting the case was continued over to 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Probate matters and divorce cases will be the order for today.

Judge Gear has appointed John Martins guardian of the person and estate of Hermann Potzoldo, an insane person.

James Love by his attorney, Thomas Fitch, petitions to be released from guardianship and that the guardian, J. A. Magoon, be discharged on final settlement of his accounts. It is set forth that since petitioner was put

GOVERNMENT JOBS GO A BEGGING

HELP IS WANTED BY UNCLE SAM

EXAMINATIONS UNDER CIVIL SERVICE HELD YESTERDAY
AT HIGH SCHOOL.

Seventy-Five Candidates Filed Applications—Several Young Ladies Try Their Hand—Scarcity of Material for Letter Carriers.

Who would like to be a letter carrier in Honolulu postoffice and thereby become enrolled in the ranks of the hundreds and thousands of employees of your Uncle Samuel, who is accredited as being one of the most liberal and agreeable employers all the world over?

Such a position awaits several able-bodied young fellows in this city if they will but avail themselves of the present opportunity. There has been a great scarcity of applicants for these positions in the governmental service.

Letter carriers are the only employees of the postoffice department who under the law cannot be required to work more than eight hours a day. The postal authorities are anxious that there shall be a sufficient number of persons take the examination so that there will be at least ten qualified for appointment by August 1. The educational requirements are not high and any youth or man of good moral character, between the ages of 18 and 45, and who has a common school education ought, it is said, to be able successfully to take the examination.

Out of the total applicants received only six took examinations for this branch of the service.

Examiner-in-Chief A. R. Serven of the United States Civil Service was a pretty busy man throughout the great "big examination" yesterday.

Applicants for positions under the government service which was held at the High School building.

The candidates for governmental plum were upon the scene at an early hour. An air of expectancy hovered about the school rooms.

In the list of applicants were men and women from almost every walk in life. Almost the entire force of custom house employees were present and took the examinations. A number of applicants were young men employed in various Honolulu business concerns who, hoping to pass the examination, would be enabled to secure a much better position under the United States service.

Several young ladies were included among those who pored over knotty problems between the hours of 9:30 in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Many an inoffensive pencil and penholder was severely chewed and horribly mutilated in the vain endeavor to conjure up an answer to a query which would assist in bringing the final percentage up to the desired point.

The examinations were conducted by Chief Serven, assisted by A. B. Ingalls of the local custom house and Z. T. Banks of the postoffice.

Those taking the examination include a considerable number of persons already in the government employ not only in the custom house and postoffice but in other branches of service. The rule in this regard is that every person appointed to a position within the classified service since June 13, 1900, unless appointed from the classified service must take an examination.

The list of applicants was classified somewhat as follows:

Postoffice, 4-carriers 6 and clerks 3.

Departmental clerks, 10.

Custom House service, First grade, 25; Second grade, 5; Third grade, 18.

In the miscellaneous classification were included: Railway mail service, 1; Printing pressman, 1; Compositors, 2; Immigration inspectors, 2; Chinese inspector, 1; Departmental assistant in Philippine Islands, 1.

The time occupied in administering the examinations greatly varied according to the studies taken by the applicant. All the way from four to six hours were consumed.

There were many amusing features connected with the examinations. As a rule the candidates approached the examinations with much fear and trepidation. As the strangeness wore off they tackled the various subjects fearlessly. Coats were peeled off and all attempted to make themselves as comfortable as possible.

A card reading conducted by Chief Serven was about the last proposition that the candidates for postal preferment had to face. The test consisted of twenty-five cards upon which had been printed a wide range of addresses, including surnames, town, county, state and street and number. The inscriptions were in imitation of a not very legible handwriting. No two cards contained the same handwriting nor were they in the same handwriting.

ing. The contestant was obliged to read the inscription, time and accuracy being counted equal in estimating the percentage. The time limit was placed at five minutes. Mr. Serven had a printed list of correct addresses before him and checked off the names as pronounced by the applicant. There was but one who failed to read the allotted addresses in the prescribed time. One of the essential qualifications for postal service is accuracy and dispatch in reading of all kinds of handwriting. Several young ladies tried conclusions with the puzzling cards, and they displayed considerably more proficiency than the young men.

The examinations will be resumed this morning. Applicants for government stenographers and typewriters will receive attention today. Persons passing this examination are guaranteed speedy appointment.

Opportunity will be given intending applicants for letter carrier service to take the examinations which have been continued over for another day. The need for letter carriers is imperative if free mail delivery is to be inaugurated by August 1.

Stretching Shamrock's Sail.

GLASGOW, June 27.—The Shamrock II. is expected to arrive at New York about August 15th.

The cup challenger took a sail stretching spin this morning, while the former challenger, Shamrock I, and the Karlad were sailing a match race of 43 miles. It was an ideal day for the purpose. The challenger attracted a lot of attention. She carried only her lower canvas and towed a small boat. Capt. Sycamore seemed to avoid anything in the nature of a trial of speed but during a couple of tacks the challenger found herself going in the same direction as the Karlad and overhauling the latter in a remarkable manner. The new mainsail of Shamrock II. set to perfection. Her immense pole mast when clothed has a most imposing appearance.

Shamrock I. beat the Karlad by four minutes in the first round, 12 miles, and won the race by thirteen minutes eighteen seconds. Mr. Herreshoff's Nevada beat her rival, the Tuffy, by 12 minutes and 40 seconds.

Trouble Not Over.

PEKIN, June 27.—Rev. Arthur Smith, missionary and author, preaching at Tien Tsin on the anniversary of the relief of that city on June 24th, said he thoroughly agreed with Sir Robert Hart in the statement that unless there was a complete regeneration of China in a few years, the country would be menaced by 20,000,000 Boxers. The Boxer movement was fully approved by the court.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—The Canadian cricketers, who reached yesterday, began a "ten days' match" with the home eleven today at Elmwood, this city.

YALE DEFEATS HARVARD IN A SPLENDID FINISH

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 27.—Yale won the University Boat Race. It was 6:25 in the evening when Referee Merkle passed the order for the whistle on the yacht Nushki to be blown as a signal for the rival eights to prepare. The pistol was fired at 7:15.

It was a start almost on even terms, Harvard possibly having a slight advantage. For three lengths it was stroke for stroke, 1/2 to the minute, Yale then dropped to 35, while Harvard went down to 24. The water was smooth, although there was a slight breeze from the southwest.

Before ten lengths had been raced it was seen that the race was to be a good one. Harvard had drawn away by a quarter of a length. The eights were rowing as one man. At the half mile it was Harvard by a narrow margin, a second and a fifth as to the time and still a quarter of a length as to distance. As the first flags of the course were passed, Harvard settled down into the best work of her race, and with a beautifully steady pull the Harvards sent their shell still further ahead. Yale, too, was rowing magnificently.

At the mile it began to look like Harvard. At this point Yale's spirit began to show itself, and a little more "go" appeared in the New Haven craft. Passing the mile and a half Yale lowered her stroke and Harvard followed. The crews hardly varied from 30 to 31.

