A Giant Powder Victim.

A native named Kilona, aged above 60, while blasting coral in shallow water at Kaalawai on Friday last, was fearfully maimed on account of use of a short fuse, against which he had been warned by some fishermen in the vicinity. The onlookers went to the rescue of Kilona after the accident and assisted in landing him at the Queen's Hospital. Kaalawai is beyond Diamond Head and it was some time before the unfortunate native could have the attention of Dr. C. B. Cooper. It was found that the man's two hands were shattered and that his face and body were badly marked. Everything for the relief of the man that could be suggested was done carefully, but he died Saturday morning. Kilona was a steady, industrious man. His work at Kaalawai was to make a bathing-pool.

Maui Galicians Take One of Their Racial Vacations.

A Horseman Loses His Life at Kahului—Geo. Randolph the Victim—Trial of a Spaniard

[Special Correspondence Advertiser.]

MAUI, Nov. 11.—A shocking accident occurred at Kahului during Saturday night, the 4th instant. George Randolph, one of the head overseers of Spreckelsville plantation, while on his way home was thrown from his horse at the Custom-house corner, was picked up in an insensible condition and conveyed to Spreckelsville. He died there on Sunday morning without recovering consciousness. In falling from his horse he must have struck on his head, for his skull was badly fractured. Mr. Randolph was 38 years of age and has been known as one of the best of Spreckelsville lunas for some years past. He was soon to have been married. Rev. W. Ault of Lahaina conducted the funeral ceremony at Wailuku during the 5th. Randolph was well known in Honolulu by the name of "Paddy Ryan." He was a native of Ohio.

During the 7th seven Galician laborers of Paia plantation were tried and convicted by the Makawao District Court for refusing to labor. One was fined $5 and costs and the remaining six the costs of court and all were ordered back to work. At first they were inclined to rebel and remain in durance ville, as did their countrymen in Honolulu, but finally better judgment prevailed and they returned to the plantation. The reason they gave for their rebellion was that their contracts were ended. They had been reading Rabbi Levy in a Coast paper and they were of the opinion that President McKinley had abolished contracts, etc.

The eleven Galicians at Hamakua-poko were away from work on Saturday, the 4th, but went back to work on Monday, the 6th, without any intervention of the law.

During the 10th Manuel Charlis, the Paia Spaniard who wounded Mr. Engle with a hoe, was tried at Makawao. The trial progressed slowly owing to the many witnesses examined and did not get until 5:30 p. m. The Magistrate reserved his decision until Tuesday, the 14th. Sheriff L. M. Baldwin prosecuted the case.

The list of jurors for the next term of court at Lahaina has been drawn. The calendar promises to be unusually large inasmuch as it already numbers sixty-nine cases.

During the afternoon of the 9th the second birthday of Bertram S. Aiken was celebrated by a children's party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Aiken, of Hamakua-poko. The little ones, adorned with green and white leis, were first photographed in a group and then by two marched through the rooms to the music of the piano. The dainty birthday spread was served on a long, low kindergarten table, at which the children sat in diminutive chairs. The darkened dining-room was lighted by two long rows of candles in holders made gay with different colors of crepe paper. Sixteen children will remember the occasion with pleasure.

The November meeting of the Makawao Literary Society will take place at the residence of H. P. Baldwin, Haiku. A "Thanksgiving" program is to be presented and there is to be a sale of candy and fancy articles by the Ladies' Aid Society.

Monday afternoon, the 6th, sixteen teachers held a meeting in the Makawao Government schoolhouse. Miss Nellie Smith discussed Colonel Parker's views on examinations and C. W. Baldwin gave an interesting talk on "Soils."

Monday, December 4, the annual convention of Maui teachers will take place in the Hamakua-poko schoolhouse, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. The day was changed from Friday (as has been customary in past years) to Monday, so that Hana teachers might attend.

J. W. Waldron is soon to leave Kahului. W. Chamberlain is to take his place as bookkeeper of the railroad company.

On the 10th a sailor of the bark C. B. Bryant, now discharging coal at Kanapali, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Robert Lindsay for assault upon two of his shipmates. The latter appear badly battered up. The man arrested has the reputation of being a "fighting man." He will be tried by the Lahaina Magistrate on the 13th.

During last evening, the 10th, the Makawao Debating Society held their customary meeting in the parlors of the Pala Foreign Church—and debated the following question: "Resolved That the World Owes More to Navigation Than to Railroads." Messrs. W. S. Nicoll and David Fleming led the affirmative side and Messrs. R. F. Engle and F. E. Atwater, the negative. The former won by a large majority when the vote of the audience was taken. The subject for the next discussion is: "Resolved, That Arbitration is the Best Mode for Settling International Disputes."

Weather—Pleasant all the week.

Have a Borax Bank.

