Conclusion of Professor Alexander's Article.

ROYAL ABUSES OF TWENTY YEARS

The Kalakana Opium Bribe-Reform League and Great Mass Meeting. Constitution of 1887-Final Settlement of the Aki Case.

The facts of this case were stated in the affidavit of Aki, published May 31, 1887, and those of Wong Leong, J. S. Walker and Nahora Hipa, published June 28, 1887, as well as in the decision of Judge Preston in the case of Loo Ngawk et al., executors of the will of T. Aki vs. A. J. Cartwright et al., trustees of the king (Haw. Rep., Vol. vii., p. 401). I have already spoken of the opium liceuse law, which was carried by the royalist party in the Legislature of 1886, and signed by the king in spite of the most vigorous protests from all classes of the community. As this law had been saddled with amend-ments, which rendered it nearly unworkable, a set of regulations was published October 15, 1886, providing for the issue of permits to purchase or use opium by the Marshal, who was to retain half the fee and the Government the other half. The main facts of the case, as proved before the court, are as follows: Early in November, 1886, one Junius Kaae, a palace parasite, informed a Chiuese rice-planter named Tong Kee, alias Aki, that he could have the opium license granted to him if he would pay the sum of $60,000 to the king's private purse, but that he must be in haste because other parties were bid-ding for the privilege. With some difficulty Aki raised the money, and secretly paid it to Kaae and the king in three installments between December 3 and December 8, 1886. Soon afterwards Kase called on Aki and informed him that one Kwong Sam Kee had offered the king $75,000 for the license, and would certainly get it, unless Aki paid $15,000 more. Ac-cordingly Aki borrowed the amount and gave it to the king personally on the 11th.

Shortly after this another Chinese syndicate, headed by Chung Lung, paid the king $80,000 for the same object, but took the precaution to secure the Reense before handing over the the Reense before handing over the money. Thereupon Aki, finding that he had lost both his money and his license, divulged the whole affair, which was published in the Honolulu papers. He stopped the payment of a note at the bank for $4000, making his loss $71,000. Meanwhile Junius Kase was appointed to the recrossi-Kaae was appointed to the responsible office of registrar of conveyances, which had became vacant by the death of the lamented Thomas Brown. As was afterwards ascertained, the King ordered a $100,000 gunboat from England, through Mr. G. W. Maefar lane, but the negotiations for it were broken off by the revolution.

On the 12th of April, 1887, Queen Kapiolani and the Princess Lilluokalani accompanied by Messrs. C. P. Iaukea, J. H. Boyd, and J. O. Dominis, left for England to attend the celebration of the jubilee held was the fifteeth angivernment of the upon the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of Her Majesty Queen Vic-toria. They returned on the 26th of July, 1887.

THE REPORM LEAGUE. The exposure of the two opium bribes and the appointment of the King's accomplice in the crime as registrar of conveyances helped to bring matters to a crisis, and united nearly all taxpayers not merely against the king but against the system of government under which such iniquities could be perpetrated. In the spring of 1887 a secret league had been formed in Honolulu, with branches on the other islands, for the purpose of putting an end to the pre-valling misrule and extravagance. and of establishing a civilized government, responsible to the people through their representatives. Arms were imported, and rifle clubs sprang up all over the islands. In Honolulu a volunteer organization known as the "Rifles" was increased in numbers, and brought to a high state of efficiency under the command of Col. V. V. Ashford. It is supposed that the league now numbered from 800 to 1,000 men, while its objects had the sympathy of the great majority of the community. It was at first expected that monarchy would then be abolished, and a republican constitution was drawn up.

As the time for action approached, the resident citizens of the United Comp. Reitain, and Germany addressed memorials to their respective governments, through their re-presentatives, declaring the conditions of affairs to be intolerable. As is the case in all such movements, the league was composed of average men, actuated by a variety of motives, but all agreed in their main object. Fortunately, the "spoils wing" of the party failed eventually to capture either branch of the Government, upon which a number of them joined the old Gibsonian party and became bitter enemies of reform.

THE GREAT REFORM MEETING.

Some members of the league, including Cot. Ashford, were in favor of a sydden attack upon the Palace, but this advice was overruled, and it was decided to first hold a public mass meeting to state their grievances and to present specific demands to the everyone. The celebration of the day started early in the morning, and a regular 4th of July noise was heard from all quarters. Guns, firecrackers, bombs, tin horns and every other available instrument that would make a noise was used. At about 6 A.M. the "Antiques and Horribles" turned out. At 9:30 the parade of the military forces started and drew an immense crowd, estimated at at least 4000 people, who watched their evolutions with great interest. The reception of the President and Mrs.

Dole was also a big attraction. The raising of the big American flag on the flagpole of the American League also took place during the morning. In the afternoon the Band concert at Thomas Square attracted a large crowd.

But the crowning event of the day occurred in the evening. Palace Square was not only crowded, but it was absolutely jammed with a seething mass of humanity. Fully 7000 people were present at the assembled at the mass meeting last evening, and the fact that it was, that had assembled to see the raisin spite of the immense number, a ing. most orderly gathering, is a matter of congratulation for the people of day's proceedings follows:

They Turn Out Early in the Morning and Enjoy Themselves.

The Antiques and Horribles made their appearance at 6 o'clock as advertised. All Fort street, between King and Hotel. was crowded with people, mostly little boys who were out early to see fun.

About 6:30 o'clock the procession started up Fort street. The caricatures were not horrible enough, and so created but little mirth and laughter. One of the characters represented Blount carrying a rat-trap on which were the words "Blount's Instruments." Much fun was caused by one of the antiques running through the crowd on a bullock. The take-off on Mrs. Vina King and Geo. Washington was poor. Satan made a good hit. About 7:30 o'clock the Antiques and Horribles, after parading through the principal streets, broke up near May's store on Fort street.

There was no stiffness, but an atmosphere of free and democratic good fellowship prevailed. The people came in freely, in their every morning dress, and were received by President Dole and Mrs. Dole, with the Vice-President, the members of the Cabinet and the members of the Supreme Court and their ladies. and also Judges Cooper and Whiting of the Circuit Court. Immediately behind the President were the officers of his staff, Col. J. H. Soper, Lieut.-Col. Fisher, and Major McLeod. Major Potter introduced the guests. Mrs. Dole was also assisted by the following ladies: Mrs. C. L. Carter, Mrs. laukea, Miss Hopper, Miss Lowrey, Miss Parke, Miss Perry, Miss Von Holt, Miss Mossman, Miss Gilman, Miss Judd. Miss Wing, Miss Forbes, Miss Jones, Miss Hartwell, Miss Mott-Smith, Miss Helen Wilder. Miss Lita Wilder, the Misses Young, Miss Glade, Miss Atkinson, Hatch, Miss Tanner, Miss Afong and Miss Howland.

