Grape

For twenty Years Dr. Welch of Vineland, N. J., has made the preparing of unfermented grape juice a study. His product has an astonishing large sale in the U.S. It is the very best made, containing more grape sugar than other. It is not insipid, but retains that delicious fresh grape flavor, wholly lacking in other kinds of grape juice.

We have made the price right. We sell you Welch's grape juice at the same retail price asked in Vineland. Full quarts, 75c; pints, 50c; and half pints, Get it of

FOR SALE I am direted to sell at Public Auction of

A tract of land about 2,300 acres in fee simple situate at Kolo and Olelomosma 1 in South Kona Island of Hawaii, about eight miles by a good read from Hookena, one of the largest villages in Kona. There is an excellent landing on the land itself from where is about seven hundred acres of land are incoffee. Roughly estimated there is about seven hundred acres of splendic coffee land lying all in one block on both sides of the Government Road: Eight hundred acres slying above and to the East of the seven hundred acres above mentioned is also excellent land and although at a higher altitude is no doubt also well adapted for coffee culture. The lower land below the coffee belt is suitable for pineapples and work rooms, a Gordon's Pulper, laborery quartersand water tanks at the plantation and the land is partly walled. There has never been any blight on this land, although coffee was planted there a great many years ago. Old residents of Kona ilike the late D. H. Nahinu, J. W. Kuaimcka and others have testified to this fact. There is a sea lishery appurtonant to Oleiomosma 1.

Terms cash or part of the purchase price can rounin on mortgage at eight per sout.

Mr. A. B. Wood Presents His Views of the Oplum Traffic.

STAR NEWSPAPER - You may perhaps allow a few words from me who lived in the East during the eventful period when monarchy was done away with in this country, and who did what he could in getting the unclouded facts before the people who then were sitting in judgment upon the righteousness of the cause in question. I counted it a great pleasure to discuss the subject freely, (and being asked upon many occasions) to write and lecture upon the subject of such general interest at that time. There was manifest everywhere at the very first, a feeling of sympathy for the Queen, whose crown had been taken away, but the revulsion of feeling was surprisingly great when it was found that a lottery and opium license was being forced upon the people. This was a difference wrinkles and all traces ent state of affairs and loud and of age. Shall the traffic be stamped with legality in order to fill the Government coffers? If so, then the very people who so earnestly supported the new Government and who are working HOME-MADE BUTTER so persistently for us today, will experience another revolution of feeling which will give our cause a set back, the gravity of which we cannot now realize. If there was a principle connected with the opium question before, there is now, be-

The Letter Carrier's Burden "A round shouldered man has hard work as a postman," said an old letter carrier. "The usual method of carrying work as a postman, said an old letter carrier. The usual method of carrying a mail peach is over the shoulder of the side on which the mail peach hangs. This may seem awkward, it being the tendency of the strap to slip off the shoulder, and the entire weight bears upon one shoulder, yet it has proved to be the most convenient. It is a general method, as you can see by referring to the Pittsburg postoffice. There are over 150 carriers, and only one of them departs from the usual method. He throws the strap over the shoulder opposite the one on which the pouch hangs. Carriers look at speed and convenience more than comfort. When the strap is thrown over the left shoulder, it leaves the right hand and arm free to collect and hand out mail. Left handed men always carry the strap upon the right shoulder. "Yes, the weight is sometimes excessive. To take out 100 pounds of mail on one trip is no uncommon thing. Think of a hundred pounds supported by one shoulder! Naturally this causes a continued unmanural position of the body, so thued unnatural position of the body that postmen always have one shou higher than the other. The high shou bears the weight. Bearing such a bou on a hot day is no pleasant task, I can sure you."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Shad Bellied Jail Cat. A cat has grown up in the Camde county jail in an eccentire sort of way. has been the especial pet of all the pri oners and is on calling terms with the cite of murderers row. It has fared we at the hands of its admirers, who spa at the hands of its admirers, who spare some scraps from their scant mitions, but it stendily refused to grow sleek and fat, as all well regulated and well fed cats should do, but, on the contrary, has reached a slabsided maturity that was for a time a mystery to the jall officials. No one could account for its knife blade shape. Finally it was noticed that it just snugly fitted in between the bars as it passed in and out of the cells. Then it was found that this constant movement had kept its lateral growth down, while it developed properly in all other directions.—Philadel phila Record.