F. I. Cutter, Walter Bromley and Chas. Bromley, all well known residents of Honolulu, are on the Coast looking after an important property they have lately acquired. The three gentlemen with others of Honolulu and a couple or more California people, are interested in borax deposits at Daggett, Cal., on the famous Mojave desert. It is said that property promises very well indeed and friends of the trio mentioned are already shaping out congratulations on deserved success. Quantities of the borax have already been tested and favorable reports returned.

IN THE CABINET AGAIN.

Hon. Theo. F. Lansing Once More Minister of Finance.

THEO. F. LANSING.

Theo. F. Lansing today for the second time enters upon duties as a member of President Dole's Cabinet. Mr. Lansing has been appointed Minister of Finance to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Hon. S. M. Damon, who is in Europe seeking immigration for the Islands. This is the second time Mr. Lansing has been at the head of the Treasury Department. During his previous term he was satisfactory alike to his chief, colleagues and the country at large. Whether or no Mr. Damon will care to return to the office upon finishing his trips one of the local finishing his trip is one of the local puzzles. Mr. Lansing is known as one of the foremost business men of the community. He was formerly in the merchandising business with M. Phillips & Co., but is now in lands and a plantation and insurance with Gear, Lansing & Co. Politically he has always been prominently identified with the Annexation or reform party and has done valuable service. He was for a long time a member of the Board of Health. Mr. Lansing takes the portfolio at a time when the "eyes of the people" are on the office, or rather on the contents of the strong box. The surplus now is about a million and a quarter and inside of two months it is expected to reach the neat round figure of two millions. What to do with the excess money is one of the questions of the day.

The Finance Department includes the tax and customs bureaus and the postoffice, with altogether a long list of officials and employees.

High Class Vaudeville.

The Orpheum will tonight present the usual change of program. As a curtain raiser the popular farce "The Village School" will be presented. Jackson Hearde and Miss Haeward will introduce an original sketch. Miss Dreyfus will appear in new songs and dances. The Rand comedians are billed for a comedy sketch "A Hard Pair." Miss Hyron will introduce a dash of sunshine in new songs and the ever welcome J. W. Winton followed by the Gruesome Hostelry farce by special request should send everybody home in good humor.

WAS TWAIN'S BOW

Found His First "Literary Story" Here in Hawaii.

BURNING OF SHIP HORNET

Survivors Sailed 4000 Miles to Honolulu—Had a Fearful Experience. Local History.

Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) tells in twelve pages of the Century Magazine for November how he made his debut as a literary person and the story might as well have been dated Honolulu.

The first high-class work done by Mark Twain, so he says, had its publication in New York. "My article was about the burning of the clipper-ship Hornet on the line, May 3, 1866. There were thirty-one men on board at the time, and I was in Honolulu when the fifteen lean and ghostly survivors arrived there after a voyage of forty-three days in an open boat, through the blazing tropics, on ten days' rations of food. A very remarkable trip; but it was conducted by a captain who was a remarkable man; otherwise there would have been no survivors. He was a New-Englander of the best sea-going stock of the old clipper times—Captain Josiah Mitchell.

"I had been in the Islands several months when the survivors arrived. I was laid up in my room at the time, and unable to walk. Here was a great occasion to serve my journal, and I not able to take advantage of it. Necessarily I was in deep trouble. But by good luck his Excellency Anson Burlingame was there at the time, on his way to take up his post in China, where he did such good work for the United States. He came and put me on a stretcher and had me carried to the hospital where the shipwrecked men were, and I never needed to ask a question. He attended to all of that himself, and I had nothing to do but make the notes. It was like him to take that trouble. He was a great man and a great American, and it was in his fine nature to come down from his high office and do a friendly turn whenever he could.

"We got through with this work at six in the evening. I took no dinner, for there was no time, to spare if I would beat the other correspondents. I spent four hours arranging the notes in their proper order, then wrote all night and beyond it; with this result: that I had a very long and detailed account of the Horat episode ready at nine in the morning, while the correspondents of the San Francisco journals had nothing but a brief outline report—for they didn't sit up. The newspaper and then schooner was to sail for San Francisco about nine; when I reached the dock she was free forward and was just casting off her stern-line. My fat envelope was thrown by a strong hand, and fell on board all right, and my victory was a safe thing. All in due time the ship reached San Francisco, but it was my complete report which made the stir, and was telegraphed to the New York papers, by Mr. Cash; he was in charge of the Pacific bureau of the New York Herald at the time.

"When I returned to California by and by, I went up to Sacramento and presented a bill for general correspondence at $20 a week. It was paid. Then I presented a bill for 'special' service on the Hornet matter of three columns of solid nonpareil at $100 a column. The cashier didn't faint, but he came rather near it. He sent for the proprietors, and they came and never uttered a protest. They only laughed in their jolly fashion, and said it was robbery, but no matter; it was a grand 'scoop' (the bill or my Hornet report, I didn't know which); 'pay it. It's all right.'