The reception took place in the large Council Chamber. It was undecorated except with bunches of chrysanthemums with which flower also many official buttonholes were adorned. The stream of people came in double file. and flowed unceasingly from 11 o'clock until ten minutes of 12 after which it began to intermit. The halls and verandas of the Executive Building, as well as the Council Chamber, were thronged. Among those who called to pay their respects to the President and his wife were a considerable number of Hawaiians. One old, native from Manoa valley, presented Mr. Dole with a large bouquet. The incident was a very pretty and affecting one, and excited much attention.

A few naval officers were present in civilian dress. Royalists were conspicuous by their absence.

About one hundred of those present inscribed their names in the visitor's list, but owing to the large attendance hundreds went away without doing so.

THE SPEECHES.

What Was Said by the Speaker's of the Evening.

The immense throng that crowded around the speaker's platform long before the time set for the speeches to begin, was amply rewarded by hearing what followed. Eloquent eulogiums of the Provisional Government were applauded to the echo, and great esthusiasm was shown by the audience. Never has such a crowd been seen at a mass meeting in Honolulu. In the right hand part of the stand was the place reserved for the speakers and a few other prominent men. On the left, the press stand, occupied by representatives of the local press and the foreign correspondents.

Mr. Atherton, the Chairman of the evening, spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS: The last mass meeting of citizens and others in this city was held on the 28th of November, 1896. It was called to protest against the action of Mr. Cleveland, and was large and enthusiastic. The protest was emphatic. Contrary to the expectation of Grover Cleveland, the dication of Gresbam's letter bound together the men who had imperilled not only their lives but their property and their fortunes in an effort to establish a good, an honest and a strong government in Hawaii. The same men have come together again to night, though not in the same place nor for the same purpose. We are here to celebrate the anniversary of the on trial for a full year, and in spite of prophecies it has stood firm and been sustained by the best and the most trustworthy men in Hawali. The future is in the hands of men whom we can trust. The Government is morally and financi-ally sound, and upheld as it is by strong hands and willing hearts, it will live and prosper, until in the providence of God it shall be absorbed in the great American Union. J. B. CASTLE- Fellow annexationists: It seems to me that there is but little to say, but that little should be said in tones to reverberate through the ages of Hawaii's future, in tones which will reach our children's These truths, citizens of the future State of Hawaii, others can emphasize better than I, but two thoughts have come to me. One year ago today noon, we stood on a platform with two planks-the abolition of the monarchy and absorption into the United States. On the 24th day of last month the Provisional Govern ment drove the last nail in the coffin of Hawaiian monarchy. By the strength of our own right arms. steadfast purpose, united in all that is essential, the last article of our platform will be accomplished, and our mother in Washington will take to herself her own. "All roads lead to Rome," was a proverbial saying in that great empire. In Hawaii every political highway and byway should lead to annexation. Our hope is in that. Every road leads to Washing-ton. Standing upon this platform of one plank, all differences must vanish; all factions meit away. We wish no permanent government, nor any-thing else, which does not lead to annexation; no change which does not make for that; no republic but the Great Republic. The question before us is simplicity itself. No man of clear brain and right heart will oppese union with that country which secures, by its system of equal liberty and equal laws, the best opportunity for the solution of every problem which can assail us in the century to We hear voices which might as well come from royalists: "You're not out of the woods yet;" "Don't count your chickens before they are hatched." Such words should come, if not from cowards, at least from men who have no faith in our cause. We celebrate the justice of our cause, and would do so still though a thousand restorations were to follow. I would write this day in our statutes and make it an eternal holiday, and in the future our children will thank God that there were men here who hold to their purpose, and who never flinched and brave men who have supported influences against us then came from the slave power, as the only element which has caused delay now, has come from the party which upheld slavery in the United States. Gentlemen, I am done. I have made no preparation for tonight. This sea of heads, this illumination surpassing every other, are inspiration enough. There is one man in this city tonight whom I envy. It is the anniversary of his wedding day, and when in the future his children gather around his knee, he will add to the patriotic memories of this holiday, those which eluster around the hearthside, and will bless doubly the 17th of January, result of accident or chance. It is peculiar to no country nor clime; wherever there is a community in which intelligent honest and independent habits of thought and of action prevail, civil liberty is sure to come and abide. The day of the divine right of Kings and Queens has disappeared from modern civilization. But the supremacy of law is everywhere bound to assert itself, for it has a divine origin, in the Great Law Giver of the universe. On the 13th day of January, 1883, the Government of the Hawaiian Islands was that of a Constitutional Monarchy, under the Constitution which was established in July 1887. The head of the Government, the Queen, was not amenable to any law, except to the unwritten law which required her to govern herself in accordance with the requirements of the Constitution under which she became a sovereign, which she had sworn to observe, and under which alone she could legally remain a sovereign. It any official of the Government, whether in the Execu tive, Legislative or Judicial Departments, violated the law, he could be called to account, and the community had a remedy, more or less effective for such violation of its rights. What was the remedy if the head of the Government declined to be bound by the Constitution? When King John refused to govern himself by English aws, the barons of England at the point of the sword compelled him to sign and swear to the Magua Charta The of Runnymede in the year 1215. Right of Petition and the Right of Habeas Corpus followed, culminating in the glorious revolution of 1688, when William and Mary came over. All this is known to every school boy, as part of the history of civil liberty in the Great Republic of England. But how was it in Hawaii last Jan-The Hawsiian Runnymede had been passed in July of 1887, and yet the Hawailan sovereign declined to keep her obligations. The result was that the system known as the Hawalian Constitutional Monarchy no longer existed. It was like the removal of the keystone of an arch, the structure fell. It was then that citizens of Honolulu established a Provisional Government, in the presence of actual or impending anarchy. That was a conservative and not a revolu-tionary processing. The avowed and the legitimate objects of that Government were to maintain the public peace and to promote political union with the United States of America. The latter object awaits the result of time and full consideration, and may depend upon events and contingencies yet to occur, but the preservation of law and order which thus far has been sense of the people is thoroughly eulisted in the cause of honest stable government. It will have nothing short of that, and it will have no other, for the end in view is, that

PRESIDENT HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, and fellow ritizens-At a banquet given to Prince Bismarck a few years before his re-tirement, he offered a toast to the three great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race, to the German Fatherland, to Great Britain and to the Young Republic of the West. While these three nations have taken the argest strides, and the Latin race has been less fortunate, it has an example of pooglar government in France, and the spirit of liberty still lives in Portugal. This community, with its mixed population, has seen fit to resist absolutism, and to create a purer form of government. For the ast twenty years there has not been a stable government here, a government that commanded the respect of the civilized world. If we get annexation we will have a stable Government (A Voice. The Nicaragua Canal will bring a flood of trade, and immensely enhance the importance of these islands. Annexation is manifest destiny, and we are bound to have it. H. T. Waterhouse spoke briefly to Hawaiian:

[Pointing to the motto ALGHA]: That is our foundation, to live in love to each other. The light has broken upon us-we have lived in darkness. Let us now embrace the light. The doors of the former palace were opened today for the poor and needy to enter, and that movement will enlarge the opportunities of the poor. Then go eward and secure liberty and pros-had been misrepresented to them, and they were mistrustful in consequence. Europeans would not have acted so under the same circumstances. It was necessary to have patience and forbearance with them. Matters of a public nature were difficult enough to deal with under any circumstances, but now this is more than ordinarily the case. The ordinary channels of expression through the ballot box have been closed, and there has been a powerful hostile influence without to contend against. It is a matter of pride that thus far selfinterest has been subordinated higher considerations. Men have stood ready to make any sacrifices to support the great principle at stake. If anyone thinks it is an easy job to be wet nurse to a baby government, let him try it and see. The baby has been teething, has baby has been teething, has had the whooping cough and the measles, and lately I think it has been suffering with the colic, and then the grandmother in the United States wanted to come over and spank it. But it has lived through it all, and is a lusty and growing infant, and with your aid and support, another year will find it stronger. I have just a few words more to say. I don't know in just what form our future difficulties will arrive. Our grand object is the attainment of good government through union with the United States. We must subordinate personal ambi-tion and self-interest to this one end, and then we will move on to success.