When the two mile flags were passed Yale led for the first time in the race, but in the next half mile Harvard once more wrestled the lead away from Yale, and at the two and a half miles Harvard led by just two-fifths of a second.

The shells entered the finishing mile with beautiful water conditions. It was not until the three and a half mile flags were within halting distance that the Yale coxswain called on his men for a mighty effort. Up went the Yale stroke. Harvard tried to respond and the men answered heroically. But Yale tore along in a style that was maddening and won.

The official time was, Yale, 23:37; Harvard, 23:45.

PATRIOTS RECEIVE REPRIMAND

Offenses Ranged From Bribery to Common Nuisance—Nagata For Larceny Second Degree Granted More Time.

Notwithstanding the almost universal expression of sentiment that Independence Day, 1901, was the quietest and most uneventful in the annals of history, and in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, a visit to the police court yesterday morning would have led the average spectator to imagine that the day had been one of exciting great joy, especially among those in search of enlivening stimulants.

The docket contained nearly eighty names. Drunkenness and gambling made up the major portion of the extended array of offenders. The petty cases were closed off at a merry rate. Court was held both morning and afternoon. Shortly after 4 o'clock Judge Wilcox breathed a sigh of relief and closed down the justice dispensary for the day.

Verily the police term "common nuisance" covers a multitude of sins. Five ardent patriots became entangled with the provisions of Section 239 of the penal laws which prohibits the exploding of fireworks on the streets of Honolulu Fourth of July, and in consequence thereof they were lined up before the district magistrate with the charge of common nuisance booked opposite their respective names. T. J. Fitzpatrick, Henry Kapelle, John Yates, W. S. Hughes and A. Anderson pleaded guilty to the charge and upon solemn promise that the required copy of the Honolulu back ordinance would be placed in their car, Ah Po, a recent Jehu, was released with a reprimand.

Thos. Tilton was assessed a fine of $25 as a recompense to outraged justice by his assault upon a man named Vincent.

The grievances of the Naylor family were brought before the light of publicity by the action brought by Mrs. Naylor against Mr. Naylor for assault and battery. The preponderance of testimony showed that Naylor had displayed evidences of considerable roughness in his caresses upon his faithful spouse. The head of the family was fined $5 and $3 costs.

The Metcalf-Smith altercation was settled in court yesterday by the payment of a fine of $25 by the defendant Metcalf. Smith manifested evidences of much rough handling upon the part of his assailant.

C. Miller gave a pretty well-connected story of how he came into possession of the wheel of one McPhee. Miller was arrested upon a charge of purloining the bicycle. He denied the allegation in toto. Explanations followed and the defendant was discharged. McPhee now rides his rubber shod steed as of yore.

A nolle prosequi was entered against the name of H. McKee, charged with assault and battery upon Tozonaka, a Japanese. The subject of the Mikado failed to appear against the defendant, hence the nolle prosequi.

Kekio made a solemn vow through the medium of the Hawaiian tongue that in future he would be a good and loyal citizen of this territory. He declared that he would no longer make life a burden to his immediate neighborhood by loud and boisterous conduct. He was arrested several days ago upon a warrant sworn out by Hawaiian charging the defendant with assault and battery. The court hearkened to the plea of Kekio and he was discharged and a discharge fell to his lot.

Nishikai, an Oriental hackman, was fined five dollars for leaving his vehicle upon the public streets without being properly fastened.

Desertion was the charge entered against the name of Peter Manuel. A continuance was granted until July 8.

Kanara and Okamoto, booked for assault, were carried over for one day. Their cases will be taken from the docket this morning.

The sixteen gamblers of Chinese nationality who were dragged forth from Chinatown obscuring by Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth in his Independence Day raids were not ready for trial. The cases are booked for today.

Nagata, upon whose person was found a quantity of jewelry including some sleeve buttons, was given until Monday morning to explain matters to the satisfaction of the court.

As the array of "jags" were lined up in battle array they greatly resembled a belated portion of a fishing party which had been left out in the rain over night. In each instance the old familiar "Two dollars and costs" was pronounced by the judge. Among those who graced the scene with their presence were Messrs. J. G. Gross, C. O. Henderson, John Keefe, Tripp, Mark Hamilton, C. Jacobson, John Richard, Floyd alias Moriata, C. H. Carlito, Manuel alias E. Santos, Joe Correa, Wm. Mana, Yokada, C. Dilton, Dolan, Keawe, Joe Robert, Thomas, A. Anderson, Isima, Makahi, John Oliver, John Mason.

The following gamblers paid fines of $5 and costs and went their respective ways: Ah Chew, Pa. Wa, Loo Sum Chee, Ah Ka, Ah Look, Ah Foon, Ah Lee, Ah Chee, Chong Hung, Ah Tuck, Ah Soon, Ah Po.

Another Attorney Admitted.

E. A. Douthitt's application for license to practice law in this Territory made its appearance on the Supreme Court files only yesterday. About a week ago, however, the Attorney General designated the present applicant to prosecute criminal cases in the Circuit Court. Judge Gear declined to recognize the proposed new deputy coming before him in such irregular fashion without notice or commission. Mr. Douthitt's application is endorsed by J. J. Dunne, acting United States attorney.

A Son of Auld Scotia.

Mr. Thomas Holmum Lillie, a solicitor of Glasgow, is visiting in Honolulu. Mr. Lillie arrived Wednesday on the Aorangi from the Colonies where he has been for several months on business and pleasure combined. While in the colonies Mr. Lillie met A. Brown, the correspondent for The Republican who is traveling in Australia and brings cheering greetings from Mr. Brown to his friends here. Mr. Lillie is much charmed with Honolulu and will remain here for several weeks.

ATTORNEY THOMPSON ACTS HEROICALLY IN EMERGENCY

Frank E. Thompson the lawyer shared an exciting adventure, including a narrow escape from injury, with Geo. Wells, one of the best backdrivers of Honolulu, late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Wells, who is connected with the Thompson Hotel stand, was driving Mr. Thompson home after the day's court business.

The carriage was being driven out King street and on reaching Punchbowl street Jos. B. Atherton came up the latter street riding in his automobile. As the mare of Wells was a nervous animal, not yet familiarized with the horseless carriage, she shied suddenly. As the driver tried to pull her on the reins, he was thrown out of the carriage.

In the meantime Mr. Thompson, quickly realizing the situation, sprang out of the carriage and plucked the animal by the head. It was a struggle of several minutes he had to get the mare under control and, until the driver could alight and come to his help, Mr. Thompson had to exert his utmost strength. The two men ultimately subdued the animal and got her unhitched from the carriage.

The presence of Mr. Thompson prevented what might have been serious consequences. In the words of Wells, the lawyer's conduct was truly heroic.

Seattle Smugglers.

VICTORIA, June 28.—A dispatch from Seattle states that T. P. Hodgson and William Wilson were found guilty by a jury of smuggling 700 pounds of opium into the United States from this island. The case has been one of the most interesting of its kind ever known in the history of the United States customs service. During the spring the customs inspectors broke up the operations of one of the worst smuggling rings on the coast. They seized about 700 pounds of the drug in unstamped packages. A part of this was in an express wagon, which Wilson was driving at the time. Wilson was arrested and later Hodgson, who was alleged to be the leader of the ring. Their trial concluded on Tuesday evening.