"The Hornet survivors reached the Sandwich Islands the 15th of June. They were mere skinny skeletons; their clothes hung limp about them and fitted them no better than a flag fits the flagstaff in a calm. But they were well nursed in the hospital; the people of Honolulu kept them supplied with all the dainties they could need; they gathered strength fast, and were presently nearly as good as new. Within a fortnight the most of them took ship for San Francisco; that is, if my dates have not gone astray in my memory. I went in the same ship, a sailing-vessel. Captain Mitchell of the Hornet was along; also the only passengers the Hornet had carried. These were two young gentlemen from Stamford, Connecticut—brothers; Samuel Ferguson, aged 28, a graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, and Henry Ferguson, aged 18, a student of the same college, and now at this present writing a professor there, a post which he has held for many years.

[Two of the three boats from the Hornet were lost. Captain Mitchell sailed 4,000 miles to Honolulu. It is related how the Captain's boat, on landing in this group, was saved from wreck on the reef by two natives.]

"Within ten days after the landing all the men but one were up and creeping about. Properly, they ought to have killed themselves with the 'food' of the last few days—some of them, at any rate—men who had freighted their stomachs with strips of leather from old boots and with chips from the butter-cask; a freightage which they did not get rid of by digestion, but by other means. The captain and the two passengers did not eat strips and chips, as the sailors did, but scraped the best leather and the wood, and made a pulp of the scrapings by moistening them with water. The third mate told me that the boots were old, and full of holes; then added thoughtfully, 'but the holes digested the best.'

"When the landing was made, all the men were successfully protected from overeating except the 'Fortyger'; he escaped the watch and ate an incredible number of bananas; a hundred and fifty-two, the third mate said, but this was undoubtedly an exaggeration; I think it was a hundred and fifty-one. He was already nearly full of leather; it was hanging out of his ears. (I do not state this on the third mate's authority, for we have seen what sort of person he was; I state it on my own.) Twain considers the journals of the Fergusons the virgin gold of literature. The whole story of the Hornet, clipped from the Sacramento paper, is in one of the scrapbooks at the Volcano House.

A COCONUT ISLAND SQUATTER.

One of the most interesting documents to come before the meeting of the Cabinet here today will be the Hawaiian letter from Sheriff Andrews. This official has sent a report on an attempt to establish squatter sovereignty on Coconut Island, a charming public pleasure ground at Hilo Bay. C. D. Pringle claimed to have ascertained that the place had never been set aside as a reservation and that it was open to settlement. Pringle landed lumber on the island, but the sheriff interfered to prevent the carrying on of building operations. Mr. Andrews sends this word and asks for advice. The Attorney General will be requested to furnish an opinion and will do so promptly.

Mr. Pringle is a merchant of Hilo. He was at one time a school teacher on the island of Kauai.

Recollection of Fernback.

More or less has been published here from time to time about the levanting of Fernback, a young purser who was with the Inter-Island Company for many months. Fernback managed to get away with $500 which had been entrusted to him by some Chinese on another island. The Inter-Island Company has now been used for recovery of this $500, the papers having been filed in the Circuit Court on Saturday. George A. Davis, a attorney for the claimants. The question of whether or no defendant corporation is responsible for the dishonesty of its servant will without doubt be stubbornly contested. Fernback's fall from grace was a shock to many who had known him. He was as modest, quiet and unassuming a young man as ever gained favor at a boarding-house.

Central Union Music.

The music at Central Union Church last night was excellent. The organ prelude from "Cavalleria Rusticana" was beautifully rendered by Professor Ingalls, as also was the call to worship. "God Shall Charge His Angel Legions," by a quartette composed of Miss E. Halsestead, soprano; Mrs. C. R. Damon, alto; Mr. C. Elston, tenor; and Mr. Allan Judd, bass. The anthem, "The Radiant Morn Hath Passed Away," was given, and during the offertory an instrumental quartette composed of J. Rosen, violin; Harold Mott-Smith, cello; Mrs. J. W. Yandley, piano; and Professor A. B. Ingalls, organ; rendered Fesca's "Adagio E dur" in a most artistic manner.

Big Union Meeting.

A Union meeting of the Young People's Societies of the city was held yesterday evening at the Kuumakapi church. There was a very large attendance.

Rev. E. P. Perry and Mr. Cants were the principal speakers and chose as a topic "The Spirit Filled Christian." Unusually good singing without instrumental accompaniment and led by the Kawaiahao choir under the direction of Prof. Theo. Richards was highly enjoyed by a crowded audience.