Some one in the crowd then proposed three cheers for President Dole, which were given with a will.

JUDGE ROBERTSON: I thank the Committee for giving me this opportunity to appear as a fellow annexationist. A year ago I was five thous-and miles away, unconscious of what was taking place and unable to take part in resistance to the fatal act of the foolish Queen. Upon the arrival of the five Commissioners in the United States, I recognized the same spirit which told Kalakaua in 1887 to come down from his high horse, and in 1889 told Bob Wilcox to come out from his gasoline tank. I was pleased to hear that the boys of '87 were still in the ranks in 1886. Star the other day in which a British sailor was offended at being called a boy, but I shall never feel insulted at being called "one of the boys." Old men for counsel; young men for war. The young men here were ready a few weeks ago to fight our great and good friend Grover Cleveland. I am not ashamed to confess that my conver-sion to annexation dates back only one year. I was proud of my country's independence and willing to submit to the monarchy until its abuses and corruptions were too intolerable to be borne any longer. We will seek a new and greater independence in the United States, where all our people will become citizens of the republic, where the accident of birth will no longer be regarded, and all will be equals before the law. I believe that now that there is no more monarchy and no more royalty, the country is better for it. Every boy who grows up will feel on an equal footing with his neighbor. The royalists have prophesied that the Queen would be restored to her throne. The throne was not hers, but lent her by the people whose voice is as the voice of God. and when she violated the conditions and abused her privileges, the people isw and order which thus far use consists a simple necessity. For the continued accomplishment of that object, there will be ample scope for the example of Kalakaus and believed that she should have a sharmer. The Supreme Court gave o display themselves. With the her a chance to choose her own Cab-ounders and supporters of the exist-inet, and everybody knows how she ing Government of Hawaii there is returned the compliment in the con-no place for selfish interest or personal stitution which she didn't promulgate. While we decline to return in our steps, we must be patient and considerate. The period is one of considerate. The period is one of transition and trial, and the future will depend on our present conduct. With an Administration like the present, we may be sure that what the Government does will be for the best interest of the country at large, and that their efforts will be finally crowned with success.

WALTER G. SMITH said : The 17th of January is a day which stands for a great deal that is inspiring in the political annals of the world. It was upon that day, in 1793, that the people of France cor to death a despotic king and made liberty, which had been the dream of the philosopher, the possession of the subject. Then and there the repub-Hean movement in Europe, in spite precedents and older activities, really began its onward march. Up to that era most of the people of the European mainland had been fixed in the belief that a State without a king and a church without a bishop, meant chaos and infidelity. The events which grouped about that January day brought them to their senses. The scales fell from their eyes when the king's head fell into the basket; and they saw that the divinity which had seemed to hedge the despot, had been but a figment of their own super-stitious and inherited fears. It was then that the feudal principle in the polities of the world received a wound that was to defy all surgery. One hundred years after that great day in France came a day in Hawaii when the last independent sovereign in the western hemisphere lost her throne and the last recognized dynasty on this side of the globe was expunged from the calendar of princes. There-upon the 17th of January gained the right to be known as one of the world's democratic holidays. It is the day from which an historical chapter in the contest of the subject against the crown, on both sides of the earth, transpicuously dates. Let what the day has witnessed for France, for Hawaii and for all men, approve the thought that # is a sign set eternal in the heavens of futurity that kings and queens and potentates shall be no more; and that the reign of the people has begun. My friends, it builds up a man's political constitution to be a citizen of Hawaii in such an era as is now in the vigor and brightness of its prime. It is a and originates of he prime. It is a privilege, so far as the principle is concerned, equal to that enjoyed by the fortunate men, some of them your angestors and mine, who did side those which stood for England, were so weak and impotent; for it must ever be remembered that your deflance to the tottering Hawaiian monarchy lost no tone of sternness or of courage when you stood at bay to the President of the United States and the power which he misused. There is nothing more inspir-ing in the annals of 1776 than the unwavering front which you preserved in your great emergency. There, on in your great emergency. There, on the one side, was the chief of sixty millions; here was an armed body of a pairry thousand; there was the strongest of modern powers, with its army and its fleets; here were a few lone rocks in the ocean without a fort upon its piunacles and without a gun upon a deck; there was a great Government whose President had declared that our deturoned Queen should reign again; here was a little band of men who said that she must pass over their dead bodies first; there in our harbor were the broadsides of a possible foe here on shore was a battalion behind its sanibags! The odds were great but the patriots of Hawaii took them; and if the American people, arcused by that spectacle, had not placed themselves between us and all harm. I feel that here upon this soil would have been a new Thermopylae, not less consecrated to human courage than was that which made immortal the memory of three hundred Greeks. It is not enough, fellow citizens, to look backward with pride, for we must look forward with courage. You destroyed a monarchy one year ago today; what are we to have in place of it a year from today or ten years hence? The problem of January 17th was easy to solve beside the problems that may be in store; problems which will tax the calmest statesmanship of the great man who is our President towhich will also tax the wisdom day and experience of his Cabinet, the sagacity and patience of our Councils. We have a party at home devoted to the lost cause and a moneyed juffuence abroad conspiring for control. We are in the midst of alien races and more alien creeds. There is a clamor of many tongues within our gates; the pressure of foreign Govern-ments at the outer walls. Our enemies are powerful and insidious, and though some work secretly and others I read a letter in the openly, all are united to defeat the objects of the January revolution It is for us to remain steadfast to those objects, no matter who or what may prove false to them; no matter who or what may conspire or oppose; no mat-ter what self-interest may undermine; no matter who may come with the olive branch in one hand and a dagger in another. This is our highest public duty. There is but one political goal and watchword for us all and that is annexation. It is the begin-ning and the end of our political alphabet. It is the best hope of the Americans in Hawaii, and of thousands who are not Americans, except in principle, and it is the best that could happen to the natives. Whatever comes and whatever proposals of government may be made, we must be true to the objects of the revolution or we shall be undone by the forces now at work against us. But what, it may be asked, if annexation is long delayed-if the walt be-comes one of years? What if we are left work out our own salvation first? Fellow citizens, in that event, the best thing we can do is to work it out on the American plan and by the exercise of Anglo-Saxon pluck, and leave the rest to the ruler of all nations. I sometimes think that Providence may have a great political work for this little island community to perform before our common hope may be secured and realized. is in such small confines that God has set the mightlest forces of the world's affairs in motion. NOTES OF THE DAY.