One of the Chinese registration certificates issued by Roy Chamberlain, Collector of Internal Revenue, was picked up on the floor of the Judiciary clerk's office by George Lucas yesterday. SENATORS CHOSEN FOR CONFERENCE

Committee of Seven to Act in Conjunction

ARBITRATE EXTRA SESSION FUND

A DIFFERENCE WAS STRUCK BETWEEN HOUSE AND SENATE
ESTIMATES YESTERDAY.

Communications From the House Are of Conciliatory Tone—The Conference Between Both Houses Over Appropriation Bill Close at Hand.

The Senate met at 2 o'clock yesterday and, after a session of a little over an hour, adjourned until this forenoon at 10. The first thing on the program was the reading of the following communication from the House:

"I have the honor to inform your honorable body that the Speaker of the House has appointed as members on behalf of the House of a conference committee upon differences between the House of Representatives and the Senate on House Bill No. 4, Hons. C. H. Dickey, J. P. Macdonald and J. Monseratt, and requests the honorable Senate to appoint a like committee."

"Also that by a unanimous vote the following resolution was adopted by the House of Representatives this third day of July, 1901."

(Here follows the resolution by Mr. Dickey in regard to the legal aspect of the vote on the bill referred to, which has already been published in The Republican.)

(Signed) S. MEHEULA.

Clerk House of Representatives.

On motion of Mr. C. Brown, the communication was received and the chair appointed the following committee in compliance with the request: Messrs. Kanuha, Crabbe and Kahiliua. The clerk then read a second communication from the House, as follows:

"The amendments as proposed by your honorable body to House bill No. 2 by the Committee on Finance, entitled 'An Act making special appropriations for the departmental use of the Territory during the two years which will end with the thirtieth day of June, A. D. 1903.'"

(Signed) S. MEHEULA.

Clerk House of Representatives.

On motion of Mr. C. Brown, the Senate voted not to recede from its amendments and this of course brought things right up to the appointment of a conference committee by the President of the Senate.

However, before attending to this matter, a third communication from the House was read, as follows:

"I have the honor to transmit herewith H. C. R. No. 4 by Mr. Emmeloth, relating to a conference committee upon House bill No. 3 by the Committee on Finance entitled 'An Act making special appropriations for the departmental use of the Territory during the two years which will end with the thirtieth day of June, A. D. 1903.'"

"Upon your concurring therein, the members of such conference committee on behalf of the House of Representatives will be appointed."

(Signed) S. MEHEULA.

Clerk House of Representatives.

(Here follows the resolution, already published in The Republican.)

On motion of Mr. C. Brown, the resolution was adopted.

At this point, the Senate took a fifteen minute recess in order to allow the conference committee on House bill No. 4 to meet.

At the end of the allotted time, the President called the Senate to order and then announced the following conference committee:

D. Kalaokalani, of Oahu, chairman; Cecil Brown of Oahu, H. P. Baldwin of Maui, J. T. Brown of Hawaii, J. D. Paris of Hawaii, L. Nakapahu of Kauai, Wm. White of Maui, member at large.

Under suspension of rules, Mr. Kanuha then reported for the conference committee on Senate bill No. 4, stating that this committee had been unanimously in agreeing on a compromise of $17,000 for the expenses of the extra session.

On motion of Mr. C. Brown the report was adopted and at 3:16 o'clock the Senate adjourned.

Fine Commercial Example.

A custom somewhat in vogue among the large firms of the East will be observed by the firm of E. O. Hall & Son today. About forty of the employees of this firm will be entertained at the Peninsula residence of W. W. Hall. This is indeed a happy way of showing appreciation for faithful service and cannot but bear fruitful results—making the confidence between the employer and employee the more adamant and increasing their mutual interest. On account of this reception the firm will close its doors this morning at 10:30.

YESTERDAY was nearly as quiet on the front as was the day preceding it. But two island steamers were dispatched and they took but few passengers. The steamer Mauna Loa sailed at one o'clock for her regular Kona run after a thorough overhauling, and the Keahou which had expected to say up was sent out to make another trip to Kauai.

The British ship Republic from Newcastle arrived in the harbor this morning and the Hibston, another British vessel, sailed for the Sound. These were the only arrivals and departures of deep water ships.

At the present time the harbor is quite full of sailing craft and it has been crowded so for quite a long time. Not since the plague time when ships were greatly delayed by the quarantine restrictions have there been so many vessels in port as have been here for the last three or four weeks. During this time there have been on an average about thirty-three or thirty-four vessels in the harbor all the time.

Even with the increased wharf facilities at the Railroad there is still much room for improvement and at the present time the wharves are all full and the stream is crowded with vessels waiting their turn. Through the use of the navy wharves the harbor-master has been enabled to do a deal better than he could have done had these wharves been kept for the sole and entire use of army transports and the navy. Last evening there were twenty-six vessels at the wharves and ten in the stream. The coal vessels which are arriving so thick and fast are monopolizing most of the room, but as they only take their regular turn there is no help for it.

Whenever the harbor gets as crowded as it is at present people always begin planning for the enlargement of it. When the harbor is empty or not crowded the plans for the enlargement are forgotten. A man interested in Honolulu said yesterday that where the railroad was such a close competitor of the city in the matter of wharfage it behooved the citizens of the Territory to take the matter seriously under consideration and get a move on and do something which the Congressional party of the Territory and Harbors Committee had recently been in San Francisco and no one here seemed to appreciate the fact that they might have been brought here if the proper inducements had been offered them. Their visit if it had to be paid for by subscriptions by the merchants of Honolulu would have been of a great and lasting benefit to this city, especially at this time when there is so much shipping here and they could have seen for themselves the needs. As a source of revenue the wharves will always be a big thing for the city and help out greatly in the collection of money for the running of the municipality if Honolulu ever rises to the dignity of a charter and municipal government.

Seeing the success that has greeted the building of the railroad wharf the Bishop Estate has started to build a wharf in the neighborhood of the boat houses and close to the Honolulu Works. This will be a slip and capable of accommodating several vessels comfortably. With this new wharf and the Railroad wharf the wharfage facilities owned by private parties and about equal the city wharfage and so this income will be lost to the general fund.

Several schemes for the enlargement of the harbor have been advanced all of which are feasible. The more practicable one is the cutting through to Kailua harbor. This enlargement if it ever comes will of necessity be a private venture as all the land bordering on the Kailua harbor is owned by private parties. The continuation of the wharves along Queen street will give the quickest relief and may be done with small expense compared to the good it will work.

Seat of Seasickness.
The ear, not the stomach, is the cause of seasickness, according to the Washington Times, which explains the matter as follows:

The apparatus which gives to us the sense of balance is laid in the ear. It is located in the temporal bone. This bone forms part of the skull wall in the region of the temple, and another portion of it, which projects at right angles to that part which forms part of the floor of the skull cavity where the brain is. The latter portion is known as the "petrus" portion of the temporal bone, and it is in this portion that the balance machinery lies. In the petrus portion are three semi-circular canals uniting at their base. These canals lie in three different planes, and the man no matter in what position he may be, is always in one of these planes. If he falls he will fall in one of these planes.

