THE LEGISLATURE

The Legislative Assembly did not make much progress in any direction yesterday, but the sitting was remarkable trenchment by His Excellency Mr. Gib-Assembly perhaps. Our report, although | for outs were given. pretty full, does not do it justice. It terday, but was postponed until Friday, master its details. This prevents its Under all the circumstances we are not disposed to quarrel with the decision. It is better to take time and pass an equitable and simple tax law than to enact a crude law, which would come up in the next following session for amendment. There is therefore really nothing to be gained in the long run by hasty legis! tion, and if the Ady to the consideration of this measure next Friday, the Kinney and Wodehouse scored for the postponement will not have been without advantage to the country at large. The estimates of expenditure in the Appropriation bill were taken up, during the discussion on which His Excellency Mr. Gibson made the speech already referred to. The necessity for rigid economy was recognized by all speakers, and the pruning knife of retrenchment was unsparingly applied. This, to be truly effective, should be done intelligently, and reductions in each case should be considered with reference to the value and importance of the service rendered. In other words, there should be just discrimination exercised in this matter, as would be done by the head of a banking-house, mercantile firm or manufactory who had resolved to retrench, and reorganize the business under his control. It is just possible that a very considerable sum might be saved by reorganizing the various bureaus. the Benedicts, F. Winter made first on This, however, is only known to Ministers who have had experience of the working of the departments, and is a matter that could not be safely undertaken by the Legislature. It may be Booth going out. Score, three runs. that we are wrong, however, in this assumption, and that the perfection of system has been reached in the working details of the various departments, but Kain 1st b we very much doubt it. Be this as it may, retrenchment is absolutely necessary, and if it cannot be brought about partly by change of method, it nrust be

Inoculation of a Condemned Crim-

The following is a summary of an account in the "New York Medical Journal" of the first attempt to use a condemned criminal for the solution of an important and scientific question at the Hawaiian Islands. It appears that, more than two years ago, the Government procured the services of Dr. Edward Arning for the purpose of having a thorough and scientific study made of leprosy. Attempts were made to cultivate the bacillus lepræ, which is uniformly found in great numbers in the deceased parts, but not in the blood, by Koch's method, using various media, but without success. Numerous inoculation experiments upon lower animals were made, but, although the bacilli would grow at the points of inoculation for a long time, the animal never became infected. At last Dr. Arning obtained permission to make an inoculation upon a condemned criminal, whose sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life. With the convict's written consent an inoculation of leprous matter was made in his arm, and bacilli were found in the sore or the scar up to publication. fourteen months after the operation, no constitutional symptoms being observed. One further observation of importance was made by Dr. Arning. He found that in putrid leprous tissues, and even in the body of a leper who had been dead for three months, the bacilli were found in great numbers. This seems to bear against their specific pathogenetic function. Owing to difficulties with the Health Board, it is stated that it is highly probable Dr. Arning will be obliged to discontinue his work of research. With respect to the cultivation of bacillus, Dr. Neisser, of Breslau, appears to Council of State. have have successful than Dr. ceedingly slow growth, and he also claims to have recognized spores, which the Hawaiian observer has, so far, failed

Important Auction Sale.

Mr. J. Lyons, auctioneer, will sell by auction to-day, at his mart, Queen and Fort streets, several choice lines of merchandise, by order of Messrs. Geo. W. Macfarlane & Co., the importers. This is a trade sale and should command a large attendance, as the goods are seasonable and selected specially for this market. A more particular description of the goods in question will be found in another part of to-day's paper.