Some of the Happenings of Yes. terday Briefly Reviewed.

Two large bonfires in honor of the day were made on the Peninsula at Ewa, by the Portuguese-from 7 till 8 o'clock.

The decorations of the Executive Building and grounds surpassed anything of the kind ever attempted. Three thousand people grilled in the sun watching the parade.

The report of Judge Hartwell's and W. G. Smith's speeches in this issue is a verbatim one.

An old resident states that he has never seen as large a crowd in Honolulu, except possibly at the funeral of Kamehameha III.

One of the policemen on duty last night at Palace Square states that he had never seen such an orderly and well-behaved crowd. The column was so long that reached the corner of Fort street and Beretania, one company was still on Richard street. A number of the fireworks in the Executive grounds were "homemade."

The green and red lights that so beautifully lit up the grounds, made a scene not soon to be forgotten by those fortunate enough to see it.

The Portuguese procession was a great success.

C. S. Bradford deserved great credit for his arrangement of the peakers and press stand.

Notwithstanding the fact that or ders were received by the officers of the men-of-war in port not to call offically at the President's reception, a number of them did so, though in plain clothes. The fireworks that were being fired from the roof of the Executive Building, accidentally caught fire and went up in one big blaze. It was hard on the boys, but it was a beautiful sight while it lasted.

The flagpole of No. 1 Engine Company was garly decorated with lanerus last evening.

In front of the engine house of No 2 an evergreen banner was stretched across the street containing the word "Annexation." In the evening the fiagpole and house were illuminated with lanterns.

> > In the report of the session of the Councils, published on another page, will be found a statement of the national indebtedness, which discloses a very encouraging state of affairs. In spite of many circumstances of peculiar difficulty and of prophecies of bankruptcy, the Hawaiian Government is stronger and sounder financially than it was before the 17th of January. A revolutionary government which includes among the triumphs of its first year the reprovement of the national credit and finances is a wonder among its kind. The confidence of business men has been a great source of strength, and skillful management has done much.

YESTERDAY was a day of battle in the session of the Councils, with much talking and little doing. Practically, the whole time was absorbed in listening to the reading of protests, petitions, resolutions, etc., which came out of the bosom of the American League. Each document took its way to committee, the table, or the pigeon hole. So far as political activity is concerned, the League seems to be ahead thus far, and the Annexation Club, with its membership mounting into the thousands, was simply "not in it."

The clause of Section 1 Chapter 36 of the Laws of 1884 making the possession of spiritnous liquors distilled in these isl-ands prima facie evidence of the distillation thereof is not repealed specifi-cally nor by implication by Chapter 168 of the Laws of 1892-3.

OFINION OF THE COURT BY JUDD, C.J.

The defendant was convicted at the last term of the Circuit Court Second Circuit of the offense of distilling spirituous liquor without a license. He excepts to the verdiet convicting him on the ground that it was contrary to law and evidence. The facts in brief are that a quantity of recently distill ed spirits with some fermented rice and a"box", which was apparently the distilling apparatus or a part of it, were found by Police officers in defendant's house and on his premises, in Paia, District of Makawao, Maui. There were in the house, at the time of the visit of the officers, defendant's wife and another Japanese who was a visitor. Defendant was not at home, but was arrested at another place in the district shortly after the discovery of the articles above mentioned.

The evidence of the ownership of the house was an admission by de fendant to that effect, who also said that he did not make the liquor, but that his wife made it.

36 of the laws of that year) added to Section 5 of the Act of 1882 "regulating the sale of spirituous liquors, a clause as follows: "The possession of such distilled liquor shall be prima facie evidence of the distillation thereof, and it shall be incumbent on the party or parties having possession thereof, to prove their innocence of distilling the same." This follows a clause prescribing the punishment for distilling spirituous liquors on these islands, except under a license to owners of sugar mills authorized by an Act of 13th July, 1874. On the 13th Jan. 1893, an Act was approved "To license the distilling of spirituous liquors." Section 8 of this Act prescribes the punishment for unlicensed distilling of spirituous liquors, which varies from the punishment authorized by the Act of 1884. This Act (Chapter 108 of the laws of 1892-3) specifically repeals an Act of 1884 authorizing the establishment of a distillery in Hono izing licenses to distill liquor to owners of sugar THE celebration of the 17th of peals all laws and parts of laws inconsistent with the Act itself. Does it repeal, also, the clause of the Act of 1884 making the possession of liquor distilled in this country prima facie evidence of having distilled the same!

King. Accordingly, on the afternoon of the 50th of June, 1887, all business in Hono'ulu was suspended, and an immense meeting was held in the armory, on Beretana street, composed of all classes, creeds, and nationalities, but united in sentiment as never before or since. The meeting was guarded by a battalion of the Rifles fully armed. A set of resolutions was passed unamiously declaring that the Government had "ceased through in-competency and corruption to perform the functions and to afford the protection to personal and property rights for which all governments exist," and demanding of the King the dismissal of his cabinet, the restitution of the $71,000 received as a bribe from Aki, the dismissal of Junius Kaae from the land of office, and a pledge that the King would no longer interfere in polities.

A committee of thirteen was sent to wait on His Majesty with these demands. His troops had mostly deserted him, and the native populace seemed quite indifferent to his fate. He called in the representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Portugal, to whom he offered to transfer his powers as King. This they refused, but advised him to lose no time in forming a new cabinet and signing a new constitution. Accordingly he sent a written reply the next day, which virtually conceded every point demanded. The new cabinet, consisting of Godfrey Brown, Minister of Foreign Affairs; L. A. Thurston, Minister of the Interior: W. L. Green, Minister of Finance and C. W. Ashford, Astorney General, was sworn in on the same day, July 1.

THE CONSTITUTION OF 1887.

As the King had yielded the republican constitution was dropped, and the constitution of 1864 revised in such a way as to secure two principal objects, viz, to put an end to autocratic rule by making the Ministers respon-sible only to the people through the Legislature and to widen the suffrage by extending it to foreigners, who till then had been practically debarred from naturalization. I have gives the details in another paper.

Mr. Gibson was arrested July 1, bot

An election for members of the Legislature was ordered to be held September 12, and regulations were issued by the new ministry, which did away with many abuses, and se-cured the fairest election that had been held in the islands for twenty years. The result was an overwhelm-ing victory for the Reform party, which was a virtual ratification of the new constitution. During the next three years, in spite of the bitter hostility and intrigues of the King, the continual agitation by demagogues, and repeated conspiracies, the country prospered under the most efficient ad-ministration that it has ever known.

FINAL SETTLEMENT OF THE AKI CASE.

It has been seen that on the 30th of June, 1887, Kalakaua promised in writing that he would "cause restitution to be made" of the $71,000 which the world in the second seco he had obtained from Aki, under a promise that he (Aki) should receive the license to sell opium, as provided by the Act of 1886.