These canals have a common base and are hollow. They are lined on the inside with a membrane in which the filaments of the nerve which controls our balance are distributed, or in other words, the nerve which tells us whether we are erect or lying down. There is a fluid in these canals which only scantily fills them. When we are standing erect this fluid lies in the common base of the canals, and by its weight on the nerve filaments, upon which the fluid lies, irritates them, and they send a nerve impulse to the seat of origin of the nerve in the brain, and we are informed that we are in the erect posture.

If, however, we change our posture—for instance, lie down—the fluid in the canals runs into that canal which is in the same plane in which we are lying. Gravity moves the fluid. Here a new set of nerve filaments are agitated by the fluid and an impulse is again sent to their seat of origin in the brain, and the brain tells us that we are lying down. Now, when a person is on board a boat, he is pitched about by the various motions of the vessel and instinctively gets up a different motion of his own in his attempts to keep his balance. This sets that fluid in the semi-circular canals splashing around from one plane to another. The result is a strange confusion of nerve impulses taking place in that part of the brain where the nerve of balance takes its origin.

Now, if this were all, there would be no sense of seasickness. But it is not all. There is a large nerve which has its seat of origin so closely interwoven with that of the nerve of balance that when that seat is in the throes of confusion this large nerve becomes agitated and disturbed. This is called the "pneumo-gastric" nerve, and passing down the neck from the brain gives off some of its filaments to the lungs and heart, and what is left is distributed to the walls of the stomach.

The peculiar confusion which takes place in the brain as the result of the tossing about of the body from one plane to another in quick succession inspires the pneumogastric nerve to send down an impulse along its nerve trunk which causes nausea and the stomachic convulsions which are associated with seasickness.

The victim of seasickness invariably enhances his own discomfort by interposing a motion of his own, intended, of course, to obviate the motion of the boat and keep himself from falling, but as a rule this effort on his part only adds to the disturbing causes and renders the confusion in the ear and brain more intense. A sufferer from seasickness is always better if he lies down on his back and gives himself one of the crew.

One of the crew of the schooner Isaac Collins of Provincetown, Capt. Joseph Bragg, is a Newfoundland dog. He is one of the crew by common consent, for he makes himself useful as well as ornamental, and certainly earns his salt.

This Newfoundland, Bobbie by name, holds the office of chief bell ringer of the Collins, and during thick weather when the men are scattered away taking in cod off the Grand Banks, Bobbie keeps the great bell at giving loud tongue across the lead-colored sea, that the men may keep the vessel in range of hearing. And, further, on any occasion when not otherwise occupied he will grip in his mouth the dory's painter and hold her alongside while the men get aboard and take on the day's catch.

Capt. Bragg takes considerable satisfaction in the work of his dog, and says that he thinks that others might find the race equally useful in their business. He came upon Bobbie when East on one of his trips in the Collins, when the dog was a puppy. That was six months ago. The men all liked the pup, and they began to fool with him. One of the games that Bobbie enjoyed, in common with most other little dogs, was to take a rope's end in his teeth and tug and tussel with it. One day the captain, with an eye to the economy of nature, decided that Bobbie should be made useful. He was getting along to the age when he ought to be made to learn the business. With ingenuity that seems to have passed by others, he rigged up the great bell to the main boom, just off the companionway, attached a bit of rope to the tongue of the bell, and told Bobbie by well-known signals to "Sick him."

Bobbie did as he was bidden, and, at the first cry of the great bell, was fairly intoxicated with his efforts. It was beating with the men all out of sight, and he couldn't get enough of it. And hasn't been able to get enough ever since. One day recently when the Collins tied up at T wharf, Capt. Bragg fixed up the bell so that Bobbie might be heard and sketched. The result was a new experience for T wharf with its ever-present crowd, and among the men who worked there, usually blasé enough for most that goes on, however new and strange it might seem to the visitors, there was wonder and admiration.

Bobbie could hardly wait while the bell was being attached, and wanted to take hold right away. And when finally he was ready he took the rope's end in his jaws, and there was rare music for the waterfront. It's a bell that sounds far, as there is indeed plenty of occasion when the wind sweeps strong and the fog hangs thick on the lumpy sea waves.—Boston Herald.

Useful Career Over.

VICTORIA, June 28.—Lying in the upper harbor among the obsolete craft is the old Methodist missionary steamer Glad Tidings, which for a quarter of a century has been employed by missionaries in spreading the Gospel among the heathen aborigines of the coast. The day of the Glad Tidings' usefulness in the missionary work is over, however, and she is awaiting conversion into a new life. Fifteen years or more ago the steamer was built for the service by Mr. Oliver, the present manager of the Skidgate Oil Works, and her history along this coast has been an interesting one. For long the vessel was run by Rev. Thos. Crosby, whose missionary work has taken the steamer to almost every bay or inlet on the British Columbia coast. With steamers now touching at all points along the coast, the need of a missionary steamer is not felt as it was a few years ago, and the Glad Tidings has therefore not been in service for some time.

Diamond Head, 10 p. m.—Weather fair; wind light, northeast.

SENATE AND HOUSE COMING TOGETHER

Conference Committee
Upon the Current Expense Bill.

SESSION EXPENSES COMPROMISE

SENATE AMENDMENTS TO THE
SALARIES BILL RECEIVED WITH DISSENT.

It Restores Salaries to Figures of the Governor's Estimates—The Senate Appoints Its Conference Committee—House to Act.

Peace, sweet peace, flutters about the Capitol building. The Hon. and the lamb have lain down together and "all is quiet on the Potomac." The Senate has received and the House has accepted a compromise agreeable to the dignity of both houses has been arranged on the famous House session expense bill for $15,000 which the Senate wanted to raise to $20,000. As soon as the House met yesterday the preliminary steps toward a settlement of the difference between the two branches of the Legislature on the House current expense bill (No. 3) were taken by refusing to concur and asking for a conference with the Senate. Next they adopted a concurrent resolution introduced Wednesday whereby the conference committee is to consist of seven Representatives and seven Senators, one Representative and one Senator from each election district and one at large from each house. Thus the committee will be composed of four members of the Legislature from Hawaii, two from Maui, etc., four from Oahu and two from Kauai, etc., and two at large. It is supposed that the idea thereby is to give "local option" as much as possible in the matter of appropriations, both salary and current expense. This done the resolution was sent to the Senate and also the notice of the non-concurrence of the House and the House suspended business until three o'clock in order to give the Senate an opportunity to act on the several letters they have written them the last two session days.

Afternoon Session.
In the afternoon, the conference committee on the $20,000 bill brought in their report before the Senate had notified the House that they had agreed to a conference. All the six members of the joint committee except Monsarrat of the House agreed to the report, which recommended $17,000 in place of the House $15,000 and the Senate figure of $20,000. As the bill was in the hands of the Senate, nothing could be done about it until the Senate notified the House that they had agreed to a conference and accepted the report of the joint committee, but it will pass without doubt today at the Senate's new figure. This is a distinct victory for the House, for they were willing to pass an additional amount if it were necessary, but thought $20,000 too much. Of this amount, the Senate needs $9,500 and the House $750. The Senate has some old bills from the last session still unpaid.