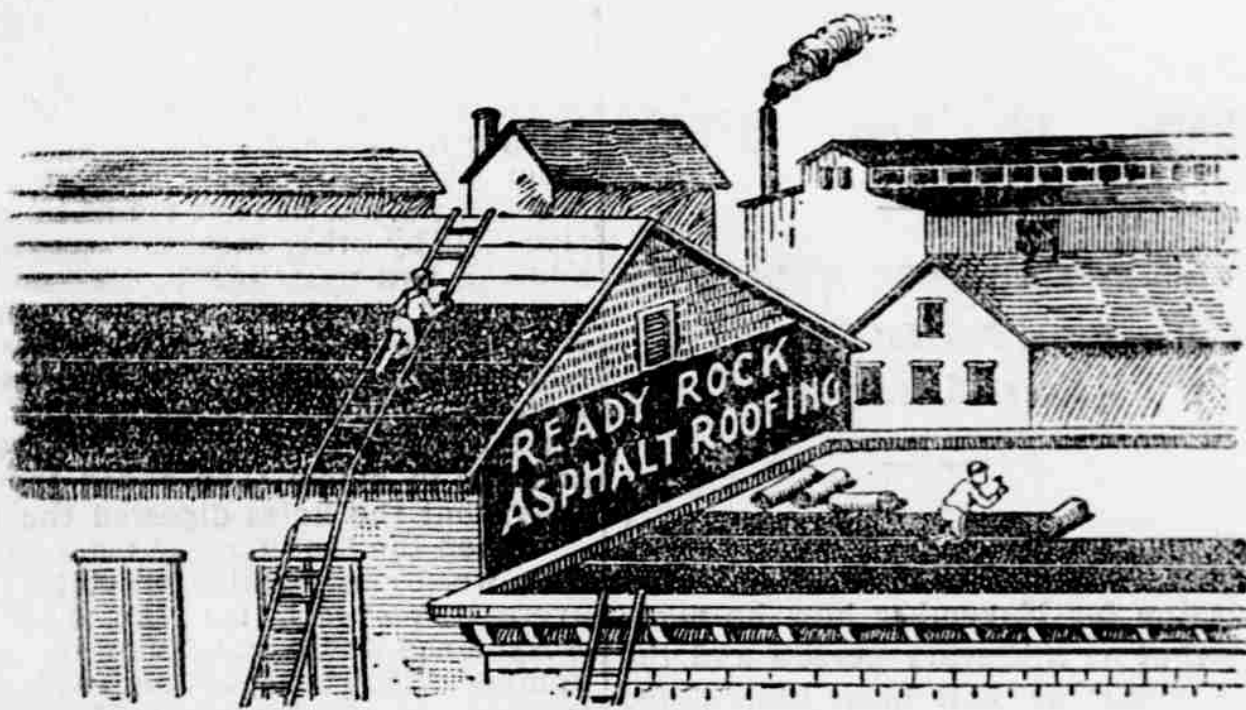

TROPIC OILS.

By the "Tolani" over a hundred barrels of this well-known oil, and now afloat over 200 more barrels; so we don't think we will run short of oil during the coming sugar season. Tropic Oils for engine, cylinder, dynamo, car box, roller and all other lubricating purposes have not got their equal in this market. Our sales prove this, for from a small beginning we have worked up to an oil business that shows that the article used is all right. Get your season's supply from us.

A STRANGE FRUIT

Body of a Jap Found Hanging on a Guava Bush.

Committed Suicide Because of His Illness:—Had to Splice Timber.

(Hilo Herald, Thursday, Nov. 9.)

A Japanese laborer was found hanging by the neck to a guava bush on the Puna road about one mile from the Volcano road last Monday morning. Sheriff Andrews was notified and proceeded to the spot for the purpose of making an investigation the result of which convinced the coroner's jury that it was clearly a case of suicide and a deliberate one at that.

It appears from the testimony that the man had been ill for some time and unable to work. His boarding master advised him to secure medical attendance and while assuring him food and place to sleep would not become responsible for his bill for medical attendance. The deceased left the hotel on Sunday presumably to visit Hilo, and before leaving told the boarding master he had $1.00 and tendered it to him as part payment of his account. This was refused, the master telling him he would need it.

The next seen of the man was as stated, hanging from the guava bush. From the appearances deceased had made careful preparations for his taking off. Near the spot was a clearing on which some guava trees and stumps were laying. He selected one to his purpose, drew it across the road and lashed it to another tree with a portion of the scarf he wore around his waist. The trunk of this tree he used to stand upon while fixing the noose around his neck, after which he is supposed to have jumped off.

When found the man had been dead for several hours. He was searched by the sheriff on arrival and a purse containing $1.55 was found on his person.

MISSION CHILDREN.

Entertainment and Earnest Discussion on the Future.