The Reform cabinet urged the King lulu, and also the Act of 1874 author. to settle this claim before the meeting of the Legislature, and it was arranged that the revenues from the Crown lands should be appropriated to that When, however, they ascerobject. tained that his debts amounted to more than $250,000 they advised the King to make an assignment in trust for the payment of all claims pro rata. Accordingly, a trust deed was executed November 21, 1887, assigning all the Crown land revenues and most of the King's private estate to three trustees for the said purpose, on condition that the complainant would bring no petition or bills before the Legislature, then in session.

Some three months later these trus tees refused to approve or pay the Aki claim, on which Aki's executors brought suit against them in the Supreme Court.

After a full hearing of the evidence, Judge Preston decided that the plea of the defendants that the transaction between Aki and the King was illegal could not be entertained, as by the constitution the King "could do no wrong," and "can not be sued or held to account in any court of the King-dom." Furthermore, as the claimants had agreed to forbear presenting their claim before the Legislature in con-sideration of the execution of the trust deed, the full court ordered their claim to be paid pro rata with the other ap-

AN INDUSTRIOUS PAKE.

He Shoots Two Others When They Refuse to be Mulcted.

Ah In, a Chinese special policeman at Ewa, has made considerable trouble for himself, and all because he wanted to increase his salary by practicing a little extortion on some of his countrymen.

Last evening the ambitious In went to the house of two Chinamen and informed them that if they did not give him a certain amount of hush money he would have them prosecuted for gambling and for having opium in their possession. The men very wisely refused to accede to his demands, and In became indignant. So indignant, in fact, that he drew a revolver and shot one of the Chinamen through the fleshy part of his leg. He then turned his attention to the other, and fired at him, the bullet just grazing the Minister of Interior King gives notice in the "By Authority" colump of a commission appointed to settle land matters on Molokai on behalf of the Board of Health.

One of the Japanese laborers at Makaweli, Kauai, was caught between two cars last Monday, and his leg was broken. The injured limb was set by the plantation doctor.

Fanuary 15, 1894.

It is said that one-sixth of plantation laborers' time is consumed in keeping their cane knives sharp. This we believe is owing to the fact that files are used for the purpose and a lasting edge is not put on the blade. The Frank Walcot Emery File must very soon supplant the file as a whet stone, because the effect is quicker and the result much more satisfactory. We've been sharpening all sorts of cutlery during the past week with one of these sharpeners and find we can put an edge on a knife or a pair of scissors quicker with it than by any other means. We sell them for half a dollar and the supply is limited; order now if you want

Now that the plantation managers are working day and night to produce sugar and sell it for a shade less than it costs to make it, it is necessary for them to practice economy at every corner. We can help them materially in the matter of supplies, because our prices are considerably less than in other stores and the quality ment to the officers "that his wife made it." A half Portuguese named Alick Nichol, presumably while under the influence of liquor, fired a SScaliber revolver at Carl Bamberger, a member of Company A volunteers Tuesday evening. Nichol was arrested next day and charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

A number of petty officers from the cruiser Champion went out sailing in the ship's surf boat yesterday. The Misses Glade, Wodehouse and several young ladies were among the party with their taro-patch fiddles. The boat was provisioned for the cruise. After one had the right of petition. But sailing outside the harbor several hours, the party then returned late in the evening.

A SAILORS CONCERT.

The Y. M. C. A. Entertain the Champion Men.

The Y. M. C. A. has given several concerts to the sailors of the Champion, and they have been greatly enjoyed by the men. Another of the same kind was given last evening, at which the programme was furnished entirely by the men from the ship. A number of people were present, must of whom were sailors and marines from the Champion, and a few men from the Philadelphia.

The numbers that caused the greatest applause were the music by three banjos, a concertina and a fife, and the sailor's hornpipe, petition. danced by D. Russell.

The following is the programme presented:

Mr. Emmeluth saw no necessity for such reference. The American Lesgue was organized to make the military unnecessary. Mr. Brown coincided thoroughly with Mr. Emmeloth's sentiments. but thought that the Council should recognize the fact that everybody had the right of petition and of a hearing. It would be polite to refer to the Military Committee as the matter was within their cognizance. That committee could find that the fears of the league were groundless, if that was the case. Mr. Emmeluth agreed that every this came from an element which had smple representation in the Annexa-tion Club. The American League had nearly 500 members, but that was only a fraction of the club. The constant reception of communications from these sources was a menace to the Government. It would be different if these men did not have full representation elsewhere. Attorney General Smith thought that Mr. Emmeluth's remarks might be misconstrued. No one had shown more fidelity to the cause than be, but the speaker thought everyone had the right to petition in a respect-ful manner as this did. The guns were sent because it was thought they could be well spared, and would be a benefit to the country when exhibited abroad. Had the American League had a fuller knowledge of the facts they might not have found anything imprudent in this He hoped the time would come when there would be petitions from the Hui Aloha Aina and every other bui. HEADQUARTERS ANNEXATION CLUB, HONOLULU, H. I., Jan. 15, 1894. Executive Council of the Provisional Government. GENTLEMEN: At a regular meeting of the Annexation Club held Saturday evening, January 13, 1894, the following resolution was introduced and passed, a copy of which I have been instructed to forward to your honorable body.

WHEREAS; It is commonly reported on the street that the Executive of the Government has decided to send abroad, for the purpose of securing the services of a person suitable to fill a vacancy likely to occur in the Postal Department, and WHEREAS; Such action will only increase the present number of desirable men now out of employment which in the present depressed condition of financial and commercial interests is undestrable, therefore be it RESOLVED; That the members of the Annexation Club respectfully request the Executive to reconsider its decision, if report is true, as we are confident that we have now resident here men of families and property interests who have ability to fill any position in the gift of the Government.

We would recommend that whenever a removal or vacancy occurs in any department, that clerks holding subordinate positions be promoted to such vacancy in turn according to their ability or terms of service.

RESOLVED; That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Executive and Advisory Councils.

I have the honor to be, Your obedient servant, J. W. JONES. Secretary Annexation Club.

Minister Damon also stated that he had received two letters from the American League in regard to the appointment of J. W. Girvin to the position in the post office occupied by Rothwell. Mr. Damon read a letter to the league explaining that he had offered Girivn the place. He said further that the name of Girvin was first suggested to him by a member of the Executive Committee of the Annexation Club. He had consulted his colleagues. It was hard to satisfy all claims. He had consulted the Postmaster General also and had written to Mr. Girvin, from whom he expected to hear by the Australia.

Mr. Emmeluth asked if the Minister of Finance consulted the Postmaster General before or after deciding to send for Mr. Girvin. Minister Damon said that Mr. Emmeluth had been told by the Post master General that he had heard of the matter on the street, because he considered the matter as confidential between him and the Minister of Fi-

Mr. Emmelath said the Postmaster General told him that he had not been consulted by the Minister of Finance in any manner on the subject, but that if consulted, he would prefer to advance men now in the office, and have the new clerk take the place thus made vacant. Those were his own views.