During the consideration of the report on which Mr. Monsarrat had endorsed his non-concurrence, that gentleman arose and wanted to know what the House was paying a stenographer for? He said he understood during the consideration of the unpaid bills of the House that the stenographer was being paid for extra work and he did not see where it came in. He said that both the Supreme Court and Circuit Court judges told him that if they wanted the entire notes of any case transcribed, the stenographers of the court did it without any cost, even if they had to hire outsiders at their own expense to do it. He said they were getting $250 a month apiece and the House was paying $260 a month and ought to have all the notes transcribed without charge to the House. Makani, who is chairman of the committee on accounts, thought this was too much to ask and said he had approved the bills for writing the journal as the work was done out of hours and not during the sessions of the House and that, as he understood it, the stenographer was paid for being present in the House and taking notes and that was all. He said the charge was purely nominal for writing the journal. Monsarrat was not satisfied but the matter dropped there.

The Senate sent in a notice of their refusal to recede from their amendments to the current expense bill (No. 3) and also asked for a conference. Later they notified the House that they had adopted the concurrent resolution of the House in regard to a conference committee. Thus the beginning of the end is in sight. They also sent down their amendments to the House salary appropriation bill, being another long document like their amendments to the current expense bill. The clerk started to read it, but when the item providing for expense of collecting taxes all over the Territory was found to have been stricken out they did not want to hear any more of it. So far as read, the changes were all raises in the salaries, the heads of departments being placed at $4,500 per year instead of the House figure of $4,000 and the salaries of their immediate assistants raised accordingly. That is to say, at approximately the Governor's estimates.

Beckley moved to non-concur right there. Dickey seconded the motion. Monsarrat also added a second. Makani wanted to hear some more of the Senate amendments, so the reading was resumed. Puuk, whose baili-

AN ATTORNEY GENERAL WITHOUT SHAME.

The more the action of Attorney General Dole in entering a nolle prosequi in the Smith case is considered by the people the more venal and corrupt does it appear to them. Men who have been inclined to give the Attorney General credit for honesty of purpose, but dullness of wit, are now forced to believe that coupled with the dullness of wit is a contempt for honesty and a too willing readiness to prostitute his office for the personal benefit of some favorite.

The Bar Association rushed to condemn Judge Humphreys several weeks ago, because he sentenced three men to jail for an open and notorious contempt of court and the public naturally wishes to know what the Bar Association proposes to do now in the case of an Attorney General who prostitutes his office and disgraces his profession by acting as the attorney for a criminal defendant whom he had sworn to prosecute. Will the Bar Association be consistent by demanding his removal as Attorney General or will the association stultify itself by condoning the prostitution of his office and the disgracing of his profession.

In moving to nolle prosequi the Smith case the Attorney General said he could not proceed with the prosecution because of bias. Then he should have said he was unfit to fill the office of Attorney General. He was not too biased when the indictment was found to destroy the indictment drawn up by his deputy and prepare one himself. He was not too biased to advise the grand jury to return an indictment. He was not too biased when the indictment was returned not to believe that the evidence was sufficient to convict. He was not too biased as late as last Monday to engage the late Paul Neumann to prosecute the case. Then why this sudden change of sentiment? What ulterior motive intervened between last Monday, when Paul Neumann was engaged to prosecute the case, and Wednesday when the Attorney General entered a nolle prosequi?

Why should Mr. Dole in his sworn duty as prosecutor have stated all the assertions for a failure to proceed to trial that the attorneys for the defense might have presented? Why not have left it for Mr. Smith's attorneys to say that matters coming up subsequent to the finding of the indictment precluded the possibility of a conviction and that it would be only wise for the Territory to enter a nolle prosequi. But no! Mr. Dole in his double capacity as Attorney General and as counsel for the defendant did all this himself. In other states men have more than once been disbarred for accepting a retainer from both sides. But here Attorney General Dole appeared as the prosecutor on behalf of the Territory and at the same time acted as attorney for the defendant and made the statement on his behalf presenting alleged reasons why defendant should not be prosecuted.

If the Attorney General were honest he would not have allowed either friendship or enmity or bias to interfere with his sworn duty as public prosecutor. He would know neither friend nor enemy in the performance of his plain duty, and falling in this it is self-evident to the people that something else than "bias" caused his most remarkable action of last Wednesday.

"The evident desire of Judge Gear to try the Smith case," says the Advertiser in opening up an attack upon the Judge. Let us see about "Judge Gear's evident desire to try the case." Mr. Smith has all along claimed he wanted a speedy trial. Judge Gear announced at the opening of the present term of court that, owing to the crowded condition of the civil calendar, he would not hear any criminal cases unless defendants especially demanded a speedy hearing. Mr. Smith was the only one to demand a speedy hearing. He wanted it right away. The court could hardly give it to him quickly enough, yet when the case had to go to trial on its merits so afraid was he of conviction that it was necessary to employ the Attorney General as counsel for the defendant and have him, under his extraordinary power of an obsolete law, enter a nolle prosequi for fear that the speedy trial, so urgently demanded, would result in conviction, as it certainly would have done.

Thurston's organ is now getting ready to begin an attack on Judge Gear. Gear is another judge whom Thurston, of the unconvicted criminal class, and his perjurer editor cannot control hence they think it necessary to begin a campaign of libel and blackmail.

THE WANING OF MR. BRYAN.

The New York Herald, which has made a reputation for the accuracy of its political forecasts, has secured representative expressions from seven states as to the future of William J. Bryan, especially with reference to the next Presidential campaign. The opinion is practically unanimous that Mr. Bryan will not and should not be nominated a third time by the Democratic party. In a few states the idea prevails that he will be a strong factor in the next convention, perhaps dictating the platform and naming the candidate. In the majority of states consulted, the conviction prevails that while Mr. Bryan is strong personally, the people have lost faith in him as a Presidential possibility and that he will not cut much figure in the next Democratic convention or campaign. All in all, the reports indicate a remarkable waning of the political prestige of the Nebraska man who stampeded the convention of 1896 and practically conducted every procedure of the convention of 1900.

Politically the worst thing that can befall an aspirant is the popular belief that he cannot be elected. That is what has happened to Bryan. In 1896, when the chances of the party were not regarded as good, Bryan and free silver were supported as a possible means of stampeding the country into a Democratic victory. Aside from the bolting Gold Democrats, vast numbers of the rank and file did not believe in Bryanism. In 1900 the party really had very little to do with the nomination or the platform. The whole thing was Bryan. The support he received was partly through faith in the man and his policies, and partly through the desire to be politically regular. Yet in both instances there was a prevailing opinion that he might be elected. Now there is a positive conviction that he cannot win.

