Dr. Hyde reported on the work of the Hawaiian branch. Four new members were voted in. Messrs. Bowen and Fuller were appointed a committee to prepare printed notices to be placed in public places. A collection was taken up amounting to $12.

PUNAHOU PREPARATORY SCHOOL.

The closing examinations of the above school took place Thursday morning, and were attended by a large number of the parents and friends of the pupils. The result was very satisfactory and reflects much credit on the instruction imparted by the principal Miss Malone and her assistants.

At the graduating exercises last evening President Merritt announced that a friend had given $5,000 towards new buildings for the Preparatory School. Plans had been made and accepted, the work would proceed at once, and probably be completed ready for the fall term. The present building will be turned into one large assembly room, and a two-story building will be erected in rear.

OAHU COLLEGE.

Graduating Exercises at the Central Union Church.

The forty-eighth anniversary of Oahu College was held last evening at the Central Union Church. The decorations were on a magnificent scale. On the front of the organ at the top was the graduating class motto "Vincit, qui se vincit," meaning, "He conquers, who conquers himself." On the centre of the large gilt pipes was a beautiful bouquet principally of red flowers. Wreaths of evergreens with Cape jessamine and white oleanders were suspended from the top of the organ to either side of the choir gallery. On the desk of the latter stood bouquets of choice flowers. On the right of the gallery stood a high bouquet of lilies, and on the left one of roses. Round the temporary platform was a floral fence about a foot high, decorated with golden shawls, and at each end stood potted ferns and plants. The decorations were much admired for their tasteful arrangement, and were the work of the class of '90 assisted by a few of their friends.

The church was crowded in every part, those attending being shown to seats by attentive ushers. In the three front seats to the left of the platform sat the trustees of the college: His Honor Chief Justice Judd, Rev. Dr. E. G. Beckwith, Mr. Justice Dole, Hon. W. D. Alexander and W. O. Smith, Rev. Dr. C. M. Hyde, Messrs. P. C. Jones, C. M. Cooke, F. W. Damon and Dr. N. B. Emerson. The staff of the college occupied seats to the left. On the platform were: Rev. W. C. Merritt, Principal of Oahu College, Rev. W. D. Westervelt, and the graduating class: Miss Anna M. Kinney, Edward E. Mossman, Archibald N. Sinclair, Antonio Perry and Horace W. Chamberlain. H. R. H. Princess Liliuokalani and a large number of our prominent residents occupied seats in the body of the church.

The order of exercises was as follows:

Organ Voluntary—Schiller Fest-Marsch.....Meyerbeer
Prayer.....Rev. W. D. Westervelt
Piano Duet—Polonaise.....Scharwenka
Mr. Bissell and Emily A. Halstead.
Oration—Our Aim in Life.
Edward E. Mossman.
Oration—The Peril and Hope of Modern Cities.
Archibald N. Sinclair.
Duet—Excelsior.....Balle
Mr. Bissell and Ernest Lyman.
Oration—Portugal and Camoens.
Antonio Perry.
Oration—Prison Reform.
Horace W. Chamberlain.
Essay with Valedictory—Open Gates.
(Valedictory chosen by the class).
Anna M. Kinney.
Presentation of Diplomas by the President.

Solo—Reveries.....Rubinstein
Emily A. Halstead.
Anniversary Address.
Hon. H. A. P. Carter.
Song—Bridal Chorus.....Cowan
Benediction. Rev. W. D. Westervelt.

The various orations were masterly efforts, closely listened to by the large audience, and each speaker was loudly applauded at the conclusion. Some capital points and valuable suggestions were brought out by E. E. Mossman in "Our Aim in Life," and the oration was delivered with considerable skill.

A. Sinclair in his oration touched on the liquor question, also the hoarding up of wealth, and said that the introduction of gas, and later the electric light, had greatly reduced crime.

Antonio Perry eulogized Camoens, the epic poet of Portugal, and gave some interesting facts concerning the country itself. While other European countries were growing at each other, the current of Portugal's life was flowing quietly on.

Horace Chamberlain's oration was on "Prison Reform," which he said dated back to 1550. The prison was society's truest mirror. Under a system of prison reform the prisoner becomes better. Moral and physical training was necessary for young offenders, who were likely to become hardened criminals if neglected.

Miss Anna M. Kinney read an admirable essay on "Open Gates," at the close of which she delivered the following valedictory: Trustees and friends: We take this occasion to thank you for all the kindly interest you have manifested in our education. We heartily appreciate the progress which has been made during the five years of our course, in the promotion of the study of science, the valuable additions to the library, the improvements to the buildings and grounds, and the generous bestowal of the endowment fund, of which our school stood so greatly in need. Schoolmates, close and tender ties have bound us together during the pleasant life at Punahou. We hope that you will persevere in your work, cheerfully and earnestly, never yielding to listlessness or discouragement, for the end will surely crown all. Although our paths now diverge the sacred bands of friendship can never be severed, the sweetest of memories can never be forgotten. Dear teachers, you have been the gate-keepers of our school life. For several years you have set the gates ajar into pleasant paths of knowledge, and your hands have beckoned us on. We have often annoyed you by thoughtlessness and lack of preparation, but your patience and zeal have won our lifelong gratitude. We are especially indebted to our honored President, who has so assiduously and earnestly devoted himself to the highest interests of Oahu College. For all your kindness and helpfulness we most sincerely thank you. Classmates, the sad word "farewell" must now be spoken; we have come to the sunset gate of our school course. It opens upon the world's great highway. As these sunset gates unfold, we shall surely pass on to a bright morning, and a long day of useful work, if we adopt the spirit as well as the letter of the motto we have chosen, "He conquers, who conquers himself."