Attorney-General Smith sympathired with the feeling that strangers should not be appointed to places which persons here were competent to fill. But Mr. Girvin had lived here many years; knew native well; filled offices under the Government with great fidelity; had been postmaster, and was now Hawsiian Con-He had been very active in working for the Government since the revolution in every way in his power and at considerable personal sacrifices to himself. The Attorney General drew attention to the fact that this resolution and some others had been published in the newspaper (the Star) before being communicated to the Government This was improper. He would also draw attention to the fact that the allegation of the resolution that 5000 Chinese were to be introduced was a misstatement.

On the suggestion of the Vice-President, the Attorney-General moved reference to a special committee of the Advisory Council. Mr. Brown did not agree with the

have to be special committees for every resolution which anybody chose to draw up. [Vice-President Wilder: Would you deny the right of petition?] No; but these people have another organization. He himself opposed Chinese immigration except under severe restrictions, and he hoped to introduce a bill in the near future. Mr. Tenney moved reference to the Miscellaneous Committee. Some desultory debate ensuing on the Chinese question, Attorney-General Smith drew attention to the repeated and unwearying attempts which had been made by the Government in all parts of the world to get a more suitable class of laborers than Chinese and Japanese. Resort was had to the Japanese only because everything else had failed. Now the Chinese population had diminished, the Japanese grown large, and the late legislature, after long debate, had passed a law providing for the admission of a limited number of Chinese under restrictions of a severity unknown before. This was an experiment. There was nothing to conceal, and a desire to do nothing which was not for the best interests of the country. He favored reference to committee of the Advisory Coun-

Mr. Brown said the matter was very important and should receive the attention of the whole Council, and he hoped the introducer would consent to deferring the considera-tion of it for a week, when all the Conneil could be present. He would like a copy himself.

Mr. Emmeluth consented and the resolution was ordered type-written and distributed among the members.

Concerning the Hawaiian question. Mr. Cleveland apparently has not changed his mind. He maintains that Mr. Blount's report shows beyond all question that the monarchy was overthrown by the active aid of the American Minister." The message goes on to say:

"With the view of accomplishing this result-'to restore as far as practicable the status existing at the time of our forcible intervention'—within the constitutional limits of executive power, and recognizing all our obligations and responsibilities growing out of any changed conditions brought about by our unjustifiable interference, our present Minister to Hawaii has received appropriate instructions has instructions to restore the monarchy. If these instructions are carried out, the Cleveland Administration will be doing exactly what it condemned the Harrison Administration for doing-to wit. overturning a friendly government. This journal has from the first been opposed to annexation. But opposing annexation and advocating monarchy are two very different things. There is a government in Hawaii-a de facto government. It is Republican in form. If it is not what the Hawaiian people want, they can overturn it. They can replace it with whatsoever form of government best pleases them. But if the present Democratic Administration of the United States overturns a Republican government, no matter how begotten, and replaces it with a monarchical government, was an outrage to send out of the no matter how overthrown, it will

A New French Warship Probably Entitled to be so Designated.

There are some important facts in connection with the new French line-of-battle-ship Jaureguiberry, which was launched the other day near Toulon. In the first place she was built in less than two years, a period which leaves all previous French records far behind, and upsetting all existing theories as to the facilities in that country for increasing its naval forces. In the second the ship is afloat, being superior in some respects to the Nile or Trafalgar of the British navy, which she most nearly resembles. It is said that her lines are so fine and so different from those of the majority of rather like a fast cruiser than a ship of the line. The stem, gently curving outward, fails to recall the characteristic boot-toe form of the majority of French ironelads; and a deck higher than the after part

The problem undertaken by the designer was to combine great speed with his gun-power and as complete protection as it was possible to give and it is claimed that mahi had his turn Tuesday after-M. Lagane has solved his difficulties in a remarkable manner. His harbor about 5 P. M. with the engines of 13,000 horse-power are expected to give a speed of 17 knots, or with forced draught 17½ knots. She carries 44-ton guns on her quarterdeck and forecastle, and a 34-ton gun on each beam, with a full complement of quickfiring and other machine guns. An important feature of her armament is that her guns are so balanced that they can all be trained in any direction without affecting the trim of the ship. Another noticeable thing about the Jauregulberry is the extensive use of electricity as a motive power. It will move the turrets, raise the ammunition, and do much other work which in the majority of modern ironclads is done by steam or by pneumatic or hydraulic power. It will also of course, light the vessel. The ship contains 550 incandescent lights, and there will be six very powerful Mangin searchlights.—N. Y. Post.

munity in the dominions of the Brit- | Schmit, Naileborn and H. Klemme. ish empire to elect a Parliament under woman sufrage, and the result will be watched with interest by every English speaking community the world over. Since the idea of ad-mitting women to the franchise first originated, there is, and always will be, we suppose, a diversity of opinion in regard to the advisability of allowing women the privilege of a voice in electing the Legislature of the coun-try. Like our senior member Mr. Dalrymple, there are many who be-lieve that women would be better occupied as wives and mothers while others like the veteran statesmen Sir George Grey and Sir Henry Parkes are of opinion that the step taken by the people of New Zealand was one in the right direction showing that a young nation had recognized that the wives and mothers of the colony were in every respect worthy and deserving of having some voice and vote in reference to their own welfare. Sir George even goes further, and advocates the principle that women should not only have a vote for the chamber of males, but that they should have a like Chamber of their own in place of the Legislative Council, and bolds that the tenderness of woman's heart and her devotion to her husband and children would lead her to frame laws more for the benefit of the human race than any other laws yet made. We are not all prepared to advocate woman suf-frage for Queensland at present, but should the time arrive when it will be found desirable to allow women the same privilege as is now accorded them in New Zealand, we hold that the time will also have arrived for al-lowing them to have a direct voice in the Legislature of the country, be-lieving, as we do, that the two concessions should be granted simultane-

As regards the effect of women's vote at the recent election in New Zealand, the fact cannot be ignored that it was largely instrumental in gaining for the Ministerialists the substantial majority of fifty-two out of the seventy-four seats contested. It is a somewhat remarkable fact that no less than two hundred and seventy-one candidates aspired to take possession of these seventy-four seats and this enormous candidature is declared by opponents of the measure to be attrib-utable to women having encouraged every faddist to offer himself for parliamentary bonors. However this may be, it is beyond dispute that the greatest interest was shown by the women, numbers of them taking prominent parts in the various election meetings to the discomfiture of many of the candidates, and though the exciteeandidates, and though the excitement appears to have run high at times, to the credit of the male electors be it said, the women were in no tuner from the firm of Kohler & were everywhere freely exercised and evidently to considerable purpose. It is stated that Mr. Rolleston, the leader of the opposition, owed his defeat entirely to the determined way the women worked against him because of the opposition he offered to the hill granting than the avancies of the bill granting them the exercise of the franchise, while Sir George Grey's large majority of 1700 at Parnell is said to be largely owing to his support of the measure which he constantly advocated with all the oratorical force at his gammand. cal force at his command.