Parties do not cling to men in whom they have no hope. Mr. Bryan is given to specious platitudes. One of his favorites is: "A man can afford to be in the minority, but he cannot afford to be wrong." That is a high-sounding principle. In the abstract it is calculated to be quite effective. It may be said to have aroused a good deal of admiration for the Nebraska man in the last campaign. But when the principle is applied to the case, it loses force. If Mr. Bryan were an infallible doctor of political economy, it would not lose force. But who is to say that he is right and those who are opposed to him wrong? The majority is generally right in an enlightened country. The majority has been against Bryan and Bryanism in two contests. You cannot keep up popular enthusiasm or attain success on discredited theories. Especially not in politics.

A certain element will adhere to Bryan, admiring his personal qualities and his undoubted courage of conviction. But many of these will be alienated when they find that the former leader, now discredited as the directing factor of the party, opposes those who seek harmonious adjustment and united action.

MR. SMITH'S ARRAIGNMENT OF HIMSELF.

"But the jury, made up of fourteen of his political enemies to one political friend, and of twelve personal enemies to three personal friends, indicted him."

Thus writes Editor Smith in the Advertiser in speaking of his indictment for perjury. Very naturally the question arises what manner of man is he that a jury of fifteen men selected from the community at large, without any possible knowledge that that jury would have cause to bring in an indictment against Walter G. Smith, should be composed of twelve of his personal enemies to three of his personal friends. The grand jury was called to investigate bribery charges and no one even surmised that conditions would arise that should cause it to indict the editor of the Advertiser for perjury. He was not one of the men against whom the bribery charges had been made and was, therefore, not one whom the jury was expected to investigate, so that the selection of the jury could not in any possible way have had anything to do with Walter G. Smith. And yet Mr. Smith says this jury, made up of the foremost citizens, was composed, according to his own statement, of twelve of his personal enemies to three of his personal friends. The indictment of the grand jury may have been severe on Mr. Smith, but it was not nearly as severe as Mr. Smith's arraignment of himself when he says that he is such a disreputable and detestable character that a grand jury of fifteen men, composed of the best element of the city, contained twelve of his personal enemies. Naturally the question arises, where are the gentleman's friends, if he has any aside from his employer and Attorney General Dole?

More of the young men of Honolulu should take the civil service examination for letter carriers. The position pays a salary of $850 per year after the first year and as soon as the city has 75,000 population, which it will have within five years, the carriers will be paid $1,000 per year. The labor is not hard, the work is nearly all outdoors and the law absolutely prohibits a carrier working more than eight hours a day. A postal carrier comes in contact with all the people, he is not affected by politics and the position is one that many of the young men of this city may well be proud to hold. Taking year after year the position of carrier means a very good income.

While ordinarily opposed to advertisements on the editorial page, The Republican cannot refrain from giving prominence to the following professional card:

SKINNER BIGLOOT & MCINAGAN.

Attorneys-at-Law, Honolulu.
Criminal Proceedings a Specialty.
Nolle Prosequi, Reversals and Pardons always in stock. Perjurors, flibusters, libellers and character assassins will find it to their interest to consult us.

In the event of the removal of Judge Humphreys we expect to regain our former control of the Court, and can guarantee immunity to Criminals who employ us.

Let us see, do the United States laws say anything about the crime of filibustering. We wonder if the editor of the Advertiser can inform an anxious public what filibustering means and how it is regarded by the United States laws; whether or not it is considered as bad as bribe taking or perjury, for instance?

The city is to be congratulated that Judge Gear has made the injunction against the human slave pen known as Iwilei, permanent. This is removing the most disgraceful and degrading resort to be found in the civilized world.

Speaking of records, an exposure of the bribery record of Thompson County Smith who was compelled to get out of New York State some years ago, between two days, would make mighty interesting reading.

No tribute to the memory of the late Paul Neumann that the Bar Association can pay will be too laudatory for that genial spirit. It is a pity that the world has not many more Paul Neumanns in it.

Since the postoffice directory fails to give any postoffice known as White Hills, Arizona, perhaps the Advertiser and its perjurer editor can tell us where the place is.

Thurston's Attorney General.

The majority is generally right in an enlightened country. The majority has been against Bryan and Bryanism in two contests. You cannot keep up popular enthusiasm or attain success on discredited theories. Especially not in politics.

without hesitation, in fact with gleeful enthusiasm. It has often been charged that such was the rule by which the Attorney General's department was governed. In the whole life of the country there has never been such a bare faced admission.

As regards Mr. Smith personally, the Bulletin has not been of the opinion that he would be convicted. If the vindication received at the hands of the Attorney General satisfied Mr. Smith it certainly ought to be satisfactory to his friends and his enemies would not change their opinions whatever the verdict.

As for the Attorney General, there is no power in earth, heaven or hell upon which he can call for vindication with the hope that the people of this Territory will view his action in any other light than of supreme disgust and contempt.

Origin of Yellowhammer.

From Birmingham Age-Herald.
The term 'Yellowhammer' as applied to Alabama and the Alabamians originated with a Confederate soldier named Will Arnett, who belonged to company A of N. B. Forrest's original regiment, at Hopkinsville, Ky., in 1861.

"When the company from Huntsville, Ala., the captain of which was Rev. D. C. Kelly, who became one of Forrest's majors, and which was afterwards commanded by Lieutenant Nance, arrived at Hopkinsville the officers and men were handsomely uniformed, and on their sleeves and the tails of their coats were bits of brilliant yellow cloth. Forrest's troops all turned out to receive the Alabamians. As they marched past us—I was in Company A—Will Arnett, who was a great wag, cried out at sight of their yellow-trimmed coats:

'Yellowhammers—yellowhammers! Flicker—flicker—flicker!'"
"There was a roar of laughter at this apt wit, and from that moment we spoke of the Huntsville soldiers as 'Yellowhammers,' a term that quickly spread throughout the Confederate armies and was applied to all soldiers from Alabama. Subsequently it was applied to the State of Alabama, and so today we have the 'Yellowhammer State.'

"Will Arnett saw of course in the coats of the Huntsville soldiers a suggestion of the familiar wild bird, yellowhammer."

Uncle Sam's Growing Pile.

From the Indianapolis Journal.
The balance sheet of the United States treasury shows a surplus of $10,500,000 for May, and for the eleven months of the fiscal year the surplus has been about $58,000,000. But the surplus of May far exceeds that of any previous month. The fact attracts no comment on the part of a large number of newspapers, but if there had been a deficit of $1,000,000 they would have discovered the fact and gloated over it.

Yesterday morning the Supreme Court adopted memorial resolutions in honor of the late Hon. Paul Neumann, which had been drafted by a committee of the Hawaiian Bar Association consisting of A. G. M. Robertson and F. M. Brooks. They were presented by Judge W. A. Whiting as follows:

"Whereas, the Hon. Paul Neumann, the first president of this Association, has been removed from our midst by death;

"Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the widow and family of Mr. Neumann in their affliction;

"Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Supreme Court."

Eloquent tributes were paid the life and character of Paul Neumann by Judge Whiting, F. M. Hatch, W. O. Smith, E. P. Dole and A. S. Hartwell.

In ordering the resolutions spread upon the records of the Court, and a copy sent to the bereaved family, Chief Justice Frear added his tribute with the others.

Two Chinamen at the Track.

One Did His Own Doping and Won $350.00.