The Hawaiian Mission Children's Society met Saturday evening in the parlors of Kawaiahao Seminary.

The evening was spent in an interesting discussion of a report brought in by a committee appointed to devise new forms of entertainment that might specially interest young people, and in listening to a number of songs by Kawaiahao students that were introduced from time to time during the discussion.

The committee, disapproving of the only brand new form of entertainment suggested to them (that of having tableaux of the missionary fathers and mothers at meetings), brought in a report proposing that the society become a purely memorial institution, that the meetings be fewer, consisting of one regular meeting a year and a few others, which should commemorate specific historical events connected with the Hawaiian Mission, that the usual appropriations be no longer made annually, and that no new members be admitted unless of missionary descent or connected by marriage or descent with a member of the society.

The discussion developed a hearty approval of the committee's course in repudiating the idea of having tableaux of the missionary fathers at meetings, the only tableau mentioned with favor during the evening being that of a certain missionary father on horseback with one son in front and one behind. The proposal to have fewer meetings a year than twelve was approved of generally, but strong opposition made to the rest of the report. The aloha of the old members of the organization, as it was, appeared plainly. It was said among other things that there were no begrudging givers to the society, that the meetings were as large as they could be if they continued to be held in private houses, and that it was a unique society in the world, whose place could not be filled by any other. No final action was taken, but the committee report accepted without being adopted, and a new committee appointed to suggest any constitutional changes thought proper to the next meeting.

Sued the Postmaster.

Samoa papers have long accounts of a lawsuit before the Supreme Court at Apia with Dr. Sigfried Gentne, correspondent of the Cologne Gazette, as plaintiff. The defendant is the postmaster, who holds his position by warrant of the three powers. The name of the official is Davis, and from the testimony adduced it is evident that he conducts business like some of the ranch postmasters in the wild and woolly West. Dr. Gentne called for his mail on the 5th day of September and was given a few papers. He insisted that there must be more and inquired several other days, but with no further result till the 18th of the month, when there was handed to him the letter of advice from Cologne that he had been expecting. It had his orders, which were to proceed by the steamer of the 8th to San Francisco and thence to Washington to report the proceedings of the High Commission. Dr. Gentne was delayed a full month. He asked for damages in the sum of $750 and the case was taken under consideration by Justice Osborn.

The regular meeting and concert of the Triangle Literary Club takes place this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A very interesting program has been prepared. Every member is earnestly requested to be present.

HAVE A PURPOSE

Rev. Kincaid's Strong Sermon to Young Men.

MOST IMPORTANT REQUISITE

Great Peril of Aimlessness and Indecision—The Example of Gen. Booth. What to Do With Life.

The subject of Rev. Wm. M. Kincaid's discourse last evening was from the thirteenth verse of the third chapter of the Epistle of St. Paul to the Philippians.

"I count not myself to have apprehended, but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before."

Selecting the words "I do" from the above-quoted verse, Mr. Kincaid made them the basis of his second lesson, "Purpose," in the series on "The Making of Manhood."

One of the most conspicuous instances of purpose, unswervingly followed, is shown in the life of General Booth, the organizer and commander of the Salvation Army. Twenty-five years ago Booth stood bareheaded in the lowest of the slums of London, pelted with mud, penniless and friendless, called a crack-brained fanatic and a fool, but notwithstanding all the indignities heaped upon him he remained steadfast in his purpose to become a factor in the religious world, and today his hand is warmly shaken by the statesman and church dignitary, while crowds press around him, calling him a savior of society.

The speaker gave an eloquent and graphic word-picture of a ship at sea, drifting about at the will of wind and current, her captain without any compass or chart, who, if he were spoken and asked his destination, would reply: "I do not know!" or who, if warned that he was off his course, would respond: "I'll get there all the same in time." Such a man would be considered a fool and a madman, and his action would inevitably result in shipwreck and ruin; and so it is with a young man who starts out upon this sea of life without a purpose in view—a stated course which he is determined upon following to its end; who drifts with the tide and allows the world to blow him hither and thither.

The greatest question a young man can put to himself is, "What will I do with my life?" and it must be answered now—in a year or two it will be too late. Now he is his own master, in sound physical health and its enjoyment, his clear brain filled with great thoughts, a fountain of noble speech which can be made to thrill and thrill with the pulses of emotion.

He belongs to the same order as Socrates, Shakespeare, Washington, Lincoln; aye, even Christ himself; and, although to himself he may, in comparison with this great world, appear a most insignificant atom; in reality he is greater than it. He may utilize its hidden energy, unearth its hidden mysteries and its wealth. It is his, if only he will use it with a purpose in view; but if he waste his opportunities there comes a remorseful torture, an indifference to all that is high and noble.