Captain Glaser of the barkentine C. C. Funk, now discharging coal near the Pa cific Mail Company's wharf, has a bird, said to be the first of the kind ever brought into this Kingdom. It is a king parrot, and speaks well. Captain Glaser procured the bird seven years ago at Guatemala, Central America, and highly prizes it. He

He had made reference to the salaries of officials in the United States, and had associated the incumbents of office with the multitude of people, but he (Mr. Gibson) felt there was no proper application of his remarks in the way he would have the House understand. He quoted to them the salaries of officials as being so moderate on account not so much of their work as of the millions of people represented in connection with the office. It was true that the Secretary of State of that great republic, with its fifty millions of people, receives $8,000 per annum, but he had four or five under secretaries under him and be able to say that it was built in a straightabout two hundred other officials connected with the Consular and Diplomatic and other bureaus. He might also speak of the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, Commissioners of Pensions, the Governors and other United States officers referred to. But it is useless to recite their salaries as being moderate or small in consequence of the fifty millions of people of their country. Many years ago he resided at Washington, and in consequence of an important event in the history of his life which required statements to be prepared at the State Department, he had an opportunity of observing the work of that deamendment that the House adjourn until partment. would pass as in the bill. It was not for a salary, but an item of necessity. Mr. Thurston said he would like to know something about this matter. The Legislature last session appropriated $19,000 for a new Police Court building, and here is a request for $26,000 more. When the Legislature votes $19,000 for a building the Ministers had no right to spend one dollar more than the appropriation. The princimuch for a building and the Cabinet goes dealers a rare opportunity of replenishing their STOCKS. on spending above the amount, and then asks the next session to pay it. The power of checking expenditure is being taken away from the Legislature. It would probably be argued that it could not be built for $19,000. It was a very important matter when under an appropriation of $19,000 the Cabinet spends $45,000. He called to mind a remark made by the Hon. Mr. Widemann at the last session. It was: You have got to keep your hand on the mouth of the purse. It is the only power you have to control the Ministry." There had been a good deal of scandal talked on the streets about the contract for this building. It was due to those in charge to forward manner, without any crookedness If there was anything crooked, the House

tion. In the report of the Interior Department it was shown how the $19,000 had been spent, but there is no explaining of the spending of $26,000. It would be a good thing to refer it to a committee.

Mr. Brown thought it was not necessary to refer it to a committee. Part of the item was for furniture for the new building, as it will be remembered that the entire contents of the old Police Station were destroyed by the fire. He also knew of an expenditure for a station keeper's house. This had been entirely forgotten until it was found that there was no place to receive prisoners. He was quite satisfied with the Minister's report.

Mr. Thurston said that the more he looked at the item, the less he understood it. He noticed in the Interior report that there was no mention made of any money being paid to Mr. Thomas, the contractor. He (Mr. Thurston) had occasion to sue the latter with the Government as garnishee. He obtained judgment and collected his money from the Interior Office, but it was not mentioned. The motion to refer to a select committee was then put and lost.

Mr. Thurston said that after such facts had been brought forward, it was nothing more than courtesy that the Minister of Interior should explain, but his chair had been empty all the afternoon. THE FLEM OF J. A. BECKWITH & CO., OF LOG SAM SHIN, Hilo, constats of J. A. BECKWITH and WM. MATSON. 249-2 w

[Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.] "Do railroad trains think? have they instinct? do you fancy a train has any qualities that has not already been attributed to it as a common carrier? I mean psychological qualities," was the odd lot of questions hurled this morning in a bunch at a

"I can not say as to trains," he replied, with deliberation; "but as you suggest the possibility, I may say that anything is CUBEwithin the limits of the attainable in this progressive age. Locomotive engineers have been known to regard their engines as things possessing qualities fully up to the instinct of animals. It's a sort of iron horse sense I should say. Sometimes a GOLDEN C. (COFFEE,certain engine is regarded as unlucky, and engineers dislike to handle it. There have been stories of the tendency of such an engine to get into smash-ups and to kill its attendants, for all the world like a vicious horse. Others have been renowned for docility, the ease with which they work, their quick response to the manipulation of the levers, their cleverness in not being on hand when there is an accident, their small consumption of fuel and water, and their infrequent visits to the hospital. Such an engine seldom gets sick, and is the pet of the engineer, and receives the tender attention of the rubbing-down cloth of the fire-

An interesting book might be written on the engineers' and firemen's estimate of anatomy, physiology, and psychology of the locomotive. But yet, do you know, I have my doubts as to its having a thinking arrangement within its iron-bound carcass. In reference to the engineer's superstition perhaps it would be as well to give a point as to locomotives possessing instinct, but I draw the line there; they certainly haven't brains. As for cars, I believe they are positively stupid. They have no motive in life except when annexed to the intelligent engine."