From the New York Sun.

Two Chinamen attracted attention in the small ring of the Gravesend race track on Tuesday afternoon last. One was dressed like an American and was quite thin. The other wore his native garb and was stout and robust looking.

The pair entered the track a few minutes before the bugle call announcing the departure of the horses for the post in the first race. Judging from the way he acted, the Americanized Chinaman knew something about the game, for he carried a dope book and moved among the crowds as if he had backed horses before. The stout Chinaman seemed to be a novice, for he permitted his friend to do all the advising and betting.

The thin Chinaman apparently could read English, for he had a racing paper and looked intently over the entries. Then he opened his dope book and went over each page carefully. The book was made up of form sheets fairly obscured by Chinese characters.

Invariably after contemplating the entries he turned to the book and wrote something in Chinese in a corner directly opposite the horse he intended to back. He selected two horses in the first race and leaving his companion strolled among the bookmakers.

Looking over the stands of several bookmakers the Chinamen stopped before one where he thought he could get the best odds. Taking out a $10 note he said:

"Ten dollars on Jack DeMund. Win-nee alle samee."

When the sheet writer repeated the wager the Chinaman was satisfied and walked away and joined his companion. When the race was over and Jack DeMund was beaten the Chinaman was not in the least disturbed. He opened his dope book again and did some more figuring.

In the next race he played two horses. He put $5 on Sadie S. to win at 2 to 1 and $5 on Lancelman to show at evens. Sadie S. was third and Lancelman was unplaced.

He took his losses good naturedly and once more waded through his dope book. The stout Chinaman was disappointed and from his gestures it was evident that he wanted his friend to quit. The thin Chinaman seemingly was made of sterner stuff, for he fished out a crisp $20 note and placed the whole of it on Contend to win at 4 to 1.

The horse led all the way and won easily. The Chinaman's countenance was all smiles as he stood in line waiting to get his money. When he returned to his friend and showed the latter $100 the thin Chinaman laughed gleefully and talked rapidly. In the next race the thin Chinaman picked Sydney Lucas to show at 2 to 1 for $20 and pocketed $40 more. He left the next race alone, but plunged heavily on Scurry in the last event. Scurry was at 5 to 1 and the Chinaman put $50 on him. His winnings for the day were $350. The pair remained at the track until the crowd and almost fled out and then went to a neighboring hotel. There the stout Chinaman ordered several rounds of drinks and cigars. When they left the hotel the thin Chinaman said he would return at the first chance and break the bookmakers.

Nearly 2000 acres of land in the new Olua tract of Hawaii is to be opened in August. Applications for the lots will be received at the office of Surveyor Baldwin in Hilo on and after August 10.

"Poodles," a pet fox terrier who has made the Central Fire station his home for many years past, has gone to the happy hunting ground from whence no good doggie ever returns. Poodles will be buried in state. He died early this morning.

Director Wray Taylor of the Amateur Orchestra insists that his organization had not intended to render patriotic airs at the Y. M. C. A. celebration on Independence Day evening. He is at a loss to understand how the services of the orchestra could have been counted upon.

Stie's Retort Silenced Him.

From the Duluth News-Tribune.

A small miss of this city was on her good behavior. She was promised some coveted ribbons like Lucy's in the event of her successful accomplishment of certain domestic duties. For one thing, she was supposed to clear away the dinner dishes.

"Stie, come on and put on the gloves," tantalized Manus from outside the open window. Stie is the strenuous and adored playfellow of her brothers.

"Can't," laconically. "Have to get the table read."

"Aw, gawn, tables ain't read—nothing is read only but books!" came the facetious answer.

She was poised a blue plate by the rim dangerously over a hand-painted sugar bowl.

"Your better guess again," she replied quickly. "If you read your tables better you wouldn't be such a dunce at 'rhythmic!'"

Manus hasn't fixed upon a retort yet.

THE RUSSIAN VIEW OF PAN GERMANIZATION

AMERICANS ALIVE TO AMBITIONS OF THE FATHERLAND FOR WORLD-WIDE EMPIRE.

Novoe Vremya Calls Attention to Growth of Settlements in Central and South America—Thin Edge of German Wedge Enters.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 21.—It may seem somewhat strange to the Herald for attack because it reflects opinion in the United States to learn what the Novoe Vremya, a paper intensely Russian, has to say as to Germany's role in South America.

Referring to the Herald's position in the matter and Germany's apparent endeavor to save a false situation, created by the ill advised zeal of the Kölnische Zeitung and the Magdeburger
Zeitung, the Novoe Vremya editorially says:

"Unfortunately for Germans, America
is a country of facts and not words.
That is why, possibly, no soft words of assurance on the part of Germany will have any effect or make the Americans turn round and say, 'How very nice of you. May you increase and prosper!'"

"For such men as Mr. Roosevelt and Senator Lodge, neither attacks
nor sweet words signify anything.
Facts tell these men everything. To them the activity of the Germans cannot be left without attention, and that is why they are bitter against Germany. It is impossible that the opinion of North America should be favorable to Germany. That America follows the matter somewhat feverishly is comprehensible, for America is young and ambitious.

Latin America's Future.

"The organization of Central and South America cannot remain long as it now stands. All those independent republics must either unite or come under foreign influence. The creation of a United States of South America is not probable. Their people are not energetic enough, nor is there any powerful central point where all the elements of the various people could come together. It is more likely that they will come under stronger influence, and for that there will be a struggle.

"The United States would have the right to take under her domain all these constituents, but that country has not much sympathy in several of the republics, and this lack of sympathy can be utilized by some European Power. Such a one now appears in Germany who for a long time has been sending her people over the ocean. Formerly German colonists assimilated very quickly with the local population, but recently the German national conscience has been very highly developed, and now each German remains a German always, founding a bit of his Vaterland wherever he goes. That is his instrument; that is the thin edge of the wedge, the lever to serve his imperialism.

How German Influence Grows.

"Little by little, without much expense, without any shedding of blood, the limits of the German empire are enlarging, and the aim of it all is to embrace the universe. In Brazil and Mexico German colonists represent a state apart. Their settlements there are like bits of the German empire transplanted to America.

"These are the reasons why Americans have become aroused to the danger of this systematic envelopment of the entire globe by the spider web of Germany. Whereas Europe is just beginning to watch the pan-Germanization of the world, in America they are already calling with much vigor for resistance. The people of the United States think and combine more quickly than the people of old Europe, and so it is possible that over the ocean there will commence, sooner than here, the real struggle against the appetites and desires of the pan-Ger-manizers."

A plainer and more explicit statement of the habits of the Germans could not be written. Moreover, it is evidently inspired by the action of the Germans, who have of late been invading Russia more than ever.

Mean of Them.

"Well, Dorothy," said Aunt Jane,
"they've decided to name the baby
'Harold.'"

"Oh, pshaw!" exclaimed little Dorothy. "I think that's too mean. Why couldn't they name it Elsie or something? They know I want a little sister."

It is a real pleasure to us to speak favorably of Pain-Killer, known almost universally to be a good and safe remedy for burns and other pains of the body. It is valuable not only for colds in winter, but for various summer complaints, and should be in every family. The casualty which demands it may come unawares.—Christian Advocate. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Pain-Killer, Perry Davis'. Price 25c. and 50c.