He does not deliberately choose wickedness; he simply drifts into it, for rest assured that if he does not choose his future the devil will soon do it for him. Procrastination is the curse of mankind. "Some day" never dawns. Lives are gambled away and youth's golden harvest squandered because we cannot make up our minds. The epitaph which appears on the grave of an English Prince, "Here lies a man of the very best intentions," could be applied to such men.

The speaker instanced the lives of men he had known, who, starting life at college, possessed of brilliant capabilities, might have become successful theologians, journalists, poets or lawyers had they but possessed the necessary concentration of mind on purpose. Friends would urge them to consider their future, but, thoughtless or careless as children, they drifted away into habit and out of sight into darkness.

Lack of purpose was manifest in the Franco-Prussian war of 1871. The armies of France were marched about here and there without any plan of campaign. Indecision ruled in the councils of France and spread to the soldiers. The German army had a set program and followed it throughout the war, with the result that the power of France was broken and the nation humiliated. So it is in the battle of this life. Steady, persistent determination is required in following a stated purpose.

And what is this purpose? It is to be like Christ. By this is meant that we follow in His steps as the most perfect Man—one who led an ideal life, superlatively holy, who was the highest Exponent of duty, the pattern of all that is highest and best in the world, broad-minded, intensely human and truly Divine.

A man may say, "I can not do this"; but the hardness of discipline is proportionate to the splendor of the result. Men make infinite efforts to gain wealth, but what effort do they make to obtain pure manhood, and how much better is manhood than wealth!

There was a wedding at the Roman Catholic Cathedral at 5 o'clock Saturday evening. Joan Correia was the groom and Miss Liella Gouveia the bride. A reception was held at the new home on Alapai street.

Hilo's Library Association had on hand the year ending November 1, a cash balance of $85.25. Mrs. Severance is president; C. C. Kennedy, vice president; L. Severance, treasurer; F. Winter, secretary, and Mrs. J. A. Cruzan, auditor.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE.

Mr. T. F. Lansing will be a faithful and acceptable Minister of Finance. Moreover he will be loyal to his chief, any intimations to the contrary notwithstanding, made by the Opposition journal. It is in Spanish-American, and not in North American politics, that a person accepts office in a cabinet, with intent to knife his chief. When President Lincoln, a Republican, appointed Mr. Stanton, a Democrat, to the office of Secretary of War, Mr. Stanton became sincerely loyal to his chief, and offended the Opposition by refusing to "knife him." Mr. Lansing will not begin his career by telling Mr. Dole that he is a traitor and coward. But he will administer the affairs of his office with judgment and intelligence, and that will be loyalty itself.

"HAWAIIAN AMERICA."

Harper & Brothers have recently issued "Hawaiian America" the author of which is Caspar Whitney. The book is admirably illustrated.

On reading it, one is surprised at the amount of accurate information, and the correct estimate of men and things, which it contains. Mr. Whitney is a sponge in his capacity for absorbing data of all kinds. His visit in these Islands was short, but he has obtained and recorded in this book, a greater variety of information than has appeared in any of the books which have been recently published on the subject of Hawaii. The material is well digested. There are some inaccurate statements.

Mr. Whitney is not correct in stating that Kamehameha II. gave land to the early missionaries, with the result that the children of these missionaries, instead of being sent back to America remained on the Islands to be educated. The King gave little, if any, lands to the missionaries. The few small parcels, of no market value in the early days, which the missionaries did obtain were usually purchased for cow pastures and gardens. Sixty years afterwards some of these parcels became valuable for cane cultivation. Many of the children of the missionaries were sent to the American colleges, and much personal sacrifice was made in doing so. The American Board of Missions established, at its own expense, the Punahou school, now Oahu college, to meet the earnest demand of the missionaries for the adequate education of their children. It is surprising, however, that the errors in the book are so few.

Mr. Whitney's style is graphic and taking, as we all know. He does not attempt to treat Hawaiian history as Prof. Blackburn has done it, in the "Making of Hawaii." That treatise is unique, and could only be written by a specialist in political philosophy. Mr. Whitney does not discuss the true inwardness of Hawaiian evolution, the curious outcome of Puritanism engraving New England law upon Polynesian stock. But he describes accurately and justly the external facts and manifestations of the evolution, and he furnishes something far above the slobbering stuff about the Islands that newspaper correspondents have unfortunately put into book form.

Mr. Whitney speaks with discrimination and justice of the half-white woman. He detects the influence of the missionaries in steadily urging the marriage between whites and natives in order to prevent illicit relations. To this enlightened policy, he attributes the striking difference between these Islands and other lands where the stronger and the weaker races have come together, and the illicit relation has been nearly universal. While the story of the relations of the whites to the natives in the Pacific is a sad one, it will remain an accepted fact in Hawaiian history, that the missionaries urged the King and chiefs to create and preserve the marriage relation, and to this attitude of the missionaries is due the general legitimacy of the half-caste population. Mr. Whitney takes a hopeful view of the destiny of the half-castes here, and he justly believes that they will in time, become a strong social force. Fortunately, there have been no race distinctions made in Hawaii. Although the later immigrants from America are disposed to refuse them the fullest social recognition, the fixed habit of the community allows no discriminations other than are made between different classes of the white race.