The floral offerings to the members of the graduating class were profuse and consisted of bouquets, baskets of flowers and several devices. The platform was covered with them.

During the exercises a piano duet was well played by Miss Emily Halstead and Mr. Bissell. The latter with Ernest Lyman rendered a vocal duet, "Excelsior," with fine effect. Miss Halstead has an exceedingly pleasant voice which she uses with good taste, and she was loudly applauded for the excellent manner in which she gave "Reveries" by Rubinstein. Part of the school sang a "bridal chorus" by Cowen in fine style, with organ and violin accompaniment, Prof. Berger and his pupil, Master S. Edw. Damon, playing the violins.

At the close of the valedictory President Merritt presented the diplomas to the graduates with the following remarks:

We have been told to-night what should be our aim in life. You know there are those who live aimless lives. I hope that no member of this class will join that company, for an aimless life is an empty life. Definitely set before yourselves some goal. And more than that, let me urge you to make it high and difficult of attainment. The years you have spent in study have looked forward to this hour. As it strikes, you win the race. But do not rest upon achievements won. Plan speedily, if you have not already done so, for another and a sterner contest, in which the crowning will mean struggles endured, sacrifices made, successes won, all higher and nobler than those of the past.

Difficulties and trials must be met. They belong to life as a part of it. And it is in the vanquishing of these that highest development is attained. I would not have them withdrawn from your pathway if I could; but I would you set your faces like flint to the attainment of some worthy and honorable purpose, to which you may rightly aspire, and never yield the conflict until you have received the crown. Some one has said, "Difficulties and trials are but opportunities. Yield to them and they enslave and crush us; conquer them and they will crown us victors." And my wish for each of you is that the crown may be more than earthly, even the crown of righteousness which shall shine as the stars for ever and forever. And now by the authority reposed in me by the Trustees of Oahu College, I, in their name, present you with these Diplomas, as testimonials of our appreciation of your work; and I welcome you into the company of our graduates, trusting and believing that our future intercourse in this new relation will be as pleasant and enjoyable as have been the relations of the past. May the Lord bless thee and keep thee.

The anniversary address was delivered by His Ex. H. A. P. Carter, Hawaiian Minister at Washington, who began by citing the prevailing cry of the pessimist, that education does not educate, cultivation does not refine. He admitted that it was a materialistic age, in which the struggle for wealth and position precluded the operation of conscience.

It was nevertheless an age grand in its conceptions and splendid in its achievements, one having its place in the great sweep of ages with a work that it was doing grandly. Under the materialistic pressure old time methods of education had proved inadequate to current needs, which educators were now realizing and adopting more practical methods to meet the necessities of the day. Too much had been expected of education, that was once anticipated would do away with crime. It was a mistake to associate poverty with crime, and it had not been proved even that ignorance was the immediate parent of crime. The rich were to-day the greatest criminals. State compulsory education had led to a waiving of parental responsibility, which was among the reasons for the partial failure of education to elevate the standard of morality. The speaker referred with striking illustrations to the improving prospects of the artisan, which was becoming recognized in the increased attention to technical education. He rejected the doctrine that the rich were becoming richer, and the poor poorer. The increased number and enhanced fortunes of the wealthy were not due to substance wrested from the poor, but were an outcome of the creation of new values and represented largely wealth produced in this century. The poor man's condition was constantly bettering, what are the luxuries of the rich to-day becoming the comforts of the poor to-morrow. Mr. Carter laid great stress upon the necessity of educational methods that should train people to think for themselves and to express themselves with accuracy. It was one of the greatest failures of the education of the past that it neglected these requirements of practical training. There had been too much crowded upon the young to learn by rote, in consequence of which they grew up with a habit of depending upon others for information that they should obtain by observation and reflection. It was this evil that gave an irresponsible press its deplorable power for the misdirection of public opinion. The speaker cited John Bright's expression of thankfulness that in his youth he had but few books, so that such knowledge as he acquired from that source was thorough. He urged with great earnestness the cultivation of correct habits of expression, giving forcible illustrations of the lamentable prevalence of looseness in that regard. In conclusion he said he believed that in Oahu College more than the usual attention had been paid to the points he had urged, partly because the classes being small gave facility for the desirable attention to individual members of them. Their graduates ranked high in Eastern colleges. He closed with an utterance of his belief that this age of invention and of changing relations between men and men and men and things would be succeeded by an age of adjustment in which humanity would be better and happier.

His Excellency was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his address, and before leaving the platform shook hands with the members of the graduating class.

The exercises were brought to a close by the benediction pronounced by Rev. W. D. Westervelt.