SENATE AND HOUSE
COMING TOGETHER

wick of Kauai had been pretty hard hit by the Senate, wanted to reject the amendments. Finally there came another interruption in the shape of a communication from the Senate giving the names of the conference committee on the current expense bill. They were Senators J. Brown and J. D. Paris of Hawaii, H. P. Baldwin and Wm. White of Maui, Kalanokalani and C. Brown of Oahu, and Nakapahu of Kauai.

This raised a mild tempest, for it was found that the fifth representative or election district has been left out and Maui and the fourth election district (Honolulu and East Oahu) had twice as many as they were entitled to.

Emmeluth wanted representation for his district (the fifth) and so did Mahanui, who is from the same district. At the same time they did not want to send the communication back to the Senate, so the matter was simply talked about until the Speaker looked at the clock and saw it was almost five, which caused him to put a motion to adjourn which had not been made and declare that it had passed although probably it had not. At any rate nobody raised the point and the members filed out feeling that the end was now in sight, as all the bills the House has passed have been amended by the Senate and returned and it now depends upon the conference committee.

The House meets again this morning as usual.

THE OCCIDENT AND THE ORIENT MEET

FLYING JORDANS MAKE A WING-
LESS DESCENT UPON
CHINATOWN.

Celestial Melody to Make a Man Imagine Vain Things—The Little People as Critics—The Only Willie
Made a Hit.

The Occident and the Orient came together at the Chinese Theatre out on Liliha street yesterday evening, and great was the meeting thereof. Yes, verily, it was a howling success.

The Flying Jordans made a wingless descent upon Chinatown. Their arrival was heralded far and wide among the little men of the east by the sound of the cymbal, the squeaking fiddle, and the kiki's of an overjoyed populace. From the topmost rafters down to the ragged edge of the stage every available foot of space was covered by a wondering and completely surprised spectator. They surged through the door in one continuous stream. It seemed that there would never be a let-up to the influx. Col.
J. C. Cohen was doing a bigger business in the box office than the man who gets a corner on the beer market in a thirsty community. Tickets and perspiration passed from Mr. Cohen with reckless abandon.

First there was a preliminary eruption of Oriental melody by a professional band of tom-tom beaters, who went at their work like a man extracting the loose real estate from a dusty carpet. While the racket continued
it was one round of joyful hideousness, comparable to an ordinary western orchestra in about the same proportion as the noise of a large boiler-making establishment to the ticking of a clock.
The best of the Chinese overture was that the fellow who hammered great deeds into the big brass disc sometimes got the better of his colleagues engaged in the creation of barbarous disturbance, and it would be a pretty race between the shouts of the multitude, the delirious bombardment on thumped brass, and the violent sawing at high-keyed little violins. As the audience was overwhelmingly Chinese the laborious efforts of the bolsheroi band resolved a tremendous ovation.

The Occident then had an inning.
The Orpheum orchestra took the reins in hand. "The Holy City,"
"Those Goo Goo Eyes," "Hot Time in the Old Town," "Shall We Gather at the Brewery," followed one another in rapid fire succession. The Orientals stood aghast.

"Melancholic mood vely much lotten.
They alle samee clayey," was the laughing comment of a little almond-eyed Celestial squatted upon a high rail in the gallery.

Of course the Jordans made a hit.
Nellie, the petite acrobat, captivated
the hearts of the Chinatown dudes.
They bestowed upon the talented little lady unstinted praise in the form of continuous applause.

Pantomime seemed about all that could be successfully put on the boards at the Oriental playhouse. When it came to dialogue the efforts of the participants were about as useless as the attempt of a recent territorial legislature in passing a city and county bill.

Not to be daunted by the audience which faced him, Comedian Simmons sprung several of his inimitable jokes.
Mr. Simmons soon began to "see things," as they say back in the states.
He cut out the recitation of stories and instead sang them to the latest coon song melodies. He then had the audience coming his way so to speak, and for a time it was a close contest between the funny man of the show and the only Willie Crawford as to whom was entitled to wear the stove-pipe medalion for universal popularity.
"This is de hottes' show I see since I leave Carson City," vigorously declared Tommie Abe of the special police reserve, who was an interested spectator and occasionally acted as interpreter to a bunch of beauteous Oriental maids who were in the throes of ravenous delight.

"Wouldn't dis far you, jus' a little bit?" chimed in Ah On, also of the police force. "Our Willie is de hottes' baby in de bunch all right."

The stereopticon produced fresh and spontaneous salves of pleasure from a perspiring multitude. The vendor of the fizzy soda water reaped a harvest of nickels. The moving pictures also behaved themselves in a fairly decorous manner. The show was good.
The people were pleased. The scene was strange enough at times to cause a spectator to pinch himself to feel if he was really in a land over which the stars and stripes were floating. Yes, it was a great meeting of the Far East and the equally distant West.

Three Silver Weddings.

A bunch of silver wedding anniversaries of well-known people came near together recently. Commodore Geo.
C. Beckley and wife, Henry Smith and wife and James W. Robertson and wife were all married within a few days of each other in 1876.

A Case of Fizz.

Ascum—How did you make out with
that case?

Dr. Gay—What case?

Ascum—I dropped in to see you last night. Your wife said she didn't know where you were, except that you had told her you had to go out and attend to a case.

Dr. Gay—Oh, yes. Well, I drank
my share of it.

Something Wrong.

He—I see a new family has moved
in next door.

She—Yes, they moved in today.

He—What sort of furniture have they?

She—I didn't notice.

He—Goodness, dear! What's the matter? Have you been sick?

under guardianship on February 14, 1896, he has learned habits of economy and can now take charge of his own affairs. The income of the estate has decreased from $2327.50 in 1896 to $1250 in 1900 and the legal expenses of guardianship are burdensome. It is pointed out that it is doubtful if Love while under guardianship can legally make a will, so that if he should die intestate his two natural children might take nothing.

David Dayton by his proctor, Geo.
A. Davis, petitions for distribution of the estate of James Dodd, deceased.
Minnie Merrill has sued for divorce from Loren W. Merrill, the erstwhile bad debt collector. In the petition the complainant respectfully shows that she has been a resident of Honolulu for more than two years past. That she was married to Loren W. Merrill Jan. 4, 1900, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Alex. Mackintosh.
Libellant alleges that libellee has been guilty of extreme cruelty toward petitioner, that his treatment of her, while ostensibly kind and truthful, was one whole mass and tissue of falsehood, fraud and deception. She has been employed as teacher at the Normal school earning a salary of $85. That under false pretenses Merrill had obtained from her the whole of her earnings.
That libellee has been arrested upon a charge of embezzlement and has often been threatened with arrest on the charge of other felonies; that he has absconded from the Territory leaving the petitioner penniless and without provision for the future. That by reason of his past conduct said libellee has left such an unsavory reputation behind him that it has become a disgrace to bear his name.
She therefore prays to be allowed to resume her maiden name of Minnie Eagan besides being granted a divorce.
