The Sentiments They Represent For Which
Men Give Their Lives. Flags are not nearely so many yards of silk. They represent to a soldier what is noblest in his country's history and insti-utions. Their loss, under circumstances short of heroic, is an eternal disgrace to the regiment losing them. Only death can excuse the color guard from defending them, and when the guard has been shot or cut down others should be ready to stand by the flag. Undue solicitation is carried on to too great an extent, and one disastrous result is that Master Masons and Chapter Masons are induced to take degrees in Masonry that place an additional burden upon them not warranted by their income. This is anything but fraternal, and is one great reason for so many nonaffiliates, and they are forced from lack of means to fall behind. We believe that the investigating committee should inquire in every questionable case, "Can be afford it?" Let us stop making nonaffiliates by ceasing undue solicitation.—John A. Gerow, Tem. Company. The cleanest, brightest afest and really, in the long run, the cheapest and best light for use in the family residence, is the incandescent electric light. Safe; nothing could be safer. A few days ago a prominent gentleman of Honoluin came rushing down to the office of the Electric Company and sain: "Give me figures for wiring my house, and I want it done at once; no more lamps for me. Last night a lamp tipued over and it came so near setting fire to the house and burning my children and I take ne more risks."

This is the sentiment of quite a number in the past few weeks, who have ordered their houses fitted with the perfect light.

Paint over the leaky spots; then take a piece of stout Manilia paper, or a piece of common cotton cloth, paint it well on both sides; lay it over the first coat, giving the whole a final coat, and these will be no more teak there. Or if the whole gutter is bad, make it clean and dry, and apply a paste of P. & B. Paint and Portland Cement.

GEMS IN VERSE.

The Buttle After the battle—peace! But for some men
The battle lasts till death. All efforts lead in these to grief and bitterness, and when Unconquered, though they fall and faint and bleed.
Their semis are metiled for some blacker strife;
They struggle bravely for an inch of life.

Wishes.
I asked a little child one day,
A child intent on joyous play,
"My little one, pray and tell ms
Your dearest wish-what may it be?"
The little one thought for awhile,
"Then answered, with a wistful smile,
"The thing that I wish most of all
Is to be big, like you, and tall." Beretania and Punchbowl, OLD ARMORY Hay, Grain,

I asked a maiden, sweet and fair, Of dreamy eyes and wavy hair, "What would you wish, pray tell me true That kindly fate should bring to you!" With timid mien, and downcast eyes, And binshes deep, and gentic sighs, Her answer came, "All else above, I'd wish some faithful heart to love."

I asked a mother, tried and blest,
With babe asleep upon her breast,
"Oh, mother fond, so proud and fair,
What is thy immost secret prayer?"
She raised her calm and peaceful eyes,
Madonnalike, up to the skies.
"My dearest what is this," said she,
"That God may spare my child to me." Again, I asked a woman old,
To whom the world seemed lard and cold,
"Pray tell me, O thou blest in years,
What are thy hopes, what are thy fears?
With folded hands and head bent low
She answer made in accents slow;
"For me remains but one request.
It is that God may give me rest."

How Blue and Gray Blend, Mow like and Gray Blend.

'Oh, mother, what do they mean by blue
And what do they mean by gray?

I beard from the lips of a little child
As she bounded in from her play.

The mother's eyes filled up with tears.

She turned to her darling fair
And smoothed away from the sunny brow
The treasure of golden hair.

"Why, mother's eyes are blue, my sweet, And grandpa's hair is gray, And the love we bear our darling child Grows stronger every day," "But what did they mean?" persisted the JAS. F. MORGAN. child,
"For I saw two cripples today,
And one of them said he had 'fought for blue," The other had 'fought for the gray.' Auctioneer and Stock Broker, Answered.

When do I miss you most, dear heart?
At evening, when the shadows fall,
I miss your sunny, coaxing ways,
Your joyous laugh, your ringing call.

The plans his future fortune's prize
Despite his youth,
And shows ms, with exultant eyes,
His latest tooth.

She cares no more for novels new.
With manner bland.
She calls my kind attention to
His dimpled hand.

She asks me what I really think About his nose, And should they be so very pink— The baby's toes?

I tell her of the latest play; Her eyes grow dim; She interrupts me for to say It looks like "him."

She pats the fluff upon its head And gets a scare; It surely can't be growing red— The balty's bair?

Of art I speak; she looks away With hurt surprise. For are they blue or are they grav The baby's eyes?

And if I venture to suggest
That he's all right
She'il class him fondly to her breast
So close and tight.

That tires one so, She'll frown and smile at me and say, "That's all you know."

And then, in that superior way

The thought most optimistic that
Doth come to me these days
Is this—and how I laugh therest—
That pessimism pays.
Why, only yesterdag I wrote
A poem full of light;
I sent it out and got a note
Returning it ere night.

"These lines are nice," the writer said
"They show a dainty touch,
But you our paper can't have read,
We think, so very much.
This happy stoff is out of date—
Depression is the thing,
And verses now must grow1 at fate
To have the proper ring.

"Declare that life is wholly grief,
That all on earth is wrong.
Make "Every man's a fiel or thief"
The burden of your song.
Drop gladsemeness, drop all your mir
Drop sunshine and fresh air,
And send us in ten dollars' worth
Of gloom and dark despair,"

"The one of the blue had lost a leg.
And the other had but one arm,
And both seemed worn and weary and sad
Yet their greeting was kind and warm.
They told of battles in days gone by
Till it made my blood grow chill.
The leg was lost in the Wilderness fight
And the arm on Malvern Hill." Special attention given to the handling of Real Estate' Stocks, Bonds Then the mother thought of other days— Two stalwart boys from her riven; How they'd knelt at her side, and, lisping H. HACKFELD & CO.