Mr. Whitney justifies the penal contract labor system, but he does not discuss the repulsive feature in it, that it gives an ignorant luma altogether too much power over the laborer, and develops the worst features of the power of the strong over the weak. Mr. Whitney says of the Japanese laborer, he is a natural "walking delegate," and favors the modern labor unions, and being now converted to that idea "pursued it with the same hysteria that has characterized his adoption of Western ideas generally in Japan." He says, "The average Japanese day worker could probably give agitator Debs pointers on the systematic organization of labor."

He further says, "Speaking generally, the care of plantation laborers has been most considerate, and in some instances that came under my notice, really paternal."

He also reviews the industrial prospects, and with remarkable insight, detects the existing hindrances to the development of Hawaii. He sees in the large individual holdings of lands, in the contract labor system, and in the exorbitant transportation rates, the serious drawbacks to the growth of a civilized community. He cites the current statement that, "All the land on the island of Kauai is either owned outright or held on long leases by six men," and the fact that no one can now purchase any land even for a home on that island.

"Hawaiian America" is one of the books which may be depended upon, without reservation for its accurate information. Aside from this, its literary finish is very attractive.

THE GREASED POLE.

The persistent attacks of the organ of the Opposition upon Gen. Hartwell, recall the story of Capt. Whistler's monkey. The captain had planted a long pole in his garden and upon the top of it, placed a cage containing an eagle. At the foot of the pole he chained a Brazilian monkey. The monkey's delight was in climbing the pole to the eagle's cage, and in pulling out his feathers. To check this mischievous conduct, the captain kept the pole well greased, so that when the monkey struggled to reach the top of it in the conscientious discharge of his mission on earth to pull out the eagle's feathers, he invariably slipped back to the ground, with much screaming and vituperative language in the Simian tongue. He was never, however, discouraged, and it became his daily occupation and finally his pleasure to climb the greased pole and slip back to the ground with a whack. While the eagle was rather indifferent Capt. Whistler enjoyed it, and remarked to a friend, "That blamed monkey is just as happy when he slips down the pole, as when he climbs it. He's pretty high knocked off his tail, but he's a doin' his duty."

The Dole Government has placed Gen. Hartwell on the top of an unofficial pole. It is well greased. The Opposition organ, prompted by a sense of duty, faithfully climbs up the pole every day in order to pull the General down. As its ascent is always followed by a rapid descent, with empty hands, but with an inspiring sense of duty gratified, the case stands, that the General, like the eagle, is indifferent, the Dole Government, like the captain, watches the ascent and descent with pleasure, and the organ, like the captain's ape, is also happy. Is the morning star of peace rising over this community?

As for Gen. Hartwell, as he holds his commission, signed by Abraham Lincoln, and approved by the American Senate, as a reward for services on the battle fields, and is, with President McKinley a member of the Loyal Legion, and is, moreover, the only old resident in these Islands who has the honor of holding high rank in the great Civil war—he may well resurrect Gen. Butler's memorable words: "Shoo fly don't bodder me."

In the play of "The Lady of Lyons," the infirm Cardinal discovers the conspirators in the act of abducting his beautiful ward. Raising himself to his utmost height, he draws in the name of ——— with his long finger an imaginary circle around her prostrate form. He shouts to the conspirators, "Place but one step within that sacred spot, and at thy head, yea, though I wore a crown, I launch the curse of Rome." America, the goddess of Liberty cares for her own. Around every old veteran she draws the sacred circle of her protection and devotion, and against those men of the Opposition, who put their dirty feet within that sacred circle, she launches the curse of her anger.

However—perhaps the burning of a little buhac would have done as well.

"A GREAT RELIEF"

Warm Obituary Notice
for a Notorious Chief.

Had Long Been a Desperate Brawler—He Shot Down Two Men and Was Then Done to His Death.

APIA, Sept. 30.—On the day the American left news came down from Alepata that the High Chief Tuilsila had killed a couple of men by shooting them with a revolver.

Tuilsila is one of the highest chiefs in Atua, and some six years ago deliberately shot his own brother while he was engaged in putting a child to sleep. Ever since then he has had to go about with an armed body-guard, sometimes a large number—never less than six. His brother's people had sworn vengeance, but never exacted it.