It is quite evident that the women of New Zealand intend to exercise their newly acquired power to its fullest extent, and it is equally evi-dent that there are those in their ranks who are capable of organizing their less demonstrative sisters. The first election in which women have probably the very finest ironclad afloat, being superior in some restallant of the probably the very finest ironclad exercised the franchise marks an epoch in the history of Australasia. But whether the experiment will prove successful yet remains to be seen. In the meantime, future developments will be watched with in-terest by the rest of the Australasian colonies with a view to following or ent from those of the majority of not following the lead of New Zea-French battleships that she looks land, according as the experiment may turn out socially—a success or a

AN OCEAN TRAGEDY.

THE TERRIBLE FATE WHICH BEFEL THE CENTRAL AMERICA.

A Contest Between Angry Waters and a Bucket Line, In Which the Latter Lost, A Cowardly Engineer-A Bird Guided the Ellen to the Rescue.

And who that remembers can hear without a thrill the name of the steamship Central America, which sank in a great storm on Sept. 12, 1837, with most of her officers and crew, nearly 400 pasengers and $1,800,000 in gold?

The Central America was crowded with treasure laden people from California on their way to New York. After leaving Havana on Sept. 8 she ran nto a storm. The steamer began to eak, and Captain Hernden called upon the passengers to form lines and pass the buckets. Hour after hour the tempest howled, and the huge vessel groaned as the immense seas broke against her. Hour after hour the men with the buckets toiled for their lives; slowly the water gained on them

The officers exhorted the bucket gangs not to pause for a moment if the ship was to be saved. The wind roared and the storm increased in fury. Every passenger stuck to his post and worked until he fell to the deck exhausted. Then the women offered to take the places of their wormout, fainting husbands and brothers, but none of the men would alow it. As the horror of the situation gradually dawned on the minds of the won en and children the air was filled with sounds of terror, but above the aging hurricane and the cries of lamentation rose the chorus of the bucket

Heave, oh! heave, oh! stamp and go. We'll'be jolly blather, oh! All day long they sang this song and ought for life against the steadily rising water. Mrs. Easton, a bride on her honeymoon trip, passed bottles of wine to the heroic men to strengthen them in their desperate work. All night long the struggle was continued, and still the begged, with tears in their eyes, to be allowed to help. They cheered the brave quantity will be accepted, no matter how fellows and wept when they saw them trembling limbs.

During the next day the peril of the steamer was increased by the lack of food and water. The hurricane tossed the sinking hull about and shattered her spars and masts. While the tired and sleepless men stuck to the buckets the women knelt and prayed to God for as-

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon a sail was seen to windward. Guns were fired and signals of distress hoisted. The strange vessel, which turned out to be The International Schuetzen the brig Marine of Boston, answered the might weigh them down. The men still remained at their work, saying that they would remain on board until another ship arrived, as the Marine could not take all the passengers, and the women and children must be saved first. Among those heroes was Billy

Birch, the famous minstrel. Two of the lifeboats were smashed by the sea, but three boats were filled with women and children, many of the latter being infants. The last boat to leave carried the chief engineer. He solemnly promised the captain to return, but the moment he got into the boat he drew a knife and threatened to kill any one who followed him. Later on, when the women and children were put on board the Marine, the chief engineer, like the coward and liar he was, refused to return.

Now the sinking steamship was so low in the ocean that almost every wave swept her deck. Some of the passengers got into the rigging, while others tried to build a raft. Night came on. The storm continued to rage. The ship quivered and careened. Rockets scared up into the bellowing, angry heavens. Slow ly the vessel filled with water, and the doomed host clinging to her deck and rigging prepared for death. There was no weeping and no shricking, no wringing of hands. The captain stood at the wheel to the last.

All at once the ship, as if in an agony of death herself, made a plunge at an angle of 45 degrees, and with an appalling shrick from the engulfed mass she disappeared, and nearly 500 human beings were left struggling among the fierce waters. The scene was horrifying. and many who were saved afterward fainted at the mere memory of it.

A few held on to planks and spars all through the wild night, and as the day broke the Norwegian bark Ellen arrived and picked up 49 of the men.

"I was forced out of my course just before I met you," said the captain of the Ellen to the rescued passengers, "and when I altered my course a bird flew across the ship once or twice, and then darted into my face. A few minutes later the bird repeated its movements. I thought it an extraordinary thing, and while thinking on it in this way the mysterious bird reappeared, and for the third time flew into my face. This induced me to alter my course back to the original one, and in a short time I heard noises in the sea and discovered that I was in the midst of shipwrecked

Who shall say what power guided the flight of the frail messenger through the stormy air?-New York Herald.

The President Exercises His Pardoning Power Yesterday.

TWO FULL PARDONS ARE GRANTED.

A Commutation of Seven Years-Kaapuni and Christian Friest are Now Free Men - The Story of Their

Two men, who have been suffertheir misdeeds, but have shown that they were repentant, and trying, to the best of their ability, to lowly sphere that they have occupied for years, an example to their fellow prisoners, were made happy beyond expression Wednesday, by having their liberty given them. These men were Kaapuni, a native, and Christian Friest, a German. Ah Tuck, a Chinaman had his sentence lessened by seven years.

The occasion of the release was the first anniversary of this Government's birth. It was thought well by the President and both Councils to exercise the power of clemency that is vested in them. and to release a few of the prisoners in the Oahu Prison. Those who were released, and the one who had his sentence commuted, were considered the best ones to of the Government, do hereby, in achave clemency shown them, as they have all been most faithful, honest, and well behaved since their incarceration.

The most important pardon was that of the native man, Kaapuni. He was sentenced about twenty years ago to be hung for murder. His sentence was afterward com- pardon, muted to twenty-five years imprisonment at hard labor, and, taking into account the time allowance for | A. Kaapuni has been working at the Station house for some time past, and has been considered the most eral. faithful "trusty" there. Yesterday, all unsuspecting, he was sent out to the prison and told that there were some things there for him to bring back to the Station house. On one pretext or another he was kept at the prison until the Attorney-General and the Prison Inspectors arrived, when the convicts were all mustered into the courtyard of the jail. He was the first one called upon to have his pardon read to him. He had no idea of what was coming and apparently did not thoroughly understand the purport of the document which Marshal Hitchcock read in English. A Boston Dressmaker Present for But when C. P. Iaukea, who was interpreting into Hawaiian, reached the part where it said that it was "granted unto Kaapuni a full and free pardon," the native, who had spent twenty years of the best part of his life behind prison bars, started, then looked incredulous, but at last, realizing the fact that there was no deception in the matter, but that from thenceforth he was a free man, the tears springing to his eyes he bowed his head upon his breast.

Christian Friest was next called up by Jailor Low and his pardon was read to him. He was not so expressive of his feelings as Kaapuni, but he, nevertheless, showed that he was deeply conscious of the fact that he was again a free man.

Ah Tuck, the Chinese who had a seven year commutation of sentence granted him, received the information with the stolidity of his race, but was wreathed in smiles race, but was wreathed in smiles as soon as the ceremony was over dressmaker. She says: and he had received the congratulations of those present.