"Possibly, then," said the searcher into locomotive mind and matter, "perhaps it may be that an engine may have so much wit as to be the mentor of an entire trainpermeate the stupidity of the cars, so to speak. When you rush for Union station and see the train you were hurrying for putting out of the shed and the cylinder cocks puffing out sarcastic remarks at the tardiness of mankind, don't you fancy for a moment that that train knows more about Eastern standard time and promptness than you?"

"No, the feeling is that of an indignant reproach at the locomotive. I acknowledge I regard it for a moment as I would a man who hadn't quite come up to my expectations in regard to an appointment, but the train, the cars, do not enter into the consideration except as a dead responsibility annex, of no more account than the coattails of a man."

"I am largely of your opinion," was the interested reply. "Let me relate the incident that impelled my first series of questions. Yesterday evening, when I got home, I found two relatives from a city in ar adjoining State. They had taken a sudden notion to visit me and came without notice, of course. Within an hour two relatives from the northern part of this State put in an appearance. No sooner did party No. 2 see party No. 1 than there was a cry of surprise. 'Why, you here!' ejaculated No. 2. 'How fortunate. We went to O- this morning to take the train to pay you a visit. At O- we saw our train leave a minute too soon, but just then an engine on another railroad began making up a train for Pittsburgh and we concluded to visit our friends here.' As party No. 1 had not left home until two hours after, No. 2 experienced the wisdom of the two engines at 0-, the inference is that locomotives not only know what is going on, but possess a sort of prescience, a prophetic instinct that in this case was superior to the minds of the fewer intelligent persons comprised in my Nos. 1 and 2 visiting merting,"

How a Young Woman Is Alleged to Have Had Dead Loads of Fun With a Car Full of Men. [N. Y. Letter.]

I hold it to be a truth constantly selfevident that a man will defend a woman against all men except himself. If you haven't noticed it already you have only to look for it an hour or so in any place of pretty woman without a male escort, and | Assortment of two phenomena will become obvious. Firstly, there will be a large amount of open and covert staring at her, to all of which her obliviousness is of course only assumed. Secondly, if one of the starers happens to realize that others are at the same game, he will manifest plainly his disgust at such treatment of an unprotected beauty, utterly ignorant of his own offense. A husband and wife got into a street car. The man was somewhat dudish in dress. The woman was under twenty, and as pretty as nature and art are in the habit of combining to produce. They were chatting on the very subject that I have introduced.

"Percival, dear," said she, "I will prove to you that I am right, and take only ten Contracts, minutes to do it, if you'll promise not to get angry about it."

He closed the contract. Then she drew herself up, as though the husband sitting beside her was an entire stranger, and waited for the car to fill with passengers at Union Square.

"Now," she whispered behind her fan, "observe how I am ogled when alone." Within five minutes he saw that half a dozen masculine passengers, from hoary age to callow youth, eyed his bride with more or less audacity, and several manifestly would not have needed the smallest beginning of a wink on her part to seize upon her then and there. That part of the Orders. exhibition was a triumph for the wife, but the most curious feature of the experiment remained to be tried.

"You certainly do seem to attract a great deal of admiration," said the husband, supposing that the pretended strangeness was at an end. She lifted her eyebrows in simulated surprise, as though an impertinent fellow had unwarrantedly accosted her, and pointedly turned her face away from him. He understood her now, and did not speak to her further. Next, she drew her shoulder away from contact with his. By this time the spectators were believing that he was annoying her dreadfully, and scornful glances were aimed at him. A man arose from the opposite side. "Will you exchange seats with me?" he very gallantly and politely said, lifting his hat most deferentially.

Now he had been foremost among the original oglers—the veriest simpleton of

"Thank you, sir," she replied, "but I pre-fer to sit by my husband." Thus with the same stone she killed that vulture-bird and the dove-mate whom she esophy of male gallantry.