Lately at Alepata, in Atua, a taalofo, or feast, was being held, and some trivial matter caused a dispute among some of the young bloods. Tuilsila was not at the taalofo, but in his own village, close by. When the matter was told him, he got up, walked to where all were assembled, and deliberately went up and struck a man in the face. The assailed turned to run, knowing Tuilsila's reputation, but Tuilsila drew his revolver and shot the man, and also another close by. Both fell dead.

Then a chief of equal rank called out to kill Tuilsila, and he was immediately set upon with knives and axes. He was wounded on the head and stomach, but not before he had shot a third man. His assailants left him on the ground, thinking he was dead, but his friends, in removing him, found he was alive, and brought him to Apia to the German warship Cormoran, for medical attendance. The doctor could do nothing, and the dying chief was taken home again to Alepata, where he died last Monday.

His death will be a great relief to the whole district. The families who had the men killed by the chief talked at first of getting help from the Malletto district of Falealili, and starting fighting again, but the death of Tuilsila enabled wise counsels to prevail, and no fighting took place.

To Try Vanilla.

Byron O. Clark, the high chief and laboring priest of the practical horticulturists of the Islands is to actively and earnestly experiment now along lines that have been dwelt upon by the newspapers and a number of individuals here for years. Mr. Clark has received a quantity of vanilla beans from Samoa and will undertake to see what can be accomplished by their growth commercially. David Haugs, secretary of the Bureau of Agriculture here, says the plant will thrive if favored by location and care. A gentleman who was here from Samoa some months ago wanted to start in on the cultivation of the bean on a large scale, but was unable to get any support.

LAXATIVE.

THE KIND YOU HAVE ALWAYS bought has borne the signature of the Western Chemical Co. of Chicago, Ill., for years. Allow no one to deceive you with counterfeits. Imitations and "just as goods" are but experiments, and endanger the health of children.

What is Laxative?

LAXATIVE IS NOTHING BUT THE FINEST CASTOR OIL, with its objectionable taste removed by our new process. LAXATIVE is as pleasant to take as honey. Children like it. No trouble to get them to take it. It contains neither opium, morphine, nor other narcotic substances. It relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency; it assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep.—The Children's Panacea—the Mothers' Friend.

Legitimate Homesteaders Reported Safe.

Hilo Claims to Have Reassuring Word from Washington—Railway People Have Investigated.

(Hawaii Herald, Nov. 9.)

Word has been received from Washington by a homesteader in North Hilo that it is not the intention of the United States Government to interfere in any way with the actual homesteaders who have bought land from the Hawaiian Government since August 12, 1898. The object of the McKinley proclamation was to protect Government rights at Pearl Harbor and the exchange of lands with private individuals. This homesteader was instructed to go ahead with his improvements the same as if the proclamation had not been issued. The information comes from a secretary of a Senator close to President McKinley. The same letter contained advice to the effect that H. B. Gehr had been in Washington and was satisfied that the decision of the United States Government would not in any way hamper the promoters of the Hilo-Kohala Railway Company, and that the balance of the machinery for grading purposes had been ordered shipped from Philadelphia. Mr. Gehr and his bride, together with the engineer corps were to leave for the Islands November 1.

MATERIAL FOR HILO.

The metal work for the Wailuku bridge and the sewer-pipe for Hilo, says the Hawaii Herald, has arrived in San Francisco and will be shipped to Hilo at an early date. Delay is caused by the quantity of railway material for the Hilo Railway Company as well as the merchandise ordered by merchants, which takes precedence on the vessels. The building of the street on the Puuoe side of the river will probably not begin until the bridge is in position. Otherwise stones for the road would have to be carried for a long distance and the expense would be heavy, whereas when the bridge is finished the haul from the quarry to the new street would be short and the work would be expedited. It is probable that the bridge will be ready for traffic within sixty days.

Opium in Possession.

The Supreme Court has made a new interpretation on the law defining the offense of having opium in possession. There are many prosecutions under this statute. It is held by the court of last resort, in affirming the opinion of the Circuit Court for this Island, that "If a person has control of opium and can take it into actual possession at his pleasure, then this is having opium in possession within the meaning of the law." Many who have been proceeded against for this offense have made the claim that the contraband drug was simply resting in their vicinity and not at all in their possession. These people will of course be more careful hereafter.

Funeral of a Child.

The funeral was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon of Othmar Ward Bartlett, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Bartlett. The bright and beautiful little child was a general favorite. During the funeral service the residence was crowded with friends of the family and the procession to Nuuanu cemetery was an unusually long one. The little casket was covered with floral pieces, the offerings making a large bank in the room. Rev. Alex. Mackintosh was the clergyman.

USED BY BRITISH SOLDIERS IN AFRICA.

Capt. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous rebel Galshe. Under date of November 4, 1897, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, and had given to my men, and in every case it proved most beneficial." For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., agents for H. I.