When the Attorney-General had concluded the reading of the pardons he made a short address to the prisoners, telling them that the pardoning power of the Executive was not intended to interfere in any way with the functions of the courts, but was now simply as a reward for good behavior in prison. and that each man had it in his power to reduce his time by obeying the laws of the prison. He reviewed the cases of each of the men pardoned, and pointed out how they had been rewarded for their good behavior. His remarks were translated into Hawaiian, Japanese, Chinese and Portuguese by the interpreters present.

While the Attorney-General was speaking, the two pardoned men were seated on a bench alone. A turnkey brought them a suit of clothes, shoes and a hat, and as seon as Mr. Smith had finished, date of publication of this notice or they they went to their cells for the last will be to ever barred. time to don once more the raiment of the outside world. When they came upstairs to bid good-bye to the prison officials, they were both much affected, and Kaspuni in particular could not restrain his Office.

THREE CONVICTS MADE HAPPY, tears. They were heartily congratulated by all the officials, and left the prison together.

The crimes for which the men were serving time can be told in a few words. A little over twenty years ago Kaapuni, who lived on the Volcano road, about ten miles from Hilo, was persuaded, through the influence of a kahuna, to assist two other young natives in the murder of an aged Hawaiian and his wife who were known to have a large amount of money in their house. This they did, in a most cold-blooded way, Kaapuni and arms while the third split Good for burns, chapped lips and hands, then attached the all the life of t then attacked the old man, and murdered him. The kahuna got ing severe penalties of the law for all the money, about $1500. The HOW CAN YOU TOLERATE murderers were all arrested. One turned States evidence, and escaped, while the others were both sentenced to be hanged. Kaalead better lives, and to be, in the puni's sentence was afterwards commuted to twenty-five years imprisonment, but his companion had the original sentence carried out, and was officially killed in the prison yard.

Friest was convicted of an assault to murder and sentenced October 22, 1887, to eight years at hard labor. He had about one more year to serve.

Ah Tuck was serving a seventeen year sentence for manslaughter, of which he will now have about two years more, including his time allowance.

Friest's pardon read as follows

I, Sanford B. Dole, President of the Provisional Government of the Ha-waiian Islands,

Moved by just causes made known to me, and being advised thereto by the Executive and Advisory Councils cordance with the power in me vested, grant unto Christian Friest, now in Oahu Prison, who was convicted in the Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands on the 22d day of October, A.D. 1887, of the crime of assault with intent to murder, and sentenced at hard labor for the term of eight years and to pay one hundred and seventeen dollars fine and costs, a full and free

Arrival of the Martha Davis, From New York.

The American bark Martha Davis, Captain A. L. Soule, arrived off port at 9 o'clock on Tuesday night, 151 days from New York, with 1670 tons of general cargo, consigned to C. Brewer & Co. The unusually long passage was due to calms experienced between Rio de la Plata and latitude 50 deg. south. She left New York August 18, and on August 21 passed through a severe hurricane, blowing the sails away and the ship laboring very hard, but the vessel sustained no serious damage. After that, had light baffling winds to the limit of the trades; thence experienced little or no trades, and crossed the ant evening was brought to a close line in the Atlantic when forty days! by the singing of "Hawaii Ponoi."

out. Thence to Rio de la Plata had fair southeast trades. From south of the Plata to 50 deg. south, and for fourteen days, experienced calms. She was twenty-seven days passing from 50 deg. south Atlantic to 50 degrees south Pacific, northwest gales prevailing. Arrived off the meridian of Cape Horn eightyone days out. From 50 deg. south Pacific to the limit of the trades, experienced light north-northwest winds and calms. Crossed the equator in the Pacific in longitude 125 deg. west on January 2. Thence had northeast trades to port. The mizzen topmast was carried away soon after leaving the line. Sighted Maui January 15, and arrived off Diamond Head at 9 P.M. January 16. The Martha Davis brings a full cargo, including 15,000 cases of kerosene oil, 600 cases matches, 100 tons cannel coal for the Honolulu Iron Works, a new printing press and 300 reams of printing paper for the Hawaiian Gazette Company, and sundry merchandise. After unloading cargo, the Martha Davis will leave either for Hongkong or Manila.

Turner left on Tuesday evening for the Japan Seas. The Captain landed twenty-four seal skins to be shipped to San Francisco. The Matthew Turner was the same schooner whose Captain defied Port Surveyor Sanders and his men about a year ago. The case police last night at Kikihale for has been settled with the owners selling opium in small Chinese at San Francisco through the nuts. He was released on $1000 American Consul.

The steamer Hawaii arrived yesterday from Honomu. She left schooner C. F. Crocker were still lying at Hilo. The Annie Johnson was expected to leave yesterday for San Francisco with sugar.

A coal laden ship from Australia was reported off port last evening.

RECEPTION TO MRS. GOWAN

Tendered By the Members of the Chinese Church.

Yesterday evening the members and congregation of St. Peter's Chinese chapel, adjoining St. Andrew's Cathedral, tendered a reception in the Sunday school room to Mrs. Gowan, wife of the Rev. H. H. Gowan, who is at present on a visit to St. Andrew's Priory. The interior of the schoolroom was most tastefully decorated with flags and | work of our office. colored lanterns. At one end of the room were hung the Chinese and British flags, with a transparency in the center on which was inscribed the word "Welcome." The members of the Chinese congregation, which was founded by the Rev. Mr. Gowan, have always held him in the highest esteem, and deeply regretted his departure from the Islands. To show their aloha this reception was tendered to Mrs. Gowan, and she must have been gratified to see such a large attendance, for the schoolroom was quite filled. A committee of Chinese waited on Mrs. Gowan and escorted her from the Priory to the schoolroom. There were also present the Bishop of Honolulu and Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Flewelling, of Vancouver Rev. V. H. Kitcat, Miss Armstrong. Miss Danford, Mr. and Mrs. J.

The Bishop, in a few words, introduced Mrs. Gowen, and then spoke of Mr. Gowen's laying the foundation of the Chinese work in connection with St. Peter's chapel, and also of the work Mr. Gowen is doing in New Westminster, where he is at present located. The following programme was then rendered:

Address-Mr. T. Ah Hung. Chorus-"The Wood Thrush." Pupils of St. Andrew's Priory. Duet-Violoncello and piano-Mr.

Wray Taylor and Rev. V. H. Kitcat. Hymn-"Jesus our Shepherd."

Chinese congregation. Address-Rev. Yee Bew.

Chorus-"Nawell." Pupils of St. Andrew's Priory.

Mr. Chang Chow had charge of the entertainment, and acquitted himself with much credit. Mr. Ahung, in the course of his remarks, asked Mrs. Gowen to carry home with her their best wishes and aloha to her husband. During the evening Mrs. Gowen was presented with a handsomely embroidered Chinese tablecloth and a pretty bouquet. Through the Bishop, she thanked them all for their kind present and entertainment. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake were handed around, after which the very pleas-