An American traveler who has been exploring the interior of Japan came upon a small village where a singular custom prevails. Whenever a robbery is committed and the thief is undiscovered, the ruler of the hamlet summons the entire male population and requests them to write on a slip of paper the name of the person they suspect of the crime.

The one receiving the largest number of ballots is declared duly "elected" and afterward promptly punished. This system may have certain advantages not very clear to the western mind, but it must open the door to numberless abuses and unfortunate possibilities.—Pittsburg Dispatch. Detecting a Thief.

She done it, an I will say she's jest absout the best man at build in a load I ever saw, by gum! The way I tossed them cocks up inter that rack an bradded them air steers around that there field wus a caution to cats.

"Well, I kept a-pilin an buildin an Nancy kept a-treadin. Purty soon the load got so high I hed to toss the cocks up, an I jest kept the air full of 'em till Nancy she yelled whoa. Then she sed the load'd never ride to the barn 'thout goin to pleces, but I 'lowed I could fix that. I got a bindin pole an hitched it forrud an aft. though I didn't hev a very good rope to make it fast at the back. To fix this, jest told Nancy to put her weight onter it an bear down fer all she wus wuth.

"By this time, it hed begun ter rain, an I jest bradded them steers till they went for ther barn a kitin. When ther front wheels struck the sill at the door, the back rope a holdin the bindin pole bruck. The old woman was squattin on that end, an when the pole flipped up it jest sent her right up over the roof of the barn. That air load was so blamed heavy that them steers, bein new shod, hed to git down an scratch, an they ripped up every plank of the barn floor jest as fast as they passed over it, by gum!"

"She struck on the load of bay," said White.

"Why, the hay wus in the barn!"

"Not much! Them steers got ter goin se fast they couldn't stop, an they took the load clean through an aout the front doors. Lucky they did, fer jest them the old woman came sailin over the barn tize a balloon an struck right on the load thout touchin another thing. Never hurster a hair, by juxt"

There were several moments of profoundlence, broken by the same inquiring in dividual who had apoken before.

"But you sed the shoos of the steers ripped up the planks of the floor right along Haow'd they haul the load through!"

Old Man White bridled up in an instant "Haul it through, you gaul dern chug head!" he snorted. "Why, they jest yank ed it along so blamed fast the load didn't hev time to drop through the floor! Haow in thunder'd you think they hauled it through! An if they hado't banied it through! An if they hado't banied it through my wife'd be dead now. She's livin—that's proof they hauled it through. If any critter thinks it ain't proof, let him say so ter me right now!"

Besides the red and white blood co werage physiologist-there is a thir kind in the blood of mammals, but th in the blood of mammas, but the exact nature of its elements is not as yet fully understood. It was 11 years ago (1983) that Professor Bizzozero first ranks known the existence of this thire element in the blood (see Smithsenia) report for 1888, page 785), and the ma-jority of physicians and writers or obysiology have not yet learned that O heart of mine, we shouldn't Bizzozero says that they are especially interesting on account of their suppose physiological relations. It is claimed by our eminent authority that they are the chief factors in coagulation and that fibrin is derived from their disintegra-tion. This view is entirely different from those previously enunciated, which chiefly referred the fibrin to the break-ing down of the white corpuseles. Recent investigation on the blood of birds and amphibians reveals a homol-ogous element with the newly differentiated corpuscie—pale nucleated blood plates, whose functions are similar to the third blood corpuscle in mammals.

-St. Louis Republic. Merry, but Not Wise. The saying of Charles II, the king who, according to the severe yet just epitaph written upon him by the Earl of Rochester, Never said a foolish thing And never did a wise one, are so many as to show us plainly why he should be so beloved even by those who could not approve his actions. He was a merry monarch, and he was "good company."
